THE PREFACE.

BRITISH MUSEUM

BEING now to give the Reader ſome Account of the Hiſtorical, &c. Dictionary of Monſieur Morery, I think it no more than a decent piece of Juſtice to let the Gentleman ſay ſomething for himſelf. This Author, to recommend his Undertaking, [Morery's Preface] gives us to underſtand, That a Performance of this kind muſt be very ſerviceable even to Perſons of Learning: That for this Reaſon ſeveral Ancient Writers, before Iſidore and Suidas, have gone upon this Subject, tho' the Accidents of Time have deprived us of a great part of their Works. In the XVIth. Century Thomas Elliot, an Engliſh Gentleman, and an intimate Acquaintance of Sir Thomas More, made a Collection of all the Writers of Dictionaries, in a Treatiſe of his intitul'd, Bibliotheca Dictionaria: Thus we are inform'd by Pits in his Famous Engliſh Writers.

But it may be the Inquiſitive Reader would gladly know what Fortune theſe Hiſtorical Dictionaries have had in the World; and who was the firſt in the XVIth. Century that gave himſelf the trouble to undertake them. Eraſmus owns that he had ſome Thoughts this way, for the Aſſiſtance of thoſe who began to read the Poets, but he never executed his Deſign. An anonymous Author, and a Friend of Eraſmus's, publiſhed a Book of this Nature in the Year 1534. This Work was printed at Baſil, but not much valued, being little more than a Tranſcription of ſome part of Ambroſius Calepinus. Some time after, Cibenius a German publiſhed his Lexicon Hiſtoricum & Poeticum. This Dictionary, which was very well manag'd, was printed at Lyons in the Year 1544. Afterwards Charles Stephens made a New One, in which, beſide the Hiſtorical part, he added the Improvements of Geography. This Dictionary run through the Preſs ſeveral times, being enlarg'd upon every Edition. The Sieur Boyer likewiſe wrote one, containing the proper Names of Men, Countries, Towns, Animals, Plants, &c. of all which, in ſome places he gives a pretty large accouut.

Beſides theſe abovemention'd, we have the Poetical Dictionary of Robert Stephens, that of Cities written by Stephanus of Byzantium, the Geographical Dictionary of Ortelius, and that of Ferrarius augmented by Baudrand: Not forgetting the Philoſophical Dictionary of Goclenius, that of Chymiſtry compos'd by Rutlandus, the Mathematical one of Diſapodius and Vitalis, and ſome others for the Profeſſions of Law and Phyſick, &c. Theſe Performances have upon Experiment prov'd very ſignificant, and met with great Approbation from the Learned.

To proceed, The general Regard paid to Authors of Character, has occaſion'd Catalogues of them to be drawn up, to preſerve their Memory. This Project has been well purſu'd, by Writers of almoſt all Ages and Countries, particularly, by St. Hierom, Gennadius, Honorius, Auguſtodunenſis, Ildefonſus, Iſidore, Sigebert of Gemblours, Henry of Ghent, Trithemius, Sixtus Senenſis, Bellarmin, and ſeveral others. There have alſo been Catalogues made of all the Greek and Latin Writers: Geſner of Zurich led the way, and perform'd to a conſiderable degree, in his Library of Authors carry'd on to his own Time. This Work was ſo well receiv'd, that Lycoſthenes, Du Verdier de Vauprivas, and ſome others purſu'd his Method, and expected to find their Account in coming out with Enlargements upon the ſame Subject. Simler furniſh'd out an Abridgment; and the Learned Jeſuit Poſſevin ſtands the ſame Courſe with Geſner in his excellent Apparatus. The Sieur de la Croix du Maine had the ſame view in his Bibliotheque, where he mentions all thoſe Authors that wrote from 500 Years upwards of his own Time. This was printed at Páris in 1584. The Year after Antony du Verdier de Vauprivas publiſh'd another Bibliotheque, in which the Deſign was much the ſame: Both theſe often mention the ſame Authors, but their Management is different: La Croix du Maine has a bigger Liſt than Verdier, and gives ſome account of the Condition and Character of his Men; but Verdier dilates more upon the Books, and ſometimes Tranſcribes his Authors at length. Father Lewis Jacob, a Carmelite, promis'd us an Univerſal Library of all the French Writers. It was to appear in Four Volumes in Folio; two French, and two Latin. 'Tis a Miſfortune that this great Work is yet unprinted: For Father Jacob was a Man of Learning, as appears by ſeveral Treatiſes publiſh'd by him. 'Twas he that drew up a Catalogue of Books printed in France under the Title of Bibliotheca Gallica Univerſalis: He alſo wrote Bibliotheca Pontificia, and Bibliotheca Fœminarum.

This Deſire of ſecuring the Memory of Authors has prevail'd in moſt Countries: Bale and Pits have undertaken for the Engliſh; Sir James Ware for thoſe of Ireland; Cornelius Callidius and ſome others for thoſe of Germany; not to mention Melchior Adam, who wrote the Lives of the Divines, Philoſophers, Lawyers, and Phyſicians of that Nation, who liv'd in the XVI. Century. Suffridus Petri has collected the Authors of Weſt-Frieſland; Simon Starovolſcius thoſe of Poland; Andreas Schottus, Alfonſus Garcias, and Nicholas Antonius Hiſpalenſis, thoſe of Spain; Uberi Folieta, Raphael Soprano, and Michael Juſtiniani, thoſe of the Coaſts of Genoa, and the reſt of Liguria. Farther; The Authors belonging to ſuch and ſuch Towns have been taken care of by ſeveral Collectors: Thomaſinus has given us a Regiſter of thoſe of Padua; Bumaldi thoſe of Bolognia; Hieronymo Rubei has preſerv'd thoſe of Ravenna; Coria and Ripamonte thoſe of Milan; Hugolino Verrino has muſter'd the Writers of Florence; Sanders has done as much for thoſe of Ghent, and ſo has Julius Puteanus for the Lawyers of Verona; Lewis Jacob abovementioned, has left an Account of the Authors of Châlon upon the Sône, and the Sieur Pitton has done the ſame for thoſe of Aix in Provence. Thoſe alſo who have written the Hiſtory of particular Provinces have taken notice of the Men of Letters that flouriſh'd there. This has been well perform'd in the Hiſtory of Dauphine, by the Sieur Chorier, in that of Languedoc by Catel, and in that of Provence by Bouche; and thus I might go on to a great many others. All the Religious Orders have gone upon the ſame Deſign of making Collections of the Writers belonging to them. Trithemius and Arnoldus Wionius have done it for the Benedictines; Dorlandus and Petreius for the Carthuſians: Leander Alberti, Alfonſus Fernandes, Ambroſius Gorzæus, Malpæus, &c. for the Dominicans: Boſtius, Lucius, Alegre, &c. for the Carmelites: Willot and Wading for the Franciſcans; Page for thoſe of Premôntre; and for the Jeſuites, Ribadeneira and Alegambe. This Concern has run through other eminent Profeſſions and Societies. Thus Rutilius, Gaſneri, Forſter, Neviſan, Fichard, Wolfgangus Friemonius, Bertrand, &c. have written a Collection of Eminent Lawyers. The Phyſicians have had the like Juſtice done them by Champier, Schenkius, Fuſchius, Caſtellanus, Vander Linden, &c. We have likewiſe the Lives of ſeveral Members of the Academies, as thoſe of the French Academy in the Hiſtory of that Society written by Monſieur Peliſſon: This Method has been practis'd in ſeveral Academies in Italy. The Memory of the Profeſſors of Leiden and Groeningen have alſo been preſerv'd this way. Thus the Lives of the famous Painters have been tranſmitted to us by Vaſari, Rodolphi, Felibien, &c. The Lives of the French Biſhops may be ſeen in the Gallia Chriſtiana of M. M. de Sainte Marthe: The Italian Prelates ſtand in the Italia Sacra of the Abbot Ughel: The Engliſh are to be met with in Harpsfield*'s* Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory; (to which we may add, Godwin, Anglia Sacra, &c.) The Hiſtory of the Low-Country Biſhops is kept up by Miræus, Sanders, &c.

The Lives of ſeveral Popes and Kings, (not to mention any other Records) may be ſeen in the particular Hiſtories of the Miniſters of France; and in a Treatiſe publiſh'd by Monſieur le Comte d'Auteuil. The Hiſtory of the Cardinals is written by Ciaconius, Aubery, &c. Thoſe of the French Nation, by du Cheſne and Frizon: The Lives of great Generals and other Secular Perſons of Fame and Quality, are written by M. de Brantôme, the Baron de Forquevauls, &c. Paulus Jovius, Thevet, Papyrius Maſſonus, Miræus, Sanders, and Scævola de Sainte Marthe, give Characters of Advantage to Men of Learning and Merit; the laſt of theſe confines himſelf to the Learned of the French Nation. Theodore Beza and Boiſſard, have drawn Portraicts of Perſons of Eminence and Figure: Pierius Valerianus has written the Characters of the Unfortunate Learned, and the Deſign of Lorenzo Craſſo takes in the Scholars of all Nations: This laſt Piece is written in Italian. Victor Roſſi, commonly called Janus Nicius Erythræus wrote an Account in Latin of the Men of Wit of his own time; his Book is call'd Pinacotheca Imaginum Illuſtrium.

Boccace Betuſſi, Peter Paul de Ribera, Francis Serdonati, Auguſtin della Chieſa, Philip de Bergamo, Scardeoni, Cæſar Capacio, Pinto, Hilarion de Coſta, &c. have endeavour'd to do Juſtice to the Worth of the other Sex, and made a Collection of celebrated and deſerving Ladies. And here M. Brantôme has treated this Subject for thoſe of his own Country. Lilius Giraldus, Crinitus, Julius Scaliger and Voſſius have done ſomething for the Poets: This laſt Author has compos'd Treatiſes concerning the Works, Character, &c. of Mathematicians, Philoſophers, Orators, together with the Greek and Latin Hiſtorians. La Popeliniere has drawn up a Body of Hiſtorians; Martin Zeiller has written a Book of the moſt Eminent Chronologers, Geographers, and Hiſtorians. Andrew Quenſtedt has likewiſe compos'd a Treatiſe of the Birth place of Men of Learning, intituled, De patria illuſtrium Doctrina & ſcriptis virorum. And laſtly, Father Labbé has oblig'd us with a Collection of all thoſe Authors who have written Panegyrical Characters, Lives, Dictionaries, Libraries, &c. in a Book of his call'd, Bibliotheca Bibliothecarum.

Theſe Books are all Dictionaries in ſome meaſure, and as ſuch I have made uſe of them in the Compoſing my own: In which Work I Report nothing but what the Authors cited by me will make good: And have endeavour'd neither to ſtuff it with Impertinent Matter, nor yet to baulk the Curioſity of the Reader in any thing that's ſignificant.

Thus far Monſieur Morery.

As to the Condition, Abilities, and other Circumſtances relating to our Author, I ſhall refer the Reader to the Article Morery: And proceed to give a ſhort Account of the Progreſs and Improvement of this Work after his Death. And not to inſiſt upon the Fifth Edition, which as the Sieur Le Clerc obſerves, was much larger, and more Correct; than either of thoſe two Impreſſions publiſh'd by Monſieur Morery in his Life-time: In the Year 1689 a Supplemental Volume to this Dictionary was printed by it ſelf: In the Sixth Edition, Reviſ'd, and Enlarg'd by the Sieur Le Clerc, the Supplement was thrown into the Body of the Dictionary, rang'd according to the Order of the Alphabet, and ſo manag'd, that ſeveral unneceſſary Repetitions of Articles were par'd off.

In this Condition the Engliſh Undertakers found it; and upon this Bottom they work'd for their Edition printed in 1694. The Publiſhers inform us, That they have corrected a great many Errors which eſcaped in the French: And taken care that the beſt Hiſtorians, Chronologers, Lexicographers, &c. ſuch as Calviſius, Helvicus, Iſaacſon, Marſham, Baudrand, Hoffman, Lloyd, Chevreau, and others, ſhould be conſulted. They likewiſe inform us, that they have added abundance of entire Paragraphs, with a * prefix'd to diſtinguiſh them: That the Hiſtory and Geography of Great Britain, Ireland, and our Foreign Plantations, are taken from the beſt of our own Authors: Beſides, there is a brief and exact Deſcription of every County: An Account of the Engliſh Nobility is likewiſe extracted from Sir William Dugdale: To which the Families of ſome of the Gentry are added by other Hands.

The Seventh Dutch Edition, the Sieur Le Clerc tells us, was only Reviſ'd without any Addition of new Articles; but this Review was ſo carefully manag'd, that this Impreſſion is incomparably more Correct than any of the former.

In the Eighth French Edition printed in Holland in 1698, the Sieur Le Clerc lets us know, That he has corrected all the Faults, which the famous Monſieur Bayle had remark'd in this Dictionary; unleſs in ſome places where he believes Monſieur Morery in the right. He farther informs us, That he has clear'd this laſt Impreſſion of a great many Errors overlook'd by him before: That tho' the Additions are but ſmall in their ſingle Bulk, yet they are very conſiderable in their Number: So that upon the whole, this Edition is much more perfect than any of the former.

Upon theſe Advantages of Ground we ſtand in this Second Engliſh Impreſſion: And here I conceive 'twill be expected, that I ſhould ſay ſomething about the preſent Undertaking.

The Reader then may pleaſe to take notice in the 1ſt place, That I have endeavour'd to correct the Inequality of the Stile, and bring it up to a tolerable and uniform Propriety. This Improvement could only be expected from a ſingle Hand, it being impracticable when the Work was divided among ſeveral Perſons, which was the Caſe of the former London Impreſſion.

2dly, As to the Matter, the Engliſh Tranſlation has not ſeldom miſtaken the French Original, and loſt the Senſe of the Author, which I have taken care to recover.

3dly, There are conſiderable Additions in Hiſtory both Eccleſiaſtical and Secular; in Geography, Mythology, Painting, &c. Particularly I found it neceſſary to melt down ſome part of the Engliſh Hiſtory and throw it into a new Form; both to bring it up the better to Matter of Fact, and likewiſe to ſhew Things in their Natural Complexion, and treat them ſomewhat in the Language of the Conſtitution. To ſpeak clearly, I have made a great many Alterations upon ſeveral Subjects, but I hope not without good Reaſon and Authority.

There is likewiſe a Genealogical and Hiſtorical Account of ſeveral Noble and Ancient Families inſerted, together with the Lives of many Eminent Perſons in the Profeſſions of Divinity, Law and Phyſick. In ſhort, the larger Additions beſides Patching, amount to about 80 Sheets. 'Tis true, I have ſet no particular Mark upon the Enlargements, being afraid ſo much Diſtinction might make the Book look Humourſome: If the Reader finds his Satisfaction, all's well, and he may reckon it to whom he pleaſes.

A Recital of the Authors made uſe of upon this occaſion, would be Tedious, and therefore I ſhall only add, That I have all along endeavoured to apply to the Beſt: And here 'twill not be improper to mention, That I have gone no farther in Time than the Year 1688; ſo that whatever the Reader meets with of a freſher Date, is either the Remainder of the old Engliſh Edition, or elſe continu'd by ſome other Hand, at the Inſtance of the Undertakers. The Article Argyle is an Exception to what I have ſaid; and therefore with all due Regard to a Noble Family, I am obliged to declare that had that Article been printed as I left it, it would have appeared with ſome Alteration.

As for the Uſefulneſs of this Work, 'tis a Collection of almoſt Univerſal Knowledge, and may be call'd rather a Library than a Book: It not only runs through the greateſt part of Learning, and affords a vaſt variety of Matter; but alſo acquaints the Reader with moſt of the conſiderable Authors that have written upon any Subject, and which is more, their Writings are often diſtinguiſh'd and mark'd in their Intrinſick, and Value. But the Title Page having in a great meaſure perform'd the commending part of a Preface, I ſhall dilate no farther upon this Argument.

THE GREAT
HISTORICAL, GEOGRAPHICAL, GENEALOGICAL, AND POETICAL DICTIONARY: BEING
A Curious Miſcellany of Sacred and Prophane HISTORY.

BRITISH MUSEUM

A, Is the firſt Letter of the Alphabet in all the known Languages of the World, except in that of the Æthiopians, where, according to Ludolphus's Grammar, it is the 13th. The pronunciation of it is free and open, though ſome Nations, and particularly the Engliſh, vary in the ſounding it ſometimes open, ſometimes cloſe, as in the Words all and take. Chriſt in a myſtical ſence compares himſelf to the Alpha and Omega of the Greeks, to ſignifie that he was the beginning and end of all things. Tertullian ſays, that he uſes this Simile, to make us underſtand, that God having reunited all in him, as in the Head, he will alſo finiſh all things by him; but S. Epiphanius and Origen by theſe Two Letters underſtand his Two Natures.

Aa, a Fountain in the Province of Bearn, which the Country People call the Arquebuſade, becauſe it has a peculiar Virtue to cure the Wounds of Fire-Arms. Alſo the name of ſeveral Rivers, of which one runs by Aahaus in the Dioceſs of Munſter. A ſecond riſes in Boulonnois, croſſes the Country of Artois, and running to S. Omers, falls into the Sea below Gravelin. This is thought to be the Agnio and Eunemo of the Latins. A third call'd alſo Alpha in the Province of Friezeland. A fourth that runs by Steenwick in Over-yſſell, and throws it ſelf into the Sea near the Fort of Blockzill. A fifth in Switzerland, which diſcharges it ſelf into the Lake of Lucern. A ſixth, by ſome call'd Velicer, that riſes in Weſtphalia near Velen, runs thorough Boeckholt in the Biſhoprick of Munſter, and empties it ſelf in the Yſſell near Anhault. The ſeventh, another River of Weſtphalia, which runs by Munſter, and caſts it ſelf into the Eems; and an eighth of the ſame Country, that waſhes Stenfort, and loſes it ſelf in the Vecht. The name of Aa being common to ſo many Rivers in Upper and Lower Germany, I cannot help remarking, that Heſychius explains the Word Aa, σύστημα ὕδατος, or a confluence of waters. This would make one ſuſpect, that this Word was not originally German, for that Language is not very remote from the Greek as Caſaubon has ſhewn us, in his Book of the Saxon Language. Ortel. Sanſon.

Aap or Aabe, a ſmall River of Brabant which runs to Helmont and Boiſleduc, where it mixes with the Dommel.

Aagram or Agram. See Zagrabia.

Aalam or Elmo l'Aalam: the name of Ali Elmo l'Hoſain, an Arabian of the Ninth Age, whoſe Skill in Aſtrology procur'd him the Eſteem of all the Princes of his Country. Pocock's Hiſt. &c.

Aalburg, Lat. Aalburgum, a City of North-Jutland, which is a Biſhop's See under the Arch-Biſhop of Lunden.

Aalem or Aulem, an Imperial Town of Swabia, containing about 30 Families. It formerly belong'd to the Dukes of Wirtembourgh, but Eberharb the Third, Sirnamed the Quarrelſom, loſt it.

Aama Sultandin, a King of Æthiopia who liv'd in the Eighth Century. Genebrard and ſome other Authors mention his Name, but ſay nothing of his Actions.

Aar or Art, in Latin Arola or Arula, a River of Switzerland, which riſing out of the Mountain Leugſchen, glides through the Lakes of Brientz and Thun, after which being ſwell'd with a great number of other Rivers, it falls into the Rhine between Baſil and Conſtance.

Aar, a River in the Province of Heſſe in Germany, which paſſing by Dudinek-hauſen, empties it ſelf into the Eder.

Aar or Aer, ſaid to be the Abrinca of the Ancients, another River of Germany, which runs to Huinen, thence to Aldenaer, and falls into the Rhine between Bonn and Coblentz.

Aaraſſo, in Lat. Aaraſſus, a Town in Piſidia, in Aſia the Leſs.

Aarburgh, Lat. Arburghum, or Arola Burghum, a ſmall but rich and pleaſant City of Switzerland upon the Aar, between Soleure and Araw, famous for its many Fountains and Rich Merchandizes. It has handſome Suburbs. The conveniences of the River Aar, and the Fairs which are held there, make it conſiderable.

Aaron, as much as to ſay a Mountain, was the firſt High Prieſt of the Jews, the Eldeſt Son of Amram, of the Tribe of Levi, and Brother to Miriam and Moſes. He was appointed by God to be the Interpreter of his Commands between Moſes and Pharaoh King of Egypt. Afterwards he was conſecrated High Prieſt by the Appointment of God: at which Ceremony Fire deſcended from Heaven, and conſumed the Victims. He had Four Sons, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. The Two firſt neglecting the Sacred Fire ordained for the Incenſe of the Temple, and making uſe of ſtrange Fire in their Cenſers, dy'd ſuddenly in the Tabernacle. Sometime after, Corah, Dathan, and Abiram, together with the Principal Heads of the Iſraelites, rebell'd againſt Moſes and Aaron, pretending to have a ſhare in the Government of the People and the High Prieſthood, but the Earth open'd and ſwallow'd up the Three Ring-leaders, with all that belong'd to 'em, and Fire from Heaven conſum'd their 250 unfortunate Abettors. Afterwards the remainder of the People making an Inſurrection againſt Moſes, God had puniſh'd them too as ſeverely, if Aaron had not made haſte with his Cenſer to pacifie the Divine diſpleaſure: God for a farther confirmation of Aaron's Prieſthood, commanded every Tribe to bring a Rod into the Tabernacle, with the name of the Tribe inſcribed upon it; To the end, that the Rod that ſhould bloſſom, might determine which of the Tribes God had choſen. Upon which Aaron's Rod flouriſhed both with Leaves and Bloſſoms. He died on Mount Hor, on the firſt day of the Month Ab, which in part correſponds with our July, in the 123d year of his Age, and in the year of the World 2583. Exod. 3. 4. Joſeph.

Aaron, call'd by the Arabians, Harun Raſlid, Caliph of Babylon, was one of the moſt Potent and Fortunate Monarchs of the Saracens. He began to Reign after his Brother Moſes, about the 785th year of the Chriſtian Calculation. He was an affable Prince, and a favourer of Learning, particularly of Poetry; and no leſs Magnanimous and Couragious, inſomuch that he made himſelf Maſter of the greateſt part of Aſia even to the Indies. He conquer'd Egypt, and conſtrain'd the Greek Emperor to pay him Tribute. He is reported to have been actually preſent in Eight pitch'd Battles, and always Victorious. He had ſuch a particular Eſteem of Charlemaign, that in the year 802, he ſent him an Embaſſy, and ſeveral Preſents; amongſt which were more ſingularly conſpicuous his own Elephant, and a Clock, admir'd for the Invention and Workmanſhip. Charlemaign being willing to make the beſt of his Friendſhip, deſir'd he might have leave to offer ſuch Preſents as he ſhould ſend to the Holy Sepulchre, which Aaron not only granted, but ſent him the Keys of the Sacred Places, proteſting withal, that they were abſolutely at his Service; which is the reaſon why Baronius aſſerts, that the French were the firſt Legal Poſſeſſors of the Holy Sepulchre. Aaron likewiſe had a great ſhare in the Treaty of Peace concluded at Saltz between Charlemaign and Nicephorus the Greek Emperor, who afterwards making his Son Stauracius Companion with him in the Empire, would needs enter into a War with the Saracens, but was utterly overthrown; after which Aaron pouring in upon him 300000 Men, conſtrain'd him to purchaſe his Peace by paying an Annual Tribute of 30000 Crowns of Gold ſtamp'd with his own Effigies, and 3000 ſtamp'd with the Pourtraicture of his Son, to ſignifie that they were both his Tributaries. He died in the 47th year of his Age, and 806th or 807th of Chriſt. Sigebert. in Chron. Paul. Diac. l. 24.

Aaron, a Magician, who inſinuated himſelf into the favour of the Emperor Emanuel Comnenus, by means of certain ridiculous Promiſes which he made him; but his Impoſture being diſcover'd, he ſuffer'd condign Puniſhment. There was found about him an Idol of Tortoiſe with the Image of a man, having his Feet tied, and his Heart pierc'd with a Nail; as alſo a Book of Invocation of Devils, by which he us'd to bring Legions of 'em about him. Nicetas.

Aaron, or Ahron of Alexandria, a Phyſician who lived in the 7th Age, and wrote a Volume of Phyſick divided into 30 Treatiſes; to which Sergius added two. Maſſerjawaih afterwards tranſlated them into Arabic.

Aaron Ben-Aſer, a Rabbi, eſteemed very much for the pains he took in inventing the Hebrew Points and Accents. Jacob Ben Napthali had a ſhare in this Work, which hath made both their Names Immortal. Pocock.

Aaron the Caraite, a famous Rabbi, who lived about the year 1300, (The Caraites are a Sect among the Jews, who rely upon the Holy Scriptures, and refuſe to receive Tradition, unleſs founded on the Holy Text.) He is eſteem'd among the Rabbies to be one of the beſt Interpreters of the Old Teſtament; as appears by his Manuſcript Commentary upon the Pentateuch, which is ſtill preſerved in the King of France's Library, and in that of the Fathers of the Oratory in Paris, Morin. Exercit. Bibl. Father Symon, Hiſt. Crit. Some will have him to be the ſame Perſon with Aaron Hariſcon, who wrote the Hebrew Grammar under the Title of Chelil Jophi, or Excellent in Beauty, which was Printed at Conſtantinople in the year 1581. P. Symon, Hiſtoire Critique.

Aaron, a Welſh Saint of Caerleon in Monmouthſhire, was a wealthy Citizen of the ſaid place, who for the Teſtimony of the Chriſtian Faith, was, with St. Julius his dear Friend, Martyr'd in the Reign of Diocleſian, Ann. 303. As to theſe Saints Names, 'tis obſerv'd, that the Chriſtian Britains quitted their Native Names at the Font as Barbarous, to take thoſe of the Learned Languages.

Aaſir, a City of Bahraim in Arabia Felix, 12 German miles N. W. of Hems.

Ab, the name of the 5th Month among the Jews conſiſting of 29 days. It was Remarkable for a Faſt mentioned by Zachariah, to put the Jews in remembrance of the Murmuring of their Fore-fathers, which obſtructed their entrance into the Land of Promiſe. In this Month it was that Moſes ſent his Spies from Kadeſh-Barnea into Canaan. Numb. 13. 14. Deut. 1. 19. Torniel.

Aba, A Mountain of the Greater Armenia, Twelve miles from Simyra, and which is thought to be the Town now call'd Erzerum. Euphrates riſes at the Foot of this Mountain, Thev. Pliny, lib. 5. Cap. 24. known by the name of Capodes, now vulgarly call'd Caicol. Alſo a City of Arabia the Happy.

Aba the Daughter of Zenophanes Tyrant of Olbus in Cilicia. Antony and Cleopatra inveſted her in the Abſolute Dominion of the Place, in acknowledgment of ſome Services which ſhe had done 'em. After her deceaſe, it returned to ſome of her remoter Kindred. Strabo.

Aba, or Aban, the Third King of Hungary, who uſurp'd that Kingdom An. 1042. after he had depoſed Peter the German, Succeſſor to Stephen I. but his Reign was ſhort, for he was ſlain in 1044. and Peter re-aſcended the Throne. Some years after he was buried, his Body was ſaid to be found entire, and without any Scars of the Wounds he had received. Bonfin.

Aba, a City of Phocis in Greece, famous of old for the Oracular Temple of Apollo, who was from thence called Apollo Abæus. It was burnt by Xerxes, upon which the Inhabitants, formerly call'd Abantes, retir'd to the Iſland of Negropont, and gave it the name of Abantis. Strabo.

Ababa, or Abaqua, an Alan by Birth, was Married in Thrace to a certain Goth, whoſe Name was Mecca or Micca, by whom ſhe had Maximin, who ſucceeded Alexander Severus in the Empire, Ann. Dom. 235. after he had been for ſome time a Shepherd in the Village where he was born. Herodian.

Abach, a Borough of Germany in the Dutchy of Bavaria, with a Fort upon the Danube two miles Weſt of Ratisbonne towards Munick or Munchen. Baudr.

Abachares, a People of the Southern parts of America near the River Madera, that diſcharges it ſelf into the River of the Amazons. Texeira.

Abachu vid. Bachu.

Abacoa, one of the Lucaia Iſlands in the North part of America, not far diſtant from Luchonequa, between Jabequem and the Rocks of Bimini. The Engliſh are now Maſters of this Iſland. Oviedo lib. 2. cap. 6. Herrera, Duval, &c. Sanſon.

Abaddir, the name of the Stone that Saturn ſwallow'd inſtead of his Children; for he being forewarn'd, that he ſhould be expell'd his Kingdom by one of his Sons, ſent for his Male Off-ſpring as ſoon as his Wife Rhea was deliver'd, that he might devour 'em. But ſhe being once ſo ſerv'd, ſent him at other times a Stone wrap'd up in Swadling Cloaths, and ſo deceiv'd him. Thoſe who enquire into the Moral of this Fable, conclude that Time is ſignified by Saturn, which is ſo much the more probable, becauſe the Greeks call Saturn Κρόνος, which is almoſt the ſame with χρόνος, which ſignifies Time; And the Latines call him Saturn, becauſe as Tully de Nat. Deor. obſerves, Saturatur Annis, He feeds upon Years, or his own Children, which are all the things Time produces, and deſtroys. Lactantius and Heſychius affirm this Stone was the God Terminus. The Greeks call it Βαίτυλον. The Latin's who call it Abader, ſeem plainly to have taken the name from the Syriac word Abder or Abadir: 'Tis probable Lactantius's Conjecture is true, that this Abadir is Terminus, and that Terminus is the ſame with Jupiter. The Reader if he pleaſes may conſult Bochart upon the word Abaddir, and Bætulium. Vid. Saturn.

Abaddon, a Name which St. John in his Revelation gives to the King of the Locuſts, an Infernal Angel, and which he explains by the Greek word Ἀπολλυών, or, the Deſtroyer, and therefore generally it is one of the Names of Satan or the Devil.

Abafti, or Apaff, (Michael) Prince of Tranſilvania, was the Son of one of the Magiſtrates of Hermanſtadt, the Capital City of that Province: He was elected Prince of Tranſilvania, Anno Dom. 1661. and being protected by the Grand Seignior, carried it againſt Chimir Janos his Competitor, ſupported by the Emperor. His Name made a great noiſe both in the preceding and preſent Wars, wherein he ſtill acted the beſt he could for his own advantage, ſuccouring under-hand the Turks and Malecontents of Hungary; but feeding the Emperor with fair Hopes and Negotiations of Agreement, till that Prince diſcovering his ſecret Correſpondencies with the Port, ſent his Army to ſeize upon his Principality, which nevertheleſs, together with his Children, he recommended upon his Death-Bed to the Emperor. He died at Weiſſemburgh after a long Sickneſs, towards the beginning of the Spring, Anno Dom. 1690.

Abaga, a King of the Tartars towards the end of the 13th Age, he invaded the Perſians, and ſubdu'd 'em, and rendred himſelf formidable to the Chriſtians by his continued

Abagarus, Agbarus: See Abgarus.

Abages, People of Scythia on this ſide Mount Imaus, and bordering on the Saca. They were converted to Chriſtianity under the Reign of Juſtinian in the 6th Age. Zonaras, Evagrius.

Abaibe: See Abaimbe.

Abailard, Lat. Abelardus, or Abailardus, (Peter) a Frenchman, born at Palais in the Diocefs of Nants in Britany, famous for his Knowledge in Divinity, Philoſophy, and the Tongues, having taught with great Applauſe at Paris and elſewhere in all thoſe Faculties. He ſuffered in his Reputation by his Amours with Heloiſe, Niece to a Canon of Paris named Fulbert; ſhe was extream Handſom and Witty, being alſo learned in Philoſophy, Hebrew, Greek, Latin, and Muſick. He afterwards perſwaded Heloiſe to Marry him, which ſhe conſented to, tho' unwillingly, as fearing ſhe might thereby prevent his Eccleſiaſtical Preferment. Her Uncle having notice of the Marriage, reſented it ſo much, that he found means to have Abailard emaſculated in the night time, whereof he was ſo much aſhamed, that he retired into St. Denys's Abby, and put on the Habit. Heloiſe retired into a Nunnery at Argenteuil. About that time Abailard publiſhed a Book concerning the Trinity, which was Condemned in the Council of Soiſſons, Anno 1120. He was accuſed of Arianiſm, Neſtorianiſm, and Pelagianiſm, and to hold that the Holy Ghoſt was the Soul of the World. St. Bernard being his contemporary, wrote againſt him. He was made Abbot of St. Gildas de Ruys, but being diſſatisfied with the Irregularities of the Monks, he retired to Champagne, where he built an Oratory in the Dioceſs of Troye, and called it Paraclet, whither a great number of Scholars reſorted to him. About this time the Nuns being expell'd Argenteuil for their Irregularities, Abailard offered Paraclet to his Wife Heloiſe, where ſhe founded a Nunnery, which was in a little time enrich'd with Gifts on her account, more in one year, ſays Abailard in his Epiſtles, than it would if he had been to live in it in a 100. He mixt his Ariſtotelian Philoſophy with Divinity, and was condemn'd in a Council held by the Provinces of Rheims and Sens, Anno 1140. whence he appeal'd to the Pope, but in his way to Rome, was ſo taken with Peter the Venerable, Abbot of Cluny, that he put on a Monk's Habit there. Peter the Venerable, who was Abbot of that place, received him with a great deal of Frankneſs; and being perſwaded of his reſolution of Submiſſion to the Church, undertook to engage for him; in fine, Abailard being convinc'd that the true Philoſophy conſiſts in a good Life, ſet himſelf in earneſt upon the Practice; His great Auſterities were prejudicial to his Health; Peter the Venerable ſent him to the Priory of St. Marcellus at Chalons for the benefit of the Air; here, upon the 21ſt of April 1143. he died, being 63 years of Age: His Corps were Interr'd in the Church Paraclet. His Epitaph is as follows:

Clamabat, ſed jam ſidera ſidus habet.
Sol erat hic Gallis, ſed eum jam fata tulerunt;
Ergo caret Regio Gallica ſole ſuo.
Ille ſciens quicquid fuit ulli ſcibile, vicit
Artifices, Artes abſque docente docens.
Undecimæ Maii Petrum rapuere Calendæ,
Privantes Logices Atria Rege ſuo.
Eſt ſatis: in Tumulo Petrus hic jacet Abailardus,
Cui ſoli patuit ſcibile quicquid erat.

This Epitaph ſeems to be made by Peter the Venerable; however he compoſed another, which I am going to mention: The deſign of it is to ſhew the Reſpect which was due to the Memory of this Great Man, which ſome ill-temper'd People endeavour'd to aſperſe by Calumnies and Fabulous Stories. The Verſes are theſe:

Gallorum Socrates, Plato maximus Heſperiarum,
Noſter Ariſtoteles, Logicis quicunque fuerunt
Aut par aut melior; Studiorum cognitus Orbi
Princeps, ingenio varius, ſubtilis & acer,
Omnia vi ſuperans rationis, & arte loquendi,
Abailardus erat. Sed nunc magis omnia vincit,
Cum Cluniacenſem Monachum moremque profeſſus,
Ad Chriſti veram tranſivit Philoſophiam:
In qua longæva bene complens ultima vitæ,
Philoſophis quandoque bonis ſe connumerandum
Spem dedit, undenas Maii renovante Calendas.

Francois d'Amboiſe, Councellor of State, cauſed Abailard's Works to be Printed in One Volume, Anno 1616, being his own and Heloiſe's Letters. The Story of his Misfortunes, and a Comment on the Romans: See his Life, written by the ſame d'Amboiſe.

Abala, a Sea-Port in Italy near Sicily, whither Cæſar fled from Pompey, having only one Servant with him. Appian.

Abalus, an Iſland in the German Sea, in which ſome believed that Amber flowed from the Trees, Plin. 37. 2. Timæus calls it Baltia. If a Man happened to be drowned there, and appeared no more above Water, the ancient Heathen uſed to Celebrate his Funerals 100 years to expiate the Manes.

Abana, a River having its ſource from Mount Lebanon, waſhes the South and Weſt ſide of Damaſcus, and runs through the Valley Archadob into the Syrian Sea, and ſome ſay it is ſwallowed up by the Sands. It's a moſt pleaſant River, and the Water very clear. It's alſo called Amanah, 2 K. 5. that is Golden Streams. Davity deſcrip. Aſiæ.

Abanbo, call'd by Ptolemy Aſtapus, and by the Latin Writers Abanbus or Abanhus, a River in the Upper Æthiopia, which diſcharges it ſelf into the Nile a little above the Iſland Meroe: Pliny makes mention of it. See Iſaac Voſſius's Treatiſe concerning the Head of Nilus. ['Tis probable that this Abanbo of our Author, is the ſame with Abanwi, which is a Name generally given to Nilus by the Æthiopians, and ſignifies Paternal. As for Aſtapus, ſome Ancient Writers believe it was no more than our Name for Nile, and that Aſtoboras, an Arm of this River which runs on the left hand of Meroe, was ſo called. Ludolph. Hiſt. Æth. lib. 1. c. 8.]

Abancay, Lat. Abancaius, a River of Peru in South America, which gives name to the Town of Abancay which it waſhes. It riſes in the Mountains called Andes, and falls into the River Xauxa or Maragnon in the Province of Lima. Hoffman.

" Abannæ, or Abanni, a People in Africa, Neighbours to
" the Caprarians, both of whom were ſubdued by the Em-
" peror Theodoſius. Amm. Marcel.

Abano, in Lat. Aponus, a Village in the Territory of Padua, where Titus Livius, and the Great Phyſician Peter d'Apono, were born, It hath Fountains and Baths much eſteemed for preſervation of Health, and the cure of many Diſeaſes. It is mentioned by Claudian. The Ancients ſay, that Hercules came thither to Bathe and refreſh himſelf after his Labours. Theodoric King of the Oſtrogoths, having fixed his Seat at Ravenna, cauſed fine Buildings to be raiſed about this Fountain. Joan. Dondis, Tract. de Fontib. cal. Patav.

Abantas, or Abantis, a Town near the Mountain Parnaſſus, famous for a Temple dedicated to Apollo. There is a little Precinct in Epyrus, in the Province of Carrina, now called Abanta.

Abantes, a People deſcended from Thracia, who retired to Phocis in Greece, where they built a Town called Aba, after their Chief, whence they are called Abantes, thence they paſſed into the Iſle called then Macris, next Abantis, ſince Chalcis and Eubœa, now Negropont. The Curetes, an Ancient People of Creta, were firſt poſſeſſed of this Iſle, and were ſo called becauſe they were ſhaven in the Forehead, leaving only ſome Locks behind, that their Enemies might not, as they had formerly done, pull them on their Faces by the Hair, wherein they were imitated by the Abantes, and thence Homer calls them ὄπιθεν κομόωντας, People with Hair behind. Bochart remarks, that there is an agreement in ſignification between Abantes and Eubœans; both coming from the Hebrew word Abas, which ſignifies a Graſier, they being accuſtomed to feed great Flocks. Herodotus, lib. 1.

Abantidas, General or King of the Sicyonians, Succeſſor to Clinias Father of Aratus, who ſurprized the Gittadel of Corinth. He was murdered by ſome Strangers quickly after his Advancement. Pauſanias in Corinth. Plutarch. in Arato.

Abaujwar, a Country of Upper Hungary on the Frontiers of Poland, towards the Carpathian Mountains. Caſſovia is its Capital City.

Abaraner, a Town in Armenia the Great, ſituate upon the River Alingiac. The Arch-Biſhop of Naſſevan commonly reſides there. 'Tis ſaid 300 Families of Roman Catholicks are in it. This Abaraner is apparently that Town in Armenia which Cedrenus calls Abara.

Abaraus and Aboraas, an African Town in Guinea upon the River Volta: It ſtands about 25 Leagues from the Sea.

Abarbinel, or Abrabinel, (Iſaac) a Spaniſh Rabbin; He lived in the beginning of the 16th Century. Ferdinand and Iſabel having baniſhed him amongſt the reſt of the Jews from Spain, he retired into Italy, and died at Venice in the year 1608, in the 71ſt of his own Age. There are extant of his Commentaries on the Talmud, Books of Kings, and ſome of the Prophets, &c. Buxtorf. P. Symon. Crit. Hiſt. Old Teſt. See Abravinel.

Abarca, Sirname of Sancho II. 5th King of Navarre, ſo called becauſe of a certain kind of Shooe which he wore. He ſucceeded his Father Garcias II. An. 925. or according to others An. 891. He obtained many Victories againſt the Moors; and after he had Reigned 37 years, was killed in a Battel againſt the Caſtilians, and ſucceeded by his Son Garcias III. ſurnamed the Trembler. Some call him by the ſame name with his Father. Mariana Hiſt. Hiſp. De Marca Hiſt. de Bearn.

Abares: See Avares.

Abarim, a Mountain very high, and of difficult aſcent, in Arabia Petræa, which ſeparates the Countries of Ammon and Moab from Canaan. Nebo and Piſgah were parts of this Mountain: Betwixt which and Jericho, there is a Valley called Baras, famous for a Plant of that name, which ſeems to be on fire in the night time. See Baaras. Joſ. Dav. deſcrip. Aſiæ.

Abarimon, part of Scythia near Mount Imaus, in which are ſaid to live wild Men, whoſe Feet are placed backwards. They equal the wildeſt of Beaſts in ſwiftneſs; but ſeeing they cannot live in any other place, they were never brought under ſubjection, no, not by Alexander the Great. Plin. 7. 2.

Abaris, a Scythian Philoſopher, Son of Seutha; he pretended by virtue of an Arrow, which he received from Apollo, to go as ſwiftly as the ſaid Arrow when ſhot from a Bow; by virtue of this he alſo gave Oracles, and foretold Earthquakes, Plagues, &c. to the Countries through which he paſſed. Jamblichus ſays he was Diſciple to Pythagoras; and ſome will have him to have flouriſhed before Solon. Others ſay that he lived in the time of Tullus Hoſtilius, or Ancus Marcius, Kings of the Romans. 'Tis likewiſe ſuppoſed, that an Epiſtle which we have written to Phalaris, belongs to Abaris; but Lilius Giraldus, Voſſius and other Learned Criticks, believe Lucian the Author of this Letter. It's ſaid of him, that being ſent on an Embaſſy from the Hyperboreans, or Country under the Arctick Circle, to Athens, he returned again without eating. He deſcribed Apollo's Journey to the ſaid Hyperboreans; and is ſaid to have formed the Statue of the Trojan Palladium out of Pelops's Bones. Gregory Nazianzene mentions him in an Epiſtle to Baſil the Great. Voſſius, c. 3. de Poet. Græc. Strabo.

Abarus, an Arabian General, who betrayed Craſſus into an Ambuſcade, which occaſion'd his Defeat by the Parthians. He is by Florus called Mezeras, by Plutarch, Andromachus, and by Sextus Rufus, Agbarus.

Abas, the 12th King of the Argives, Son of Belus, or according to the common opinion, of Lynceus and Hypermneſtra, famous for his Valour and Wit; he was Father to Prætus and Acriſius, and Grandfather to Perſeus: From him the Kings of the Argives were called Abantiadæ. He Reigned 23 years. Euſeb. Pauſanias.

Abas, the Centaur, begot by Ixion on a Cloud, was a great Hunter, as the Poets feign. Ovid Metam.

Abas, Son of Hippothoon and Melanira, changed into a Lizard by Ceres, becauſe he mock'd her Worſhip, and upbraided his Mother for entertaining her: She is ſaid to have Metamorphos'd him by throwing certain compounded Water upon him. Ovid ſays it was for mocking her becauſe ſhe had drunk too much; Ovid Metam. Cælius Rhodiginus. It is called Stellio in Latin, hence the word Stellionatus, by which Lawyers ſignifie all manner of Fraud and Cozenage. Digeſt. lib. 47.

Abas, a Commander of a Body of the Latins in Italy. He was one of Æneas's Allies, and brought him ſome Troops from Populonia, a Town in Tuſcany, over againſt the Iſland Ilva. Virgil. lib. 10 Æneid.

Abas, a King of Perſia: See Scha Abas.

Abas, a Philoſopher, who left ſome Hiſtorical Commentaries behind him, and wrote a Book of Rhetorick. Voſſius and ſome other Authors are of opinion, that this Abas is the ſame with Abro, the Wife of Candaules King of Lydia, who (as Herodotus reports) cauſed her Husband to be Murdered upon a pleaſant Occaſion: The Conjecture of theſe Authors is founded upon ſome Paſſages which occur in the 5th Book, in the new Hiſtory of Ptolemy Chennius, of which Photius in his Bibliotheca makes mention. There was another Abas who writ an account of the Trojan War, as we may ſee in Voſſius.

Abas, a Mountain: See Aba.

Abaſcantos, one of the Names of Æon, or the God of the Hereſiarch Valentin, as we underſtand by Tertullian. Cont. Gnoſt.

Abaſſinia, or Abyſſinia, a Kingdom in Africk in the Upper Æthiopia, which ſome call the Empire of Negus or Preſter John.

Some Authors ſay that this Country had its Name from the Arabians; others are of opinion that the word Abaſſinia is of an Egyptian Original, and that it ſignifies a Country ſurrounded with Deſarts. The firſt Conjecture ſeems beſt ſupported, it being moſt probable the derivation of it comes from the Arabian word Habeſch, which ſignifies a Hotch-potch or mixture; becauſe Æthiopia is inhabited by a Collection of a great many Nations, however the Natives call themſelves nothing but Æthiopians. Ludolph. Hiſt. Æthiop.

Authors are ſtill leſs agreed about the Title of the Emperor of the Abaſſines, ſome call him Preſter John or Preſt-John, either out of Raillery, or miſtake of the word: But 'tis pretty certain that the true Preſter John was a Tartar Prince in the Kingdom of Tenduc in Aſia. As for the Grand Negus or Abaſſine Emperor, he is ſtyl'd Beldi-gian, or Belul-gian, as much as to ſay, Reſpected John: Others add that the Chaldeans call him John-Ex-Con, that is to ſay, Great and Valuable. This Title ſeems to be given from a Ring, which Solomon gave the Queen of Sheba, and which has been always kept as an Heirloom in the Family of Negus. (See Ludolph. Hiſt. Æthiop. lib. 2. cap. 1. where he ſhews the Riſe of the fabulous Report about Preſter John, and ſets down the Emperor's true Titles.) But let this be as it will, the Empire of Abaſſinia has been much greater and much more conſiderable than at preſent: for about 160 years ſince, the Arabians, the Turks, and eſpecially the Gales, began to make inroads upon the Country, and are now Maſters of the beſt Kingdoms in't. The Moors likewiſe have gained all that part of it which lies on the Arabian Gulph. Formerly all the Country from the Lake Niger, to the ſtrait of Babel-mandel on one ſide, and all that Tract of Land from the Mountains of the Moon, to the Cataracts of Nile on the other, were comprehended under the Name of Abaſſinia. The bounds laſt mention'd, contain'd the length of the Empire from South to North, and the other its breadth, from Weſt to Eaſt. Abaſſinia confin'd on the South upon Monomotapa: On the Eaſt upon Zanguebar, the Red Sea, or the Sea of Mecca: On the North upon Egypt and Nubia; and towards the Weſt, upon the Negroes and the Kingdom of Congo. But as I ſaid before, the Face of things are now much alter'd. The Abaſſines have not ſo much as one Sea Port left them, ſo that they cannot Imbark upon occaſion, without marching through the Turks Country. The Provinces which now remain in their hands are Tigre, Dambea, Bagamedry, Goyam, Amahara, Narea, Magaza, Ogara, Salait, Holcad, Semen, Segurda, Salao, Ozaka, Doba, and ſome others. They were formerly poſſeſs'd of Angotz, Doare, Adea, Balli, Hemaly, Ogge, Gans, Oxeto, Bitexamora, Curaguz, Buzama, Bugamo, Marabet, Mans, Bizamo, Oifate, Dedem, Gambato, Doxa, Oura, Conch, Gumar, Mota, Damut, Holeia, &c. The Gales have gain'd part of this Country, and the Turk has made himſelf Maſter of Siraken and Arquyco upon the Red Sea.

The Nature and Quality of the Soil.

The Country of the Abaſſines is ſufficiently Fruitful; in ſome places they have a great deal of Corn, and particularly of Millet and Pulſe; but this Plenty is not general. 'Tis ſaid likewiſe, that there are Vines in ſome places, growing up in the faſhion of an Arbour, and that their Grapes afford good Wine: However the common Drink of the Abaſſines in the beſt part of their Country, is Crab Cyder. Some Travellers ſay, that in the richeſt Provinces, they have 3 Harveſts in a year, it being there the cuſtom to Sow immediately after the Crop. 'Tis chiefly in theſe Provinces, that they are well furniſh'd with Water. They have here a certain Beveridge which they call Ized, which is very pleaſant; 'tis properly nothing but Mead or Hydromel. The Air is temperate enough, unleſs in the Valleys where 'tis generally hot. There are ſo many Mines of Gold, Silver, Copper, Iron, Lead and Sulphur, that one would imagine the Grand Negus had Exchequer enough to purchaſe a great many Worlds; but the Inhabitants have no skill to make the moſt of theſe advantages.

The Manners and Cuſtoms of the Abaſſines.

The Abaſſines are generally dexterous, full of Spirit, and not at all wanting in Underſtanding, but they are extremely Idle, and this lazineſs makes them unqualified for almoſt all ſorts of Buſineſs. The Portugueſes have given them a little reliſh for Trading. Their Complexions are either Black or Tauny, and they live a long time. Vincent le Blank tells us, that they drive a great Trade with Salt, which they carry into their neighbouring Countries: This Commodity they ſell dear, and barter it almoſt for all ſorts of Proviſions; the ſame Author adds, that they make Coin of it, and that they have ſquare pieces of this Money, which differ in their value proportionably to their bigneſs, as Gold and Silver does among us. The Wars which they have been forc'd to maintain againſt their Neighbours, and eſpecially againſt the Gales above-mention'd, has made 'em leſs unactive, and given 'em a greater inclination for Martial Exerciſes. Their Forces conſiſt chiefly in Horſe. 'Tis their cuſtom to Arm themſelves with Head-pieces, Coats of Mail and Targets: Their offenſive Weapons are Pikes, headed with Iron at both ends; Their Infantry fight with Arrows and Darts, and many of them with Slings; and others of 'em mount their Elephants, and ſo diſcharge upon the Enemy. They were ignorant of the uſe of Fire-Arms, till taught by the Portugueſe, who have been very ſerviceable to 'em in their Wars. 'Tis ſaid likewiſe, that the Abaſſines are in themſelves good natur'd; they have a ſtrong inclination for Virtue, and are Religious, even to a degree of Superſtition: They are Loyal and Obedient to their Prince, and have a great Reſpect both for his Perſon and Intereſt. They value themſelves for the ſame deference and duty to the Church; they ſhew a very great Regard to the Prieſthood, and the Places Conſecrated to Religion: Their Language is particular to themſelves; the Pronunciation of it is Muſical and ſoft, and eaſily learned; Vincent le Blank relates, that he has ſeen Abaſſines in China, who have eaſily made themſelves underſtood.

The Kings of the Abaſſines.

The Abaſſines pretend to a long Genealogy of Kings, even before the Queen of Sheba made a viſit to Solomon, but the relation of this Pedigree is ſo Fabulous, that I ſhall not trouble the Reader with it. In the 6th Century about the year 522, in the Reign of the Emperor Juſtin, one Elesban, King of the Abaſſines, made War upon another Jewiſh Prince, who perſecuted the Chriſtians, and defeated him. The Kings of this Country draw their Deſcent from one David, who was a very wiſe and powerful Prince. About the year 1265, or 70, Jeum Neuanelach recovered the Throne, which had been for ſome time uſurp'd from the Family of this David. In the 16th Cent. David ſucceeded his Father Nahew in the year 1507, and was famous for his Conduct, and the Succeſs of his Arms. This Prince ſent Ambaſſadors to Pope Clement the 7th, and to Immanuel King of Portugal. His Titles, according to Marmole, were theſe: David, Beloved of God, Pillar of the Faith, of the Blood and Line of Judah, Son of David, Son of Solomon, Son of the Pillar of Sion, Son of the Seed of Jacob, Son of the Hand of Mary, Son of Nahew according to the Fleſh, Emperor of the Great and Upper Æthiopia, and of all the Kingdoms and Countries depending on it, King, &c. The Kings of the Abaſſines generally keep their Court in the Field, in Tents, where they are ſometimes in one place and ſometimes in another: But theſe Tents are ſo regularly and handſomely ſet up, that they look like great Towns with fair Streets: On each ſquare of the Camp, there is a particular Officer, whoſe buſineſs it is, to do Juſtice and prevent Diſorder. There are likewiſe two Churches, one for the King and the Nobility, and the other for the common People.

The Religion of the Abaſſines.

This Nation pretends to have been inſtructed in the true Religion, by two of their Queens, Maqueda and Candace. Maqueda is the ſame with Sheba, who taught 'em the Jewiſh Religion, and by the other they were inſtructed in Chriſtianity. Alvares, Ortelius, Malvenda, and ſome others inform us from the Abaſſine Traditions, that their Queen Maqueda, had a Son by Solomon: This young Prince ſucceeded his Mother, and is by ſome Author's call'd David, by others Menilehech. They are ſo hardy as to affirm, that Solomon in the Canticles, ſpeaks in the Perſon of this Queen, I am Black but comely, O ye Daughters of Jeruſalem, therefore the King delighted in me, &c. They affirm likewiſe, that this Hebrew Prince ordered 12000 Iſraelites, a 1000 out of each Tribe, to wait upon the Queen of Sheba to her own Country: They add, that after ſhe was deliver'd of this Son Menilehech, ſhe ſent him to Solomon to be educated in the Jewiſh Religion, which was done accordingly; and afterwards Solomon ſent him home loaden with Preſents. This young Prince had Zadoc, the Son of Azarias for his Governor, and ſeveral other Rabbies in his Train, who afterwards kept up the Jewiſh Religion among the Abaſſines. Theſe fabulous Reports are ſupported by others no leſs ridiculous, and therefore Pineda had reaſon to blame Malvenda for giving credit to ſuch Stuff. In ſhort, neither Joſephus, nor any ancient Authors, mention any of theſe extraordinary Adventures: This is certain, that the Abaſſines were the moſt ſuperſtitious People living, and ſeem to have had their Inclinations furtheſt engag'd for their Idolatry: However this matter was, 'tis certain, that if they were Jews, they were not long ſo. 'Tis more probable, that the Eunuch of Queen Candace, Baptiz'd by Philip the Deacon, was their Apoſtle for Chriſtianity. In proceſs of time, they were perverted by Hereticks; and more eſpecially, by the Followers of Eutyches and Dioſcorus. 'Tis commonly ſaid, that they Circumciſed even their Women; that they Baptiz'd their Male Children 40 days after their Birth, and their Female at ſixty; that it was not lawful to perform this Ceremony unleſs upon Sundays and Saturdays, upon which days, 'twas their cuſtom to ſay Maſs: 'Tis ſaid likewiſe, that they gave the Euchariſt to little Children. But at preſent they are moſt of 'em (as our Author will have it) Roman Catholicks, having been brought over to this Church by Portugueſe Miſſionaries; which Function has been undertaken ever ſince the beginning of the 16th Century. We are aſſur'd likewiſe, that there are a great many Religious among them, of the Order of St. Anthony, and that their Churches are very well Ornamented.

Authors of the Hiſtory of Abaſſinia.

Marmol, Francis Alvares, Balthazar Telles, Marianus Victor, &c. Hiſt. de Æthiop. Vincent le Blank, Thomas Herbert, Iſaac Voſſius de Origine Nil. Ortelius, Ludolphus, &c.

Abaſia (Bernard.) He liv'd at Thoulouſe, and was both Phyſician, Lawyer, and Mathematician. He flouriſhed towards the end of the 16th Century, and taught Mathematicks, the Languages, and Law at Paris and elſewhere. He wrote ſeveral Treatiſes, which are mention'd with advantage, by the Authors of thoſe times. Croix Dumain, Bibl. Franc.

Abaſter, the Name of one of the three Horſes which drew Pluto's Chariot, ſignifying Black, the ſecond Metheus, ſignifies Obſcure, the third Nonius, ſignifies Warm. Bocace. Cartari, in Imagin. Deor. &c. Some ſpeak of four Horſes, viz. Orphneus, Alaſtor, Æthon and Nycteus; by whoſe Names they would ſignifie the Anxiety, Blindneſs, Wicked Practices, and Eternal Deſtruction, into which Covetouſneſs involves Men. Claudian.

Abaton, an Edifice built at Rhodes, which no Man was permitted to enter, whence it had its Name, which ſignifies inacceſſible. The occaſion of building it was this; After the death of Mauſolus King of Caria in Aſia Minor; Artemiſia his Wife took the Government upon her; the Rhodians being angry that a Woman ſhould Reign over all Caria, Armed a Fleet to make themſelves Maſters of that Kingdom; Artemiſia having notice of their deſign, ordered a Fleet to be prepared privately in the ſmall haven of Halicarnaſſus, which is covered from the View by a Mountain, and ordered the reſt of the Soldiers to ſtay on the Ramparts. The Rhodians having landed their Fleet near the great Haven; the Queen cauſed to give a Signal from the Walls, as if ſhe would ſurrender the Town, whereupon the Rhodians quitted their Veſſels to enter. Artemiſia opening the little Port, her Fleet came out, boarded the Rhodian Veſſels which were empty of Soldiers, and carried them off to Sea. In the mean time the Rhodians having no way left to eſcape, were every one kill'd. This Stratagem having ſucceeded ſo well, the Queen put her Soldiers and Seamen aboard the Rhodian Fleet, and ſteered ſtraight for Rhodes: The Inhabitants whereof ſeeing their Fleet return with Garlands of Laurel, concluded that their Men had obtained the Victory, but inſtead of them, received their Enemies; ſo that Artemiſia having poſſeſſed her ſelf of Rhodes, raiſed a Trophy in the City with two Statues of Braſs, one repreſenting the ſaid Queen, and the other the City of Rhodes in Habit of a Slave: The Rhodians durſt not break thoſe Statues, becauſe their Religion made them look upon Trophies as things Sacred; however to cover it from View, they raiſed the abovementioned Building over it. Vitruv. l. 2. c. 8.

Abatos, i. e. Inacceſſible, an Iſland in the Fens of Memphis in Egypt, famous for the Tomb of Oſiris, for Flax and Palm-Tree Leaves, on which the Ancients uſed to write inſtead of Paper. 'Tis mentioned by Lucan Book X.

Abbeſoer, a City of Norway, in the Prefecture of Aggerhuſe, about 20 Leagues from Anſloia, and 25 or 30 from Stafanger. 'Tis a good Haven.

Abbeville, a City of France in Picardy, the Chief of the County of Ponthieu on the Somme; 'tis well fortified, neatly built, and of good Trade for Cloth, Wool, and Corn, has 12 Pariſh Churches, ſeveral Religious Houſes, and a Preſidial Court within it ſelf. It's called The Virgin City, becauſe never taken, nor its Privileges violated by any. Built by St. Riquier the Abbot, and therefore called Abbeville, or Abbot City: It lies 34 Leagues North of Paris. Sanſon.

Abbeville, Cardinal: See John de Abbeville.

Abbo, Abbot of Fleury, or St. Bennet upon the Loire, liv'd in the 10th Century; 'tis plain, by one of the Letters of Fulbert of Chartres, how much this Perſon was eſteemed for his Learning and great Experience; he is ſaid to be a moſt knowing Philoſopher, and call'd the Praeceptor of all France. He was choſen Abbot of St. Bennet upon the Loire, in the Dioceſs of Orleans after Oilbaud. The Monks under his Conduct were conſiderably Learned. Aimoin or Haymo was one of the moſt celebrated. This Monk wrote the Hiſtory of France, and Dedicated it to the Abbot Abbo. The Abbot was murder'd by a parcel of Villains the 13th of November 1004. Aimoin abovementioned, wrote his Life. Abbo wrote an Abridgment of the Lives of ſeveral Popes, extracted from the Hiſtory of Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius. He wrote an Apology to Hugh Capet, and Robert his Son, Kings of France; the Life of St. Edmond King of England; ſeveral Letters to Pope Gregory the 5th, and to other Perſons of Quality, and ſeveral other little Tracts. See his Life written by Aimoin, Fulbert de Chartres, in Epiſt. Sigebert de vir. Illuſt. c. 140. & in Chron. ad An. 990. Voſſius. Mabillon in Analectis, &c.

Abbon, a Monk of St. Germain des Pres at Paris, he lived in the 9th Century; he was a Norman by birth, and a Diſciple of Aimoin the elder, who was then in great Reputation. Abbon was at Paris in the year 886 or 887, when it was beſieged by the Normans: He writ the Hiſtory of this Siege in Verſe, tho' ſomewhat unpoliſh'd: This Poem he Dedicated to Goſilin Biſhop of Paris, an Abbot of St. Germain, and afterwards wrote the Wars and Victories of King Eudo. 'Tis pretty plain, that this Abbon liv'd no further than 890 or 891. This remark may be made good by peruſing the end of the 2d Book of his Works, of which we have had ſeveral Editions from Pithæus, du Cheſne, &c. 'Tis worth our while to obſerve that ſeveral Authors have miſtaken this Abbon, Monk of St. Germain, for Abbo Abbot of Fleury abovemention'd: Tho' in reality, they liv'd at a 100 years diſtance the one from the other. Pithæus, du Cheſne, Voſſius de Hiſt Lat. lib. 2. c. 38. Mabillon in Act. ſſ. Ordin. S. Bened. &c.

Abbot, the Name of the Head of a Monaſtery of Canons Regular. Some are ſtyl'd Cardinal Abbots, as the Abbot of Cluny: Some Biſhop Abbots, ſo named, becauſe their Abbies had been erected into Biſhopricks, but upon condition, that ſuch as were choſen Abbots ſhou'd be withal Biſhops of the Dioceſs: And others Mitred Abbots, independent on any but the Pope: Theſe wear a Mitre with a Gold Fringe, when they officiate on Solemn days. In Charles the Bald's time, Perſons of the greateſt Quality in France were Abbots, having a Dean to officiate for them; eſteeming the Title of Abbot as Honourable as Duke or Count. But this was oppoſed by the Clergy in ſome Councils. The Genoeſe anciently call'd their Duke by this name. It ſignifies Father, and of old was given to all Miniſters. Blondeau.

Abbot, (Geo.) born at Guilford in Surrey, and bred at Oxford, where he became Maſter of Univerſity-College, was Nominated Archbiſhop of Canterbury by King James I. and continued ſo part of King Charles the Firſt's Reign; that he was a great Preacher, appears from his Lectures on Jonah; and it is agreed by all, that he was a very Grave, Learned, and Pious Man: He was ſuſpended ſome little time by King Charles I. as Ruſhworth reports, for being unactive in promoting the Loan; But the Supplement to Sir Richard Baker ſays, it was upon the account of his Remiſſneſs in ſome of the Functions of his Government. The words of the Commiſſion, by which his Juriſdiction is delegated to the Biſhops of Durham, Rocheſter, &c. favour this latter Opinion, and give a general hint of ſome Indiſpoſition, or Incapacity in the Archbiſhop, for the performing his Office. Ruſhw. Collect. p. 432. He died Anno 1633, having erected a large Hoſpital at Guilford with a Liberal Maintenance.

Abbot, (Robert) Biſhop of Salisbury in the Reign of King James I. born at Guilford in Surrey, and bred in Baliol College in Oxford, whereof he became Principal, and Regius Profeſſor of Divinity in the Univerſity. He was Learned and Acute, and every way a well accompliſh'd Divine. He confuted Biſhop a Roman Catholick, ſo that he never gave him an anſwer. He was made Biſhop of Salisbury December 3. 1615. and died leſs than two years after. His Brother George was at the ſame time Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and a more plauſible Preacher, but not ſo great a Scholar.

Abbot, the Abbot of Battle, a Man known by no other Name, who left a good Memory behind him. He liv'd in the 14th Age, in the days of Edward III. and Richard II. in whoſe time the French landed in Suſſex without oppoſition; waſted and plundered the Country, and carried away Captive the Prior of Lewes, which animated our Abbot, though no Sheriff, to raiſe the Poſſe Comitatus, with whom he march'd to Winchelſea, and fortified it: There he was ſoon after beſet by the French, who ply'd him with their great Guns, being the firſt that were ever planted by a Foreign Enemy in this Iſland, but the Country oblig'd 'em to retire ſpeedily.

Abbotsbury, a Market Town of Ugſcomb Hundred in the South-weſt parts of Dorſetſhire; it lies near the Channel.

Abcaſſ, a People of Georgia, North-Weſt of Mengrelia; well Proportion'd, fair Complexion'd, Ingenious and Stout. They feed upon Milk-Meats, and what they take in Hunting. They live in great Companies on the tops of Hills, in little Huts, environed with Hedges and deep Ditches to prevent ſurpriſe, having neither Cities nor Caſtles. They put their Dead into the Trunks of hollow Trees, faſtening them to the uppermoſt Boughs to keep 'em upright, where they alſo hang the Deceaſed's Weapons and Habit. And that he may have his Horſe with him in the other World, they ride him full ſpeed till he dies near the Tree. Thoſe People though they have abundance of Fiſh in their Country, eat none. They ſteal and ſell one another for Slaves to the Turks, who value them for their Beauty and Induſtry. Lamberti. Thevenot's Relation of Mengrelia. There is a Wall of 60 miles long to prevent their Incurſions into Mengrelia. Hoffman.

Abdageſes, a Noble Parthian in the time of Tiberius. Aſſiſted by the Romans, he made Tiridates King, and afterwards Ruled all at his own pleaſure. Tacit. l. 6.

Abdal, or Abdales, a ſort of Religious People in Perſia. See Calenders.

Abdala, Almoedes, The firſt of the Family of the Almoades, who were formerly poſſeſs'd of the Kingdom of Fez. See Almoades.

Abdala, King of Fez and Morocco. He lived in the 16th Century; and was Son of Mahomet Cheriff, a Prince of great Courage and Conduct; but his Son addicted to Eaſe and Pleaſure, loſt ſeveral Battles, his Father yet living; he put to death his neareſt Relations, and Ali Budcar the moſt powerful Nobleman in the Kingdom; he was unfurniſh'd with good Qualities, but very Succeſsful; for when he came to the Crown, he Reign'd quietly, and divided his Dominions amongſt his 3 Sons. He fought the Spaniſh Army in their return from Pignion de Velez in 1564. Two years before his death, he undertook an unſucceſsful War againſt Mazagan, being provoked to it in the midſt of one of his Debauches, by the perſuaſions of a Rennegadoe of Corſica. He died in 1574. Diego de Torres: Hiſt. of the Cheriffs. Thuan.

Abdala, a King of Perſia, and 27th Caliph of Babylon, was Diſinherited by his Father; but after the death of his Brothers, ſucceeded to the Throne, and render'd himſelf formidable by Arms. He vanquiſh'd the Greeks in ſeveral Encounters, made himſelf Maſter of a part of Candy, and ſtruck a Terror into the Kingdom of Naples and Calabria. Some Authors are of opinion, that it was one of the Officers of this Abdala, who put St. Placidius and his Companions to death, who were ſent into Sicily by St. Bennet; but this Aſſertion can be nowiſe reconcil'd to Chronology; for theſe Religious were Martyr'd in the year 541. in the Reign of Juſtinian; whereas this King Abdala died in the 217th year of the Hegyra, that is, in the 833d year of our Lord; after he had Reigned 8 years, and added ſeveral ſpacious Kingdoms to his Dominions. Mirkond Chron.

Abdala, the Son of Aben Maugi, King of the African Saracens. Being Dethron'd by the Arms and Artifices of his Brother, he ſought Aid of Charlemaign; by whoſe Aſſiſtance he vanquiſhed the Uſurper, and Regain'd his Right. Dupleix Hiſt. Franc.

Abdala, King of Toledo, a Mahometan. He Married Teresia Daughter of Wermund Prince of Leon, a Chriſtian, who ſav'd his Country by that Alliance, though much againſt her will; ſo that after his death, ſhe retired into a Monaſtery. Volater.

Abdala, Son of Lopez, King of Toledo. Being forc'd to follow his Father, whom one Mahomet had driven out of his Dominions; he manag'd his Affairs ſo well, that he retook Saragoſſa, where he Reign'd, and his Poſterity after him, maugre all the Attempts of Mahomet and Alphonſus III. King of Oviedo. He fought alſo againſt the Chriſtians, and was noted for his Courage. Mariana.

Abdala, King of Tremeſen, who finding his younger Brother preferr'd before him, threw himſelf upon Charles V. with a profer to become his Vaſſal, upon the ſame Conditions that his Grand Uncle Buhama had concluded. Hereupon the Emperor order'd Count Alcaudeta, Governor of Oran, to furniſh him with 600 Men to conduct him to Tremeſen, who were all kill'd except 25. Afterwards the Count ſet forward with 9000 Men, and having gain'd the Victory, Sack'd Tremeſen, and then purſued the Enemy to the Mountains. Abdala upon his return, thinking to enter the City, found the Gates ſhut againſt him; the Inhabitants being enraged, becauſe he ſuffer'd the Spaniards to Plunder them, whereupon his Soldiers forſaking him, he fled with 60 Horſe to ſollicit the Arabians for help, who treacherouſly ſlew him in the year 1546. Marmol. lib. 5. c. 11.

Abdala I. Caliph of Arabia, being deprived of his Kingdom by his Subjects, he ſlew Marvan the Uſurper in Battle; but purſuing his Son Abdulmaric, was defeated himſelf, and forced to fly to Damaſcus; and finding no admittance either there or at Cairo, he Embarked with one Servant for Greece; in which Voyage, being caſt by ſtreſs of Weather upon a certain Iſland, he was known and kill'd, after he had Reigned only one year, Anno 686. Marmol.

Abdala II. Caliph of Arabia. Being informed at Mecca, that another Abdala was choſen Caliph of Syria; and that Amir another of his Rivals, was Maſter of all Perſia; to rid himſelf of two ſuch dangerous Competitors, he engaged the firſt to come to a Conference; received him with much ſeeming kindneſs, but lodged him in a Houſe which he had undermined, ſo that it fell and kill'd him in the night. The other he own'd for Caliph, and reſign'd the Regalia to him, but at next Meeting as they went aſide to Diſcourſe, he ſtabb'd him, and afterwards routing the Perſians, ſeiz'd their Country. After this he turn'd his Rage againſt the Chriſtians, prohibiting their Miniſters to Preach. He ſent his Army againſt Leo IV. Emperor of Conſtantinople, which haraſſed all Romania and Cappadocia. Coming to Jeruſalem, he commanded that all Jews and Chriſtians ſhould be mark'd in the Hand, that they might be known, and that all that were not ſo mark'd ſhould be laid in Irons. He died 781. Marmol. lib. 2. ch. 19.

Abdala, Sirnamed Muley, Cheriff or Xeriff of Morocco, a Martial Prince; he took Cape d'Aguer in Africa from the Portugueſes, in the Sixteenth Century, during the time he was Partner with his Father in the Kingdom. Afterwards he Reigned alone, and left a Son, which he had by a Negro, who ſucceeded him. Raul. Jov. Marmol.

Abdala, a Mahometan Prince, famous for his Enterpriſes during the Wars of the Cheriffs in Africa. He made a League with Philip III. King of Spain in 1607, and was murder'd two years after, by Hamet Ben Abdala, a Religious Mahometan, ſet on by Mulei Zeidan, his Unkle and Enemy.

Abdala the Father of Mahomet the Grand Impoſtor, was a miſerable Slave, and got his living by driving Merchants Camels; he was a Heathen, and Married one Emira a Jeweſs. Paulus Diaconus.

Abdala. Baronius, a Mahometan Preacher, of the Sect of the Mohaidins. In 1543, he Rebelled againſt Cheriff Mahomet, having got together a great number of Barbarians upon Nefuſa, which is a part of Mount Atlas; but he was ſoon taken by the Cheriff, and beheaded; he was look'd upon as a Magician; for when purſued to the Rock, whither he had retired, abundance of diſſected Sheep were found in the way, with their Feet put in their Eyes, &c. for Inchantments, which the Mahometans were afraid of, but the Chriſtians mock'd at, and burnt them, ſo that when he was taken, he deny'd that he was overcome by the Moors, but only by the Chriſtians, againſt whom his Witchcraft was too weak. He was promiſed to be ſafely ſent over into the Kingdom of Fez, notwithſtanding which the Cheriff caus'd him to be beheaded, with his Family and Attendants. Marmol. l. 3.

Abdala, Surnamed Mohavedin, a Native of Tenmellet in Barbary, Schoolmaſter in the Mountain of Atlas, and Author of the Sect of the Mohavedins, that is to ſay the Unitarians. He was highly eſteemed for his Preaching by his own Countrymen, as well as the Africans of the Tribe of Mucamuda. By means whereof having got together a great number of People, he became ſo inſolent as to attack Abraham a Mooriſh Emperor, who neglecting to ſtifle the Rebellion in the Birth, loſt both his Crown and Life, by Abdal Mumen, Captain of the Impoſtor's Forces. Marmol. Thuan.

Abdala or Abdelaſis, a Warlike Moor. He ſignaliz'd himſelf in fighting for the Turks in 1550, but being ill Treated by the Turkiſh Commanders, made cruel War upon 'em, and at laſt was ſlain fighting. Marmol.

Abdala-Aben-Abo, was Elected King of Granada by the Moors of Spain, in 1570, in the place of Aben Humeia ſlain by his own Subjects. He took the City of Orgiva in a ſmall time, and forced the Duke of Seca to retire with great loſs. He won Seros and Tijola, two very ſtrong Towns, from the Spaniards. Afterwards he loſt Guejar, his chief Magazine for Arms; was Proud, Unſucceſsful, and died miſerable. Marian. Thuan.

Abdalmutalib, an Arabian, Mahomet's Grandfather, the Handſomeſt Man of his time, and much belov'd by Women. Peter of Clugny.

Abdalominus, Vid. Abdolominus.

Abdar, the Name of an Officer of the King of Perſia, that gives him his Water to drink. He keeps it in a ſeal'd Pitcher, for fear of Poiſon. Olearius's Voyage of Perſia.

Abdas, a Perſian Biſhop, a Virtuous and Zealous Man. He deſtroy'd their Deify'd Fire, or Veſta, which ſo enraged the King, that he cauſed him to be put to death, and pull'd down all the Chriſtian Churches. Theodoret. Lib. 5. Cap. 39. Hiſt. Eccleſ.

Abdel Caader, the Sixth King of Morocco, of the Race of the Almohades, ſucceeded his Nephew Ceyed Barax in 1213, but was obliged to ſhare the Empire with others of his Kin, who were all overthrown in Battle by Abdulac Governor of Fez, and he himſelf kill'd by one of Budobuz's Captains. Marmol.

Abdelmone the Son of a Potter, who made himſelf Maſter of a great part of Africk, according to the Prediction of a certain Aſtronomer. He firſt aſſociated himſelf with one of the Religious Almohadins; and undertaking to make a new Explanation of the Alcoran, contrary to that of the Arabian Mufti, whom they believe to be deſcended from Mahomet, he gain'd ſo much upon the People, that by their Aſſiſtance he invaded the Kingdom of the Almoravides, and kill'd Abbady the Lawful Succeſſor. He afterwards Sail'd into Spain, where, having drawn the Moors to his Party, he exerciſed unheard-of Cruelties againſt the Chriſtians. He made Morocco the Seat of his Empire about the year 1147. Roderic of Toledo. Fulgoſius.

Abdelquivir, Eldeſt Son of Haſcen Cheriff, who was a Numidian Philoſopher, Magician, and of good Eſteem among the People, pretending to be deſcended from the ancient Mahumetan Princes, and to a great height of Sanctity. He bred his Sons to his own Principles at Meccha, who by Enthuſiaſtical Pretences drew Multitudes of People after them, the Rabble thinking it a happineſs to kiſs their Garments. They obtain'd the Government of Morocco, Suſa, Tremeſen, &c. under pretext of defending them againſt the Chriſtians, wherein they were ſucceſsful enough at firſt, but at laſt Yahai Ben Taſuf, a Tributary to the King of Portugal, imploying the Portugueſe againſt them, put them to flight. They rallied again under Abdelquivir, but he was killed in the Battle. Diego de Thorres. Marmol. Thuanus.

Abdelatiſe, Grand Cham of the Tartars, the laſt of the Family of Chiuguis, who boaſted of their deſcent from Tamerlan; He died Anno 1542. Texeira, lib. 2.

Abdemeleck, or Mulei Moluck, deſpoil'd of his Kingdoms of Fez and Morocco, by Mahomet his Nephew, apply'd himſelf for Succour to Selim Emperor of the Turks, while the other crav'd Aid of Sebaſtian King of Portugal, who levying an Army, landed at Tangier, July 9. 1578. The Battle was fought Monday the 4th of Auguſt following, in which both died; Mahomet in a Moraſs, Abdemeleck in a Litter, and the King of Portugal was either kill'd, as the Spaniards ſay, or taken and made a Slave.

Abdemeneph, or Abdemonaphes, an Iſhmaelite Merchant, remarkable for his vaſt Wealth. He purchas'd Mahomet for his Slave before he vented his Impoſtures, who afterwards Married his Widow, and made uſe of her Riches to bring about his Deſigns. Theophanes.

Abdemon, a young Tyrian, who had the gift of Interpreting Solomon's hard Queſtions. Menander cited by Joſephus, ſpeaks of him in theſe words: There was at that time, a young Man who interpreted all the Riddles that Solomon King of Jeruſalem propounded. Dius, cited by the ſame Author, ſays, that Hiram King of Tyre having paid Solomon great Sums, becauſe he could not anſwer his Ænigma's, recovered it of him, becauſe he could not anſwer Queſtions propounded by Abdemon.

Abdera, a Sea-Port Town of Thrace, ſo call'd from a Siſter of King Diomedes of that Name: Some Authors fanſie it took its Name from Abdarus, a Companion or Servant of Hercules, by whom it was built. Twas afterwards rebuilt by the Clazomenians, enlarged and ornamented by the Teians, who made it ſo conſiderable in its Buildings, that it was call'd proverbially Abdera the Fair. It afterwards had the Name Aſtrizza, and is now call'd Aſperoſa; Some old Authors mention a Field within this Town, which makes the Horſes mad that feed in't. This Town was an Epiſcopal See under the Metropolis of Philippopolis. Lucian in the beginning of his Book, Quomodo oportet Hiſtoriam ſcribere, tells ye, that the Abdarites were ſeiz'd with an Epidemical Diſtemper for ſome Months, which ſtrangely affected the Brain, and diſordered their Underſtandings. Arrian mentions the Conqueſts that Alexander made upon the Abdarites. Stephanus, Abder. Plin. Lib. 4. c. 11. Pomponius Mela, Lib. 2. Arrian, Lib. 1. &c.

Abderama, the firſt King of the Arabians in Spain, who made Cordoua his Seat. He ravag'd Caſtile with an Army of 200000 Foot and 30000 Horſe; and after he had conquer'd the Kingdoms of Arragon, Navarr, and Portugal, left nothing to the Spaniards but the Northern parts of Spain, which are fortified by Nature: Inſomuch that he was eſteemed the ſecond Deſtroyer of Spain. And ſeveral of their Kings were obliged to purchaſe an ignominious Peace of him, with the Annual Tribute of 100 Virgins. He began to build a Moſque at Corduba, but died before it was finiſhed, in 790, after he had Reigned 52 years, 3 months, and 4 days. Mariana.

Abderama II. King of Corduba, made a League at firſt with Ramirus King of Caſtile; but being ſolicited by the Moors, who paſſed over into Spain with prodigious numbers of new Succors, he brake the League, and re-demanded the Tribute of 100 Virgins. Upon which Ramirus, truſting to the Juſtneſs of his Cauſe, took the Field, and overthrew Abderama. After this he moleſted the Chriſtians no more, applying himſelf ſolely to the building of Aqueducts, erecting Moſques, and ſtoring his Country with Silk-Weavers, which he ſent for on purpoſe from Damaſcus, to encourage that Manufacture. He was the firſt that ſet his Name upon the Arabick Coin. He died in 846 or 859, leaving 42 Children behind him. In his time the Engliſh beſieged Lisbon in favour of the Chriſtians, but without effect. Marmol. lib.2. cap.23.

Abderama III. Sirnam'd the Promoter of the Law, was preferr'd before his Elder Brother to the Kingdom of Corduba. Loſing much in Spain by the Courage of Don Garcias, he ſent for new Supplies out of Africa in 916, and continued the Wars ſeveral years againſt the Chriſtians, who took from him Pampeluna, and divers other conſiderable Places: And, attributing his Loſſes to his ſuffering the Chriſtians and Moors to intermarry, he made a Law, That all Chriſtians who were Married to Moors, ſhould turn Mahometans, both they and their Children, which was the reaſon that many ſuffered Martyrdom: As Victor, Pelagius, Lilioſa, &c. He died in 958 or 961, after he had Reigned about 50 years. Marmol.

Abderama IV. Son of Almanſor, the laſt of that Race who Reigned at Corduba. He ſucceeded Abdumalic, his Elder Brother, in the Kingdom. He was ſo debauch'd, and ſo averſe to Warlike Affairs, that the Arabians revolted from him, and divided themſelves into Two Factions: Thoſe of Africa on the one ſide, commanded by Solyman; and thoſe of Spain by Mahomet, who poiſon'd Abderama, and ſet up for himſelf in 1062. Mariana.

Abderama, a Mahometan Prince, Son of King Alimatan, who ſurpriz'd the City of Toledo, and cut the Throats of above 6000 of the Citizens in the year 809. Marmol.

Abderama, Uſurp'd the Soveraignty of Sofia in the Kingdom of Morocco, having murder'd his Nephew the Governor. He Reign'd a long time in Peace, but was at length murder'd himſelf: For, having a fair Daughter, belov'd by one Ali Benguecimin, one of the principal young Men in the City, who, by the aſſiſtance of her Mother and a Slave, debauch'd her; Abderama underſtanding it, reſolv'd to be reveng'd, which the Mother and Daughter miſtruſting, gave the young Man notice thereof, ſo that he prevented it by Stabbing Abderama at his Prayers in a Moſque. Marmol.

Abderama, Viceroy of Spain for the Moors, one of the greateſt Captains of his time. Amer-el-Memunim or Miramomolim, Emperor of the African Saracens, was ſo Confident of his Conduct, that he hoped by his Aſſiſtance to conquer France and Italy; for none of the Chriſtians could ever make head againſt him, but Charles Martell General of France. He began with Languedoc and Provence, pretending, that having been once poſſeſſed by the Viſigoths, they belong'd to them. He divided his Army, conſiſting of 400000 Men, and ſent part of them into Aquitaine, where they were routed by Duke Eudo, and forced to return to Abderama, then beſieging Arles with one part, while the reſt were ravaging Provence and Dauphine. To be reveng'd for the Diſgrace ſuſtain'd in Aquitaine, he ſent his whole Force that way, making himſelf Maſter of Languedoc, Quercy, Auvergne,, and all the Neighbour Provinces. After which Charles Martell gave him Battle, in a Plain near Tours, between the Rivers Cher and Loir, where Abderama loſt his Life with 375000, or, as the Moderns ſay, only 75000 of his Men, Charles loſing only 1500, which were ſlain in the beginning of the Fight; this was Anno 732. Duke Eudo, though he had call'd in the Saracens to invade France, yet upon the Remonſtrance of Charles Martell, that he ought to prefer the Welfare of his Country and Religion, to his private Reſentments againſt him, being mov'd with the Argument, made a ſecret League with him, and while the Victory was doubtful, fell upon the Saracens Camp, which caſt the Balance. Sigebert, Anaſtaſius, Baronius.

Abdest, a ſort of Purification among the Turks; which is done by pouring Water upon their Heads, and afterwards waſhing their Feet three times ſucceſſively, before they begin their Ceremonies. Ricaut.

Abdias, pretended Biſhop of Babylon, ſaid to have been Chriſt's Diſciple, and Author of the Life of the Apoſtles, which is look'd upon as a Counterfeit. Theſe Lives are divided into Ten Books. 'Tis ſaid that Eutropius Tranſlated them out of Hebrew into Greek, and that Julius Africanus turn'd them into Latin. Wolfgangus Lazius publiſh'd them at Bazil in the year 1551. They are now bound up with the Bibliotheca Patrum. Baron. Bellar. Voſſius, &c.

Abdilchair, a Captain of the Tartars, who coming to aid the Turks againſt Mahomet Hodabenda, King of Perſia, was taken by Emir-Hamet, Hodabenda's Son, and ſent Priſoner to the Perſian Court at Caſmin, where he was kindly Treated as a Priſoner at large; but being a very Lovely Perſon, Hodabenda's Queen, Begama, became ſo enamour'd of him, as it was eaſily diſcern'd by the Nobles, and the King himſelf was not ignorant of it; wherefore he reſolv'd to ſend him into his own Country, and give him his Daughter in Marriage; hoping hereby to contract a laſting Friendſhip with the Precopenſian Tartar. But the Perſian Nobility refuſing to conſent to the Match, and the King perſiſting in his Deſign, they ſlew Abdilchair in the Royal Palace.

Abdiranus, a King of the Saracens. He valiantly withſtood Charles the Great, and paſſing the Garumna, plunder'd and ſack'd Burdeaux, making it a ſink of all manner of Debauchery. Sabell.

Abdissi, Patriarch of the City of Moſul in the Eaſtern parts of Aſſyria, of the Family of Marc, and of the City Geſire upon the Tigris. He was raiſed to the Dignity of a Patriarch, March 7. 1562. He was at the Council of Trent, where he preſented his Confeſſion of Faith in the XXII Seſſion. He was well Skill'd in the Hebrew, Arabick, and Syriack, and anſwered pertinently to all Queſtions that were put to him, affirming, that the Doctrine he profeſs'd had been taught his Anceſtors by St. Thomas, St. Thaddæus, and their Diſciple St. Mark. His Juriſdiction was extended as far as the Indies, and he was ſuppoſed to be the Chief of the Eaſtern Patriarchs. Spondanus denies Abdiſſi's or Abdieſu's being at Trent. Thuanus.

Abdolominus, or Abdalominus, deſcended from the Sidonian Kings, but reduc'd to that extream Poverty, that he was forced to work to a Gardener in the Suburbs of Sidon, by the day. Alexander having taken Sidon, and expelled Strato, who ſided with Darius, made Abdolominus King; but being blamed for his Choice, he ſent for the new King, and admiring his goodly preſence, ask'd him, How he could ſo patiently endure ſo much Miſery. To which he anſwered, I wiſh to God I may be as able to bear this Burthen of my Greatneſs: Theſe Hands ſupplied all my wants; I neither had any thing, nor did I want any. Which Anſwer poſſeſs'd Alexander with ſuch an Opinion of his Virtue, that he gave him Strato's rich Furniture, moſt of the Booty he had taken from the Perſians, and added one of the adjoining Territories to his Dominions. Quintus Curtius, lib. 4.

Abdon, the Son of Hillel, a Native of Pirathon in the Tribe of Ephraim. He was the Twelfth Judge of Iſrael, and Govern'd Eight years. He had 40 Sons and 30 Nephews. He was buried in Pirathon, a Mountain of the Amalekites. Judg. 12. 13, 14, 15.

Abdon, the Son of Micah, one of thoſe Joſiah ſent to Huldah the Propheteſs. Alſo the name of a City in the Tribe of Aſher, appointed for the Levites, 2 Chron. 34. 20. Joſ. 21. 30.

Abdon and Sennen, Two Perſian Princes that embraced the Chriſtian Faith, and were impriſon'd by the Emperor Decius for burying the Bodies of certain Martyrs. He afterward carried them to Rome in Triumph in the year 254, where he put them to death, for refuſing to ſacrifice to his Pagan Idols. Having beforehand expoſed them in the Amphitheatre to Bears and Lions, who would not touch them, which he attributed to Magick. Their Bodies were three days unburied. Vincent. l. 11. c. 4. Some Authors ſay, that their Corps were found in the time of Conſtantine the Great, in the beginning of the Fourth Century. Uſuard's Martyrology.

Abdula, a Cham of the Tartars. He lived about the end of the Sixteenth Century, and ravaging the Frontiers of Perſia, took Heri, and 32 Cities more, in the Province of Choraſan; but fled upon the approach of Cha-Abas Sophi of Perſia. After that he return'd with 200000 Tartars, and took Turbeth, being never drawn to a pitch'd Battle, though provok'd thereto by the Perſians, anſwering, That he would never change the Cuſtom of his Anceſtors. Relation of Dom Juan de Perſia.

Abdulach, a King of Fez, of the Family of the Marini's: He liv'd in the Thirteenth Age, and after he had taken ſome Cities in Tremeſen, made himſelf abſolute Maſter of the Kingdom of Fez, and about the year 1210, very much enlarged his Empire. There was another Abdulach, the laſt of this Family, ſo great a Coward, that he durſt not ſtir to oppoſe the Chriſtians when they took Ceuta. For which, his Subjects conſpir'd againſt him, ſo that his Viſier, whom he had highly favour'd, kill'd him, together with Six of his Sons, whoſe Death was afterwards reveng'd in Battle by the Cheriff Said, Anno 1481. Marmol.

Abdulasis, Governor for the Arabians in Spain, fix'd his Reſidence at Sevill, whither having drawn ſeveral of his Friends out of Africk, as ſoon as he heard of his Father Muſſa's death, he ſet up for himſelf. He Married the Widow of King Roderigo, a fair African, and Nobly deſcended. She advis'd him to take the name of King, and put a Golden Crown on his Head; which Two Noble Moors perceiving, and abhorring an Act ſo contrary to the Mahometan Law, firſt murder'd him in a Moſque, and after that his Wife. Marmol.

Abdulmalich; Having made himſelf Maſter of what the Arabians held in Spain, he paſs'd into Africk to continue the Siege of Tangier, which he took, with ſeveral other Towns, and put the Inhabitants to the Sword; but, underſtanding that Abeci was made King of Cordoua, he haſted back into Spain, and ſlew him. He brought with him great numbers of Arabs, who ſettled themſelves in Spain, and built ſeveral Towns; Laſtly, beſieging Cartagena, which ſtill held out for the Chriſtians, he took it, but died in his return home to Cordoua. Marmol.

ABDULMALICH, Caliph of the Arabians in Spain. He at firſt War'd ſucceſsfully againſt Habul-Agek his Competitor at Cordova, but Habul being numerouſly reinforced out of Africk, purſued him ſo cloſe, that he took him, and cauſed him to be beheaded. Marmol.

ABDULMALICH, Son of the King of Fez. He went into Spain to aid the King of Granada againſt the Chriſtian Princes of Caſtile and Leon. Having perform'd great Exploits in that Kingdom, he was recall'd to aſſiſt his Father in the War of Tremeſen, which Kingdom he won, together with that of Tunis, and became one of the greateſt Princes that ever Reigned in Africk. But being return'd into Spain, he was ſurpriz'd by his Enemies Troops, and not having time to mount his Horſe, he hid himſelf in a Brake, where being found, and feigning himſelf dead, a Chriſtian run him twice through the Body with his Lance; notwithſtanding, when he ſaw the Coaſt clear, he got, with much pain, to the ſide of a Rivulet, where he expired, in the year 1339. Marmol.

ABDULMALICH, Brother to Mulei Haſſen. He made himſelf Maſter of the Kingdom of Tunis, by the Expulſion of his Nephew, whoſe Eyes he burn'd out with a red hot Baſon, to puniſh him for the like Barbarity which he had committed on his own Father. He Reigned about 36 days. Marmol.

ABDULMALICH, Son to Marvan, Seventh Succeſſor to Mahomet. He began to Reign in 687, after he had defeated Abdala, who was ſlain in his flight towards Greece. Firſt he extirpated all the Remains of the Family of Moavia, the Father of Jezid, and Abdala; caus'd Jezid's Body to be dug up again and burnt, and then threw his Aſhes into a River: He overthrew Abdala, Chieftain of the Saracens that liv'd in Tents, who had uſurp'd the Title of Caliph of Meſopotamia, and had conquer'd Perſia, forcing him to retire to Mecca, where he was put to death. By this Stroke Abdulmalich became ſole Maſter of Arabia, Perſia, Meſopotamia, and Armenia. In the year 699, he won Carthage, Conſtantina, and the greateſt part of Mauritania. Anno 700 he re-conquer'd Armenia, (which the Emperor of Conſtantinople had ſubdued by the Revolt of the Nobility) and burnt the Ring-leaders of the Rebellion all together in a Tower where he had ſhut them up. He died in 708, after a Reign of 21 years, and left his Son Gualid to ſucceed him. Marmol.

ABDUL-MUMEN, King of the Saracens in Africk: He began his Reign after the Death of Abdala, Founder of the Sect of the Mohavedans. This is the Abdala I before-mention'd, who being, at firſt, no more than a School-Maſter and a Preacher, made himſelf ſo Powerful, that he Conteſted the Sovereiguty with Abraham Emperor of the Moors in Africk: They had a ſet Battle, and Abraham having loſt the day, was forc'd to retire to Oran; Abdul-mumen purſu'd him ſo cloſe, that his Empreſs and himſelf deſpair'd of their Fortune, and threw themſelves down a Precipice. After that, the ſame Abdul-mumen, Abdala being dead of a Diſtemper, was choſen High-Prieſt and Emperor of Africk, tho his Riſe, no more than the others, was but the Government of a School. He beſieg'd Morocco, and in a years time took it; and having found Iſaac, the Son of the Unfortunate Abraham, in the Place, he Strangled him with his own Hands. He order'd the King's Palace, and the Moſques, to be pull'd down, to extinguiſh the Memory of his Predeceſſor; and afterwards built Stately Houſes in their places, and gave 'em his own Name. In fine, he perſecuted all thoſe that were of the Family of the Almoravides, and did not ſo much as leave one of 'em in Africk, that he could find out. And thus having deſtroyed this whole Family, he made himſelf Maſter of great part of Africk, and ſtretch'd his Empire as far as Tripoly. He rais'd a great Army for a Perſonal Expedition into Spain, but died before the Execution of this Deſign in the year 1156. After him Joſeph his Son, and Jacob Almanzor his Grandſon, reign'd ſucceſſively, who, to the greatneſs of their Empire, added the accompliſhment of Letters, which never before flouriſh'd, to that degree, in Africk. Mahomet Enaſer, Sur-nam'd Miramulin, the Son of Almanzor, was the next Prince: Theſe Emperors were Maſters of a great extent of Country, not only in Africk, but likewiſe in Spain, where the Prince laſt mention'd loſt a Battel in the year 1200. 'Tis obſervable, That Abdul-muvien, when he ſat down before Morocco, Swore he would not quit the Enterprize till he had taken the Place and ſifted it: To make his Oath good, he order'd a good part of the Houſes to be beaten to Powder, to fit them for the Sieve; Notwithſtanding this Succeſs, the Viceroys and Governors refus'd to ſubmit to the Almohades, and canton'd the Empire into a great many Principalities. They ſet up diſtinct Kings at Algier, at Tremeſen, Tenez, Tunis, Tripoly, and in other Towns; and beſides this, the Africans that liv'd in the Mountains, made ſeveral Noblemen their Governors. However Abdul-mumen, having Conquer'd Fez and Morocco, poſſeſs'd himſelf, in a little time, of all Mauritania Tingitana, and, by degrees, became Maſter of the Kingdoms of Tunis and Tremeſen, tho after all, the Arabian Juriſdiction was ſtill kept up, in a part of the Kingdom of Tunis, till the Reign of Jacob Almanzor, the Fourth Prince of the Family of the Almohades. Marmol, Lib. 2. Ch. 34. Marian. Ebnan. Hiſt. Lib. 7.

ABDULUATES, the Name of the Kings of Tremeſen, of the Family of the Magazoa's and Zinhagians, who drove the Abderama's quite out of Africk, about the year 986. This Family Reigned above 300 years. Marmol.

ABDUS, a Parthian Eunuch: He was in the Conſpiracy againſt Artabanus, to ſet up Phrahates; which Artabanus perceiving, invited him to a Banquet, and poiſon'd him. Tacitus.

ABEA, or Aba, a City of Phocis, built by Abas the Son of Lynceus; ſpar'd by Philip of Macedon, after he had demoliſh'd all the reſt in that Province, becauſe the Inhabitants were not concern'd in plundering the Temple of Apollo, under Philomelus Pauſanias. 'Tis alſo the name of a City of Peloponneſus, now call'd Chiores or Catamata, and ſeated upon the Gulph of Coron. Juſtin. Plin.

ABECI, a Spaniſh Moor: He uſurp'd the Throne of Corduba, during the abſence of King Abdul-melech. He Stil'd himſelf Amir-el-Moſelemin, and did much miſchief to the Country. Theſe Diſorders occaſion'd the War of the Great Men of Spain. 'Twas ſo call'd, becauſe all Perſons of Quality engag'd in't. King Abdul-melech, who was marching for Africk, order'd a Counter-march upon the Uſurper, and kill'd him. Marmol, Lib. 2. Ch. 14.

ABEDNEGO, one of the Three Children in Daniel, who refuſing to Worſhip Nebuchadnezzar's Golden Image, were thrown into the Fiery Furnace, and deliver'd by an Angel. ABEN-BOEN, the name of the Bounds that parted the Tribe of Reuben from Judah. It was a great Stone in the form of an Oven, and lay Eaſt of the Highway that leads to Adonis, a River of Phœnicia. Maſius.

ABENCHAMOZ, a Captain of Barbary, and Lord of the Aduars. He was defeated by the Portuguezes, and loſt one of his Wives, named Tota; but being aſhamed with her upbraiding him for letting her be taken Captive, he rallied again, routed the Portugueze, and ſet her at Liberty. Diego de Torſez Hiſt. of the Cheriffs.

ABEN-EL-HACH, an Arabian of Damaſcus, made King of Cordona by his Companions, who hang'd Alcataran the Lawful Prince; and having defeated the Sons of his Predeceſſors that came from Narbonne, to revenge their Father's death, he died of Fatigue, as ſome ſay, or of Poiſon, according to others, after having Reigned Six Months. Marmol.

ABEN-EZRA, a famous Spaniſh Rabbin, wrote very good Commentaries upon the Scripture; He wrote likewiſe upon Grammar, Arithmetick, Aſtronomy, and ſeveral other Subjects. He's extreamly ſhort and ſparing in his Stile; which gave occaſion to the writing ſome Books call'd Bieurim or Explanations, for the better underſtanding of his Scripture Commentaries. Theſe Commentaries are Printed with the Large Bibles at Venice and Bazil; And thoſe who have perus'd ſome of the Manuſcript Copies, ſay, there are a great many Faults in the Impreſſion. His Treatiſes upon Grammar were Printed at Venice in the year 1546, with ſome other Grammarians. Aben-ezra's, Jeſud Mora, the ſcarceſt of all his Works, was likewiſe Printed at Venice. Buxtorf declares he never ſaw it. But Morinus and Pere Symon have perus'd it in Manuſcript. This latter finds fault with Morinus for miſtaking the reading of a Paſſage in't, and drawing falſe Conſequences from it againſt the Authors of the Maſſoret. 'Tis ſaid that the Subject of this Book is not Grammar, as Buxtorf fanſied, but rather Theology. In this Treatiſe the Author recommends the Study of the Talmud. This Rabbin, as we obſerv'd before, liv'd in the Twelfth Century. Rich. Sym. Hiſt. Crit. Mor. Exe. Bibl. See Aben-tybbon.

He had been Baptiz'd, but renounced his Baptiſm upon his Election. He was Courageous, Daring, Proud, and Succeſsful. At laſt one Diego Aguazil, not enduring his Rivalſhip in a Lady whom he lov'd, Counterfeited Letters under his own Hand, as if he deſign'd to Maſſacre all the Mahometans in his Army; upon which he was ſurprized and Strangled Anno 1570, by Abdala-Aben-Abo. At his death he denied what he was charg'd with, and profeſſed he died a Chriſtian, and that he only turn'd Moor to Capacitate himſelf for the Regal Dignity, and that he might be Reveng'd of the Spaniards. Mariana.

ABEN-HUF, a Learned Moor, one of the Principal Noblemen of the Kingdom of Granada, who having made himſelf Maſter of the Strongeſt Cities thereof, call'd himſelf The Reformer of the Mahometan Law. He was murder'd by his own Subjects while he made War upon the Chriſtians, in 1234. Marmol.

ABEN-JOSEPH, of the Race of the Beni-Merini's in Africk. He uſurp'd the Kingdoms of Fez and Morocco from the Almohades, after having defeated Mahomet Budobus. He extended his Dominions over all Mauritania, and then took the name of Mulei-Chec or Ancient King. In 1275 he croſs'd over into Spain with 50000 Foot, and 7000 Horſe, and won Tarifu and Algeſira. After which he undertook ſeveral Expeditions againſt the Chriſtians, and Revolted Moors. He died in 1285, leaving his Son Abuſayd to ſucceed him. Marmol.

ABEN-ISHMAEL, King of Granada. He became Tributary to the King of Caſtile; but after his death, which was in 1465, his Son, Mulei Albohacen, broke the Peace, which was the ruine of the Moors: For Ferdinand took Granada in 1492, and put an end to their Dominion in Spain. Davity.

ABEN-MAHOMET, a Famous Arabian: He ſeiz'd the Crown of Corduba and Toledo: He made a vigorous oppoſition againſt thoſe that diſputed this Pretenſion with him, and were ſupported by Intereſt of the Almohades. Marmol. L. 2. Ch. 38.

ABEN-MELECH, a Learned Rabbi, who writ a Grammatical Expoſition upon the whole Bible. It comprehends the Literal Interpretations and Grammatical Remarks of the Rabbins, Jehuda or Judah, Jona, Kimchi, and ſome others, but eſpecially thoſe of David Kimchi, whom he generally cites tot. verbis. 'Tis a thin Folio, Entitled, Michlat Jophi, or, The Perfection of Beauty, Printed firſt at Conſtantinople, afterwards in Holland, which laſt is the beſt, upon the account of ſeveral additional Remarks by Aben-Dana. P. Simon. Hiſt. Critic.

ABEN-NEDEN, an Arabian Author, who wrote the Lives of the Philoſophers of his own Country.

ABENSPERG, a Town of the Dutchy of Bavaria, lies a German mile off the Danube, and is diſtant Three miles from Ratisbonne. It's noted for being the Birth-place of Joannes Aventinus, a Learned Hiſtorian, who writ the Annals of his Country from the Deluge to Anno Dom. 1460.

ABEN-TAAMON, a Prince of the Family of Abdala VI. Caliph of Damaſcus. He fled into Africa, to avoid the fury of the Uſurper Abdulmalich, who maſſacred all he could meet with of that Line; and arriving in Mauritania Tingitana, was made King thereof becauſe of his Birth and Merits. He Warr'd much againſt the Romans and Goths, and obtain'd ſeveral Victories. To out-brave the Caliphs of Arabia, he Styl'd himſelf Amir-el-Moſelemin. Marmol.

ABEN-TESPHIN, a Numidian, who drove the Saracens out of Africa in the Twelfth Century, after he had ruin'd the Kingdoms of Fez and Mauritania. The Saracens of Spain call'd him to their Aſſiſtance againſt the Chriſtians, which prov'd fatal to both: For he drove the Chriſtians out of Caſtile, Portugal, and other Places which they had re-taken; and then put to death moſt of the Saracen Princes; others he made Tributary to his Sons, whom he left Governors of Spain at his return into Africa. Birago, Hiſtory of Africa.

ABEN-TYBBON, a Celebrated Rabbi: He lived in the 14th Century, and wrote divers Treatiſes. There was alſo one Aben-Ezra another Rabbi, call'd the Wiſe: He was a Philoſopher, and wrote 24 Books upon the Old Teſtament. 'Tis ſaid, that he was born in Spain, and that he died at Rhodes, Anno 1190 or 1217. Sixt. Senenſ. lib. 4. Bibl. S. Genebrard. in Chron. Buxtorf. de Ab. Elv. p. 34.

ABEN-VERGA, a Rabbin, who wrote Aſtronomical Tables. It is not certainly known in what Age he liv'd. Voſſ. de Mathemat. C. 35. Sec. 56.

ABEN-XAUHAR, one of thoſe unfortunate Spaniſh Moors that Revolted in the Sixteenth Century. He was of a good Family, and his Name was formerly Ferdinand: But he renounced his Baptiſm and turn'd Mahometan. He was one of the firſt, and the moſt forward, in adviſing the Mungrel Moors to take Arms. They would have made him King of Grdnada, and ſome of their Party ſaluted him as ſuch; but he choſe rather to have this Honour conferr'd on his Couſin Ferdinand of Valor, who was call'd Aben-Humeya, as I have already obſerv'd. Aben-Xauhar was his Lieutenant-General, but being diſſatisfied with his Buſineſs, he died either of Sickneſs, or the Spleen, in the year 1569 or 70. Thuan. Hiſt. Lib. 48.

ABEONA, the Goddeſs of Travellers.

ABERBROTOCH, formerly call'd Abrinca according to Buchanan, a Sea Town of Scotland, lying about half way betwixt the mouth of the Tay, and that of the South Esk.

ABERCONWAY, Lat. Conovium, a Market Town in the North Eaſt parts of Carnarvanſhire, at the mouth of the River Conway upon the Iriſh Sea, a ſtrong place both by Nature and Art.

ABERDEEN, Lat. Abredonia, or Aberdonia, a City of the County of Marr in Scotland, 85 miles N. E. of Edinburgh: It is ſituated on the mouth of the River Don; and there is another Town of the ſame Name at Two miles diſtance on the mouth of the River Dee; ſo that they are diſtinguiſhed by the Names of New and Old Aberdeen. The latter is famous for Salmon Fiſhing; and the other for an Univerſity founded by King James IV. and William Ephinſton Biſhop of the place, Anno 1494, they having procured the Privilege from Pope Alexander VI. who endowed it with as ample Immunities as any Univerſity in Chriſtendom; the Foundation relating to the Privileges of thoſe of Paris and Bononia. It was a Seminary of Learning long before it was an Univerſity, there being a Studium Generale in Collegio Canonicorum, where there were Doctors of the Laws and of Divinity in the time of King Alexander II. Anno 1221. This Univerſity conſiſts of Two Colleges, the firſt founded by Biſhop Ephinſton above-mentioned, Anno 1500, called the Kings-College, becauſe King James IV. took upon him and his Succeſſors the ſpecial protection of it: The other is called Mareſchal-College, becauſe founded by George Keith Earl Mareſchal, Anno 1593, in Old Aberdeen. There have been Earls bearing the Title of Aberdeen, and it was alſo a Biſhop's See till Epiſcopacy was aboliſhed in Scotland. This is alſo a Place of good Trade, having many Ships belonging to it.

ABERFRAW, Lat. Gadiva, is a Town of the Iſle of Angleſey, noted for having been the Reſidence of Eleven Kings of North-Wales. Amarawd, the firſt of theſe Princes, begun his Reign in 877, and Llewelin, the laſt, was kill'd in Battle in 1282.

ABERGAVENNY, by Antoninus call'd Gobanium, a Market Town of Bergavenny-Hundred in the North-weſt of Monmouthſhire, derives its name from Gaveny, a ſmall River which runs on the Eaſt-ſide of it into the Usk, whilſt this waſhes the Weſt-ſide. This Town belong'd to the Silures when the Romans Conquer'd 'em; it's ſtill large and well built, Wall'd and Fortified with an ancient Caſtle; it drives a good Trade in Flannels, and gives the Title of Baron to the firſt of England, which is now the Right Honourable George Nevill.

ABERISTWITH, a Market Town of Landabarn-Hundred in the North-weſt of Cardiganſhire, ſo call'd from its ſituation on the River Iſtwith within a mile of its Fall into the Iriſh Sea.

ABERNETHY, the ancient Seat of the Kings of the Picts; ſituate on the Rivers Tay in Strathern in Scotland. It was alſo a Biſhops See until remov'd thence to St. Andrew's by Pope Sixtus IV. An. 1471. Boët. Lib. 2. Hiſt. Scot.

ABFOORT, a Sea Port of Norway in the Province of Agger, 15 German miles Weſt of Anſlo.

ABGARUS, or Agbarus, one of the Kings of Edeſſa in Meſopotamia, who was Contemporary with the Son of God. This Abgarus had heard of the great Miracles which Chriſt had wrought, which made him write to Jeſus, and give him an Invitation to Edeſſa, as in the following Letter. The Son of God approving the Faith and Zeal of Abgarus, is ſaid to have ſent him his Picture, and the following Anſwer.

ABGARUS, KING OF EDESSA,

To the Gracious Saviour JESUS,

Who has taken upon Him Fleſh in the Country of Jeruſalem, Greeting.

I Have been inform'd of the Miracles and Wonderful Cures which you perform, by Healing the Sick without Herbs or Medicines: And the Report is, That you reſtore Sight to the Blind; that you Cleanſe the Leprous; that you caſt forth Devils and Malignant Spirits; that you reſtore Health to thoſe that have many years languiſh'd under tedious and incurable Diſeaſes; and raiſe the Dead to Life. Underſtanding of you theſe things, I believe that either you are God himſelf, who has vouchſafed to deſcend from Heaven, or elſe, that you are the Son of God to work ſuch Miracles as theſe; for which reaſon I have preſum'd to ſend you this Epiſtle, moſt Affectionately beſeeching you, that you would give your ſelf the trouble of coming to ſee me. I know the Jews to be your Perſecutors, that they Murmur at your Miracles, and lie in wait for your Deſtruction. I have here a City both Beautiful and Commodious, which though it be but ſmall, however will afford us all things that are Neceſſary.

The Anſwer of JESUS CHRIST.

YOU are happy, O Abgarus, in that you have believed in me, although you never ſaw me. For, it is written of me, That they who ſhall believe in me, and never ſaw me, ſhall be ſav'd. As to your Requeſt, that I would come to ſee you, I am to let you underſtand, That all thoſe things for which I am ſent, muſt be accompliſh'd in the Country where I am; and after all things are by me fulfill'd, I muſt return to him that ſent me. However, after my Aſcenſion, I will ſend you one of my Diſciples, who ſhall deliver you from your painful Diſeaſe, and ſhew both your ſelf and all your Friends, the Way to Life Eternal.

Which the ſame Author adds, was performed by St. Thaddæus who moreover Converted the Oſroënians.

Theſe Two Letters are by ſome ſaid to be True, by others Fabulous. Euſebius affirms, that he Copied 'em from the Records of the City of Edeſſa, and Tranſlated 'em out of the Chaldee into his Treatiſe, Entituled, Ephrem's Laſt Will. Count Darius cites 'em in an Epiſtle to St. Auſtin, and Theodorus Studites, in another to Pope Paſchal. As for the Picture, St. John of Damaſcus, Evagrius, and ſeveral others make mention of it, and the Greeks obſerve a Feſtival which is call'd, The Tranſlation of the Picture. Pope Adrian alſo, in an Epiſtle to Charlemagne, aſſures him, That the Hiſtory was admitted for true, by a Council at Rome under Pope Stephen. But Melchior Camus, Biſhop of the Canaries, and Cardinal Bellarmin, with ſeveral others, adhere to the Deciſion of Pope Gelaſius I. who Condemn'd 'em as Apocryphal, as did alſo the Council held at Rome, Anno Dom. 494. Proteſtants are alſo divided in their Opinions about 'em. Cock, Rivet, Honbeck, Spanheim, and alſo one Roman-Catholick, Du Pin, &c. think them Suppoſititious, but the Learn'd Dr. Cave in his Hiſtoria Literaria is of another mind, as alſo Pearſon in his Vindication of Ignatius.

ABGARUS, another King of Edeſſa, (Contemporary with the Emperor Antonin the Debonnaire) noted for his Piety and Vertue; he was Diſciple to the famous Bardeſane, who after a gallant Defence of Chriſtianity againſt the Heathen Emperors, turn'd Hereſiarch himſelf. Epiph. de Hær. Baronius, A. C. 175.

ABGARUS, another King of Edeſſa in the Third Cent. a Religious Chriſtian, and Allie of Severus the Emperor, he was cheated by Caracalla, who ſeized him as he came to Viſit him in confidence of the ſaid Alliance, and Poſſeſſed himſelf of his Country; but it's ſuppoſed that he or his Son were again reſtored to their Thrones. This Name Abagarus or Abgarus Originally Arabick, ſignifies Moſt Powerful, and was common to all the Kings of this Country, as Ptolemy to thoſe of Egypt. Several of them lived in good Correſpondence with the Roman Emperors, and their Portraictures are to be found on the Reverſe of the Medals of Gordian, Aurelius, and Severus. A Greek Epitaph is found in the Church of St. Paul at Rome on one of thoſe Kings, who was cut off through Envy. Triſtan's Commentaries on the Roman Hiſtory. Euſeb. in Chron. Dion. 77.

ABGILLE, (John) a certain Prince of Frieſland. He wrote a Fabulous Hiſtory of Charlemagne, and pretends to give an Account of his Expedition into Paleſtine and the Indies. Voſſius, de Hiſt. Lat.

ABIAAH, a River in the Country of Zagathay; it runs into the River Abiameu, and was anciently an Arm of the River Oxus, near its Fountain.

ABIATHAR, the Jewiſh High-Prieſt, Son to Abimelech the High-Prieſt. He alone eſcap'd the Slaughter of the Prieſts at Nob. He was Faithful to David, but Conſpired with Adonijah againſt Solomon, who depriv'd him of his Dignity, and confin'd him to his Palace in the Country: Which was the fulfilling of Samuel's Prediction to Eli. 1 Kings, 2 Kings.

ABIGAIL, the Wife of Nabal the Carmelite afterwards Contracted to David. There was alſo another Abigail, Daughter of Nahaſh, and Siſter to Zeruiah the Mother of Joab. 1 Kings 25.

ABIHU, one of the Sons of Aaron, who, with his Brother Nadab, was deſtroyed with Fire from Heaven, for making uſe of ſtrange Fire in their Sacrifices. Moſes Commanded they ſhould be buried without the Camp, without Mourning or Funeral Rite.

ABIJAM, or Abijah, King of Judah, and Son to Rehoboam. He fought with 400000 Men, againſt Jeroboam with 800000, and defeated him, kill'd 500000 upon the ſpot, and took Bethel, Jeſhanah, Ephraim, and ſeveral other Cities from him, ſo that he could never recover his Loſſes. He followed the Sins of his Father Rehoboam; had 14 Wives, and after a ſhort Reign of 3 years, died, Anno Mund. 3079. leaving Aſa his Son to ſucceed him. He had 22 Sons and 16 Daughters. 1 Kings 15.

ABILA, a ſmall City in Syria near the Springs of Jordan, on the South of Mount Libanus, Eaſt of Chalcis, and Weſt of Damaſcus: Lyſanias and Archelaus, Herod and Philip, all of them Sons of Herod the Great, were ſucceſſively one after another Tetrarchs of this City, about the time of our Saviour. Joſeph. Priſcillianus of Treves was Biſhop of this City, and was Murthered by Maximus the Tyrant, Hierom. Com. 1 Ep. 53. There is another in the ſame Tribe placed on the Borders of Edom, Eaſt of Gaulon and Aſteroth, and a Third in the Tribe of Reuben, in which Moſes gave his laſt Charge, containing the whole Book of Deuteronomy, or the Repetition of the Law, juſt before his death, the beſt Sermon but that on the Mount, that ever was preached to the Sons of Men. Abila, or Abilap, is likewiſe a Mountain in the Kingdom of Fez, called by the Ancients Ampilucia, upon the account of its being planted thick with Vines. Marmol. &c. Luke 3. Joſeph. Antiq. 19. 5. 20. & 9.

ABIMELECH, K. of Gerar, where Abraham ſojourning, feign'd Sarah to be his Siſter. See the whole Story, Gen. 20.

ABIMELECH, Son of Jerubbaal or Gideon, by his Shechemite Concubine. He was made King of Shechem by means of his Friends on the Mothers-ſide, having firſt ſlain 70 of the Sons of Jerubbaal, Jotham only eſcaping; but the Shechemites, wearied with his Cruelties, expell'd him the City, and call'd Gaal the Son of Ebed to their Aſſiſtance, whom Abimelech defeated, levell'd Shechem to the Ground, ſowing it with Salt, and purſued the Enemy to Thebez, where a Woman beat him down with a piece of a Mill-ſtone; upon which he commanded his Armour-bearer to run him thorow, that it might not be ſaid a Woman ſlew him. Judges 9.

ABINADAB, 2d Son of Jeſſe, and Brother of David: Alſo the Father of one of Solomon's Purveyors for the Region of Dor, who had Married one of Solomon's Daughters.

ABINGTON, Lat. Abingdonia, a Corporation of Berkſhire, ſituate upon the River Thames, between Walingford and Oxford, 5 miles Southward of this laſt. This Town was Garriſon'd for the Parliament in 1644, which much incommoded King Charles I. The Right Honourable James Bertue was created Earl of Abington by King Charles II. the 30th of November 1682.

ABIOSI, (John) he liv'd at Naples towards the end of the Fifteenth Century, about the year 1494. He was Profeſſor of Phyſick and Mathematicks, and left ſeveral valuable Treatiſes behind him: Among others, a Dialogue, concerning Judicial Aſtrology, Dedicated to Alphonſus King of Naples. This Book was afterwards cenſur'd by the Index Expurgatorius.

ABIRAM, the Eldeſt Son of Huel the Bethelite; He rebuilt Jericho in the Reign of Ahab.

David's Worthies. He ſlew 300 with his Spear at one time. He kill'd 18000 of the Idumeans, and made their Nation Tributary to the Iſraelites. In a Battel againſt the Philiſtines, he reſcu'd David out of the hand of a Giant, whom he ſlew. 2 Sam. 18.

ABISSINIA, or the Upper Æthiopia, I have mention'd ſomething of this Place under Abaſſinia; but having now ſome new Relations, containing ſomething of Curioſity come to my hands, I ſhall give the Reader a ſhort Account of it. Firſt then, The Government of Provinces under the Abiſſine Emperors, are generally, durante bene placito; 'tis true, this Rule has ſome Exceptions, for the Vice-Roy-ſhip of Tigre is Hereditary: The Government of the Kingdom of Dambea, is annexed to the Cantibas Family, who were anciently Princes of this Country. There are likewiſe ſome other Provinces, of which the Governors are poſſeſſed by Right of Succeſſion. The other Governments are uſually ſold by the Emperor; and the Governors don't ſpare to re-imburſe themſelves by rigorous Exactions upon the People, who dare not ſo much as complain of the Hardſhip. Formerly the two Betaudats, or Principal Favourites, had the Chief Management of the Adminiſtration: But now the Emperor has ſet up a Raz, or Firſt Miniſter, in their place, who commands all the Vice-Roys; the Azages and the Umbares, that is to ſay, the Emperor's Council, and the Prime Miniſters of Juſtice, even the Generaliſſimo, is Commanded by the Raz. The Emperor makes uſe of Slaves of ſeveral Nations for his Pages. They are ſometimes choſen out of the Agau's, Gonga's, Cafere's, or Balou's: Theſe Pages are afterwards preferr'd to the Principal Poſts of the Empire, becauſe they are thought to be more firm and true to the Crown than the Nobility of the Country. The Emperor makes Grants of Lands to his Officers and Soldiers, which they enjoy as long as they continue in Service; 'tis the only Pay they receive. All his Subjects ſerve in Arms, excepting Labourers and Handy-craft-men. Their principal Arms are Zagayes, or Demi-lances. The Gentlemen are allowed a Sword, but make little uſe on't. The Hilt is generally Silver, and the Scabbard of ſome rich Stuff. When they talk with any Perſon, or when they walk in the Fields, they hold their Sword in their Hand: But when they paſs along the Streets, one of their Servants carries it under his Arm. The Emperor's Force in the Field conſiſts uſually of about 35000 Foot, and 5000 Horſe, 1500 of which, both for ſhape and force, reſemble Spaniſh Jennets. Among theſe Troops, they pretend to entertain 1000 Muſqueteers; but when the Army marches, they are ſeldom above 500 effective. Their Camp takes up a prodigious compaſs of Ground: For the Suttlers, and other People that follow the Army, are twice as many as the Soldiers. 'Tis the Cuſtom for the Emperor and Empreſs, to go into the Field, and all the great Lords and Ladies of the Court attend them: The Emperor's Pavilion ſtands in the middle of the Camp, and ſo do the two others which ſerve for Churches: The Empreſs's and great Lady's Tents, are ſomewhtat remote, and ſo are thoſe of the great Lords, the Field-Officers, he Sub-alterns and Soldiers, whoſe Quarters are ſo rang'd, as that they may ſerve conveniently for Vaunt-guard, Rere-guard, and Wings. Both in time of Peace and War, the Emperor's Camp is as it were the Capital of the Empire; for there are no great Towns in Abiſſinia for him to reſide in. Accum, or Auxum, was formerly a conſiderable Town in Æthiopia, but now 'tis no more but a Village of about 100 Houſes: By reaſon that the Emperors have formerly kept their Court in that City, they are ſtill Crown'd there. Accum is about 3 Leagues from Fremona, and 45 from Macua, in the Latitude of 14 Degrees and 30 Minutes. There are ſtill to be ſeen ſome Ruines; among the reſt, there appears to have been a ſtately Church; there are likewiſe ſome Obelisks and Piramids, which were deſign'd as Ornaments for the Tombs of their Princes. The Emperor decamps ſometimes once a year, and ſometimes continues ſeveral years in the ſame place: When he changes his Quarters, the Churches are carried after him: The Altar upon which Maſs is ſaid, is carried by 4 Prieſts. This Altar is formed after the Model of the Ark in the Old Teſtament, which the Abiſſines pretend remains now in the Church at Auxum. Notwithſtanding there are no great Towns in Upper Æthiopia, yet there are ſo great a number of Villages in ſeveral Provinces, that the whole Country looks almoſt like a Town. Their Houſes or Cabbins are but One Story high, and Two Stories are ſtar'd at like a Miracle by the People: The Emperor wears a Crown plaited with Gold and Silver, with ſome Pearls upon't; as for other Jewels, they know nothing of them: He holds a little Croſs in his Hand, which is no Scepter, as ſome People fanſie, but a Badge of the Order of a Deacon, which the Emperor always takes to qualify him to communicate with the Prieſts in the Quire, and not in the Nave with the Laity. The great Lords likewiſe carry ſuch a ſort of Croſs for the ſame reaſon. Formerly, the Emperor never appear'd in Publick, and when he eat, there was a Curtain drawn before him, that no body might ſee him, excepting Two or Three Pages that waited at Table. But now this Prince is pleas'd to become viſible, eſpecially to his Troops. As to Religion, the Abiſſines have but one Biſhop, who is ſent them by the Patriarch of the Cophti, reſiding at Grand Caire: For this reaſon, they profeſs the Religion of the Cophti, or Chriſtians of Egypt. The Archbiſhop of Goa, and many other Learned Men, were miſtaken in ſuppoſing the Æthiopians had ſomething of Judaiſm in their Ceremonies: This Opinion was founded upon their Obſervation of Saturday as well as Sunday, their Practice of Circumciſion, and abſtaining from Things ſtrangl'd, and from Blood. But here we ought to obſerve, That the Circumciſion of the Æthiopians, as to the ground of it, is very different from that of the Jews; the Jews looking on this Ceremony as a Divine Precept, whereas the others conſider it only as a civil Cuſtom. As for Saturday, the keeping of that was practis'd by the whole Eaſtern Church, and therefore not particular to the Abiſſines. And laſtly, Their refuſing to eat Things ſtrangl'd, and Blood, is expreſly ordered in the New Teſtament, and was a long time obſerved in the Weſtern Churches. Beſides, there are a great many things put upon the Abiſſines which are foreign to their Belief: For inſtance, 'Tis not certain that they agree with the Latins about the Proceſſion of the Holy Ghoſt: In this Article they ſeem rather to follow the miſtaken Opinion of the Greeks. Almida, Tellez, Hiſt. de la Haute Æthiopia, Thevenot, Vol. 4. P. Simon, Hiſt. des Religions du levant. Hornius, in the Introduction to the Ancient Geography, ſaith, It is certain this Nation is a Colony of the Arabians, where Ptolemy places the Abaſenes in Arabia Felix, from whence they croſſed the Sea in very ancient Times into Africa, which appears by their Language and Hiſtories, and the time may be almoſt aſſign'd. See Abaſſinia.

Some think, that Baſilides the Inventor intends the Name of God by it. The Method of the Cure was preſcribed in theſe Verſes.

Inſcribes Chartæ quod dicitur Abracadabra
Sæpius, & ſubter repetes, ſed detrahe Summam,
Et magis atque magis deſint elementa figuris,
Singula quæ ſemper capies, & cætera figes
Donec in Anguſtum redigatur Litera Conum.
His lino nexis collum redimire memento.
Talia Languentis conducent Vincula Collo,
Lethaleſque abigent (miranda potentia!) morbos.

Scaliger, Salmaſius and Kircher, have given themſelves a great deal of trouble to find out the ſenſe of this word; the moſt probable Interpretation is, That ἀβράσαξ is in Baſilides's Jargon, the Name for God. Under this word, the deſign of this Heretick was to ſignify the 365 Divine Proceſſions of his own inventing: For, the Numeral Letters of this word being added, make up the Number of 365. Several of the Fathers read Abraxas inſtead of Abraſax, which amounts to the ſame number. See Abraxas.

ABRACAR, the Name given to God by Baſilides the Heretick, in the Second Century, who, he ſaid, was the Author of 365, meaning the 365 days in a year. To which number the Letters of Abracadabra abovemention'd amount.

ACADEMIA, a ſhady Grove without the Walls of Athens, where Plato firſt taught Philoſophy, and hence his Followers were all call'd Academicks. Some call it Academia, from Ecademus an Athenian Hero. There were Three ſorts of Academicks, the Antient, the Middle, and the Modern. Plato was the Author of the Ancient; This Philoſophy was a mixture of the Doctrine of Heraclitus, Pythagoras, and Socrates. This Sect was ſucceſſively kept up by Speuſippus, Xenocritus, Polemon, Crates Athenienſis, and Crantor. Arceſilas was Crantor's Diſciple, and founded the Sect of the Middle Academicks. This Philoſopher taught, That we could have no certain knowledge of any thing, and therefore ought to ſuſpend our Aſſent, and Dogmatize upon nothing. Arceſilas was ſucceeded by Lacydes, and this latter by Hegiſippus of Pergamus, (according to Laertius) or Hegeſilaus, (as Clemens Alexandrinus calls him) who was the laſt of this Perſuaſion. Afterwards Carneades, a Cyrenian, ſet up the Third or Modern Diſtinction of the Academicks. He taught, That there was not only a Probability, but a real Truth and Falſity in a great many Propoſitions, but that the Underſtandings of Men had not Strength and Fineneſs enough to point out the Difference. This laſt Academy continued but a little time. Some other Authors pretend there was a Fourth and Fifth Sect of the Academicks; but theſe, if the Obſervation was true, were but little remarkable. Afterwards, the Admirers of Plato choſe rather to be call'd Platoniſts than Academicks. Thoſe who would know more of this Matter, may Conſult Voſſius, De Sect. Phil. Cap. 12, 13, &c. Georg. Hornius, Lib. 3. Cap. 20. Hiſt. Philoſ. In the Seventeenth Century ſeveral of theſe Academies were ſet up in Europe, for the promoting of Knowledge and the Belles Lettres. The Royal Society in England is one of the moſt Celebrated; The Hiſtory of this Academy is written by Biſhop Sprat. There are few great Towns in Italy without Academies. They have different Names, and ſome of 'em pretty odd ones: At Siena they are called Intronati, at Florence, Della Cruſca; at Rome, Humoriſti, Lincei, Fantaſtici; at Bolognia, Otioſi; at Genoa, Abdormentati. There are many more of 'em in Italy with Particular Names, but this may be ſufficient. Cicero's Country Houſe, between Puteoli and the Lake Avernus, where he writ his Academick Queſtions, was likewiſe ſo call'd. Plutarch, Diog. Laertius, Plin. Pauſanias.

ACADEMY, (Fr.) The French Academy was ſettled and Confirm'd by the Edict of Lewis XIII. in 1635. It's Original was owing to ſome Learned Perſons, who met once a week to Confer together. They Judge of no Works but thoſe of their own Society. Yet they refuſe not to give their Advice or Opinion concerning others. They Treat of no Morals or Politicks, but at the Direction of the Prince; and if they meddle with Theological Books, 'tis only to conſider the Terms and Form. One of their deſigns was to bring their Language to the height of Eloquence, and for that end they begun their Dictionary in 1637; And they were come no further than part of C in 1687. The Chief Officers of this Academy are, a Director, a Chancellor, and a Secretary: The Two firſt choſen by Lot, the laſt by Voices. The Director preſides, and collects the Votes of the Body; The Chancellor keeps the Seals; and the Secretary Regiſters the Deciſions and Determinations of the Aſſembly, ſigns all their Acts, and keeps their Papers; They meddle not with Religion, but diſcuſs all other Subjects freely. They have very much beautified and reform'd the French Language. There are other Academies in Paris; As that of Royal Painters and Statuaries, erected by Mr. Noyers, Secretary of State, and Surveyor of the King's Buildings, in the Reign of Lewis XIII, and afterwards confirm'd by Decree of Council in 1648. Alſo an Academy Royal of Sciences, conſiſting of Phyſicians and Mathematicians, ſettled by Mr. Colbert in 1666, to make a new Diſcovery in Phyſick and Mathematicks. ACHATES, a River of Sicily, now Drillo, which gliding through the Valley of Noto, empties it ſelf into the Sea between Terra Nova and Camarana; it was thought to have produced Precious Stones. Pliny ſpeaks of an Agate found in this River with Apollo and the Nine Muſes naturally Engrav'd upon it, and preſented to Pyrrhus. Pliny, Sil. Ital.

ACHATES, the Name of one of Æneas's Companions, frequently mentioned by Virgil in his Æneids, ſo faithful to him, that it became a Proverb, Fidus Achates.

ACHELNOT, Arch-biſhop of Canterbury, liv'd in the Eleventh Century: He was much in Favour with King Canatus, who was pleas'd with his Diſcourſes, and follow'd his Advice. Achelnot had addreſs enough to ſweeten the Temper of this Prince, and bring him off from his roughneſs and barbarities. He wrote a Volume of Epiſtles, and died in the year 1038. Pitſæus de Illuſt. Angl. Script.

ACHELOUS, Son of Oceanus and Thetis. He fought with Hercules for Deianira, but finding him too ſtrong, he chang'd himſelf into a Serpent, and then into a Bull, one of whoſe Horns Hercules having cut off, he fled to the River Thoas, afterwards call'd Achelous by his Name. Strabo, Ovid.

ACHELOUS, a River riſing out of Mount Pindus in Theſſaly, ſeparating Ætolia from Acharnania, and emptying itſelf into the Ionian Sea; ſo call'd from Achelous, Son of Oceanus and Thetis. The Name of it at preſent is Pachicholine. It has two Mouths repreſenting two Horns, and the Stream roars like a Bull, one of which Horns or Arms Hercules damming up, might give occaſion to the Poets Fiction of Hercules's cutting off his Rival Achelous's Horn, when he chang'd himſelf into a Bull, in his Encounter with him for Deianira. Ovid, Strabo. There is another River of Peloponneſus of this Name.

ACHEM, a City of Sumatra in India, in the furtheſt part of the Iſland, about 5 degr. from the Æquator. This City is by the Sea ſide, and has but one long Street. The King's Palace is in the midſt of the City, fortified with Ditches and Ramparts. In 1616, he put to Sea with 60000 Men in 200 Ships and 60 Galleys, and expell'd the Portugueſe from the Fort in Pacem. He alſo beſieged Malaca often. Linſchot mentions a Piece of Artillery which this King ſent to his Son-in-Law the King of Siam, admirable for Workmanſhip, and ſurpaſſing all that we have in Europe. It was afterward taken by the Portugueſe.

ACHEMENIDES, or Achæmenides, Companion of Ulyſſes, Son of Admaſtus and Ithaca. Being left by Ulyſſes in the Land of the Cyclops, fed upon Graſs, Roots, and Wild Fruits, till ſeeing Æneas's Fleet paſs by, he got on board, and ſail'd with him into Italy. Virgil. Ovid.

ACHEMON, or Achmon, Brother of Baſalas, both Cercopians, and ſo Quarrelſom, that they fell upon every one they met. Their Mother Semnonis the Propheteſs, knowing their Diſpoſition, adviſed them to have a care of a Man that was Melampyx, i. e. Black Breech'd: Accordingly finding Hercules aſleep under a Tree, they fell upon him; but he ſuddenly ſtarting up, catch'd hold of 'em, and bound 'em, hanging 'em upon his Club at his Back, with their Heads downwards like a couple of Hares; when, perceiving his Backſide all Black and Hairy, they remembred one another of their Mothers Caution, which put Hercules into ſuch a fit of Laughter, that he let 'em go. Hence came the Proverb: Ne in Melampygum incidas. Suidas and Nazianzen.

ACHENRY, an Iriſh Town of the County of Slego in the Province of Conaught. It ſtands about 16 miles South of Slego, but is very much decay'd, eſpecially ſince its Epiſcopal See was united to Elphin in Roſcommon.

ACHEQUI, King of Japan. He murder'd Nobienanga the lawful Sovereign, becauſe he would be ador'd like a God. A Lieutenant of the deceaſed King, adhering to his Son, fought Achequi and worſted him, who thereupon flying, was ſlain by the Country People. Mendoza.

ACHERIUS (Luke) of the Order of St. Bennet; A Perſon very conſiderable both for his Probity and his Learning. He publiſh'd the Works of Lanfrank Archbiſhop of Canterbury in the year 1647. Another call'd Aſceticorum Opuſculorum, quæ inter Patrum Opera reperiuntur, Indiculus, &c. He throughly Examin'd a great many Libraries, and ſelected ſeveral Curious Pieces from thence for the Preſs; We have 12 Volumes of 'em in Quarto; The Title of 'em is, Spicilegium.

ACHERON, a River of Epirus, riſing out of the Lake Acheruſia, and, ſwell'd with ſeveral other Rivers, empties it ſelf into the Bay of Ambracia. The Poets feign'd it to be the Son of Ceres whom ſhe hid in Hell, for fear of the Titans that threatned the deſtruction of her Family, and turn'd into a River, over which Souls departed, were ferry'd: Of which Virg.

Flectere ſi nequeo ſuperos, Acheronta movebo.

The Name is thought to come from a Hebrew word ſignifying the Laſt, the Ancients placing Hell in Epirus, becauſe the Mines there conſumed abundance of Slaves, whence they gave this Name to certain Pools and Rivers which they paſſed to theſe Mines, as being never to return again. Gyraldus and Nat. Comes Treat largely of it in their Mythologies. The Water is of a bluiſh colour, and emits unwholeſom Streams. Bibl. Un. T. 6.

ACHERREZ, King of Egypt; in Scripture call'd Pharaoh; the ſame that ſo often refus'd to let the Iſraelites go, and was drown'd in the Red Sea with all his Hoſt. See Pharaoh.

ACHERUSIA, now Lago de la Colluccia, a Lake in Campania, between the Two ruined Cities, Miſerium and Cumæ. Alſo a Lake in Epirus whence Acheron flows. Likewiſe a Cavern in Bithynia near Heraclea, through which Hercules drew Cerberus out of Hell, at the mouth of the Lake of the ſame name, where Charon kept his Ferry. Diodorus Siculus de Sepulcris Ægyptiorum ſays, that the People of Heliopolis uſed to ſend their dead over a Lake called Acheruſia, to be buried on the other ſide, and in their Language the Boat was called Baris, and the Boat-man Charon, whence came the Fable of his carrying Souls over that River to Hell.

ACHEUS, a Greek Poet of Eretria, Son to Pithodorus: He writ ſome Tragedies, and liv'd from the 74th to the 32d Olympiad; Turnebus and Cauſabon are of Opinion, that he had once the good fortune to carry off the Poetick Prize, which they conclude from a Paſſage in Lib. 7. of Athenæus.

ACHEUS, another Greek Tragedian of Syracuſe, mention'd by Suidas. Apollodorus affirms, that Achaia had its Name from one Acheus, Son to Xuthus and Creuſa.

ACHIAB, Grandſon to King Herod the Great, who hinder'd this Prince from killing himſelf with a Knife, by holding his Hand, and crying out. Joſ. Lib. 17. Ant. Jud. c. 9.

ACHILL Iſlands, ſo they call certain Iſlands in the Weſt of Ireland, belonging to the County of Mayo in the Province of Conaught.

ACHILLÆUM, now Capo di Croce, a Promontory of Aſiatick Sarmatia in the Cimmerian Boſphorus, at the mouth of the Palus Mæotis. Alſo a Town of Troas, not far from Achilles's Tomb, built by the Inhabitants of Mitylene.

ACHILLAS, a Captain under the laſt of the Ptolemies, Kings of Egypt, at whoſe inſtigation he murder'd Pompey. Plat. Luc.

ACHILLEA, a Fountain near Miletum, whoſe Waters are brackiſh in the Spring, and ſweet in the Stream, ſo call'd from Achilles who bath'd himſelf in it, after he had defeated Strambelus, Son of Telamon, who carried Succour to the Lesbians. Quintus Curtius.

ACHILLEA, Achilles his Race, a Peninſula not far from the mouth of the Boryſthenes, where Achilles uſed to Exerciſe himſelf and his Men by Running in time of Peace. It was ſince Conſecrated to him, and if any happened to land in it, they return'd as ſoon as they had perform'd their Oblations, no Man being able to ſtay in it a night without hazard of his Life. Pliny and Strabo ſay, that no Fowl is ever ſeen in it.

ACHILLEIUS, a Roman Captain; Being ſent into Egypt, he aſſumed the Title of Emperor, and Rebell'd againſt Diocleſian, who taking him, caus'd him to be devour'd of Lions. An. 296. Pomponius Leta.

ACHILLES, a Grecian Prince, Son of Peleus and Thetis. His Mother dipt him, when an Infant, all over in the River Styx, except the Heel which ſhe held by, to make him Invulnerable: Afterwards put him to the Centaur Chiron, to be taught Phyſick, Muſick, and the Art of War, who fed him with Lions Marrow to make him Couragious. His Mother, being inform'd by the Oracle, that he ſhould be ſlain at the Siege of Troy, hid him in Women's Apparel, among the Daughters of Lycomede, where he deflower'd Deianira: But being diſcover'd by Ulyſſes, who preſented him with Jewels and Arms, he betray'd himſelf by chooſing the latter, and was thereupon forced to go, his Mother having firſt got him Arms from Vulcan that were impenetrable. Diſguſted at Agamemnon for taking Briſeis from him, he withdrew himſelf from before Troy, and could not be found, till hearing of the death of his Friend Patroclus, he return'd and ſlew Hector, dragging his Body at his Chariot three times round the Walls of Troy, and afterwards ſold it to Priamus. At laſt, Paris, Brother to Hector, ſhot him treacherouſly with an Arrow in that part of the Heel, which his Mother held in her Hand, when ſhe dipt him in the River Styx, to make him invulnerable. Achilles, when ſhot, was in Apollo's Temple upon his Knees, expecting Polyxena, Priam's Daughter, in Marriage, whence a Peace was to have been concluded. Homer. Achilles became an Appellative afterwards to Great Captains, as Luſicius, Acinius, Dentatus, and Quintus Cotius: his Funerals were Celebrated by the Theſſalian Youth with Garlands of the Flower call'd Everlaſting. See Homer, Virgil, Ovid, Statius, Achill.

ACHILLINI, (Claudius) of Bolognia, Grandchild to Alexander of that Name, a great Philoſopher, a Learned Divine, an Excellent Lawyer, an Eloquent Oratour, a good Mathematician, and a moſt Ingenious Poet, admired by Pope Urban VIII and the Duke of Parma, for his Delicacy of Wit and Strength of Fancy. He died in 1640, in the 63d year of his Age. Bumald. Loren. Craſſ.

ACHIM, Son of Sadoc, and Father of Eliud. See the Genealogy, Matth. 1.

ACHIOCARUS, or Achiacarus, Son of Anael, Brother to Tobit; he got himſelf Preferr'd in the Court of Aſarhaddon, King of Aſſyria, who ſucceeded Senacherib. He was Firſt Cup-bearer to the King, and paſt through ſeveral Degrees of Promotion, till at laſt he was rais'd to be Firſt Miniſter of State; and in this Poſt of Advantage it was that he procured his Maſter's Leave for his Uncle Tobit's return to Nineveh. Salian. A. M. 3326.

ACHIOR, Captain of the Ammonites. He ſo diſguſted Holophernes with ſpeaking in behalf of the Iſraelites, that he forbid him his Preſence, and order'd him to be ſent to Bethulia, where he deſign'd to deſtroy him with the reſt of the Inhabitants. After Holophernes was dead, and his Army diſcomfited, Achior was Circumciſed. Judith. Salian.

ACHIS, a King of Gath, to whoſe Protection David retir'd when he fled from Saul. Some Expoſitors have thought, that David being apprehenſive of Danger at Gath, wrote the 56th Pſalm: Be merciful unto me, O God, for Man would ſwallow me up, &c. And being delivered from his Fears, compoſed the 34th: I will Bleſs the Lord at all times, &c. Torniel. A. M. 2975.

ACHMET, Eldeſt Son of Bajazet II. Ninth Emperor of the Turks, ſtrangl'd by Selim his younger Brother, who did the ſame by his Father to make way to the Crown, Ann. 1513. Paul. Jov.

ACHMET, Firſt of that Name, Emperor of the Turks. He ſucceeded his Father Mahomet III. at 15 years of Age. The Sophy of Perſia, taking advantage of his Youth, took from him Tauris and Ertzerum. Achmet ſtrangl'd Cigala, Baſſa, whom he ſent to oppoſe him, becauſe of his not having acquitted himſelf well. He alſo recovered Tranſilvania, Valachia, and Moldavia, by means of Boſtcay, who rebelled againſt the Emperor. Being beſet on every ſide, he rais'd Four Armies, to be employed Four ſeveral ways, but every one miſcarried; and while he was meditating greater Deſigns, he died, November 15. 1617. in the 30th year of his Age, and 14th of his Reign. He was a Magnificent Prince, and built one of the moſt Stately Moſques in Conſtantinople, which was contrary to the Mahometan Law, he having never Perſonally won a Battel in the Field. This Moſque was built in the Place call'd formerly the Hippodrome. It's the Statelieſt Temple that ever the Turks built, and called the Temple of the Unbeliever, becauſe Achmet would not liſten to the Mufti, who oppoſed the building of it as againſt their Law. It's the only Moſque which hath Six Towers, and each Tower Three Galleries: They are of White Stone like Marble, of a prodigious height, and very ſlender, whence it's wondred that they have not been overturned by Wind. Grelot. Voyage Conſtantinople.

ACHMET, Baſſa, made Grand-Viſier, by removal of Ruſtan; but was ſoon after put to death, and Ruſtan reſtored, though Solyman had promiſed him he ſhould never be removed. At his death, he was very unconcerned, and would not let the Executioners touch him, but deſired one of his Friends to do the Office for him.

ACHMET Cupergli Pacha, Grand-Vizier, ſucceeded his Father Mahomet in 1663, in the 22d year of his Age, much Reſpected both in the Divan and Army. He took Newhauſel, Fort-Serini, and Little Comorra in Hungary. At the Battel of St. Godard, he ſlew Three Officers that mutined, at the Head of his Army. He renewed Peace with the Emperor in 1664. In 1666, he went to Candy, which he ſubdu'd, though it had reſiſted the Attacks of the Turks formerly for 25 years. He died in 1676 of a Dropſie, by the immoderate drinking of a ſort of Cinnamon Water, having left off Wine, which he uſed to drink to exceſs. The Valour which the French ſhewed in Defence of Candy, occaſioned his Adviſing the Sultan to ſeek their Alliance, which hath continued ſince. He was much envied by other Miniſters, who created a Jealouſie of him in the Grand Signior, but he overcame them all. The laſt Publick Action of this great Miniſter was the making a Peace with Poland. Hiſtoire des Grands Viſiers.

ACHO, King of Norway. He took Two of the Hebrides from the Scots; and afterwards Invading that Kingdom with a Fleet of 500 Ships, took the Caſtle of Aire; but was routed by Alexander III. in 1263, who kill'd and took Priſoners 24000 of his Men, he himſelf eſcaping with Four Ships only into the Orcades: However he deſign'd to Reinvade 'em the next Spring, but was arreſted by death, and that Kingdom delivered from a dangerous Enemy. Boetius.

ADRIAN, the Firſt of that Name, Pope, of a Noble Roman Family, Elected after Stephen III. Febr. 9. 772. In the beginning of his Pontificate Didier King of the Lombards invaded St. Peter's Patrimony, ravaging almoſt to the very Walls of Rome; but Charlemaign, coming to the Pope's Aſſiſtance, took Didier Priſoner in Pavia, upon which all Hoſtilities ceaſed. Charlemaign having ſubdued Lombardy, went to Rome, where in an Aſſembly of the Clergy Adrian gave him Power to Create Popes, and Charlemaign Confirmed to him what Pepin his Father had granted to the See of Rome. Adrian ſent his Legates to the Second Council of Nice, conſiſting of 350 Biſhops, which was called by Conſtantine the Young, Emperor of Conſtantinople, againſt the Oppoſers of Image Worſhip, who were there Condemned, wherein Adrian was willing to join. This Adrian was ſo beloved by Charlemaign, that he is ſaid to have wept at his Death, and wrote his Epitaph with his own Hand, conſiſting of 38 Latin Verſes, to be ſeen ſtill in St. Peter's Church at Rome, wherein the Emperor join'd his own Name and Title with the Pope's. Adrian cauſ'd a Branch, in the Form of a Croſs, to be made, and hung before St. Peter's Altar, which held 1370 Tapers. He ſate 23 years, 10 months, and 17 days, and died Decemb. 26. 795. Bellarmine.

ADRIAN the Second, Pope, ſucceeded Nicholas I. being choſen againſt his will, Decemb. 14. 867. Preſently after his Election he Excommunicated Photius, Patriarch of Conſtantinople; and the Emperor Lothaire, becauſe he Divorced his Wife Dietberga for Love of Valdred his Concubine. He ſate 4 years, 10 months, and 17 days, and died Novemb. 1. 872. He ſent 3 Legates who preſided at the Oecumenick Council of Conſtantinople in 869, and 970. Platina ſays, that this Adrian having received 40 Julio's, which is ſomewhat more then 20*s.* from Pope Sergius, he gave them to his Steward to diſtribute among the Beggars at his Door, but the Steward finding the number of the Beggars ſo great, that it would not ſerve a quarter of them, Adrian diſtributed them himſelf, giving every one of them 3 Julio's, that is about 18 d. apiece, and had as many left for himſelf; at which Miracle the Steward being aſtoniſh'd, Adrian ſaid to him, Doſt thou ſee how Bountiful the Lord is to thoſe that are Liberal and Charitable to the Poor. This pretended Miracle contributed much to his being made Pope, and the Clergy and People of Rome were ſo precipitant in his Election, that they did not ſtay for the Emperor's Conſent, which his Imperial Majeſty proteſted againſt as an Invaſion of his Privilege; but the French King commended them for their ſo doing. In this Pope's time alſo the Bulgarians ſubjected themſelves to the See of Rome, but quickly return'd again to the Greek Church.

ADRIAN the Third, Son of Benedict, a Couragious Roman, Elected two days after the death of Martin II. Jan. 20. 884. In the beginning of his Pontificate he caus'd a Law to be ratified by the Senate and People of Rome, That the Pope ſhould not be Elected by the Emperor's Authority, but that the Suffrages of the Clergy and People ſhould be free. He took the opportunity of doing this, while Charles the Emperor was in War with the Normans. He alſo refuſed to re-admit to the Communion of the Church of Rome, Photius the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, Excommunicated by his Predeceſſors, which incenſed the Emperor of the Eaſt againſt him, and occaſion'd his ſending threatning Letters to him. Baronius, Platina.

ADRIAN the Fourth, an Engliſhman, named Nicholas Breakſpear, of mean Parentage, at Abbots-Langley in Hertfordſhire, his Father being a Lay-Brother in the Abby at St. Albans, he himſelf received of their Alms daily at the Gate, and did much of their Drudgery for it; at laſt he ſolicited to be admitted into the Houſe, which being denied, he went to Arles in France, where he was admitted Servitor by the Canons of St. Ruff, and applying himſelf cloſe to his Studies, he came to be Abbot of their Order. He was made a Cardinal by Eugenius III. for Converting the Norwegians to the Chriſtian Faith, and upon his Return Elected Pope, 1154. He had ſome diſpute with Frederick Barbaroſſa, and leaving Rome he went to Orvieto for his ſecurity, where he was choak'd with a Fly which he ſwallow'd in his Drink, or, as others ſay, he died of a Squinzy; He caus'd Arnoldus of Breſcia, condemn'd by his Predeceſſor Eugenius, for a Heretick, to be Expell'd; the Senate to be Depos'd, and the Government of Rome to be left to his Diſpoſal. He alſo Excommunicated William King of Sicily, and Abſolv'd his Subjects from Obedience, as an Uſurper of the Church Lands, and died Sept. 1. 1159. having ſate 4 years and 8 months. Platina adds, that he Excommunicated the City of Rome for wounding one of the Cardinals; That finding himſelf too weak for the Emperor, he made Peace with him, and afterwards Crown'd him in St. Peter's Church, during which Solemnity the Romans fell upon the Germans, whom they look'd upon as the Pope's Friends, which ſo incens'd the Emperor, that he brought his Army into the City, and ſlew and took multitudes of the Romans, whom he releaſed again at the Pope's deſire, and reſtored Tivoli to the ſaid Pope becauſe part of St. Peter's Patrimony. Adrian did alſo make Peace with William King of Sicily, on condition that he ſhould attempt nothing againſt the Church.

ADRIAN the Fifth, a Genoeſe of the Family of Ottoboni of Fieſco, Son of Theodoſius of Fieſco, and Brother of Innonocent IV. Created Cardinal by his Uncle, 1251, and ſent Legate into England, to Compoſe the Differences between the King and his Barons. Afterwards he was Elected Pope July 12. 1276, but died 36 days after his Election, Aug. 18. before he was Crowned. To ſome of his Friends that came to Congratulate his Advancement, he ſaid, He had rather they ſhould ſee him a Cardinal in Health, than a Pope a-dying. Platina ſays, that he invited Rodulphus the Emperor into Italy againſt Charles, but it did not take.

ADRIAN the Sixth, born at Utrecht in Holland, made Doctor at the Expences of Margaret, Siſter to Edw. IV. King of England, then Widow of Charles the Bald, Duke of Burgundy. He was Tutor and Chancellor to Charles V. who made him Viceroy of Spain, and Chancellor of the Univerſity of Louvain; afterwards made Cardinal, July 1. 1517. by Pope Leo, whom he ſucceeded in the Popedom Jan. 9. 1522. He made a League with Charles V. the Venetians, Ferdinand Arch-Duke of Auſtria, and ſome other Princes of Italy, againſt Francis I. King of France; but his Reign being ſhort, and Treaſury low, the Turks having alſo taken Rhodes, the Bulwark of Chriſtendom, he died Sept. 14. 1523, not effecting any thing. Cardinal Palavicino ſaid of him, that he was a moſt Excellent Clergyman, but a Mean Pope. 'Twas alſo ſaid of him, that Trajectum plantavit, Lovanium rigavit, Cæſar Incrementum dedit; under which was ſarcaſtically added, Hic Deus nihil fecit. The Continuation of Platina adds, that he was choſen by the Intereſt of Charles V. though he had never ſeen Italy, nor had any Experience of their Affairs, for which the Cardinals being blam'd, they excuſed themſelves, as having choſen him by the Impulſe of the Holy Ghoſt. He came to the Chair in a time when Rome was infected with the Plague, the Treaſury exhauſted by his Predeceſſors, the Jewels of the Triple Crown in Pawn, Hungary invaded, and Rhodes beſieged by the Turks. The firſt thing he did was the Recovering of Rimini; and Compoſing the Differences betwixt the Chair and the Duke of Ferrara, by the Aſſiſtance of ſome Spaniſh Forces. He attempted the driving the French out of Italy, but was diſappointed by the Treachery of Cardinal Soderino, who diſcovered his Secrets, and adviſed the French King to invade Sicily, whereupon the Pope Committed him, and from hence ſuſpecting all the Cardinals, he afterwards truſted none but Dutchmen with his Secrets. He deprived the Cardinals of the Benefices they had conferred on one another during the Vacancy; He was of a ſevere Life, raiſed none of his own Friends, but ſent them from him empty as they came, except Money to bear their Charges home. And while he endeavoured to Reform Manners, and perfect the League among the Confederates, to expel the French out of Italy, he died.

ADRIAN, (John Baptiſt) a Florentine of good Sence and Learning, who liv'd at the end of the 16th Century. He wrote divers Treatiſes, among others a Continuation of the Hiſtory of Guicciardin. The Reader may conſult Thuanus's Character of him, Lib. 68.

ADRIANISTS, Diſciples of Simon Magus. Baron. An. Ch. 34. The Followers of Adrian Hamſted, the Anabaptiſt, were alſo ſo called. Spond.

ADRIANOPLE, now Andernopoli, by the Turks call'd Ændrem, a Mart Town of Thrace, and Metropolis of the Country, upon the River Mariza; once the Emperor's Seat, and the Reſidence of the late Depoſed Grand Signior, 146 miles W. of Conſtantinople, 74 E. of Philippopoli, 165 of Sofia, 390 of Belgrade, 550 of Buda, and 80 North of the Ægean Sea. It's the chief Town in Thracia next to Conſtantinople, and was enlarged every day becauſe of the Reſidence of the Court. There were Seven Towns in other Countries that all contended for the Name of Adrianople out of Complaiſance to the Emperor Adrian that rebuilt them, as he did this An. 122. but their old Names obtain'd ſtill. It was formerly an Archbiſhoprick under the Patriarch of Conſtantinople. It was taken by Bajazet in 1362, and was the Seat of the Turkiſh Empire till the taking of Conſtantinople, An. 1403. See Andrianople.

ADRIANUS, (Cæſar) the Roman Emperor, born An. Ch. 76. Son of Ælins Adrianus, Sirnam'd Afer, becauſe he had been Governor of Africa, but was a Spaniard Originally, and adopted by Trajan, at the ſolicitation of Plotina, Trajan's Wife, and began to Reign thein 117th or 118th year of Chriſt. A Prudent and Learned Perſon, well Skill'd in Military Affairs, yet a Lover of Peace, having on his firſt Advancement agreed one with the Parthians. Coming into Britain, he built a Wall 80 miles long, betwixt Newcaſtle and Carliſle, to hinder the Scots from invading the Britons and the Romans. Going againſt the Revolted Jews, that were Headed by Bencochab, who pretended himſelf to be the Meſſias, he ſlew 500000 of them. He caus'd a City to be built upon the Ruines of Jeruſalem, and call'd it Ælia. He Reigned 21 years, and being upon his Death-Bed, is ſaid to have repeated theſe Verſes, ſpeaking to his Soul:

Animula vagula, blandula,
Hoſpes, comeſque Corporis,
Quæ nunc abibis in loca
Pallidula, rigida, nudula,
Nec, ut ſoles, dabis jocos?

He is alſo ſaid to be the Author of this Ingenious Epigram:

Ut belli ſonuere tubæ violenta peremit
Hyppolite Teuthranta, Lyce Clonon, Oebalon Alce,
Oebalon enſe, Clonon jaculo, Teuthranta ſagitta,
Oebalus ibat equo, curru Clonus, at pede Teuthras,
Figitur Ora Clonus, latus Oebalus, ilia Teuthras,
Epili Teuthras, Dorali Clonus, Oebalus Idæ,
Argolicus Teuthras, Mæſus Clonus, Oebalus Arcas.

He had a prodigious Memory, ſo that he remembred the Names of all Places and Rivers where he paſſed, yea, of all the Soldiers of his Armies. Having overcome the Jews in a ſecond Revolt, he inſulted over them, erected a Temple to Jupiter on Calvary, and a Statue of Adonis in the Manger of Bethlehem. He cauſed alſo the Images of Swine to be Engraven on the Gates of Jeruſalem. The Perſecution againſt the Chriſtians being ſevere in his time, eſpecially in Aſia, Quadrat, Biſhop of Athens, and Ariſtides, Two Chriſtian Philoſophers, are ſaid to have, by means of Serenus, one of his Lieutenants, preſented him Two Books in Defence of the Chriſtians, whereupon he promiſed to ſtay the Perſecution. He underſtood the Mathematicks, Aſtrology, Arithmetick, Geometry, Poetry, Philoſophy, and Phyſick. He exceeded moſt of the Ancients for Engraving, but all theſe fine Qualities were blackened by his Study of Magick. He diverted himſelf ſometimes in Compoſing Verſes. Florus having writ familiarly to him on account of his Continual Journeys, and that on foot too, through all the Provinces of the Empire, thus——

Ego nolo Cæſar eſſe
Ambulare per Britannos,
* Scoticas pati pruinas.

The Emperor anſwered forthwith:

Ego nolo Florus eſſe
Ambulare per tabernas,
Latitare per Popinas,
Culices pati rotundos.

* It's commonly read Scythicas, but Scaliger, and that very reaſonably, ſeeing the Poet is ſpeaking of Britain, ſays it muſt be Scoticas.

He was the firſt of the Roman Emperors who wore a Beard, and that becauſe of the Warts on his Chin, but his Succeſſors wore it for Ornament. He was extreamly Superſtitious, and the firſt who brought the Worſhip of Serapis and Iſis (the Egyptian Deities) to Rome. He was ſo great a Lover of Learning, that he was jealous of his Secretary Phavorinus on that head. He was ſo ſtrong and robuſt, that he had always his Head uncovered, and made all his Journeys on foot; but at length falling into a Bloody Flux, which neither himſelf nor other Phyſicians could ſtay, he betook himſelf to Charms, which proved alſo ineffectual. He was a big Man, well made, of a good Mien, a middling Head, but a little ſharp, and curled Hair. He had no Children, and therefore adopted Ælius Verus; who dying before himſelf, he adopted Antony le Debonnaire, on condition that he ſhould adopt Verus's Children. He died of the Bloody Flux, which was look'd on as a Judgment on him, becauſe of his Perſecution. Hoffman, Dion. Spartian. Spond. Curieuſe Recherchez d' Antiquitez.

ADRUMETUM, now Mahometta, built by the Phænicians, and well fortified, in a fruitful Country between Carthage and the Syrtes. A Council was held here Anno 394. Marmol.

ADULA, now Mount St. Gothard, one of the Rhætian Alpes in Switzerland in the Canton of Uri. Out of its two parts, Criſpaltberg and Vogelberg, ſprings the Rhine: Out of Mont Fruck flows the Rhone and Madia; and from Mont Grimſel Arr takes its riſe. Sanſon.

ADULATON, or Adulis, a Town upon the Red Sea in Africk, now called Ercoco. Plin. l. 6. c. 29.

ADYRMACHIDÆ, a People formerly inhabiting that part of Libya which lies next to Egypt, where the Women wore Copper Rings upon their Thighs, and let their Hair grow extraordinary long. They preſented their Daughters, when Marriagable, to be firſt deflower'd by the King, if he pleaſed; and were ſuch ſtrict Obſervers of Lex Talionis, that if they caught a Louſe or Flea biting of 'em, they would only bite 'em again, and let 'em go. Cælius Rhodiginus.

ÆA, a Virgin, who, the Mythologiſts tell us, was very much in love with Hunting. She was deſirous to avoid the Courtſhip of Phaſis, and to this purpoſe prayed the Gods to aſſiſt her; who thereupon changed her into an Iſland of that Name. The riſe of this Fable comes from the River Phaſis making the Iſland of Æa by the circulation of its Courſe. Val. Flaccus. Argonaut. lib. 5. Vid. EA.

ÆACIDAS, Son of Neoptolemus, and Brother of Olympias, Mother of Alexander, who by his continual Wars had made himſelf ſo burthenſom to his People, that he was forced to fly his Kingdom, and leave his only Son of two Years old to be brought up by Chaucus King of Illyrium. Juſtin.

ÆACIDES, a Name given to all the Princes deſcended from Æacus. Pauſanias ſpeaks often of the Succeſſes and Misfortunes of this Family, and particularly in his Firſt Book de Atticis.

ÆACUS, Son of Jupiter and Ægina: He intreated his Father Jupiter to re-people the Iſland of Ægina, which was almoſt deſtroyed by Peſtilence; whereupon Jupiter turned an innumerable Company of Emets into Men, which were called Myrmidons, from μυρμηξ, and Emet or Piſmire. All Greece labouring under a great Drought, it was anſwered by the Oracle, That Jove could only be atoned by the Prayers of Æacus; which accordingly fell out, for upon his Prayers the Calamity ceaſed. He had three Sons by two Wives; Phocus by Pſammathe, Daughter of Nereus; and Telamon and Peleus, by Endais, Daughter of Chiron. The Poets alſo feign'd him to be one of the Judges of Hell. This Fable had its Foundation from hence: The Æginetæ being almoſt depopulated by Pirates, hid themſelves in Caves and Holes like Piſmires, and never durſt venture out, but as they found the Coaſts clear.

ÆACUS, Brother to Polyclea, both deſcended from Hercules; of whom the Oracle ſaid, That which ſoever of 'em ſet firſt foot on Land, after paſſing the River Achelous, ſhould enjoy the City and Kingdom. Polyclea therefore feigning her ſelf lame, deſired her Brother to carry her over on his Back; which he did, ſuſpecting nothing; but ſhe, coming near the ſhore, skipp'd off his Back, while he was yet in the Water, and cried out, Brother, the Kingdom is mine, by the Deciſion of the Oracle: Which her Brother was ſo far from taking ill, that he commended her Wit, Married her, and ſo they Reigned together.

ÆBORA, or Æbura, now Talavera, a City of Spain upon the Tagus, in New Caſtile, 12 Leagues Weſt of Toledo, in the Road of Lisbon.

ÆCHMACORAS, Son of Hercules by Philone, Daughter of Alcimedon, whom he deflowered; which ſo enraged her Father, that he expoſed her and the Infant as ſoon as born to be devoured of wild Beaſts; but were both happily delivered by Hercules, being directed to the place by a Mag-pye imitating the crying of the Infant. Pauſanias in Arcadicis.

ÆDESSA, Ægas, the Capital City of Emathia in Macedonia, ſeated upon the River Erigonius, eight German Miles from Pella to the Weſt, and fourteen from Theſſalonica. Juſtin. lib. 7. ſaith, Caranus, King of Macedonia, ſurprized this City, by following the Goats that fled from a Shower of Rain, and called it Ægas, in remembrance of that Accident. The Kings of Macedonia were for many Ages buried here, upon a pretended Oracle, That the Line ſhould not fail as long as this was obſerved: And they attributed the extinguiſhing the Race of Alexander the Great to his being buried out of this City. It is now called Vodena. Ptol. Long. 48. 45. Lat. 40. 20. 58 Engliſh Miles from Theſſalonica to the Weſt. The River is now called Viſtritza.

ÆDILES, certain Roman Officers who had the Care of Buildings, providing Corn for the City and the Publick Shows. They had Juriſdiction without any Command, and after ſome time were permitted to ride in a ſort of Chairs, called Ædiles Curules. Their Office was to prevent Diſorders at Plays, and to repair and enlarge the Publick Buildings. This Office was the firſt ſtep to others of greater Honour and Truſt in the Commonwealth. Cic.

AEDON, Wife of King Zethus, the Brother of Amphion, who killed her own Son Itylus in the night-time, miſtaking him for one of Amphion's, ſhe envying Amphion's Wife becauſe ſhe had ſix Boys. Lamenting her Error, the Gods in Compaſſion turned her Son Itylus into a Goldfinch. Bocat. l. 5.

AEDON, Daughter of Pandareus of Epheſus, married to Polytechnas, a Carpenter of Colophon. They had one Son named Itys; and boaſting that they lived more lovingly together than Jupiter and Juno, the Goddeſs offended hereat, ſent Eris, or Contention among them; for he laying that he would finiſh a Running Chair before ſhe had wound off her Spindle, loſt his Wager, (which was, to provide his Wife a Maid-Servant) it ſo enraged him, that going to his Father-in-Law, under pretence to fetch his Wife's Siſter to bear her company, and having raviſhed her by the way, he cut off her Hair, and preſented her to his Wife for her Maid; which deceit ſhe diſcovering, killed her Son Itys, and made her Husband eat him; which as ſoon as he underſtood, he purſued them to their Father's; whoſe Family, to revenge the Affront he had put upon them, bound, ſtript, and anointing him with Honey, expoſed him to the Flies; but his Wife pitying him, drove them away; which her Father and Brothers were ſo enraged at, that they deſigned to kill her: But at laſt Jupiter commiſerating their Misfortunes, changed them all into Birds: Pandareus into a Pelican, Aedon into a Nightingale, and Chelidonia the Siſter into a Swallow. Ovid. Metam.

ÆDUI, an Ancient and Powerful People of Gallia Celtica, that were poſſeſſed of all that part of France we now call Autunois, the greater part of the Dukedom of Burgundy, the Territories of Carolois, Chalon, and Auxois. They had the Privilege of Senators of Rome, ſtiling themſelves the Brothers of the Romans. Baudr.

ÆGÆ, a Town in Macedonia, once the Metropolis of the Kingdom, and Burying-place of their Kings. Alſo an Epiſcopal City of Cilicia, under the Archbiſhop of Anazarbenus, upon the Sea-Coaſt, next to Mallo and Iſſus. It's now ruinous.

ÆGÆON, a notorious Pirate, ſo named from Æx, an Iſland in the Ægean Sea; ſometimes called Briareus, having 50 Men always to Row in his Galley; whence the Poets feign'd him to have 100 Hands, to be the Son of the Earth and Heaven, and to have rebelled againſt Jupiter, whereupon Neptune tied him to a Rock in the Ægean Sea.

ÆGÆUM Mare, the Ægean Sea, or Archipelago, a part of the Mediterranean; ſo called from a vaſt Number of Iſlands ſtrew'd up and down in it, which a far off look like a Flock of Goats, in Greek called Αἶγες· Or from Ægeus the Father of Theſeus, who drowned himſelf therein. The Turks call it Acdeniz, or the Boiſterous Sea; and ſometimes the White Sea, when 'tis oppoſed to Pontus Euxinus, or the Black Sea. It hath Aſia the Leſs on the Eaſt, Thracia on the North, Macedonia, Græcia, and Peloponneſus on the Weſt, and Crete on the South.

ÆGÆUS, King of Athens, had two Wives, Æthra and Medea, the latter whereof had been divorced by Jaſon. He threw himſelf into the Ægean Sea, and was drowned, believing, through miſtake, that his Son Theſeus had been devoured by the Minotaur, Theſeus returning with Black Flags, or Colours, in his Ship, inſtead of White, as his Father ordered him, if eſcaped. Plutarch in Theſ. Ovid. Metam. l. 7.

ÆGEAN Iſles, ſuch as are in the Archipelago, or Ægean Sea, being about 43 in Number; of late Years had 1450000 Inhabitants that paid Poll-Money to the Turks, though few Turks live there. The People are of the Greek Church, and ſubject to the Metropolitan of Scio. Morden.

ÆGIALEUS, Firſt King of the Sicyonians in Peloponneſus, which Kingdom he ſet up in the Year of the World, 1890. He reigned 52 Years, and was ſucceeded by his Son Europs: But Chronologers are not perfectly agreed either about the beginning or end of this Government. See Petavius, Riccioli, &c.

ÆGIDA, a Name anciently given to the Capital of Iſtria: In the time of the Emperor Juſtin it was called Juſtinopolis, and is now Capo de Iſtria. Plin. l. 3. c. 81. Leandr. Albert.

ÆGINA, or Engia, an Iſland in the Saronick Bay, between Epidaurus in Peloponneſus, and the Pyræum, or Port of Attica, ſo call'd from Ægina Daughter of Aſopus. Formerly a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Athens; remarkable for the Birth of Paulus Ægineta, the famous Phyſician. The Inhabitants of this Iſland are ſaid to be the firſt who Coined Money. Hence Æginetum as.

ÆGIPAN, Pan ſo call'd by the Poets, whom they feign'd to have Feet like a Goat, from the Greek αἲξ, αἰγὸς, a Goat. Afterwards all Satyrs were call'd Ægipans; whom they repreſented with the Head of a Goat, and the Tail of a Fiſh; for that Pan, from whom they firſt derived, was worſhip'd by Fiſhermen as well as Shepherds. Hyginus.

ÆGIS, the Shield of Jupiter, ſo call'd, becauſe it was made of the Skin of the Goat Amalthea, by whom he was Nurs'd. He preſented it to Pallas, who Painted a Gorgon's Head upon it; which turn'd the Beholders into Stones. From this Shield he was called Ægiochius.

ÆGISTHUS, Son of Thyeſtes and Pelopeia his own Daughter. Thyeſtes was told by the Oracle, That a Son whom he ſhould have by his own Daughter, ſhould revenge him upon Atreus: To prevent the Inceſt, he ſent his Daughter Pelopeia to be Prieſteſs to Minerva; but happening to meet her afterward in a Grove belonging to that Goddeſs, he Raviſh'd her, not knowing who ſhe was. Pelopeia ſnatch'd his Sword from him, and kept it; being delivered of a Son, ſhe expoſed him in a Wood, where he was found and nouriſhed by Shepherds till he came of Age, and then his Mother gave him the Sword. This young Man being afterward entertained at Atreus's Court, was by him employed to kill Thyeſtes: At whoſe Palace being arrived for that end, Thyeſtes knowing the Sword, and underſtanding how he came by it, acknowledged him for his Son, and acquainted him with the Injuries his Family had endured by Atreus, againſt whom Ægiſthus went, ſlew him and his Son Agamemnon; and was afterward ſlain himſelf by Oreſtes, in revenge of his Father Agamemnon's Death. Hygin.

ÆGLES, an Athenian Wreſtler, born Dumb; but finding the Prize which he had won, like to be fraudulently adjudged to another, through eagerneſs to right himſelf, broke the Ligaments of his Tongue, and ever after had the uſe of it.

ÆGOCEROS, or Capricornus, a ſort of Creature that Pan transform'd himſelf into, when he, with the reſt of the Gods, fled fuom the Gyant Typho, their mortal Enemy; for which Ingenuity, Jupiter tranſlated him to the Zodiack, where he continues by the name of Capricorn, Lucret.

ÆGON, firſt King of the Argives, after the Line of the Heraclidæ was broke. His Election was thus: They ſent to the Oracle to know whom they ſhould chuſe for their King, and were anſwered, An Eagle ſhould ſhew 'em. Within few days afterward, an Eagle came and ſat upon Ægon's Houſe, whereupon he was unanimouſly choſen King.

ÆGOPHAGOS, Juno ſo called by the Lacedæmonians, becauſe they uſually ſacrificed a Goat to her. Jupiter is alſo called 'Αιγόφαγος Ζεύς.

ÆGOSPOTAMOS, a Town of the Thracian Cherſoneſe, upon the Helleſpont, and near a River of the ſame Name, at the Mouth whereof Lyſander the Lacedæmonian overcame Conon, Admiral of the Athenian Fleet, and put an end to the Peloponneſian War, which had continued 27 Years. Plutarch.

ÆGYPIUS, Son of Antheus, and Grandchild of Nomion, living in the fartheſt Parts of Theſſaly, who by Money and fair Promiſes debauched Timandra; to requite which Injury, her Son Neophron ſeduced Bulis, Ægypius's Mother, and having intelligence where he was to meet Timandra, conveyed thither his Mother Bulis in her room, with whom he lay; and being fallen aſleep, his Mother more ſtrictly viewing him, knew him to be her Son, whoſe Eyes ſhe would have put out with his own Sword, if his waking had not prevented her. Ægypius ſeeing his Error, wiſhed the Memory of the Fact might be buried in his Death: Whereupon Jupiter turned Ægypius and Neophron into Vultures, Bulis into a Didapper, and Timandra into a Titmouſe. Antoni Liberalis, Ovid in Metamorph.

ÆGYPTUS, from whom, as ſome aſſert, Egypt derived its Name, Son of Belus, and Brother of Danaus, deſcended from Neptune and Libya: He had 50 Sons, whom he Married to as many of his Brother Danaus's Daughters; and Danaus being told by an Oracle, That he ſhould be expelled his Kingdom by one of his Sons-in-Law, he perſuaded his Daughters to kill all their Husbands the firſt Night, which all of them, except Hypermneſtra, obeyed. Hygin.

ÆGYPTUS, a King of Æthiopia, who, the Inhabitants ſay, was converted to the Chriſtian Faith by St. Matthew. Marmol.

ÆLANA, a City of Arabia Pætrea, upon the innermoſt Receſs of the Arabian Gulf, 60 Miles from Mount Sinai, and 150 from Heropolis: By ſome now called Elton, by others Aila. Long. 65. 00. Lat. 29. 51.

ÆLIA Lalia Criſpis, the Name of a famous Inſcription in the Senator Volta's Country-Houſe, near Boulogne in Italy, which is writ thus:

Ælia Lælia Criſpis,
Nec Vir, nec Mulier, nec Androgyna,
Nec Puella, nec Juvenis, nec Anus,
Nec Meretrix, nec Pudica,
Sed omnia.
Sublata neq; Fame, nec Ferro, neq; Veneno,
Sed omnibus.
Nec Cælo, nec Aquis, nec Terris,
Sed ubiq; jacet.
Lucius Agatho Priſcus,
Nec Maritus, nec Amator, nec Neceſſarius;
Neque mærens, neque gaudens, neque flens;
Hanc neque Molem, nec Pyramidem, nec Sepulcrum,
Sed omnia.
Scit & neſcit quid poſuerit:
Hoc eſt, Sepulcrum intus cadaver non habens,
Hoc eſt, Cadaver, Sepulchrum extra non habens,
Sed Cadaver idem eſt, & Sepulcrum ſibi.

That is, Ælia Lælia Criſpis, neither Man, Woman, nor Hermaphrodite; neither Maid, nor Young-man, nor Old-woman, neither a Whore, nor Chaſte; but all. Died neither by the Sword, Hunger, nor Poiſon; but by all. She lies neither in the Heaven, nor Water, nor Land; but every where. Lucius Agatho Priſcus, neither her Husband, Gallant, nor Friend; neither ſad, glad, nor weeping; This neither Pile, Pyramid, nor Sepulchre; but all. Knows and knows not what he hath built: That is, a Sepulchre without a Carcaſe, a Carcaſe without a Sepulchre; for it is both the Carcaſe and the Sepulchre. The Learned are divided in Opinion about the meaning of this Inſcription; ſome think it to be the Rain-water, ſome think it the Materia Prima, ſome the Soul, or Idea; ſome Mercury, ſome Love; and others, that it is framed by ſome Modern Wit, meerly to puzzle others. This Account was Printed at Padua, and afterwards at Dort: But Spondanus affirms, That the Impreſſion was made only from a Copy, and that 'tis not known what's become of the Original. J. Spon. Voyage of Italy.

ÆLIANUS (Claudius) born at Preneſte in the Reign of Adrian, applauded by Philoſtratus for his Skill and Eloquence in the Greek Tongue, for which he was called Honey-mouth: He was a Hearer of Pauſanias, under the Emperor Adrian, and wrote a Mixt Hiſtory; He alſo wrote of Animals and Military Diſcipline. Suid. Voſſ.

ÆLIUS and Ælia, two Roman Names, from whom the Ælii deſcended, who were the pooreſt Family in Rome, 16 whereof were content with one little Houſe and a ſmall Farm, having not a Penny of Silver among 'em, till Paulus, having Conquered Perſeus, gave his Son-in-Law, Quintus Ælius Tubero, 5 Pounds out of the Booty. Valerius Maximus.

ÆLIUS Pætus, a Roman, whom the Augurs told, If he ſav'd a Mag-pye that perch'd upon his Head as he ſate in Judicature, he ſhould make his Family happy and flouriſhing, but the Commonwealth unfortunate; if he kill'd her, the contrary: Whereupon he immediately bit off her Head in the view of the Senate; and accordingly loſt a Family of 17 Stout Knights at the Battel of Cannæ, the Commonwealth afterward flouriſhing to the height of Proſperity and Empire. Val. Maximus.

ÆLIUS Pertinax, a Ligurian, and a Woodmonger's Son call'd Pertinax by his Father, becauſe he followed his Buſineſs cloſe; well-skill'd in the Greek Tongue. At firſt he heard Sulpitius Apollinaris, and afterwards taught School himſelf. Being made Senator by Marcus Antoninus, he Governed four Provinces. Not long after, he was ſent into Britain by Commodus, to quell ſome Commotions there; which effecting, he return'd, and was made Proconſul of Afriok. After Commodus's Death, he was made Emperor at 60 Years of Age, by the Soldiers, with the Conſent of the Senate, againſt his will, refuſing his Name ſhould be regiſtred in the Roll of the Imperial Poſſeſſions, ſaying, They belonged to the Publick, and were not the Emperor's: He refuſed alſo that his Wife ſhould be called Auguſta, or his Son Cæſar, ſaying, 'Twas ſufficient that one ſhould Rule at one time againſt his Will. Notwithſtanding, he was kill'd in his Palace by Lætus, Captain of the Prætorian Bands, Didius Julianus being privy to the Murder. Capitolinus.

ÆLIUS Saturninus, a Satyric Poet, thrown headlong down the Tarpeian Rock by Tiberius, becauſe he writ againſt him. Nicæus.

ÆLIUS Sejanus, a Roman Conſul, of ſo much Authority with Tiberius, that he call'd him his Aſſociate in the Empire; wherewith he grew ſo proud, that contemning Tiberius, he courted the Prætors, and all the Chief Men of Rome; which

ÆLIUS Sextus Catus, Cenſor with M. Cethegus. He made diſtinct Seats for the Commonalty at their Publick Shews, who before ſate promiſcuouſly with the Nobility. He likewiſe refuſed a Service of Silver Plate from the Ætolian Ambaſſador, who caught him, in his Conſulſhip, dining in Earthen Diſhes, having no Plate of his own, ſave two Silver Pots, which Lucius Paulus gave him out of the Spoils of Perſeus. Ennius beſtows upon him the Character of Egregie cordatus Homo Catus Æliu' Sextus. Livius.

ÆMON, Son of Deucalion, mentioned by Ovid as a Perſon unfortunate in his Love; for, living ſcandalouſly with his own Daughter Rhodope, the Gods in revenge turned 'em both into a Mountain. Others ſay, that he married Antigone, Daughter of Oedepus; who following her Father into Baniſhment, Æmon was torn in pieces by Sphynx: But Propertius ſays, that he lov'd Antigone to that degree, that he ſlew himſelf upon her Grave. Ovid.

ÆMYLIA, an Italian Woman, who after ſhe had a Husband 12 Years, became a Man, and married a Wife. Continuat. Vignetii.

ÆMYLIANUS Libycus, Governour of the Sarmatian Confines in Mæſia under Decius and Gallus: He promiſed his Soldiers the Tribute which the Scythians refuſed to pay, if they came off Victorious; which they did, and had their promiſed Reward. This procured him ſo much Love among the Soldiery, that they choſe him Emperor, of which he gave the Senate notice, promiſing them to recover Meſopotamia and Armenia: But before he could ſet forward, the Soldiers that lay near Italy had proclaimed Valerian; whereupon Æmylianus's Soldiers kill'd him, becauſe of his low Birth, to prevent a Civil War, and joined with Valerian, as being better deſcended. He lived 40 Years, and Reigned 5 Months. Aur. Victor.

ÆMYLIANUS (Tiberius Ceſtius Alexander) made Governour of Egypt by Galienus, about the Year 262: He rebelled againſt his Maſter, and was proclaimed Emperor by his Soldiers; but at laſt, being purſued by Theodorus, one of Galienus's Generals, into Alexandria, was taken, and preſented to the Emperor, who cauſed him to be ſtrangled in Priſon. Trebell. Pollio.

ÆMYLII, or the Æmylian Family, one of the moſt Illuſtrious in Rome, whoſe Original is deduced by Plutarch from Mamercus the Son of Pythagoras the Philoſopher, called Αἱμυλος by the Greeks for the ſweetneſs of his Humour. Of this Family was Paulus Æmylius, Sirnamed Macedonicus, Conſul and General of the Romans, and Son to Lucius Paulus, ſlain at the famous Battel of Cannæ againſt Hannibal. He was twice Conſul, and during his firſt Conſulate Triumphed over the Ligurians, A. U. C. 572. In his ſecond Conſulate, An. 586. he ſubdued Perſeus King of Macedonia, reduced his Country into a Province, diſmantled 70 of his Cities, and returned in a Glorious manner to Rome, where a Triumph of three Days was allowed him. King Perſeus, among the other Priſoners, went before his Triumphal Chariot, and was the greateſt Ornament of the Solemnity, the Generous Conqueror, in the mean time, not being able to refrain from Tears, in conſideration of the Misfortunes of Perſeus. But behold the Inconſtancy of Human Affairs! This Noble Roman, who was exalted to the height of Glory in the Morning, was engulphed into the depth of Sorrow e're the Evening, having loſt Two of his Sons amidſt the Triumph. He obtained a Privilege from the Senate afterwards, to wear his Triumphal Robes during the Circean Games, and was alſo made Cenſor that ſame Year, An. 586. in which he died. Of this ſame Family were the Great Men following:

ÆMYLIUS Mamercus, three times Conſul. He defeated the Æqui in their own Territories. His Son T. Æmylius Mamercus was twice Conſul, and defeated the Sabines. His Son M. Æmylius was firſt High-Prieſt, then Military Tribune. Afterwards, when he was firſt made Dictator, he overcame the Fidenates, the Volſci, and Faliſci, and Triumph'd. When he was Dictator the ſecond time, he reduced the Office of Cenſor from Five Years to One and a half, by which he very much enraged the Cenſors, but obliged the People; ſo that he was choſe a third time Dictator, reduced the Fidenates, and took their City in 16 days time. His Grandchild, Titus Æmylius Mamercus, was Conſul with Q. Publius Philo, who defeated the Latins, and had the Honour of a Triumph; which being denied to Titus Æmylius, who had ſubdued thoſe of Præneſte and Velitræ, he, in revenge, nominated a Plebeian for his Colleague in the Dictatorſhip.

ÆMYLIUS Lepidus, being very young, threw himſelf into the Battel, reſcued a Citizen, and killed his Enemy; in memory whereof, he had a Statue erected for him in the Capitol, by the Decree of the Senate, in his Robe of Nonage, adorned with Gold Claſps. Val. Max.

ÆMYLIUS Cenſorinus, Tyrant of Sicily, who rewarded ſuch well as brought him any Inſtrument newly invented for Torment: Whereupon Aruntius Paterculus having made a Brazen Bull to burn People alive in, preſented him with it, whom Æmylius cauſed to make the firſt Experiment of himſelf, as a juſt Reward for his Art in contriving it. Plutarch.

ÆMYLIUS, a handſom young Man, and great Hunter, born at Sybaris in Italy, whoſe Wife being Jealous, hid her ſelf in the Woods to watch him, where his Dogs lighting upon her, tore her in pieces, which Æmylius perceiving, killed himſelf in deſpair. Cleonymus.

ÆMYLIUS Papinianus, Son of Hoſtilius Papinianus, and Eugenia Gracilis, Overſeer of the Exchequer next after Septimius Severus, by whom, when advanced to the Empire, he was made Præfectus Prætorio. Severus dying, he recommended his Sons, Geta and Caracalla, to his Care: But Caracalla killing Geta, and Papinian refuſing to excuſe the Murder, was ſtabb'd by the Soldiers before the Tyrant's Face, in the 38th or 39th Year of his Age. Abundance of great Lawyers came out of his School, and are called Papinianiſts. He wrote many things in the Civil Law. His Son was alſo put to death by Caracalla.

ÆMYLIUS Scaurus, Noble yet Poor, his Father, though a Patrician, Trading in Coals for a Livelihood: Yet Scaurus by his Eloquence acquired ſo much Fame as to be choſen Ædilis, in which behaving himſelf very juſtly, he was choſen Prætor, and fought againſt Jugurtha. Afterwards being Conſul, he made a Law againſt exceſſive Expences, and the Votes of Slaves made Free. He is highly commended by Cicero, Orat. pro Fonteio, who after a great Elogy of him, ſays, Tamen hujus cujus injurati nutu prope terrarum orbis regebatur, jurati teſtimonio neque in C. Fimbriam, neque in C. Memmium creditum eſt. While he was Ædilis, he built a Theatre, the greateſt Work ever made by the Hand of Man, both for Magnificence and Durableneſs. Plin. See Scaurus.

ÆMYLIUS Victor, concerning whom this Epitaph is extant at Parma, as related by P. Manutius: D. M. L. D. Æmylio Victori qui pridie natalem ſuum viceſimum & ſecundum pruna in penſili (balneo ſcilicet) poſita, urgente fato, ipſe ſanum necavit ſe. L. Æmylius Victor principalis, & Ælia Venerea filio pientiſſimo & ſibi. In Engliſh: D. M. L. D. To Æmylius Victor, who according to the Decree of Fate, on the 22d before his Birth-day, being in Health, did kill himſelf by a live Coal put in a hanging Bath. L. Æmylius Victor principalis, and Ælia Venerea, to their moſt Dutiful Son and themſelves.

ÆNEAS Tacitus, lived in the time of Ariſtotle, in the 111th Olympiad. He wrote concerning the Art of War and Military Diſcipline. He is cited by Polybius and Ælian: And the Abridgers of Geſner aſſure us, that his Works are in Manuſcript in the Vatican. Cineas the Theſſalian, one of the Privy Council to Pyrrhus King of Epire, Epitomized this Author. Voſſius de Mathem. C. 48. De Hiſt. Græc. Lib. 4. C. 11.

ÆNEAS, Biſhop of Paris, lived about the Year 860. He was a Perſon of Quality and great Senſe. At the requeſt of the Pope, and Charles the Bald, King of France, he wrote an excellent Book againſt the Errors of the Greek Church; where confuting all the hard Cenſures of the Patriarch Photius, he endeavours to demonſtrate, by Scripture, Councils, and Reaſoning, That the Latin Church was both Orthodox in her Doctrine, and Defencible in her Cuſtoms and Diſcipline. Lup. Ferrar. Epiſt. 98, 99. Loduard.

ÆNEAS, Son of Anchiſes and Venus, a Trojan, who after long Travels came into Italy, and after the Death of his Father-in-Law Latinus, was made King of the Latins, and Reigned three Years. He overcame Turnus, and took his Betrothed Lavinia to Wife: Then joining with the Aborigines, he was ſlain in a Battel againſt the Tuſcans, and buried on the Bank of Numicus, his Subjects giving him the Title of Jupiter Indiges. Troy being laid in Aſhes, he took his aged Father Anchiſes upon his Back, and reſcued him from his Enemies; but, being too ſollicitous about his Son and Houſhold-Goods, he loſt his Wife Creuſa. He landed firſt in Macedonia, whence he paſſed into Sicily, where he buried his Father at Drepanum. It is believed by many that he never ſaw Africk nor Dido, ſo that the Fourth Book of Virgil muſt be all Figment: And even many Authors are cited by Dionyſius Halicarnaſſæus, to prove that he was never in Italy neither, but that it was only ſome other of the Name. Read Virgil's Æneids. Leſches, the Author of the Little Iliad, believed, that Æneas was taken Priſoner with the reſt of the Trojans, and given for a Slave to Pyrrhus Son to Achilles. Tzetzes adds, That when Pyrrhus was ſlain at Delphi, by Oreſtes, in the Temple of Apollo, Æneas recovered his Liberty, retired to Macedonia, to a Town named Recbolus, call'd afterwards Ænus; and from thence paſſed on to Italy. Some Hiſtorians, cited by Dionyſius Halicarnaſſæus relate, that Æneas was abſent when Troy was taken, being ſent by King Priam into Italy with ſome Troops. Dares Phrygius will have it, that Æneas, Antenor, and Polydamas, betrayed Troy to the Grecians upon the account of ſome diſguſt they had to Priam. Other Writers aſſure us, that when the Greeks took the Town, Æneas retir'd into the Caſtle, where the Images of the Gods, and the greateſt part of the Wealth of the Town were lodg'd: But finding himſelf in no condition to hold out, he conveyed away the Women, Children and old Men at a Poſtern, and order'd a Guard of Soldiers to conduct them with the Baggage toward Mount Ida: With the remaining Body of Men, he ſtood the ſhock of the Enemy for ſome time, and afterwards with his Troops, retired at the ſame Sally-port: And thus he join'd thoſe who were firſt ſent off, without being either perceived or purſued; the Greeks being then taken up with the Buſineſs of Plunder. The Inhabitants of the neighbouring Towns, upon the ſight of the Flames, concluding the Capital was taken, drew off likewiſe to Mount Ida, where they were attacked by the Greeks, but not beaten from their Poſt. Thus Æneas brought the Enemy to a Capitulation, and had the Liberty to retire whither he pleas'd with his Effects and Troops, provided he quitted Phrygia. After the Greeks were gone off, 'tis ſaid, that Æneas made himſelf Maſter of Troas, rebuilt the Town of Troy, was King of the Country, and left his Sovereignty to his Children. Other Authors, among which Demetrius of Scepſis is one, write, That Æneas, his Son Aſcanius, and Scamandrius the Son of Hector, Reign'd jointly in the Town of Scepſis aforeſaid, and that their Poſterity held the Government for a long time. If we will believe Cephalon and Hegeſippus, Æneas retired to Thrace and died there. Strabo, and ſome others report, That he fix'd in Macedonia, near Mount Olympus. This Geographer affirms, That other Authors maintain that Æneas went for Arcadia, and reſided at Orchomenum. Some Writers, endeavouring to reconcile theſe Hiſtorians, affirm, That Æneas went into Thrace, Macedonia and Arcadia, and at laſt ſailed further into Italy. Chevreau, Hiſtoire du Monde.

ÆNEAS of Gaza, a Platonick Philoſopher in the Fifth Century under Zeno. He wrote a Treatiſe Entitul'd, Theophraſtus, diſcourſing of the Immortality of the Soul, and the Reſurrection of the Body. Bellarmin.

ÆNEAS Sylvius, Fourth King of the Latins, who Reigned 31 years: Alſo another, choſe Pope in 1458, by the name of Pius II.

ÆNETUS, one who being declared Victor in the Five Principal Olympick Games, died for joy as ſoon as he received his Garlands. Pauſan.

ÆNOTHERUS, a Giant born at Durgia in Suabia, who ſerved under Carolus Magnus on Horſeback, he uſed to wade through Rivers which had not Bridges, and draw his Horſe after him; would Mow down his Enemies like Hay, and hang them on his Spear like Birds, and carry them on his Shoulder. Aventinus, l. 4. Annal. Boiorum.

ÆOLIA, a Country of Aſia on the Ægean Sea, now called Sarcum. The Poets call it the Country of the Winds, becauſe there are diverſity of Winds among the Iſlands, of which there are Seven betwixt Italy and Sicily called Æoliæ, one of them called Lipara hath a Biſhop's See, well fortified; another of them called Strongyle or Stromboli, exhales Smoak, which preſages Wind. Plin. Strabo.

ÆOLIPYLE, a hollow Brazen Bowl with a very ſmall hole, by which, being fill'd with Water, and made hot ſtanding by the Fire, it ſends forth an impetuous Wind; which diſcovers admirably that the Wind is a flux of Air acted by a more violent motion, occaſioned by the influence of heat on the Vapours, which by its impetuous action produces a great quantity of new Air that puſhes the other violently. Vitruvius.

ÆOLUS, a King of thoſe Iſlands, very Hoſpitable, he taught his People to uſe Sails, and by obſerving the Fire or Smoak of Strongyle, could predict how the Winds would blow, whence the Poets call'd him the God of the Winds. He was alſo a skilful Aſtrologer, which contributed to this Fiction. There were Three of this Name.

ÆON, the Name which Valentinian the Hereſiarch gave to the Deity, which he diſtinguiſhes into 30, 15 Male and 15 Female, and of them he ſays, came the Saviour of the World. Tertullian. contra Valent.

ÆPALIUS, a Gracian King, who being expell'd his Kingdom, and reſtored by Hercules, out of Gratitude, he Adopted as Succeſſor, Hylas eldeſt Son to Hercules. Strabo.

ÆPULO, a King of the Iſtrians, or Hiſtrians, who having taken the Camp of the Roman General A. Manlius, was ſo intent on the Booty, Wine and good Cheer, that the Romans rallying again defeated him; and, as ſome ſay, purſuing him to Neſactium, he kill'd himſelf, rather than he would fall into their Hands. But Florus, lib. 2. cap. 10. ſays, he was ſo drunk when taken, that he could ſcarcely be brought to believe that he was a Priſoner, when his drunkenneſs was off. Livius.

ÆPYTUS, a King of Arcadia, who entring Neptune's Temple on Horſeback, tho' forbidden, was of a ſudden ſtruck blind by Sea-Water which ſprung upon him; and afterward killed by the biting of a Serpent as a Hunting. Homer, Pauſanias.

AERIUS, a Presbyter of the Fourth Cent. about 349. who is ſaid to have turned Arian, becauſe Arianiſm obtained then in the Court of Conſtantius; and that he was not made Biſhop of Sebaſta in Armenia. The Hereſies charg'd on him and his Followers called Aërians are, That they held there was no difference betwixt Biſhops and Presbyters; That they oppoſed Lent, Prayers for the dead, and celebrating Eaſter; That they held the Son to differ from the Father, as the Inſtrument from the Artiſt; That the Spirit differs from them, as Time and Place differ from thoſe that uſe them; and, That the words, from whom, by whom, and in whom, differ among themſelves. They are alſo ſaid to condemn Marriage, and urge Abſtinence. Epiph. Aug. Oenuphrius.

ÆROPA, Daughter of Atreus, who being debauched by her Uncle Thyeſtes, had Two Sons by him at a Birth, both which Atreus ſlew, and ſet before his Brother to eat. The Title of one of Seneca's Tragedies. Alſo the Daughter of Cepheus, who being deflower'd by Mars, died in Childbed, though the Infant liv'd and was called Æropus after her Name: As alſo Lacturnus, becauſe he ſuck'd his Mother's Breaſts ſo ſtrongly that tho' ſhe was dead, he forced out the Milk. Pauſan.

ÆROPUS, ſucceeded his Father Philip I. while an Infant, in the Kingdom of Macedon, A. M. 3456. The Illyrians taking the advantage of his Minority, made War upon the Macedonians and defeated them. Whereupon ſetting their young King at the Head of the Army, they were ſo encouraged, that they rallied again, beat the Enemy, and obtain'd a great Victory. Juſtin.

ÆSACUS, Priam's Son by Alyxothoe, Daughter of Drymas; much addicted to Hunting. He fell ſo paſſionately in Love with Heſperia, that he left his Father's Court and followed her in the Woods: But ſhe flying from him, was ſtung to death by a Serpent, which he ſeeing, threw himſelf from a Rock into the Sea. However Thetis taking compaſſion of him, transformed him into a Didapper. Ovid. Metam. l. 12.

ÆSCHINES, an Athenian Tragick Poet and Eloquent Orator in the 106 Olympiad, was Competitor with Demoſthenes for Fame; but Demoſthenes defended himſelf ſo well, that Æſchines was baniſh'd his Country, and retired to Rhodes. Diog. Laertius reckons Seven more of the ſame Name, all Noted Orators or Philoſophers, and one Statuary. Plut.

ÆSCHINES, the name of one of the Three Sects that ſprung out of the Hereſie of the Montaniſts, who, among other things, affirmed Chriſt to be both Father and Son. Epiphan.

ÆSCHYLUS, the 12th Judge of Athens, who Govern'd the City 21 years; in the Second year of whoſe Reign, the Olympick Games were Inſtituted at Elis. The Firſt Olympiad being Ann. Mund. 3174.

ÆSCHYLUS, Brother to Cynegyras, a good Tragedian, and excellent Soldier. He was told by the Oracle he ſhould be kill'd by the fall of a Houſe; whereupon he left Sicily to dwell in the open Field, where an Eagle flying over his Head with a Tortoiſe in her Bill, took his Bald-head for a Stone, and letting the Tortoiſe fall to break the Shell, beat out his Brains. He is highly commended by Horace. Val. Maximus, Voſſius.

ÆSCULANUS, and Argentinus, certain Deities who were ſuppos'd to have power to enrich Men. Alſo Memory, ador'd under the ſame Name by the Romans. Budæus.

ÆSCULAPIUS, Son of Apollo by the Nymph Coronis, Daughter of Phlegyas: He was cut out of his Mothers Belly (whom Apollo had ſtabb'd for her Familiarity with Iſchys) and deliver'd to Chiron to be Inſtructed in Phyſick: Others ſay, that being expos'd on a Mountain, he was ſuckl'd by a Goat. At the requeſt of Diana, he reſtored Hippolytus to Life, who had been torn in pieces by his Horſes; for which Jupiter kill'd him with a Thunderbolt. He freed Rome from the Plague, for which they built him a Temple, and Worſhipped him under the form of a Serpent; moſt Countries offering him a Dunghill-Cock in Sacrifice, only the Cyreneans offered a She-Goat. He had Two Sons, eminent Phyſicians alſo, Machaon and Podalirius; and Three Daughters, Hygiæa, Ægle, and Panacea. The whole Story is ſuppos'd by Pauſanias to be Enigmatical, and that by Æſculapius is meant Air; by Hygiæa, perfect Health; and Apollo, or the Sun purifying the Air. Tully affirms, there were ſeveral Phyſicians of this Name: The Firſt was Son of Apollo; the Second, Brother to Mercury; and the Third, Son to Arſippus and Arſinoe. Homer, Plutarch, Voſſius.

ÆSON, Son of Cretheus, Brother of Pelias, and Father of Jaſon. He was by Medea, at the requeſt of Jaſon, with the help of her Charms and Hot Baths, reſtor'd to his youthful vigour when very old. Alſo a River in Theſſalia which falls into the River Meta, with a City upon it of the ſame name. Ovid.

ÆSOP, Born at Ammorius in Phrygia Major, was of a mean Birth, and contemptible Preſence, being Flat-Nos'd, Hunch-Back'd, Blubber-Lipp'd, having a long, ill-ſhap'd

Head, Crooked Body, Big-belly, Bandy-Legs, and Swarthy-Complexion, whence he took his Name Æſopus, quaſi Æthiopus; He is alſo ſaid to have been very unhappy in his utterance, and ſcarcely to be underſtood, which was the moſt afflicting part of his misfortune. He liv'd when Cræſus Govern'd Lydia, and had been twice bought and ſold before he was purchas'd by Xanthus, from a little before his entrance into whoſe Service, we ſhall date his Adventures.

Being ſent with other Slaves to be ſold at Epheſus, each of them muſt carry a Burthen, and Æſop being weakeſt, had his choice which he would bear, and pitching upon the Pannier of Bread, which was twice as heavy as any of the reſt, they laughed at him as a Fool; but after a Meal or Two he had nothing to carry but the empty Basket, which convinced his Comrades of their miſtake. Arriving at Epheſus, his Maſter quickly ſold all his Slaves, except Æſop, a Muſician, and an Orator, upon which he carried them to Samos, habited according to their Profeſſion, ſetting Æſop betwixt them for a Fool; being in open Market, Xanthus a Philoſopher, with his Scholars, paſſing by, was mightily pleaſed with the other Two, and asking them what they could do? The one anſwered, Any thing; and the other, Every thing; at which Æſop fell a laughing. Xanthus's Pupils enquiring the Cauſe, he told them, If their Maſter ask'd he would acquaint him. The Philoſopher not agreeing for the other Two, was about going his way; but his Scholars prevail'd with him to ask of Æſop alſo what he could do; who readily anſwered, Nothing at all. How ſo ſays Xanthus? Becauſe my Companions, ſays the other, undertake every thing; ſo that there is nothing left for me to do. Which diſcovered the cauſe of Æſop's Laughter, and alſo his Wit. Well, ſays Xanthus, If I ſhould buy you, will you be honeſt? Yes, ſays Æſop, whether you buy me or not. Ay, but ſays Xanthus, Won't you run away? Did you ever hear of a Bird in a Cage, ſays Æſop, that would tell he intended to eſcape? Xanthus being pleaſed with his Wit, replies, But your deformed ſhape will always expoſe you to hooting and gaping. Æſop anſwers, A Philoſopher ſhould value a Man's Mind, not his Body: Which heightned Xanthus's good opinion of him; ſo that he bought him alone, tho' his Maſter offer'd him in to the bargain, if he would buy the other Two. Xanthus preſenting this new Servant to his Wife, ſhe was ſo enraged, that ſhe ſcolded her Husband ſeverely for his Merchandiſe; who putting it upon Æſop to pacify his Miſtreſs with ſome witty expreſſion, Æſop made her ſtark mad, by ſaying, From the Mercy of Fire, Water, and a Wicked Woman, Good Lord deliver us: But ſweetned her again, by adviſing her to rank her ſelf amongſt Virtuous Women. Sometime after, Xanthus being ask'd by a Gardner, Why the Weeds grew faſter in his Garden than the Plants he nouriſhed, Æſop laugh'd at his Maſter's anſwer, who referred it to Providence; and acquainted the Gardner, That his Garden was a Mother to the Weeds, but Stepmother to the Plants. Æſop's Miſtreſs and her Husband being at continual jars, ſhe at laſt left him, which rendred the poor uxorious Philoſopher very penſive; whom Æſop pitying, contriv'd the following trick to bring her back: He goes about Town to cheapen Proviſions of all ſorts for a Marriage Treat, acquainting every body, That his Maſter was to be Married again; which coming to his Wifes Ears, ſhe poſted home to her Husband, and told him, ſhe would forbid the Banes; which Xanthus looking upon as one of Æſop's Maſter-pieces, his Wife and he were reconcil'd, and for joy, charges Æſop to make the beſt Proviſion he could, to entertain his Friends the Philoſophers at a Feaſt; whereupon Æſop provided Tongues for all the Services, dreſſing them only in a different manner. His Maſter being enrag'd, ask'd him in a furious manner, Is this according to my order? Æſop anſwered readily, You bid me make the beſt Proviſion that I could; and if the Tongue be the Key of Knowledge, what could be a more ſuitable Banquet for Philoſophers? With which Xanthus being ſilenced, invites his Friends again next day, and bid him prepare the worſt Entertainment he could think of; and accordingly Æſop provides Tongues again, telling his raging Maſter, exaſperated at this Second Affront, That there is no Wickedneſs in which the Tongue has not a ſhare, and conſequently the worſt entertainment he could think of. And to one of the Company, who ſaid, that this Fellow was enough to make any Man mad, he anſwered, That he was too curious to meddle in other Mens Matters; and it would ſeem he had little buſineſs at home. Xanthus replied, Sirrah, ſeeing you ſay this Gentleman is too curious, go find me out a Man that has no curioſity at all, or I'll lace your Coat for ye. Æſop goes abroad, and finding a lazy Fellow lolling at his eaſe, as having nothing to do, he invites him to Supper with his Maſter, the Clown promiſed he would, without Ceremony, and follows Æſop ſtreight into the Parlour, dirty as he was, throws himſelf down upon a rich Couch without any more ado; and Xanthus coming in to Supper, asks who he was? Æſop anſwers, The Man that you ſent me for that has no curioſity in him at all. Xanthus thinking himſelf cock-ſure of an occaſion againſt Æſop, now whiſpers his Wife, and tells it her with a great deal of Joy, bidding her obſerve his Directions, and he would ſoundly drub Æſop, and ſo calling to her aloud, bids her bring a Baſon to waſh his Gueſts Feet, and bad him put forth his Feet for that end, little thinking the Fellow would have done it, but the Clown after ſome mumbling, anſwered, Well, if it be the Cuſtom of the Houſe, it is not for me to be againſt it, and ſo ſtretched out his dirty Feet to her. Xanthus being diſappointed in this, after having eaten ſome time, takes a Bumper full of Drink and gives it to the Fellow, not doubting but he would have had the Civility to ſay, After you Sir, but Clodpate ſups up his Liquor without ſaying a word, and gives Xanthus the empty Pot again; being diſappointed a Second time, he makes a Third Eſſay, and ſeeing the Clown feed unmercifully upon one Diſh, falls in a heavy rage, and ſends for the Cook, threatning to have him baſtinado'd in the Parlour before them all for not dreſſing the ſaid Diſh better; thinking, that becauſe the Fellow lik'd it, he would certainly excuſe the Cook, but not a Mum. Xanthus reſolves on a Fourth trial, and perceiving his Gueſt ſwallowing down the Cakes and Pies by ſhoals, ſends for his Paſtry Cook, and threatens to bang him ſoundly for not ſeaſoning them better; The Fellow replies, that he had put in all that his Miſtreſs allowed him; then Xanthus thinking he had at laſt hit his Mark, ſays in great fury to his Wife, That ſeeing it was her fault, ſhe muſt ſtrip immediately to prepare for the Dog-Whip, not queſtioning but the Fellow would have ſo much good nature, as to interpoſe for a Woman of Honour, but inſtead of that, the Brute drivels out a Proverb, What have I to do to quench other Peoples Fires? And deſiring Xanthus to ſtay a little, told him, that he would go home and fetch his own Wife too, that ſo they might take the Laſh by turns. At which, tho' Xanthus was mad to find himſelf diſappointed, yet he could not but laugh at the Clowniſhneſs of his Gueſt, and confeſs that Æſop had brought him a Man who had no Curioſity at all.

Xanthus afterward ſending Æſop on an Errand, he anſwered a Magiſtrate who ask'd him whither he was going, That he knew not; which the Magiſtrate taking as a banter, ordered him to be Committed; upon which Æſop ſaid, Is it not true now that I knew not whither I was going, for can you imagine that I thought of going to Priſon; whereat, the Magiſtrate being pleaſed, releaſed him. Xanthus being drunk, undertook to drink up the Sea by ſuch a time, on certain Conditions, or to loſe his Houſe and Land, and pull'd his Ring off to Seal the Agreement; but miſſing his Ring next morning, he ask'd Æſop if he had ſeen it, who anſwered, That he knew not what was become of his Ring, but he was ſure he had loſt his Houſe and Land, and ſo acquainted him with his Bargain, which he had quite forgot; whereat Xanthus being amazed, deſired Æſop's Advice, which he gave him thus: That he ſhould go to the Shoar, take up a large Glaſs full of Sea Water, and tell his Antagoniſts that he was ready to perform his Bargain, but they muſt ſtop the Rivers from running into it, for he did not undertake to drink them; which he did accordingly, came off with applauſe, while his Enemy was hiſs'd out of the Field. Xanthus on a time ſent Æſop into the Yard to look about him, telling him, that if he ſaw Two Crows, he ſhould have good luck, and if he ſaw but One, he ſhould have bad, whereupon Æſop returns, and tells him he ſaw Two. Xanthus going out, that he might ſhare in the good luck, ſaw but One, and coming in again, ordered Æſop to be whip'd for mocking him; Mean time comes in one to invite Xanthus abroad to Supper, which Æſop immediately laying hold upon, ſays, Maſter, Where's the Credit of your Augury now, when I, who ſaw Two Crows, am to be whipt like a Dog, and you, who ſaw but One, are invited abroad to be Merry, which ſav'd him from the Laſh at that time. After this, as Æſop and his Maſter were walking together, he diſcovered a hidden Treaſure by a Greek Inſcription, for which his Maſter promiſed him his Liberty, and one half of it, if he would teach him how he underſtood the Inſcription; wherein he fail'd, laid Æſop in Chains, and upon his reproaching him with breach of Promiſe, he took them off, but adviſ'd him to bridle his Tongue, if he expected his Liberty, which Æſop told him he ſhould have in a few days, whether he would or not, and accordingly it fell out thus: An Eagle having ſnatched up the Ring on which was the Town Seal, the Citizens looking upon it as an ill Omen, conſulted their wiſe Men, and eſpecially Xanthus about it, who taking time for his anſwer, found he could do nothing in it, and growing penſive acquainted Æſop with the Cauſe, and the danger he was in as to his Life and Reputation. Æſop adviſes him to ſignifie to the Senate, that Augury was not a Philoſophers Province, and conſequently did not fall under his Cognizance, but that he had a Servant who could give them ſatisfaction on that Head; and ſo, ſays Æſop, you will be excus'd, and if I miſcarry, the diſgrace will be mine. Xanthus, not perceiving his drift, did accordingly; and when Æſop appear'd, the Senate flouted at him for his deformity, which he reprehending, wiſely told them, it was not the Comelineſs of Perſonage, but ſtrength of Reaſon which they now needed; whereat they bid him ſay on what he could for the Common good. He anſwered, that he was ready to ſerve them, but judg'd it not for their Honour that they ſhould be adviſ'd by a Slave, and therefore urged, that he might firſt be made free, which judging reaſonable, they ordered Xanthus to be paid his Ranſom, and he ſeeing that he muſt part with him, made a preſent of him to the Senate. So Æſop being now a Freeman, told them, that the Omen ſignified their danger of loſing their Liberty by a King: And accordingly Crœſus, King of Lydia, in a little time demanded Tribute of them, or threatned War. The Samians were for compliance at at firſt, but Æſop's advice diverted them; which Crœſus underſtanding, he offered to ſtop the Courſe of his Arms, if they would ſend him Æſop; who acquainted them that he was willing to go, but put them in mind of the diſaſter which befell the Sheep, when for Peace with the Wolves, they gave the Dogs that guarded them for Hoſtages; upon which the Samians reſolved not to part with him, but go he would, and by his Prudence appeas'd the King's Anger againſt himſelf, and procured Peace to the Samians, telling the King, That he himſelf was like the Graſshopper, which being catch'd by a Boy, prevail'd with him to ſpare its Life, becauſe its Death could do him no good. At his return, the Samians received him with great Joy, and erected him a Statue. After which he went to Crœſus's Court, and for his uſe compoſed the Mythologues which ſtill bear his Name; and having a mind to ſee Babylon, took Greece in his way, where he had Philoſophical Converſe with the Seven Wiſe Men, and a Debate about the Form of Government, Æſop being for Monarchy, and they for a Common-Wealth. Arriving at Babylon, he rendred himſelf extreamly ſerviceable to the King in reſolving of Riddles and Knotty Queſtions, by which the Princes of thoſe days challeng'd one another; and having no Children, he adopted one Ennus, of whoſe Education he took as much care as if he had really been his own; but this Villain counterfeited Æſop's Hand to Treaſonable Letters againſt the King, to whom he carries them with a ſeeming Reluctancy, alledging, That Loyalty had ſurmounted all other Obligations of Duty and Intereſt. The King not ſuſpecting the Fraud, ordered Æſop immediately to be put to death, but thoſe who received the Charge, knowing his Innocence, and the Kings Paſſion, hid Æſop, and gave out that he was dead. A little after Amaſis King of Egypt ſends to the King of Babylon for an Architect to build a Tower in the Air, and one who could reſolve all Queſtions. Labynetus being at a loſs what to anſwer, wiſh'd that he could recover Æſop's Life again, though with the half of his Kingdom, upon which thoſe who had ſaved him, acquainted the King that he was yet alive: And bringing him before the King, he made his Innocence ſo manifeſt, that his Accuſer was immediately ordered to be put to death by the moſt Exquiſite Torments, but Æſop begged his Pardon. And having the King of Egypt's Letter given him to conſider of, he ſent him word, That he ſhould receive the Satisfaction he deſired next Spring, and in the mean time taking home his Son Ennus again, he writ Inſtructions to direct him to a Virtuous Life; as that he ſhould worſhip God with ſincerity of Heart, and without Oſtentation, knowing that he is Omnipreſent and Almighty, and abundance more tending to the moſt refined Morality; but all without effect upon Ennus, who grew worſe and worſe, and being at laſt ſtung in Conſcience for his Ingratitude, died in deſpair. The Spring being come, Æſop went into Egypt, anſwered all Amaſis's Queſtions, and having bred Eagles to carry up little Children in Baskets into the Air, (as ſome Authors have it) told him there were his Architects to build, if he could find Labourers to carry them Stone and Mortar. Amaſis being mightily taken with his Wit, return'd him Loaden with Honours and Rewards to Babylon. Whence his fate drew him to Delphos, where he flattered himſelf with hopes of Converſe with Wiſe Men, but miſſing his expectation, he reprehended the Delphians by this Fable, That he was like thoſe who being on the Shore ſee ſomething come hulling toward them far off at Sea, which they hope will be ſome great matter, but at laſt it proves only a heap of Weeds and Rubbiſh. The Magiſtrates being offended at his freedom, and thinking that he would revile them elſewhere, they contrived his ruine by a Form of Juſtice, for which end conveying a Conſecrated Golden Cup into his Baggage as ready to depart, they purſued and charged him with Sacrilege, and finding the Cup which he knew nothing of, he was condemn'd to be thrown headlong from a Rock, and though he diſplayed his Innocence with the utmoſt of Wit and Eloquence, it availed him not, no more than did his flying to the Altar, and his Fables of the Frog and Mouſe, and Eagle and Beetle, for die he muſt right or wrong, and ſo he concluded his Life with a threatning, that the Gods would revenge his Death, and a Satyrical Application of the Fable, how a Man lamented that he ſhould be deſtroyed by an Aſs, the baſeſt of Beaſts; whereupon the enraged Delphians threw him headlong from the Rock, for which injuſtice and cruelty they were ſpeedily viſited with Famine and Peſtilence, and conſulting the Oracle, to know the cauſe, found it to be their Treatment of Æſop; which obliged them to erect a Pyramid to his Honour, while the Principal of the Conſpirators reveng'd his Death by depriving themſelves of Life. Sir R. L'Eſtrange's Life of Æſop. It is to be Noted, that this Learned and Eloquent Author diſcovers ſeveral blunders of Chronology in the Story of Æſop, which make ſome of the abovementioned Relations inconſiſtent with truth, but it is ſufficient that we acquaint the Reader that Æſop was certainly a great Man, as is acknowledged by all, and his Works are a better Encomium than any that we can give him, though the Learned are not agreed neither which are genuine, and which are ſuppoſititious.

ÆSOPUS, a Famous Hiſtorian, who liv'd in the time of Mithridates. He wrote a Character by way of Panegyrick upon this Prince, and another fine Piece concerning the Rape of Helen, in which he mentions a Stone call'd Aſterites, which kindles with the Beams of the Sun, and is a ſurprizing Ingredient for the Compoſition of Love Potions. Naturaliſts ſay, that this Stone is found in the Head of a certain Whale call'd Pan. Suidas.

ÆSOPUS the Lame, a famous Tragedian, and Cicero's intimate Friend. He got ſuch a vaſt Eſtate by Acting, that he made a Supper, where there was a Diſh of Singing Birds ſerv'd up, which would imitate a voice Humane, which coſt him 10000 Livres. Pliny, who reports this, obſerves likewiſe, that theſe Birds coſt 600 Livres a piece. And his Son was ſo Extravagant, that he diſſolved Pearls in all his Drink. Pliny, Horace, Cic. Ep. ad Fam. Lib. 7. Ep. 1. &c.

ÆSYMNUS, a Megarenſian, who abhorring the Tyranny of their Kings, conſulted Apollo, what would be the beſt Courſe for the Megarenſians to Govern the Commonwealth by, was anſwer'd, They ſhould conſult the MOST; which he underſtood to be the Dead, and erected a Tomb to Deceaſed Hero's, with a Council Chamber round it, that thoſe Hero's might be preſent at their Conſultations. Alſo a Græcian Prince ſlain by Hector. Pauſan.

AETES, Son of Sol and Perſa, Daughter of the Ocean, to whom Phryxus, Son of Athamas, gave the Golden Fleece, of which, together with his Kingdom, he was deprived by Jaſon, through the Treachery of his own Daughter Medea, and in his old Age reſtored again by him. Apollon.

ÆTETTA, a Woman of Laodicea, that had lived a long time with a Husband, and afterward became a Man, changing her Name into Ætetus. Seen by Phlegon Trallianus, as he ſays, in his Treatiſe of Wonders.

ÆTHALIDES, Son of Mercury, Privileg'd to be ſometimes in the State of the Living, ſometimes of the Dead. He alſo begg'd of his Father, that, whether alive or dead, he might remember all things that ever he had done. And this was he whoſe Soul Pythagoras boaſted was tranſmigrated into himſelf. Laertius, lib. 8.

ÆTHIOPIA. Ludolphus in his Hiſtory of Æthiopia ſays, That the Inhabitants call themſelves Hjopiawjan, and the particular Country Ag-azian, or the Land of Freemen. He adds, That their Thunders and Lightnings are dreadful; and their Rain falls down in ſuch Torrents, that it carries away Stones and Trees before it: That their Spring begins on the 25th of September, their Summer on the 25th of December, and their Winter on the 25th of June: That their Days and Nights are almoſt equal in length; and that they have no twilight. That the Country is generally full of Mountains, much higher than the Alps or Pyrenees, but level, ſpacious, well inhabited, and fruitful on the top; yet of ſuch difficult aſcent, that they uſe Cranes and Ladders to get up to them. Their Cattel are very large; their Horſes and Camels Couragious and Stout. The People are generally proper, comely, and well-ſhaped, though Black or Swarthy; their Cavalry is good; they fight with Swords, Darts or Javelins, and uſe Targets. They have few Books but the Scriptures, a Chronicle, and Treatiſe of Philoſophy. Neither have they any good Artificers. To paſs by their Ancient Kings, of whom there's very little recorded. Zara Jacob, who ſent Ambaſſadors to the Council of Florence, was one of the moſt remarkable; being in Battel againſt the Galani, and perceiving his Troops ready to fly, he lighted from his Horſe, and called out aloud, Here will I die, and you may fly if you pleaſe, to avoid the fury of the Galani; but can never fly the ignominy of deſerting your Prince: Which inſpired them with freſh Courage, ſo that they obtain'd a Signal Victory. Their Kings ſit at Table alone; their Meſſes not being very neat nor coſtly, are ſerv'd in black Clay Diſhes, covered with Straw Caps finely woven. They uſe neither Knives, Forks, Spoons, nor Napkins; and thinking it below them to feed themſelves, have Youths on purpoſe to put the Meat into their Mouths. They have no Towns, but live in Tents, which are always ſo numerous and orderly where the King is, that they reſemble a great City; And they have alſo their Officers to prevent Diſorders; and all things are ſo well managed, that they can remove ſpeedily on all occaſions without Confuſion.

The Emperor of Æthiopia ſending two Ambaſſadors to Aureng Zebe, the great Mogul, one of them was a Mahometan Merchant, the other an Armenian, he gave them 32 Slaves of both Sexes to be ſold at Moka, to bear the Charge of the Ambaſſy; and 25 Choice Slaves for a preſent to the Mogul, 10 of which were young and fit to make Eunuchs of. A Slave is uſually ſold for 30 Crowns; to which he added 12 Horſes, which are eſteemed as much as thoſe of Arabia. See Abaſſinia.

ÆTHERIUS, a famous Arthitect in the Reign of Anaſtaſius the Firſt, in the beginning of the Sixth Century. He was one of the Privy-Council to this Emperor; 'Tis probable he built the Wall, which was made in his Time, to hinder the Incurſions of the Bulgarians and Scythians, which reach'd from the Sea, as far as Selymbria. Cedrenus, Hiſt. Comp. Pomponius Lætus.

ÆTHRA, Daughter of Oceanus and Thetys, and Wife of Atlas, by whom he had 12 Daughters, and one Son, who was ſtung to death with a Serpent; for which five of his Siſters did ſo continually weep, that they kill'd themſelves: Whereupon Jupiter turn'd them into a Conſtellation call'd Hyades, which riſing about St. Swithin's Day, commonly brings Rain. Alſo the Mother of Theſeus, Daughter of Pittheus, and Wife of Ægeus. Aulus Gel. Ovid.

AETIANS, Hereticks, the Diſciples of Arius, and Aëtius, call'd the Atheiſt; of which Sect were Eunomus, Eudoxus, Acacius of Cæſarea, George of Alexandria, and many others. They were alſo call'd Eunomians and Anomians, becauſe they held the Son to be every way different from the Father. Alſo Exoucontians, and Troglodytes, from their meeting in private Houſes and Places. Though this Sect was very Numerous, yet it was ſoon extinguiſh'd, having never been countenanc'd by any Emperor.

AETIUS Liv'd in the Fourth Century, and was one of the moſt zealous Defenders of the Arian Hereſie. He was firſt a Vine-Dreſſer, and afterwards a Tinker; Philoſtorgius, his Scholar and Admirer, to credit him a little, ſays, That he work'd with a Goldſmith. But he ſoon left off this Trade, becauſe, as St. Gregory Nyſſen obſerves, he cheated a Woman of a Gold Chain, which ſhe brought him to mend, returning her a Braſs one inſtead of it; This Knavery he was convicted of, and puniſh'd for; afterwards he put himſelf to Sopolus a Quack, and Arius's Doctrine being ſpread about this Time, Aëtius became a Follower of this Hereſie. He was driven from Antioch, and afterwards retir'd to Anazarba in Cilicia, where he was received by Athanaſius, an Arian Biſhop of that Place. Afterward he travell'd to Tarſus, and from thence return'd to Antioch, where he was once again Expell'd for his Hereſie and Ungovernable Tongue, as Photius obſerves. In ſhort, after a great deal of Rambling, he came to Alexandria, where having learn'd Logick of an Ariſtotelian Sophiſt, he was reinforc'd with new ſubtilties to diſpute againſt the Son and the Holy Ghoſt. He was Ordain'd Deacon by Lentius, an Arian Biſhop, and by his recommendation in favour with Gallus. He had ſome ill Gnoſtick Opinions, beſides his proper Hereſie, and was at laſt diſcarded by the Arians, and baniſh'd. Athan. de Synod. Greg. Nyſſ. Theodoret & Epiphanius, &c.

AETIUS, Governour of Gallia Narbonenſis, in the Reign of Valentinian the 3d, the greateſt Captain of his time. He forced the Franks, who were pouring into Gaul under Clodion Sirnamed Long-Locks, to repaſs the Rhine, and overthrew him, returning with a greater force in the year 431. He defeated the Goths that ravag'd all the lower Languedoc and Provence; and overthrew Gundicaire King of the Burgundians, and then made a Peace. After this, Attila King of the Huns, invading Gaul with an Army of 700000 Men, made dreadful havock where-e'er he came. Aëtius therefore made a Peace with the Franks and Viſigoths; having perſuaded both them and the Burgundians to join with him againſt the Common Enemy, falls upon Attila, whom he firſt forc'd to raiſe the Siege of Orleans; and then purſuing him to the Catalaunic Fields, (which ſome ſay are near the Town of Chalons in Champeigne, and others take it for the Field of Soulogne) conſtrained him to a General Battel, wherein a Hundred and fourſcore thouſand Men were ſlain on both ſides, and the Huns quite overthrown. After all theſe great Actions, which purchas'd him the Title of Defender of the Empire, he was recall'd to Rome by Valentinian; where by the Treachery of Maximus, continually incenſing the no leſs envious than jealous Emperor againſt Aëtius, as the only Eclipſer of his Glory, He conceiv'd ſo a great Hatred againſt the only ſtay of his Empire, that he kill'd him with his own hand, and extinguiſh'd all the Glory of the Weſtern Empire. Aëtius had unjuſtly procured the ruine of Count Boniface, who had done the Emperor eminent Service in Africa, by ſuggeſting that he deſigned a Revolt; and therefore Juſtice purſued him, and alſo his ungrateful Maſter, from whoſe Hands he had deſerved better. This was about 454. Caſſiodore, Procopius.

AETIUS, the chief Eunuch in the Palace of the Empreſs Irene, and in ſo great power with her, that only Staucaſius could counterbalance his Authority. Theſe two, forgetting their Miſtreſſes favours, made oppoſite Parties to advance their own Friends to the Empire: So that Irene, weary of their Inſolencies, ſent Ambaſſadors to Charlemain to propoſe a Marriage between him and her ſelf; and a Conjunction of the two Imperial Dominions: And the Match had been aſſuredly concluded, if Aëtius, who had all the power in his hands, had not oppos'd it to ſet up his Brother Leo. At length he became ſo hateful to the Grandees and Patricians, that they reſolved to pull him down; which they did, by proclaiming Nicephorus Emperor. Eginhard vita Car. Mag. Cedrenus, Theophanes.

ÆTNA, now Mongibello, the greateſt Mountain in Sicily, eight Miles high, and ſixty in Compaſs. It lies 15 Miles from Catana, and 50 from Meſſana, continually vomiting up Fire and Smoak, and many times throwing up Calcin'd Flints, and burning Cinders, from a Mouth no leſs than 24 Furlongs wide; and that with ſuch a force, that they fly a conſiderable way before they fall. For this Reaſon the Poets feign'd it to be Vulcan's Forge, where his Journeymen, the Cyclops were continually at work; and where Jupiter alſo threw down the Rebellious Giants into the Abyſs. On the tops of this Mountain Snow and Fire are to be ſeen at the ſame time, while the ſides are covered with delightful Woods and Vineyards. In the year 1669. Three whole Torrents of Fire iſſued from it; and with their flaming Inundations deſtroyed the Countrey for ſeveral Miles together; more eſpecially that part about Catana, where above 15 Caſtles were burnt. Trogus, Lib. 4. ſays, That the Ground of Sicily is full of Caverns and Spungy, and abounds with Mines of Sulphur; which by the force of the Winds through the Caverns does at laſt take Fire: And hence he alledges the Burning of Ætna proceeds. *Virg. Æneid.*3. *Juſtin. Lib.*4.

ÆTOLIA, now Il Deſpotato, a ſmall Country of Achaia, on the North-ſide of the Weſtern Bay of Corinth, bordering upon Epirus, Acarnania, and the Locri; repleniſhed formerly with many famous Cities, and ſeated almoſt in the very middle of Greece; now under the Dominion of the Turks. It was very Ancient, and much famed before the times of the Trojan War: Their moſt celebrated King was Oeneus, whoſe Son Meleager, having ſlain the Calydonian Boar, was much ſpoken of by the Poets. Deiamira, his Daughter, was the Wife of Hercules, the Mother of Hyllus, whoſe Poſterity Reigned many Ages over the Laconians; his ſecond Son was Tydæus. This Nation in after times planted many Colonies on the Coaſt of Italy.

ÆTOLIANS, the Inhabitants of Æolia, who are ſaid to have firſt invented Lances. By reaſon of their continual Wars, and exceſs in Diet, they were drown'd in Debt. When they went to War, they were wont always to go with the Right Foot bare, that it might be more nimble in motion; but the Left Foot ſhod, as being the Center about which the other turns. Macrobius.

AETOS, a Name which the Ancients gave to the River Nile, to expreſs the Rapidneſs of its Stream, coming from a word which in Greek ſignifies an Eagle, as Cælius Rhodiginus has obſerved from Lycophron. There's another River of this name in Scythia, which often overflowing its Banks, drown'd Prometheus's Eſtate; which gave occaſion to the Fable, That Prometheus's Heart was perpetually fed upon by a Vulture or Eagle. *Cælius Rhodigin, lib.*7. *c.*20. and *Lib.*20. *c.*13.

ÆVITERNS, certain Deities ſo call'd, becauſe they remain'd to perpetuity; as Jupiter, who is ſtil'd Æviternus by Ennius; and to theſe Deities Red Oxen were always offer'd in Sacrifice. Plato believ'd theſe Deities Immaterial, and that by conſequence they were Unchangeable and Immortal. Apuleius de Dæmon. Socrat.

AFER, (Domitius) a Native of Niſmes in Languedoc; He was a Famous Orator in the Reign of Caligula and Claudius: The former of theſe Princes would have put him to death, but he avoided the ſtroke by his own Dexterity, and the Intereſt of his Friends: He lived till Nero's time, and then burſt himſelf by being over-gorg'd. Ziphilin. in Calig.

AFRA, a ſtrong Caſtle on the Frontiers of Zara, built by Cherif Mahomet, King of Sus. It is always furniſh'd with a ſtrong Garriſon both of Horſe and Foot, to ſuppreſs the Incurſions of the Arabians out of the Deſart into Numidia, at the Entrance into which it ſtands, in a Soil fruitful in Dates, abounding with Goats, but bearing little either Barly or Wheat. Marmol.

AFRANIA, the Wife of one Licinius Buccio, a Roman Senator, who having laid aſide her Female Modeſty, pleaded her own Law-Suits before the Pretors, filling the Court with Clamour. Hence it came to paſs that all Impudent Women were called Afraniæ. Eraſ. Valer. Maxim.

AFRANIUS Poſitus, a Plebeian, who coming to Caligula, lying ſick, told him he could willingly die, ſo Cæſar might recover. This the Emperor made him ſwear, and when he recover'd, cauſed the Man to be put to death, that he might not be perjur'd. Dion.

AFRANIUS, one of Pompey's Generals. He and Petreius were defeated by Julius Cæſar in Spain; who, when he went to fight them, ſaid, He was going to Attack an Army without a Commander in Chief. Plutarch often mentions Afranius in Pompey's Life, and commends him for having quitted his pretenſions to the Conſulſhip, when he underſtood that Pompey ſtood Candidate. Strabo likewiſe mentions him. This Afranius was Conſul with Cæcilius Metellus Celer. There was another Afranius, Conſul with Aſclepiodorus. There was likewiſe a Third Afranius, ſirnam'd Burrhus, whom Agrippina, Nero's Mother, made Captain of the Guards, in the Place of Lucius Geta and Rufus Criſpinus, becauſe ſhe knew this Officer was very much belov'd by the Soldiers, and likely to remember the Perſon that rais'd him. *Tacit. Annal. lib.*12.

AFRANIUS, a Latin Poet: who, as Horace obſerves, wrote Comedies in imitation of Menander. Tully commends him for his Conduct and his Genius. Quintilian is ſomewhat more particular, who after having given him a Character for a Man of Senſe, blames him for his ſcandalous management of Amours. Togatis excellit Afranius, utinamque non inquinaſſet argumenta fædis amoribus. Voſſius ſays, he liv'd in the Hundred and Seventieth Olympiad. *Cic. in Brut. c.*44. Quintil. lib. 10. *Inſt. c.*11. *Horat. de Ar. Poet. lib.*2. Æp.

AFRICA, in the Hebrew called Phul, Pul, Phut, Put, Iſaiah 66.19. *Nah.*3.9. is one of the four general parts of the known World, and the greateſt Peninſula of the Univerſe. It is bounded on the Eaſt with the Red Sea and Arabia, on the Weſt by the Atlantick, on the North by the Mediterranean, and on the South with the Æthiopick Sea. It is joined to Aſia by an Iſthmus 60 miles long, which the Ptolemies and Sultans endeavoured to cut, but in vain: And Cleopatra thought to have hoiſted her Fleet over it from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea, to be free of the Romans. The cauſe why the Ptolemies deſerted the Enterprize, was the greatneſs of the Toil, the damage which they apprehended from the Red Sea, which is higher than the Mediterranean, and for fear of embittering the Nile, which is the only drink the Egyptians have, and proves healthful, ſweet, and nouriſhing. Betwixt the Channel of the Nile and the Red Sea, the Iſthmus is but nine Leagues, and the Turks have attempted to cut the ſame to bring the European Trade into the Eaſt-Indies that way, in hopes of a great Tribute, but could not effect it. This Country is of Piramidical form, the Baſis whereof may be reckon'd at Tangier, from whence to the Iſthmus its accounted 1920 miles broad, but from the top of the Pyramid to the Northermoſt part of the Baſis are 4155. Morden in his Geography ſays, that from Cape Verd to Cape Guardafy it is 5256 miles long, and from Cape Bon to the Cape of Good Hope it is 5110 miles broad. And Sanſon makes it 5840 miles long, it being much leſs than Aſia, and reckon'd thrice as big as Europe. Joſephus ſays, that it takes its name from Epher, Abraham's Grandchild. It is ſituated moſtly under the Torrid Zone, and Croſſed by the Æquator, the Latitude extends to 34 Degrees Southward to the Cape of Good Hope; and 37 Northward to the Point of Barbary. It is fruitful on the Sea Coaſts, but in the middle full of Sands and Deſarts: in regard of which, and the many hurtful Monſters, it's but ill Peopled. In the Deſarts of Libya Houſes and Fountains are at a hundred Leagues diſtance from one another, ſo that the Travellers muſt carry their Proviſions with them. It's reported, that a Merchant gave 10000 Ducats for a Cup of Water here, and yet immediately died for Thirſt, as did he that ſold it; but the greateſt part of thoſe Regions which lie under the Line, are pleaſant and fruitful, abounding with Woods, Rivers, and Fountains, the Dews of the Night and gentle Gales of Wind compenſating for the Heat of the Day. Thoſe who live under the Æquator have every Year two Winters, or Rainy Seaſons, about the time of both Æquinox's. However, the Mountainous Places make ſome exception to this Rule, becauſe, as ſome Authors affirm, The Air, which moves from Eaſt to Weſt, has its Motion check'd by the Tops of theſe Mountains; And being thus thrown back, condenſes into Clouds, which make a Rainy Seaſon on one ſide of the Hills, while there is Fair Weather on the other. To confirm this Obſervation, 'tis ſaid, that upon the Coaſts of Malabar, on this ſide the Gulf of Bengall, 'tis Winter, that is to ſay, Rainy Weather, from April to September; and that the Summer begins with October, and laſts to the end of March: Whereas on the contrary, upon the Coaſts of Coromandel, which lie in the ſame Latitude, Summer begins in April, and going off at the end of September, returns no more till April following. This diverſity of Seaſons is ſuppos'd to be occaſioned by the Mountains of Gatis, which divide this Country into Eaſt and Weſt. The Portugueze and Hollanders have diſcover'd ſeveral Countreys of this nature in the Kingdom of Congo. The People are ſome Black, ſome Tawny, and few White, and are very ill reported of by the Ancients, as Treacherous, Cruel, Drunkards, Covetous, Impudent, and Blaſphemous above meaſure. It's alſo ſaid, That Africa produces nothing but extraordinaries; their Men being either Monſters for Vice, or Prodigies of Wit and Virtue; of the laſt ſort are reckoned Tertullian, Auguſtin, Cyprian, &c. They are not ſo good Soldiers as in other parts of the World, but thoſe of Barbary are of late pretty well Diſciplined becauſe of their War with Europe. The particular Nations thereof have their peculiar qualities, which will be taken notice of in their proper Places. For their Government, the Sons of Cain, and afterwards of Cham, Joſephus ſays, were their Princes. The Carthaginians and Numidians had great Power, after them the Romans, whoſe Emperors were Chief there till the 5th Age, that the Vandals thruſt them out, and about 534 the Romans obtained it again. In the 7th Age the Arabians and Mahometans over-run it, and poſſeſſed moſt of it. Now the French, Portugueſe, Dutch, and Spaniards have ſeveral Places on the Coaſts. For their Religion, they anciently Worſhipped the Sun, Fire, Planets, Stars, the Elements, Turnips, Onyons, and every living thing they met firſt in the Morning. Now they have five Religions, the Mahometan divided into 62 Sects, the Cafres without God or Law, Heathen Idolaters, who abound in the Deſarts, Jews, Chriſtians, ſome of them Papiſts, others of the Greek Church, and a few Proteſtant Factors. This Countrey was formerly famous for Chriſtianity, and ſince for Hereſies, there have been many famous Councils at Carthage, which ſhall be ſpoken of in their proper place. The Engliſh had once Tangier in their Poſſeſſion on the Coaſt of Barbary, but Charles the Second who had it in Dower with his Queen, abandoned and blew it up in 1682. Africa is divided into Eight parts, viz. Egypt, Barbary, Numidia or Biledulgerid, Zara or the Deſarts of Libya, Nigritia, Abyſſinia, the Regions on the Sea beyond it, and the Iſlands; of all which in their proper places. The ancient Inhabitants ſpoke all one Language called Abimalick, but now they have different Languages, though that called the Beribere, or the African, derived from the Punick or Arabick, is the moſt Univerſal; Their Books are writ in Arabick, though from the time of the Roman to the Arabian Conqueſt, their Characters were Roman. The Ancients through Ignorance, Peopled the remoter Parts of Africa with ſtrange ſorts of Creatures, as Men with Dogs Heads, others without Heads, having their Mouths and Eyes on their Stomachs, and ſeveral other Chymera's of their own fancies; but later Diſcoveries have altogether diſſipated thoſe Errors. Ptolemy, Strabo, Pliny, Sanſon, Baudrand, Tacitus, Livy, Pocock, Sandys, &c. In the Year of Chriſt 637 the Mahometans firſt entred Egypt under Omer. In 650 they went to the Conqueſt of Barbary, which in 699 became wholly ſubject to them. In 710 they fell upon Numidia and Libya; in 973 they paſſed into Nigritia; in 1067 they entred on the Lower Æthiopia; by all which ſteps they have ſpread their Faith over all the North Part of Africa to Guinea.

AFRICA, properly ſo called, or Africa Propria, is part of that which was afterward reckoned amongſt the Parts of the World, and in truth but a ſmall part of that which is now called Barbary. On the Weſt it was bounded with the River Ampſega, which divided it from Mauritania Cæſarienſis, on the North by the Mediterranean Sea, on the Eaſt by the Aræ Philenorum or Cyrenaica, and on the South by Libya Zeuquitana: This was one of the moſt fruitful places in all the then known World, and had Carthage, one of the moſt celebrated Cities for its Capital. A Buſhel of Seed has in this Province yielded at the Harveſt 150 Buſhels, ſo that Titus called it Altricem Orbis terrarum, The Nurſe of the World; and Salvianus, Anima Reip. Romanæ, The Soul of the Roman Empire. The People of it were a Crafty, Perfidious, Wrangling, Drunken, Luſtful, and Impudent ſort of Men, as Salvianus ſaith, *Lib.*7. de Providentia.

AFRICA, a City of Africa in the Kingdom of Tunis; the Aphrodiſium of the Ancients; lying 20 miles from Mahometa, or Adrumetum; ſo that Marmol was deceived, in affirming thoſe two Towns to be the ſame. It was built upon a Point of Land running into the Sea, with a convenient Harbour, and a ſtrong Caſtle; and being won by certain Pirates of Sicily, they gave it the name of Africa. After that, it was taken by one of the Kings of Morocco; but at length, coming into the hands of Charles V. he utterly demoliſhed it, becauſe not able to keep it. Calviſ.

AFRICANUS, (Julius) an Hiſtorian, who lived in the third Age, under the Reign of Macrinus, Heliogabalus, and Severus. He was a Chriſtian, and the Ancients ſpeak of him with great applauſe. He acquired much Honour by a Deputation from the Inhabitants of Emaus to the Emperor Heliogabalus, for the re-eſtabliſhment of their City; to whom he ſo carried himſelf, that he obtain'd whatever he deſired in their behalf. He compoſed a moſt excellent Chronicle from the beginning of the World to the year 221 of Chriſt, of which we have no more than what is extant in Euſebius. He wrote a Letter to Ariſtides concerning the ſeeming contradiction in the two Genealogies of Chriſt recorded by St. Matthew, and St. Luke, which he reconciles by making it out, that one Matthan, who was deſcended from Solomon, Married a Wife whoſe name was Eſtha, by whom he had a Son named Jacob; After the death of Matthan, Eſtha Married Melchi, deſcended from Nathan, by whom ſhe had Eli, ſo that Jacob and Eli were Brothers by the Mothers ſide. Eli dying without Children, Jacob was obliged according to the Law to Marry his Widow, by whom he had Joſeph the Husband of Mary, who by conſequence was the Son of Jacob according to Nature, and of Eli according to the Law. Du Pin Novelle Bibliotheque des auteurs Eccleſiaſtiques. Vid. Julius Africanus.

AGA, is a Title given by the Turks to the Commander in Chief of the Janizaries; the Word ſignifies Maſter or Lord; and if it follow the Genitive, ſi is added to it, as Capou Agaſi, Lord of the Port. The Aga of the Janizaries has the only privilege to appear before the Grand Signior with a free Countenance, and without his Arms a-croſs upon his Breaſt, as all other Officers do. The Title of Aga is alſo given to the Deputy-Governors of Towns. Tavernier, Ricaut.

AGA, or Agag, a Kingdom of Abyſſinia, with a Town of the ſame Name. This Country is near the Lake of Zaire, between the Nile and the Provinces of Ambian and Nova.

AGABO, a King of Æthiopia: Hiſtorians of this Country pretend he reign'd Two hundred Years, and tell a great many pleaſant Stories of him.

AGABUS, a Prophet, that came from Jeruſalem to Antioch, when St. Paul and St. Barnabas were there. He foretold a Famine, which came to paſs in the reign of Claudius Cæſar. Acts 11.

AGADES, a Country in the middle of Africk, near the River called Ghir.

AGADEZ, a Province and City of Africa in Nigritia, walled round, the Houſes are built like thoſe of Barbary, the Inhabitants being moſtly of that Nation, and Merchants who Trade between Barbary, Cano, and Borno. They are Shepherds and Herdſmen, and live in Huts made with Boughs, which they remove from Place to Place on the Backs of Oxen, as they change for convenience of Paſture; This Country pays to the King of Tombuto 150000 Ducats Tribute. Leo Africanus, pag. 290. It lies North of Niger, between Tombuto to the Weſt and Cano to the Eaſt, Guber to the South, and Zuinziga to the North, and abounds in Manna, which the People preſerve in Gourds, and ſell to the Merchants, who pay great Duties to the Prince of this Country. Marmol.

AGAG, a King of the Amalekites, defeated by Saul, and ſlain by Samuel. 2 Sam. 15. *Joſeph. Antiq. Judaic. Lib.*6. *c.*8.

AGALLA, or Anagalla. Suidas calls her by the latter, and Athenæus by the firſt Name; a Learned Maid, of whom ſeveral Authors have given a good Character. She was born at Corcyra; ſhe underſtood Rhetorick very well. 'Tis likewiſe affirm'd, that Agalla read upon Grammar, and wrote a Treatiſe on this Subject. Athenæus, Lib. 1. *c.*8. Cælius Rhodiginus, Lib. 8. *c.*1. Voſſius de Philol.

AGAMEDES, and Trophonius, two famous Artiſts who built a Temple at Delphos, for which extraordinary Piece of Workmanſhip, when they beſought Apollo to beſtow upon them what he deemed the greateſt Benefit that could be confer'd upon Mankind, they were both found dead in their Beds three days after. Cic. Pauſan.

AGAMEMNON, the Son of Atreus by Ærope, according to Homer, but of Pliſthenes according to Heſiod, who, by the conſent of all the Greeks, was choſen Captain-General of the Trojan Expedition, where he gave great Proofs of his Courage and Conduct. After Troy was taken, amongſt other things Caſſandra fell to his lot, who foretold him his death; but he not giving any Credit to her words, returned to his Wife Clytemneſtra, with whom he had entruſted the Adminiſtration of all his Affairs during his abſence, and the Care of his Children, believing all well at home; but in the midſt of his Security, with his Wife's conſent, he was ſlain by Ægiſthus the Son of Thyeſtes, who had vitiated Clytemneſtra before his arrival, and privately got the power of all things into his own hands; which was afterwards fully revenged by Oreſtes, the Son of Agamemnon, with the Death of Ægiſthus and his Mother too. Ovid. Pettau.

AGAMIDIDES, Great Grandſon of Cteſippus, who was the Son of Hercules. *Pauſan. p.*191.

AGAN, or Pagan, one of the Iſlands of Thieves, where the famous Magellan was aſſaſſinated going in ſearch of the Molucca Iſlands through the South Sea. It lies between the Iſlands of Chomocoan and Guagan. Baudrand.

AGANARA, Agonara, or Aganagara, a Town of India on this ſide the Ganges. Caſtaldus and Moleſius mention it after Ptolemy, and tell us it ſtands upon the Sea.

AGANIPPE, a Celebrated Fountain of Bœotia near the Mountain Helicon, flowing into the River Germeſſus not far from Thebes, conſecrated to the Muſes, becauſe its Water inſpired Men with a deſire to make Verſes. Pauſanias.

AGAOS, Agoaſt, or Agaoſi, a People in the Upper Æthiopia, in the Kingdom of Bagamedri, between the Nile and Tacaza.

AGAPÆ, Certain Suppers which the Primitive Chriſtians ſolemnly obſerved in the Temples after the Lord's Supper, for the Confirmation of Mutual Love and Charity; they were made at the Expence of the Rich, who invited the Poor; but being abuſed, even in St. Paul's time, they were forbid. St. Gregory the Great permitted the Engliſh, when newly Converted, to keep theſe Feaſts at the Conſecration of their Churches, or upon Saints and Martyrs days, either in Tents, or under Shady Trees near the Churches, but not within 'em. Tertullian, Clem. Alex. St. Jerome, St. Aug.

AGAPENOR, Admiral of Agamemnon's Fleet; alſo a King of Arcadia, Son of Ancæus, and Grandchild to Lycurgus, who after Troy was taken, being driven by Tempeſt to Cyprus, is ſaid to have built the City of Paphos, and that ſo much Celebrated Temple of Venus. Pauſanias.

AGAPETS, a Name given to Virgins, that lived together in the Primitive Times, ſo called from the Greek word Agape, ſignifying Union, Charity, and Alliance in Spiritual Affection. There were ſome of them that lived in the Houſes of Churchmen, and other Religious People, by the Name of Adoptive Siſters. But St. Chryſoſtom utterly diſliked theſe Aſſociations, which he looked upon but as the Fuel of Temptation; and the Lateran Council under Innocent II. utterly aboliſhed them. They call'd themſelves Nuns, though they were under no Vow; yet kept Houſes to entertain Travellers under pretence of Religion and Hoſpitality. This Cuſtom afterwards grew up into a Sect, being renewed by Agave, a Spaniſh Woman, and one Elpidius whom ſhe had deluded. This Sect, or rather Cuſtom, continued a long time; they lay with Men though unmarried, and yet pretended to be Virgins. The whole Story is to be ſeen in Mr. Dodwell's Third Diſſertation on St. Cyprian.

AGAPETUS the Firſt, created Biſhop by Theodatus K. of the Goths, ſucceeded John II. in the Pontificate, and held it Eleven Months. He was ſent to Conſtantinople to appeaſe Juſtinian, who threatned Theodatus with a War, for cauſing to be put to death Amalaſuntha, the Mother of Athalaric, a Learned Woman, eſpecially in Languages. Juſtinian endeavoured to draw him to the Eutychian Hereſie, and when he could not prevail by fair Perſuaſions, uſed Threats. The Pope anſwered him, I thought I had come to the Emperor Juſtinian, but I find I have met with a Diocleſian, however I fear not your Menaces. Which reſolute Reply ſo wrought upon the Emperor, that he embraced the Orthodox Faith. This Pope ſtirred up the Emperor againſt Berengarius, and died about 536. Baron. An.

AGAPETUS the Second, was advanced to the Popedom next after Martin III. in the Year 946. He called Otho the Emperor into Italy againſt Berengarius II. as being too Tyrannical over the Churchmen; He held the Pontificate Nine Years and ſeven Months, and died in the Year 955. Baronius.

AGAPETUS, a Deacon of the Church of Conſtantinople. He Lived in the Sixth Age, and in the Reign of Juſtinian. A little after the Coronation of this Emperor, he wrote an Excellent Letter to him, in which he has laid down Rules, how a Chriſtian Prince ought to govern. This Letter is printed in the Bibliotheca Patrum, with the following Title, Agapeti Conſtantinopolitanæ Eccleſiæ Diaconi, ad Juſtinianum Imperatorem Oratio Parænetica, qua eum monet, quomodo in Imperio ſe gerere debeat.

AGAR. See Hagar.

AGARENIANS, a People of Arabia, who are ſaid to be deſcended from Agar and Iſhmael. 'Tis thought they gave their Name to the Country and to the Town Agranum, which Strabo calls Agarena. Theſe are the People who are called Agarens, in the Vulgar Tranſlation, and made War upon the Tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Manaſſeh, in the Reign of Saul.

AGARISTA, Daughter of Cliſthenes, ſo beautiful and lovely, that all the young Men of Greece made Publick Plays and Tournaments to pleaſe her, and win her Affection. Herodot.

AGARUS, now Schiret, a River of European Sarmatia, which falls into the Danube in Moldavia; upon its Banks grows that Drug ſo much uſed in Phyſick, called Agaric. Cœlius Rhodiginus.

AGASICLES, a famous King of the Spartans, Son of Archidamas, and Father of Ariſton, deſcended from the Eurypontides; he had Peace during his whole Reign, which gave him leiſure to Study. One day being asked by a Friend of his, why he ſent away the Sophiſter Philophanes, he anſwered, becauſe he ought only to be Scholar to ſuch as he might be Son to, meaning thoſe who were older than himſelf. Another time to one that asked him, how a Prince might ſecure himſelf in his Dominions, he replied, If he uſes his Subjects as a Father does his Children. Pauſan. Plutarch.

AGASSAMENUS, Firſt King of the Iſland Naxus, which lies in the Ægean Sea. He was choſen by the Thracians, who ſettled in this Iſland, called before Strongyle: The Colony was firſt commanded by Butes, Son of Boreas, King of Thrace, who afterwards grew Mad, and threw himſelf into the Sea. Agaſſamenus Married a Princeſs called Paneratis, Daughter of Aloëus, one of the Giants: But ſometime after, the two Aloides, that is to ſay, Otus and Æphialtes, the Sons of Aloëus, and Brothers to Pancratis, had an order from their Father to take her away from him, in the Execution of which, they deprived him of his Crown and Life.

St. AGATHA, born at Palermo in Sicily, of a Noble Family, and very Beautiful, whom the Proconſul Quintianus cauſed to be tormented moſt cruelly to death, becauſe ſhe refuſed to turn Pagan, and Marry him. Some Authors ſay, that on the ſame day Twelve-month of her Martyrdom, Mount Ætna broke firſt out with horrible Noiſe and Flames, whoſe Torrents came as far as Catana, where ſhe was Executed; whereupon the Pagan Inhabitants ran to her Grave, took the Veil wherewith ſhe was Covered, and oppoſing the ſame to the Flames, they came no farther; and this Miracle is ſaid to have been wrought ſeveral times, But Catana was almoſt perfectly deſtroyed by Eruption and Earthquake in the beginning of the Year 1693. Metaphraſtes, Thom. Faſel. Hiſtoire de Sicile.

AGATHA, of the Goths, an Epiſcopal City of Campania, in the furthermoſt Principality under the Archbiſhop of Beneventum, 16 miles from thence towards Capua, as it were in the middle between Capua and Teleſia. Baudr.

AGATHARCHIDES, of Gnidos, a great Hiſtorian, who lived in the time of Ptolemy Philometor, about 180 years before Chriſt. He Studied firſt the Peripatetic Philoſophy, and afterwards wrote ſeveral Pieces of Hiſtory; amongſt the reſt, that of Alexander's Succeſſors, wherein he reproaches the Jews for their Superſtition; aſſerting, that it was the Cauſe of the loſs of their Liberty. A People, ſays he, that call themſelves Jews, and inhabit the great and ſtrong City of Jeruſalem, becauſe they would not take Arms out of a ſilly Superſtition, ſuffered Ptolemy to become their Maſter. And in another Fragment, he ſpeaks more particularly of Stratonica, the Wife of King Demetrius. Vid. Stratonica. There is another of the ſame name, an Hiſtorian alſo, quoted by the Ancients for having wrote one Hiſtory of Perſia, and another of Phrygia. Voſſius.

AGATHARCHUS, a Famous Athenian Painter. He lived about the 75th Olympiad. He was the Firſt of his Profeſſion that aſſiſted in the Decorations of the Theatre, and Ornamented the Scenes, upon the Rules of Perſpective. 'Tis ſaid, this Painter bragging one day, with how much eaſe he Drew; Zeuxes, who was by, gave him but a ſort of a cold Commendation; adding withall, That as for himſelf, he was much longer in finiſhing his Pieces, becauſe he Painted for Eternity. Plut. in vit. Pericl. c.27.

AGATHIAS, the Scholaſtick, or Lawyer, of the Sixth Century, much eſteemed for his Poeſie, but more for his Continuation of Juſtinian's Hiſtory after Procopius, which Monſieur Couſins Tranſlated into French from the Greek. Voſſius.

AGATHO, a Pythagorean Philoſopher, to whom when King Archelaus, knowing him to be 80 years of Age, put the Queſtion, Whether he had any Strength ſtill remaining, made anſwer, That Autumn afforded Flowers and Fruit as well as the Spring.

AGATHO, made Pope Anno 678, he was a Sicilian Monk, ſo mild, ſo courteous, and ſo affable, that he never diſmiſs'd any Perſon from his Preſence diſſatisfied. He condemned the Monothelites, and ſent Legates to the Third General Council of 289 Biſhops, held at Conſtantinople againſt Gregory Biſhop of that City, and Macarius of Antioch, the former being reclaimed, but the latter Excommunicated. Cyril, Athanaſius, Ambroſe, Auguſtin, and Jerome, had great Authority in this Council. Romiſh Authors ſay, that this Pope cured a Leper only by a Kiſs. Platina. He died the 10th of January 682. or the 10th of June 683. according to Baronius, the Chair being Vacant 17 Months.

AGATHO, a Muſician, who ſung ſo ſweetly, that none could reſiſt the Charms of his Voice: Whence the Proverb of Agatho's Songs, to ſignifie a thing more Delightful than Profitable. Eraſmus.

AGATHOCLEA, a Courtezan celebrated for her Beauty, with whom Ptolemy Philopator fell ſo paſſionately in Love, that to Marry her he put to death his Wife Euridice, who was alſo his Siſter, by whom he had Ptolemy Epiphanes. This Agathoclea, and a Brother of hers, with her Mother Oenanthe, governed the Kingdom. They concealed a long time the death of that unfortunate Prince, pillaged the Treaſuries, and would have put to death the young Ptolemy, a Child of Four or five years of Age, but the People of Alexandria delivered him from that danger, upon which Agathoclea fled. Plutarch. Polyb. Juſtin.

AGATHOCLES, Tyrant of Sicily, who aſcended to the Regal Dignity from a poor and mean Condition, his Father being no more than a Potter: His Youth he ſpent as Viciouſly as his Extract was baſe and low. For having a lovely Shape and handſom Countenance, he became a Catamite: Being come to Age, he followed Women; and after that he turned Thief. Weary of that Trade, he liſted himſelf a Soldier; fit for any Miſchief, as being Stout of his Hands, and Eloquent beſide; which raiſed him firſt to a Centurion, then a Tribune; and laſtly, Damaſcon the General dying, he was advanced in his room, and Married his Widow, whom he had Debauched before. But not yet content to become ſo Wealthy of a ſudden, he turned Pirate againſt his Country; and nothing ſaved him, but that his Companions being taken, and put to the Rack, would not confeſs him to be of their number. He twice attempted the Government of Syracuſa, and was twice Baniſhed. He ſeveral times defeated the Carthaginians in Sicily, but was himſelf defeated in one Battel near the River Hymerus: Yet gathering new Forces, and having won Meſſina, and ſome other Cities, he firſt made himſelf Tyrant of Syracuſa, and then of all Sicily, and after that vanquiſhed the Carthaginians again, both in Sicily and Africa; where at length having ill ſucceſs, and being in Arrears to his Soldiers, they mutinied, forced him to fly the Camp, and cut the Throats of his Children which he left behind. Recovering himſelf again, he relieved Corcyra, beſieged by Caſſander, burnt the Macedonian Fleet, and upon his return into Sicily, killed the Wives and Children of thoſe who murdered his; and afterward meeting with the Soldiers themſelves, he put them all to the Sword; and ravaging the Sea-Coaſt of Italy, took the City of Hipponium. Having thus ſtruggled with various Fortune, he was at length poiſoned by his Grandchild Archagathus, in the 72d Year of his Age, and 122d Olympiad, after he had Reigned 28 Years, as Juſtin reports. Plutarch aſſerts, That Agathocles was not the Son of a Potter, but only bred up in a Potter's Houſe. Hiſtorians ſay, That he would be ſerved both in Veſſels of Earth and Gold, to mind himſelf of his Original, and teach his Children, That Vertue muſt advance them to the height of Fortune. Plut. Diodor. Juſtin.

AGATHOCLES, Son of Lyſimachus, was taken in the War which his Father waged with the Getes, and being returned, then ſailed over into Aſia, and ſubdued Antigonus's Kingdom. He alſo built the City of Epheſus by the Sea, into which he removed the Lebadii and the Cilophanians, after he had demoliſhed their own Cities. At length Lyſimachus growing old, took to Wife Arſinoe, the Siſter of Lyſander, who being afraid leſt her Children ſhould come into the Power of Agathocles, upon the Death of Lyſimachus, contrived his Death. Though others ſay, That Arſinoe falling in Love with Agathocles, ſhe plotted his Ruin, becauſe he refuſed to anſwer her Expectations. After this Murder, ſhe fled with her Children to Seleucus, againſt whom Lyſimachus fought; but being defeated, died ſuddenly after. Strabo.

AGATHOCLES, a Babylonian: He wrote a Hiſtory in Greek. Athenæus reports from him, That Cyrus having given Seven Towns to one Pytharchus of Cyzicum, a Favourite of his, this Promotion made him ſo inſolent, that he grew a perfect Tyrant to his Country. This Author is mentioned by Feſtus, Cicero, Athenæus, Polybius, &c.

AGATHOSTINES, a Greek Hiſtorian: He wrote a Deſcription of Aſia, cited by ſome Authors. Voſſius is of Opinion, that this Geographical Hiſtory is cited by Tzetzes. Chil. 7. Hiſt. 144. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat.

AGATHURSI, a People of Scythia, where are now the Provinces of Cargapoli and Vologhida in Muſcovia. Herodotus gives 'em the Character of the moſt Effeminate of Men, and moſt Sumptuous in their Apparel; to which he adds, That they made uſe of their Women in common, that they might be all a-kin, and of one Family: There was neither Hatred nor Envy among 'em, but they lived in continual Peace, without Avarice or Ambition. But how this agrees with that of Juvenal, is a Queſtion not yet decided by the Geographers. Virgil gives 'em the Epithet of Picti; and Solinus ſeems to intimate as if they went naked, and coloured themſelves with Sky-colour: So uncertain are the Reports of Antiquity. Some Authors ſay, That the Picts, who inhabited Britain, came from theſe People; and that from a Colony of them, the City of Poictiers, and Province of Poictou in France, alſo takes Name. Herodotus, Du Cheſne.

AGATHUS-DEMON, an Hiſtorian and Geographer of Alexandria, who lived in the Fifth Age. St. Iſidore of Damieta has wrote one of his Epiſtles to him. Ptolemy reports of him, that he made ſome Geographical Tables. Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc. de Mathem. & Philolog.

AGATHYLLUS, Sirnamed the Arcadian, a Greek Poet, who wrote Hiſtorical Elegies. Dionyſius Halicarnaſſæus approves what Agathyllus wrote concerning Æneas's coming into Italy, Lib. 1. Ant. Rom. Voſſius de Hiſt. & Poet. Græc.

AGATHYRSA, or Agathyrium, called by Livy Agathyrna: Formerly a Town on a Promontory in Sicily near the ancient Tindaris. Diodorus Siculus reports, That this Town was built by Agathyrnus Son of Æolus. Faſel affirms, That the Ruins where Agathyrſa ſtood, are in the place now called Campo di San Martino; and that the Promontory is the ſame with Capo d'Orlando. Strabo. Lib. 6.

AGAVE, the Daughter of Cadmus and Hermione, Wife of Echirion the Theban, by whom ſhe had Pentheus; who being an abſtemious Perſon, and therefore deſpiſing the debauch'd Myſteries and Feaſts of Bacchus, was torn Limb from Limb by his Mother, in the midſt of their Bacchanalian Fury, though he were at the ſame time King of Thebes. This Fable is handled with great Curioſity by Ovid, Metam.

AGAUNE, or Agaunum, St. Maurice's Abbey in Chablais, between Sion and Geneva. Venantius Fortunatus gives the Name of Agaunenſis to the Thebæan Legion, which was Martyr'd in that place, with St. Mauritius who Commanded it. Lib. 8.

Et Legio fælix Agaunenſis adeſt. See MAURITIUS.

AGAURI, a People inhabiting the Mountains of Bagamedrum, and Æthiopian Chriſtians, who not enduring the Innovations of the Jeſuits, Rebelled againſt the King of Abyſſinia, and calling one Melacaxus, of the Royal Family, to their Aſſiſtance, reduced the King to great Straits, till their ancient Religion was confirmed. Ludolphus, Lib. 3. & 11.

AGDE, in Latin Agatha, a City of France, in the Lower Languedoc, ſtrongly ſituated on the River Eraut, which makes it a place of Trade. It has a Cathedral with 12 Canons, 4 of them Dignified. It was formerly ſubject to Viſcounts of its own. In 506. Alaric, though an Arian, permitted the Meeting of a Council here of 31 Biſhops, who made 71 Canons, though there are but 48 of 'em to be ſeen in ſeveral ancient Manuſcripts; ordering, That none ſhould be looked upon as Catholicks, but ſuch as Communicated thrice a year. The Council of Lateran afterward reduced it to once a year. This City is 7 Leagues from Narbon, and 10 from Montpelier. Labbe, Binius.

AGDUS, a Rock in the Confines of Phrygia of a prodigious bigneſs, out of which Deucalion and Pyrrha took the Stones, which, by the Command of Themis, they threw behind their backs; whence the World was Peopled, according to Ovid.

AGELAS, or Agelaus, the third King of Corinth: He ſucceeded Ixion in the Year of the World 3024, Reigned 37 Years, and had Primnis for his Succeſſor. Pauſan. in Corinth. Euſeb. in Chron.

AGELASTUS, the Sirname of Craſſus, Grandfather to him that was killed by the Parthians. This Roman was ſo called, becauſe he was ſo exceſſively Grave and Serious, that he never laugh'd but once in his whole Life, and that was, by ſeeing an Aſs eat Thiſtles: Which gave occaſion to the Proverb related by Eraſmus, That the Palate and the Salad were extreamly well ſuited. Cic. de Fin. Lib. 4. Plin. Lib. 7. C. 19.

AGELIUS, or Agilas, King of Corinth: He lived in the Year of the World 3131. in the time of Achab King of Iſrael. He Reigned 30 Years, and was ſucceeded by Eudemus. Pauſan. in Corinth. Euſeb. in Chron.

AGEN, in Latin Agennum, a City and Biſhoprick of Guienne, Suffragan of Bourdeaux, and the place of Joſeph Scaliger's Nativity. The Conntry round about it is called Le Pais d'Agenois. The City was Founded by the Nitiobriges, an ancient People of Gaul, and is one of the Eldeſt and moſt Conſiderable Cities in France, 15 Leagues North-Weſt of Bourdeaux, large and well-peopled, with a fair Cathedral and a Collegiate Church: Both the City and the Territory round is called Agennois, was many years in the hands of the Engliſh. Du Cheſne.

AGENOR, Son of Belus, and Father of Phœnix; which Phœnix, having Reigned ſome time in Egyptian Thebes, came and ſetled at Sidon, a Sea-Port Town of that Country, which was afterwards called Phœnicia from him. Some People make Cadmus the Son of Agenor; and others ſay he was his Grandſon, who travelling into Greece, in queſt of his Siſter Europa, taught that Nation the uſe of Letters. See Euſebius, and Marmora Arundeliana. Plutarch often mentions this Agenor, affirming that the Tyrians worſhipped him as a God.

AGENORIA, the Name which the Ancients gave to the Goddeſs of Induſtry, as having a peculiar Power to make Men act with Life and Vigour. She had a Temple erected to her in the Aventine Mount. Livy, St. Auſt.

AGERNIUS, Agrippina's Servant, who being ſent to Nero with the Tydings of her Eſcape out of the Ship, which was the moſt unwelcome News he could have brought him; Nero, quick at Miſchief, threw his Sword between the Fellow's Legs, as he was relating his Meſſage, and then cauſed him to be ſeized, as one that was ſent by his Miſtriſs to kill him; to the end, that when he had Murdered her, as he afterward did, he might have a fair Pretence to give out, that ſhe killed her ſelf, finding her Contrivance againſt the Emperor her Son was diſcovered. Hoffman.

AGES of the World: This Name is given to certain Limits of Time, diſtinguiſhed by the moſt memorable Accidents and Revolutions in the World, for the convenience of Chronology. Of theſe, the greateſt Number of Chronologers make Seven:

The Firſt, from the Creation of the World to Noah's Flood.

The Second, from the Flood, to the Birth of Abraham.

The Third, from the Birth of Abraham, to the Departure of Moſes out of Egypt.

The Fourth, from Moſes's Departure out of Egypt, to the Building of the Temple of Solomon.

The Fifth, from the Foundation of the Temple, to the Reign of Cyrus in Babylon.

The Seventh, from the Birth of Chriſt, to this Time.

They ſay moreover, That the Firſt Age laſted 1656 Years. The Second, 382. The Third, 505. The Fourth, 479. The Fifth, 493. The Sixth, 538. The Seventh, 1700. Which in all makes 5753 Years, from the Creation of the World to this Time.

The ſeveral AGES are reckoned thus:

The Firſt, By the Hiſtory of Geneſis, taking the Years which Adam and his Deſcendants lived before they had the Children which compoſe the Liſt of the Patriarchs till Noah, Gen. 5. 6, 7.

	Years.
Adam had Seth at	130
Seth was Father at	105
Enos at	90
Cainant at	70
Mahalaleel at	65
Jared at	162
Enoch at	65
Methuſelah at	187
Lamech at	182
	1056
Noah's Age at the time of the Flood	600
Proves the Firſt Age to be	1656

The Second Age is reckoned by the Computation of the Age of Sem after the Deluge: Arphaxad, Cainan Jun. Salem, Heber, Peleg, Reu, Sarug, Nachor, and Tharah, till the Birth of their Sons named in that Genealogy.

	Years.
Sem had Arphaxad after the Flood	2
Arphaxad was Father at	35
Cainan Jun. at	30
Salem at	30
Heber at	34
Peleg at	30
Reu at	32
Sarug at	30
Nachor at	29
Tharah, Gen. 11. 26. ſays 70. But Gen. 17. 17. 11. 32. 12. 4. Acts 7. 4. compared, it appears to be	130

So that the Difference is to be reconciled by underſtanding Terah to have been a Father at 70. but not to have begot Abraham till 130. though he be mentioned firſt for Dignity's ſake, as Sem in another Caſe.

Which from the Flood to Abraham's Birth is	382

The Third Age is proved thus:

Gen. 21. 5. Abraham begat Iſaac at	100
Gen. 25. 26. Iſaac was Father at	60
Gen. 47. 9. Jacob entred Egypt at	130
The Iſraelites ſtaid there	215
	505

Exod. 12. 40. 41. 'tis called 430, which Morery reckons to be the time from Abraham's being call'd, to Moſes's departure out of Egypt with Iſrael.

Helvicus in his Chronological Tables is of the ſame mind; for which he cites Galat. 3. 17. and Exod. 12. 41.

The Fourth Age is proved from 1 Chron. 1. 6. from the coming out of Egypt, to laying the Foundation of the Temple, 480. And from the Reigns of the Kings and Princes which Governed Iſrael during that time; which make up juſt —— 479

The Fifth Age is proved thus:

Jeruſalem was taken, and the Temple ruined by Nebuchaduezzar, after the Foundation of the ſame	423
By computing the Reigns, it ſeems 425.
The Captivity of the Jews in Babylon	70
	493

The Sixth Age is proved by calculating the Olympiads, and Years of the Foundation of Rome.

Cyrus took Babylon in the 215 of Rome, and the 3d Year of the 60th Olympiad; Chriſt was born in the 753 of Rome, and in the 4th of the 194 Olympiad: So that the difference is —— 538

For the Seventh Age, all Chriſtians agree, that this is the 1700 Year ſince Chriſt's Birth.

There are other Chronologers who alſo make Seven Ages, but with a different Computation of Time, thus:

The Second, to the Vocation of Abraham 1257.

The Third, to the Coming out of Egypt 430.

The Fourth, to the Foundation of the Temple 873.

The Fifth, to the Deſtruction of it 470.

The Sixth, to the Coming of Chriſt 586.

Which makes 5872. before the Birth of Chriſt, whereas other Chronologers ſay it is but 4053. or thereabouts.

The Seventh is 1700.

They compute the Ages thus:

According to the Verſion of the Septuagint, which they alledge to be conformable to the Hebrew Original, they ſay,

	Years.
Adam when he had Seth was Aged	230
Seth was Father at	205
Enos at	190
Cainan at	170
Mahalaleel at	165
Jared at	162
Enoch at	165
Methuſelah at	187
Lamech at	182
Noah's Age at the Deluge	600
	2256

	Years.
Sem had Arphaxad after the Flood at	2
Arphaxad was Father at	135
Cainan at	130
Salem at	130
Heber at	134
Phaleg at	130
Reu at	132
Sarug at	130
Nahor at	129
Tharah at	130
Abraham when he entred Canaan	75
	1257

The Third thus:

	Years.
In his 100 Year he had Iſaac, after his entring Canaan	25
Iſaac was Father at	60
Jacob entred Egypt at	130
Iſrael ſtaid in Egypt	215
	430

The Fourth thus:

	Years.
Iſrael was in the Wilderneſs	40
Joſhua Governed	27
Caleb and the other Elders	50
Then there was an Anarchy of	35
They ſerved the King of Meſopotamia	8
Othniel Governed	40
Then there was an Anarchy of	33
They ſerved the Moabites	18
Ehud Governed	80
Then there was an Anarchy of	37
They ſerved the Canaanites	20
Deborah and Barak Governed	40
Then there was an Anarchy of	18
They ſerved the Midianites	7
Gideon Governed	40
Abimelech	3
Thola	23
Jair	22
Then there was an Anarchy of	30
They ſerved the Philiſtines and Ammonites	18
Jephthah Governed	6
Abiſhan	7
Elon	10
Abdon	8
Then an Anarchy	50
Then they ſerved the Philiſtines	40
	710

Samſon Governed	20
Eli	40
Then an Anarchy or Servitude under the Philiſtines	20
Samuel Governed	20
Saul Reigned	20
David	40
And Solomon before the Foundation of the Temple	3
	163
	710
	873

Note, That the Modern Chronologers include the Anarchies and Servitudes in the Reigns of the Judges.

The Fifth they reckon from Founding the Temple till Nebuchadnezzar deſtroyed it —— 470
But the Proofs ſeem lame.

	Years.
The Captivity of the Jews in Babylon	50
The Perſian Monarchy, Founded by Cyrus who delivered the Jews, continued	205
Betwixt that and the Kingdom of the Seleucides, eſtabliſhed by Seleucus Nicanor in Syria	18
That continued	250
P. Peteau, Labbe. Hiſt. Chronol.	586

The Learned Spanheim, in his Introductio Chronologica, gives the Sum of the Epocha's, thus:

From the Creation to the Deluge	1656
From the Deluge to the Calling of Abraham, or his Entrance into the Land of Canaan, Ætat. 75.	427
From the Calling of Abraham, to the Children of Iſrael's coming out of Egypt	430
From the going up out of Egypt, to the beginning of Samuel's Prieſthood	396
From thence to the Diviſion of the Tribes in the firſt Year of Rehoboam	120
From thence to the beginning of the 70 Years Captivity	368
From thence to the firſt Year of Cyrus	69
From thence to the firſt Year of Judas Macchabeus's Prieſthood, or the Death of Antiochus Epiphanes	375
	4003

Though he reckons 4004. and ſays, that the ſame agrees in general with the Computations of Uſher, Lydiatus, and others. The Curious may conſult his Book, to ſee how he inſtructs the Particulars.

AGESANDER, a Famous Architect of Rhodes, who worked with Polydorus and Alexander: They all three clubb'd in making Laocoon's Statue, the Prieſt of Apollo, which is counted one of the greateſt Curioſities of that kind in all Antiquity. This Figure was found at Rome under the Ruins of Veſpaſian's Palace, about the end of the Sixteenth Century. Theſe celebrated Statuaries are mentioned by Pliny, lib. 36. cap. 5.

AGESILAUS, the Sixth King of the Lacedæmonians, the Son of Archidamus, who after the death of his Brother Agis, was made King of Sparta, notwithſtanding the Pretenſions of Leotichides his Brother's Natural Son He haraſs'd all Phrygia, took ſeveral Cities from the Perſians, and vanquiſhed Tiſſaphernes in a great Battle near the River Pactolus: Which ſo aſtoniſhed the Perſian King, that he cut off Tiſſaphernes's Head, and ſent Preſents to Ageſilaus to buy his Peace; which Ageſilaus refuſed, ſaying, He would not enrich himſelf but with the Booty of his Overthrows. After this, the Athenians and Bæotians having declared War againſt the Lacedæmonians, he was recalled by the Ephori; thereupon returning into Europe, he fell into Bæotia, fought the Thebans, made himſelf Maſter of Corinth, defeated the Acarnanians, ruined Bæotia a ſecond time, and took a City from the Mantineans. He put a ſtop to the growing Renown of Epaminondas, and prevented Sparta from being taken by Aſſault. At length, after he had fought in favour of Nactenebo, againſt Thacon King of Egypt, in his return home he fell ſick by the way, and died at Cyrenaicum, in the 84th Year of his Age, in the 104th Olympiad, 360 Years before Chriſt. Being told that the Oracle had excluded all that were Lame from the Crown, he made anſwer, That the Oracle meant only thoſe that were defective in their Souls, or in their Birth, as Leotichides was, who was no more than Alcibiades's Baſtard. Upon his Death-bed he forbid any Statues to be erected in his Memory, as deſiring no other Monuments than thoſe of his own Actions. Xenoph. Plut.

AGESILAUS, the Son of Neocles, or rather of Themiſtocles, employed as a Spy in the Army of Xerxes, who was marching with 800000 Men to the Conqueſt of Greece, as he ſuppoſed. This Ageſilaus ordered his Buſineſs ſo well, that he remained ſome time in the Army in Perſian Habit; and at length coming up to the King's Tent, he killed Mardonius, one of the Favourites, inſtead of the King. Upon which, being ſeized and brought to the King, who was then Offering at the Altar of the Sun, he thruſt his Right Hand into the Fire, where after he had held it a conſiderable time, Such are all the Athenians, O King, ſaid he; and if you will not believe me, I will thruſt my Left Hand alſo into the ſame Flames. Which undaunted Act ſo ſurprized Xerxes, that he ſet him at liberty. This Story Plutarch relates in his Treatiſe, wherein he compares the Courage of the Greeks with that of the Romans. Plut.

AGESILAUS, Uncle to Agis III. King of Sparta, who being deeply in Debt, perſuaded his Nephew to reſtrain the Luxury and Pride of the City, and to introduce Thrift and good Husbandry. Accordingly his Uncle made a Law, whereby all Debts were aboliſhed, and an equal Diviſion ordained to be made of all Lands amongſt the People. Preſently Ageſilaus cauſed all Creditors Bonds and Securities to be brought into the midſt of the Great Court, and threw 'em into the Fire, with ſo much Joy, that he could not forbear ſaying, he never beheld in all his Life-time a Fire that better pleaſed him. But the Lands not being divided according to the Edict, the People, fruſtrated of their juſt Debts and Expectations, both by Ageſilaus's means, recalled Leonidas; who returning, revenged their Quarrel upon Agis and all his Family, the greateſt part of which he put to death, Ageſilaus himſelf eſcaping, by the Cunning of his Son Hippomedon. Plut.

AGESILAUS, a Name which the Ancients gave to Pluto the God of Hell; 'tis deriv'd from ἄγειν to bring, and λαὸς the People: Becauſe the Heathen believ'd this pretended Deity brought the Souls of the Dead to the Shades below, by giving orders to Mercury to conduct 'em thither. Calimachus. Athen.

AGESIPOLIS the Firſt, King of Sparta, who entred the Territory of Argolis in the Peloponneſus, and laid the Country waſte; He took the City of Mantinea, and after he had ruin'd it, divided it into four Villages. He was General of the Lacedæmonians in the Olynthian War; But in the Career of his Victories, was ſtop'd by a Fever, of which he died within Seven days after he was ſeiz'd by the Diſtemper, in the firſt year of the Hundredth Olympiad, 380 years before the Birth of Chriſt. He was imbalmed in Honey, and carried to Sparta. There was another, and according to Hoffman a Third King of this Name, but no Memorable Action is aſcrib'd to either of them. Xenoph. Pauſan.

AGESISTRATA, a Princeſs of Lacedæmon, Mother of King Agis, Famous for her Virtue, Reſolution, and the Great Fortune ſhe left her Son. They prov'd unfortunate at laſt, and were both Strangl'd in Priſon. Plut. in Vit. Agis.

AGGENUS, Urbicus, a Latin Author, who has writ concerning the Abutteling and Bounding of Fields. Turnebus was the firſt that publiſh'd his Works, together with thoſe of Siculus Flaccus, Julius Frontinus, Hyginus, and ſome others, to which Nicholas Rigaltius has ſince added ſeveral curious Remarks. See theſe Works, and Voſſius de ſcient. Math. c. 27.

AGGERHUSE, Aggerhuſia, a Fortreſs in the South of Norway in the Bay of Anſlo, within a League of the Town of that Name. The Fortreſs gives its Denomination to the whole Province, which brings a conſiderable Revenue in Fiſh to the King of Denmark (to whom it belongs;) The Province is 240 miles long, having Sweden on the E. Bergen on the W. the Sound on the S. and Drontheim on the N. Baudrand.

AGGRAMMES, King of the Gangarades and Pharraſians, was the Son of a Barber, who by his Shaving could hardly find himſelf Bread; but being a Handſom Comely Fellow, the Queen fell in Love with him, and in the height of her blind Paſſion, gave him the Tutelage of her Children. But it was not long before her Favourite rid himſelf of thoſe Obſtacles, that he might advance to the Throne his Son Aggrammes, whom he had by the Queen, a Perſon who ſoon betray'd his Mungrel Deſcent by his ignoble Conditions. Q. Curtius.

AGHER, a ſmall Burrough Town in the North of Ireland; It lies in the Province of Ulſter, and County of Tyrone, 15 miles Weſt of Benburg, and 9 South of Omagh.

AGHRIM, a Place in Connaught, in the way from Athlone to Galloway, famous for the Battel fought there July 11. 1691. Three weeks after our taking Athlone by Storm. The Iriſh Army under the Command of St. Ruth, a French General, was moſt advantageouſly encamped at Aghrim, where they had Two Bogs before 'em, between which the Road goes to Galloway; on their left, the Ruines of an old Caſtle, which was retrench'd and lin'd with Foot; and on their right they had alſo made ſeveral Retrenchments for the greater ſecurity of their Camp: notwithſtanding which great advantage, beſides that of a far more numerous Army, they were attack'd by their Majeſties Forces with that Vigor and Bravery as procur'd 'em, with God's Bleſſing, a moſt entire and glorious Victory; and yet the Iriſh, eſpecially their Foot, were never known to fight with more reſolution, in ſo much that the Diſpute was very warm for two hours, and the Victory dubious, until the Left beat 'em off their Ground, and the Right preſſing upon 'em at the ſame time, made an entire Rout of the Enemy. About 5000 were kill'd upon the place, and amongſt 'em Monſieur St. Ruth, with many of their Prime Officers. All their Baggage, Tents, Proviſions, Ammunition, and Cannon, with a great many Colours and Standards were taken. The Foot alſo threw down their Arms. Lieutenant General Mackay, ſince kill'd in Flanders, had a great ſhare in the glory of that Action.

AGHMAT Varichæ, a City of Africa in the Kingdom of Morocco, 12 miles S. of the City of that name, 8 days Journey from Segelmaſſa, 6 from Tarudant, ſeated near the foot of Mount Atlas on the North-ſide, in a pleaſant Plain, which affords great plenty and variety of Fruits, Garden-Plants, and Grapes; the Springs from the Mountains waſh their Streets day and night, and incompaſs and cool their Wall'd Orchards, Gardens and thick Groves; The Site of this City is one of the moſt Beautiful in all the Earth, the Climate the moſt pleaſant, the Soil the Richeſt, the Water the ſweeteſt, and the Air the moſt healthful. A ſmall River divides the Town from N. to S. which turns their Mills four days in every week, and waters their Fields on the reſt. The Inhabitants of this City ſold to Joſeph, Son of Taſefin, the Ground on which he built the City of Morocco in the year of Chriſt 1187. It had once, more than 6000 Families, and was one of the Civileſt and Richeſt Cities of that Kingdom, but in Leo Africanus his time it was inhabited by none but Wolves, Foxes, &c. and one Hermite, worſe than all the other, he being attended by an 100 of his Diſciples on Horſeback, who would have made the Hypocrite a King if they had been ſtrong enough.

AGIAM-OGLANS, or the Children of Strangers, in Turkey, are young Slaves, either taken in War, or purchas'd of the Tartars, or violently taken from their Parents, the Chriſtians, out of the Morea, Albanie, and other Places. Theſe Children amount every year to the number of Two thouſand, who when they come to Conſtantinople, are preſented to the Grand Signior, and by him diſpoſed of in ſeveral Places, where they are put to various Trades, and thoſe that are well ſhap'd are employed to ſerve, ſome in the Kitchens, ſome in the Stables, others in the Gardens, and other Imployments. Ricaut.

AGIDES, a Sirname of the Princes of the Family of Agis King of Sparta; They were likewiſe call'd Euryſthenides from Euryſthines the Father of Agis. See Euryſthenides.

AGILA, or Agilanus, King of the Viſigoths in Spain. He began to Reign in the year 549 or 550. after the Death of Theodiſilus, who was murther'd by his Subjects. The End of Agila was equally unhappy. Iſidor. in Chron. Procop. &c.

AGILES, (Raymond) Sirnam'd De Podio, becauſe he was Canon of Puy in Velay. He went in the Expedition to the Holy Land, and about the year 1105 he publiſh'd a Hiſtory, Intituled, Hiſtoria Francorum qui ceperunt Jeruſalem; We have it now in the Firſt Volume of the Oriental Hiſtory, call'd, Geſta Dei per Francos.

AGILULPHUS, Duke of Turin, who in the year 586 became King of the Lombards, by his Marriage with Theodelinda, Daughter of Garibald King of Bavaria, and Widow of Antarith King of Lombardy. He was converted to the Catholick Faith from Arrianiſm, or, as ſome ſay, Paganiſm, and became ſo Potent that all Italy obey'd him, except Ravenna and Rome. However he committed great Spoil in the Roman Territories, which St. Gregory laments in his Epiſtles and Homilies upon Ezekiel. He died in the year 616. Paul. Diacon. St. Gregory.

AGINNIANS, a Sect of Hereticks who appear'd about the end of the Seventh Century, under Pope Sergius the Firſt. They condemn'd the uſe of ſome Meats and Marriage, as if God was the Author of neither. This Sect had but few Followers, and was ſoon extinguiſh'd. Prateolus. See Agynn.

Moſt of the Monaſteries are fortified becauſe of Pirates, It's the Univerſity of Greece, and the Monks are the Seminary for Biſhops.

AGIRO, or Agyra, which Ptolemy, Pliny, and Diadorus Siculus, call by the different Names of Agurium, Agyrium, and Argyra, &c. A Town in Sicily near Mount Ætna, call'd at preſent San Philipo d'Argirone. 'Tis famous for being the Birth-place of Diadorus Siculus. Diod. Sic. Lib. 1. c. 4. Bibl. Cluvier. Deſcr. Ital. &c.

AGIS the Firſt, King of Sparta, as far as may be conjectur'd by the Chronicle of Euſebius in the year of the World 2998, at what time Joab beſieged the City of Raab, the Capital of the Ammonites; He Reign'd but one year. Vid. Aguriam.

AGIS the Second, waged moſt cruel War with the Athenians, waſted their Country, and reſtored the Cities of Greece to their Liberty. However, he laid a new Tax on the Eleans, which they refuſing and revolting, he reduced them to the Obedience of the Lacedæmonians. He was kill'd by his Subjects in Priſon, for acting too rigorouſly according to Licurgus's Laws. Quint. Curt. Diador. Sicul.

AGIS the Third, King of the Lacedæmonians, of the Family of the Eurypontides. He ravaged the Country of Argos, after he had greatly contributed to the famous Victory at Mantinæa over the Athenians and Argives: After that, followed a Truce, which the Athenians breaking, he harraſſed all their Country. His Prudence and Conduct got the Lacedæmonians many Advantages during the Peloponneſian War, however Thraſippus drave him out of Attica. He died without any Legitimate Iſſue in the XCIV Olympiad. To an impertinent Ambaſſador, demanding of him, at the end of a tedious Harangue, what Anſwer he ſhould make to thoſe that ſent him, Tell 'em, (ſaid Agis) I ſuffered thee to talk as long as thou hadſt a mind to it. To another, magnifying the freedom of Diſcourſe; A Man (ſaid he) had need of Men and Money to maintain 'em. Diador. Sicul. Thucydides.

AGIS the Fourth, King of Sparta, ſolicited the Grecians to ſhake off the Macedonian Yoke, and was aſſiſted to that purpoſe both with Money and Ships by Pharnabazus and Autophradates the Perſian Governors, but overthrown near Megalopolis in Arcadia, by Antipater one of Alexander the Great's Generals, and loſt his Life in the Battle. Olympiad 112. Juſtin.

AGITATORS, or Adjutators; This Name was given to that part of the Army, who were adviſ'd by Ireton, to erect a Council among themſelves: Their Number conſiſted of Two Soldiers choſen out of every Troop and every Company, who were to Conſult for the good of the Army, and to aſſiſt at the Council of War, to give their Advice for the Peace and Safety of the Kingdom. Theſe were Cromwell's Inſtruments, and perfectly manag'd by him: Who, when he was deſirous to effect any thing, needed do no more, but ſecretly put it into the Heads of this Martial Committee. Theſe Agitators, by Cromwell's Inſtigation, gave a finiſhing Stroak to the Rebellion, and were the occaſion of the King's Murther; which Barbarity they ſet on foot by making a Remonſtrance to the Houſe of Commons, wherein they Require; Firſt, That the King be brought to Juſtice; Secondly, That the Prince and Duke of York be Summoned to appear at the day appointed, and proceeded with, according as they ſhould give Satiſfaction, &c. Hobbs Behemoth.

AGLAIS, or Aglaia, one of the Graces. Her Two Companions were Euphroſyne and Thalia. Theſe Three were the Daughters of Jupiter and Eurynome, and perpetual Attendants upon Venus or Beauty.

AGLAONICE, the Daughter of Hegemon, a Notable She-Aſtronomer. 'Tis ſaid, when ſhe foreſaw an Eclipſe of the Moon, ſhe us'd to brag, That ſhe had order'd that Planet to keep out of the way; but her Vanity being found out, ſhe was but laught at, for her pains. Plutarch mentions her, in his Treatiſe De Defectu Oraculorum. The Foppery of this Star-gazer gave occaſion to the Greek Proverb, mention'd by Eraſmus, which applies to ſuch ſort of Pretenders, You have carried off the Moon to your diſadvantage. See The Scholiaſt of Apollonius in Lib. 4. of Argonaut. p. 177. Ed. Steph.

AGLAURIS, the Daughter of Cecrops, an ancient King of Athens, turn'd into a Stone by Mercury for falſifying her promiſe to give him admiſſion to her Siſter Herſa, with whom he was paſſionately in love. Ovid.

AGLAUS, or Aglaius, a Pſophidian, the pooreſt of all the Arcadians, adjudg'd by the Oracle of Apollo, to be much more happy than Gyges King of Lydia, becauſe he never ſtirr'd beyond the bounds of his own ſmall Field, contented with the Fruits of his own Labour. Plin. Val. Max.

AGLIBOLUS, one of the Deities of the Syrian Idolaters, more particularly worſhip'd in the City of Palmyra. Some will have it to be the Sun, and others the Moon. Spartian ſays, that the Meſopotamians believed, that they who took the Moon for a God were Maſters of their Wives; but the Wives were Maſters of them who believ'd her a Goddeſs; And hence they Paint the Moon in Male Habit, and accordingly the Germans ſpeak of the

AGMET, a Town ſituated Eight Leagues from Morocco. Marmol ſuppoſes it was the Ancient Bochanum Hemerum. Agmet ſtands towards the Foot of the Mountains of Atlas, and was the Capital of the Empire, before Morocco was built; 'Tis call'd by Ptolemy, Emerea. Marmol Lib. 3. c. 41.

Raven. Miræus*, Voſſius, &c.

AGNO, one of the Nymphs by whom Jupiter was bred, who gave her Name to a Fountain in the Mountain Lyceus, which had formerly that wonderful quality in time of Drougth, that if the Prieſt of Jupiter Lyceus, after he had firſt perform'd his Sacred Ceremonies by it, in due form, ſtir'd it with an Oaken Bough, a thick Vapour roſe like a Miſt, and in a ſhort time condens'd into a Cloud that fell down again in plentiful Showers. Pauſ. in Orcad.

AGNODICE, an Athenian Virgin, who having a paſſionate deſire to learn Phyſick, frequented the School of Hierophilus in Man's Apparel; where having attained to perfection in the Theory, ſhe fell to Practiſe the Cure of Diſeaſes incident to Child-bearing Women, whom ſhe firſt acquainted with her Sex. Upon which, the Phyſicians, troubled that they were no longer ſent for by the Women, accus'd her before the Judges as a Debaucher of them: But Agnodice diſcovering her Sex before the Areopagites, not only clear'd her ſelf from the ſcandal, but occaſion'd the Judges to make an Order for any free Women to Learn and Practiſe Phyſick, and forbad the Men thenceforth to Act the Midwife. Hygin. Fab.

AGNOITES, a ſort of Hereticks about the year 370. Followers of Theophronius the Cappadocian, who joined himſelf with Eunomius. They queſtion'd the Omniſcience of God; alledging that he knew not Things paſt any other way than Memory; nor things to come but by an uncertain Preſcience. Prateol. Niceph.

AGNOITES, another ſort of Hereticks about the year 535. they followed the Errors of Themiſtius, Deacon of Alexandria, who believ'd that Chriſt knew not when the day of Judgment ſhould happen. Baronius.

AGNON, the Son of Nicias, and General of the Athenians in the Potidian War, wherein he had but ill ſucceſs. He alſo built Amphipolis; but the Amphipolitans, revolting to Braſidas, diſown'd their Founder, and putting down Agnon's Monuments, gave Braſidas all the Honour. Thucydides.

AGNON, or L'Agno, a River in Campagnia in Italy: 'Tis the Clanius of the Ancients. It riſes in the Neighbouring Mountains, and goes to Acerra, Averſa, and Linternum, now call'd Torre de Patria, where it ſtagnates into a Lake. Virg. Georg. Lib. 2. Leander Alberti in Deſc. Ital. p. 167.

AGNONIDES, an Athenian Rhetorician, or rather Sycophant, who accus'd Phocion before Polyſperchon, for betraying the Port of Pyreum to Nicanor: But no ſooner was Phocion Condemn'd and Poiſon'd with Hemlock; but the People, who hated him before, perceiving what a Magiſtrate and Obſerver of Temperance and Juſtice they had loſt, erected a Brazen Statue to his Memory, and put Agnonides to death. Cor. Nep.

AGOBARD, or Agobert, Archbiſhop of Lyons, one of the moſt famous Prelates of the Ninth Age; He was highly in the favour of Lewis the Debonnaire and his Children; the firſt being both his Maſter and Benefactor: Nevertheleſs he conſpired with Lotharius againſt him, and was preſent at the Council of Compiegne in 833. wherein Lewis was Depoſed by the Sentence of the Prelates and Temporal Lords. His Books are numerous, and were met with by accident in a Bookbinder's Shop in Lyons, by Papirius Maſſon, and Publiſhed in 1666. See Baluzius, who publiſh'd them. Upon the Reſtoration of Lewis, he was outed of his Archbiſhoprick; but being again reſtored, he died in the year 840. He wrote againſt the adoring of Images. Baronius; Sponden.

AGOBEL, a Town in the Kingdom of Tremeſen in Africk. 'Tis by Marmol ſuppos'd to be the ſame with that Ptolemy and the Ancients call Victoria. However Sanſon is poſitive, that the ancient Victoria is now Moasker, and ſufficiently conſiderable. Marmol Deſc. Afr. lib. 3. c. 4. Sanſon, &c.

AGON Androgei, a Play inſtituted by Minos, the Victors Rewards being the Athenians Children; where Taurus, one of Minos's Counſellors, ſtill carried the day at Wreſtling, till he was worſted by Theſeus: And ſo the Athenians were freed from this Tribute. Ovid.

AGONAX, Azonax or Azonach, one of Shem or Heber's Scholars. He apply'd himſelf very much to Aſtronomy, and endeavour'd to recover thoſe parts of Knowledge which were ſunk in the Flood. He's ſaid to have inſtructed the famous Zoroaſtres. Delrio takes Agonax and Noah for the ſame Perſon. Plin. Lib. 5. & 30. c. 1. Delrio Diſq. Magic. Lib. 1.

AGONES, a People of Inſubria, whoſe Country is called La Val di Cogna, in the Territory of Ticinum, or Pavia. There is a River here alſo called Agonia: Alſo thoſe that killed the Sacrifice in the Agonalia, ſo called, becauſe of their ſaying Agon, i. e. Shall I ſtrike or cut the Throat on't, before they killed it. Macrobius.

AGONIUS, the Name of a pretended Deity, upon whoſe Favour the Romans believ'd the Succeſs of their Enterprizes depended, and in Honour of whom, they celebrated the Feaſts call'd Agonalia. Feſtus, Macrob. Roſin.

AGONOTHETES, the Name of him, who had the Direction, and was the Judge of the Combats at the Olympick Games, and at ſuch other Exerciſes or Publick Sports as were call'd Agones.

AGORÆA, a Name given to Minerva by the Lacedæmonians. 'Tis likewiſe a River in Thrace, over which the Emperor Juſtinian laid a Bridge, near Agora. Hiſtoire Miſſel. Liv. 16. Mercury, Jupiter, &c. were likewiſe call'd Agoræi, when their Statues were ſet up in a Square or Market-Place. Pauſan. Rhodig.

AGORANOMUS, an Athenian Magiſtrate, whoſe Buſineſs was the ſame with our Clerk of the Market, that is, the inſpecting of Weights and Meaſures. This Imployment was a Branch of the Office of the Roman Ædiles. Plaut. Captiv.

AGRA, the Capital City of a Province of the ſame Name, in the Empire of the Great Mogul in the Indies, on this ſide the Ganges. It was the place where the Emperor kept his Court, till Chagehan built the City of Gehan-Abad, where he now reſides, by reaſon the Climate is more temperate. Agra is the largeſt City of India, where the Houſes of the Noblemen are ſpacious, and well built; but thoſe of private Men very ordinary, ſeparate one from another, and ſurrounded with high Walls, to keep their Women from being ſeen. All that is moſt remarkable in Agra is the Emperor's Palace, and ſome few Sepulchres in and about the City. The King's Palace is a ſpacious Incloſure with a double Wall, and is Terraſſed in ſome places. The firſt Court is environ'd with Portico's; the ſecond ſurrounded with Galleries; and the third Court is the Emperor's Quarter. Cha Gehan had a deſign to have cover'd the Roof of one of the Galleries in this Quarter with Silver; and one Francis Auſtin of Bourdeaux was to have been his Workman: But not having any other than him that was fit to be ſent to Goa, to Treat with the Portugueſes, that deſign fell. This Gallery is Painted with Foliages of Gold and Azure, and the Floor all ſpread with Tapeſtry. On that ſide next the River is a Jett, where the Emperor ſits to ſee his Elephants Fight. Before you enter that Jett, there is a Gallery, which Cha-Gehan intended to have lin'd through with an Arbour of Emeralds and Rubies, which ſhould have repreſented to the Life Green and Ripe Grapes; but for want of Riches he could go no further than to make Two or three Branches ſprouting from the Body of a Vine of Gold, with their Leaves Enammel'd to the Life, laden with Grapes made of Emeralds, Rubies, and Granates. Of all the Sepulchres in Agra, that of Cha-Gehan's Wife is the moſt ſuperb, erected near the Grand Bazar or Market-place, that every one might ſee it. The Sepulchre it ſelf is lin'd with Black and White Marble within and without; as alſo are all the Courts of which it conſiſts. There are Three Platforms raiſed one above another, with four Towers at the four Corners of each; the laſt of which Platforms is covered with a Dome more Magnificent than that of Val de Grace at Paris, being fac'd with White Marble within and without, and under that Dome lies a moſt Magnificent empty Tomb; for the Body of the Empreſs is buried under the Roof of the firſt Platform. In this Structure, 20000 Artificers and Labourers were employ'd for 22 years together. An Eunuch with 20000 Men is appointed for the Guard of it and the Market-place. Near the City is the Tomb of the Emperor's Father in a Garden; over the Portal of which is the Picture of his Tomb, with a Jeſuit at each end, becauſe they firſt taught him Mathematicks and Aſtrology. This City lies in 27. 31. Lat. in a Sandy Soil extreamly hot. It was built in 1584, or 85. Hackl. Tavernier.

AGRÆI, a People in Attica near Athens. The Country was call'd Agræ, becauſe there was great ſtore of Game in it. The Huntreſs Diana had a Temple in it, which is now turn'd into a little Church, call'd Stauroïmenos Petrou, where the Floor is Moſaick Work. Meurſius.

AGRARIA Lex, certain Laws among the Romans, which were Enacted for the Diviſion of Lands taken from the Enemy. Tiberius Gracchus would have made a Law, forbidding any Roman to have more than 800 Acres for his own ſhare; and ordering the ſurplus to be divided among the People: Theſe Laws were the occaſion of many Seditions in Rome, and contributed much to the overturning the Commonwealth by Julius Cæſar. Liv. Florus & Appian.

AGRAULES, the Daughter of Cecrops, King of Athens, who being a little too curious to open a Wicker-Hamper, wherein Minerva had encloſed young Ericthonius, incens'd the Goddeſs to that degree, as to ſtrike her with ſuch a Frenzy, that in a mad fit ſhe threw her ſelf headlong from a Precipice. Apollodorus.

AGREDA, a Town in Arragon upon the River Quilos, bordering upon Old Caſtile. Some take it to be Gracuris of the Ancients. But other Authors pretend that Gracuris is Cagurria in Navarr, and that Agreda was formerly call'd Auguſtrobiga. Slutius, Nonius, Sanſon.

AGREMMES, an Indian King of the Gangarides, who opposed Alexander the Great with 20000 Horſe, 200000 Foot, 2000 Chariots and 3000 Elephants. Q. Curtius.

AGRIA, by the Germans call'd Eger, by the Hungarians Eclaw, a City of Upper Hungary, upon a River of the ſame Name, which about three Leagues farther falls into the Tibiſcus or Theyſſe. The City is ſmall, but well fortified; was Beſieged by Solyman, An. 1552. without effect: But Mahomet the Third won it in 1596. after having defeated the Forces ſent to relieve it; from which time it continued in the Hands of the Turks, till it was retaken by the Imperialiſts in 1687. after a Blockade of three years; during which, there died of Hunger and Diſeaſes above 10000 Turks. When this City was Beſieged in 1552. with 70000 Men, it was neither ſtrong by Nature nor Art; but the Courage of the Garriſon ſupplied that defect. There were in it 2000 Hungarians, and 60 of the chief Nobility, with all their Wives, Children, and Moveables. They bound themſelves by Oath to hold to the laſt extremity, and put all their Proviſions into Publick Magazines; when the Turks Summon'd them, they ſhew'd them a Coffin from the Battlements, ſignifying that they would rather die than ſurrender. The Town was batter'd 40 days with 50 Pieces of Cannon; and the Turks, making three Aſſaults in one day, were repulſed with the loſs of 8000 Men. The Courage of the Women, during the Aſſaults, was incredible. One inſtance was of a Woman, who fighting in preſence of her Husband and Mother, her Husband was kill'd behind her; whereupon her Mother call'd on her to go and bury him; to which ſhe anſwer'd, God forbid, till ſuch time that I avenge his death; ſo that taking her Husband's Sword and Buckler, ſhe fell upon the Enemy, and kill'd three of them 'ere ſhe retired. Another Woman carrying a great Stone to throw upon the Turks, was kill'd by a Cannon-Ball; her Daughter followed her, took up the Stone beſmear'd with her Mother's Blood, and threw it upon the Enemy who were Scaling the Wall. The Turks, being terrified with ſuch Prodigies of Nature, raiſed the Siege; and the Garriſon Sallying out, kill'd a great number of 'em, and took all their Baggage Hiſt. Turk. Thuanus. When it was taken in 1596. the Infidels, contrary to the Capitulation, Murder'd the Garriſon; ſo that when the Turks Capitulated, their Governor, for fear of the like uſage, would not ſurrender till the Emperor ſign'd the Articles. Four Thouſand Inhabitants went out with the Garriſon, 300 ſtaid and demanded Baptiſm, and abundance of Chriſtian Slaves were releaſed: They left 150 Cannon, 7 Mortars, and ſtore of Proviſions behind 'em; and all the Dependances thereof ſubmitted to the Emperor. This City ſtands 7 German miles from Tockay, 17 N. E. of Buda, and 10 N. of Zolnock.

AGRICOLA, (Cneus Junius) a Native of the City of Frejus in Provence, who liv'd in the Reigns of Galba, Veſpaſian, and Domitian; his Merits raiſed him to the higheſt Employments in the Government. He was ſent into Aſia, Gaul, and England, and died in the Reign of Domitian. Tacitus who was his Son-in-Law wrote his Life.

AGRICOLA, (George) a German Phyſician, born at Glauch in Miſnia, highly commended by Thuanus for his Writings, more eſpecially for his Treatiſe of Minerals, and Subterranean Creatures, wherein he excelled all his Predeceſſors. Melch. Adam. Thuan. He lived in the Sixteenth Century. His Works are theſe: De ortu & cauſâ ſubterraneorum. De Natura eorum quæ effluunt ex terrâ. De Natura Foſſilium. De Medicatis Fontibus. De Re Metallica. De veteribus & novis Metallis. De pretio Metallorum, & Monetis, &c.

AGRICOLA, (Rodulphus) born at Baſſlon, a ſmall Burrough in Friſeland near Groninghen, in the year 1442, a Perſon of a Prodigious Wit, and a profound univerſal Learning, for which reaſon he was admir'd by Eraſmus, who wrote his Encomium. He died in the flower of his Age at Heidelbergh, An. 1485. He wrote a Hiſtory and other things which were Printed by Allard of Amſterdam in Two Volumes. Melch. Adam. Geſner in Biblioth.

AGRICOLA, (John) Luther's Contemporary and Townſman, and of his Sentiments in Religion; he was a very Learned Man, much eſteemed by the Electors of Brandenburg and Saxony; he wrote afterward in Defence of the Saxon Confeſſion with Brentius and Melancthon, and was imployed in the Interim, and other Accommodations, about Religion; he died at Berlin, where he was Miniſter, leaving ſome Commentaries on Luke, &c. Sleidan. Thuanus.

AGRICOLA, (Francis) a Native of Leonen, a little Town in the Dutchy of Julier's, famous for his Writings and Devotion. His Works are, Commentarium de Verbo Dei Scripto & non Scripto. De lectione Sacræ Scripturæ ejuſque Interpretibus. Demonſtrationum Evangelicarum. De Chriſto Salvatore. De Primatu Divi Petri. De Reliquiis Sanctorum. Valerius Andreas, Bibl. Belg.

AGRIMONTE, or Agromont, Grumentum, a Town in Italy in the Baſilicate. 'Twas formerly a conſiderable Town with a Biſhop's See, which has ſince been united to that of Marſico. Gregory the Great mentions the Church of Agrimonte, and we have a Letter of Pope Pelagius to Julian, who was Biſhop of it. Gregor. Regiſt. Lib. 10. Ep. 47. Gratian. Diſt. 76. c. 12. &c.

AGRIONIA, certain Annual Feſtivals ſolemnized by the Bœotians in honour of Bacchus. In this Ceremony the Women ſearcht for Bacchus as a Fugitive; but not finding him, they give over and cry, He has hid himſelf among the Muſes; and then, after the Feaſt was ended, they fell to putting Riddles and hard Queſtions one to another, to denote, that after all the Vanities of exceſs, there is nothing like converſing with the Muſes.

AGRIPPA, (Caſtor) flouriſh'd about 132, and wrote a moſt Learned Confutation of Baſilides the Heretick, diſcuſſing all his Fraudulent Arguments, as he did alſo thoſe of Iſiodorus, Baſilides's Son. Euſeb. l. 4. c. 7. Cave Hiſtoria Literaria.

AGRIPPA, Sirnam'd Herodes, the Son of Ariſtobulus by Berenice. After the death of Herod Antipas, his Uncle, he went to Rome, where his Wit and Profuſeneſs acquired him Friends in Tiberius's Court. He was in great favour with Druſus and his Wife Antonia, who eſteem'd him for the ſake of Berenice Mother of Ariſtobulus. But his Generoſity having run him in Debt, he return'd to Judæa, and being reſupplied by his Wife Cypros, he return'd to Rome, where, for wiſhing that Caius his Friend might Reign, he was impriſon'd by Tiberius. Caius Caligula being Emperor, releas'd him, and gave him a Chain of Gold of equal weight with the Chains that bound him in Priſon, which in Teſtimony of Gratitude Agrippa hung in the Temple of Jeruſalem, after that, Caligula confer'd upon him the Kingdom of Judæa. He put St. James the Apoſtle to death, and impriſon'd St. Peter, and for his Pride in admitting the Deifying Acclamations of the People, was eaten up with Worms. There was alſo Herodes Agrippa, the ſecond Tetrarch of Galilee, (Son to Herod the firſt, who ſent back Chriſt Royally Habited in deriſion to Pilate) he was Prudent, and well skill'd in Hebrew Cuſtoms, and the Latin Tongue; and therefore St. Paul was glad to be heard before him. He was the laſt King of the Jews; and by them hated ſo much for his Mildneſs, and foretelling them their Deſtruction, that they Stoned him from his Throne: Whereupon he retired to Rome, with his Siſter Berenice, and lived privately, but in much Honour with Titus and Veſpaſian, and died at Rome 30 years after the Deſtruction of Jeruſalem, Anno Chr. 100. Joſephus, Dion. Acts C. 12.

AGRIPPA, (Menenius) choſen General of the Romans againſt the Sabines, triumph'd over that People; and when the Commonalty of Rome withdrew themſelves into the Aventine Mount, not able to endure the Burthen of Tribute, nor continual Warfare, Agrippa being ſent to reduce 'em by fair means to Obedience; The Members of Man's Body, ſaid he, when they ſaw the Belly idle, revolted from it, and denied it their aſſiſtance, but when they underſtood that the Belly concocted, and diſtributed the nouriſhment received to all the Members for their ſubſiſtence, they return'd to their former friendſhip; ſo the Senate and People make up all but one Body, which by diſcord periſhes, but by concord becomes healthful and ſtrong. By this ſimilitude the People were pacified, and liſtned to Terms of Accommodation, which were, That Popular Magiſtrates ſhould be choſen, called Tribunes. Agrippa died very ancient, and though the great Offices which he bore in the Republick, might have enriched him, yet he was ſo poor, that he was buried at the Publick Charge. Livius. Florus.

AGRIPPA, (Marcus Vipſanius) the intimate Friend and Son-in-Law of Auguſtus, with whom he was twice Conſul, and once with Caninius Gallus. He was the greateſt Captain of his time, and one of the moſt conſiderable Men that ever Rome had, though of mean Parentage: Salmaſius maintains, that Agrippa is Originally a Greek Word, coming from ἄγειν and ἵππος. We find it likewiſe in the Scholiaſt of Theocritus, and in an ancient Epigram; Auguſtus owed the Victory over Pompey and Marc Anthony to his Counſel. There are ſeveral ancient Medals made by the Senate repreſenting Agrippa Crowned with Sterns of Ships, and on the Reverſe Neptune holding a Dolphin and Trident: He is on others repreſented with Auguſtus. When he was Ædile, he adorn'd the City at his own Charge with the famous Gallery of Neptune, where the Conqueſts of the Argonauts is Painted, as alſo with Publick Baths, Common Shoars, Aqueducts, and the Pantheon or Temple of All Gods, which Pope Boniface IV. turn'd into that of All Saints. He was the firſt that Conquer'd Egypt, and was made Governor of Aſia. He was magnificently receiv'd by Herod at Jeruſalem, the People going before him with loud Acclamations, at which being extreamly pleaſed, he Feaſted them, offer'd a Hecatomb, and granted the Jews what Privileges they demanded. Auguſtus ſeeing himſelf Maſter of the Empire, conſulted with Agrippa and Mecenas, whether he ſhould retain the Government in his own Hands, or reſtore it to the Republick, Agrippa was for the latter, but Mecenas not, whom Auguſtus alſo followed: But had ſo good an Opinion of Agrippa, that being extreamly ſick, he named him for his Succeſſor, and gave him his Daughter Julia, who proved a looſe and bad Wife. Sueton. Joſeph.

AGRIPPA the Poſthumus, Son of M. Vipſanius Agrippa, was baniſhed by his Grandfather Auguſtus into the Iſland Planaſia, between the Iſlands Ilva and Corſica, for ſome Treaſonable Deſigns, where he was murder'd by the Command of Tiberius. One of his Slaves afterwards counterfeited himſelf to be the ſame Agrippa, and had not Tiberius been rather too cunning than too ſtrong for him, he had probably found him work enough; for he was ſtout and daring, and being brought before Tiberius, told him to his Face he had as much reaſon to be Agrippa, as Tiberius had to be Caſar. The Emperor not daring to bring him to publick Execution, order'd it to be done privately. Tacitus.

AGRIPPA, (Henry Cornelius) a German born at Cologne, of the Noble Family of Netteſheim, Doctor of Law and Phyſick, and a Knight of the Military Order beſides. He wrote ſeveral Treatiſes, but none more approv'd than his Tractate of the Vanity of Humane Sciences. Paulus Jovius calls him a Portentous Wit: And Ludovicus Vives ſtiles him the Miracle of Learning and Learned Men. Some People tax him for being a Magician and a Conjurer, which was occaſion'd by his addictedneſs to ſecret Sciences. He diſtinguiſh'd himſelf in the Emperor Maximilian's Army in Italy, both by Conduct and Bravery; he ſpoke 8 Languages, and was much eſteem'd by all the great Men of his time, as Trithemius, Eraſmus, and Melancthon. He was Phyſician to the Dutcheſs of Savoy, Counſellor and Hiſtoriographer to the Emperor Charles the V. Syndic and Advocate General to the Town of Metz. He was at one and the ſame time invited to the Service of the Dutcheſs of Auſtria, the King of England, and the Emperor Charles the V. which ſhews the great Reputation he had; but he preferred Liberty to Travel, to thoſe Offers, and after paſſing ſome time at Fribourg, Geneva, &c. he died at Grenoble in 1534. Some of his Enemies ſay he had Two Familiars in the ſhape of Dogs, whom he called Monſieur and Madamoiſelle, and that at his death he ſaid to one of them, Abi, perdita beſtia, qui me totum perdidiſti; Get you gone, you wretched Beaſt, who have deſtroyed me; whereupon it ran into the River, and was never more ſeen. But John Wier, his Domeſtick, ſays, that thoſe were but Calumnies. His Treaty of the Vanity of Sciences procured him Enemies. His other Works are in Two Volumes in Octavo, viz. De occulta Philoſophia. Commentaria in Artem brevem Raymundi Lulli. De triplici ratione cognoſcendi Deum. Dehortatio à Theologia Gentili. Expoſtulatio cum Johanne Carlineto Epiſt. lib. 7. &c. Wier ſays, that De Cæremoniis Magicis is not his. His Enemies ſaid of him:

AGRIPPINA, the Daughter of M. Agrippina, Married to Tiberius, who had Druſus by her, and lov'd her with a perfect kindneſs, but was forc'd to put her away to Marry Julia: She was afterwards Married to Aſinius Pollio, which Tiberius diſguſting, threw him in Priſon under pretence of being diſaffected to the Government, and ſtarved him to death. Tacitus.

AGRIPPINA, (Vipſania) the Daughter of M. Agrippa by Julia the Daughter of Auguſtus, who was Married to Germanicus, a Woman highly ambitious, and of an invincible Courage, but more remarkable for her Chaſtity and Love to her Husband. Tiberius laid ſeveral Crimes to her Charge, for proſecuting the Murderers of her Husband, whom he mortally hated, and baniſh'd her into the Iſland Pandateria, with her Sons Nero and Druſus, whom he put to death: For which, reproaching the Emperor's Cruelty, he ordered a Centurion to beat her, who perform'd it ſo barbarouſly, that he ſtruck out one of her Eyes: after which ſhe refuſed all Nouriſhment that was offered her, and ſo ended her days. Tacitus, Dion, Sueton.

AGRIPPINA, the Daughter of Germanicus, Siſter of Caligula, Wife of Claudius, and Mother of Nero, all Cæſars, ſo that ſhe ſaw more Emperors in her own Family than ever one Woman did: She was born in a City of the Ubians, which ſhe rais'd to much Grandeur afterwards, and called Colonia Agrippina, now Cologne in Germany. She had a delicate and ſolid Wit, and compos'd ſeveral Memoirs, out of which Tacitus confeſſes that he glean'd many Paſſages for his Hiſtory. She was a Woman very vicious, and extreamly proud; ſhe was very handſom, and Thrice Married, the laſt time to her own Uncle Claudius the Emperor, whom ſhe courted, and overcame by her Beauty. As ſoon as ſhe was on the Throne, her chief Care was to have her Son Nero made Emperor, for which end ſhe perſuaded Claudius to adopt him: cut off ſeveral great Men to make room for her Deſigns, and proſtituted her ſelf to others for that ſame end. Being told that Nero would requite her kindneſs by murdering her, ſhe anſwered, Let him kill me ſo he Reign. She poiſoned her Husband to make way for him, and recalled Seneca from Exile to inſtruct him. For a time ſhe governed all her ſelf, but at length Nero depriv'd her of the Government, which touch'd her ſo ſenſibly, that ſhe left no Stone unturn'd to re-obtain it, and as ſome ſay, did for that end proſtitute her ſelf to her Son, who afterward ſought to have drown'd her, but failing in that, cauſed her afterwards to be murdered in her Chamber, where ſhe bid the Executioner Stab her in the Belly firſt, that had brought forth ſuch a Monſter as Nero. This was in 59. or 60. Tacitus, Sueton. Dion.

AGRIPPINUS, a Biſhop of Carthage, in the Third Age, the Firſt who denied that the Sacrament of Baptiſm adminiſtred by Hereticks was valid, and therefore they ought to be re-baptized. St. Auguſtine affirms, That notwithſtanding his different opinion, he did not ſeparate from the Communion of the Church. Baron. St. Auguſt. St. Cyprian.

AGRON, a King of Illyria, who having vanquiſh'd the Ætolians, drank ſo exceſſively for joy at a Feaſt which he made his Army, that he fell into a Pleuriſie, and died immediately. The Romans having been jealous of this Kings Power, countenanced a Rebellion of his Subjects in the Iſle of Eſſios, againſt whom having diſpatched a Fleet, the Romans ſent Ambaſſadors in their favour, but Agron's Avant Guard having taken both the Roman Ambaſſadors coming to him, and thoſe of the Eſſios going to Rome, he was ſo enraged: that he cut them both off, or, as ſome ſay, his Queen Teuta did it after his death. This happen'd in the 524 of Rome. Appian. There was another Agron alſo, a famous Phyſician, who by making Fires without the City, clear'd Athens from a moſt terrible Peſtilence.

AGUATULCO, a Town in New-Spain upon the Mer del Zur, over-againſt Spiritu Santo on the Bay of Mexico, taken by Thomas Cavendiſh in the year 1587 without reſiſtance, and burnt down to the ground. Lat. 15. 40. N. of the Line. It was one of the moſt conſiderable Towns in New-Spain. The Haven is very large, and much frequented, as being the Port of Peru for both the Indian and European Goods. Drake took and plunder'd it in 1578. Laet. p. 263.

AGUECCHIO, (John Baptiſt) of Bononia, was one of the Learnedeſt Italian Prelates of the Sixteenth Century. His Learning was Univerſal: He was both Divine, Philoſopher, and Mathematician. He wrote a Treatiſe of Commets; of Meteors; the Life of Cardinal Sega; the Antiquities of Bononia, &c. Thomaſin. Elog. Viror. Illuſt. Bumald. Bibl. Bonon.

AGUEDA, or Agada, a Town in Portugal, ſtanding upon the Ruines of the old Æmenium, which was very conſiderable, and is mentioned by Ptolemy and Pliny.

AGUER, a City of Africa at the foot of Mount Atlas, on a Promontory that was anciently ealled Viſugrum. It was taken by the Portugals in the year 1536. Not long after, Cheriff Mahomet ſent his Son with 50000 Men to beſiege it, and afterwards followed himſelf with a numerous Reinforcement, and took it, tho' with the loſs of 18000 Men. To revenge himſelf, he put all to the Sword that he found in the City; the Governor Monroi and thoſe who retired to the Towers, were made Priſoners; Monroi had a Daughter called Donna Mencia of extraordinary Beauty, with whom Mahomet fell paſſionately in Love, but ſhe would by no means redeem her own and her Fathers Liberty with the loſs of her Honour; Mahomet ſeeing that ſhe deſpiſed him, commanded her in a rage to be expoſed to the Luſt of the Negroes. The poor Lady being reduc'd to that extremity, promiſed to give herſelf to him, provided he held her as his lawful Wife, and permitted her the free exerciſe of her Religion, which he agreed to, and ſo they were Married, but upon her proving with Child, his other Wives grew jealous, and poiſoned her; yet out of Reſpect to her Memory, he gave her Father his Liberty, and ſent him to Portugal in an Honourable manner with abundance of rich Preſents. Thuanus.

AGUI, or Sultan Agui, King of Bantam in the year 1688. was the Son of Sultan Agoum, who being weary of his Crown, and willing to ſpend the reſt of his days with Pleaſure in his Seraglio, reſign'd it to his Son. But the young King diſpleaſing his Father, by baniſhing Two Lords whom he had chiefly commended to him, and rendring himſelf odious to his People, Sultan Agoum took Arms to recover the Kingdom out of his Son's Hands; who being in diſtreſs, craved Aid of the Hollanders, whoſe Council there deſign'd to have continued Neuter; but General Spelman being an enterprizing Man, reſolv'd to aſſiſt the young Prince. This Spelman having rais'd the Siege of Bantam, and ſeeing himſelf Maſter of the Capital, had a deſign to poſſeſs himſelf of the Two Kings, and make Prize of the whole Kingdom. To this purpoſe, he ſent Succours to the young Prince, by whoſe Aſſiſtance his Father was defeated, and put in Priſon. Tachard. Voyage de Siam.

AGUILA, a City of the Province of Habut, in the Kingdom of Fez, upon the River Enguila; it is almoſt gone to ruine, though the Land about it is very fertile. There are great numbers of Lions in the Neighbouring Foreſts, but ſo fearful, that a Child will make 'em run; inſomuch that 'tis a Proverb in Fez, when they ſpeak of a Coward, to ſay, He's as fierce as a Lion of Aguila, that lets the Calves eat his Tail. Marmol.

AGUILANNEUF, the name of a certain Ceremony of the ancient Druids, who being to gather Miſſletoe againſt New-Years-Day, they went about the Fields adjoyning to their Foreſts, crying out, To the Miſſletoe, the New-Year, to the Miſſletoe, Druids, the New-Year. The Proceſſion was after this manner: Firſt marched the Prieſts, with the Bulls for the Sacrifices, attended by the Bards, and their Diſciples, who ſung Songs and Hymns to their Deities. After them went a Herauld in White, with a White Cap on his Head, and Mercury's Wand in his Hand, which was a Branch of Vervein wreath'd in the ſhape of Two Serpents. After the Heraulds came the Druids in front, the Firſt of which carried the Wine in a Veſſel, the Second the Bread for the Sacrifice, and the Third the Hand of Juſtice. Theſe Three were attended by the Prince of the Druids, who went by himſelf in a White Caſſock, and a White Surplice over it, with a White Cap on his Head, tufted with White Silk, and the Strings hanging down behind. If the Prince were in the Country, he went along with the Prince of the Druids, attended by his Nobility. Then the Prince of the Druids went up into the Tree, and with a Golden Sickle cut the Miſſletoe, which the other Druids in their Albs received in White Napkins, and theſe Branches were ſent to the Nobility, and diſtributed amongſt the People, for New-Years Gifts, as moſt Sacred Things, and Remedies againſt all Miſchiefs. It was not gathered but in December, for which reaſon that Month was called Sacred. There was always reſerves of it in the Temples, and People carried it about their Necks to War, and put it over their Doors. It was hard Miſſletoe, called in Latin Robur, which is bred on the Tree by the Muting of Birds. This name was alſo given to a certain Begging in ſome Dioceſſes, on New-Years-Day, for the Tapers in Churches, managed by the Youth of both Sexes, who choſe themſelves a Chief called Follet, and committed many Extravagances in the Church, every whit as Impious as the Feaſt of Fous ſpoken of in its place, ſo that it was condemned by a Synod at Angers, Anno 1592. but the ſame Cuſtom being continued in Private Houſes, it was condemned again in 1668. This was alſo called by the name of Bachellettes. AJAS, a City of Arabia the Happy, Two days Journey from Aden, ſeated between Two Hills, in the midſt of which is a fair Valley, where the Inhabitants keep their Markets and Fairs. Thevet calls it Hegias, and makes a Kingdom of it. But Travellers in their Relations of Africa and Aſia, furniſh us with Kingdoms no bigger than the ſmalleſt Provinces of Europe. Davity.

AJAX, the Son of Telamon, the ſtouteſt of all the Greeks, who was ſo admir'd by Hector, after they had fought a whole day together, that at parting Hector preſented him with a Sword, and he preſented Hector with a Belt. The Sword was that wherewith Ajax kill'd himſelf, and the Belt that by which Achilles dragg'd Hector round Troy. After the death of Achilles, when Ajax claim'd his Arms as bequeathed to him, and found that the Judges had given 'em to Ulyſſes, whoſe Eloquence made his Claim better than Ajax's, for Vexation he ran diſtracted, and in his madneſs ſlew a great number of Sheep, together with a Ram conſpicuous for the beauty of it, believing they had been Ulyſſes and the Greeks. But recovering his Senſes, and perceiving his miſtake, he retired into a ſolitary place, and for grief and ſhame kill'd himſelf with Hector's Sword; at what time his Blood was turn'd into a Hyacinth, or rather into a Flower of his own name, as Ovid teſtifies. And they ſay that the Flower of Royal Conſound ſhews the Letters AI, AI, the Two firſt denoting the name, and the other Two the complaint. Alexander the Great is reported to have gone to viſit his Tomb, together with that of Achilles. Alſo the name of a Tragedy, which Auguſtus having begun with great earneſtneſs, but not liking his own ſtyle, wip'd quite out again, and being ask'd what was become of his Ajax, reply'd, that his Ajax had encounter'd a Spunge, and was worſted. Sueton.

AJAX, the Son of Oileus, King of the Locrenſes, very ſwift of foot, and dextrous at managing a Spear, who after Troy was taken, deflower'd the Propheteſs Caſſandra in the Temple of Pallas; for which, at his return, he was ſtruck with Thunder by the Goddeſs. Ovid.

AJAX, Son of Teucer King of Salamis in the Iſle of Cyprus. Strabo, l. 4.

AJAZZO, Adjacium, and Urſinum, a City of Corſica, with a ſtrong Caſtle and convenient Harbour upon the Mediterranean, with a Biſhop's See, under the Juriſdiction of Piſa. It belongs to the Genoeſe, and was formerly the Capital City of the Iſland, about a mile from the Old Adjacium, and is almoſt ſurrounded with the Sea. Baudrand.

AICHSTAD, Eiſtadium & ala Nariſca, a Town in Germany in the Upper Palatinate, with a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Mentz. It ſtands upon the River d'Altmult, and holds of the Biſhop.

AIDANUS, the 49th King of Scotland, ſucceeded Kinnatellus about the year 570. He was the Son of King Goranus, who Reign'd before Eugenius II. for fear of whom he fled into Ireland, from whence he came in the Reign of Kinnatellus, by the perſuaſion of Columba a Scots Iriſhman of great Repute in his Court, for being a Holy Man; his Authority was ſo great in thoſe days, that neither Prince nor People would undertake any thing without his Advice. By this Columba, Aidanus was brought to the King, who received him very courteouſly, and finding himſelf worn out by Age and Sickneſs, wiſh'd him to be of good chear, for he ſhould ſhortly be King, which prov'd accordingly; for Kinnatellus dying not long afterwards, Aidanus was with the conſent of the People admitted to the Crown, and received the Royal Habiliments from Columba. Then was England under the Saxon Heptarchy, and the Kingdom of Northumberland under King Etheldred, who being greedy to enlarge his Dominions, perſwaded the Picts to break with the Scots. Aidanus making a League with the ancient Britains, proved too hard for the Saxons, till Ethelfrid being reinforc'd by Ceulinus King of the Eaſt Saxons, the Scots and Picts were beaten in Northumberland. After which King Ethelfrid being joyn'd with the Picts, marched into Galloway, but was fruſtrated of his hopes, and forc'd at laſt to retire; being purſued, they came to a Battel, wherein the Saxons were totally routed; of which Victory its ſaid Columba told his Companions at Icolmkill, at the very time, though at a great diſtance; After which, the Britains having forſaken the Scots, Ethelfred fell upon theſe, while in expectation of the Britains, and defeated 'em; which, together with Columba's death, broke the heart of King Aidanus, now grown old, who having Reign'd 34 years, died Anno 604. In this time Auguſtine the Monk came into England, and converted the Saxons. Buchan. Aidanus, the name of a Scottiſh Biſhop about 635. famous for having converted Northumberland, and in thoſe times he governed the Province of York. He was Countenanced by Oſuald King of the Northumbrians, who had been himſelf bred and converted in Scotland, and ſending for this Aidan, interpreted his Sermons in Scotch to his own Subjects in the Saxon Language. He gave Aidan Lindisfarn, or Holy-Iſland, for a place of Reſidence, ſo that he was called Biſhop of Lindisfarn, and the See was afterwards tranſlated to Durham. Buch. Cave Hiſt. Lit. Anglia Sacra.

AIDONEUS, otherwiſe called Pluto, Reigned in the time of Lyceus King of the Argives, and Erectheus King of the Athenians; alſo the King of the Moloſſi, who put Theſeus in Priſon, becauſe that he together with Perithous would have raviſh'd his Daughter near the River Acheron, which occaſioned the Fable of Theſeus's deſcending into Hell. This King Aidoneus was called Pluto or Hades, becauſe he made his Priſoners work in the Mines of Epire, where they quickly died. Plutarch in Theſeo.

AIGUE Perſe, Capital of Montpenſier, and Dauphinate of Auvergne, has particular Juriſdiction over all the Lands that depend upon it, and the ancient Caſtle of Montpenſier, ſo conſiderable for its Fortifications, but demoliſhed in 1634. ſtood above this City, which lies about a League from Montpenſier to the South, and Five from Aaremont to the North.

AIGUES Mortes, a City of Languedoc near the Sea, and the Seat for the Gabells for Salt. 'Tis ſaid that Marius built this Town, and brought thither that ſame Arm of the Rhoſne called Foſſa Mariana, but without any ground, it being more probable this City derived its name from the ſtillneſs of the Waters and Ponds adjoining to it.

AILESBURY, a Market Town of Ailesbury Hundred, about the middle of Buckinghamſhire, finely ſeated on the Riſing of a little Hill near the Tame, of ſpecial note for the rich, pleaſant, and fruitful Vale, which lies South from it, and is hence call'd The Vale of Ailesbury. A Vale in great Repute for grazing of Cattle, and feeding innumerable Flocks of Sheep, whoſe fine Fleeces are much eſteemed. Ailesbury was much reſorted to in the times of Popery, for the pretended Miracles of St. Edith, who having this Town alotted for her Dowry, bad the World and her Husband farewell, and took upon her the Veil of Devotion. Of late it is become more remarkable for conferring an additional Honour upon Robert Bruce, Baron of Kinlos, and Earl of Elgin in Scotland, and Lord Whorlton in Yorkſhire, Anno 1664. which Title is ſince devolv'd upon his Son the Right Honourable Thomas Bruce, the preſent Earl of Ailesbury.

AILMER, an Engliſh Monk, of the Order of St. Bennet, was much eſteem'd in the 12th Century. He wrote ſeveral Tracts; De Inquiſitione Dei. De Abſentia Vultus Dei, &c. Pitſeus de Script. Angl.

AILZE, Alza, or Aliſa, a rocky Iſland in the Weſt of Scotland, 24 miles from Arran, having but one paſſage into it, and is only inhabited at certain Seaſons of the year, when Buſſes and other Veſſels flock thither to Fiſh Cod and Whiting. It abounds with Conies and Sea Fowl, but eſpecially with Soland Geeſe. It has alſo an excellent ſafe Harbour for Shipping, in which the Waters being perpetually calm, becauſe environed with Rocks, there are ſuch ſtore of Fiſh, that if the Inhabitants catch more than ſerves 'em one day, they throw 'em into the Water again. Buchan.

AIMOIN, a Monk of the Order of St. Bennet, of the Abbey of Fleuri upon the Loire; lived about the latter end of the Tenth Century. He wrote ſeveral Things, but his moſt celebrated Piece is the Hiſtory of France, in Four Books, to which, after his death, a Fifth was added, which reaches to the year 1165. Sigebert. de Script. Eccl. c. 101. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. Du Cheſne, &c.

AINAON, or Ahinaon, an Iſland on the South ſide of China, and as 'tis ſaid, the Capital is of the ſame name.

AINS, a River of France common to Breſſe and Bugey. It riſes in the Valley of Miege in the Country of Burgundy, a League above the famous Fountain of Seros. It runs to Chaſteau Vilain, La Chaux, Monſaugein, under the Bridge de Poete, to Condes, Poncin, Pont d'Ains, Varembon, Chaſei, and Loyettes, where it throws it ſelf into the Rhone toward l'Port d'Antin, after it has received the Surent, the Arbolaine, and ſeveral other Rivulets. Guichenon.

AIN Semes, a ſmall Town over-againſt Grand Cairo N. of Memphis, on the Weſt ſide of the Nile, under Mount Moccatta, which is famous for the Gardens of Balm or Balſam, which grow: here and no where elſe, ſaith the Nubian Geographer, p. 98, 99. This Balm was by Herod the Great, ſent to Cleopatra Queen of Egypt, from Jericho, as Joſephus ſaith.

AINULPHUS, an Holy Hermit, was of the Royal Britiſh Blood, who waving the Trifles and Vanities of this World, betook himſelf to a ſolitary Life; but when, is not exactly known. Sure it is, that Anulphsbury, a Town upon the Borders of Bedford and Huntingdon-ſhires, was erected in his memory; part whereof corruptly called Aimsbury, is extant to this day; and the reſt is diſguis'd under the new name of St. Neots.

AION, an Engliſh Monk, lived in the time of the Emperor Otho II. He wrote the Memoirs of his Monaſtery of Croyland. This Work takes in about Two hundred and Seventy years, that is to ſay, from 700 to 970. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. &c.

AIORA (Gonſalvus) of Corduba, who having been a Soldier in Italy, France and Africk, at the Siege of Madalquivar and Oran, wrote notwithſtanding ſeveral Ingenious Tracts, and was the King of Spain's Hiſtoriographer. He lived in the beginning of the Sixteenth Century. Nicholas Antonio, Bibl. Hiſp.

AIR, Latin Æria, the name of a Town and River of the Country of Kyle in the South-weſt of Scotland: The River runs through the midſt of the County, and the Town ſtands upon it near the Sea; it is a place of good Trade, and an ancient Town.

AIRAS, an Heretick, about Anno 377. who maintain'd that the Holy Ghoſt was not Conſubſtantial with the Father and the Son. Athanaſius wrote againſt him, and Pope Liberius ſummon'd the Biſhops of Aſia together, who condemn'd his Opinion. Davity.

AIRAULT (Peter) a Lieutenant Criminal, or Recorder of Angers in France. He wrote a Tract of Paternal Authority, which has been ſeveral times Printed. He's likewiſe Author of a very curious Book, called l'Ordre & Inſtruction Judiciare, practis'd by the ancient Greeks and Romans, in the Caſe of Publick Impeachments, and ſuited to the Cuſtoms of France.

AIRE, a very ſtrong Town, with a good Caſtle, on the Frontiers of Flanders, within Three Leagues of St. Omers; the River Lys runs through it: It hath fine Churches and large Streets. The French took it in 1641. after a memorable Siege, but it was quickly after retaken by the Spaniard. It was again taken by the French in 1676. under the Command of Humieres. It hath a very ancient Collegiate Church called St. Peter's, to which Baldwin, Count of Flanders, added 14 Prebendaries, Anno 1064. Mayer and Marchantius.

AIRE, Latin Adurium, an Epiſcopal City of France in Gaſcony, under the Archbiſhop of Auch. It is ſeated in a fertile Country, governed by the Seneſchal of Bazas; and for Juſtice repairs to the Parliament of Guyenne. It was formerly much larger and fairer than now, as being the reſidence of the Kings of the Viſigoths; the Ruins of Alaric's Palace being ſtill to be ſeen upon the Banks of the Adour: And here it was that the ſame Alaric cauſed Theodoſius's Code to be publiſhed, after Anianus his Chancellor had reviewed it. du Cheſne.

AIRIACUM, Airy, a Caſtle in the Dioceſs of Auxerre, in Burgundy, where in the year 1020. a Council was held, wherein was preſent Robert King of France, together with the Archbiſhops of Bourges and Sens. St. Pierre de Vif.

AISNE, in Latin Axonia, a River in France, often mentioned in Cæſar's Commentaries.

AISTULPHUS, King of the Lombards, after his Brother Rachiſius, took Ravenna, and ſeiz'd upon all the reſt of the Exarchate; he alſo threatned Rome it ſelf, and all the Territories of the Holy See; which forced Pope Stephen III. to crave Aid of Pepin King of France, (whom, as alſo his Sons Charles and Carloman, he Crown'd while he was in the French Court) who entring Italy with a powerful Army, Beſieg'd Pavia, wherein Aiſtulphus had ſhut himſelf up, and conſtrained him to a Peace with the Pope, and ſolemnly to ſwear the Reſtoration of whatever he had uſurp'd from the Eccleſiaſtical State. But no ſooner was Pepin's back turn'd, but he betook himſelf again to his Arms, Beſieged Rome, and committed moſt barbarous havock in all the Territories round about: Upon which Stephen craves Aid of Pepin a Second time; who re-entring Italy, ſhut up Aiſtulphus in Pavia once more, and then conſtrain'd him to ſurrender into the hands of Fulrad, Abbot of St. Denys, his Commiſſioner, whatever he had uſurp'd from the Eccleſiaſtical Church, that is to ſay, the Exarchate of Ravenna, together with all the Country between Po, and the Appennine, from Piacenza to the Moraſs of Venice, and all between the River Foglia, and the Adriatick Sea, which was given to the Pope. Some time after, Aiſtulphus was kill'd as he rode a hunting in the year 758. Baronius, Paul. Æmylius, Paul. Diac.

AIT, a Place upon the Euphrates, Two days Journey above Bagdat, in which is a Mouth or Chaſme in the Earth, that perpetually ſendeth forth Smoak and melted Pitch, or Bitumen, which is received in a large Field, and ſerves to Pitch their Boats. Hacl. T. 2. p. 25.

AIUS, or Locutius, a Deity, to whom the Romans erected a Temple in the New Way, as an expiation to atone the neglected Voice that was heard in the Night, to give them notice of the coming of the Gauls, and of the Slaughter that ſhould befall 'em. Cicero, Aul. Gel.

AIX, the Capital of Provence in France, founded by the Romans, 15 Leagues from Arles, and 13 from Avignon, of great Antiquity, as appears by their Monuments and Inſcriptions ſtill in being there. In Latin it was called Aquæ Sextiæ, becauſe of its hot Baths, and was the Capital of the Salii, a People of Gallia Narbonenſis. The Roman Conſul Marius defeated the Germans near this City, and it was afterwards ruined by the Goths and Saracens; but always rebuilt. It was the uſual Reſidence of the Counts of Provence, and is at this time one of the fineſt Cities in France, for its Noble Buildings, large Streets and Piazza's. The Metropolitan Church of St. Saviour is a very ſtately Structure, and remarkable for its curious Font of exquiſite Workmanſhip, and all of white Marble. It is alſo an Archbiſhoprick, Univerſity, and Parliament Town; and the Seat of other Courts of Juſtice. The Peace betwixt France and Spain was Publiſh'd here with great Solemnity in 1660. the King aſſiſting at the Te Deum. The Prelates have held many Provincial Counſels here, particularly one in 1585. for Reformation of Manners, and Propagation of Faith. This City is large, ſituated on the ſide of a Hill, having a large Court with Four Rows of Trees, where the People take the Air both in Coach and an Foot: The Parliament Rooms are curiouſly Guilt and Painted with repreſentations of Juſtice. Their hot Baths are uſed both for Bathing and Drinking. In the Chappel of the Noble Ladies of the Order of St. Bartholomew, they pretend to have an Arm Bone of the Bleſſed Virgins Mother, Two Thorns of Chriſt's Crown, ſome of the Virgins Milk coagulated, a little Silk Girdle wrought by her, and one of her Needles; with one of the Stones that Stoned St. Stephen. In the great Church they have a ſide Chappel, into which, they ſay, if any Woman enters, ſhe is immediately ſtruck blind. Moreri. Grand Tour of France.

AIX la Chapelle, in French, Aquiſgranum, in Latin, called by the Inhabitants Aken, an Imperial Town in Germany on the Frontiers of Juliers and Limburg, and protected by the Duke of Juliers. It is ſaid to have been built by Granus the Brother of Nero, and thence called Aquis Granum; others think it took its Name from Apollo, called Grannius, becauſe of its Medicinal Waters and Baths. The Inhabitants however alledge, that it was firſt founded by Granus, Ann. Chr. 50. and ſhew part of an ancient Building at the Eaſt-end of the Town-houſe, called Turris Grani, which they alledge he built for his own reſidence; but the faſhion of the Building looks more Modern. About 400 years after, Charlemagne riding through the Woods a hunting, his Horſe's foot ſtruck into one of thoſe hot Springs, which occaſion'd his obſerving of the Place, and the ruins of many Palaces adjoyning; the City having been ruined by Attila King of the Huns. He found the Place ſo agreeable, that he choſe it for his Reſidence, conferred great Privileges upon it, and made it the Seat of the Empire on this ſide the Alpes, ordaining that the King of the Romans ſhould be Crowned here with an Iron Crown, as at Milan with one of Silver, and at Rome with one of Gold. He built alſo a Collegiate Church dedicated to the Virgin; enlarged and fortified the City, ſo that it flouriſhed till 882. that it was deſtroyed by the Normans. It has ſuffered much by Fire divers times ſince, and particularly in 1656. when 26 Churches and 5000 private Houſes were conſum'd. The Town-houſe is well built of Free-ſtone, having a Hall of 162 Foot long, and 60 broad, where the Emperors, at their Coronation, Treat the Electors and other Princes. The Church of our Lady, built by Charles the Great, is adorn'd in the inſide with Pillars of white Marble, and Braſs Gilt Statues, Braſs Doors, and much Moſaick work. In the middle of the Church, where Charles the Great was buried, hangs a Crown of Silver and Braſs, adorn'd with 16 little Towers, and 48 Statues of Silver of about a Foot high, and 32 which are leſſer; between which ſtand 48 Candleſticks to receive the Lights burnt here upon Feſtivals. This was the Gift of the Emperor Frederick the Firſt, who took up the Body of Charles the Great, and buried it again in a Silver Coffin, under his own Tomb-ſtone which is of white Marble, and ſaid to have been that of Julius Cæſar: It has the Figure of Proſerpina upon it. Out of this Tomb were taken a great many Rarities and Reliques which the ſaid Emperor had got from Aaron King of Perſia, the Patriarch of Conſtantinople, and others; as ſome of the Bleſſed Virgins Hair, a Link of St. Peter's Chain, the Picture of the Virgin with our Saviour in her Arms, Emboſſed on a Jaſpis by St. Luke, as they ſay, and hung about Charlemagne's Neck at his death. There were alſo found in the ſaid Tomb a Noble Manuſcript of the Goſpels, the Emperor's Crucifix, pretended to be of the very Wood of the Croſs; our Saviour's Leathern Girdle, with Conſtantine the Great's Seal at each end; a piece of the true Manna; ſome of St. Stephen's Bones and Blood richly enchaſed, upon which the Emperors are ſworn at their Inauguration; a piece of one of the Nails of the Croſs, and many others. Here are alſo ſhewn Charlemagne's Head, his Arm bone, and Sword with which the Emperors are Girt at their Coronation. They pretend alſo to have Joſeph's Hoſe, and ſome of our Saviour's Blankets. In this Place is alſo the Tomb of the Emperor Otho, who is ſaid to have firſt conſtituted the Electors, Anno 1000. Near this City are many Mines, as Lead, Sulphure, Vitriol, Iron, Coal, and Lapis Calaminaris, with which they make Braſs, or multiply Copper in their Furnaces. This City is alſo famous for its hot Baths, which are very much frequented, and exceeding convenient; Three of them are within the Walls, and very convenient, the Principal called the Emperor's Bath, which has Five Bathing Rooms; in one of which Charles the Great uſed to Bath and Swim. Theſe Baths are reckoned Nitro-ſulphureous: They riſe ſo hot, that they let them cool 12 hours before they uſe them. The Principal Spring is kept covered; and not opened but in preſence of ſome of the Magiſtrates. Dr. Brown ſays, that he ſaw taken out of this Fountain hard Brimſtone about an Inch thick, Saltpeter, and a Petrefied ſubſtance finely variegated. Beſides thoſe, are Three other Baths near the Inner Wall, which are Sulphureo-Nitrous; the Water ſmells offenſively, and is not tranſparent. There is alſo a Fountain of this hot Water, much reſorted to, and drunk of in the Summer: It has a Sulphureous taſte, and reckoned good againſt Chronical Diſtempers. A little from this City, on the other ſide of a Hill, at a Village called Borſeit, are many hot Springs on both ſides of a little Rivulet, which compoſe 28 Baths, whoſe Springs are hotter than any at the City, and are cool'd 18 hours before they be uſed. There are many cool Springs riſe near thoſe hot ones, by which they might be tempered. This City ſuffered much in the late Wars, being taken by the Proteſtants, and retaken by Spinola in 1614. Several Councils have been held in this City, one particularly in 799. where Alcuin diſputed againſt Urgel, and convicted him of Hereſie. Charlemagne called another in 809. about the Proceſſion of the Holy-Ghoſt. There was another in 816. about Nuns. Another in 819. for Reformation of Manners, and Regulating of Monks. Another in 836. about thoſe who meddled with the Poſſeſſions of the Church, which obliged the King of Aquitain to reſtore what he had taken. Beſides ſeveral other Councils of leſs Note. In 1668. there was a famous Treaty of Peace concluded here between the French and Spaniards. Moreri. Brown's Travels.

AIX, a City of Savoy, dignified with the Title of a Marquiſate, at the foot of the Mountains, between Chambery, Annecy, and Rumilly: The City is ancient, but ſmall, and ill-built: However it is famous for the hot Baths of Allom and Sulphur adjoyning to it, which are very much frequented.

AIZU, a Kingdom of Japan in the Iſland Niphonia, having Æſon and Nanbus on the North, and Voxus on the South: The Capital City is of the ſame Name, and ſituated on the Eaſtern ſhore. Baudrand.

AKALZIKE, is a Fortreſs built upon Mount Caucaſus, with a double Wall, and Flank'd with Towers, having Battlements, to which belong'd a New Town of 400 Houſes, peopled with Turks, Armenians, Georgians, Greeks, and Jews upon the River Kur (Cirus) and is the Seat of a Turkiſh Baſha. It was built by the Georgians, and taken from them by the Turks.

AKIBA, a Rabbi who lived in the Second Age, in great eſteem amongſt the Jews of Paleſtine, where he was Maſter 40 years together in a College which they had at Tiberias. Some ſuppoſe it was he that altered and endeavoured to corrupt the Sacred Scripture, by abridging the Number of the Patriarchs years ſet down in the Hebrew Text, to make the World believe the time for the coming of the Meſſiah is not yet arrived; for according to their Tradition, he was not to come till the 6000 year of the World. Pezeron. Antiq. des Tems.

AKIBA, a famous Rabbi, who lived in the Second Century. The Jewiſh Doctors follow his Explications of the Law, as Genebrard obſerves. 'Tis thought, he was Aquila of Pontus's Maſter, who quitting the Chriſtian Religion, turn'd Jew, and afterwards Tranſlated the Bible into Greek. St. Hierom in cap. 8. Iſai. Baron. A. C. 137.

AKILUS, a King of Æthiopia, who lived in the Firſt Century. Genebrard. in Chron.

AKINGIS, the Names that the Turks give their Voluntiers, that follow the Army in hopes of Booty and Plunder; but receive no Pay: Some call 'em Acanges. Ricaut.

ALABA, a Petty Country of Spain, formerly belonging to Navarr, afterwards to Biſcay, now united to Caſtile. It lies along the River Hebro, having Victoria for its Capital, which Don Sancho King of Navarr fortified for a Barricado againſt the King of Caſtile. Mariana.

ALABA, (Diego) Biſhop of Corduba: He was at the Council of Trent: and at that time Biſhop of Aſtorga. He wrote De Conciliis Univerſalibus, ac de his quæ ad Religionis & Reipublicæ Chriſtianæ Reformationem inſtituenda videntur. Nicholas Antonio, Bibl. Hiſp.

ALABANDA, a City of Caria, of which Place Menacles, Jerocles, and Apollonius Molo, Three great Orators, were Natives. Cicero, in his Natura Deorum, ſpeaks of one Alabundus, whom thoſe People ador'd as a God; and from whom perhaps the City might derive its Name. Though others will have Alabandus a Son of Carus to be the firſt King and Founder of it; who having won a famous Horſe-Race, was called Alabundus; from Ala, a Horſe, in their Language and Barde, Victorie. The Trade of the Town conſiſts in very ordinary pieces of Workmanſhip; whence any thing that was Trivial was proverbially called Opus Alabandicum. Juvenal.

ALABANDA, there were Two Towns of Caria of this Name; one of them was before called Antiochia, and had its new Name from Alabandus Son of Enippus; the other was built by one Car, and likewiſe called Alabanda, which was the Name of his Son.

ALACENUS, or Alhazenus, a Learned Engliſh Mathematician. 'Tis not known when he lived, but he is mentioned by Leland and Bale. He wrote Two Treatiſes, Perſpectiva, and De aſcenſu Nubium.

ALACRANES, Iſlands of New-Spain, ſo called from the great Number of Scorpions that breed therein: They lie to the North, and within 20 Leagues of Juratan, in the Northern America.

ALADIN, Soldan of Egypt and Damaſcus, was the Son of Saladin, who did ſo much miſchief to the Chriſtians in Paleſtine. In his time, viz. about 1193. the Chriſtians recovered ſome Places which his Father had won from 'em, as Beritus and Jafa; to which the aſſiſtance of the Knights of St. John, and the Knights Templars greatly contributed. However they made not that advantage they might have done of the fair opportunity offer'd 'em through the Conteſts of the Sons, to revenge themſelves for the Injuries which the Father had done 'em in his proſperity. Baronius.

ALAF, King of the Saracens in Aſia, he took the City of Edeſſa, then very Rich, by Aſſault, and Ranſack'd it after a moſt Cruel and Barbarous manner. This accident befell the Chriſtians upon Chriſtmas day at Night, in 1145. This rouſed the Chriſtian Princes, who at the Prayers of St. Bernard, Louis le Jeune, and others, undertook a Croiſade to recover the Holy Land; but without ſucceſs. This is ſuppos'd to be the ſame Alaf, or Alaph, who took Baldwin the Second, and kept him Three years in Priſon. Baron. Marmol.

ALBERT the Firſt, the Son of Rodulphus the Emperor, and the firſt of the Archdukes of Auſtria, (their Title before being Count of Hapsburg, a Caſtle betwixt Baſil and Zurick) by the Gift of his Father, who won it from Ottocarus King of Bohemia. Finding Adulphus of Naſſaw preferred to the Empire before him, he became his Mortal Enemy; and perceiving him forſaken by the chiefeſt of his Friends, put it to the deciſion of a Battel, wherein he ſlew Adolphus with his own Hand in the Year 1298. ſaying, Here it is that you ſhall reſign the Empire; and then was Crown'd at Aix la Chapelle, where the Concourſe was ſo great, that Albert II. Duke of Saxony was ſtifled in the Crowd. The Pope would not Ratifie his Election, but on Condition that he ſhould Conquer France, which he promiſed, but never performed. He is ſaid to have fought Twelve ſet Battels, but with various Fortune; nor had he always the juſteſt Grounds for his Wars. He deſigned to have made himſelf Maſter of the Kingdoms of Hungary and Bohemia; but fail'd in his Deſigns, and was at length ſtabb'd by John Duke of Swevia, from whom he had taken the Adminiſtration of the Government as being a Prodigal. Spond.

ALBERT the Second, was the Son-in-Law of the Emperor Sigiſmund, whoſe only Daughter he Married, and in her right after Sigiſmund's death, was Crown'd King of Hungary and Bohemia; He drove the Polanders out of the Empire, and reduced the Moravians to Obedience: But going to Aid the Deſpot of Servia againſt Amurath II. he fell into a Dyſentery by the way, occaſioned by a Surfeit of Melons in the parching Heat of Summer; and being brought back from Buda to Vienna there died in 1435. in the 35th of his Reign. He was a Prince both Mild, Patient, and Liberal, and who had laid Deſigns greatly to the Advantage of the Church and Empire. Æneas Sylvius.

ALBERT, Firſt Duke of Mechelburg, choſen King by the Nobility of Sweden, who could not endure the Tyranny of Magnus the 4th, but afterwards through Idleneſs falling into the ſame Extravagances, he was forſaken by thoſe that raiſed him, and overthrown in a Bloody Battel by Margaret the Widow of Haquin, Queen of Denmark and Norway, taken, and after ſeven Years Impriſonment, forced to renounce all his Right and Title to his Kingdom. J. Magnus.

ALBERT Archduke of Auſtria, the youngeſt Son of the Emperor Albert I. Sirnamed, The Ill Shap'd, becauſe his Limbs were contracted by Poiſon which had been given him. He was firſt deſigned for the Church; but came to the Dukedom after the Death of Five Brothers one after another. He was a Prudent and Judicious Prince, whoſe continual Sickneſſes did in no way hinder him from governing his Subjects happily. He died in the Year 1358.

ALBERT the Third, Sirnamed, The Aſtrologer, for his Love to that Science, reſtored the Univerſity of Vienna, and built the Fortreſs of Laxemburgh, but his immoderate Hunting brought him into a Diſtemper that carried him to his Grave in 1395. Bertius. Sanſovin.

ALBERT the Fourth, called, The Patient, ſucceeded The Aſtrologer, but being conſtrained to take Arms againſt Joſſe, Marquis of Moravia, was Poiſoned, and died in the Year 1404. This Prince is by ſome call'd Mirabilia Mundi, becauſe he Travell'd to the Holy-Land, and took Pleaſure to ſee the Wonderful things of thoſe Parts. He was a Prince Religious and Debonnaire. Bertius. Sanſovin.

ALBERT the Sixth, Son of the Emperor Maximilian II. deſigned firſt for the Church, and made Cardinal and Archbiſhop of Toledo. After that, Philip II. King of Spain, made him, firſt, Vice-Roy of Portugal, and then, Governor of the Low-Countreys in the Year 1596. Philip dying, he threw off his Purple, and Married the Infanta Iſabella, who brought him the Spaniſh Belgium and the County of Burgundy in Dowry. Being overthrown by Count Maurice of Naſſaw at Newport, in the Year 1609. he beſieged Oſtend, and at the end of Three Years, Three Months, and Three Days, took the Town reduced to a Heap of Rubbiſh, with the loſs of a Hundred thouſand Men, and the Expence of vaſt Sums, while Count Maurice took Sluys, Graves, and other Places, at leiſure. This Albert died without Iſſue in 1621. Thuanus. Grotius.

ALBERT the Third, the Devout and Debonnaire, Duke of Bavaria, remarkable for his Prudence and Moderation. He refuſed the Kingdom of Bohemia, which was offered him, becauſe he would not prejudice the Right of Ladiſlaus the Poſthumous, Son of the Emperor Albert II. He died of the Gout in 1460. Bertius. Sanſovin. Gans.

ALBERT the Fourth, Duke of Bavaria, Sirnam'd the Wiſe, came to the Dukedom, though he was the Youngeſt Brother. Died in the Year 1508. Sanſovin, &c.

ALBERT the Fifth, Duke of Bavaria, ſucceeded his Father William III. in 1550. He married Ann of Auſtria, Daughter of the Emperor Ferdinand I. and was a Zealous Oppoſer of the Reformation in Germany.

ALBERT the Firſt, Duke of Saxony, Sirnamed, The Proud, who becauſe his Mother had given the Marquiſate of Miſnia to his younger Brother, which his Father Otho refuſed to recall, he Rebell'd againſt, and ſurpriz'd him, Anno 1295. and kept him in Priſon; but he out-lived not his Rebellion long, and died without Iſſue. Bertius. Bang.

ALBERT the Second, The Degenerate, Duke of Saxony, Married the Daughter of the Emperor Frederick II. a Lady both Virtuous and Beautiful, by whom he had two Sons, Frederick the Strong or Bitten, and Diceman. But falling paſſionately in Love with a mean Wench, whoſe Name was Cunegunda; that he might Marry her, he firſt attemped to Poiſon his Wife, but that not ſucceeding, would have hir'd a Mule-driver that ſerved his Houſe with Wood, to have Strangled her, who abhorring the Treachery, adviſ'd her of it: She took leave of her Children with Tears in her Eyes, and embracing the Eldeſt ſo paſſionately, bit his Cheek ſo, as that he carried the Mark while he liv'd, and being let out of a Window in a Basket, ſhe eſcaped to Francfort, and retiring to a Nunnery, died for Grief; whereupon Albert Married Cunegunda, and by her had a Son called Lewis, whom he deſign'd for Heir. After her death, her two Sons took Arms againſt their Father, to revenge the Wrongs done to their Mother; and Albert, after a long Conteſt with his own Children, was forced to retire to a Monaſtery, where he died in 1314, without Eſtate or Honour. Bertius. Bangius. Hugelgans. &c.

ALBERT the Firſt, Elector of Saxony, was advanced to that Dignity by Frederick I. *An.*1180. He governed with Honour and Reputation, and was much beloved by the Emperor Frederick II. and undertook a Croiſado beyond Sea. According to ſome Authors he was ſucceeded Anno 1260 by Albert II. his Son, who was ſtifl'd in the Crowd at the Coronation of Albert the Emperor, who kill'd Adolphus of Naſſaw 1298. Spangenberg. Bertius, &c, ALBERT the Third of that Name, Duke of Saxony, being benighted with his Wife in a Foreſt, where they had been a Hunting, and forced to take ſhelter in a Peaſant's poor Cottage, which happened to be on Fire the ſame Night; ran out in his Shirt in ſuch a terrible Fright, that he could not recover himſelf, but died ſoon after. This was 1422. Bertius.

ALBERT, Duke of Saxony, Sirnamed, The Courageous, called alſo, The Right Hand of the Empire, was Governor of Frieſland in the Low-Countreys, which he reduc'd by Arms for the Emperor Maximilian I. in whoſe Service he ſignaliz'd himſelf by ſeveral Noble Exploits. He lived in the 15th Century. This Albert, and his Brother Erneſt, afterward Elector, had a notable Adventure in their Infancy. One Kaufung, who pretended to have been ill uſed by their Father, ſeized theſe two Princes at a Caſtle in the Country where they were brought up, and carried 'em away into a Wood. A Party of Soldiers carried away Erneſt, and Kaufung himſelf took charge of Albert, who meeting ſome Colliers, demanded their Aſſiſtance, and ſo was delivered, and his Brother alſo at the ſame time. Albert was Father to George, who was the Great Protector to Luther. Thuanus.

ALBERT the Firſt, Sirnamed The Bear, Son to Otho Prince of Anhalt, by his Courage and Conduct won the Love of all the Princes of Germany, and more eſpecially of the Emperor Conrade III. who made him Marquiſs and Elector of Brandenburgh in 1150. the Houſe of Staden failing, who had enjoy'd the Electorate before. He disforeſted all the Marche of Brandenburgh, which was nothing till that time but Woods, built ſeveral Towns, and peopled 'em with Inhabitants, which he invited out of Holland, Flanders, and other places. He alſo repeopled thoſe other parts of Brandenburgh which the Incurſions of the Swedes and Danes had laid waſte: And after he had Founded ſeveral Churches, Monaſteries, and Colleges, for the Inſtruction of Youth, died in the Year 1169. leaving Otho, who was afterward Marquiſs of Brandenburgh, and Bernard, who was Duke and Elector of Saxony. So that from the Family of Anhalt proceeded Two Electors. Angelus, Bertius.

ALBERT, Marquiſs and Elector of Brandenburgh, Sirnamed The Achilles, and Fox of Germany. He was Politick in Underſtanding, full of Courage, and an undaunted Captain. He had Wars in Sileſia, Bohemia, Pruſſia, and Germany; and though engaged in ſeveral bloody Combats, came off ſtill with Advantage; and of Nine Battels that he fought with the Citizens of Norembergh, who contended for the Liberty they had purchaſed of his Father, won Eight, but fail'd in the laſt. He died in 1486. in the 72d Year of his Age. Bertius, Crantz.

ALBERT, Grand Maſter of the Teutonic Order, and Firſt Hereditary Duke of Pruſſia, ſo created by his Uncle Sigiſmund Aguſtus, King of Poland, with whom he had conteſted the Right of Homage for ſome time, but unſucceſsfully. A Peace was at length concluded in 1525. and Albert embraced the Proteſtant Religion, and Married Dorothy, Daughter to the King of Denmark, a Princeſs of great Vertue; and died in 1568. Surius, Spond.

ALBERT-FREDERICK of Brandenburgh, Son of Albert and Ann-Mary of Brunſwick: He was Duke of Pruſſia, and ſolemnly Inveſted by Sigiſmund II. call'd The Auguſt, at an Aſſembly of the Eſtates of Lublin, held in 1566. Thuan. Hiſt. Henenberger, Deſc. Boruſſ.

ALBERT, Marquiſs of Brandenburgh, Son of Caſimir, in 1547. was ſent to Saxony by the Emperor Charles V. where he received from that Elector the Town of Roclitz, in which he was afterwards made Priſoner, but ſpeedily releaſed. In 1552. he publiſhed a Manifeſto againſt the Emperor, complaining of the Male-adminiſtration of Charles V. and his Miniſters, and entred into the Confederacy againſt him; and raiſing an Army, pillag'd Pruſſia, rais'd vaſt Sums from Duke Albert, took the Town and Caſtle of Lichtenaw, on the 5th of May: And not being ſatisfied with the Anſwers of the Nurembergers, to whom it belonged, burnt it, with 100 Villages, and 70 Caſtles. The Biſhop of Bamberg was forced to quit him 20 Cities, beſides that of Wirtſburg, paying him in ready Money 200000 Crowns, and giving Security for 900000 Livres beſides. The Towns of Swabia Treated with him; and Nuremberg, which he beſieged, promiſed him 200000 Crowns, with 6 great Battering Pieces. He alſo laid waſte the Territories of the Electors of Ments and Treves, took the Cities of Spires and Wormes, haraſs'd Lorrain and Luxemburg, and cruelly uſed the Eccleſiaſticks where-ever he came; and with a moſt inhuman Barbarity burning and plundering Places conſecrated to Religion; and thought to have ſurprized the Duke of Guiſe at Metz. At length he agreed with the Emperor, and aſſiſted at the Siege of the ſaid Metz, in the Year 1553. Being returned into Germany, he continued his Outrages, and perſecuted the Biſhops and Towns, with whom he had already Treated. The Biſhop of Bamberg having obtain'd Letters from the Chamber of Spires againſt him, was about getting them put in execution. In the mean time Albert invades Saxony and Brunſwick with Fire and Sword, but was totally routed by Maurice of Saxony, Aug. 7. 1553. the latter dying quickly after of his Wounds. He was routed again at Schwinfurt, June 1554. put into the Imperial Ban, and forfeited; whereupon he retired into France: But having leave to return home, and plead his own Cauſe, coming to his Kinſman the Marquiſs of Baden, out of a deep and melancholy Conſideration of his former Greatneſs, and a Life intemperately led, he there fell ſick, and died, An. 1557. An egregious Example of the Inconſtancy of Humane Affairs, That he who was wont to be ſurrounded with ſo many Thouſands of Armed Men; He who had filled all Germany with the Terror of his Name, ſhou'd end his Days, deſerted by his Fortune and his Friends, in extremity of Miſery! He was of a quick Wit, but Violent, and much inclin'd to Drink, ſo that he ſeem'd to be in a continual Fury; but by his Prodigality he engaged his Soldiers to him. He was called the Alcibiades of Germany. Thuan. Davil. Sleidan.

ALBERT the Firſt, Sirnamed The Great, Duke of Brunſwick, and Son of Otho I. He was a Martial and Enterprizing Perſon. He died in 1297. Albert Crantz. Bertius de German. Lib. 2. &c.

ALBERT the Second, Duke of Brunſwick, younger Son to Albert I. He was call'd the Groſs, from his Corpulence, and ſucceeded his Brother William. Crantz. Cypraeus, &c.

ALBERT, Archbiſhop of Mayence, Duke of Lorrain, Chancellor to the Emperor Henry V. who made him one of his Electors: At firſt his great Friend, but afterward ungratefully rais'd all Saxony againſt him, and took part with the Pope his moſt bitter Enemy, and contributed to the chuſing Lotharius of Saxony to ſucceed Henry V. Died in 1137. Hiſt. Germ.

ALBERT Aquenſis, a Canon of Aix la Chapelle: He lived in the latter end of the 12th Century. He made a Voyage to the Holy Land, and wrote a Hiſtory of it in Twelve Books, under the Title of, Hiſtoria Expeditionis Hieroſolymitanæ, ſuper Itinere ſive Paſſagio Godofredi Bulloinii. He finiſh'd this Work about the Year 1190. 'Twas Printed by one Reiner Reineccius in 1602. without the Author's Name to't; but the Collection of the Authors of the Oriental Hiſtory, call'd Geſta Dei per Francos, gives it to this Albert. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. Lib. 3. c. 6.

ALBERT Argentinenſis, or of Straſburg: He wrote a Hiſtory or Chronicle of the German Empire, from Rodolphus I. to Charles IV. that is to ſay, from An. 1270. to 1378. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Lat.

ALBERT of Padua, a Monk of the Order of St. Auguſtine; a Perſon of great Reputation in the 14th Century, for his Learning and his Writings. He wrote Comments on the Five Books of Moſes; upon the Four Goſpels, the Epiſtles of St. Paul, and Five Volumes of Sermons. His Statue, with a Panegyrical Inſcription, is to be ſeen at Padua, which was ſet up at the Charge of the Government. Trithem. de Script. Eccleſ. Poſſevin. in Appar. Miræus, &c.

ALBERTI (James) of Bolognia in Italy, in the 14th Century. He wrote a Treatiſe of the Difference between the Civil and Canon Law, Bound up with Bartolus's Works. Alidoci de Doc. Bonon. Bumaldi, &c.

ALBERTI (John) a German Lawyer, born at Widmanſtadt; a Perſon of Note in the 16th Century. He was knowing in the Oriental Languages, and eſpecially in Hebrew and Arabick, with a good ſhare of Greek. He publiſhed an Abridgment of the Alchoran at Nurenburg, with Remarks upon the Impoſtures of Mahomet. in the Year 1543. with ſome other Treatiſes. Miræus de Script. Sæc. 16.

ALBERTI (Leo Baptiſta) of Florence, a conſiderable Man in the 16th Century: He was not only a Learned Perſon, but a great Architect, and called the Archimedes and Vitruvius of his time. He wrote ſeveral Pieces; De Pictura, Lib. 3. De Architectura. Momus, &c. Ricciolus.

ALBERTUS Magnus, by Profeſſion an Auſtin Friar, a Native of Padua, Thomas Aquinas's Maſter, who got his Learning in the Univerſity of Paris, and then ſow'd it again over all Italy. Others will have him to be a German Dominican, born at Lavingen in Suabia, and deſcended from the Family of the Counts of Bolſtaten. Pope Alexander IV. ſent for him to Rome, where he officiated as Maſter of the Sacred Palace: And Urban IV. forced him to accept of the Biſhoprick of Ratisbon. He died at Cologne, where he ſpent the greateſt part of his time, in the Year 1280. in the 87th Year of his Age. The love of Solitude made him quit his Publick Employments, to betake himſelf to his Cloiſter again. Some Authors accuſe him of Magick, ſay he knew the Philoſopher's Stone, invented Gun-powder, and had a Brazen Head, which gave him Reſponſes. But the World is long ſince come off from theſe ridiculous Fancies. Trithem. Bellarm. Voſſius.

ALBIA, Albiga, Albi, a City of France in the Upper Languedoc, and a Seat of a Biſhop under the Achbiſhop of Bourges. It is the Chief City of a ſmall Country called Albigeois. The Cathedral Church, Santa Cecilia, has one of the moſt Beautiful Quires in France. From this Town and Country were the Albigenſes named. Le Mire.

ALBICUS, Archbiſhop of Prague, advanced to that Dignity by Sigiſmund King of Bohemia, a great Friend to John Huſs, and the Diſciples of Wicliff; a Perſon of great Wit and Learning, but is ſaid to have been Covetous to a great Degree. He wrote three Treatiſes in Phyſick; that is to ſay, Praxis Medendi, Regimen Sanitatis, and Regimen Peſtilentiæ. Sponde A. C. 1412.

ALBIGENSES, in French Albigeois, ſo called becauſe of their firſt increaſe in Albi, and Albigeois, from whence they ſpread themſelves all over Lyonnois and Languedoc, Thoulouſe, Aquitain, and Agennois, in a very ſhort time. Their Opinions were, in a great meaſure, the ſame with the Waldenſes: They were Excommunicated by the Pope, and a Holy War raiſed upon them: Peter King of Arragon, and the Earls of Tholouſe, Foix, Cominges, &c. undertook their Protection. This Religious Diſpute was very Bloudy. Simon Earl of Montfort having defeated the Confederates, and a Peace being made between Raymund Count of Tholouſe, and Lewis the Godly, the Albigenſes ſunk, and were moſt of 'em reconciled to the Church of Rome. The remainder of thoſe that ſtood out, retired to the Alps and Piedmont, where, after Zwinglius and Calvin appeared, they ſent for ſome of their Miniſters, and began to form a Church upon the Model of Geneva. Theſe Proceedings provoked the Parliament of Provence; upon which, the Baron of Oppede got an Order of Council to fall upon 'em, and deſtroyed 4000 of 'em with Fire and Sword. The Regiſter of Tholouſe, containing the Proceedings againſt the Albigenſes, Printed at Amſterdam in 1692. gives a large Account of the Tenents of the Albigenſes, and Waldenſes, or Vaudois; who though they held many things in common, yet they had ſomething diſtinct and peculiar. The Albigenſes are accuſed of being Manecheans; but this is not charged upon the Vaudois. Theſe latter are ſaid to deny the Lawfulneſs of Magiſtracy, to deny Purgatory, and the Significancy of Praying for the Dead. Dr. Cave, in his Hiſtoria Literaria, proves from Æneas Sylvius, and Reinerius Sachonus, that the Albigenſes were Orthodox; and that their only Crime was, their Remonſtrances againſt the Juriſdiction and Conduct of the Church of Rome. Hiſt. Liter. p. 632.

ALBIGERIUS, a Carthaginian Magician, who, by the help of the Devil, could give a ſhrewd Gueſs at Peoples Thoughts. St. Auguſtine declares he has ſeveral times ſeen ſome of his Conjurations.

ALBINACT, a Son of Brutus, the ſuppoſed Planter of Britain, to whom was allotted, after his Father's Death, Albania, now Scotland; being invaded by Humber, King of the Hunns, he was ſlain in a Fight, and his People driven back into Loegria, his Brother Locrine's Country. Humber marching forward, was encountred by Locrine and his Brother Camber, who being defeated by 'em, was drowned in a River, which retains his Name to this day.

ALBINOVANUS Pedo, a Poet, Contemporary with Ovid, to whom he gives the Epithet of Celeſtial, and graces him with one of his Pontick Elegies. He wrote the Voyage of Germanicus; and there is yet extant an excellent Elegy of his upon the Death of Druſus: But the Elegy upon the Death of Mecena, ſeems to be erroneouſly attributed to him. Scaliger, Voſſius.

ALBINUS, Decimus Claudius, a Native of Adrumetum in Africa, who cauſed himſelf to be proclaimed Emperor in England. And Septimius Severus allowed him the Dignity of Caſar, and told him alſo he had deſigned him for his Succeſſor: However, it was known that at the bottom he did not love him; for after he had vanquiſhed Niger, who was declared Emperor in the Eaſt, he fell upon him, and in a bloody Battel, near Lyons, overthrew him. After which, Albinus being beſieged in a Houſe near the Rhone, and ſeeing no way to eſcape, fell upon his own Sword, and ſlew himſelf. Severus uſed the Corps barbarouſly, made his Horſe paſs over it, and cut off his Head, which he ſent to Rome, and ſpoke outrageouſly to him, as if he had been alive. Hiſtorians ſay, that he could eat 10 Melons, or 500 Figs, at a Breakfaſt. Albinus was very tall, and, for an African, had a delicate Complexion, and a Voice as ſhrill as a Woman's. He was Cholerick, but Courageous: He Drank little, but Eat unmercifully. He had Learning, and made paſſable Verſes. Julius Capitolinus, Dion.

ALBINUS, in the Reign of Nero, ſucceeded Feſtus in the Government of Judæa. He uſed great Application to quiet the Diſorders of the Country, and to clear it from Robbers. Joſeph. Lib. ult. Antiq. C. 8.

ALBINUS (Lucius) perceiving Romulus's Prieſt, and the Veſtal Virgins, carrying off the Images of the Gods on Foot, when Rome was taken by the Gauls, ordered his Wife and Children to go out of his Chariot, to make room for theſe Religious Perſons, preferring the Intereſt of Religion to that of his own Family, he went out of his way to conduct theſe Veſtals to a place of Security. Plutarch in Camil. Val. Max. Lib. 2. C. 1. There were likewiſe ſeveral of this Name Conſuls.

ALBION, the ancient Name of the Iſle of Great Britain, ſo called from the Latin, Album, White, by reaſon of the white Chalky Cliffs on the Sea-Coaſts thereof; or, as ſome will have it, from Albion a Son of Neptune, it being not improper that ſo great an Iſland of the Ocean ſhould be denominated from the Son of the Prince of the Sea. See GREAT BRITAIN.

ALBION, the Son of Neptune by Amphitrite, who was ſtoned to death by Jupiter for oppoſing Hercules, endeavouring to paſs the Rhone near Aigues-Mortes, at what time Hercules having ſpent all his Arrows, was forced in his Extremity to implore the Aid of Jupiter. Pomponius Mela. Pliny.

ALBION: He and Witikind Commanded the Saxon Forces againſt Charlemain; but being frequently Unfortunate, hearken'd at laſt to the Friendly Propoſals of that Emperor; and being very much affected with his Generoſity, after a ſafe Conduct came to him to Paderborn, and from thence follow'd him into France, where they were Baptized at his Palace of Atigny. Mezeray's Life of Charlemain.

ALBIS de (Thomas) or Thomas White, Second Son of Rich White of Hutton in Eſſex, Eſq; bred from his Childhood a Roman Catholick, became at length a Secular Prieſt, and one of the moſt noted Philoſophers of his time, as his publiſh'd Writings, much admired and ſought after by the Learned, ſhew. Hobbs of Malmesbury and he viſited each other, and often wrangled and ſcolded about Philoſophical Queſtions like young Sophiſters, tho' they were both, at that time of their Acquaintance, paſt 80 years of Age. The Scholars that were preſent at their Diſputes, held that White carried the Laurel. He died in 1676. the 94th Year of his Age.

ALBOHAZEN Hali, the Son of Abenragel the Arabian, who lived in the 13th Age, and compoſed a Book of the Judgment that was to be made by the Stars, which Alphonſus X. King of Caſtile, Sirnamed the Aſtronomer, cauſ'd to be tranſlated into Spaniſh, from whence it was afterwards turned into Latin. Voſſius.

ALBOIN, King of the Lombards, extirpated the Gepidæ, already much broken by continual Wars, and ſlew their King, whoſe Daughter Roſamond he had Married, making a Cup of her Father's Skull, which he tipp'd with Gold. Afterwards he fell into Italy with Fire and Sword, took Milan, Pavia, Ravenna, and all the moſt conſiderable Cities, except Rome. But at length, after ſo many Victories, his Wife Roſamond, who look'd upon him as the Murderer of her Father, cauſed him to be aſſaſſinated by her Gallant Helmiges, after he had Reigned 32 Years; and then ſhe retired to Ravenna with a vaſt Treaſure, and part of the Army, in the Year 574. Paulus Diaconus. See ALBOVINUS.

ALBON, a County of the Dauphinate in Viennois, from whence the Counts of Albon derive their Title, and from whoſe Lineage deſcended an Ancient and Illuſtrious Family, ſtill remaining in France in divers Branches, under the Titles of Marquiſſes Forgeaux and Fronſac, and Sieurs de St. Andre. Chorier.

ALBORAN, called by others Albuſama, a little Iſland in Africa, near the Kingdom of Fez. It has ſeveral little Villages, and is fortified with a Caſtle againſt Pirates.

ALBORG, a Town of Denmark in Jutland, with a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Lunden. Latin Authors call It Arburgum, or Ælburgum.

ALBORNOZ, Giles Alvarez, Archbiſhop of Toledo, Royally deſcended both by Father and Mother; he was made a Cardinal by Clement VI. in 1350. and by his Succeſſor Innocent VI. ſent into Italy Legate and General in the War he had undertaken againſt the Uſurpers of St. Peter's Patrimony, whom the Cardinal reduced to their Obedience, reſtored Peace to Italy, and recalled Urban V. from Avignon to Rome. He died in 1367. When he was created Cardinal, he quitted his Archbiſhoprick of Toledo; for which being blam'd, he made anſwer, That he was no more to be blam'd for quitting a Wife to whom he could not be ſerviceable, than D. Pedro King of Arragon, was for quitting his Wife Blanch of Bourbon, to careſs Mary de Padilla his Miſtreſs. Being asked by Urban V. what he had done with all the vaſt Sums of Money ſent him during the Wars of Italy? He ordered a Wagon laden with Bolts, Locks, Bars, and Keys, to be driven under the Pope's Palace; and then deſiring his Holineſs to look out at a Window, told him, The Money which he ask'd for, had been ſpent in making him Maſter of all thoſe Cities, of which thoſe were the Keys and Locks which he ſaw in the Waggon. The Pope, pleaſed with this Anſwer, careſs'd and thanked him; and regretted his Death ſo much, that, to put a Reſpect on him, he promis'd an Indulgence to thoſe that would carry the Litter which his Corps lay in; whereupon Henry King of Caſtile, and moſt of the Grandees of his Court, carried it, to obtain this Indulgence. Ciaconius, Spond.

ALBOROUGH, a Market, Sea-Port, and Borough-Town of Plumſgate Hundred, in the Eaſt parts of Suffolk, pleaſantly ſeated in a Dale, between the Sea Eaſtward, and the River Ore Weſtward, and chiefly noted for its Fiſhery.

ALBOVINUS, King of the Lombards: He invaded Pannonia as ſoon as able to bear Arms, and Reigned 42 Years; but after he had conquer'd, he quitted it to the Hunns; and being reinforced by the Succours of ſeveral Princes, and chiefly of the French, amongſt whom he had taken his Wife, he invaded Italy, and made himſelf Maſter of it in 586. And thus began the Kingdom of the Lombards, which ended in 774. by the Conqueſts of Charlemain. His Death was contrived about 571. by his Second Wife Roſamond, provoked by him, for forcing her, at a great Banquet at Verona, to drink in the Skull of King Chunimond her Father, with this Sarcaſm, Drink heartily with your Father: Which ſo incens'd her, that ſhe caus'd him to be kill'd by two of her Officers, with one of which ſhe had committed Adultery to engage him in the Murder. Hoffman.

ALBRET, in Latin Lebretum, a County of Gaſcoign, in that part call'd Les Landes de Bourdeaux, and in the Dioceſs of Bazas, Dignified with the Title of Dukedom. The Capital City of this Province is Albret; the other Towns are Nerac, Montreal, Caſtel-Aloux. In 1556. King Henry II. erected it into a Dukedom, in favour of Anthony de Bourbon, King of Navarr, and Jane d'Albret his Wife, and Mother to Henry IV. At preſent it belongs to the Houſe of Bouillon. The Family of Albret has been very Ancient in France, and Fruitful in Great Perſonages of both Sexes: Amongſt the reſt, Charles d'Albret, who oppos'd the Engliſh in Gaſcoigny in 1402. but in 1415. was kill'd in the Battel of Agen-Court, where he Commanded the Vanguard of the French Army, &c. Du Cheſne.

ALBUCASA, or Albucaſſis, an Arabian Phyſician of the 11th Century, about the year 1085. ALCAMINES, the Ninth King of the Spartans, Succeſſor to Teleclus, Reigned 17 Years. He was eminent for his Juſtice and Abſtinence; and Plutarch reports of him, That being asked which was the beſt way to preſerve a Commonwealth, he made anſwer, To prefer all things above Self-Intereſt. To another that asked him why (being Rich) he lived ſo poorly, he reply'd, That 'twas moſt Reputable for a Man of Fortune to Govern himſelf rather by Reaſon than Appetite. To thoſe that laugh'd at him for refuſing a Preſent of the Meſſenians, he retorted, That he could never be at peace with Juſtice, had he accepted the Liberality of his Country's Enemies. Being reſolved to revenge the Death of his Father ſlain by the Meſſenians, he took the City of Amphea, and put all the Inhabitants to the Sword, even in the very Temples. Plutarch.

ALCANDER, one of the Companions of Sarpedon, King of Lycia, kill'd by Ulyſſes at the Siege of Troy. Alſo a young Man of Sparta, who put out one of Lycurgus's Eyes in a Popular Inſurrection againſt that Lawgiver; whom Lycurgus was ſo far from puniſhing, that he carried him home, and preferr'd him above all his Domeſtick Servants; by which he won ſo far upon the young Man, that he lov'd and honour'd him afterwards above all Men living. Plutarch.

ALCANTARA, a ſmall but ſtrong City of Spain, on the River Tajo, or Tagus, near the Borders of Portugal, 120 Miles North of Seville, Long. 10. 30. It is an ancient Town, having a Bridge 670 Foot long, and 28 wide, ſtanding on 6 Pillars, built by Trajan, and was ruined by Pompey's Captains. It's noted for an Order of Knights, who take the Denomination of Alcantara, formerly Knights of the Pear-Tree. This Town being taken from the Moors by Alphonſo IX. King of Leon, An. 1212. he gave it to the ſaid Knights, who thereupon wore the Green Croſs Flower-de-Luc'd. At firſt they ſwore Chaſtity; but Pope Paul IV. permitted them to Marry; and Pope Alexander VI. united the Great Maſterſhip of it to the Crown of Spain, in favour of King Ferdinand and Iſabella. Mariana.

ALCARAZ, a City of New Caſtile in Spain, on the River Guadana, 14 miles from Andaluzia, 83 S. of Cuenza, and 125 S. E. of Madrid, Long. 10. 30. Lat. 39. 25.

ALCATARAN, made King of Cordoua by the Arabians, after the death of Abdumalic, but becauſe he favour'd the Foreign Mahometans, eſpecially thoſe of Damaſcus, he incurr'd the hatred of his Subjects, who therefore ſought to depoſe; him however he vanquiſh'd theſe Rebels, but his ungrateful Favourites making head againſt him, beſieg'd and took him in the Fortreſs of Cordoua, and there hung him up over one of the Battlements. Marmol.

ALCATHOUS, the Son of Pelops, who being ſuſpected for the murther of Chryſippus his Brother, fled to Megara, where having kill'd a Lyon which had torn in pieces Euripus the King's Son, he Married the Queen's Daughter, and ſucceeded him in the Kingdom, by whoſe Name Megara was afterwards call'd Alcathoe. Vide Megara. Pauſanias.

ALCAZAR, the Name which the Moors gave to their Royal Palaces, as to that of Toledo, repair'd and much adorn'd by Charles V. where is to be ſeen that wonderful Hydraulick Engine, which draws up the Water from the River Tagus to ſo great a height, that it is thence convey'd in Pipes to the whole City.

ALCAZAR, Quivir, or the Great, the Capital City of the Province of Aſgar upon the Coaſts of Barbary, famous for the Battel of Alcazar, where Sebaſtian King of Portugal loſt both the Field and his Life. It was built by Jacob Almanzor, King of Fez, for a Port to take Shipping in for Granada: Alphonſus V. King of Portugal, won it in the Year 1448. and 11 Years after, the Moors ſate down before it, but were forced to quit their Deſign with Loſs and Shame. Marmol.

ALCAZAR-CEGUER, or the Little Palace, a City of the Province of Habet in the Kingdom of Fez, ſeated towards the Streights of Gibraltar, which in that part is but 3 Leagues over, right againſt Tariffa. It was built by Jacob Almanzor, and ſo call'd to diſtinguiſh it from Alcazar-Quivir. Alphonſo V. took this City alſo in 1458. but King John III. quitted it in 1540, as being of no advantage to him. Marmol.

ALCENOR, or Alcinor, an Argive, who in a Combat of 300 Argives, with as many Lacedæmonians, to determine the bounds of their Territories, was one of the two that eſcap'd, the reſt being all ſlain, and all but one of the other ſide. Herod. Clio.

ALCESTE, or Alceſtis, the Daughter of Pelias, and Wife of Admetus King of Theſſaly, who offer'd to die to ſave her Husband's Life. Vide Admetus. Euripides.

ALCETAS, King of Macedon, Son of Eropus, and Father of Amyntas, Reign'd Eight years, and died An. M. 3527. Euſebius mentions him, but Juſtin leaves him out in his Catalogue of the Anceſtors of Alexander the Great. Euſeb. Juſtin.

ALCETAS, Son of Arybdas, and King of the Epirotes. He was of ſo hot and violent a Temper, that his Father, not enduring his Cruelties, was forc'd to baniſh him the Kingdom. When it came to his turn to ſucceed, he continued his Extravagant Rigours, and was at laſt, together with his Children, murther'd by his Subjects: And Pyrrhus was choſen in his Place. Pauſan. Lib. 1.

ALCHYMIE, a name given to the Art of Purifying Metals, and changing the leſs perfect into Gold and Silver; and to the Extracting of the Spirits of Minerals and Plants. The Followers of this Art pretend, that Adam taught it Enoch, and that from him it deſcended to Moſes and others. Some are ſo prophane as to alledge Solomon's Song to relate to this Subject, and to be the Epithalamium of the Sun and Moon. Pliny ſays, the Emperor Caligula was the firſt who prepar'd Natural Arſenick in order to make Gold of it, but left it off becauſe the Charge exceeded the Profit. Others ſay, the Egyptians had this Myſtery, which, if true, how could it have been loſt? The Arabians are alſo ſaid to have invented this Myſterious Art, wherein they were follow'd by Raymond Lullus, Paracelſus, and others, who never found any thing elſe but Aſhes in their Furnaces. So that Kirker obſerves judiciouſly, that the Quadrature of the Circle, Perpetual Motion, Inextinguiſhable Lamp, and Philoſophers Stone, have rack'd the Wits of Philoſophers and Mathematicians for a long time without any effect. P. Kircher mundi ſubterranei Tom. 2.

ALCIAT, (Andrew) a Milaneze Lawyer, who liv'd in the 16th Century. The Commonwealth of Learning is very much oblig'd to him for clearing his own Faculty from Barbariſms and Obſcurity, ſetting it in a due light, and repreſenting it with juſt Advantage. The Munificence of Francis the Firſt invited him to France, where he read upon his Profeſſion at Avignon, Bourges, &c. He died at Pavia in the year 1550. He left ſeveral Law Treatiſes behind him, and alſo a Book of Emblems, which ſhew the extent of his Learning. Thuanus gives a great Character of him. Hiſt. Lib. 8.

ALCIAT, (Tirentius) a Jeſuit and Divine of Rome, of great Reputation: He wrote the Acts of the Council of Trent, &c. And died in the year 1651.

ALCIAT, (Paul John) a Milanois, firſt a Soldier, and then one of Socinus's Partners in Preaching that the Son and Holy Ghoſt are not Almighty and Eternal, and that the Father gave 'em not his own being, but one inferior. The King of Poland having baniſh'd 'em his Kingdom, Alciat became a Turk, and died miſerably, as ſome ſay, but others, that he died at Dantzick, and not a Turk. Spond.

ALCIBIADES, the Firſt of that Name. He was the Son of Æantides, and Soveraign of Lampſacum: He joyn'd with Cliſthenes, the Son of Megecles, to expel Piſiſtratus, and his Sons, from Athens; but growing too Potent and Popular afterwards, he was baniſh'd by Oſtraciſm. Thucid. Lib. 3.

ALCIBIADES, General of the Athenians, nobly deſcended, and adorn'd with great Endowments of Wit and Beauty. During the Peloponneſian War his Councel and Courage caus'd the Athenians to declare War againſt the Syracuſians, and to make him their General. His Enviers accuſing him of Sacrilege, tho' wrongfully, he would not truſt the lightneſs and cruelty of his Citizens, but fled to Thebes; where underſtanding that his Perſon was condemn'd, and his Eſtate confiſcated, he fell in with the Lacedæmonians, and caus'd 'em to enter into an Alliance with the King of Perſia, to beſiege Athens; nevertheleſs miſtruſting the Lacedæmonians, no leſs diſtruſtful of him, he fled to Tiſſaphernes, Darius's General. Soon after which, he was recall'd by the Athenians; but before he would return to the City, he conſtrain'd the Lacedæmonians, five times beaten by Land, and three by Sea, to ſue for a Peace, took Ionia, Byzantium, and ſeveral other Cities upon the frontiers of Aſia; for which he was receiv'd in triumph into Athens, had all his Eſtate reſtor'd, and was laden with Honours. In the mean time his Lieutenant-General fighting the Lacedæmonians without order, and loſing the Battel, gave his Enemies occaſion to proſecute him a-freſh, upon which he fled to Pharnabazus, who gave him Grunium, a ſtrong City in Phrygia, worth 50 Talents a year: While he ſtay'd there, he was contriving to League himſelf with the King of Perſia for the deſtruction of the Lacedæmonians, not being able to ſuffer the ruine of his own ungrateful Country. Lyſander having notice of his Intreague, wrought ſo effectually with Pharnabazus, that he ſent Siſamithres, and Bagoas, to kill him, who having ſurpriz'd him in a Country Cottage, as he was upon his Journey to the Perſian Court, endeavour'd firſt to have burnt him alive, by ſetting fire to the Houſe, but that failing, they ſhot him to death with their Arrows, after he had eſcap'd the Flames, An. 350 of Rome. Plutarch.

ALCIDES, a Name given to Hercules, to expreſs his Strength and Courage according to the ſignification of the Greek word Alke, or elſe from Alcæus, his Grandfather by the Father's ſide, as Herodotus relates. Alſo a Name given to Minerva by the Macedonians, as Tit. Liv. teſtifies, who reports of Perſeus, that before he undertook the War with the Romans, he ſacrific'd a Pompous Sacrifice to Minerva ſirnam'd Alcides. Plutarch.

ALCIMUS, a Renegado Jew, and a Traytor to his Country, who was put in poſſeſſion of the High Prieſthood by Bacchides, at the command of Demetrius, but outed again by Judas Maccabæus, who ſlew Nicanor that was ſent to reſtore Alcimus a ſecond time. This Alcimus was ſucceeded in the Prieſthood by Judas Maccabæus, the firſt of the Aſſamonean Line. Joſephus.

ALCINOUS, the Son of Nauſitous King of the Phæaces, a People of Corcyra, a moſt juſt Prince, and one that delighted much in Gardening and Planting, ſo that his Orchards were not only moſt delightful, but fruitful and profitable withall. Ulyſſes being caſt by foul Weather upon his Iſland, was by him ſo magnificently Entertain'd, that in recompence the Hero thought he could do no leſs than amuſe him with long Stories of the Cyclopes, Lotophagi, Circe, and a hundred other Adventures, whence the Dreams and Figments of impertinent People are proverbially denoted under the Name of Alcinous's Fables. Homer. Ovid. Virgil. Tertul. Plato.

ALCINOUS, a Platonick Philoſopher, who has given us an Abridgment of his Maſter's Philoſophy, Tranſlated into Latin by Marcilius Ficinus, and Corrected by James Charpentier, ſet forth alſo at Leiden by Daniel. Euſebius cites a good part of Alcinous, under the name of Didymus. Præpar. Evang. Lib. 11. Heiſius.

ALCIONE, or Alcyone, the Daughter of Neptune, or of Æolus. She was Marry'd to King Ceyx, who was wreck'd as he came back from conſulting Apollo's Oracle. This Accident affected his Wife to that degree, that ſhe threw her ſelf into the Sea, near the place where ſhe ſaw her Husband's Corps floating.

ALCIONEUS, a Gyant, the Brother of Porphyrion. He kill'd 24 of Hercules's Soldiers, and was going to knock down that Hero, but Hercules parry'd his Club, and laid him dead upon the ſpot. Seven young Maids, who had a fancy for Alcioneus, were ſo concern'd at this Misfortune, that they drown'd themſelves in the Sea, and were turn'd into Halcyons. Natalis Comes, Lib. 7. c. 1.

ALCIPPE, the Daughter of Mars and Aglaurus, who was purſued by Halirrottius, the Son of Neptune, with a deſign to Raviſh her, for which he was kill'd by Mars. The Poets ſay, that Neptune accus'd him for this before the 12 Gods, who being equally divided in their Opinions, Mars was acquitted. The place where the Gods ſate in Judgment was call'd Areopagus, and the Judges Areopagites. There was alſo another Alcippe, the Daughter of Oenomaus, Wife of Evenus, and Mother of Marpiſſa, who being Raviſh'd away by Idas, Evenus purſued the Raviſher, but not being able to overtake him, he flung himſelf into the River Lycornas, and became Immortal. Pliny makes mention of one Alcippe, who brought forth an Elephant. Pliny.

ALCIPPUS, a Citizen of Lacedæmon, of great Authority in his Country, and moſt Studious of the Welfare of it, nevertheleſs through the continual Accuſations of thoſe that envied his Virtues, was at length ſent into Exile. His Wife Alcippe deſigning to follow him, was prevented by the Magiſtrates, who confiſcated his Eſtate, ſo that ſhe had nothing whereon to ſubſiſt, nor maintain her Daughters, whom they would not ſuffer to Marry, leſt their Children ſhould revenge the Injuries done to their Grandfather; whereat Alcippe being enraged, took opportunity to revenge her ſelf by ſetting Fire to the Temple, where all the Women of Quality were Aſſembled, ſo that they all periſhed in the Flames, and while the People were about extinguiſhing them, kill'd her ſelf and her Two Daughters. Plutarch. Narrat. Amor.

ALCITHOE, a Theban Woman, who contemning Bacchus and his Orgia, and when other Women were ſolemnizing his Feſtivals, keeping cloſe to her Spinning at home, was by the Incens'd Bacchus transform'd into a Bat, and her Spindle and Yarn into a Vine and Ivy. This Fable teaches, that the Worſhip of the Gods is not to be contemned, and that the ſupream Deity oftentimes manifeſts the Glory of his Juſtice by the puniſhment of his Deſpiſers. Ovid.

ALCMÆON, the Son of Amphiaraus and Eriphyle; his Father being forc'd to the Wars of Thebes, diſcover'd to him his Mother's unkindneſs in diſcloſing where he lay hid, and left it to him to revenge his impending death, who mindful of his Father's commands, ſo ſoon as he heard of his death, kill'd his Mother. For which Fact being tormented by the Furies, and his Mother's Ghoſt, he was at length purified in the Waters of the River Phlegeus, who gave him his Daughter Alpheſibæa in Marriage, to whom he preſented his Mother's Necklace; but afterwards falling in Love with Callirrhoe the Daughter of Achelous, he promis'd her the ſame Necklace, which when he went home to fetch, he was kill'd by Themon and Azion, Alpheſibæa's Brothers. Ovid. Pauſan.

ALCMÆON, the laſt of the Perpetual Archontes of Athens, to whom Charops the Son of Æſchylus ſucceeded in the new erected Dignity for the Term of Ten years, An. M. 3300. This Alcmæon kindly received the Ambaſſadors of Cræſus, who ſent to know whether he would go along with him to the Oracle of Delphos, which when he had promis'd to do, Cræſus preſented him with as much Gold as he was able to carry, and obſerving that he had overloaded himſelf, caus'd him to be carried home with his Burthen.. Herodotus. Euſeb.

ALCMÆON of Crotona, the Son of Pirithus, and Diſciple of Pythagoras, of whom Diogenes Laertius, in his Life, reports, That he was the firſt that wrote of Natural Philoſophy: He believ'd that the Stars had Life, and that their immortal Soul made 'em obſerve the courſe of the Sun. Diogenes. Plutarch.

ALCMÆONIDÆ, the Poſterity of Alcmæon in high reputation at Athens, who oppos'd Piſiſtratus, and freed their Country from his Tyranny. After they were expell'd Athens, they went with the Amphyctions to build the Temple of Delphos, which they finiſh'd with a great deal of Magnificence, all the fore-part being of Parian Marble. Herodotus reports farther, that they brib'd the Pythian Prieſteſs to admoniſh the Lacedæmonians, whenever they came to conſult the Oracle, to free the Athenians from their Tyranny and Oppreſſion. So that they ſtill hearing the ſame Admonitions, ſent Anchimotius with a Fleet to expel the Piſiſtradæ, tho' their moſt entire Friends and Allies, having more regard to the Commands of the Deity, than the Intereſt of their Confederates. However Plutarch differs from this Relation in a ſmall Treatiſe which he has written againſt Herodotus. Plutarch.

ALCMAER, a Town in North-Holland, or Freezland, Five Leagues from Haerlem to the North, and from Amſterdam to the North Weſt, which is one of the neateſt and pleaſanteſt Cities of the Low-Countreys, as alſo one of the oldeſt Towns in Holland, being built An. 550. It was very often in after-times taken and burnt by the Friſelanders, till William King of the Romans fortified it, and Florus his Succeſſor improved its Strength. In the year 1517. there was a Conteſt between the Friſelanders, and Guelderlanders, in which this City was taken and Plundered for 8 days by the latter, upon which the Inhabitants obtain'd leave to rebuild their Walls. In the year 1573. the Spaniards, after they had taken Haerlem, beſieged this Town under Frederick de Toledo, but were forced to riſe with great loſs, Prince William of Orange having been here the year before, and ordered ſome new Fortifications, which proved of great uſe to them in this Siege. It is now the Capital City of the North-Quarter of Holland, and as ſuch has her Deputies in the States of Holland, and States-General at the Hague, in the Treaſury and Admiralty, and in the Eaſt and Weſt-India Companies. It is ſeated in a very fruitful and pleaſant Country, both as to Cheeſe, Butter, and Corn, and the Y affords a Convenient Paſſage between it and Amſterdam by Water. Zuer. Theat. Holl.

ALCMAN, a Lyrick Poet of Lacedæmon. He is one of the moſt ancient Greek Authors, and liv'd in the Reign of Ardys King of Libya, in the 27th Olympiad, that is to ſay, 655 years before Chriſtianity. Pauſan. Lib. 3. Voſſius, &c. We have nothing remaining of him, but ſome little Fragments, cited by old Authors. Plutarch.

ALCMENA, the Daughter of Electryo and Lyſidice, Married to Amphitryo upon condition he ſhould revenge the death of her Brother Telebais, in which War whilſt he was buſily imploy'd, Jupiter paſſionately in love with her, put himſelf in her Husband's Shape, and lay with her, tho' already with Child by Amphitryo, by which means ſhe was deliver'd of Two Sons, Iphicles by her Husband, and Hercules by Jupiter. Plutarch ſpeaks of her Tomb, and obſerves, that after Amphitryo's death, ſhe Married Rhadamanthus; and Pliny makes mention of her Picture drawn by Zeuxis, and highly valued by thoſe of Agrigentum. Ovid. Plutarch.

ALCOCK, (John) was born at Beverly in Yorkſhire, bred a Doctor of Divinity in Cambridge. Henry VII. preferr'd him to the See of Ely, and to be Lord Chancellor of England; he built a Chappel at Beverly, founded a Chantry for his Parents, and turn'd St. Radegunda's old Nunnery in Cambridge, firſt founded by Malcolm King of the Scots, into a new College, call'd Jeſus-College.

ALCON, the Son of Erectheus, Prince of the Athenians, who directed his Arrows with ſo true an aim, that he kill'd a Dragon that had ſeiz'd upon one of his Children, without hurting the Infant. Virgil. Pauſan.

ALCORAN, the Book of the Mahometan Law, an Arabian Word ſignifying Reading or Collection. Mahomet Compoſed it by the help of Batiras a Jacobin, and Sergius a Neſtorian Monk, with the Aſſiſtance of ſome Jews. The Book is divided into Four Parts, and each of them into Chapters, which have ridiculous Titles, as the Chapter of the Cow, of the Emmet, of the Spider, and of the Flie. It is Compoſed in Arabian Verſe, of a very good Stile, but of ſo diſorderly a Method, that it is a continued Gallimafry; The Author ſpeaks ſometimes in his own Name, and ſometimes (as he pretends) in God's Name, and at other times in the Name of the Faithful. Moſt of the Principles of the ſame are thoſe of Arius, Neſtorius, and Sabellius, and other Hereſiarchs. Sometimes he makes uſe of Scripture Hiſtories, which he falſifies, and adds many Fables to that of the Patriarchs, Chriſt, and John the Baptiſt. This Book is in ſuch Veneration among the Infidels, that it's death for a Jew or Chriſtian to touch it, and for a Muſſelman himſelf, as they call their true Believers, if he touch it with unwaſhen Hands. They ſay that God ſent it to Mahomet by the Angel Gabriel, writ on Parchment made of that Ram's Skin which Abraham ſacrificed in ſtead of his Son Iſaac; for its Doctrine, they ſay that it is as ancient as the firſt Prophets, ſince God chaſtiſed Adam's Children; that Noah repair'd what the firſt had loſt; that Abraham ſucceeded the ſecond, Joſeph the third, and Moſes the fourth; that Chriſt Eſtabliſh'd, and Mahomet Confirm'd it. Our Saviour is therein call'd the Word, the Power, the Soul, and Strength of God. They admit Prayers for the Dead, and Purgatory, they believe that the Puniſhment of the Damned will ceaſe, and that the Devils ſhall be converted by the Alcoran. They ſay, that the Soul is a part of God, maintain Freedom of Will and Deſtiny. They ſay there are Seven Paradiſes, all of which Mahomet viewed on a Creature called Alberak, bigger than an Aſs, and leſs than a Mule: The firſt they ſay is of fine Silver, the ſecond of Gold, the third of Precious Stones, where there is an Angel, betwixt whoſe one Hand and the other, is 70000 days Journey, and that he is always reading on a Book; the fourth is of Emerald, the fifth of Chryſtal, the ſixth of the colour of Fire, and the ſeventh a delicious Garden watered with Fountains and Rivers of Milk and Honey, and Wine, with divers ſorts of Trees always green, and Apples whoſe Kernels are changed into Girls ſo handſom and ſweet, that if one of them ſhould ſpit in the Sea, the Waters thereof would no more be bitter. They add, that this Paradiſe is guarded by Angels, of which one has a Cow's Head, with Horns which have 40000 Knots, and that there are 40 days Journey betwixt each Knot. There are others which have 70 Mouths, and every Mouth 70 Tongues, and each Tongue praiſes God 70 times a day in 70 different Idioms. Before the Throne of God there are 14 Wax Candles lighted, which contain 50 years Journey from one end to the other; That all the Apartments of Heaven are garniſh'd with what may be conceived moſt Pompous, Rich, and Magnificent; That the Bleſſed are there fed with the moſt rare and delicious Meſſes; that they Marry Women who are always Virgins. And in the whole, they Accommodate their Heaven to the moſt Senſual and Brutiſh Appetite. They add, that their Wives do not enter Paradiſe, but behold the Happineſs of their Husbands at a diſtance. For Hell, they ſay, that it conſiſts in Pains which ſhall have an end by the bounty of Mahomet, who is to waſh the Damned in a Fountain, that they may eat the remainders of a Feaſt which ſhall be made to the Bleſſed. They alledge, that after death Two black Angels come to the Tomb, and reſtoring the Soul to the body of the deceaſed, ask it, If it hath carefully obſerved the Law: If the dead anſwer Yes, the Tranſgreſſing Member gives him the Lye, if it be not true, and upbraids him with his Crime. Whereupon one of thoſe black Spirits knocks him on the Head with a Hammer, which drives him Seven Fathom into the Earth, where they torment him a very long time. And, on the contrary, the Corps of thoſe which are Innocent be preſerv'd by Two White Angels till the day of Judgment. This Book ſays the Earth was created in Two days, that it is ſuſtain'd by an Ox which is beneath it ſtanding on a White Stone, with his Head to the Eaſt, and Tail to the Weſt, having 40 Horns, and as many Teeth, and betwixt every Horn is as great diſtance as a Man could Walk for a thouſand years together. They Lay, as the foundation of their Law, 1. Predeſtination; believing that all things are ſo in Eternal Idea's, that it is impoſſible to prevent the effects. 2. That their Religion is to be planted without Miracles, Diſpute or Contradiction, and the Opponents are to be cut off without other form of Proceſs; And that the Muſſelmans who kill Unbelievers deſerve Paradiſe. In a ſhort time after Mahomet's death there came forth above 200 different Comments upon his Book, whereupon Mohavia, Calyph of Babylon, ſummon'd an Aſſembly at Damaſcus to reconcile ſo many diſcording Opinions, but finding it labour loſt, he made choice of Six of the moſt Learned Mahometans out of the whole number, whom he ſhut up a-part, ordering 'em to write what they thought beſt, and was moſt agreeable to their Judgment. Which being done, thoſe Six Books, call'd the Alcoran, to this day were compil'd and kept, and all the reſt were caſt into the River, with ſevere and ſtrict Prohibitions, neither to Teach, Speak, or Act any thing contrary to what was contain'd in thoſe Six Books. Nevertheleſs all that ſeverity could not hinder the ſpreading of Four different Sects. The firſt and moſt Superſtitious, founded by Rabby Melich, is embraced by the Moors and Arabians; The ſecond, commonly call'd the Imenian, according to the Traditions of Haly, and which is the moſt Rational, follow'd by the Perſians; The third, which is that of Omar, and the looſeſt, venerated by the Turks; And the fourth, ſet up by Odman, which is the moſt ſottiſh, Idoliz'd by all the Tartars. P. de Cluni. John of Segovia. Concerning the Alcoran, ſee A. Pfeifferi Theologia Muhammedica Diſſ. 6. where the Reader may find a Collection of the moſt conſiderable Obſervations upon't.

ALCUINUS, (Flaccus) brought up under the Venerable Bede, and St. Egebert Archbiſhop of York, became the moſt famous Man of his time for Learning and Piety, and being ſent into France by Offa, the Saxon King of the Mercians, at Charlemain's deſire, the latter admir'd him ſo much, that he ſolicited him to ſtay at his Court, gave him many Eccleſiaſtical Preferments, and employed him to write againſt Fœlix Orgelitanus, the Heretick, and the Canons of the Second Council of Nice. He Accompanied the ſaid Emperor to the Synod at Francfort, An. 794. where he was admitted amongſt the Fathers; and having after much ſolicitation obtain'd leave to retire from Court, he applied himſelf to the inſtructing of Youth in his Abby of Tours, where he died in June 804. He was very Learned in the Tongues, and whatever Polite or Abſtruſe Literature France boaſts of in that and the following Ages, was wholly owing to him; and the Academies of Paris, Tours, and many others, were either founded, enlarged, enrich'd, or inſtructed by him, or his Intereſt with Charlemain. So far Dr. Cave in his Hiſtoria Literaria. Moreri ſays, that he was an Orator, Poet, Philoſopher, Mathematician, and a Divine, being ſo thoroughly accompliſh'd in all ſorts of Learning, that he was called the Univerſal Scholar, and Secretary of the Liberal Arts. He adds, that Andrew du Cheſne Printed his Works in a Folio at Paris, 1617, with his Life at the beginning. The Work is divided into Three Parts; the firſt is Treatiſes on the Scripture; the ſecond on Divinity and the Liberal Arts; and the third Hiſtory, Letters, and Poetry. Dr. Cave gives a Catalogue of his Works in his Hiſtoria Literaria above-mentioned.

ALCYONE, a Town of Theſſaly, ſeated upon the Bay call'd Sinus Maliacus; Out of the Ruines of which Methone was built, where Philip of Macedon loſt one of his Eyes; alſo a Lake in the Territory of Corinth, now the Morea, call'd the Fountain of Amphiaraus by reaſon of an adjoining Temple Dedicated to that famous Soothſayer. The Lake is ſo deep, that the Emperor Nero, who had the Curioſity to ſound it, could not find the depth, though he made uſe of ſeveral Ropes faſtened together. Pauſan.

ALDANA, (Bernard) a Spaniard, and Governor of Lippa in Tranſilvania, who at what time the Turks beſieged Temiſwaer in 1552. hearing that ſome Troops of the Turks were marching towards his Garriſon, and believing they came to beſiege him, in a Panick Fear ſet Fire to the Arſenal, the Caſtle, and the City, and quitted his Poſt; which the Turks, who before had no deſign that way, perceiving, haſtened to the Place, put out the Fire, and took poſſeſſion of the Town; he was condemned to Death, but the Sentence was changed into perpetual Impriſonment by the Mediation of Mary Queen of Bohemia, which was alſo afterwards remitted by the ſame Princeſſes Interceſſion, ſhe being of Spain, the Emperor's Daughter in Law, and willing to hide the faults of her Countrymen. Thuan.

ALDEBERG, a ſmall City of Germany in Upper Saxony, upon the Confines of Bohemia, not far from the River Elbe, four Leagues from Dreſden to the South, under the Elector of Saxony, and is very well Peopled.

ALDEBRET, a famous French Impoſtor of the Eighth Century, who pretended to have a Letter written by Jeſus Chriſt, which fell from Heaven at Jeruſalem, from whence it was brought him by the Archangel St. Michael; he pretended to have Reliques, of extraordinary Virtue, which he diſtributed to the People, with his own Hair, and the Parings of his Nails; he and Clement were both Condemned at the Council of Leptines. Baronius.

ALDEBURGH, Lat. Iſurium, a Corporation in the County of Suffolk on the Sea Shoar, which ſends Two Burgeſſes to Parliament.

ALDEGRAF, Albert, born at Soeſt in Weſtphalia, a famous Painter and Graver, ſeveral Pieces of his Painting are to be ſeen at Soeſt and Norimberg. The Excellency of his Graving appears in his own, and the Pictures of John of Leyden, and Knipperdolling, which are Pieces of Curioſity. The Sieur Spiring, Amballador from the King of Sweden to the States, bought his Draughts in Holland at a Dear Rate; He was admirable for his Deſigns with Pen and Paper.

ALDENBURG: See Oldenburg.

ALDERBURY, a ſmall Place in Skropſhire, noted for being the Birth-place of old Thomas Parre, who being born Anno 1483. died in 1635. ſo lived 152 years, during which time he ſaw no leſs then 10 Kings Reigns. Two years before he died he was brought up to London to King Charles I. and when he died was buried in Weſtminſter-Abbey.

ALDERNAY, an Iſland on the Coaſt of Normandy, famous for the Great Sea-Fight betwixt the Engliſh and French in May 1692. moſt of the French Ships who eſcap'd that Defeat, making their way through the Race of Aldernay, whither our Ships could not follow for want of Pilots.

ALDHELM, Biſhop of Shirburn, An. 705. Son of Kenten, of Noble, ſome ſay, Royal Lineage, and a Man of ſo great Learning, that he was conſulted by the moſt Learned of Europe, as the Oracle of the Age; to Reform which, he Compoſed ſeveral Theological Poems to allure the People's Attention. He was a Man, ſays Bede, every way Learned, of a Delicate Style, and well ſeen both in Secular and Eccleſiaſtical Learning. He wrote a Book Dedicated to Aldfrid, King of Northumberland, about Brotherly Charity, the Dignity of the Number Seven, and making Latin Verſes, being the firſt Engliſhman that ever wrote in Latin, according to Cambden. His Style was Sharp, Eloquent, Delicate, and Stately. He founded the Monaſteries of Malmsbury, Frome, and Bedford; and though of great Eſteem in the World, yet he was affable to all, and extreamly Devout and Chaſte, it being cuſtomary with him to ſtay in a Neighbouring Pond a whole night together to reſtrain the Motions of the Fleſh. He was a great Champion for Celebrating Eaſter according to the Romiſh manner, and wrote on that Subject to the Welſh. William of Malmsbury ſays, That by his Prayers a great Beam which had been brought from afar to build a Church, being much ſhorter than it ought to have been, was ſuddenly brought to a due length, adding, that the ſaid Beam only remained untouched, when all the reſt of the Abby was twice burnt; and ſeveral other Fabulous Things, which may be ſeen in Anglia Sacra, Part 11.

ALDINELLI, a Province containing Caria, and part of Lycia in Leſſer Aſia, between the Mediterranean to the South, the Archipelago to the Weſt, Sarchan to the North, Germia and Menteſe to the Eaſt. In the ancient times there was in Lycia 60 Cities, 36 of which were extant when St. Paul Preached the Goſpel here. The Principal of which were Xanthus and Patara.

ALDRIC, Biſhop of Mans, the Son of Syon Saxon and Gerilda Bavaroiſe, both of Royal Deſcent. He was in great favour with Charlemain, and Lewis the Debonnaire, who choſe him for his Confeſſor; He was preſent at the Councils of Paris in 846. and that of Tours in 849. and died in 856. In his time the Feaſt of all Souls was inſtituted, and the uſe of Organs invented, he being the firſt that ſet 'em up in his own Church. Thuan.

ALDRICK, (Robert) was Biſhop of Carliſle in the Reign of Henry VIII. Burnham in Buckinghamſhire was his Birth-place, and the King's-College in Cambridge, that where he got moſt of his Learning. An. 1525. he was made Proctor of that Univerſity; about which time many Letters paſs'd between him and Eraſmus his familiar Friend, who ſtiles him, Blanda Eloquentia Juvenem. Afterwards he became Schoolmaſter, then Fellow, and at laſt Provoſt of

Eton,

Eaton, till King Henry VIII. made him Biſhop of Carliſle in 1537. Though he complied with ſome Superiors, yet he never was a thorow-pac'd Papiſt, much leſs a Perſecutor of the Proteſtants; he died at Horn Caſtle in Lincolnſhire, a Houſe belonging to his See, in the Reign of Queen Mary, An. 1555.

ALDROVANDUS, (Ulyſſes) of Bologna, a famous Philoſopher and Phyſician. He wrote 120 Treatiſes, ſtill extant in ſeveral Volumes; more eſpecially thoſe wherein he Treats of Birds, Beaſts and Fiſh. He died in 1605. and had the Honour to have his Elogie written by Mapheo Barbarini, afterwards Urban VIII. Vander Linden. Lorenz. Craſſo.

ALDRUIDUS, an Engliſhman, of great Senſe and Underſtanding in Natural Philoſophy. This made the ignorant Age he liv'd in count him a Conjurer. He wrote a Treatiſe, De Quintis Eſſentiis. Leland, &c.

ALDULF, King of the Eaſt-Angles, ſucceeded his Unkle Ethelwald in 664. and prov'd a good King.

ALE, a Kingdom belonging to the more barbarous ſort of Negroes, where the Virgins of the Country believe their beauty to conſiſt in Carving the Shapes of ſeveral Animals upon their Skins. The King, when he deſigns a War, aſſembles his Council in a Wood near his Palace, where they make a Dike, and laying their Heads upon the brink of it, give their Advice; When the Reſolution is taken, the Prince aſſures 'em, That the Ditch, which is then to be fill'd up again, will never diſcover the Secret, unleſs they firſt diſcover it themſelves. It's true, they are ſo diſcreet as not to do it, for fear of being puniſhed as Traitors; by which means their Enterprizes are generally very fortunate. Sanutius.

ALECTO, one of the Furies, ſaid by ſome, to be Daughter of Acheron and the Night; by others, of Pluto and Proſerpine. Theſe Furies of the Ancients were nothing but the Paſſions of the Mind; and Alecto, which ſignifies without Repoſe, repreſents Concupiſcence and Voluptuous Pleaſures, which never let a Man be quiet for one Torment of Mind or other; and they are ſaid to be the Daughters of Pluto, becauſe Riches are the Fuel that nouriſheth this Tormenting Paſſion. Plutarch. vid. Furiæ & Eumenides.

ALECTRYO, a Youth ſo much in Mars's favour, that he made him privy to his Adultery with Venus, and ſet him to watch the Door leſt he ſhould be ſurpris'd by the Sun; but he falling aſleep, the Two Lovers were taken tardy by Sol, and diſcovered to Vulcan, who diſplay'd 'em in Adamantine Nets to the View of all the Gods; upon which Mars was ſo diſpleas'd with his Favourite, that he transform'd him into a Cock, who ſtill remembring the misfortune of his Drowſineſs, makes it his buſineſs now to watch the Sun ſo ſtrictly, that he cannot ſtir but he gives notice of it.

ALEDRISI, or Nubienſis Geographus, who above 500 years ago divided the World into Seven Climates; he liv'd in the time of Roger King of Sicily. His Geography was Tranſlated into Latin, by Gabriel Sionita.

ALEGAMBE, (Philip) a Jeſuit of Bruſſels. He continued and augmented the Bibliotheca, containing the Writers of his Order, which had been publiſh'd by Rebadeneira in 1608. This Work was manag'd with a great deal of Exactneſs, and Father Alegambe omitted nothing to give it its due perfection. He publiſh'd his Bibliotheca in 1643. Father Sotwell Printed a new Edition of it at Rome in 1675. with the Additions which Alegambe had left behind him.

ALEGRINUS, (John) Cardinal and Patriarch of Conſtantinople, born at Abbeville in Piccardy, and of the Noble Family of the Alegrines. He died in the year 1240. and left ſeveral fine Tracts behind him, which ſhew the greatneſs of his Genius. Ciaconius. Onuphrius, &c.

ALEMANNI, a People of Germany adjoyning to Belgic Gaul, and Rhætia, formerly inhabiting Suabia. Some believe that Alemanni was a Name peculiarly given to five petty People, the Eburones, Cendruſi, Segni, Cereſi, and Parmani; who having quitted their Country, and paſſed the Rhine to ſettle themſelves in Gaul, aſſum'd the Name of Tongin. However it were, Alemanni is now a general Name for the Germans. Some think this word Alemanni ſignifies all kind of Men, the firſt Plantation being a mixt Colony; others, that it ſignifies All Man, that is to ſay, Strong, Warriour, a Man every bit. Du Cheſne, Zonri.

ALEMANNUS, a King of the Ancient Germans, who ſucceeded his Father Teuta, ſo much fam'd for his Strength and Courage, that he was call'd the German Hercules; and it's thought the Germans were call'd Alemanni from his Name. It was his Cuſtom always to have a chain'd Lyon to follow, whence the Princes of Germany bear one in their Atchievements: His Statue was firſt ſet up in the Iſland of Reichenaw, but afterwards remov'd by Maximilian to Oetingen. Helvetius, Hennings.

ALEMDAR, an Officer in the Grand Signior's Court, who carries the Green Standard of Mahomet, when the Sultan appears at any Publick Solemnity. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

ALEMDIN, a great and Populous Town four miles Weſt of Haſcora, in the Kingdom of Morocco, ſeated in a Valley between four high Mountains; the Inhabitants of which maintained a War againſt Haſcora many years, till at laſt both of them were Conquered by the King of Fez. Leo Af. p. 92.

ALENCON, Lat. Alenconium, a large and fair built City of Normandy, dignified with the Title of a Dutchy and Bailliage: It's very Ancient, and ſtands in a fertile Plain, between the Foreſt of Eſcoris and Perſeigne. It has a Bridge over the Sarte, where it receives the Briante, which forms a little Iſland in the City, wherein ſtands the Convent of Santa Clara; alſo in the Pariſh of Noſtredame are to be ſeen the Tombs of the Dukes of Alencon. The Bailliage is alſo one of the largeſt of the Province. It ſuffer'd much in the laſt Age, during the Civil Wars; and M. de Matignon, afterwards Mareſhal of France, prevented in this place the Maſſacre of the Reform'd upon St. Bartholomew's Day, in the year 1572. He afterwards took the City for the Leaguers under the Duke of Maine in 1577. After it had been under the Counts of the Houſe of Valois, and reunited again to the Crown, by intervals, for ſome years it was erected into a Dukedom and Peerie of France, by Charles the Sixth, in 1414. and ſo continued for Three Succeſſions; and then returning to the Crown again, was given to Francis, the Son of Hen. the Second, who dying without Iſſue, it now continues annexed to the Crown as before. Du Cheſne.

ALENTEJO, a Province of Portugal, ſo call'd, becauſe it lies between the Rivers of Telo or Tagus, and Guadiana. It is about 36 Leagues in length, and 34 broad: Within this Province lies Evora, the ancient Seat of the Kings; and here it was that Alphonſus I. King of Portugal, in 1139. won the famous Battel of Orique from Five Kings or Generals of the Moors. It's a Country ſo extreamly fruitful, and the Inhabitants ſo induſtrious, that the Children of Country Husbandmen become Magiſtrates of the City. Mariana.

ALEPPO, by ſome call'd Hierapolis, by others Lariſſa and Borrea, is a City of Syria, between Alexandrineta and the Euphrates: It's built upon four Hills, and the Caſtle upon the higheſt, in the middle of the City, ſupported with large Vaults in ſome places, for fear the Earth ſhould moulder away. It's about Two Leagues in Circuit. Without the City runs a ſmall River nam'd Coic, that ſerves to Water the Gardens that bear moſt excellent Piſtachies. The Buildings, as well private as publick, are nothing beautiful on the outſide; but within the Walls, are double lin'd with Marble of ſeveral colours, and the Roofs adorn'd with Fret-work and Groteſco, and Sentences in Golden Letters. There are in the City above 26 Moſques, Seven of which have their Domo's cover'd with Lead. The biggeſt was a Chriſtian Church, and, as ſome believe, was built by St. Helena. There are Three Colleges in Aleppo, where Grammar, Philoſophy, and other Things that concern the Mahometan Religion, are taught. There are alſo 40 Caravanſera's, or Inns for Travellers and Merchants; and about 50 publick Baths. The Suburbs of the City are very large, and well inhabited; and it's in them that moſt of the Chriſtians have their Churches and Houſes. Of the Chriſtians there are ſeveral ſorts, Roman Catholicks and Maronites the leaſt in number; Greeks about 15 or 16000, under an Archbiſhop; Armenians about 12000, under a Biſhop; and Jacobites and Copticks equal to 'em in number, who likewiſe have their Biſhop; and every one their ſeveral Churches. The chief Trade of Aleppo conſiſts in Silk, Stuffs, Hair-Camblets, Galls, Soap, and ſeveral other Merchandices, which cauſes a great reſort of Italians, French, Engliſh and Hollanders, who have every one their particular Conſuls. The vaſt Commerce of this City proceeds not, as ſome have written, from the conveniency of the Rivers Euphrates and Tigris, the firſt being ſhallow by the great quantity of its Water, drawn off by a number of Mills built upon it to Water the adjoyning Lands; and the latter is not Navigable, but from Bagdat to Balſora. Here reſides a Baſſa who Commands the whole Province, with a Guard of 300 Men, an Aga with 400 Horſe; and another Aga with 700 Foot, with the Governor of the Caſtle, who has under him 200 Musqueteers, and the Command of all the Guns: This is reckon'd the Third City in Turkey, and ſo populous, that Anno 1585. One hundred and twenty thouſand Men died there of the Plague in Three Months time. It hath Twelve Gates and Three Suburbs. Tavernier adds, That this is the moſt Noble and Celebrated Mart for Trade in all the Eaſt; that beſides the European Merchants, there are great numbers from Perſia, Armenia, and the Indies, that Traffick here: That its Port Scanderoon is Three days Journey ney to the Weſt, whither come numerous Fleets every year. That the Fields about it are fruitful in Corn and Olives; and ſome covered with great Groves of Mulberry Trees, from which vaſt quantities of Silk-worms are fed, to the enriching of the People. It's ſix miles in compaſs, Wall'd and Dik'd, but not of any ſtrength, except the Caſtle. It was taken in the 15th year of the Hegyra, and 637 of Chriſt, by the Mahometans, Heraclius being then Emperor of the Eaſt. Mango King of the Tartars raz'd it to the Ground in 1260. and Selim the Turkiſh Emperor retook it again in 1515. and found in it ineſtimable Riches; in Minted Money 1100050 l. and a vaſt quantity of Bullion, beſide Silks, Jewels and Furniture of great value; and eight great and well-ſtored Magazines, which rich Plunder ſo encouraged his Soldiers, that nothing could ſtand before them. It's now no leſs Rich nor Glorious than it was then, being thought the richeſt City in the Ottoman Empire, next to Conſtantinople and Grand Cairo. The Caravans that go to Mecca and Medina, meet here, and the Turkiſh Sultans have often viſited it in the Perſian Wars. Tavernier's Travels.

ALERED, King of Northumberland, Reign'd in the 8th Age, next to King Ethelwald, from whom he uſurped the Crown; but after Nine years Reign he was depoſed, and forced with a few Attendants to fly from place to place.

ALERIA, an ancient City of the Iſland of Corſica, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Piſa, but now ruinous; wherefore the Biſhop doth reſide at Cervionnis, in the middle of the Iſland. The Ruines of Aleria, are called Aleria deſtructa; and near to it is a River called Aleria; but Leander Alberti calls it Tavignano: It is ſuppos'd to be the Rhotanus of Ptolemy.

ALESA, a City of Sicily, built by Archonides Captain of the Herbitenſes, upon a Hill about Eight Furlongs from the Sea, Peopled at firſt by the meaner ſort of Trades, and Mercenary Labouring Rabble, whom the fear of War drave from Herbita; ſome believe it to be at this day called the Borough of Toſa in the Valley of Demona, where alſo runs a River, anciently called Aleſus, now Pittineo. This City gave its name to a Fountain, of which it was reported, That in a ſerene Seaſon, if a Man play'd upon a Flute near it, the Water would preſently move by degrees, then bubble up, and by and by, as if charm'd with the melody of the Inſtrument, ſwell up, and overflow its Banks. Solin. deſcrip. Sicil.

ALESCO, or Aleſſo: Lat. Liſſus, a City of Albania, upon the Gulf of Venice, near the Mouth of the River Drin, famous for the Tomb of the renown'd Scanderbeg, who died there in 1467. and for whoſe memory, the Turks have ſo great a veneration, that happy are they who can approach his Monument, and carry away ſome of the Earth, or a piece of the Sepulchre, which they tie to their Elbows as a precious Relique that raiſes their Courage in Battel. Barill.

ALESTRY (Richard) Dr. of Divinity, born in 1619. at Upington in Shropſhire, and Son to Robert Aleſtry, a Gentleman of an ancient Family in Derbyſhire. He was admitted at Chriſt's Church in Oxford in 1636; and upon the breaking out of the Civil Wars, took the Field for the King. His Majeſty having made Oxford his Head Quarters, Mr. Aleſtry return'd to his Study; but afterwards the King's Affairs growing more preſſing, he carried Arms in a Regiment rais'd by the Univerſity for the King's Service; continuing in this Poſt, with as much application to his Studies as the occaſion would permit till the end of the War: And when Oxford fell into the hands of the Rebels, and was Garriſon'd by them, Mr. Aleſtry was very active in paſſing the Solemn Decree of the Univerſity againſt the Rebellious Covenant. Oxford being viſited by Order of Parliament, the Loyal Members of the Univerſity were turn'd out, Mr. Aleſtry loſing his Fellowſhip with the reſt. From Oxford he retired into Shropſhire. After the Fight at Worceſter, he was, by the Managers of the King's Affairs, diſpatch'd to attend his Majeſty at Roan; from whence, returning into England, he ſettled in Oxfordſhire, and was frequently concerned with the Royaliſts for the Reſtoration. After the King's return, he was made Canon of Chriſt's Church, King's Chaplain, Regius Profeſſor and Provoſt of Eaton. As to his Character, he was a Perſon of a regular Life, a good Scholar, and a celebrated Preacher, and acquitted himſelf in his reſpective Stations with Advantage and Reputation. He died Jan. 28. 1680. was buried in the Collegiate Church at Eaton, where his Memory is Honoured with a Monument and Inſcription. He left a Volume of Sermons in Folio, where the Reader may ſee a further Account of his Life.

ALETH, a Biſhoprick of Languedock in France, Suffragan of Narbon, at the foot of the Pyrenees, 16 miles S. of Carcaſſon, and 40 W. of Narbon. Pope John XXII. founded it in 1317. This Town is called Aletta, or Eletta, in Latin, which is mentioned, that the Reader may not miſtake it for Aletha, which is St. Maloes in Britany; nor for Alecia, which is Ales or Alais in Languedoc; nor laſtly, for Aletium which is Lecca, an Epiſcopal See in the Kingdom of Naples. Papyr. Maſſon. &c.

ALETHES, the Son of Hippotas, who followed the deſcendants of Hercules, that firſt made an Irruption into the Peloponneſus; this was 24 years compleat after the taking of Troy; at which time he ſeiz'd upon Corinth, in the year of the World 2952. where he Reign'd 35 years, the Firſt King of that City. Pauſanias.

ALETHES, was Captain of a Ship under Æneas, and was caſt away in the Storm rais'd by Æolus at Juno's requeſt. Virg. Æneid. 1.

ALETIDES, the name which the Athenians gave to certain Sacrifices, in Honour of Icarus and Erigone, Inſtituted, for that ſeveral young Virgins hang'd themſelves in imitation of Erigone; upon which the Oracle being conſulted, commanded them to offer Sacrifices with little Images of Earth, ſuch as Antiquity offer'd to Pluto: The name being derived from the Greek word 'αλάω, which ſignifies to wander; as Erigone did up and down after her Father Icarus, till ſhe found him dead. Hyginus.

ALETIUM, Lecca, an Epiſcopal City in the Province of Otranto, under the Archbiſhop of Otranto, between Brunduſium to the Weſt, and Otranto to the Eaſt, the Principal City of the Kingdom of Naples, next to Naples it ſelf, 50 miles from Tarentum: Lon. 42. 30. Lat. 40. 13.

ALEUS, King of Arcadia, ſucceeded Epytus, and was famous for the number of Temples built by him. He had Three Sons, and a Daughter call'd Augæa, who let Hercules debauch her. Pauſan. l. 8.

Kings of Egypt.

ALEXANDER (Ptolemæus I.) 9th King of Egypt, advanced to the Throne by the Artifices of his Mother Cleopatra, who hated his Brother Ptolemy Lathyrus, and ſhared the Government with him; until not content with being Partner, ſhe expell'd him, ſome time after ſhe ſent for him again, whereupon he, to prevent for the future her former uſage, put her to death. However the Alexandrians deteſted the Fact ſo, that he was murdered by a Pilot whoſe name was Chereas, A. M. 3964. Joſeph. Juſtin. Euſeb.

ALEXANDER the Second, Son of the former, bred up in the Iſland of Coos, was delivered into the hands of Mithridates, from whom, after he made his eſcape, he fled to Sylla, by whom he was reſtored to his Kingdom; but was put to death by his Subjects 19 days after his Coronation. Appian.

ALEXANDER Ptolemy the Third, King of Egypt, advanced to the Throne after the death of his Brother Alexander II. having Reign'd happily for 17 years together, was at length expell'd by his Subjects, and died at Tyre. Appian.

Kings of Epirus.

ALEXANDER the Firſt, King of the Epirotes, Son of Neoptolemus, and Brother of Olympias, the Mother of Alexander the Great, was killed in a War with the Lucanians, in the 113 Olympiad, about the 428 year after the foundation of Rome; for being told that he ſhould die by the River Acheron, he left his own Country, thinking to elude the Oracle, but met with another Acheron in Lucania in Italy, which he never dreamed of. It's reported of this Alexander, That he complained of the inequality of his Fortune to that of his Nephew Alexander the Great, who he alledg'd found nothing but Women to Fight againſt; whereas he found Men in Italy. Tit. Liv. Juſtin. Oroſius.

ALEXANDER the Second, King of Epirus, and Son of Pyrrhus, invaded Macedon; but was not only expell'd from thence by Demetrius, Son of Antigonus, but deſpoyl'd of his own Kingdom: Which however, he recovered by the Aſſiſtance of the Acarnanians. Juſtin.

Kings of the Jews.

ALEXANDER the Firſt, Brother of Ariſtobulus, and Son of Hyrcan, advanced to the Throne by Salome the Widow of Philellen, who kept him in Priſon with the reſt of his Brothers. Alexander kill'd his own Brother that was his Competitor for the Kingdom; beſieged Ptolemais and Gaza defended by Ptolemy Lathyrus, from whom receiving a great overthrow, he begg'd aſſiſtance of Ptolemy's Mother, who afraid leaſt her Son having ſubdued Judæa, ſhould break into Egypt, aſſiſted him with a numerous Army to invade Cyprus; in the mean time, his own Subjects Rebelling againſt him becauſe of his cruelty and ill conduct, after he had ſubdued them by the help of Demetrius, he cauſed above 800 of the Chiefeſt to be Crucified in his ſight, as he was Feaſting with his Concubines, and ordered their Wives and Children to have their Throats cut before their Faces; in this Civil War above 50000 Lives were loſt. Alexander being defeated by Demetrius Eucerus, and vanquiſh'd by Aretas, King of the Arabians; through immoderate Drinking, he fell into a Quartan, of which, after it had held him Three years, he died, A. M. 3978. 76 years before the Birth of Jeſus Chriſt. Upon his Death-bed, he adviſed his Wife Alexandra, if ſhe intended to hold the Government, to cloſe with the Phariſees. Joſeph. Salian.

ALEXANDER the Second, Son of Ariſtobulus, made Head againſt the Romans; but being defeated in Two Battels by Gabinius, fled to Antioch, where Scipio, Proconſul of Syria, caus'd his Head to be cut off by Pompey's Order. A. M. 4005. and 45 before Chriſt. Joſeph. Salian.

ALEXANDER, the Son of Herod the Great, by Mariamne, bred up in Auguſtus's Court, where he was accuſed by his Father of conſpiring to deprive him of his Crown, and acquitted; but afterwards, upon new Suſpicions, Condemned by his Father at Beritus, and ſtrangled at Sebaſtia in the year of the World 4049. Two years before the Birth of Chriſt. After his death ſtarted up a Pſeudo-Alexander, ſo like the young Prince, that the Jews of Crete and Melos believing him to be the true Son of Herod, ſupplied him with Money; but coming to Rome, he was preſently diſcover'd by Auguſtus, and ſent to the Galleys. Joſeph. Torniel.

Kings of Macedon.

ALEXANDER the Firſt, the Son of Amyntas, was frequently victorious at the Olympick Plays, in ſeveral Tryals of Skill; he ſlew the Perſian Ambaſſadors for being too Licentious with the Ladies of his Father's Court. He Reigned in great Reputation 43 years, and died about the year of the World 3618. He was the firſt that rais'd the Reputation of the Macedonians. Juſtin. Euſeb. Diodor. Siculus.

ALEXANDER the Second, Son of Amyntas III. was treacherouſly ſlain by his Brother Ptolemy, ſirnamed Morites, in the 103d Olympiad, about the year of the World 3686. But the Uſurper enjoy'd the Crown only Three years. Juſtin. Euſeb. Diodor. Siculus.

ALEXANDER the Third, otherwiſe call'd Alexander the Great, King of Macedon, was born the 6th day of the Greek Month Hecatombeon, which anſwers our July, in the 106th Olympiad, A. M. 3698. 398 after the building of Rome, and 356 before the Birth of Chriſt: Moreover his Mother was deliver'd of him the ſame Night that the famous Temple of Epheſus was burn'd to Aſhes; whence Magicians predicted, that he would kindle a War which would conſume the moſt part of the Eaſt. In his Infancy there were ſeveral things which foretold his Grandeur, as Backing of Bucephalus, which none of the Quirrees could do; whereupon his Father told him, with Tears in his Eyes, That he muſt go ſeek other Kingdoms, for Macedonia was not enough for him. He was reputed to be the Son of Philip and Olympias, tho' his Mother would fain have a Nobler Father, when ſhe affirm'd her ſelf big with Child by a Dragon; and indeed he afterwards became ſo great a Man, that he might ſeem to be the off-ſpring of a Deity. His Father going to War, left him Governour of Macedon at 15 years of Age, and he acquitted himſelf of his Commiſſion ſo well, that he quell'd a dangerous Revolt; and then accompanying his Father to the Wars, ſaved his Life in a ſet Battel, and became the admiration of all his Father's moſt experienc'd Officers. Philip being diſſatisfied with his Wife, Divorc'd her, and Married Cleopatra, a young Gallant Princeſs, which ſo much diſguſted Alexander, that he quarell'd with Attalus, Cleopatra's Brother, and occaſioning his death, quitted the Court, and retired to his Mother; but being recalled, gained the People by his bounty and affability after his Father's death; he puniſh'd all thoſe that had a hand in it, and after that he had Conquered Thrace and Illyrium, and taken Thebes, he declared War againſt the Perſians in the 111th Olympiad, about 420 years after the Foundation of Rome; and having vanquiſh'd Darius at Granicum, ſubdued all Lydia and Ionia, travers'd Caria, ſubjected Pamphylia, and reduced Cappadocia under his obedience: After which, having given Darius Two Overthrows more, he made himſelf Maſter of all Syria and Egypt, made Media and Perſia the Seats of his Empire, whence he rang'd into India, Conquering all before him farther than ever Bacchus went, in imitation of whom, after his Victories over Cleophis and Porus, he wore a Crown of Ivy. Joſephus ſays, that being denied aſſiſtance from the Jews at the Siege of Tyre, he was ſo provoked, that after ſubduing it, he marched with his Army againſt Jeruſalem, but Jaddus the High-Prieſt being warned in a Dream, went to meet him, accompanied with the Prieſts and People, he himſelf being in his Prieſtly Ornaments, whom as ſoon as Alexander beheld in his Ephod of Azure colour, enriched with Gold, and a Mitre upon his Head, having the Name of God written upon a Plate of Gold, he worſhipped the ſaid Name, and ſaluted Jaddus, telling Parmenio, one of his Generals, who reprov'd him for it, that he did not worſhip the Prieſt but his God, who appeared to him in that likeneſs in his ſleep, bidding him not to fear but paſs the Helleſpont, and ſubdue Aſia; whereupon the High-Prieſt ſhewing him the Prophecy of Daniel, That a Grecian ſhould deſtroy the Perſian Empire, obtain'd what he would from Alexander, who offered Sacrifice to God. He wept upon the news of Darius's death, puniſhed his Murtherers, and treated his Wife and Daughters courteouſly. A little before his death, he received Ambaſſadors from almoſt all Nations, either to ſubmit to him, or congratulate his Victories. He died at the Age of 32 Years and Eight Months. His form and ſhape was comely, a well raiſed Neck, his Eyes ſparkling, and his Glances pleaſing, an amiable Ruddineſs in his Cheeks, and the other parts of his Body Majeſtically proportionable; yet all this while but ſhort of Stature. He had ſuch a high value for Men that excell'd in Wit and Knowledge, that he commanded Homer's Iliads to be lock'd up in a Cabinet overlaid with Precious Stones, which he found among the Spoils of Darius. Upon the taking of Thebes, he took care to ſpare the Houſe and Family of Pindar; and in the height of his Conqueſts ſent to Ariſtotle at one time 800 Talents and 480000 Crowns. Yet when a Conqueror, and Victorious over all others, he periſhed in the midſt of his Debaucheries, and died at Babylon of a Diſtemper contracted by immoderate Drinking; or as ſome ſay, of Poiſon given by Antipater in the firſt year of the 114th Olympiad, which was about the year of the World 3730. of the building of Rome 430. and 324 before the Birth of Jeſus Chriſt. As to his Birth, ſeveral Hiſtorians affirm, that he was neither the Son of Jupiter Ammon, nor Philip, but of a Magician, whoſe name was Nectanebus, or Nectanebo, who had Reign'd in Egypt, from whence he privately departed, well knowing by the Stars, that the Perſians would ſuddenly expel him thence; upon which he came to Philip's Court, where being well received, he fell in Love with Olympias, and debauched her in the ſhape of Jupiter Ammon, whoſe Son Alexander bribed the Prieſts of his Temple to ſay he was. Hiſtorians give this Character of Alexander, that he was Handſom, Prompt, and Vigilant, Couragious, Generous, but inſatiably deſirous of Glory, inſomuch, that being but a Child, he wept when he heard of his Father's Conqueſts, thinking that nothing would be left for him to do. He was Dexterous, Hardy, Reſolute, true to his Promiſes, moderate in his Pleaſures, prodigal in his Liberalities, and the raſh Acts he committed are to be attributed to his Youth and Proſperity. He admired Homer ſo much, that he envied Achilles for having ſuch an Hiſtorian. He was ſo kind to his Maſter Ariſtotle, that he ſent him the above-mention'd Sum to try Phyſical Experiments, and for that end, furniſhed him with Hunters and Fiſhers to bring him all the rarities of Nature, whereon he made his Obſervations. Abundance of Medals are yet extant repreſenting Alexander, ſome with a Helmet of Gold on his Head, and a Ram's Head at his Stomach: The Prieſts of Jupiter Ammon having ſhewn him the ſaid Jupiter in that ſhape. There are alſo extant ancient little Stones fit for Rings with ſuch Cuts, repreſenting alſo the Prieſt who ſhew'd him the Ram's Head. Druſius Miſcel. Q. Curtius. Pliny. Plutarch. Diodor. Siculus. Juſtin. Joſeph.

ALEXANDER, Son of Eropus, named Lynceſtes, was accuſed to have had a hand in the death of Philip of Macedon; but Alexander the Great, who executed Two of his Brothers upon that ſcore, pardon'd Lynceſtes, becauſe he was the firſt Perſon that wiſhed him Joy of the Crown. Afterwards he ſent him into Phrygia at the Head of a Body of Theſſalians, but underſtanding Darius had gained him to diſpatch his Prince, he ordered him to be ſtopt, and put to death, after Two years lying in Irons. Arrian, &c.

Kings of Syria.

ALEXANDER Epiphanes, Son of Antiochus Epiphanes, vanquiſhed Demetrius Soter, and wreſted the Kingdom out of his hands, which done, he married Cleopatra, the Daughter of Ptolemy Philometor, whom when he had had Four years, Ptolemy took her from him again, and gave her to Demetrius Nicanor, Alexander's Enemy, with whom he join'd in a League, and expelled Alexander out of his Dominions, who flying into Arabia, had his Head ſtruck off by Abdiel an Arabian, who ſent it to Philometor. 1 Maccabees 10. Joſeph. Juſtin.

ALEXANDER the Second, ſirnamed Zebina, made King of Syria through the favour of Ptolemy Phyſcon, and his Succeſs againſt Demetrius Nicanor, whom he overthrew in Battel, but being himſelf aſſailed by Antiochus Gryphus, the Son of Nicanor, was ſlain in the Field, and left his Kingdom to the Victor. Joſephus.

Roman Emperors.

ALEXANDER Severus, Vid. Severus.

ALEXANDER, a Phrygian by Birth, was inveſted with the Roman Empire by the Soldiers at Carthage, but being timorous, and not fit for Government, was at the firſt onſet vanquiſh'd by Voluſianus, ſent againſt him by Maxentius, and no ſooner taken but ſtrangled. Herod. Euſeb. Caſſiodorus.

ALEXANDER, ſucceeded his Brother Leo the Philoſopher in the Eaſt, a Man abandoned to Luxury and Sloth, and ridden by his Flatterers. He Reigned one year, and having filled his Belly over full, broke a Vein in getting a Horſeback, of which he died, An. 912. Baron. Curopalat.

ALEXANDER, King of Poland, Anno 1501. He was formerly Duke of Lithuania, and ſo belov'd by his People, that tho' they were Enemies to Poland, they willingly united with it in his favour, on condition, that the Lithuanians ſhould have Voice in chooſing the King. His General Glinski ſlew 20000 Vallachians in a Battel juſt as the King was dying, ſo that his laſt words were a Thankſgiving for the Victory. Michovius. Guagninus.

Kings of SCOTLAND.

ALEXANDER the Firſt, King of Scotland, ſirnamed Acer, or the Fierce, ſucceeded his Brother Edgar, who died without Iſſue, Anno 1107. His Fierceneſs he ſhewed in the very beginning of his Reign, upon a Rebellion raiſed by ſome Youngſters. To Fiſh in troubled Waters, theſe got over the River Spey, and the King in purſuit of them, neither the rapidneſs of the River, nor coming in of the Tide, being able to ſtop him, until his own Men drew him back by force; however he ſent part of his Forces over, under Alexander Carron, whoſe marvellous paſſing the River ſtruck ſuch a Terror into the Enemies, that they preſently betook themſelves to their Heels; but many of their Ring-leaders were taken and hanged. Another proof of his Fierceneſs he gave upon this remarkable occaſion: Some of the Heads of the Thieving Clans having corrupted one of his Bed-Chamber, got private entrance whilſt he was aſleep, but being awaked with their ruſhing in, he firſt ſlew his treacherous Servant, and then 6 of the Thieves, and purſued the reſt until moſt were killed and put to flight. He is no leſs famous for his Juſtice to a poor Woman, who meeting him in his return from defeating the Rebels, complained that the Earl of Mern's Son had ſcourged her Husband with a Whip of Thongs, becauſe he ſued him for a juſt Debt, whereat the King was ſo enraged, that he leaped immediately from his Horſe, and cauſed the young Nobleman, who was in Company, to be puniſhed e're he would ſtir farther. He built ſeveral Churches and Monaſteries, particularly that of Æmona in Honour of St. Colm, endowing them, and eſpecially that of St. Andrew's, with large Revenues. He died after 17 years Reign, having no Iſſue by Sibyll Daughter of William the Conqueror. Buchan.

ALEXANDER the Second, King of Scotland, ſucceeded his Father William in the year 1213. and was but 16 years of Age when he began to Reign; he ſettled things more prudently than could be expected of one of his youth. His firſt Expedition was into England, at the requeſt of the Churchmen, to bridle the Tyranny of King John; and accordingly he deſtroyed the Lands of thoſe that adhered to him; in Revenge, King John invaded the Neighbouring Countries of Scotland with Fire and Sword, was offered Battel by Alexander, which he declined, and in his retreat burnt the Monaſtery of Coldingham, and took Barwick which was but ill fortified. Alexander following, ravaged the Country as far as Richmond in Yorkſhire, returned by Weſtmorland, deſtroying all to the Gates of Carliſle, which he took and fortified. Next year Lewis the Dauphin of France being invited by the Clergy to take the Crown of England, King Alexander haſtned to his Aſſiſtance; but King John having made his Peace with the Pope by ſurrendring his Crown, and making it Feudatory to the See of Rome, the King of Scots and Dauphin were both forced to return, being Excommunicated by the Legate Galo. The Scots met with ſome difficulty to get home, King John having broken the Bridges, Guarded the Paſſes, and drove ſharp Stakes into the Fords of the River Trent, and had he not died at Newark upon that River, would have probably cut off their Retreat; but Alexander having repaſs'd it, plundered the whole Countrey, and carried off a great Booty. At laſt Alexander and his Kingdom were abſolved from the Pope's Curſe, and Peace made between him and Henry III. of England, the Scots reſtoring Carliſle, and the Engliſh Barwick, the Boundary of the Kingdoms being made at Recroſſe in Stanmoor in Cumberland. After this, Alexander and Henry met at York, and in Preſence of Pandulphus the Legate, agreed that Alexander ſhould Marry Henry's Siſter; and Henry Swore, that he would beſtow Alexander's Siſters in Marriage according to their Dignities, which he did not perform. After this, Alexander ſuppreſs'd a Rebellion in Roſſe, and another in Galloway, where 5000 of the Rebels were killed: Having afterwards gone to York, with his Queen, to accommodate Differences between King Henry III. and his Nobility; She died without Iſſue after her return from Canterbury, whither ſhe had gone in Pilgrimage with the Queen of England. A while after, he Married a French Lady, by whom he had Alexander III. his Succeſſor. Alexander died in the 51ſt year of his Age, and 35th of his Reign, Anno 1249. Buchanan.

ALEXANDER the Third, Son to Alexander II. ſucceeded to the Crown of Scotland, Anno 1249. During his Minority, all things were Governed by the Faction of the Cumins, who ſpent the Publick Revenue, and oppreſſed the Subjects of all Ranks. A Convention being called, the Peace was confirmed, and an Affinity propoſed with the Engliſh, leſt they ſhould take the advantage from the preſent ſtate of Affairs. The Scots Ambaſſadors were kindly received in England, and richly preſented by King Henry III. betwixt home and the King of Scotland, there was an Interview at York, Nov. 1251. On Chriſtmas-day King Henry Knighted Alexander, and next day concluded a Match betwixt him and Margaret his Daughter; and becauſe Alexander was but a Child, Henry was appointed his Guardian: But notwithſtanding this, thoſe who were of the King's Council ruled as they pleaſed, and oppreſſed the People; which Henry being informed of, went to Wark Caſtle on the Borders, and out of a Fatherly Affection, ſent for his Son-in-Law, and the Scottiſh Nobility, and by his Advice, many advantageous Alterations were made, and profitable Statutes Enacted; but the Faction of the Cumins, and the Highland Clans, pretending that this was an Engliſh Yoke, ſurprized the young King after his return, thruſt away his faithful Counſellors, and Governed as they pleaſed: But this Sedition was allayed by the death of Walter, chief of the Cumins, who was poiſoned by his Wife, an Engliſh Woman, who was thereupon impriſoned, but bought her freedom, and cited the Scots to anſwer her at Rome before the Pope's Legate, which they diſdain'd, as never being obliged to anſwer out of their own Kingdom. When the King came of Age, he pardoned the Cumins all their Offences; thinking himſelf obliged to it in Policy. Aug. 1263. Acho King of Norway, with 160 Sail, landed 20000 Men at Air, to claim the Weſtern Iſlands, having reduced Two of the greateſt of them. Alexander Stuart, Grandfather to the firſt of that Name who was King of Scotland, marched againſt, and defeated him, killing 16000 of his Men, with the Loſs of 5000 Scots; Acho eſcaping to his Fleet, was alſo overtaken with a Storm, ſo that with much difficulty, he and they reached Orkney, where he died for grief. His Son Magnus, finding things in this condition, made Peace with the Scots, quitted his Pretenſion to the Weſtern Iſles for 1000 Marks in hand, and 100 per Ann. and concluded a Match betwixt Alexander's Daughter Margaret, and Hangonan his Son. The King of Scots about this time ſent 5000 Men under Robert Bruce, and Alexander Cumin, to aſſiſt his Father-in-Law Henry III. of England, involved in a Civil War. Cumin, with the greateſt part of the Scots, was killed, the Engliſh King and his Party routed, and himſelf and Son taken. The King of Scots at the ſame time had ſome Diſpute with his Clergy, and the Romiſh Legates, who demanded Money for the Holy War; whereupon the King took up the Difference with his own Clergy, and forbid the Legates to enter Scotland, telling them, that he would ſend Men and Money for the Holy War by other hands; and accordingly ſent his Men under the Earls of Carrick and Athol to Lewis of France, and 1000 Marks to the Pope. Next year Henry of England died, and Alexander with his Queen aſſiſted at the Coronation of his Son Edward I. After which, the Queen of Scots died ſpeedily, and alſo her Daughter the Queen of Norway. Alexander afterward Married a French Lady, Daughter to the Earl of Dreux, by whom he had no Iſſue; and falling from his Horſe as a Hunting at Kinghorn, Anno 1285. broke his Neck in the 45th of his Age, and 37th of his Reign: More miſſed than ever was King of Scotland, becauſe of the Troubles which threatned the Kingdom about a Succeſſor, his whole Lineage being extinct. He made many excellent Laws, divided the Kingdom into Four Parts, which he travelled through yearly, ſtaying a quarter in each, and adminiſtring Juſtice impartially to the meaneſt, ſo that he was acquainted with all his Subjects of Quality, and never troubled the Country with a Court nor Guards, but was attended by the Sheriffs in the reſpective Counties: He commanded all idle Perſons to be puniſh'd, reduc'd the Train of the Nobility to a certain number, and finding the Merchants ruined by Shipwracks and Piracies, forbid Traffick by Sea; which was reckoned a Publick prejudice, and therefore it was aboliſhed after a years continuance, at which time, ſuch a vaſt quantity of Foreign Commodities was imported, that they were never known ſo cheap; and to gratifie the Merchants, he ordered, that none but they ſhould buy by Wholeſale, and that others ſhould buy from them by Retail. Buchan.

ALEXANDER, Duke of Albany, Brother to James the Third, King of Scots, lived in the 15th Century. Returning from France, where he had been to viſit his Grandfather by the Mother's-ſide, he was taken Priſoner by the Engliſh, but was ſoon after releaſed upon the demand of the Scots, whoſe Nobility offended at the King for the meanneſs of his Spirit, who ordinarily made Tradeſmen his Favourites, reſolved to purge the Court from that ſort of Cattle. The Courtiers hearing of it, ſeized upon John, the King's youngeſt Brother, who had ſpoken a little too boldſy and raſhly concerning the State of the Country, for which he was put to death. Alexander the Second's Son, next in Blood, was alſo next in danger, though he did what he could to avert the ſuſpicion from himſelf. In ſhort, the King's Officers not holding themſelves ſecure as long as he was alive, preſently clapt him up Priſoner in the Caſtle of Edinburgh, but he found means to make his eſcape thence, and carried his Servant off upon his Back, who broke his Leg in trying whether the Rope they were to come down by was long enough. Being come to the Court of England, he informed King Edward IV. of the Diſſention between the King of Scotland and his Nobles, and aſſured him, that if he thought fit to take an advantage of it, great numbers of Horſe and Foot would come to him as ſoon as he ſhould enter Scotland. Whereupon King Edward ſent an Army under the Command of his Brother Richard Duke of Glouceſter, whereby he recovered Barwick, and Alexander his Eſtate and Dignity, being in the next Aſſembly of States made Regent by an unanimous conſent. Now that he might extinguiſh the Remainders of the King his Brother's old Hatred againſt him, and ſo obtain new Favours by a Courteſie; he brought him out of the Caſtle wherein he was Impriſoned, and reſtored him to the free poſſeſſion of his Kingdom. But the memory of old Offences prevailed more with him than that of his late Courteſie. His Jealouſie of Alexander, a popular Prince, increaſed by the daily Inſinuations he received from malicious Men, as if he did affect to ſupplant him, whom he ſo fairly reſtored to the Crown and Government. In ſhort, Alexander being advertiſed by his Friends, that the Court was hatching his Ruine, fled privately into England, and was condemned in his abſence. He travelled from England into France, where he died, leaving Two Sons behind him, viz. Alexander by his firſt Wife, Daughter to the Earl of Orkney, and John by his ſecond, who was afterwards Regent of Scotland for ſome years. Buchanan.

ALEXANDER, Sirnamed of Hales, from the famous Monaſtery of Hales in Glouceſterſhire, wherein he was bred, lived ſome time at Oxford, from whence he went over to Paris, to poliſh and improve his Learning, followed Peter Lombard, ſo was the Leader of Thomas Aquinas, and all the reſt of the Schoolmen; he was the firſt that wrote a Comment upon the Four Books of Sentences, at the Inſtance of Pope Innocent IV. to whom he Dedicated the ſame, which got him the Title of Doctor Irrefragabilis; he likewiſe compoſed a Body of Divinity divided into Four Parts; he alſo writ Metaphyſicks, and very Judicious Annotations upon moſt parts of the Bible, beſides Comments upon the Pſalms, St. Paul's Epiſtles, and the Revelation; he endeavours to prove, in a Treatiſe upon that Subject, That the Bleſſed Virgin was conceived without Sin; he publiſhed many other Works, which were generally entertained with great Applauſe. At Paris he was Doctor and Profeſſor both of Philoſophy and Divinity; nor did his Piety fall ſhort of his Learning. He died at Paris, Anno 1245. and was buried in the Franciſcan Church, whoſe Order he took upon him a little before his deceaſe. Pitſeus, Willet, Bellarm.

ALEXANDER de Medicis, Firſt Duke of Tuſcany, Natural Son to the Duke of Urbin, was Married to the Natural Daughter of Charles V. who forthwith eſtabliſhed him at Florence as perpetual Governor, ſo that relying on his Father-in-Law, he carried it ſo ill to the Florentines, that he became odious to them, and was killed by his Kinſman Laurence de Medicis, under pretence of bringing him a handſom Girl, Jan. 6. 1537. He is nevertheleſs ſaid to have been Witty, and a good Juſticiary, having obliged a Gentleman who had Raviſhed a Peaſant's Daughter, to Marry her; and gave a Purſe of 60 Ducats to a Peaſant, who brought it to a Merchant that had loſt it, and promiſed 10 Ducats to the Reſtorer; but to avoid the Payment, alledged there were 70 in the Purſe when he loſt it; ſo that the Duke told him laughing, It was not his Purſe, ſeeing there were but 60 Ducats in it. Thuan. Paul. Jovius.

ALEXANDER Farneſe, Duke of Parma and Piacenza, Son of Octavio Farneſe, and Margaret of Auſtria, Natural Daughter to Charles V. one of the greateſt Generals of his Age: He was made Governor of the Low-Countreys, An. 1578. at a time when his Predeceſſors had almoſt loſt all by their Cruelties and Severity in preſſing the Inquiſition; and as well by his Moderation as his Arms recovered all the Spaniſh Low-Countreys; a Perſon no leſs remarkable for his Prudence, Fidelity, Vigilance, and Conſtancy, than for his Succeſs and good Fortune, all which Virtues render'd him Famous, as he was alſo for the Relief of Roan and Paris, beſieged by Henry IV. of France in 1592. However, being wounded in his retreat, he ſtopt at Arras, where he died in the flower of his Age, being but about 46 Years old. To this Prince's Story may be added, That he was at the Battel of Lepanto againſt the Turks at 18 years of Age, where he gave Preſages of his after-Conduct and Courage; He undertook the recovery of the Netherlands with a very few Troops, yet perform'd very great Things; He chaſed the French out of the Netherlands, who followed the Duke of Alençon, and defeated divers Parties of him, took Maſtricht, Breda, and Nimeguen, and beſieged Antwerp, though his Officers were againſt it, it being thought impregnable becauſe of the Ditch of Covenſtein. However it ſubmitted after a Years Siege, Aug. 1584. the Merchants within preſſing a Surrender to ſave their Effects. And it's probable he had puſh'd his Conqueſts farther, had not Philip II. of Spain, who was Headſtrong in his Reſolutions, obliged him to take other Meaſures, and join the French Leaguers. He prepared Ships at Antwerp for the Invaſion of England in 1588. but the Dutch having block'd up the Mouth of the Scheld, that he could not get to Sea, he cauſed a Canal to be dug between Antwerp and Newport to carry the Ships thither, but the Deſign miſcarried e're he could do any thing. Thuanus. Strada. Grotius.

POPES.

ALEXANDER the Firſt, a Native of Rome, ſucceeded Euariſtus, was the Firſt that order'd the Holy-Water to be bleſt with Salt, and ſprinkled in Private Houſes to chaſe away the Devil; he ſuffer'd Martyrdom in the Reign of Adrian the Emperor, after he had ſate Ten Years and Seven Months. He added Pridie quam Pateretur to the Clauſe, Hoc eſt Corpus meum, and inſtituted that Water ſhould be mingled with Wine, to ſignifie the Union of Chriſt and his Church; He ordered alſo, that the Hoſt ſhould be only of Unleavened Bread. Platina. There are three Epiſtles father'd on this Pope, viz. To the Orthodox, to the Biſhops, and Prieſts; but Morery thinks they are none of his. Anaſtaſius, Baronius, Platina.

ALEXANDER the Second, before nam'd Anſelm, ſucceeded Nicholas II. in the Year 1061. He was no ſooner Elected, but the Italian Biſhops, ſupported by the Emperor Hen. IV. ſet up Cadolus by the Name of Honorius II. and afflicted the Church with a long Schiſm. Alexander favour'd William the Norman in his Conqueſt of England, and depriv'd Laicks of the Right of Inveſtiture to Sacred Functions. He died in the Year 1073. after he had ſate Eleven Years and Six Months. The Parties of theſe two contending Popes fought it out in a bloody Battel in Prati di Nerone, and Cadolus was repulſed from Rome; and being afterwards recall'd, enters with a greater Force, but the Romans falling upon him, put his Men to flight; he himſelf narrowly eſcaping, was carried by a ſtrong Squadron through the Enemies Army to the Caſtle of St. Angelo, where being Beſieged, he bribed the Beſiegers, and made his eſcape on Horſeback. In the mean time, Otho Archbiſhop of Cologne having a Commiſſion to ſettle the Affairs of the Church, rebuk'd Alexander for taking the Chair without the Emperor's Leave; but a Council being call'd at Mantua, Matters were adjuſted, Alexander pardoned Cadolus on his Submiſſion, and by his Legate Hildebrand recover'd by Military Force what had been taken from the Church by Neighbouring Potentates. Platina. Genebrad. Baron.

ALEXANDER the Third, ſucceeded Adrian IV. in the Year 1159. The Emperor Barbaroſſa ſet up Victor IV. Paſchal III. and Calixtus III. againſt him; however at length he got the better, and after three Years abſence in France, was recall'd by the Romans; The Emperor was forced to beg his Pardon at Venice, where the haughty Pope ſet his Foot upon his Neck, with this Expreſſion, Super aſpidem & Baſiliſcum ambulabis; to which the Emperor replying, That that Power was not given to him but to Peter, he rejoin'd, both to Me and Peter. During his Troubles, Emanuel, Emperor of Conſtantinople, ſent to offer him Aſſiſtance, provided he would conſent to the Re-union of the Eaſtern and Weſtern Empire, to which the Pope anſwered, That he could not conſent to Unite what his Predeceſſors had induſtriouſly Divided. After his return to Rome, he called the Third Council of Lateran for the Reformation of Manners. Platina, Genebrard, Baron. Nauclerus.

ALEXANDER the Fourth, ſucceeded Innocent IV. in the Year 1254. In his time the Two Factions of the Guelphs and Gibelines fill'd all Italy with Blood and Slaughter. He oppoſed the Pretenſions of Manfred, Natural Son of the Emperor Frederick, vex'd England with his Exactions, as intending a War againſt the Turks, but being diſappointed of that Deſign by the Wars between the Venetians and Genoeſes, died for Grief in 1261. after he had govern'd the Church ſix Years and odd Months. He was a great Favourer of the Religious Mendicants, and condemn'd a Book written by William de Sancto Amore, for ſaying, That thoſe who took Religious Habits to live by the Alms of other Men could not be ſav'd. He had ſome Bloody Conflicts with the Gibelines with various Fortune. Platina ſays, he condemn'd a Book call'd the Eternal Goſpel, which maintain'd, that a State of Grace was not attainable by the Law of the Goſpel, but by the Law of the Spirit. Platina. Du Cheſne. Genebrard. Onuphrius.

ALEXANDER the Fifth, was choſen upon the Depoſal of Gregory XII. and Benedict XIII. During the long Schiſm of Peter de Luna he depoſed K. Ladiſlaus, who had haraſſed the Church-Dominions, and taken ſome Towns; He ſate but 10 Months after his Election, and died in the Year 1410. He was applauded for his great Soul, and Liberality to Men of Merit, which made him often ſay of himſelf, that he was a Rich Biſhop, a Poor Cardinal, and a Beggarly Pope. He was firſt a poor Boy, taken up as he was begging in the Streets of Candia by a Franciſcan, who ſaw ſomething more than ordinary in his Phyſiognomy, and therefore gave him the Rudiments of Greek and Latin in his own Convent, where he improv'd ſo faſt that he was ſent to the Univerſity of Oxford, and afterwards to that of Paris, where he took his Doctor's Degree. And this mean Beginning made him uſe to ſay of himſelf, when he came to be Pope, he had this Advantage above his Predeceſſors, that he could not be compelled to raiſe his Kindred, as never having known Father, Mother, Brother, Siſter, &c. Platina, Volaterran. Spond.

ALEXANDER the Sixth, having changed the Name and Arms of his Father Lenzoli, deſcended from one of the greateſt Houſes of the Kingdom of Valencia, to take that of his Mother Borgia, Siſter to Calixtus III. ſate in St. Peter's Chair with the Character of Paparum Spurciſſimus. He obtained the Popedom by bribing the Grandees of the Conclave. When he was Cardinal, he got four Sons and a Daughter by Madonna Vanoza, the Wife of Dominico Arimano: For the ſecond of which Sons he had ſuch an immoderate Affection, that he overturn'd all the Laws of God and Man to advance him to the Throne of the Cæſars; and to obtain his end, he gave the Title of Catholick to Ferdinand King of Spain, Vanquiſher of the Moors, and divided the Indies between him and the King of Portugal, to make them favourable to his Deſigns. In his time Charles VIII. K. of France, ſubdued the Kingdom of Naples, and in ſpight of the Pope's Treachery, in his return won the famous Battel of Fornovo, having but 9000 Men againſt 40000. and paſſed the Appennine Hills with great difficulty, 300 Swiſs drawing his Artillery. He made a Sport of ſelling Benefices and uſurping the Rents and Lands which belong'd to them, and frequently put thoſe to Death that blam'd his Extravagancies. He was publickly Lampoon'd thus,

Vendit Alexander Claves, Altaria, Chriſtum,
Vendere Jure poteſt, emerat ille prius.
Sextus Tarquinus, Sextus Nero, Sextus & ipſe,
Semper ſub Sextis perdita Roma fuit.

At length, having deſign'd to Poiſon certain Cardinals at a Country-Houſe of Cardinal Adriano Cornetto, he invited himſelf thither with a great Train. At which time his Son Cæſar had given to one of his Confidents a Bottle of Poiſon'd Wine, with Orders to give it none but ſuch as he ſhould direct; but the Pope coming in Hot and Dry, he that had the Bottle by miſtake gave him the Poiſon, of which he died in 72 of his Age, and 1503 of Chriſt's Nativity, after he had held the Pontificate Eleven Years and Three Days. Cæſar Borgia drunk alſo of the Poiſon, but eſcaped, by cauſing himſelf to be wrapt up in a Mules Belly, but was deſpoil'd of all his unjuſt Acquiſitions after his Father's Death; the ſucceeding Popes giving the true Owners leave each to ſeize his own. Platina adds, That he cut off by violent Deaths moſt of thoſe who were bribed to Elect him. Charles VIII. of France enter'd Rome in his time with his Army; whereupon the Pope fled to the Caſtle of St. Angelo, but finding that the French behaved themſelves modeſtly, upon the Civil Treatment of the Citizens, he came out and made a League with them; but the French K. diſtruſting him, would needs have his Son Cæſar Borgia for Hoſtage. This Pope finding himſelf unſucceſsful in War, endeavoured to ſtrengthen himſelf by Powerful Alliances, and Married one of his Daughters to John Sforza Lord of Peſaro, contrary to his Promiſe to a Spaniſh Nobleman, to whom ſhe was contracted. He afterwards took her from Sforza, and gave her to Lewis of Arragon, Baſtard-Son to Alfonſo D'Eſte Duke of Ferrara. He deluded the Urſini and their Confederates into a Treaty with his Son Cæſar Borgia, who under pretence of giving them a courteous Reception, ſurprized and murder'd the Chief of them, and the Pope cauſed Cardinal Urſini of that Family to be Poiſon'd. This Pope was exceedingly given to Women and Plays; in a word, he was prodigiouſly Vicious. Platina, Du Cheſne, Volaterran. Mariana.

ALEXANDER the Seventh, a Sieneſe of the Houſe of Chigi, ſucceeded Innocent X. he aſſiſted the Venetians both with Men and Money, to carry on the War againſt the Ottomans, and was very bountiful to the People of Rome that had ſuffer'd extreamly by Peſtilence, Inundations, and Earthquakes. Moreover, He effectuated the Peace betwixt France and Spain, by the Marriage of Lewis XIV. with the Infanta of Spain. Soon after, the Corſi of his Guards having offended the Duke of Crequi the French Ambaſſador, he gave the King all the Satisfaction he could demand, even to a mean Submiſſion, by erecting a Pyramid, and diſmiſſing the Corſi for ever. He Canoniz'd Villa Nova, and Francis of Sales, Baptiz'd the King of Morrocco, and decided the Controverſie about the Birth of the Virgin Mary. Died in 1667, after he had ſate 12 Years and ſome Months. Platina.

ALEXANDER the Eighth. See Ottoboni.

ALEXANDER, Biſhop of Comana, reputed a Saint, was Sirnamed, The Collier, becauſe he was of that Trade, chuſing it to hide himſelf from the Eyes of the World, to mortifie his Fleſh, and to prevent his being polluted with Luſts, being a handſom well made young Man. His Election to the Biſhoprick is ſaid to have been thus: The People of Comana requeſting St. Gregory of Neocæſarea to found them a Church. After ſome days Converſe among them, they came to chuſe a Biſhop; The Chief of the Town had their Eyes on thoſe who were eminent in Learning and Birth; but Gregory telling them they muſt only conſider Merit in the Perſon, one of the Chief being diſſatisfied with this Prelate's Conduct, ſaid to him in ſcorn, If you reject thoſe who are moſt Illuſtrious, then chuſe Alexander the Collier, who being there all ſmutty and ragged, occaſion'd Laughter; but Gregory being, according to our Authors, inſpired from Heaven, did really chuſe him Biſhop; and that the People might know his Worth, cauſed him to Preach publickly, which he did with ſo much Solidity, that they were at the ſame time Charm'd and Amaz'd at his Doctrine. This happened Anno 232. or 233. ſays Baronius. He afterward proved a Learned Biſhop, and ſuffered Martyrdom under Decius the Emperor.

ALEXANDER, Biſhop of Jeruſalem, was impriſoned for his Religion in the time of Severus, and Coadjutor in that Charge at Jeruſalem to Narciſſus, who was then Aged above 106 Years, and at laſt ſuffered Martyrdom under Decius. He Collected a good Library at Jeruſalem, which is mentioned by St. Jerom. Euſeb.

ALEXANDER, Biſhop of Hierapolis, Anno 431. was ſent by the Biſhop of Antioch to the Synod of Epheſus in defence of Neſtorius, to whom he was as great a Friend, as he was Enemy to Cyrillus, with whom he would hear of no accommodation upon what Terms ſoever, and renounced Communion with all ſuch as were for an Agreement with him; inſomuch, that at laſt he was Baniſh'd to Famothis in Egypt by the Emperor. Cave Hiſt. Liter.

ALEXANDER, Biſhop of Alexandria, according to Theodoret, ὁ γενναῖος τῶν ἐκκλησιαστικῶν δογματων πρόμαχος, the moſt Valiant Champion of the Truth, ſucceeded Achillas about 312. or 313. In his time Arius broached his damnable Hereſie, taking occaſion from ſome of his ſubtil Expreſſions, while diſputing ſomewhat Vain-gloriouſly about the Trinity; whereupon Conſtantine the Great writ ſharply both to him and Arius; but the latter being refractary, Alexander call'd a Synod, wherein Arius was condemned, and degraded from being Presbyter; and this Sentence was afterward confirmed in a Council of 100 Biſhops. A third Synod was call'd upon that ſame Subject, and Conſtantine wrote again to both Parties about an Accommodation; but without effect: Whereupon, the Great and Famous Council of Nice was called, Anno 325. wherein, chiefly by Alexander's means, Arius was Condemn'd and Baniſh'd: And five Months after Alexander died, Anno 325. Of 70 Epiſtles which he wrote againſt Arius, there are only two extant, one of them very large againſt Arius's Opinions to the Biſhop of Byzantium; and the other to all Biſhops, laying open Arius's Blaſphemies, and deſiring that his Followers might not be admitted into their Communion. Cave. Hiſt. Literaria. See the Life of Euſebius Cæſarienſis, in the 10th Tome of the Bibliotheque Univerſelle.

ALEXANDER, Biſhop of Cappadocia, about 212. being, according to Euſebius, admoniſhed by God in a Dream to go in Pilgrimage to Jeruſalem, to Pray, and ſee the Holy places; the Clergy of that City being alſo forewarn'd in that ſame Manner, did meet him without the Gates, as a Biſhop ſent to them from God; ſo that with conſent of the Biſhops of Paleſtine, and Narciſſus of Jeruſalem, then 116 Years old, they compelled him to ſtay as his Coadjutor, and after his Death he became his Succeſſor, erected a Noble Library at Jeruſalem, whence Euſebius owns, that he had abundance of help for his Hiſtory. Alexander ſuffered much under Severus and Caracalla; and in the Reign of Decius, was Impriſoned at Cæſarea; and after a Noble Confeſſion of Chriſt, received the Crown of Martyrdom. Cave Hiſt. Literaria.

ALEXANDER, Biſhop of Byzantium, about 313. and firſt Patriarch of Conſtantinople, of whom Gregory Nazianzen gives this Character, That he was the Great Alexander; the Ornament of the Church of Conſtantinople; the Generous Defender and Propugnator of the Trinity: He ſubſcribed the Condemnation of Arius at the Council of Nice, and died about the Year 336 or 37. during the Reign of Conſtantine, who being impoſed upon by a falſe Confeſſion of Arius, conſented to his re-admiſſion into the Communion of the Church, which Alexander being not able to hinder, had recourſe to God by Faſting and Prayer, to which he alſo exhorted the Church; ſo that it was obſervable, that after this, Arius died by voiding of his Bowels, juſt as his Party were carrying him in Triumph to be re-admitted. Theod.

ALEXANDER, Patriarch of Antioch, choſen to that See in the Year 408. after the Death of Porphyrius. Theodoret gives him the Character of a great Divine, and ſays, He was very remarkable for his Auſterities, and retir'd way of Living: And that he was generally admir'd for his Moderation, his Prudence, and his Elocution. His principal Care was, to reconcile the Differences in his Church. There had been a lamentable Diviſion for a great while, upon the Account of Euſtathius, the Catholicks being ſplit into two Parties, about the Right of Succeſſion, which occaſion'd their having Two Orthodox Biſhops in that See for ſome conſiderable time. Alexander took great pains to bring the oppoſite Parties to a right Underſtanding; and God bleſs'd his Zeal and Charity to that degree, that the Obſtinacy of the Euſtathians, was at laſt conquered by his Arguments and obliging Behaviour. Afterwards Alexander diſliking the Heats of his Predeceſſor Porphyrius againſt St. Chryſoſtome, put the Name of this Father into the Diptychs of the Church of Antioch. And, Laſtly, He diſpatch'd ſome Perſons from him, to Innocent the Firſt, and deſired his Communion: The Pope received his Requeſt very kindly, and wrote him a Friendly Letter. Theodor. Lib. 5. c. 35. Innocent I. in Epiſt. Baronius. A. C. 408. and 411.

ALEXANDER, Biſhop of Liege, Son of the Count of Juliers, famous for the great Victory he won from Godfrey Duke of Louvain in 1130. The Duke, beſides a great number of Men, loſt his Standard, which was afterwards carried about in the publick Proceſſions of the City of Liege: He was depoſed however by Innocent II. upon falſe Suggeſtions, and died for Grief in 1135. At that time the Chapter of Liege was very Auguſt, having in it nine Kings Sons, 24 Dukes Sons, and 28 Earls Sons, ſeven Barons Sons, and many Gentlemen. Gazay.

ALEXANDER, a Heretick, the Diſciple of Valentinian, who maintain'd, that the Fleſh of Chriſt could not be Humane, without being of the Subſtance of Man; adding, That it was the Sinful Fleſh which was condemn'd in our Saviour's Perſon. He wrote a Treatiſe of nine Chapters concerning what Chriſt did in the Fleſh, with abundance of particular Opinions. Pamelius, Tertullian.

ALEXANDER, a Jew, who being ſent Anno 315. by the Patriarch of the Jews, to gather the Tithes and Firſt-Fruits of that People, was by Converſe with the Chriſtians, and Reading the Goſpel, Converted; at which the Jews were ſo enraged, that they took, beat, and caſt him into the River Cydnus; but he eſcaping, complain'd to Conſtantine, who gave him power to build Churches; and on his account its thought, that the Law mentioned in the Code of Theodoſius, was made, condemning the Jews to be burnt, who ſhould torment any Chriſtians. Le Sueur Hiſtoire de L'Egliſe.

ALEXANDER ab Alexandro, an eminent Lawyer of Naples, where the Family has been of long ſtanding, and fruitful in Great Men; he wrote de Diebus Genialibus in ſix Books, and flouriſh'd about the Year 1494. and was Contemporary with Jovianus Pontanus. Geſner. Le Mire. Poſſevin.

ALEXANDER Aphrodienſis, a Peripatetick Philoſopher, in great eſteem about the End of the Second Age, or the Beginning of the Third, and its thought he outliv'd the Reigns of Severus and Caracalla his Son; he was the firſt Profeſſor of Peripatetick Philoſophy at Rome, ſet up by Marcus Aurelius, and Lucius Verus his Son; and the firſt that opened the way for all the Crowd of Commentators upon Ariſtotle. St. Jerom Tranſlated his Commentaries into Latin. Porphyr. St. Jerom, St. Cyril, Poſſevin.

ALEXANDER of Abonoteichos, a famous Impoſtor, who by his cunning Artifices cheated the People into a perfect Adoration of him. He had a quick Wit, and very good Preſence, and an extraordinary Talent to perſuade what he pleaſed; He learn'd of a Mountebank, whom he ſerved when a Boy, a Secret to make People Love or Hate, &c. and after his Maſter's Death aſſociated with one Cocconas of Conſtantinople, a very expert Artiſt: Theſe two, after they had deluded a great Number of credulous and weak People, reſolved to ſet up an Oracle amongſt the Paphlagonians, whom they knew to be Dull and Superſtitious; for which purpoſe they had two Plates of Braſs in the old Temple of Apollo in Chalcedonia, with an Inſcription, ſignifying, that Æſculapius and his Father would ſoon ſettle there. A little after, Cocconas, whilſt he rendred his ambiguous Anſwers, died by the Sting of a Viper: Then Alexander begun to deliver his Oracles, and the better to delude the ignorant People, he bred up two of the greater Serpents of Macedonia, and made them ſo tame, that they ſuck'd Womens Breaſts, and play'd with Children, without doing them the leaſt harm; having brought his Project to this Perfection, he ſecretly conveys a Gooſe's Egg, wherein he had put a young Serpent, into the Foundation of the Temple that they were a building, and the next Morning coming to the Market-place, he cried, That the Town was happy in the birth of a God, and immediately runs and takes up this Myſterious Egg, and having broke it open, ſaid, He had found Æſculapius: And the little Creature appearing, the Croud manifeſted their great Joy by loud Acclamations. Some time after this, he ſhewed one of the great Serpents, holding its Head under his Arm, to the Aſtoniſhment of the Spectators, who imagined it was the ſame they had but lately ſeen ſo little; then he declar'd, that this God would render Anſwers at certain times, and deſired that the Queſtions might be ſent Seal'd, and ſhutting himſelf up in his Sanctuary, had a Herald to call the People in their due order, and delivered them their Papers Sealed, as he received them, after he had cunningly open'd them with a hot Needle, and done them up again without the leaſt damage to the Wax; but if he chanced to break it, he had a Compoſition of Maſtick, Pitch, Wax, and Bitumen, mix'd with the Powder of Talk, which being ſoft, receiv'd the Impreſſion when rub'd over with Hogs-Greaſe, and when hardned Seal'd perfectly well. As for the Anſwers, they were all Dark and Myſtical, except ſuch as related to Phyſick, wherein he was well skill'd. He had about Ten Pence for every Anſwer, which amounted to a vaſt Sum; He kept ſeveral Officers under him, whereof ſome turn'd the Oracles into Verſe, and others Interpreted them: His Fame reach'd as far as Rome, where he had acceſs to the Emperor Marcus Aurelius, Anno Dom. 174. In fine, after he had impoſed upon infinite Numbers of People, and foretold he ſhould die Thunder-ſtruck as Æſculapius did, the 150 Year of his Age, he died miſerably before he had attained 70. of a ſpreading naſty Ulcer in his Leg, which at laſt reached his Belly. Spon. Recherches curieuſes D'antiquite.

ALEXANDER Trallienſis, Born at Trallis in Bithynia, was both a Phyſician and Philoſopher. It is not certain in what time he Lived, but moſt probable 'twas in the Reign of Juſtinian. He was both the Son and Scholar of Dioſcorus: He writ ſome Treatiſes in Phyſick, which were publiſhed in the 16th Century by the order of Peter Caſtilan Biſhop of Mâcon. Agathias Juſtus in Chron. Medic. Caſtilan. in Vit. Medic.

ALEXANDRETTA, a City of Syria, ſeated at the extremity of the Mediterranean Sea, with a commodious Haven, where the Merchants put in that go to Aleppo; the Turks call it Scanderoon: There are in it an Engliſh Conſul, and a French Vice-Conſul. The Air of the Place is extreamly unwholeſom, by reaſon of the Lakes and Moraſſes that extend themſelves into the adjoining Plains: About half a League without the Town ſtands a Tower, upon which are Engraven the Arms of Godfrey of Bologne, which in all probability was built to defend the High-way, that is encloſed with Marſhes on both ſides. See Scanderoon.

ALEXANDRIA, There are many Cities of this Name; but to begin with the Firſt, call'd the Great, to diſtinguiſh it from the reſt, it is ſeated upon the Mediterranean Sea, dignified with the Title of a Patriarchate. The Turks, who are now Maſters of it, call it Scanderia: The Situation is moſt convenient, between the Sea and one of the Arms of the River Nilus, by which means it enjoys two Havens, the Old and the New; it was built by Alexander the Great, as one of the Monuments of his Conqueſts, in the 112 Olympiad, and about 330 Years before the Birth of our Saviour. In proceſs of time Alexandria became famous over all the World, and not only the firſt City of Africa, after the Deſtruction of Carthage, but the firſt in the World next to Rome; and indeed, whether you conſider the Advantage of the Situation, the Fertility of the Soil, the Magnificence of the Buildings, the Convenience of the Harbour; or whether you look upon it in reſpect of the Sciences and Arts that have been profeſſed therein, it ſeems to ſurpaſs all others, as having bred within her Schools many and moſt famous Aſtrologers, Phyſicians, and Hiſtorians. The Ptolemies of Egypt chuſing it for their Capital Seat, beautified it to that degree, that it gave way to none but Rome it ſelf; and the Romans, when Maſters of it, were no leſs careful to preſerve its Splendour; divers Emperors adding new Ornaments, and enlarging its Privileges. The Emperor Caracalla was not ſo kind, for the Citizens being given to raillery, and having ſpoken diſadvantageouſly of him, under the pretence of compoſing a Battalion of the Youth of the City, he aſſembled them in a Plain, where he cauſed them to be Maſſacred in Revenge. The Air of this Place is bad, occaſioned by the Vaulted Ciſterns under the Houſes for containing their Water, which comes in an Aqueduct from the Nile, when it over-flows; and from thence its let into each particular Ciſtern on the Firſt of Auguſt, with great joy, it being to ſerve 'em till that time Twelve-month; but its Exhalations corrupt the Air, and the Water it ſelf contracts an ill Smell. The Commodities of this Place are Spiceries, Oſtrich Feathers, and Medicinal Roots, &c. In this City are St. Mark's Church and Sepulchre, poſſeſſed by the Copticks, and viſited by the Roman Pilgrims. The Turks pretend that Alexander's Tomb is here, and viſit it much: The Walls of the City are fortified with 120 Towers, four Stories each, and capable to lodge 100 Soldiers; the Roofs of the Houſes are Platformwiſe, therefore in the Summer the People Eat and Drink upon them. Since this City came into the Poſſeſſion of the Turks it loſt much of its Ancient Splendour, or rather is almoſt ruin'd to what it was, there not being in it above 8000 Inhabitants: The main occaſion of which is, becauſe it has loſt the Trade of the Indies, ſince the Portugueſes found out a ſafer Way, by the Cape of Good Hope. Near the Haven is the Iſland Pharos, now join'd to the firm Land by a Mote which Cleopatra cauſed to be raiſed; upon that Iſland ſtood the Tower of Pharos, one of the Seven Wonders of the World; upon the Ruines of which, the Turks have now built a Caſtle, and another upon the Harbour; but notwithſtanding the great decay of the City, there are yet to be ſeen the Ruines of Cleopatra's Magnificent Palace, the Cells and Chambers appointed for the Seventy that Tranſlated the Bible, and without the City, the Remains of Pompey's Pillar, the Pedeſtal of which is eight Fathom high, all of one piece of Caſt Marble: But the greateſt Loſs was that of the ineſtimable Library of 500000 Volumes collected by Ptolemy Philadelphus, conſumed in the Wars between Cæſar and Pompey. Tavernier's Travels.

This City is thought to have been the Noph of the Hebrews, the Strongeſt, Richeſt, and beſt Inhabited of Egypt, having the Nile on the E. and W. the Palus Mæotis on the S. and the Mediterranean on the N. but it was entirely ruined by Nebuchadnezzar, about An. M. 3380. as Propheſied by Jer. c.44. *Ezek.*29. Jer. 43. 46. and *Nehem.*3. When Alexander the Great built, or rather repaired it in form of a Macedonian Cloak, it was about ſix miles round; but at laſt grew ſo much, that it was 15 Italian miles in compaſs. The Haven was made inacceſſible to Strangers, by Works concealed in the Water; on the Left ſide it had an Artificial Mole, and on the Right the Iſland Pharus, with a Light-Houſe diſcernible 100 miles at Sea, according to ſome Authors: It had Noble Schools, and the beſt Library in the World, begun by Ariſtotle, augmented by one of the Ptolemies, and burnt by Julius Cæſar when he took the City by Storm, *An.M.*3903. It was taken again by Auguſtus in 3920. was reckoned the Metropolis of Egypt, furniſhed Rome with four Months Corn, and paid as much Tribute in a Month, as Jeruſalem did in a Year: The number of Freemen in it being reckon'd at that time 300000. St. Mark is ſaid to have been the firſt who Preached the Goſpel here, and to have Seal'd it with his Blood after Twenty years Miniſtry. It was taken by the Saracens in 641. Nubienſis ſays, That the Nile paſſes under its Houſes, which are all Arched, and particularly notes its Light-Houſe, as exceeding all that are on the Earth, being built with Marble, Cemented with melted Lead, and 300 Cubits high. On the South-ſide of the City is a Noble Palace, then called Solomon's Houſe, and ſuppoſed to have been built by him. Concerning the Light-houſe, he ſays, That the Cauſe of its building was the Lowneſs of the Plain in which the City ſtands, there being no Mountain near to direct Sailers to it; ſo that the ſaid Light-houſe appears like a Pillar of Smoak by Day, and a Star at Night to thoſe afar off at Sea. After the Mahometans took it, it remained deſolate for ſome Ages; but repeopled again by one of the Caliphs. In 1147. the Venetians and King of Cyprus took this City, and not being able to keep it, burnt it to the Ground; ſince which it never recovered its former Luſtre. The Land about it will bear no Corn; ſo that what they have is brought thither at 40 miles diſtance; but on the ſide of the Nile they have a few Gardens that bear unwholeſom Fruits. In 1167. it was taken by Almarick King of Jeruſalem, after a long and tedious Siege: It was then very Potent and Rich; but more accuſtomed to Merchandiſe than War, and had but a ſmall Garriſon of Turks who were hateful to the Citizens. When the Chriſtians entred it, they admired to ſee that ſuch a Multitude of People could be kept within bounds, under ſuch ſtreights as they were reduced to, and that being above 50000. they ſhould have ſurrender'd to them, who were not above 500 Horſe and 5000 Foot. The Buildings of the City are now mean, and erected on the ruines of the Former; neither is the ſixth Part of the Ancient bounds inhabited. The Walls are Quadrangular, and have four Gates; and there are about 100 Churches and Moſques in it. The Inhabitants are Moors, Jews, Copties, and Græcians, who live here for Trade: But the Haven is very Unſafe and Dangerous; it is guarded by two ſtrong Caſtles, and the City by a Third, all well planted with Cannon. Hackluit. Nubienſis, Strabo, Sandys, Diodorus.

The Church of Alexandria, founded by St. Mark, Diſciple of St. Peter, had great Privileges, and was famous for its Learned Men, as Clemens Alexandrinus, Origen, &c. and for its Pious Prelates, St. Heraclius, Athanaſius, Cyrillus, &c. until its Doctrine was corrupted by Arius and Meletius. The Clergy met ſeveral times in this Town to adjuſt differences; Their conſiderableſt Aſſemblies are theſe that follow. Firſt, That of the Biſhops of Egypt and Libya, under Saint Alexander, wherein Arius was a Second time Excommunicated. Secondly, A Council held in 324. by Hoſius Biſhop of Corduba in Spain, ſent to Alexandria, by Conſtantine the Great, to ſuppreſs Arianiſm, and the Schiſm of Meletius; and alſo to fix the Celebration of the Feaſt of Eaſter, obſerved at that time, by ſome on the 14th of March, according to the Cuſtom of the Jews; by others on the following Sunday. Here have been alſo ſeveral Councils to juſtifie St. Athanaſius, who held one himſelf in 362. after the Death of the Pſeudo-Prelate George, Maſſacred by the Alexandrians. It was reſolved in this Aſſembly, That the Defenders of Hereſie ſhould be pardoned upon their Repentance, but not allow'd to be of the Clergy; That thoſe that were forced into a Compliance might continue in their Places, on ſubſcribing to the Council of Nice: The Biſhops wrote to Lucifer of Cagliari, concerning the Church of Antioch, declaring, That the Holy Ghoſt had the ſame Subſtance and Divinity with the Father and Son; That there was no created thing, nothing Poſterior nor Inferior in the Trinity: They alſo condemned Apollinarius's Hereſie. St. Athanaſius held another in 363. after Julian the Apoſtate's Death, and wrote to the Emperor Jovian his Succeſſor, who had recall'd him from Baniſhment: This Letter is to be ſeen in his Works, and in the Collection of the Councils. St. Cyril held one in 430. againſt Neſtorius: And Dioſcorus, who ſucceeded him, upon Information that Pope Leo in a Council at Rome had condemned that called the Cabal or pretended Council of Epheſus, aſſembled ſome of his Party in 449. and Excommunicated the Pope. But two Years after Proterius ſubmitted to the Ordinances of the Council of Chalcedon, which, after he was Maſſacred by the Heretícks, were condemn'd in a Council held by Timothy Ælurus his Succeſſor, in 459. In 633. Cyrus, choſen Archbiſhop of Alexandria, held a Synod; where, in the Decree call'd the Agreement, he publiſhed Nine Articles, in the 7th of which, he boldly defended the Hereſie of the Monothelites, and threaten'd to Anathematize any that durſt oppoſe it. Le Mire, *Bibl. ALEXANDRIA di Paglia, an Epiſcopal City in Milanois, Suffragan to the Achbiſhop of Milan: It was built in the Year 1178. by the Inhabitants of Cremona, Piacenza, and Milan, who took part with Alexander III. againſt the Emperor Barbaroſſa. Afterward the ſame Emperor beſieg'd it; and though the Walls at that time were only made of Mud and Straw, from whence it had the additional Name of di Paglia: The Inhabitants, being about 15000, defended it ſo bravely, that he was forced to leave it, after he bad lain before it 6 Months. Then the Citizens put it under the Protection of Alexander III. After that, it became ſubject to the Dukes of Milan, the French, and the Spaniards. It ſuffer'd much in the 15th Century, though the Siege that the Prince of Conti and the D. of Modena laid to it in 1657. prov'd none of the moſt ſucceſsful. It is now ſtrong, and well fortified againſt the Surprizes of the French, become near Neighbours to it. This Town ſtands in the middle, betwixt Genoa and Turin, 52 Miles Weſt of Milan. Blondus, Baudr.

ALEXANDRIA, in Albania, at the Foot of the Mountain Caucaſus, upon the Shoar of the Caſpian Sea, and the Chief Emporium of that Country; by the Turks call'd Temur-Capi, or Iron-Gates; 10 days Journey from Ecbatana, the Royal Seat of Perſia, where there is a Paſſage out of Aſia into Scythia, through the Streights of the Mountains. Baudr.

ALEXANDRIA, in Arachoſia, now Cabul, or, as others ſay, Candahar, a fortified City of India on this ſide Ganges, the Metropolis of that Region, upon the Confines of Perſia, at the foot of the Mountains, 100 Miles from the River Indus to the Weſt, under the Great Mogul. Baudr.

ALEXANDRIA, in Poland, a new City in the Upper Volhinia, upon the River Horin, 20 Poliſh Leagues from Lucco, 8 from Corzee, and 12 from Oſtrorog.

ALEXANDRIA, a Town in Suſiana in Perſia. Dionyſius, a Geographer, mentioned by Pliny, was born there.

ALEXANDRIA, a Town 7 Miles and an half in compaſs, built by Alexander the Great, near the River Tanais, or the Don. Quintus Curtius, who mentions this Town, tells us, Alexander built ſeveral of the ſame Name; as, one in the Indies, and elſewhere. Lib. 4. 7. & 9.

ALEXANDRINI di Neuſtain (Julio) born at Trent: He was Phyſician to the Emperor, and much eſteem'd about the Year 1556. He has wrote ſeveral Treatiſes; De Sanitate tuenda; De Medicina & Medico; Annotationes in Galenum.

ALEXANDRUM, a Caſtle in the half Tribe of Manaſſeh, on the Weſt of Jordan in Canaan, in which Ariſtobulus, King of the Jews, rendred up himſelf into the hands of Pompey the Great. Afterwards Alexander, the Son of this Ariſtobulus, endeavoured to fortifie it againſt the Romans; but was forced, by a Siege, to yield it up to them, upon which it was demoliſhed. Ariſtobulus eſcaping from Rome, endeavoured to rebuild it, but was prevented by Gabinius. Herod the Great employ'd Pheroras, his Brother, to rebuild it; and in this Caſtle depoſited Mariamne, his Beautiful and Beloved Wife, when he went to Auguſtus Cæſar to Rhodes. Joſeph. 13. Antiq. 22. 14. 6, 7. 16. 11. 1 de Bello, 5, 6, 12, 17.

ALEXAS, a Jew, and a great Friend of Herod's, whom he cauſed to Marry his Siſter Salome, though againſt her will; but ſhe conſented, in Obedience to the Commands of the Empreſs Livia. Herod, upon his Death-bed, ſent for 'em both, and conjur'd 'em, That as ſoon as he was dead, they ſhould cut the Throats of a great Number of Perſons of Quality, whom he kept Priſoners in the Hippodrome, that all the great Families in the Nation might weep at his Death, which they promiſed to do; but before the News of his Exit was fully divulged, they releaſed 'em all, and gave out they did it by his Order. Joſephus.

ALEXAS of Laodicea, preſented by Timagines to Mark Anthony, and was the occaſion of the Amours of this Roman with Cleopatra, and of his Divorce from Octavia, Siſter to Auguſtus. This Emperor afterwards puniſh'd Alexas ſeverely, having gotten him in his Power. 'Tis ſuppoſed this Alexas is the ſame with Alexander in Joſephus, whom he relates that Auguſtus refuſed to pardon at the Interceſſion of Herod the Great. Plut. in Vit. Ant. Joſeph. Lib. 1. de Bell. Jud. c. 15.

ALEXIA, or Aliſe, a City of France in Burgundy, ſeated upon the deſcent of a Hill, near to which the two Rivers Loza and Ozerain fall into the Brenne. It was formerly the Metropolis of the Mandubii, famous for being beſieged and taken by Cæſar, notwithſtanding the ſtout Reſiſtance of the Gauls, and the Attempts of Vercingetorix with a prodigious Succour to relieve it. Sanſon.

ALEXIS, A very handſom Boy,whom Aſinius Pollio preſented to Virgil, who had a great kindneſs for him, and wrote his Second Eclogue upon his account.

ALEXIUS the Firſt, Comnenus, Son of Iſaac, Emperor of Conſtantinople, uſurp'd the Imperial Crown, after he had ſhut up Nicephorus Botoniates, the lawful Heir, in a Cloiſter. His Liberality to his Brothers, for aſſiſting him in his unjuſt Uſurpation, reduced him to thoſe Neceſſities, that he was conſtrain'd to Tax his Subjects after a moſt cruel and barbarous manner; and his Avarice went ſo far, that he ſeized upon the Eſtates of the Church. Robert Guichard, Duke of Puglia and Calabria, offended with his Conduct, marched into Greece with no more than 15000 Men, and having defeated 160000 which Alexius ſent to oppoſe him, put him into ſuch a fright, that he made a League with the Emperor Henry IV. to invade his Teritories by way of Diverſion. His Cruelty and Infidelity to the French Croiſado's under Godfrey of Boloigne, had like to have ruined the Deſigns of the Chriſtians, in denying 'em due Refreſhments and Neceſſaries; for which they fought, and defeated him in a bloody Battel, 1097. His Jealouſie of the Chriſtians Succeſſes over the Infidels, did much retard the Progreſs of the Holy War. He died abandon'd by all the World, in the Year 1118. having ſcarcely Friends enough to bury him. Anna Comnena, his Daughter, publiſh'd the Hiſtory of his Reign in 14 Books. Baronius, Zonar. Glycas.

ALEXIUS the Second, Sirnamed Porphyrogennetes, was the Son of Manuel Comnenus, and ſucceeded in the Year 1180. under the Tuition of Andronicus his Unkle, who affecting the Empire, firſt murder'd Xena the Emperor's Mother, and afterwards cauſed the young Prince Alexius to be ſtrangled with a Bow-ſtring, being but 15 Years of Age, and his Body to be thrown into the Sea, incloſed in a Cheſt; and then Married his Widow, a Daughter of France, about 1183. Nicetas, Guill. de Tyre.

ALEXIUS the Third, aſſum'd the Sirnames of Comnenus and Porphyrogennetes, whereas before his Name was Angelus. He depriv'd his Brother Iſaac both of his Empire and Eyes, though he had releaſed him out of the hands of the Turks, who had for ſome time kept him in Chains. He was Brutiſh, Outrageous, and ſo Covetous, that he cared not what Villainies he committed, which rendred him odious to all Mankind. Thereupon Alexius the Son of Iſaac repaired to the Venetians for Aid, who compaſſionating his Miſfortunes, ſail'd to Conſtantinople, and having taken the City in 8 days, An. 1203. releaſed Iſaac out of Priſon, and expell'd Alexius. At length, being ſurprized by Theodorus Laſcaris, one of his Sons-in-Law, whom he had alſo diſobliged by his cruel Treatment, while he was treating with the Turks for his Reſtoration, he ſhut him up in a Monaſtery at Nicea. Nicetas.

ALEXIUS the Fourth, had the Satisfaction to ſee his Father reſtored to his Throne, and was himſelf Crown'd Emperor in Auguſt 1203. But Iſaac dying in January following, Alexius Ducas ſeiz'd upon the Empire, and ſtrangled him in Priſon with his own hands. Nicetas, Gregoras.

ALEXIUS the Fifth, Sirnamed Murtzuphilus, becauſe the Hair of his Eye-brows met, and hung very thick over his Eyes, which is generally look'd upon as an evidence of a wicked Man, was of the Illuſtrious Family of Ducas: After he had ſtrangled Alexius IV. he ſeized upon the Empire; but oppoſing Prince Henry, Brother to Baldwin, Earl of Flanders, in his March againſt Conſtantinople, was over-thrown, 20 of his Chief Captains being killed, and the Great Standard of the Empire, with the famous Image of the Virgin, which the Greek Emperors uſed to carry before them in Battel, was taken. The City being alſo ſeized, he fled with his Family by Night to Meſſinopolis, where old Alexis diſcovering him, he cauſed him to be ſeiz'd, and his Eyes pull'd out; but old Alexis flying before the Emperor Baldwin, Murtzuphilus eſcaped; and wandring about in Diſguiſe, was apprehended, brought to Conſtantinople, and condemned for Murdering young Alexis with his own hands; upon which, he was thrown headlong from a high Tower, and had his Body cut in bits by the promiſcuous Multitude. Maimbourg, Nicetas, Logotheta.

ALEXIUS Comnenus, Firſt Emperor of Trebizund, which Empire continued ſeparate from that of Conſtantinople, till the Turks became Maſters of both. The Empire of Trebizund was ſet up in the manner following: After the Principal Confederates of the Holy War had choſen Baldwin Emperor of Conſtantinople, they eaſily made themſelves Maſters of all that the Greek Emperors held in Europe, where they formed ſeveral diſtinct Principalities. The Marquiſs of Montferrat, who Married the Widow of the Emperor Iſaac, had Theſſaly for his Share, under the Title of a Kingdom, upon condition of relinquiſhing Candia to the Venetians. The Greek Princes preſerv'd themſelves in Aſia, and ſet up ſeveral Sovereignties. Theodorus Laſcaris took the Imperial Purple at Nicea in Bithynia, and had the largeſt Dominions of any of the Family of the Comneni. Michael got part of the Empire for his Share. David ſeized Heraclea, Pontus, and Paphlagonia; and Alexius above-mentioned was poſſeſs'd of Trebizund, and Crown'd Emperor there. Mezer. Reign of Philip II.

ALEXIUS Studita, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, An. 1025. being corrupted by Gold, Crown'd the Parricide Michael Paphlagonus, and Married him to the Adultereſs Zoa the Empreſs. He was too hard for John the Emperor's Brother, who thought to have depriv'd him of the Patriarchate; and when the Biſhops, who were for John, objected againſt his Election as not Canonical, he ſtopp'd their Mouths by telling them, That if he was not Canonically Elected, they themſelves could not be ſo, who were Elected by him. Cav. Hiſt. Literar. Baronius.

ALEXIUS Michalowitz, Grand Duke, or Czar of Muſcovy, ſucceeded his Father Michael in the Year 1645. He took Smolensko from the Polanders, and made himſelf Maſter of all Lithuania, which was reſtored by a Treaty in 1656. only the Muſcovites kept Smolensko. Soon after, he renewed the Poliſh War again with ill Succeſs, and died in 1676. His Embaſſie to England is freſh in Memory: To this add, That he broke his Treaty with the Poles at firſt, who worſted his Troops in divers Rencounters during the Siege of Smolensko, which he took, but broke the Capitulation. The Cruelty of his Troops was deteſted by all Europe; They murder'd the Children, and carried Men and Women into Slavery; perhaps to people Muſcovy, in whoſe Capital alone 400000 Perſons are ſaid to have died of the Plague. Thus Moreri. Hoffman ſays nothing of this; but, on the contrary, commends him for his Prudence.

ALFENUS Varus, firſt a Shooemaker, then went to Rome, where he ſo well improv'd his time under Sulpitius Severus, that he became a famous Lawyer and Antiquary, and was Conſul with Publius Vinicius in the Second Year of Chriſt. A. Gellius reports his Opinion concerning the Annual Tribute which the Carthaginians paid the Romans, called Purum putum. Horace Libels him in a Satyr.

ALFESIUS, or Alpheſius, a Rabbin, who wrote an Abridgment of the Talmud, very much valued by the Jews. He died in the Year 1103. Buxtor. Bibl. Rabb.

ALFISSAH, a Country in the Southern part of the Iſland Madagaſcar: There are a great many Vines, and much Silk in't. Flacourt Hiſt. de Madagaſcar.

ALFORD, a Market-Town in the Eaſt parts of Lincolnſhire; it belongs to Calceworth Hundred in Lindſey Diviſion, and is about 5 Miles diſtant from the Sea, and 107 from London.

ALFRED, or Alphred, an Engliſh Writer of the 12th Century, born at or nigh Beverly in Yorkſhire. He writ a Chronicle from Brutus to his own Death, which happened in 1136.

ALFRED, the youngeſt Son of Ethelred, Sirnamed The Unready, was cruelly handled by Canute, the Daniſh King of England, for which ſee the Word Canute.

ALFRED, King of England, was the 4th Son of Ethelwolf, and ſucceeded his Brother Ethelred in 871. Immediately after his Coronation he took the Field againſt the Danes (whom he had fought in ſo many Battels in the former Reign) with a ſmall Force; he encountred their numerous Army at Wilton, and foil'd 'em moſt part of the day; but his eager Purſuit made him loſe the Advantage.

This Battel was follow'd by ſeveral others the ſame year, with great effuſion of Blood, but various Succeſs. Winter being come, they Quartered in London, and the Year following they rov'd back to the North, where they ſeiz'd upon the Kingdom of Mercia, forcing Burhed, King thereof, to fly into foreign Parts. In the Year 875. they Winter'd by the River Tine, ſubjecting all thoſe Parts, and waſting all on the North-ſide of the River. The next Year a Body of 'em being come to Dorſetſhire, they were met by Alfred, with whom they ſwore a Peace, promiſing to depart the Land with all ſpeed; but inſtead of that, their Horſe ſtole to Exeter, and there Winter'd. An. 877. they ſuſtain'd a great Loſs at Sea by a Tempeſt, above 100 of their Ships being wreck'd, and the reſt being over-aw'd by King Alfred's Galleys, whereby he ſtraitned Exeter of Proviſions, which he then beſieged. The Danes now humbled with the loſs of their Navy, began to Capitulate, and gave as many Hoſtages as King Alfred requir'd for the performance of Articles. They bound themſelves to depart into Mercia, and did accordingly; but ſoon after, all Oaths forgotten, they came into Wiltſhire, where they ſhew'd themſelves as inſolent as ever, inſomuch that Alfred, with a ſmall Company, was fain to keep for ſome time in Woods and fenny places, until having got a good Force together, he ſurprized and made a great Slaughter of 'em in their Tents. The Danes upon this Blow, renew'd their Oaths to depart the Kingdom, and their King Gotburn, amongſt others, offered to become Chriſtian, and was accordingly Baptized: Some write, that he had therefore the Kingdom of the Eaſt-Angles beſtow'd upon him, to hold it of Alfred. In ſhort, the Danes, in the Year 879. paſs'd over from England into France and Flanders, with a great Fleet newly arriv'd, to ſeek their Fortunes in thoſe Parts; wherein they made ſuch progreſs, that it appeared the French and Flemiſh were no more able than the Engliſh to keep off the Daniſh Inundation. Alfred thus rid of 'em, reſolved to prevent their Landing for the future, by keeping a good Fleet at Sea: With this Navy he took four Daniſh Ships that appeared on our Coaſt in 882. But 3 years after, another vaſt Fleet of Danes put to Sea, one half againſt England, and the other againſt France, wherein they were diſappointed; for Alfred coming with a greater Force upon 'em, drove 'em back to their Ships, and ſending his Fleet towards the Country of the Eaſt-Angles, then inhabited by the Danes, they took 16 Daniſh Ships at the mouth of the River Stoure, and put all the Soldiers aboard to death; but as they lay carleſs in their way home, they were overtaken by other Daniſh Ships, and came off with loſs. The next Year, 886. King Alfred took care to repair the City of London, much ruined and depopulated by the Danes, ſo that the Londoners who had eſcap'd their Fury, ſoon return'd to their Dwellings; Then he gave it with a Daughter of his in Marriage to Ethelred Duke of Mercia, after whoſe Death it returned to the Crown. An. 893. after 13 years Peace, two Daniſh Fleets came upon our Coaſts, one of 250, and the other of 80 Sail; both landed their Men, the firſt in the Eaſt of Kent, and the other at the Thames mouth. Alfred upon this, took a new Oath of Fidelity of thoſe Danes that dwelt in Northumberland, and Hoſtages of thoſe in Eſſex. Then was the Battel fought at Farnham in Surrey, wherein the Danes were put to flight. Mean while thoſe of Northumberland, contrary to their late Oath, came by Sea to the Eaſt-Angles, and with 100 Ships ſail'd thence to Exeter, and beſieg'd it. King Alfred marched with all ſpeed to its Relief, and fruſtrated their Deſign; yet they continued to be troubleſome in ſeveral parts, though generally to their Coſt, At laſt they gave ſome reſpite to Alfred, and let him Reign three years in peace before his Death, which happened in the Year 900. He was a Comely Prince, of Graceful Behaviour, ready Wit and Memory, a Lover of good Men, and ſo great an Encourager of Learning, that he ſuffered no unlearned Perſon to bear Office either at Court, or in any Place of Truſt. The Muſes, long before baniſhed from Oxford, he recall'd, where he Founded Univerſity-College. Whatever he was before he came to the Crown, it's certain, that afterwards no Prince was more Patient in Hearing of Cauſes, more Inquiſitive in Examining, more Exact in doing Juſtice, or more Severe in Puniſhing both Unrighteous Judges and Obſtinate Offenders. He was alſo very careful in Providing Good Laws, moſt of which are yet extant. In ſhort, Juſtice did not only flouriſh, but even triumph'd in his days; and, which is obſervable, he cauſed certain Chains of Gold to be hung upon a Poſt in Croſs-ways, daring, as it were, the boldeſt Robbers or Thieves to take 'em off. No Man was more Frugal of his Time and Revenue, nor Wiſer in the diſpoſal of both. His Mother was Osburga, Daughter of Oſlac, Cup-bearer to his Father Ethelwolf, a Goth by Nation, but of Noble Deſcent. His Wife Egelwitha, whom he had Married at 20 years of Age, before he came to the Crown, was Daughter of Ethelred a Mercian Earl. Wanading in Berkſhire was his Birth-place, and Wincheſter that of his Sepulture. Matt. Weſtminſt. Polyd. Virgil. Pitſeus.

ALFRED, called the Baſtard, King of Northumberland: He lived about the beginning of the 8th Century; Oſwin his Father had him by one of his Concubines. The little Kingdom of Northumberland was almoſt quite ruined with Civil War in the Reign of Ecfred, Alfred's Brother. This latter retired into Scotland, and ſpent his time in Study and Devotion; and having made a great Improvement both in Vertue and Learning, he returned into his Country, began his Reign, and Governed with a great deal of Prudence. Some Authors affirm that he reſign'd the Crown for a Monaſtery, and others ſay that he was afterwards a Biſhop: But let this be as it will, Bede informs us, that he was a great Friend to Learning, and wrote ſeveral Pieces himſelf. He is ſaid to have died in 705. Bede Hiſt. Angl. Pitſeus de Script. Angl.

ALFRED, An Engliſh Biſhop, flouriſh'd in the 10th Age: He was a Monk of the Order of St. Bennet, in the Monaſtery of Malmesbury, and afterwards preferr'd to the See of Exeter. He was counted one of the moſt Learned Men of his Time, and wrote a Treatiſe de Naturis Rerum, The Life of Adelmus, and the Hiſtory of his own Abbey. 'Tis ſaid that Alfred was very intimate with St. Dunſtan, and was Famous about the Year 990. Gul. Malmeſ. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. Lib. 2.

ALFRED, called The Philoſopher, an Engliſh-man of great Reputation in the 13th Century. He wrote Five Books upon Boethius De Conſolatione Philoſophiæ; Four upon Ariſtotle's Meteors; One concerning Vegetables; De Naturis Rerum; De Educatione Accipitrum; De Motu, ſeu Vita Cordis. Rog. Bacon. Lib. de Util. Ling. Leland, Baleus.

ALFRIC, called The Grammarian, becauſe he wrote ſeveral Pieces upon Grammar, lived in the beginning of the 11th Century. He was firſt Abbot of Abingdon, and afterwards Archbiſhop of Canterbury: Beſides what has been mentioned before, he wrote a Latin Dictionary, a Chronicle of the Archbiſhops of Canterbury, &c. Pitſ. de Script. Angl.

ALFWOLD, King of Northumberland, ſucceeded Eardulf, and Reigned but two years; after which, this Kingdom fell to pieces of it ſelf, ſo many of its Kings being cut off by the People, that the moſt Ambitious Men had not the Courage to take up the Scepter which many had found ſo hot; ſo that many Noblemen and Prelates fled the Country, which by this means lay expoſed to the Invaſion of the Danes, who were yet Heathens, taking an advantage of theſe Diſtractions, whereas before they only infeſted the Sea-Coaſt, now they made bold to pierce into the Kingdom, and drove all before them, to the utter Ruin of Towns and Churches; of which Calamities the People are ſaid to have been forewarned the Lent before, when on the North-ſide of St. Peter's Church in York, Blood was ſeen to drop from the Roof: But the Wickedneſs of thoſe Times was perhaps a more certain Preſage of God's Judgments, when Lewdneſs and Luxury triumph'd among thoſe Orders that ought to be a Pattern of Holy Life and Converſation, the very Altars being defiled with Perjuries, and the Cloiſters with Fornications, the very ſame Crimes which Gildas alledged of old to have ruined the Britains. The Northumbrians being thus invaded, fled to Egbert, the Potent King of the Weſt-Saxons, for Refuge, and threw themſelves under his Protection, who Ruled here a while by Deputies, and Protected them as long as he could from the Danes, under whoſe Yoak they were at laſt forced to ſubmit, until by the Valour of Ethelſtan and Edred, the Fortunate Subduers of the Danes in this Iſland, they were at laſt recovered to the Crown about the middle of the 10th Age.

ALGARBIA, or Algarve, a ſmall part of Spain added to Portugal, by the Marriage of Beatrice, Natural Daughter of Alphonſus of Caſtile, to Alphonſus III. King of Portugal; the Metropolis of which is Tavira. It has Portugal to the North, Andaluzia to the Eaſt, and the Ocean to the Weſt and South. It abounds with Wine, Figs, Raiſins, Olives, and Almonds. Montanus.

ALGERUS, a Learned Prieſt of the Church of Liege, who lived in the beginning of the 12th Century: He wrote a Book againſt Berengarius, concerning the Reality of our Saviour's Body and Blood in the Sacrament: This Treatiſe is much eſteemed by Cardinal Perron, and other Divines of the Church of Rome. Bellarm. de Script. Eccl. Valerius Andreas Bibl. Belg. &c.

ALGERUS (Pomponius) of Nola in Italy. He ſtudied at Pavia, where he quitted the Roman Communion, for that of the Proteſtants. He endeavoured to propagate his Perſuaſion privately; but being diſcovered, he was had before the Governour of the Town, who ſent him to Venice, from whence he was carried to Rome, and ordered to be burnt for a Heretick by Paul IV. which was executed accordingly, in the year 1555. Theod. Bez. de Hom. Illuſt.

ALGHER, Lat. Algherium, a Sea-Port of Sardinia, and a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Saſſari, where there is a Fiſhery of Pearl.

ALGIERS, in Latin Algiria, Algirium, or Algaria, the Capital City of a Kingdom of the ſame Name, upon the Shoar of the Mediterranean Sea, by the Africans called Gezeir de Beni Moſgana, and by the Arabians Algeſir. It is the richeſt City in Africk, ſeated upon the ſide of a Hill which riſes inſenſibly, ſo that the Houſes that are built from the Sea-ſide to the top of the Mountain, ſtand upon ſo many Aſcents, that they look like Stairs, ſo as not to take the ſight of the one from the other; and which affords a moſt noble Proſpect: The whole Building repreſents an Amphitheatre, every Houſe having a Gallery round it, and a fair Tarras at top. They are built for the moſt part of Brick, with ſeveral Palaces after the modern Faſhion, rear'd by curious Architects. Near the principal Moſque is the chief Priſon called Mahmora, where they keep their Slaves. The Walls of the City are very high, and flank'd with good Baſtions. The principal Gates are Four, and over-againſt the North-Gate lies the Harbour, and an Iſland now join'd to the firm Land by a Mole, which makes it much ſurer and larger. There are ſeveral Fortreſſes in the parts adjoining to the City, with good Garriſons, and ſtore of Artillery. To the Landward the City is environ'd with Rocks, at the foot of which lie vaſt Plains fertile in Corn and Paſturage. The number of the Inhabitants is reckoned above 100000; that is to ſay, 12000 Soldiers, who are almoſt all Chriſtian Renegadoes, 40000 Slaves, and the reſt Moors, Turks, and Jews. The Kingdom of Algiers is bounded by that of Tunis to the Eaſt, Biledulgerid to the South, and the Sea to the North. It is divided into Five Provinces, wherein, under the Empire of the Romans, were comprehended Mauritania, Cæſarienſis, and Sitifenſis, together with Numidia; and that it is at this day a very large Kingdom, is not to be queſtioned, for that we find they have declared War againſt the Potent Monarch of Fez. It is more properly a Republick under the Protection of the Turk, who ſends Baſſa's thither. It was formerly a Biſhop's Sea, Suffragan to that of Cæſarea. The Town is now infamous for being a Neſt of Pirates. The Fort of Burche is a quarter of a League from the Caſtle, defended by four Baſtions mounted with Braſs Cannon, and hath a place of Arms capable of 1000 Men. In 1541. Charles V. attempting the Conqueſt of this place with 370 Ships and Gallies, 3000 Foot, and 2000 Horſe, loſt his Fleet by a terrible Tempeſt. In 1655. the Engliſh, under Admiral Blake, entred this Harbour, and burnt their Ships. In 1668. Sir Thomas Allen forced them to a Peace, which they broke in 1669. In 1670. Captain Beach forced 7 of their Men of War on Shoar, 2 of which they burnt themſelves, and he the other 5, at which time he releaſed 250 Chriſtian Captives. In 1670. Sir Edward Sprague deſtroyed 9 of their Ships near the Caſtle of Bugia, which play'd upon him with their Cannon: After this, they begg'd a Peace, which they have kept better with the Engliſh ſince. In July, 1688. the French Fleet, Commanded by the Mareſchal d'Eſtree, threw 10420 Bombs into the Town, by which two thirds of it were deſtroyed, as alſo 5 of their Ships; at which the Algerines being enraged, ſhot off the French Conſul at the mouth of a Cannon. The French in revenge ſhot three Algerine Officers to death, and put their Bodies upon a Hurdle of Planks to be driven aſhoar, that their Country-men might ſee them; but the Year after, the French made a Peace with them, to have their Aſſiſtance againſt the Engliſh and Dutch. Marmol.

ALGIONUS, one to whom the Commonwealth of Learning is beholden for his Exactneſs in Correcting the Impreſſions of the Greek and Latin Authors Printed by Aldus Manutius. But he is accuſed of ſuppreſſing one of Cicero's moſt excellent Pieces de Gloria, after he had culled the chiefeſt Notions out of it to compoſe his own Treatiſe, De fortiter toleranda Exilii Fortuna. He was reckoned the Learned'ſt Venetian of the 16th Century. Varillas.

ALGISIRA, a Port-Town in Spain upon the Streights of Gibralter: It has been formerly conſiderable, but now 'tis ruined: 'Tis ſuppoſed to be the ancient Carteia, or Charthæa: It had its new Name from the Moors, and was taken from them by Alphonſus XI. King of Caſtile, in the year 1344. Mariana, Vaſæus, &c.

ALGOW, Lat. Algovia, a Country of Germany in Suabia, between the Danube, the River Leck, and the Lake Conſtance, where ſtand Ausburgh, Kempten, Muniken, Bibrac, and Wangen.

ALGUER, or El-Alguer, a Town of Sardinia on the Weſtern ſide of the Iſland. This Coaſt is the moſt noted of all in the Mediterranean for the Fiſhery of Coral: The other Fiſheries for this purpoſe are at Boſa, near the Iſle of St. Peter, upon the Coaſt of the above-mentioned Sardinia. They fiſh likewiſe upon the Coaſts of Corſica, Sicily, Africk, Catalonia, and Majorca; and theſe are all the places where they fiſh for Coral, for the Ocean affords none of it. Taver. Voyag. des Indes.

ALHAMA, a Town of Spain in the Kingdom of Granada, thought to be the Artigi, or Artigis of Ptolemy and Pliny.

ALHAZEN, or Albazen, a Learned Arabian living in the 11th Age. He has left us ſeveral Pieces, of Opticks, De Crepuſculis, &c. Blancanus, Chron. Math. Voſſius de Mathem.

ALI, Mahomet's Son-in-Law, whom he declared his Succeſſor upon his Death-bed, affirming him to be a Saint of the Race of the Prophets; but being fruſtrated by Omar and Oſman, he retired into Arabia, of which he was Governour, and made a Collection of all Mahomet's Doctrines, allowing many things which Omar and Oſman diſapproved, and by the Gentleneſs of his Alterations drawing Multitudes of Arabians after him, he made himſelf Caliph of the Saracens and Agarenians, and conquered Mahomet, Odman's Son; but being oppoſed by Moavia, Odman's General, he was by his procurement murdered whilſt at his Devotions in a Moſque; though others ſay he was killed by a Jew, with whoſe Wife he was too familiar, Anno 659. Marmol.

ALI, the Son of Joſeph, third King of Morocco, of the Line of the Almoravides. In the year 1114. he invaded Spain, beſieged Toledo, and ravaged all the Country round about; but deſpairing to take the City, he raiſed the Siege, and Winter'd at Corduba. The next year Alphonſus II. having obtained a Croiſade of Paſchal II. gave him Battel, and ſlew him in the Field with 30000 of his Moors. Thoſe who eſcaped fled into Barbary, and made his Son Baham King. Marmol.

ALI Baſſa, one of the greateſt and moſt experienced Captains in the Ottoman Empire in this Age. He began to bear Arms under Amurath II. and perform'd ſuch Noble Exploits in the Perſian War, that the Emperor Married him to one of his Siſters. After that, he acquired ſuch Reputation under Ibrahim and Mahomet IV. that Mahomet Cupregli the Grand Viſier grew jealous of his Power, and was reſolv'd to take from him the Command of the Tranſilvanian Army; but Ali's Death prevented him. He died in the year 1663. in the 70th year of his Age. Hiſt. Grand. Viſiers.

ALIATAN, a King of the Africans in Spain, who ſent forth a Puiſſant Navy to ravage the Coaſts of Italy, plunder the Iſlands of Majorca and Minorca, and take Corſu and Sardinia about 780. But Charlemain oppoſed him with another Fleet, that ſunk 11 of his Gallies. After that, Charlemain join'd his Forces with Alphonſus II. King of Caſtile, took Lisbon, where they ſlew 60000 of the Barbarians. At length Aliatan, after many Defeats by Lewis the Debonnaire, died of a Fever going to attack Barcelona, in 819. Marmol.

ALIATTES, or Aly Attes, King of Lydia, vanquiſh'd the Cimmerians, by letting looſe among them a great Number of Maſtiffs, which put 'em in diſorder. He defeated the Mileſians, ravaged their Country, and put all to Fire and Sword. After 5 Years War with the Medes, made a Peace with Cyaxares, and gave his Daughter Ariena in Marriage to his Son Aſtyages. Herodotus.

ALIBALUC, an Iſland in the Caſpian Sea, over againſt the Province of Terriſtan, belonging to the King of Perſia. 'Tis ſituated over againſt the mouth of Araxis.

ALICANT, a City of Spain upon the Mediterranean, in the Kingdom of Valencia, with a Harbour, famous for the Trade of Wine, and other Products of the Country. The Harbour lies at the foot of a Mountain, defended by a very ſtrong Caſtle: It hath alſo a Mole, which ſhelters ſmall Barks that bring Goods to the Key from the great Veſſels which cannot ride ſo near. This City is not very great, but rich and populous; nor is there any queſtion to be made but that 'tis the Alone of the Ancients.

ALICATA, a Town upon the Coaſts of Sicily: Some Authors fanſie it built upon the Ruines of the ancient Gela; but they are miſtaken; for Gela is now Terra Nova, in the Valley of Nota, as Cluvier, Leander Albertus, and others have demonſtrated.

ALIFA, or Alipha, an Epiſcopal City in the Terra di Lavoro, under the Archbiſhop of Beneventum, ſeated at the foot of the Appennine, upon the Banks of the River Vulturnus. Near this Town Quintus Fabius overthrew the Samnites, took their Camp, and made 'em all paſs under the Yoke. Liv. Strabo.

ALIPIUS, the Companion of St. Auſtin, Baptized at the ſame time by St. Ambroſe: He procured a great Amity between St. Auſtin and St. Jerome; was ſent to the Emperor Honorius againſt the Pelagians, and choſen one of the Diſputants againſt the Donatiſts. There was alſo a Geographer of this Name, ſuppoſed to be him who Governed England for the Romans, and whom Julian the Apoſtate entruſted with the Rebuilding of the Temple of Jeruſalem. Baronius.

ALIZEES, a ſort of Wind in the Caribbee Iſlands, which carry Veſſels from Eaſt to Weſt; they are very regular and periodical, and blow at certain times of the Year in different parts of the Atlantic, Æthiopic, Indian, and Pacific Seas. An Abridgment of their Hiſtory and Cauſes is to be ſeen in the Univerſal Bibliotheque.

ALIZUBIER, one of Mahomet's Generals, very Courageous, but ſo Humourſome, that he would neither let his Horſe be dreſs'd, nor his Clothes be clean'd, during the War; and then he had the Duſt and Dirt taken off to lay in his Tomb. Marmol.

ALLA, or Ella, King of the South-Saxons : He began the Second Kingdom of the Heptarchy in Suſſex and Surrey, in the year 488. Baker's Chron.

ALLA, or Ella, with the Aſſiſtance of Ida, Founded the Fifth Kingdom of Northumberland, in the year 547. This Government comprehended the Counties of Yorkſhire, Durham, Lancaſhire, Weſtmorland, Cumberland, and Northumberland, and continued 370 years. Baker's Chron.

ALLADIUS, a King of the Latins, by Caſſiodorus named Aremulus, and by others Romulus. His Pride was ſuch, that he equall'd himſelf to Jupiter, had Engines made on purpoſe to imitate his Thunder, but was himſelf at length ſtruck with real Thunder from Heaven, A. M. 3197. 855 years before Chriſt. Dionyſius Halicarnaſſæus writes, that he was drown'd in Tiber ; but certain it is, that his Palace was burnt by Fire from Heaven. Tit. Liv.

ALLAH, Allah, twice repeated in the Turkiſh Language, is the Name of GOD : They pronounce thoſe Words when they wiſh good Succeſs to themſelves or others : They repeat this Word from thrice to eight times in their Prayers. Their great Cry in War is, Allah ! Allah ! Allah ! Ricaut's Hiſtory of the Ottoman Empire.

ALLATIUS (Leo) Keeper of the Vatican Library, in great Reputation among the Papiſts for his Learning. He was employed by the Pope in 1621. to transfer the Bibliotheque at Heidelberg to Rome. He laboured much for an Union of the Greek and Roman Churches, endeavouring to ſhew that they agreed almoſt in every thing. He was a great Antiquary and wrote abundance, as, De Librus Eccleſiaſticis Græcorum ; De menſura temporum Antiquorum ; Orthodoxi Græcæ Scriptores ; De Eccleſiæ Occident. & Orient. perpetua Conſenſione, &c.

ALLELUIA, an Abbey in Æthiopia, ſo called by the firſt Abbot and Founder, becauſe a Hermit told him, that being in an Ecſtaſie, he had ſeen and heard thouſands of Angels ſinging Alleluiah inceſſantly. The Cuſtom of ſinging Alleluiah obtained both among the Greeks and Latins in St. Jerome's time, who ſays it was uſual at the Funerals of Saints : The firſt Word taught by the Chriſtians to their Children, and commonly uſed at Jeruſalem inſtead of ordinary Songs. Bede ſays, that the Singing of it did on a time ſo animate the Saxons going to Battel, that they obtain'd a Victory. Alvarez, St. Aug. Bede.

ALLEN (Sir Henry Fitz) afterwards Earl of Arundel, liv'd in the Reigns of Henry VIII. and his two Succeſſors Edward and Mary : His Natural Parts, which were the Admiration of his Age, he improved with Learning, Experience, Integrity, Vigour, and a graceful Behaviour : His firſt appearance in the World was to adorn the Court, and the next to ſerve it with his Eſtate and Train : He attended King Henry to the Interview with Francis I. of France, and was created Earl of Arundel, and ſoon after commanded to the War ; and being before Bologne, ran up with his Squadron to the very Walls, which opened a Paſſage to the Beſiegers, and forced the Town to Compoſition. In Peace he was as active as in War ; whilſt other Noblemen were made King Edward's Overſeers for their Integrity, he was made one of his Aſſiſtants for his Abilities. When an Enemy was to be aw'd to a Submiſſion, he was General, ſuch was his Fame ; and when the Country was to be oblig'd to a Loan, he was the Agent, ſuch his Popularity : The firſt advanced him to the Comptrollerſhip under Henry VIII. the ſecond to be Chamberlain under Edward VI. after whoſe Death he ſtood for the Right of Succeſſion, and, being a ſtiff Catholick, declared for Queen Mary : Yet when he came from the Queen to Cambridge, to Arreſt the Duke of Northumberland, he managed it ſo, that he would neither trample upon Miſery, nor be trampled on by Greatneſs, being of an equal Temper between Pity and Reſolution. In ſhort, as long as his Years gave him leave he was for Action, and when he grew old, for Counſel. See Fitz-Allen, Earl of Arundel.

ALLERA, Aller, and Alre, a River in Germany in the Lower Saxony, which falls into the Weſer below Verden, the Walls of which it waſhes. It riſes within the Dukedom of Magdeburg, and waters Giſorn and Zell, and receives into it the Rivers Onacra and Leina, within the Dukedom of Lunenburg.

ALLERTON, North-Allerton, a Market and Borough-Town of Allerton Hundred in the North-Riding of Yorkſhire, 166 miles from London.

ALLIA, a River of the Sabines, now called Caminata, or, as others ſay, Riviero di Moſſo, which falling from the Mountains of Cruſtuminum with a deep Channel, intermixes with the Tiber not far from Rome. By this River it was that the Gauls, under the Conduct of Brennus, defeated the Romans, purſuing them to the very City, and plundering it : For which reaſon afterwards the Romans held this River in abomination, and Virgil ſtiles it Infauſtum Nomen. Livius.

ALLIER, in Latin Elavir, a River in France, in Auvergne and Bourbougnois ; it riſes out of the Mountain of Loſere, and is loſt in the Loire at Bec d'Allier, below Nevers.

ALLIN, (Edward) a Londoner, was bred a Stage-Player, and proved the Roſcius of our Age, ſo Acting to the Life, that he made any Part, eſpecially a Majeſtick one, to become him. Per fas aut nefas, he made a ſhift to rake up a good Eſtate ; and to get a Bleſſing to it, he built a fair College at Dulwich in Kent, for the Relief of Poor People ; but ordered it ſo, that the Poor of his own Pariſh, St. Botolph Biſhopſgate, have a Privilege to be provided for therein before others. Thus he out-acted others in his Life, and outdid himſelf before his Death.

ALLINGTON, (Giles) the preſent Lord Allington is the Son of William, who of an Iriſh Peer was made an Engliſh Baron by King Charles II. In this Family is now the Right of being Cupbearer at the Coronation of our Kings, which was originally in William the Conqueror's time by Grand Serjeantry, from the Tenure of Wimondly, in the Family of the Fitz-Tecas. Thence it came by Marriage to the Argenton's, derived from David Argenton, who ſerved under William the Conqueror ; whoſe Iſſue-Male failing in Henry VI.'s time, the Right came to the Allington's Family, by Marriage of Eliz. Argenton to Sir William Allington, from whom this preſent Lord Allington is the 7th.

ALLOBROGES, an ancient People of Gaul, ſo called, ſays Beroſus, from their King Allobrox, Contemporary with Moſes : They inhabited Savoy, and a ſmall part of Dauphine, the Greek Alps, Lake Leman, with the Rivers Rhone and Iſera ; and their Chief Cities were Chambery, Geneva, Grenoble, Muſtiers, and Vienne. They were famous for their Courage, and aſſiſted Hanibal againſt the Romans, who in revenge ſent Domitius Ænobarbus, and Fabius Maximus, to ruine their Country ; which he did, and vanquiſh'd them *An.*632. of Rome ; whereupon he was call'd Allobrogicus. Their Ambaſſadors were tempted with Promiſes of great Advantages to their Nation to take part with Catiline ; but preferring Certainties before Uncertainties, after ſerious Deliberation, they diſcovered the whole Conſpiracy to Fabius Sanga, and received a Publick Reward. Dion. Oroſius.

ALLUCIUS, Prince of the Celtiberians in Spain, vanquiſh'd and taken by Scipio, together with his Affianced Lady, a moſt beautiful Virgin ; whom Scipio not only reſtored him again ſafe and untouched, but gave her, in part of her Dower, the Ranſom that had been paid him down for both their Enlargements. This Beauty was brought to Scipio by the Soldiers, to whom he ſaid, That if he had been a private Man, they could not have made him a more agreeable Preſent ; but as he was a General, he could not accept of it. And underſtanding that ſhe was Affianced unto, and Lov'd, the ſaid Prince, he ſent for him preſently, with her Friends, acquainting them that he approved the Marriage : After which, taking Allucius aſide, he told him very obligingly, That he had preſerved her on purpoſe to give him a Preſent worthy of himſelf, and all the Recompence he deſired, was, That he ſhould be a Friend to the Republick. Whereat the young Prince being tranſported with Joy, pray'd that the Gods might recompence ſo Generous an Action. Whereupon Scipio gave him the Money, (which her Friends pray'd him to accept, as a Token of their Gratitude) ſaying, Take this from me as a Second Dowry, over and above what you have from your Father-in-Law. Livius.

ALMABERGE, Wife of Hermenfroy, King of part of Thuringia, Brother to Baudry and Berthier, who had equal Shares with him. This Princeſs perceiving that her Huſband had cauſed Baudry to be aſſaſſinated, had a mind he ſhould alſo rid himſelf of Berthier, that ſo he might enjoy the whole ; and therefore ordered the Table to be but half covered at Dinner ; of which when he demanded the Reaſon, ſhe anſwer'd boldly, That he who had but half a Crown, ſhould have his Table but half ſerved. Hermanfroy being animated by thoſe Words, join'd with Thierry King of Metz, made War upon Berthier, routed and kill'd him ; but enjoy'd not this unjuſt Conqueſt long ; for being perfidious to Thierry, he cauſed him to be thrown headlong from the Walls of Tolbiac, An. 531. and the cruel Almaberge fled to Athalarick, King of the Oſtrogoths, where ſhe liv'd a private Life. Paul. Æmilius.

ALMAGRA, (Diego) a Spaniard of obſcure Birth and Education, having no other Name but that of the Town where he was born, and could neither Read nor Write. He join'd with Pizaro, who diſcover'd and conquer'd Peru ; both of them being Brutiſh mad Fellows, exercis'd unheard-of Cruelties upon the Indians. They at laſt fell out with one another, and Almagra being taken by Pizaro, was put to death ; which his Son revenged, by working Pizaro's Ruin, and occaſioning him to be Beheaded, An. 1546. Thuan. Mariana.

ALMAGUER, or Almagra, in Latin, Almagrum. A little Town in the Southern part of America, in the Kingdom of Popayan, near the Head of the River Cauca.

ALMAIN, (James) a School-man of Paris, a Perſon of great Reputation among thoſe addicted to that ſort of Learning. The moſt conſiderable of his Writings are, A Treatiſe of Ethicks, with the Additions of David Craiſton. Lectura in III. Magiſtri Sententiarum completa. Lectura in IV. Sententiarum imperfecta. De Poteſtate Eccleſiaſtica. De Authoritate Eccleſiæ, &c. Bellarmin de Script. Eccl. Hiſt. Univer. Pariſ.

ALMANCE, Lat. Almentia, Two Leagues from Nancy, formerly the principal Town of Gallia Belgica, in Lorrain, where the General Aſſemblies of that Country were held. Hoffman.

ALMANSOR, King of Cordoua, uſurp'd that Kingdom after the death of Alhaca. He took Barcelona in 985, and beſieg'd Leon for a whole year together. He was ſucceſsful againſt the Chriſtians, and died in 1002, after he had Reign'd 26 years. Roderick.

ALMANSOR, (Joſeph) King of Morocco, being Invited by the Spaniſh Moors, he croſſed the Sea with 60000 Horſe and 100000 Foot, An. 1158, and was preſently acknowledged by the Infidel Princes ; But being ſeveral times beaten by the Chriſtians, he uſurp'd the Territories of them that call'd him over in revenge. Afterward repaſſing into Africa, he return'd with a more numerous Force, attended by 13 Kings of the Moors ; but at the Siege of Santaren in Portugal, received a Wound by an Arrow, of which he died. Marmol.

ALMANSOR the Second, (Jacob) Son of Joſeph above-mention'd, Sirnamed Emir el Memounim, or Prince of the Faithful, croſs'd over into Spain with 400000 Moors, whom he had aſſembled by the publication of the Gazie, which is the ſame among the Moors that the Croiſade is among the Chriſtians, and won the famous Battel of Alarcos about 1199. Afterwards returning into Africa, where his Subjects were revolted, he took Morocco, and puniſh'd the Rebels, contrary to his Word and Agreement. For which being reprehended by a Marabout, he went wandring about the World in Penance, and died a Baker at Alexandria. Marmol.

It is the Capital City of the Imperial Flanders, and formerly had Counts of its own. It ſuffer'd very much in the laſt Age : The Spaniards ſurpriz'd it in 1576, and committed a thouſand diſorders. In 1582 the Duke of Anjou made himſelf Maſter of it : After which the Engliſh, who had it in keeping, ſold it to the Prince of Parma. In 1667 the French took it, but now it is again in the Hands of the Spaniard unfortified. The Territory of Aloſt comprehends about 170 Villages, the County of Waes, and Four Cities which are call'd Offices, Hulſt, Axile, Bouchout, and Aſſenede. Peter Silvius.

ALPES, or the Alps, by the Italians called Alpi, by the Germans Alpen, are a prodigious Ridge of Mountains ſeparating Italy from France, Switzerland, Rhætia, Hungary, and Germany, extending about 3000 furlongs in length from the Ligurian Sea at Genoa, to the Adriatick at Friouli, and call'd by ſeveral Names according to the variety of their ſituation. Some go by the name of the Maritine Alps, as lying neareſt the Sea, now Les Montagnes de Tende. They begin at the City of Nice, and reach as far as Barcelonetta, extending themſelves between Provence and Liguria, and terminating in Mont Viſo, where the River Po takes its riſe. Cotticæ and Cotti, and Mont Cenis, dividing the Dauphinate from Piedmont, through which the River Po takes its Courſe. Graiæ or the Greek Alps, Monte di St. Bernardo Picolo, dividing the Allobroges, that is, the Savoyards, from the Salaſſi, or Val d'Oſta, by the Germans, Augſthal. Otherwiſe beginning from Mont Cenis, and extending to Mont St. Bernardo Majore in the Confines of Walais. Poeninæ or Appennine Mont de St. Bernardo a Maggiore, which divide a part of Piedmont and Inſubria from the Savoyards and the Haut Walais. The high Alps, M. de S. Gothard, contiguous to the Poenine, ſeparating the Helvetians from a part of the Dukedom of Milan: The feet of which extend themſelves to the Lake Verbanus or Lago Maggiore, out of which the Rhine, Teſſino, and the Rhone, derive their Fountains. Zepontiæ Monte di St. Bernardine, join to the high Alps where the Rhine breaks forth. Rhæticæ or Juga Rhætica, by the Germans called Warmſerloch, divide the Griſons, largely ſo taken, from the reſt of the Inſubrians. From whence the Inn, taking its courſe through Noricum in Germany, falls into the Danube, the Atheſis running through the Territories of Venice, and the Addua, dividing the Venetians from the Milanois. Tridentinæ, or thoſe of Trent, Weſtward Monte Bernina, and Monte di San Nicola, Eaſtward M. Zelam, out of which the Rivers La Brenta and La Piave, derive their Sources, ſeparate Tiroll from the Venetians, and extend themſelves to the River Natiſſone. Noricæ, lie between the County of Tiroll, the Archbiſhoprick of Saltsburg and Carinthia, about Villach call'd Villacher Alben, and by thoſe of Saltsburg call'd Swamberger. Juliæ, called alſo Carnicæ, now Zuglie or Zeglie, running between Carinthia and Friuli, and terminating upon the Adriatic Sea. In theſe Mountains the Save takes its riſe. There are ſeveral Paſſes through theſe Alps that give an entrance into Italy, of which the chiefeſt are Col de Tende, Col de L'Argentiere, Mont Viſo, Mont Genevre, Mont Cenis, Petit S. Bernard, and Col de la Croix. The Emperor Auguſtus ſubdu'd all the People inhabiting the Alps, and parts adjacent, and to eternize his Memory, ſet up a Trophy near Suſa, with this Inſcription, Quod ejus Ductu, auſpiciiſque Gentes Alpinæ omnes quæ a Mari ſupero ad inferum pertinebant, ſub Imperium P. R. redactæ ſunt, &c. Some of thoſe Mountains are continually cover'd with Snow, from whence, or from the White Rocks, Authors think they take their Name. Tacitus, Livius, Dion. Sanſon.

ALPHENUS, Varus, a Friend of Virgil, who together with Pollio and Gallus, preſerv'd the Poet's Eſtate from forfeiture, which elſe had been given to Auguſtus's Veterans, which had ſerv'd againſt Brutus and Caſſius.

ALPHERGANUS, or Alfraganus, (Mahomet) an Arabian Mathematician, who liv'd to the end of the Ninth Century. He wrote a Book in Arabick, call'd, The Elements of Aſtronomy, Tranſlated into Latine, and Printed by James Golius. He wrote another Book, De Sciateriſis. And one De Planiſphæriæ Forma, Diviſione atque Uſu.

ALPHEUS, now Orphea, by the Inhabitants, and by the Italian Seamen, Carbon, a large River of the Morea, riſing out of the Mountain Stymphalus, runs through the Countreys of Arcadia and Elis, and being ſwell'd by the Rivers Erymanthus and Celadon, and near 140 of leſſer note, which it receives as it runs along, falls at length into the Gulph of Caſtel di Torneſe, after it has waſh'd the Walls of Langanico, not above 80 furlongs from the mouth of it. The Poets talk of the miraculous courſe of this River, under or through the Ionian Sea, till it mixes with the Fountain Arethuſa in Sicily; but Strabo derides that Poetical Courſe of the River, not only as ridiculous, but impoſſible. Strabo.

Kings of Arragon.

ALPHONSUS the Firſt, King of Arragon and Navarre, about 738. united thoſe Two Kingdoms to Leon and Caſtile: He was famous for his Victory againſt the Moors. Mariana.

ALPHONSUS the Second, Son of Raymond Berenger, Count of Barcelona, forced the Count of Tholouſe to quit his Claim to Provence, oppos'd the Saracens with good ſucceſs, and died at Perpignan in 1196. This Prince was Chaſt, Wiſe, Virtuous, and Couragious; and forbad the Notaries of Catalonia to date from the Reigns of the French Kings, as they were accuſtomed formely. Voſſius, Noſtradam.

ALPHONSUS the Third, ſirnam'd the Benefactor, Son of Peter the Third, drave the Moors out of Majorca, and Minorca, and died of the Peſtilence in 1285. Aged 27. Mariana. Surita. S. Anton.

ALPHONSUS the Fourth, Sirnam'd the Debonnair, and Son of James the Juſt, ſucceeded his Father in 1327. founded the Univerſity of Lerida, and died in 1336. Mariana adds, That he obliged the King of Caſtile to ſue for Peace with him. Mariana. Spond.

ALPHONSUS the Fifth, Sirnam'd the Wiſe and Magnanimous, ſucceeded his Father Ferdinand the Juſt in 1416. In proſecution of his Right to the Kingdom of Naples, as being adopted by Joan the Queen, he beſieged and reduced the City of that Name, with the whole Realm, and died in 1458. Mariana, Mezeray, Blondus, Spond. Surita.

Kings of Leon and Caſtile.

ALPHONSUS the Firſt, Son of Peter Duke of Biſcay and Navarre, Reigned 18 years, and died in 757. He was not that Alphonſus which had the Name of Catholick, a Title which the Popes gave the Kings of Spain in the Sixteenth Century. This Alphonſus was ſucceſsful in his Wars againſt the Moors. Mariana, Baronius, L. Pudenſis.

ALPHONSUS the Second, Sirnam'd the Chaſt, ſucceeded Veremund, in 791. He took Lisbon, and ſeveral other Places, from the Saracens, of whom he ſlew 70000 in one Battel, and died in 821, or 824, as others will have it. He alſo obtain'd other Victories againſt the Infidels, by the Aſſiſtance of Charlemain; His Siſter Ximene, having Married Xanche, the Earl of Sardinia, without his permiſſion, he ſhut her up in a Monaſtery, and impriſon'd him, after having put out his Eyes; but bred up their Son Bernard del Carpio: Who, as ſoon as he underſtood his Original, prayed his Uncle to ſet his Parents at Liberty, which becauſe he obtain'd not, he left the Court, and ſo loſt the Crown which was deſign'd for him. Mariana, Roderic. Marmol.

ALPHONSUS the Third, Sirnam'd the Great, was a mighty Benefactor to the Clergy, a Repairer of Churches, and a ſtout Oppoſer of Mahomet and Abdala, both Saracen Kings. At length his Son Garcia Revolted, and forced him to reſign his Crown, after he had Reign'd 48 years with much Honour. He died in 912. His Son Rebell'd to favour the Deſigns of his Father's Wife, who was not in good intelligence with him. Baronius.

ALPHONSUS the Fourth, Sirnam'd the Monk, becauſe he vow'd a Religious Life, which he broke, and aſſum'd the Government in 914. but after a languiſhing Reign for Six or ſeven years, his Brother Ramir the Second, coop't him again into his proper Station, that he might have leiſure to perform his Vow; and to fit him the better for Contemplation, as ſome ſay, put out his Eyes. Ambroiſe Moral.

ALPHONSUS the Fifth, ſucceeded his Father Veremond, An. 1000. at Five years of Age, under the Tutelage of Melenda Gonſalez, Count of Galicia: He Corrected the Laws of the Goths in an Aſſembly of the States-General, held at Oviedo in 1220. He wag'd War againſt the Moors, and was kill'd with an Arrow at the Siege of Viſco in Portugal in 1228. after he had Reigned 29 years. Mariana, Genebrard.

ALPHONSUS the Sixth, Sirnam'd the Valiant, was taken out of a Cloiſter, to ſucceed Sancho his Brother, ſlain at the Siege of Zamora, An. 1072. He took Toledo in 1085, and wreſted from the Moors, Tallavera, Illeſcas, Madrid, Medina Cæli, and ſeveral other conſiderable Places, and died in the Seventieth year of his Age. Mariana. Roderic of Toledo.

ALPHONSUS the Seventh, Divorced his Wife Urraca for her incontinency, and then reſign'd to her the Kingdom of Caſtile, which he had in her Right: He acquir'd the Name of Warrior, as having been preſent in 29 Pitch'd Battles; in the laſt of which, after he had taken from the Moors, Cordova, Saragoſſa, and divers other Places, he periſh'd, An. 1134. or 1137. after he had Reign'd about 30 years. He call'd himſelf Emperor of Spain. Mariana, Genebrard, Marmol.

ALPHONSUS the Eighth, Son of Raimund Count of Burgundy, and Urraca his Wife, was ſeated upon the Throne of Leon and Caſtile, An. 1122. and Crown'd Emperor by the Archbiſhop of Toledo in 1135. The vaſt Army of 60000 Horſe, and 100000 Foot, which Joſeph the Second brought into Spain, forced him to ſeek Aid of the Pope, and the King of France; at firſt he prov'd ſucceſsful, but haſtning to the Siege of Almeria, beſieged by the Moors, fell ſick at Bacca, and croſſing the Mountains of Sierra Morena, vanquiſhed by the violence of his Diſtemper, he expired, leaning againſt a Tree in 1157. after he had Reign'd 35 years. He alſo overcame the Kings of Navarre and Arragon; but granted them Peace on diſadvantageous Terms. Mariana, Marmol.

ALPHONSUS the Eighth, or Ninth, Sirnam'd the Noble and Good, was declared King after the death of Sancho the Deſired, his Father, in 1158. at Four years of Age; of which his Neighbours taking advantage, deſpoiled him of good part of his Dominions, which he recovered when he came to Age. After that, turning his Arms againſt the Moors, he obtain'd a Croiſade, and reduced 'em to that extremity, that Almanſor Emir was forced to come from Africa to their relief, with 100000 Horſe, and 400000 Foot; upon which, Alphonſus failing of the Succour which he expected from other Chriſtian Princes, came off with loſs, but was quickly revenged by the death of 20000 of the Infidels. Mahomet Emir breaking the League, and bringing along with him 120000 Horſe, and 300000 Foot, Alphonſus gave him Battel, and overthrew him, with the ſlaughter of 150000 Foot, and 30000 Horſe at Muradat. He died in 1214. in the 59th year of his Age. His Queen was Elianor, Daughter to Henry the Second of England. Mariana, Turquet. Marmol. &c.

ALPHONSUS the Ninth, of whom nothing is conſiderable; he Reign'd in Peace, and died in 1230. Mariana. Roderic.

ALPHONSUS the Tenth, Sirnam'd the Wiſe and the Aſtrologer, ſucceeded his Father Ferdinand III. in 1252. He made the Aſtronomical Tables, ſtill extant, which are called, from his Name, Tabulæ Alphonſinæ; and 'tis certainly affirm'd, That he ſpent 400000 Crowns in the Compoſition of them. He refuſed the Imperial Crown of Germany, which was offer'd him after the rejection of Richard Duke of Cornwall, contenting himſelf only with the Title of Emperor, which ſome ſay he reſigned to Pope Gregory the Tenth, whereof he repented, and would have reaſſumed the Imperial Title and Arms; but was deterred for fear of an Excommunication againſt him. He was ſucceſsful againſt the Moors; but at length dethron'd by his own Son Sancho, and died for grief in An. 1284. In a great Sickneſs, after many Remedies uſed in vain, he began to read Q. Curtius's Hiſtory of Alexander the Great, which he did with ſo much delight, that he recovered his Health; whereupon he ſaid, Farewell Avicen, Hippocrates, and the whole Crowd of Doctors; give me Curtius that hath ſaved my Life. He had read the Bible 14 times, with ſeveral Commentaries upon it; he was a great Aſtrologer, and after he had deeply conſidered the Fabrick of the World, the following ſaying of his, reported by Lipſius, denotes him to have been none of the moſt Pious, viz. That if God had adviſed with him in the Creation, he could have given him good counſel. Marian. Turquet. Roderic. Geneb. Spond. Bzovius.

ALPHONSUS the Eleventh, was ſaluted King in his Cradle upon the death of Ferdinand the Fourth, who died ſuddenly, An. 1312. He overthrew the Moors, with the ſlaughter of 200000 in one Battel, on the 30th of Octob. 1340. ſo that the Fields were covered with dead Bodies for three Leagues round; and the number of Priſoners of Quality, and the Booty was ſo great, that the Price of Gold fell a Sixth part. He died of the Plague at the Siege of Gibraltar. The Moors invaded him with 270 Ships, 70000 Horſe, and 400000 Foot. The Cauſe of their coming with ſuch a Multitude was, that the King of Fez had vowed Revenge on him for the Death of his Son Abdulmalic, ſlain in Battel. Mariana. Villani, &c.

Kings of Naples.

ALPHONSUS the Firſt. See Alphonſus V. King of Arragon.

ALPHONSUS the Second, King of Naples, An. 1494. hated for his Cruelty by his Subjects, who therefore called in Charles the Eighth, King of France, upon whoſe taking of Naples, Alphonſus reſign'd his Crown to his Son Ferdinand, and retired into a Monaſtery in Sicily, where he died ſoon after. Philip Comines. P. Jov. Guichardin.

Kings of Portugal.

ALPHONSUS the Firſt, Sirnamed Henriquez, the Son of Henry of Burgundy, of the Houſe of France, defeated Five Kings, or Generals of the Moors, at Ourique, in 1139. and the ſame year was Crown'd King of Portugal. After that Battel he inſtituted the Order of Avis, and took for his Arms the ſame number of Crown-pieces, or Bezants, as he had vanquiſh'd Kings of the Moors, which are the Arms of Portugal to this day. He died in the year 1185. He was forced to keep his Mother in Priſon, becauſe ſhe would needs Marry with Count Triſtemare, to whom he gave his Siſter, which occaſioned a cruel War betwixt him and Alphonſus the Seventh, King of Caſtile, in which he came off with advantage. Mariana, Surita, Guichenon. Catel.

ALPHONSUS the Second, Sirnam'd the Fat, ſucceeded his Brother Sancho the Firſt. He maintain'd a bloody War with the King of Leon, which was at length compos'd by the great Care of Innocent the Third. He took Alcacer de Sal from the Moors, rendred himſelf conſiderable for his Bravery, and died in 1233. Vaſconcellos.

ALPHONSUS the Third, ſucceeded his Brother Sancho the Second. Alex. the Fourth, and Gregory the Tenth Interdicted his Kingdom; but he laught at their vain Thunder, and carried on his Wars with Succeſs; he died in 1279. Mariana adds, That he Divorced his Wife, Daughter to Count Dammartin, and Married Beatrix, Natural Daughter to Alphonſus the Tenth, called the Wiſe. Mariana, Nugnes, Surita.

ALPHONSUS the Fourth, Sirnam'd the Brave, wag'd War with the Moors and Caſtillians; and afterwards aſſiſted the latter to win the famous Battel of Tariffa, on the 30th of Octob. 1340. He died in 1357. in the 65th year of his Age, and 32d of his Reign, Duard. Mariana.

ALPHONSUS the Fifth, Sirnamed the African, becauſe he took Tangier, Arzile, Alcacer, and Sequer from the Moors. He was defeated at the Battel of Toro, by Ferdinand the Fifth King of Arragon, and then made Peace with him. In his time his Subjects diſcovered the Country of Guinea. He died in 1481. in the 49th year of his Reign. He Coin'd Pieces of that Gold call'd Croiſats, becauſe of the Croiſade granted him by Pope Nicholas the Fifth. He Married his Niece for Second Wife, by diſpenſation of Pope Sixtus the Fourth. But the Pope complain'd afterwards, that he was ſurpriz'd, and order'd this Princeſs to be ſhut up in a Nunnery. Mariana, Turquet.

ALPHONSUS Henry, King of Portugal, ſucceeded his Father John the Fourth, in 1656. and prov'd very ſucceſsful againſt the Spaniards in 1659. 1663. and 1664. However for his ill Qualities, and Incapacity, he was at length dethron'd, and carried away into the Iſland of Tercera, and his Brother Don Pedro was declared Regent of the Kingdom; afterward he return'd to Portugal, but never appear'd, and died in 1683. He Married a Daughter of Savoy in 1666. and the Marriage being declar'd Null in 1668. his Brother Married her a year after.

ALPHONSO d'Eſte, Duke of Ferrara, Modena, &c. ſuffer'd very much under the Pontificats of Julius II. and Leo X. who were his implacable Enemies, but ſav'd his Countries by the Favour and Protection of Charles the Fifth, upon Condition that he ſhould hold Modena and Reggio as a Vaſſal of the Empire; he died in 1534. He Married Lucretia, a Daughter of Pope Alexander the Sixth, to ſave himſelf; but Julius II. was his great Enemy. After his death Alphonſus ſeized Reggio, and Rubiera, during the Vacancy. In the Pontificate of Clement the Seventh, he made an Alliance with the Emperor Charles the Fifth, on Condition that he ſhould protect him againſt the Pope, he perſuaded the Duke d'Bourbon to go to Rome, and while the Pope was beſieged in the Caſtle of St. Angelo, he took Modena, and ſo recover'd his Eſtate, and was confirm'd by a Treaty of Peace in 1526. He Married for a Second Wife one of his Miſtreſſes, by whom he had Alphonſus, Father of Cæſar, ſince Duke of Modena. Thuan. P. Jovius, &c.

ALPHONSUS the Second, Duke of Ferrara, Modena, &c. ſucceeded his Father in 1559. ſignaliz'd himſelf in the Emperor's Service againſt Solyman the Turk in Hungary, and died in 1597. He commanded part of the Emperor's Forces, and lent him others. Du Cheſne. Jo. Bapt. Pigna. Spond. Thuan. &c.

ALPHONSUS the Third, Duke of Modena and Reggio, ſucceeded his Father Cæſar in 1628. and after the death of his Wife Iſabella of Savoy, took upon him the Habit of a Capuchin, and died in 1644.

ALPHONSUS the Fourth, Duke of Modena and Reggio, ſucceeded Francis the Firſt in 1658. and was ſeveral times General of the French Armies in Italy, and died in 1662. He Married Cardinal Mazarine's Siſter, by whom he had Francis the Second, now Duke.

ALPHONSUS Spina, a Spaniard, who of a Jew became a Franciſcan Monk, Rector of the Univerſity of Salamanca, and Inquiſitor, he lived about 1459. and is famous for his Book, Intituled, Fortalitium fidei contra Judæos, Saracenos, alioſq; Chriſtianæ fidei inimicos; the ſcope of which is, a Hiſtory of the Religion of the Church of Rome at that time, and by what Arguments thoſe mentioned in the Title did impugne it; he proves the Catholick Faith to be elder than the Jewiſh Law, and the fulfilling of all the Old Teſtament Prophecies concerning Jeſus Chriſt; but mixes abundance of Trifles with the uſual Arguments, having made Twenty two Sermons concerning the wonderful Properties of the Name Jeſus. In his Second Book he gives an Account of what he calls Hereſy, with the Arguments, and ſome feeble Anſwers. He acknowledges that Confeſſion was not received into the Church in Ambroſe's time; and pleads furiouſly for the Extirpation of Hereticks, whom he reckons the worſt of Criminals. In the Third he exhibits the Arguments of the Jews againſt Chriſtianity, and particularly thoſe againſt Image-worſhip and Tranſubſtantiation, which are indeed very cogent, and the ſame, tho not all, which Proteſtants uſe; to which Alphonſus gives but very weak ſolutions. The reſt of the Book is concerning the Hatred of the Jews to the Chriſtians; their Infatuations, the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and other Calamities ſince. In his Fourth Book he gives are call'd Offices, Hulſt, Axile, Bouchout, and Aſſenede. Peter Silvius.

ALPES, or the Alps, by the Italians called Alpi, by the Germans Alpen, are a prodigious Ridge of Mountains ſeparating Italy from France, Switzerland, Rhætia, Hungary, and Germany, extending about 3000 furlongs in length from the Ligurian Sea at Genoa, to the Adriatick at Friouli, and call'd by ſeveral Names according to the variety of their ſituation. Some go by the name of the Maritine Alps, as lying neareſt the Sea, now Les Montagnes de Tende. They begin at the City of Nice, and reach as far as Barcelonetta, extending themſelves between Provence and Liguria, and terminating in Mont Viſo, where the River Po takes its riſe. Cotticæ and Cotti, and Mont Cenis, dividing the Dauphinate from Piedmont, through which the River Po takes its Courſe. Graiæ or the Greek Alps, Monte di St. Bernardo Picolo, dividing the Allobroges, that is, the Savoyards, from the Salaſſi, or Val d Oſta, by the Germans, Augſthal. Otherwiſe beginning from Mont Cenis, and extending to Mont St. Bernardo Majore in the Confines of Walais. Poeninæ or Appennine Mont de St. Bernardo a Maggiore, which divide a part of Piedmont and Inſubria from the Savoyards and the Haut Walais. The high Alps, M. de S. Gothard, contiguous to the Poenine, ſeparating the Helvetians from a part of the Dukedom of Milan: The feet of which extend themſelves to the Lake Verbanus or Lago Maggiore, out of which the Rhine, Teſſino, and the Rhone, derive their Fountains. Zepontiæ Monte di St. Bernardine, join to the high Alps where the Rhine breaks forth. Rhæticæ or Juga Rhætica, by the Germans called Warmſerloch, divide the Griſons, largely ſo taken, from the reſt of the Inſubrians. From whence the Inn, taking its courſe through Noricum in Germany, falls into the Danube, the Atheſis running through the Territories of Venice, and the Addua, dividing the Venetians from the Milanois. Tridentinæ, or thoſe of Trent, Weſtward Monte Bernina, and Monte di San Nicola, Eaſtward M. Zelam, out of which the Rivers La Brenta and La Piave, derive their Sources, ſeparate Tiroll from the Venetians, and extend themſelves to the River Natiſſone. Noricæ, lie between the County of Tiroll, the Archbiſhoprick of Saltsburg and Carinthia, about Villach call'd Villacher Alben, and by thoſe of Saltsburg call'd Swamberger. Juliæ, called alſo Carnicæ, now Zuglie or Zeglie, running between Carinthia and Friuli, and terminating upon the Adriatic Sea. In theſe Mountains the Save takes its riſe. There are ſeveral Paſſes through theſe Alps that give an entrance into Italy, of which the chiefeſt are Col de Tende, Col de L'Argentiere, Mont Viſo, Mont Genevre, Mont Cenis, Petit S. Bernard, and Col de la Croix. The Emperor Auguſtus ſubdu'd all the People inhabiting the Alps, and parts adjacent, and to eternize his Memory, ſet up a Trophy near Suſa, with this Inſcription, Quod ejus Ductu, auſpiciiſque Gentes Alpinæ omnes quæ a Mari ſupero ad inferum pertinebant, ſub Imperium P. R. redactæ ſunt, &c. Some of thoſe Mountains are continually cover'd with Snow, from whence, or from the White Rocks, Authors think they take their Name. Tacitus, Livius, Dion. Sanſon.

ALPHENUS, Varus, a Friend of Virgil, who together with Pollio and Gallus, preſerv'd the Poet's Eſtate from forfeiture, which elſe had been given to Auguſtus's Veterans, which had ſerv'd againſt Brutus and Caſſius.

ALPHERGANUS, or Alfraganus, (Mahomet) an Arabian Mathematician, who liv'd to the end of the Ninth Century. He wrote a Book in Arabick, call'd, The Elements of Aſtronomy, Tranſlated into Latine, and Printed by James Golius. He wrote another Book, De Sciateriſis. And one De Planiſphæriæ Forma, Diviſione atque Uſu.

ALPHEUS, now Orphea, by the Inhabitants, and by the Italian Seamen, Carbon, a large River of the Morea, riſing out of the Mountain Stymphalus, runs through the Countreys of Arcadia and Elis, and being ſwell'd by the Rivers Erymanthus and Celadon, and near 140 of leſſer note, which it receives as it runs along, falls at length into the Gulph of Caſtel di Torneſe, after it has waſh'd the Walls of Langanico, not above 80 furlongs from the mouth of it. The Poets talk of the miraculous courſe of this River, under or through the Ionian Sea, till it mixes with the Fountain Arethuſa in Sicily; but Strabo derides that Poetical Courſe of the River, not only as ridiculous, but impoſſible. Strabo.

Kings of Arragon.

ALPHONSUS the Firſt, King of Arragon and Navarre, about 738. united thoſe Two Kingdoms to Leon and Caſtile: He was famous for his Victory againſt the Moors. Mariana.

ALPHONSUS the Second, Son of Raymond Berenger, Count of Barcelona, forced the Count of Tholouſe to quit his Claim to Provence, oppos'd the Saracens with good ſucceſs, and died at Perpignan in 1196. This Prince was Chaſt, Wiſe, Virtuous, and Couragious; and forbad the Notaries of Catalonia to date from the Reigns of the French Kings, as they were accuſtomed formely. Voſſius, Noſtradam.

ALPHONSUS the Third, ſirnam'd the Benefactor, Son of Peter the Third, drave the Moors out of Majorca, and Minorca, and died of the Peſtilence in 1285. Aged 27. Mariana. Surita. S. Anton.

ALPHONSUS the Fourth, Sirnam'd the Debonnair, and Son of James the Juſt, ſucceeded his Father in 1327. founded the Univerſity of Lerida, and died in 1336. Mariana adds, That he obliged the King of Caſtile to ſue for Peace with him. Mariana. Spond.

ALPHONSUS the Fifth, Sirnam'd the Wiſe and Magnanimous, ſucceeded his Father Ferdinand the Juſt in 1416. In proſecution of his Right to the Kingdom of Naples, as being adopted by Joan the Queen, he beſieged and reduced the City of that Name, with the whole Realm, and died in 1458. Mariana, Mezeray, Blondus, Spond. Surita.

Kings of Leon and Caſtile.

ALPHONSUS the Firſt, Son of Peter Duke of Biſcay and Navarre, Reigned 18 years, and died in 757. He was not that Alphonſus which had the Name of Catholick, a Title which the Popes gave the Kings of Spain in the Sixteenth Century. This Alphonſus was ſucceſsful in his Wars againſt the Moors. Mariana, Baronius, L. Pudenſis.

ALPHONSUS the Second, Sirnam'd the Chaſt, ſucceeded Veremund, in 791. He took Lisbon, and ſeveral other Places, from the Saracens, of whom he ſlew 70000 in one Battel, and died in 821, or 824, as others will have it. He alſo obtain'd other Victories againſt the Infidels, by the Aſſiſtance of Charlemain; His Siſter Ximene, having Married Xanche, the Earl of Sardinia, without his permiſſion, he ſhut her up in a Monaſtery, and impriſon'd him, after having put out his Eyes; but bred up their Son Bernard del Carpio: Who, as ſoon as he underſtood his Original, prayed his Uncle to ſet his Parents at Liberty, which becauſe he obtain'd not, he left the Court, and ſo loſt the Crown which was deſign'd for him. Mariana, Roderic. Marmol.

ALPHONSUS the Third, Sirnam'd the Great, was a mighty Benefactor to the Clergy, a Repairer of Churches, and a ſtout Oppoſer of Mahomet and Abdala, both Saracen Kings. At length his Son Garcia Revolted, and forced him to reſign his Crown, after he had Reign'd 48 years with much Honour. He died in 912. His Son Rebell'd to favour the Deſigns of his Father's Wife, who was not in good intelligence with him. Baronius.

ALPHONSUS the Fourth, Sirnam'd the Monk, becauſe he vow'd a Religious Life, which he broke, and aſſum'd the Government in 914. but after a languiſhing Reign for Six or ſeven years, his Brother Ramir the Second, coop't him again into his proper Station, that he might have leiſure to perform his Vow; and to fit him the better for Contemplation, as ſome ſay, put out his Eyes. Ambroiſe Moral.

ALPHONSUS the Fifth, ſucceeded his Father Veramond, An. 1000. at Five years of Age, under the Tutelage of Melenda Gonſalez, Count of Galicia: He Corrected the Laws of the Goths in an Aſſembly of the States-General, held at Oviedo in 1220. He wag'd War againſt the Moors, and was kill'd with an Arrow at the Siege of Viſco in Portugal in 1228. after he had Reigned 29 years. Mariana, Genebrard.

ALPHONSUS the Sixth, Sirnam'd the Valiant, was taken out of a Cloiſter, to ſucceed Sancho his Brother, ſlain at the Siege of Zamora, An. 1072. He took Toledo in 1085, and wreſted from the Moors, Tallavera, Illeſcas, Madrid, Medina Cæli, and ſeveral other conſiderable Places, and died in the Seventieth year of his Age. Mariana. Roderic of Toledo.

ALPHONSUS the Seventh, Divorced his Wife Urraca for her incontinency, and then reſign'd to her the Kingdom of Caſtile, which he had in her Right: He acquir'd the Name of Warrior, as having been preſent in 29 Pitch'd Battles; in the laſt of which, after he had taken from the Moors, Cordova, Saragoſſa, and divers other Places, he periſh'd, An. 1134. or 1137. after he had Reign'd about 30 years. He call'd himſelf Emperor of Spain. Mariana, Genebrard, Marmol.

ALPHONSUS the Eighth, Son of Raimund Count of Burgundy, and Urraca his Wife, was ſeated upon the Throne of Leon and Caſtile, An. 1122. and Crown'd Emperor by the Archbiſhop of Toledo in 1135. The vaſt Army of 60000 Horſe, and 100000 Foot, which Joſeph the Second brought into Spain, forced him to ſeek Aid of the Pope, and the King of France; at firſt he prov'd ſucceſsful, but haſtning to the Siege of Almeria, beſieged by the Moors, fell ſick at Bacca, and croſſing the Mountains of Sierra Morena, vanquiſhed by the violence of his Diſtemper, he expired, leaning againſt a Tree in 1157. after he had Reign'd 35 years. He alſo overcame the Kings of Navarre and Arragon; but granted them Peace on diſadvantageous Terms. Mariana, Marmol.

ALPHONSUS the Eighth, or Ninth, Sirnam'd the Noble and Good, was declared King after the death of Sancho the Deſired, his Father, in 1158. at Four years of Age; of which his Neighbours taking advantage, deſpoiled him of good part of his Dominions, which he recovered when he came to Age. After that, turning his Arms againſt the Moors, he obtain'd a Croiſade, and reduced 'em to that extremity, that Almanſor Emir was forced to come from Africa to their relief, with 100000 Horſe, and 400000 Foot; upon which, Alphonſus failing of the Succour which he expected from other Chriſtian Princes, came off with loſs, but was quickly revenged by the death of 20000 of the Infidels. Mahomet Emir breaking the League, and bringing along with him 120000 Horſe, and 300000 Foot, Alphonſus gave him Battel, and overthrew him, with the ſlaughter of 150000 Foot, and 30000 Horſe at Muradat. He died in 1214. in the 59th year of his Age. His Queen was Elianor, Daughter to Henry the Second of England. Mariana, Turquet. Marmol. &c.

ALPHONSUS the Ninth, of whom nothing is conſiderable; he Reign'd in Peace, and died in 1230. Mariana. Roderic.

ALPHONSUS the Tenth, Sirnam'd the Wiſe and the Aſtrologer, ſucceeded his Father Ferdinand III. in 1252. He made the Aſtronomical Tables, ſtill extant, which are called, from his Name, Tabulæ Alphonſinæ; and 'tis certainly affirm'd, That he ſpent 400000 Crowns in the Compoſition of them. He refuſed the Imperial Crown of Germany, which was offer'd him after the rejection of Richard Duke of Cornwall, contenting himſelf only with the Title of Emperor, which ſome ſay he reſigned to Pope Gregory the Tenth, whereof he repented, and would have reaſſumed the Imperial Title and Arms; but was deterred for fear of an Excommunication againſt him. He was ſucceſsful againſt the Moors; but at length dethron'd by his own Son *Sancho,*and died for grief in An. 1284. In a great Sickneſs, after many Remedies uſed in vain, he began to read Q. Curtius's Hiſtory of Alexander the Great, which he did with ſo much delight, that he recovered his Health; whereupon he ſaid, Farewell Avicen, Hippocrates, and the whole Crowd of Doctors; give me Curtius that hath ſaved my Life. He had read the Bible 14 times, with ſeveral Commentaries upon it; he was a great Aſtrologer, and after he had deeply conſidered the Fabrick of the World, the following ſaying of his, reported by Lipſius, denotes him to have been none of the moſt Pious, viz. That if God had adviſed with him in the Creation, he could have given him good counſel. Marian. Turquet. Roderic. Geneb. Spond. Bzovius.

ALPHONSUS the Eleventh, was ſaluted King in his Cradle upon the death of Ferdinand the Fourth, who died ſuddenly, An. 1312. He overthrew the Moors, with the ſlaughter of 200000 in one Battel, on the 30th of Octob. 1340. ſo that the Fields were covered with dead Bodies for three Leagues round; and the number of Priſoners of Quality, and the Booty was ſo great, that the Price of Gold fell a Sixth part. He died of the Plague at the Siege of Gibraltar. The Moors invaded him with 270 Ships, 70000 Horſe, and 400000 Foot. The Cauſe of their coming with ſuch a Multitude was, that the King of Fez had vowed Revenge on him for the Death of his Son Abdulmalic, ſlain in Battel. Mariana. Villani, &c.

Kings of Naples.

ALPHONSUS the Second, King of Naples, An. 1494. hated for his Cruelty by his Subjects, who therefore called in Charles the Eighth, King of France, upon whoſe taking of Naples, Alphonſus reſign'd his Crown to his Son Ferdinand, and retired into a Monaſtery in Sicily, where he died ſoon after. Philip Comines. P. Jov. Guichardin.

Kings of Portugal.

ALPHONSUS the Firſt, Sirnamed Henriquez, the Son of Henry of Burgundy, of the Houſe of France, defeated Five Kings, or Generals of the Moors, at Ourique, in 1139. and the ſame year was Crown'd King of Portugal. After that Battel he inſtituted the Order of Avis, and took for his Arms the ſame number of Crown-pieces, or Bezants, as he had vanquiſh'd Kings of the Moors, which are the Arms of Portugal to this day. He died in the year 1185. He was forced to keep his Mother in Priſon, becauſe ſhe would needs Marry with Count Triſtemare, to whom he gave his Siſter, which occaſioned a cruel War betwixt him and Alphonſus the Seventh, King of Caſtile, in which he came off with advantage. Mariana, Surita, Guichenon. Catel.

ALPHONSUS the Second, Sirnam'd the Fat, ſucceeded his Brother Sancho the Firſt. He maintain'd a bloody War with the King of Leon, which was at length compos'd by the great Care of Innocent the Third. He took Alcacer de Sal from the Moors, rendred himſelf conſiderable for his Bravery, and died in 1233. Vaſconcellos.

ALPHONSUS the Third, ſucceeded his Brother Sancho the Second. Alex. the Fourth, and Gregory the Tenth Interdicted his Kingdom; but he laught at their vain Thunder, and carried on his Wars with Succeſs; he died in 1279. Mariana adds, That he Divorced his Wife, Daughter to Count Dammartin, and Married Beatrix, Natural Daughter to Alphonſus the Tenth, called the Wiſe. Mariana, Nugnes, Surita.

ALPHONSUS the Fourth, Sirnam'd the Brave, wag'd War with the Moors and Caſtillians; and afterwards aſſiſted the latter to win the famous Battel of Tariffa, on the 30th of Octob. 1340. He died in 1357. in the 65th year of his Age, and 32d of his Reign, Duard. Mariana.

ALPHONSUS the Fifth, Sirnamed the African, becauſe he took Tangier, Arzile, Alcacer, and Sequer from the Moors. He was defeated at the Battel of Toro, by Ferdinand the Fifth King of Arragon, and then made Peace with him. In his time his Subjects diſcovered the Country of Guinea. He died in 1481. in the 49th year of his Reign. He Coin'd Pieces of that Gold call'd Croiſats, becauſe of the Croiſade granted him by Pope Nicholas the Fifth. He Married his Niece for Second Wife, by diſpenſation of Pope Sixtus the Fourth. But the Pope complain'd afterwards, that he was ſurpriz'd, and order'd this Princeſs to be ſhut up in a Nunnery. Mariana, Turquet.

ALPHONSUS Henry, King of Portugal, ſucceeded his Father John the Fourth, in 1656. and prov'd very ſucceſsful againſt the Spaniards in 1659. 1663. and 1664. However for his ill Qualities, and Incapacity, he was at length dethron'd, and carried away into the Iſland of Tercera, and his Brother Don Pedro was declared Regent of the Kingdom; afterward he return'd to Portugal, but never appear'd, and died in 1683. He Married a Daughter of Savoy in 1666. and the Marriage being declar'd Null in 1668. his Brother Married her a year after.

ALPHONSO d'Eſte, Duke of Ferrara, Modena, &c. ſuffer'd very much under the Pontificats of Julius II. and Leo X. who were his implacable Enemies, but ſav'd his Countries by the Favour and Protection of Charles the Fifth, upon Condition that he ſhould hold Modena and Reggio as a Vaſſal of the Empire; he died in 1534. He Married Lucretia, a Daughter of Pope Alexander the Sixth, to ſave himſelf; but Julius II. was his great Enemy. After his death Alphonſus ſeized Reggio, and Rubiera, during the Vacancy. In the Pontificate of Clement the Seventh, he made an Alliance with the Emperor Charles the Fifth, on Condition that he ſhould protect him againſt the Pope, he perſuaded the Duke d'Bourbon to go to Rome, and while the Pope was beſieged in the Caſtle of St. Angelo, he took Modena, and ſo recover'd his Eſtate, and was confirm'd by a Treaty of Peace in 1526. He Married for a Second Wife one of his Miſtreſſes, by whom he had Alphonſus, Father of Cæſar, ſince Duke of Modena. Thuan. P. Jovius, &c.

ALPHONSUS the Second, Duke of Ferrara, Modena, &c. ſucceeded his Father in 1559. ſignaliz'd himſelf in the Emperor's Service againſt Solyman the Turk in Hungary, and died in 1597. He commanded part of the Emperor's Forces, and lent him others. Du Cheſne. Jo. Bapt. Pigna. Spond. Thuan. &c.

ALPHONSUS the Third, Duke of Modena and Reggio, ſucceeded his Father Cæſar in 1628. and after the death of his Wife Iſabella of Savoy, took upon him the Habit of a Capuchin, and died in 1644.

ALPHONSUS the Fourth, Duke of Modena and Reggio, ſucceeded Francis the Firſt in 1658. and was ſeveral times General of the French Armies in Italy, and died in 1662. He Married Cardinal Mazarine's Siſter, by whom he had Francis the Second, now Duke.

ALPHONSUS Spina, a Spaniard, who of a Jew became a Franciſcan Monk, Rector of the Univerſity of Salamanca, and Inquiſitor, he lived about 1459. and is famous for his Book, Intituled, Fortalitium fidei contra Judæos, Saracenos, alioſq; Chriſtianæ fidei inimicos; the ſcope of which is, a Hiſtory of the Religion of the Church of Rome at that time, and by what Arguments thoſe mentioned in the Title did impugne it; he proves the Catholick Faith to be elder than the Jewiſh Law, and the fulfilling of all the Old Teſtament Prophecies concerning Jeſus Chriſt; but mixes abundance of Trifles with the uſual Arguments, having made Twenty two Sermons concerning the wonderful Properties of the Name Jeſus. In his Second Book he gives an Account of what he calls Hereſy, with the Arguments, and ſome feeble Anſwers. He acknowledges that Confeſſion was not received into the Church in Ambroſe's time; and pleads furiouſly for the Extirpation of Hereticks, whom he reckons the worſt of Criminals. In the Third he exhibits the Arguments of the Jews againſt Chriſtianity, and particularly thoſe againſt Image-worſhip and Tranſubſtantiation, which are indeed very cogent, and the ſame, tho not all, which Proteſtants uſe; to which Alphonſus gives but very weak ſolutions. The reſt of the Book is concerning the Hatred of the Jews to the Chriſtians; their Infatuations, the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, and other Calamities ſince. In his Fourth Book he gives an account of, and refutes Mahometaniſm, adding a Hiſtory of the Mahometan Wars to his own time. The Fifth is concerning the Eſſence of Devils, their Hatred againſt Chriſtianity, their Order, Difference, Government, Witchcraft, Power, Habitation, and Torments. Cave Hiſt. Lit.

ALPHONSUS Toſtatus, a Spaniard, who flouriſhed about 1434. an Univerſal Scholar, a Perſon of great Piety, and of ſo great a Memory, that he never forgot any thing he Read; and of ſo great Induſtry, that in 22 years time, he wrote more than another Man can attentively read in an Age; beſides the numerous Volumes extant, whereof he was Author, more than 400 were Shipwrack'd as going to be Printed in Italy: But amongſt thoſe great Qualities, he is accuſed by ſome, as not having Treated of the Sacred Trinity with Veneration; nor of the Fathers with Reverence enough. The Papiſts own that he impugned the Papal Authority, and that not obſcurely. Cave Hiſt. Liter.

ALPHONSUS Zamora, a Spaniard, but of Jewiſh Parentage, very Learned in the Hebrew; he became a Chriſtian, was Baptiz'd Anno 1506. and imploy'd by Cardinal Ximenes in that Noble Edition of the Complutenſian Bible. He wrote alſo a Hebrew Grammar, Vocabulary and Lexicon, and a Treatiſe about the Points. Cave Hiſt. Literaria.

AMASIS the Second, of a common Centinel, was made King of Egypt by the revolted Soldiers, Anno Mund. 3448. Being ſettled in his Throne by the death of Apries, the Legitimate Sovereign, he was forc'd to ſtruggle with the Egyptians, who deſpiſed the meanneſs of his Birth. However, he vanquiſh'd their Averſion by his Mildneſs, and an Ingenious Piece of Policy in moulding a Golden Tub (wherein he was wont to waſh his Feet) into an Idol. After that, he bent his Mind to reform and beautifie his Kingdom; he built the Temple of Iſis, gave ſeveral Privileges to the Greeks, and made a Law, That all Perſons ſhould annually give the Magiſtrate an account how he lived, and by what ſort of calling he ſubſiſted, upon pain of death. Which Law Solon learn'd from the Egyptians, and recommended to the Athenians. Being tax'd by his Friends, becauſe that, after he had been from Morning till Noon buſily employed in the Affairs of the Government, he ſpent the reſt of the day in Plays, Merriment, and dreſſing and trimming his Body, he made anſwer, They who make uſe of Bows, when they have occaſion for 'em, bend 'em; when they have none, unbend 'em again. There is a moſt eloquent Epiſtle of his to Polycrates, upon this Subject, That proſperous Fortune was not always to be expected, but temper'd with Labour and Trouble. Herodotus.

AMATA Sixminus, Profeſſor of the Hebrew in the Univerſity of Faneker in Frieſland, publiſhed a Book under the Title of Anti-Barbarus Biblicus, to ſhew the Errors of the Tranſlation of the Vulgar Latin Bible, and inveighs againſt the Council of Trent for authorizing it. F.Simon.

AMATA, Wife to Latinus, King of the Latins in Italy, and Mother to the Princeſs Lavinia; ſhe took Turnus's part againſt Æneas; at laſt, apprehending Turnus had been ſlain, ſhe hang'd her ſelf in Deſpair. Virg. Æneid. 12. Amata likewiſe was the firſt Virgin, that was Conſecrated to the Goddeſs Veſta; and for this reaſon they gave the Name of Amata to the Chief Veſtal Virgin. *Gellius, Lib.*1. *c.*12.

AMATHUS, Amathuntis, an ancient City of Cyprus, which bore the Name of Amathuſa, and was conſecrated to Venus, who had a famous Temple there, but being offended with the cruel Cuſtom of the Inhabitants in offering Strangers, ſhe turned them into Bulls, to the end that they might be the Sacrifices themſelves. Many Geographers will have it ſtill ſtanding under the modern Name of Limiſſo, but others affirm, That Limiſſo ſtands above ſeven miles from the Ruines of Amathus. Hoffman, Ovid, Pliny.

AMATICUE, in Latin Amaticucus, a River of North America in New-Spain, in the Province of Soconuſco: It diſcharges it ſelf into the Pacifick Sea, upon the Confines of the Province Guaxecca.

AMATO, a River of Calabria in Italy, call'd in Latin Amatius, and Lametus; it riſes in the Appennine Hills, and diſcharges it ſelf into the Mediterranean, near the Town of St. Euphemia.

AMATUS, a Famous Portugueſe Phyſician, Living about the Year 1550. He wrote ſeveral Excellent Treatiſes: As, Remarks upon Dioſcorides; Curationum Medicinalium Centuriæ 7. Commentaria in Avecennam, &c. Juſtus in Chron. Medic. Vander Linden, De ſcript. Medic.

AMAURI. See Amalrick.

AMAXIA, an ancient City of Troas memorable for the Altar that Agamemnon conſecrated to Twelve Gods. Alſo a City of Cilicia in a Country abounding with Timber for Shipping, which Mark Anthony gave to Cleopatra. Pliny, Strabo.

AMAZIA the Son of Joaſh, ſucceeded his Father in the Kingdom of Judæa, defeated the Amalekites, Idumæans, and Gabalitans, and after this Succeſs revolted from God to Worſhip the Idols of his Enemies that could not ſave their Adorers. For which being reproved by the Prophet, he ſeemed to juſtifie it as an Act of Policy. Afterwards he would needs be quarrelling with the King of Iſrael, who would fain have made him ſenſible of his Vanity, but finding himſelf reſolv'd, he met, defeated, took, and carried him in Triumph to Jeruſalem, to behold the diſmantling of his chief City, and to ſee the Temple plunder'd. Joſeph.

AMAZONS, certain Warlike Women of Sarmatia on the River Thermodon. They ſuffer'd no Men to live among them; ſo that if they brought forth any Male-Children by the Converſation which they had with the Men of Neighbouring Countreys once a Year, they either kill'd or maim'd them as ſoon as born: But the Females they bred up to the uſe of Arms. On the Left ſide, their Boſom was uncover'd, and they burnt one of their Dugs that it might not hinder them in bending their Bow, but the other they kept to ſuckle their Girls. They are ſaid to have extended their Empire as far as Epheſus in Aſia; but coming into Europe, they were defeated by the Athenians under Theſeus, and driven back again; but the Story of Thaleſtris and Alexander the Great is look'd upon as a meer Fable: And indeed the whole Story of the Amazons ſeems to be derived from ſome particular Nation of Aſia the Leſs, where it was the Cuſtom of the Women to go along with the Men to the Wars. Sanſon.

AMAZONUM Fluvius, Rio de las Amazonas, a famous River of the South America, by others called Orelhana, as being diſcovered by Juan Orelhan, a Spaniard, in 1541. This River has its Source in the Mountains adjoining to the City of Quito, in Peru. Some while after, it receives the Rivers Coca, Napo, &c. and runs into the Province of Canella, thence into the Country of the Paccamores, where it mixes with the Rivers of Xauxa, and thence traverſing the Provinces of Surina, Matajan, Apante, Coropa, Tapaian, &c. at length after it has ſwell'd it ſelf with the Rivers of Arumaia, Catua, and Gaiana, and a Courſe of about 800 Miles, throws it ſelf into the North Sea, between Braſilia and Gaiana. There is an excellent Deſcription of this River compoſed by Peter Texeira, a Portugueſe, who ſurvey'd it all over in 10 Months. He aſſures us, That at the Mouth of the ſaid River there are a very great number of Iſlands, as is obſerved in the Geographical Maps of Sanſon and Du Val. Orelhan obſerves, that after he had ſail'd ſome Days up the River, he met with a great number of Men and Women arm'd alike, where the Women ſeem'd to have the Command and Conduct of the Men. To the Deſcription of this River add, That from the Source to its Mouth are 1800 Leagues. The Provinces contain'd in this vaſt Tract of Ground, called by ſome, The Empire of the Great Amazone, are very well Inhabited, and Villages ſo frequent, that the Sound of thoſe at Work in one Village, is heard at another. The Air is Temperate, though near the Line, and the Country very Fruitful. The Rivers and Valleys are mighty Pleaſant; the Trees abound with Fruit, and the Rivers with Fiſh. The Tortoiſe and Sea-Calf are very common there; and the Flies which are ſo noiſom in other Places of America, are not ſo here. The principal Riches of the Country are Coco-Trees, Ebony, Braſil, Cedar, and Party-coloured Wood. Tobacco and Sugar Canes are wondrous plenty here. Cotton and Scarlet-Die, Odoriferous Roſin, Gum, and Medicinal Herbs, abound alſo in this Country. The People are more Reaſonable, and leſs Cruel than other Americans. Moſt go Naked, but ſome have Garments of Cotton. They are not ſo Black as thoſe of Braſil, they are Affable, and naturally Pleaſant and Faithful. Their Arms; are Bows and Arrows and a Javelin, which they throw with an incredible Force. They are Idolaters, and make Images of Wood, which they ſet up in the Corners of their Houſes, having no Temples. They know not the Uſe of Iron nor Steel, but cut out thoſe Images with Hatchets of Stone, or very hard Wood. Their Prieſts made them believe that thoſe Divinities came down from Heaven to dwell among them. De Laet. Hiſtoire de Noveau Monde. Relation of the River of the Amazons.

AMBARRES, in Latin, Ambarri, a People of ancient Gaul, mention'd by Julius Cæſar in his Commentaries. They ſeem to have Inhabited the Dioceſe of Maſcon and Charolois.

AMBARVALIA, certain Feſtivals, or rather Hallowings of the Ground and Harveſt, us'd by the Romans before they went to Reaping. At what time they carried a Sow with Pig three times round the Field, and all the while one of the Company with an Oaken Garland upon his Head ſung the Praiſes of Ceres, which done, they poured Wine and Milk upon the Altar, then Sacrific'd the Sow. They were call'd the Arval Brethren, who preſided over this Ceremony. Virgil.

AMBER, in Latin, Ambro, Ambra, and Amber. A River in the Dutchy of Bavaria, riſing about two Leagues from Fuxen in the Confines of Tirone.

AMBERG, Amberga, a City of Germany, and Capital of the Upper Palatinate, is ſeated upon the River Wills, between Ratisbonne and Nuremberg. The Inhabitants Trade in Iron and other Metals, which they dig out of the Neighbouring Mountains. Lewis II. Duke of Bavaria and Elector Palatine, in the Year 1266. purchaſed this City of Conradt Duke of Swabia; afterwards it became ſubject to the Palatine Princes; and the Emperor Robert, who was of that Family, endowed it with many Privileges. It now belongs to the Duke of Bavaria; It is 32 miles Eaſt of Nuremberg, and 28 North of Ratisbonne. Bertius. Cluverius.

AMBERKELETHUS, the 58th King of Scots, about Anno 700. At firſt he diſſembled Temperance, but afterwards turn'd a Profligate, and ſo ſluggiſh, that though invaded by the Picts, he could not be got to take Arms. He was ſlain in the ſecond Year of his Reign, ſome ſay by an Arrow while eaſing himſelf, and others by the Picts whom he purſued into a Wood. Buchan.

AMBIAM, Lat. Ambianum, a Town and Kingdom of Æthiopia near the Lake Zaflant. It lies betwixt the Kingdoms of Bagmid and Quara.

AMBIANCATIVA, a Town and Kingdom of Æthiopia in Abyſſinia, lying on the Nile, betwixt Nubia, and the Kingdom of Bagamedri.

AMBIATINUM, a Town of Germany near to Coblentz, where the Emperor Caligula was born.

AMBIBARRI, a People of the Ancient Gauls mentioned by Cæſar. It is ſuppoſed to be the ſame with the Dioceſe of Auranches in Normandy, and the Town of Ambie is ſtill thought to retain their Name; it is within ſix Leagues of Mount St. Michael.

AMBIGATUS, a King of the Celtæ, in the time of Tarquin the Ancient, who finding his People too numerous for his Dominions, ſent his two Nephews Belloveſus and Segoveſus with a vaſt Number of the Senones, to ſeek new Habitations, the one into Italy, and the other beyond the Hircynian Foreſt. Segoveſus paſſing the Rhine, croſſed through the Great Hyrcinian Foreſt, and quartered and ſettled one Part of his Troops in Bohemia, another upon the Banks of the Danube, and a third Part towards the Ocean in Frieſland and Weſtphalia; from whence afterwards the Franks marched back into Gaul, under Pharamond and Clodion. Belloveſus made a Deſcent upon the Country near the Mediterranean, where he aſſiſted the New Colony of Marſeilles, againſt the Salians; and afterwards, having paſſed the Alps, he fix'd in Lombardy, where his Forces built the Towns of Milan, Bononia, Cremona, Bergamo, and Breſcia, &c. Livy, Dupleix.

AMBIORIX, King of the Eburenes, which is now the Country of Liege, a profeſſed Enemy of the Romans, defeated a Whole Legion commanded by two of Cæſar's Lieutenants. Afterwards, thinking to have had the ſame Succeſs againſt a Legion under the Command of Q. Cicero, Brother to Tully, was overthrown by Cæſar, together with 60000 of his Gauls. Cæſar Comment.

AMBLESIDE, Lat. Amboglanna, a Market Town of Kendal-Ward in the Weſt Parts of Weſtmorland. It's 206 miles from London.

AMBOISE, Lat. Ambacia, a City of Tourraine upon the Loir, with a Royal Caſtle which Charles VIII. cauſed to be built, to Honour the Place of his Birth: And here it was that Lewis XI. inſtituted the Order of St. Michael, in the Year 1469. The City is very Ancient, and remarkable for an Iſland now encloſ'd within the City, where Clovis and Alaric came to an Interview. Moreri gives an account of a Conſpiracy in 1560. carried on by the Proteſtants againſt Francis II. Queen Catherine de Medicis his Mother, and the Princes of Guiſe; the Prince of Conde being the Chief of the Conſpiracy. Which being diſcovered, he owns that they Executed all thoſe concern'd, and amongſt others Caſtelnau Lord of Chaloſſes, who at his Death denied that he was guilty of Treaſon, having no deſign againſt the King or his Family, but only the Princes of Guiſe, who being Strangers, uſurp'd the Publick Adminiſtration of the Government, contrary to the Laws; and before that could be made Treaſon, they muſt be made Kings. And adds, That they found a Paper about him with the Order of the Conſpiracy againſt the Princes of Guiſe, but with a Proteſtation that the King's Name was ſacred to them.

AMBOISE, an Ancient and Illuſtrious Family of France, which has produced ſeveral great Perſonages. Amongſt the reſt, Emeric d'Amboiſe Grand Maſter of Rhodes, Succeſſor to Peter d'Abuſſon, who defeated the Soldan of Egypt by Sea near the Port of Lajazzo in Caramania. George d'Amboiſe, Cardinal, chief Miniſter under Lewis XII. and General of his Army in the reducing of Milan that revolted from him, which he re-conquer'd in 1500. He died about the Year 1510. The firſt of his Family mentioned in Hiſtory was Anno 1100. Charles II. was Grand-Maſter of the Order of St. Michael, as alſo Mareſchal and Admiral of France. Aimery was Great-Maſter of Rhodes, as was alſo Emeric d'Amboiſe, who defeated the Egyptian Fleet of 25 Men of War, which he cauſed to be repreſented in Pieces of Tapiſtry, and ordered that on the Eve of the Nativity of St. John, the Grand-Maſter and Bailiffs ſhould have a Collation under the Tent which covered the Deck of the Ship wherein the Sultan's Nephew was killed. Some others of leſſer Note are omitted. Verdier. Vauprivas. Bibl. Franc.

AMBOULE, a moſt Fertil Valley in the Iſland of Madagaſcar, towards the Eaſtern Part, and to the North of the Province of Carcanoſſi. It yields great ſtore of Oyl of Seſamum, Mines of Iron and Steel, and abounds in excellent Paſturage, which makes the Beef in that Iſland very Fat and Pleaſing to the Taſte. Adjoining to this Town is a Hot Well, good againſt cold Diſtempers of the Limbs; and this Well is about four Fathom from a ſmall River, of which the Gravel is ſo Hot that there is no treading upon it, though the Water be very Cold. The Natives are govern'd by a Voadziri or Black Prince: It contains about 3000 Men, but very wicked; the Place being the Aſylum of all Vagabonds. Flacourt Hiſt. Madagaſcar.

AMBOYNA, an Iſland in the Indian Sea, 24 Leagues in Circuit, and one of the Great Molucca's. The chief City of it bears the ſame Name, with a ſtrong Caſtle call'd Victoria. Towards the Weſtern part of this City is a Bay which is ſix Leagues over, where Ships ride ſecure from all Winds. This Iſland was firſt diſcovered in the Year 1515 by the Portugueſe, under the Command of Antonio Abro; but in the Year 1603. Stephen Verhagen, the Admiral of the Hollanders, took the Caſtle, and expell'd the Portugueſe. In the Year 1620 the Spaniards re-enter'd the Iſland, but after that, the Hollanders got Poſſeſſion of it again, in whoſe hands it ſtill remains, and is one of the beſt Plantations they have in thoſe Indies; which they have now ſecur'd with three ſtrong Forts, of which one is furniſhed with 60 Cannon, and a Garriſon of 600 Men. The Barbarous Cruelties committed here by the Dutch upon the Engliſh in 1618 make this Place memorable. The Natives were formerly Cannibals, and worſhipp'd the Devil under the Name of Nito, or Wicked Spirits, being of Opinion that no Ill can befall them without his Order, and therefore they worſhip him to make him favourable. They alledge, That he appears to them oftentimes in Humane Shape, and delivers his Oracles. To make him ſpeak they aſſemble about 20 or 30. and call upon him by a little Drum, pronouncing ſome Charms, which they believe efficacious. They embraced Mahometiſm, but their Circumciſion differs from the Turks. They are a ſtupid diſtruſtful People, and apply themſelves moſt to Fiſhing. Mandeſlo's Voyage to the Indies.

AMBRACIA, a City of Epirus, where Phyrrhus kept his Court, now call'd Larta; Auguſtus gave it the Name of Nicopolis, after his Naval Victory over Mark Anthony; and Alexander the Great reſtor'd it to its former Liberty, after he had drawn off the Garriſon which the Macedonians kept in it. The Bay of Ambracia, is called Golpho di Larta, or Golpho di Preveſa, and is look'd upon as one of the goodlieſt Bays in all thoſe Seas. Strabo, Pliny, Aul. Gellius.

AMBRESBURY, Lat. Ambroſii Vicus, a Town in Wiltſhire, five miles Weſt of Salisbury, and two North of Stonehenge, upon the River Avon. It derives its Name from Ambroſius, the firſt King of the Britains after the Romans forſook them, Hiſtory giving an Account that he was ſlain and buried here. Camden. In 977. a Council was Celebrated here which made 56 Canons.

AMBRONES, a People about Ambrun, in Swiſs, Provence, &c. who with other Confederates gain'd ſome Advantages over the Romans about 647. but in 652 of Rome, Marius defeated them, ſo that 200000 of them fell in the Field. There is yet the remainders of a Pyramid to be ſeen as a Monument of that Victory. Florus, Cluvier.

AMBROSE, a Town in Piedmont on the Doire near Suſa, not far from the famous Abbey of St. Michael de l'Ecluſe, one of the Chief of the Order of St. Bennet, on which many others both in Italy and France depend. It is called de l'Ecluſe, becauſe the King of the Lombards built a ſtrong Rampart there to guard the Avenues againſt Strangers; it being at the Entry of Piedmont.

AMBROSIA, the Diet of the Gods. An immortal ſort of a Diſh, ſo call'd, becauſe, none but the Divinities fed on't; or becauſe it exempted thoſe that uſed it from Dying. Hom. Lib.4. Iliad. & Oyſſ. Lib.5.

AMBROSIUS, otherwiſe call'd Ambroſius Aurelianus, a King of Britain after the withdrawing of the Romans. He ſucceeded to Vortigern about the Year 480. and was the laſt of the Roman Stock here; but ſome think he came from Britany in France, and was Son to Conſtantine a former Britiſh King: His Parents, according to Gildas and Bede, had loſt their Lives in the Wars againſt the Picts. Vortigern having uſurp'd the Crown, his Jealouſie of Ambroſe made him call in the Saxons to his Aſſiſtance, both againſt the Right of Ambroſe and the Picts. Ambroſe being in Poſſeſſion of his Right, prov'd a good King, and the Saxons did much prevail in his time, eſpecially after a Signal Victory which he obtain'd againſt them, that oblig'd them to a Peace.

AMBROSIUS, St. Ambroſe, into whoſe Mouth it's ſaid a Swarm of Bees were ſeen to go in and out as he lay in his Cradle, was born at Treves or Arles, where his Father was Governor of Gaul. He was ſent Governor to Milan, at which time Anicius Probus told him he muſt rather Govern as a Prelate than a Judge. After he was choſen Biſhop he is ſaid to have celebrated the Sacrament every Day, and preached each Sabbath to the People; He was univerſally concern'd for the Welfare of Chriſtians; and for the ſweetneſs of his Expreſſions he was called Doctor Mellifluus. He was elected Archbiſhop of Milan before he received the Gift of Baptiſm; He ſtoutly oppos'd Juſtina the Empreſs, who favour'd the Arians; as alſo Valentinian, who favour'd Symmachus in his requeſt for ſetting up the Statue of Victory; and ſold the Conſecrated Plate, to Redeem the Chriſtians, and Relieve the Poor under the Tyranny of Maximus, whom he twice viſited in Gallia, at the Emperor's requeſt, to perſuade him to lay down his Arms. And becauſe Theodoſius had been too ſevere in puniſhing a Sedition of the Inhabitants of Theſſalonica with a general Maſſacre, he denied him entrance into his Church, and conſtrain'd him to do Penance, which the Emperor was ſo far from taking ill, that upon his Death-Bed he recommended his Children to his Care. St. Ambroſe died in 397. Aged 64. Paulin. Baron. Euſeb. St. Jerome, S. Baſil, Theodoret, Sigebert. Bellarmin.

AMBROSIUS, Deacon of Alexandria, converted from the Error of Marcion and Valentinus by Origen; he liv'd in the Third Age, and died before Origen. He was a Perſon of Quality, Rich, Eloquent, and Witty, he put Origen upon writing Commentaries on the Scriptures, and maintain'd Fourteen Men to aſſiſt him in Writing. He made a Generous Confeſſion of his Faith before Maximinus the Emperor, and became a Martyr. Euſeb.

AMBROSIUS of Alexandria, a Scholar of the Famous Blind Didymus, Liv'd towards the end of the Fourth Century. He wrote a Poem againſt Apollinarius. Commentaries upon Job, and other Tracts. St. Jerome in Catal. C. 126. Trithem, &c.

AMBRUNE. See Embrune.

AMBUBAJIE, a ſort of Women, who got their living by Lewdneſs, and by playing upon the Flagellet. They liv'd much after the rate of thoſe Strowlers, whom we call Gypſies, and pretended to have Sovereign Remedies for all Diſeaſes. Juvenal. Sat. 3. Hor. Lib.1. Ep.2. Sueton. Vit. Neron. c. 27.

AMEDEUS, the Name of ſeveral Princes of Savoy, Amedeus I. Amedeus II. Amedeus III. of whom nothing conſiderable.

AMEDEUS the Fourth, was created Vicar-General of the Empire by Frederick II.

AMEDEUS the Fifth, Sirnam'd the Great, who is ſaid to have made Two and thirty Sieges. A Prince of that Prudence, that when Henry VII. ſent his Son Charles Prince of Bohemia into Italy, he adviſ'd him to follow no bodies Counſel but that of Amedeus. He made conſiderable additions to the Dutchy of Savoy, and died at Avignon, whither he went to perſuade Pope John II. to undertake a Croiſade againſt the Infidels, in favour of Andronicus Emperor of the Eaſt, who Married his Daughter. Guichenon Hiſt. de Savoye.

AMEDEUS the Sixth, called the Green Count, becauſe at a Tournament he appear'd all in Green Armour, with his Horſe capariſon'd in the ſame Colour. He aſſiſted John of France againſt Edward of England, fought the Prince of Achaia, and inſtituted the Order of the Annunciade. Anno 1336 he went to aſſiſt, and deliver'd the Emperor of Greece. In the Year 1383. going to aſſiſt Lewis of Anjou in the Conqueſt of Naples, he died of the Peſtilence, after he had Reign'd 40 Years, and by his good Quality made himſelf Arbiter of all the Grand Affairs of his time. Guichenon.

AMEDEUS the Seventh, Sirnam'd the Red, enlarged his own Dominions, with the Conqueſt of Nice, aſſiſted Charles VI. of France, and died by a Fall from his Horſe in purſuit of a Wild Boar.

AMEDEUS the Eighth, the Firſt that Erected Savoy into a Dukedom in the Year 1416. and then leaving his Territories to his Children, he retired to the Priory of Ripaille, where he founded the Order of St. Maurice. He was after this elected Anti-Pope to Eugenius IV. by the Name of Felix V. But at the requeſt of Charles VII. of France, reſign'd the Pontificate to Nicholas V. in 1449. However, Pope Nicholas ſent him a Cardinal's Cap, made him Dean of the Sacred College, and Legate of Germany. He was a Generous Prince, great Juſticiary, and eſteem'd the Solomon of his Age; great Princes having made him Arbiter of their Differences. Æneas Sylvius, Guichenon.

AMEDEUS the Ninth, more commended to the World for his Piety, than for any thing Remarkable in his Government. He referred all to the Management of his Princeſs Yoland of France; whereat his Nobles being jealous, put in for a ſhare of the Government, ſeized Montmelian, and the Duke, who being aſſiſted by Lewis XI. of France, overcame them, and died in 1503. Guichenon.

AMEL, a Kingdom of Africa upon the Atlantick Sea, within the Mouth of Niger in the Region of Nigritia.

AMELAND, an Iſland of the German Sea upon the Coaſt of Weſt-Frieſland, ſix Leagues from Leewarden, part Sandy, part very Fertile; under the Juriſdiction of the Hollanders. Here is a great Fiſhing of Sea-Dogs.

AMELESAGORAS, one of the moſt Ancient Greek Hiſtorians, who lived in the 87th Olympiad, 430 Years before the Birth of Chriſt. Clement of Alexandria taxes Gorgias Leontinus, and Eudemus of Naxus, of pillaging from this Author. Voſſius.

AMELIA, an Epiſcopal City of Italy in the Dutchy of Spoleto, which depends immediately on the Holy See; by the Latin Authors called Ameria. It is ſeated on a Hill between the Rivers Tiber and Nera, and is ſaid by ſome Authors to have been built at the time of the Wars with Perſeus; that is to ſay, in the 153d Olympiad, and that Amarina or Ameroe was the Foundreſs of it. But Cato in Pliny affirms, That it was built 964 years before this War, and by conſequence is much older than Rome. Pliny, Lib. 3. Leander Alberti.

AMENOPHIS the Firſt, King of Egypt, ſuppoſed to be the ſame that gave order to the Midwives for killing the Hebrew Children. He ſucceeded Chebron in the Year of the World 2360. and Reigned 20 years. Joſephus contra Appion.

AMENOPHIS the Second, or Memnon, ſubdued Greece, Syria, Phœnicia, and part of Scythia, and carried his Army into Thrace, by ſome called Vexores, by others Seſoſtris. He is ſuppoſed to be the firſt that brought the Iſraelites under Slavery, and to have had a Statue ſo made, that it ſounded when the Rays of the Sun ſhew'd firſt in a Morning. Tornel. Salian.

AMENOPHIS the Third, ſuppoſed to be that Pheron mentioned by Herodotus. See Pheron. Joſephus.

AMERBACHIUS (John) of Baſil, a Learned Printer, well known by the Editions of his Books, by which he did great Service to Civil and Religious Learning. Melchior Adam. He died Anno 1562.

AMERICA, or the Weſt-Indies, one of the four Parts of the Habitable World, firſt diſcovered by Chriſtopher Columbus, a Genoeſe, in 1492. And from Americ Veſpuccio a Florentine, who made ſome additional Diſcoveries in 1497. firſt called America. It is compoſed of two ſpacious Peninſula's, which are cloſ'd together at Panama or Nombre di Dios, by an Iſthmus not above 17 miles broad. The Southern Peninſula is about 1000 Leagues in length, lying out towards the Streights of Magellan: The other extends it ſelf much farther. It is encompaſſed on every ſide by the Sea, and as ſome ſuppoſe ſeparated from all other Continents. It's thought by ſome, that at the Streights of Anian it is but 100 Leagues ſeparated from Tartary. On the Eaſt lie the North and Æthiopick Seas; on the Weſt lies the South or Pacifick Sea, towards China and Japan; to the South, the Streights of Magellan and Maire's Frith; but the Northern Bounds are not yet known; though ſome will have the Frozen Sea to be the Bounds of it on that ſide towards Greenland. This vaſt Continent is divided into the Northern and Southern America. The Northern, which is alſo called America Mexicana, from Mexico, is bounded by the Pacifick Sea, and L'Eſtrecho d'Anian to the Weſt and South; to the Eaſt by the Bay of Mexico and the North Sea; and to the North by thoſe Arctick Frozen Regions yet unknown; containing Canada or New-France, Eſtotiland, Florida, New-England, New-Nederlandt, New-Denmark, New-Spain, or the Kingdom of Mexico, comprehending Jucatan, Nicaragua, Nova-Galicia, Mechoacan, Guatimala, and Honduras, New-Granada, Virginia; the Iſle of California, Cuba, Hiſpaniola, and innumerable others call'd the Antilles.

The Southern America, which is alſo called Peruvian America, has to the North the North Sea, to the Eaſt the Æthiopic Ocean, to the South the Magellanic Sea and the Streights of Magellan and Maire, and to the Weſt the Pacifick Sea. The Regions of Southern America are Braſil, Chili, Guaiana, Terra Magellanica, New-Andaluſia, New-Granada, Paraguay, Parana, Paria, Popajan, the Kingdom of Perou, the Terra Firma, Tierra Del Fuego, Tucuman, Venezuela. The Spaniards have within their Dominions, which are the largeſt Part of America, five Archbiſhopricks, and about 34 Biſhopricks. The Engliſh, Portugueſe, and Dutch, have alſo Plantations there. The Air of America differs as the Countreys are at a diſtance from the Line, but is generally temperate even under the Torrid Zone. The different quality of the Air occaſions particular Diſtempers. The Soil of America is generally very Fertile, even in the colder Climates, and in ſome Places ſo abundantly Rich, that it yields a Hundred for One. They have alſo ſeveral Trees, Plants, and Animals, which are not naturally the Product of any other parts of the World. They make Bread of their Maiz which we call Indian Wheat, and ſqueeze a Liquor out of it beſides, which they call Chica, Acua, and Sora, but the latter is too intoxicating. Their Mangouai, ſo Vincent le Blank calls it, has ſomething more than ordinary in it, for it furniſhes the Natives with Water, Wine, Oyl, Vinegar, Honey, Syrrup, Thread, Needles, and ſeveral other Things; which is the reaſon they highly prize it in New-Spain, where the Indians have always ſome of them growing about their Habitations. Their Trees yield Balſom, Cotton, Dragons Blood, Roſin, Liquid Amber, and Ginger. Not to ſpeak any thing of their Gold and Silver, which Enriches all other parts of the World. They who deſire more of America, may read John de Laet, Antonio Herrera, and ſeveral others. The Gold is found here in three ſorts; in little pieces without any Mixture; in Duſt, and that generally in Rivers; and in Stone in the Mines. Silver is more abundant, eſpecially in New-Spain and Peru, where there is alſo abundance of Quick-Silver and Pearl. The Spaniards have drawn vaſt Sums from thence from the Mines of Potoſi. And it's ſaid it was no extraordinary thing to ſee Temples cover'd with Silver, and Houſes with Plates of Gold. The Indians brag, That they have ſtill abundance of Treaſures hid, and the Spaniards ſay, that they raiſe 12 Millions thence yearly, beſides what pays their Officers. The Mountains called the Andes, are reckon'd the greateſt of the World. Canada, Plata, and the River of the Amazones, are their greateſt Rivers. The Americans are of four ſorts. The Europæans who have ſettled there. Secondly, Thoſe who are born of Europæans and Indians, call'd Metis and Criols. A Third Part of them conſiſt of African Negroes. And the Fourth are Savages. Theſe laſt live upon Hunting and Maiz; They have neither Laws nor Government, but ſtrowl about in the Fields. The Incurſions of the Spaniards have lately obliged them to ſome Union, for their better ſecurity; ſo that they make a ſhift to appear in Bodies againſt an Attack, for the Defence of their Lives and Fortunes. The People were generally Savage, Cowardly, and Wicked, many of them Cannibals, the Civileſt of them were thoſe of Incai. The Patagons are from 10 to 11 foot high, and extraordinary Drinkers. Their Clothing is Skins, and their Arms Bows and Arrows. For their Religion, ſome of 'em Worſhip the Sun, and others had no Religion, as thoſe of Braſil. Some of them ſacrificed Men, pulling out their Hearts alive. And ſome have obſerved, that there are among them who lead a Harmleſs Life, and have good Impreſſions of a Deity. The firſt Diſcoverers found the Natives Idolaters, Savage, and Ignorant, yet with a Mixture of Civility among ſome, more than others. Roſſe ſays of them, that ſome, eſpecially in Canada, worſhipped the Devil, who when Angry flings

Duſt in their Eyes; that they Dance round Fires to him, and ſing his Praiſes; that they bemoan the Dead, and bring preſents to the Grave; that they believe the Souls aſcend into the Stars, and go down with them under the Horizon to Paradiſes of Pleaſure. They believe alſo that God ſtuck a multitude of Arrows at the Beginning into the Ground, whence came Men and Women. They ſay, that God having once drunk much Tobacco, gave the Pipe to their Governour, with a Command that he ſhould keep it carefully, and he ſhould want nothing; but loſing the ſame, he fell into Want and Miſery. The Jeſuits in 1637. and 1638. brought over many of them to the Church of Rome. Moreri has a Diſſertation, whether America was known to the Ancients, and alledges Plato, Origen, Porphyrius, &c. for the Affirmative: He introduces the Egyptian Prieſts, giving an account of an Iſland called Atlantides, beyond the Columns of Hercules, greater than Aſia and Africa, which was drown'd by an Earthquake and a Rain, that endured a Night and a Day. He alledges alſo that the Carthaginians knew it, but endeavoured to conceal it from the Europeans, and made no Benefit of it themſelves, becauſe of their unskilfulneſs in Navigation.

AMERICUS Veſpuccius, a Florentine, under the Auſpices of Emanuel King of Portugal, was the firſt who after Columbus diſcovered America, and wrote the Hiſtory of his Four Years Voyages, which he Dedicated to Renatus of Anjou, King of Sicily. Voſſ. Hiſt. Lat.

AMERSFORD, a City of Belgium in the Province of Utrecht upon the River Ema, well fortified. It was taken by the Spaniards in 1624. but afterwards bravely recovered by the Hollanders, in whoſe hands it ſtill remains. Hoffman.

AMESTRATUS, a Town in Sicily belonging to the Carthaginians, which coſt the Romans a terrible Siege of 7 Months in vain; but ſitting down before it another time, they carry'd it, levell'd it with the Earth, and ſold all the Inhabitants for Slaves. Diodor.

AMESTRIS, the Wife of Xerxes King of Perſia, who jealous of the King for being in Love with Artaynta, her Son's Wife, took her opportunity, when Xerxes made his Royal Feaſt call'd Tycta, which ſignifies Perfect, or Accompliſh'd, to beg her Enemy of the King; and when ſhe had her in her Power, cut off her Breaſts, her Ears, her Tongue, her Noſe, and her Lips, and threw 'em to the Dogs. She is alſo ſaid to have buried alive ſeveral of the Perſian Nobility, in performance of a Vow ſhe made to the Gods for her long Life. Herodot.

AMHARA, now the moſt Noble Kingdom of all Æthiopia, in the Centre of Abyſſinia, having to the North the Kingdom of Bagemder, to the Weſt the River Nile, and beyond that the Kingdom of Gojam, upon the Eaſt Angota, and contains 56 large Provinces.

AMIANUS, Biſhop of Alexandria, ſaid to be St. Mark's Diſciple, and to have pull'd out one of his own Eyes, becauſe of his wanton Glances upon ſome Women. Sabell. in Exempl.

AMIDA, an Idol of the Japannois, being a Statue with the Body of a Man, and the Head of a Dog, mounted upon a Horſe with 7 Heads. He is alſo repreſented as a young Man, with a Crown of Gold on his Head environ'd with Rays. Ambaſſad. des Holland.

AMIDA, an ancient City of Meſopotamia, ſeated upon a high Hill by the River Tigri, taken in the year 359. by Sapor II. King of Perſia, notwithſtanding the ſtout Reſiſtance of the Romans, who valiantly defended it againſt his Army, conſiſting of 100000 Men. Ammianus Marcellinus was then in the Town, and had much ado to eſcape. The Emperor Conſtantine had ſome time before enlarged and beautified it, and call'd it Conſtantia. Now it is in the poſſeſſion of the Turks, who call it Caramit. Davity.

AMIDA, or Amides, a King of Tunis, who ſeiz'd upon this Kingdom in the year 1545. during the abſence of his Father Muliaſſes, or Haſſen. Afterwards he made War upon his Father and his Brothers, and was a cruel Tyrant over the People. But at laſt Selim II. the Ottoman Emperor defeated him in the Field, and depriv'd him and all that Family of that Kingdom: So that this inhuman Prince was forced to live the reſt of his days in Miſery. Peter Dan, Hiſtoir de Barbarig e des Corſairs.

AMIENS, in Latin Ambianum, or Samarobriva Ambianorum, is a delightful City of France, the Capital of Picardy, and a Biſhop's See, with large Streets, fair Houſes, and ſeveral Piazza's, of which that of Des Fleurs, and the great Market-place, are the Chief. The Ramparts make a pleaſing Walk, by reaſon of the Rows of Trees which are planted upon 'em. The River of Somme runs through it with three Branches under three Bridges; and after it has beſtow'd its Waters in divers places for the uſe of ſeveral Manufactures, reunites again at the other end of the Town, where ſtands St. Michael's Bridge. But the faireſt Ornament of Amiens is the Cathedral Church of Noſtre-Dame, one of the moſt beautiful, largeſt, and beſt adorn'd in the Kingdom. Cæſar made this Town a Magazine for his Army, and the place of Meeting for the Gauls. In 905. it was totally conſum'd by Fire, but ſoon repair'd. In the year 1597. the Spaniards took it by a Stratagem; but Henry IV. moſt glorioully recover'd it, and built a Citadel to defend it, which is look'd upon as one of the beſt and moſt regular Fortreſſes in Europe. It gives its Name to a ſmall Territory call'd l'Amiennois, wherein ſtand the Cities of Corbie, Dourlens, Pecquigni, Comti, and Poix. Cæſar ſpeaks advantageouſly of this Town, and he and other Roman Emperors, as alſo ſeveral French Kings, took great delight in it. The Romans found ſtout reſiſtance from the Inhabitants, who fought and defeated thoſe of Rheims, becauſe they ſubmitted ſo quickly to Cæſar. Du Cheſne.

AMILCAR, Captain of the Carthaginians, about the year of Rome 274. was ſent into Sicily at the ſollicitation of Xerxes, but utterly defeated by Geto King of Syracuſe, Anno Rom. 274. Diodor.

AMILCAR, the Son of Giſco, firſt oppos'd Agathocles, then made Peace with him, and caus'd the Syracuſians to receive him with ſubmiſſion; for which they made heavy Complaints againſt him at Carthage: Whereupon the Senate, who durſt not openly provoke him, ſent their Judgment ſeal'd up in a Box; but Amilcar died before the opening of it. Diod. Sicul.

AMILCAR, Sirnamed Barchas, Commanded the Carthaginian Fleet, and infeſted the Coaſts of Italy for five years together; upon which, the Romans, reſolv'd to remove him, ſet forth all their Naval Strength at once. Both Fleets met near Trapany, and the Iſland of Ægates, in the 512th year of Rome; and the Carthaginians being utterly defeated, ſued for Peace. In the 517th year of Rome he began the Second Punic War, to ſupport which, he Arm'd all Africa, having firſt ſubdued 100000 Rebels, and ſome revolted Towns, enriching Africk with their Spoils: But as he was preparing for Italy, he was ſlain in Fight, in the 526th year of Rome, leaving the Conduct of his Army to his Son-in-Law Aſdrubal. Polybius, Titus Livius.

AMILCAR, Captain of the Carthaginians, fell into Umbria, in the 550th year of Rome, and defeated Ser. Geminus, and Claudius Nero, the Conſuls; but was afterwards overthrown himſelf by L. Furius the Prætor, with the Slaughter of 30000 of his Men. Tit. Livius.

AMILCAR, Sirnamed Rhodanus, a Carthaginian Captain of great Eloquence and Induſtry, who by the Conſent of the Athenians, inſinuating himſelf into the Councils of Alexander the Great, gave the Athenians Information of all Alexander's Deſigns. Juſtin.

AMILO, a River in the Foreſt of Mauritania, mentioned by Pliny, whither he ſays that the Elephants, upon the firſt appearance of the New Moon, went in Herds to purifie themſelves in the Stream; and after they had worſhipp'd that Luminary, returned with their young ones from whence they came. Plin. l. 8. c. 1.

AMIOT (James) born Anno 1514. a Boy that ran from his Parents for fear of being whipp'd, and begg'd about the Streets of Paris, but at length came to be Biſhop of Auxerre, and Grand Almoner of France, tranſlated Plutarch and Diodorus Siculus. He had not run far till he fell ſick in a Field, when a Gentleman happening to come by, pitied him, and taking him up behind him on Horſeback, brought him to the Hoſpital of Orleans; where being recovered, they gave him Six-pence, and ſome Bread, and ſent him away. (In regard of which Charity, he afterwards left the ſaid Hoſpital a Legacy of 1200 Crowns.) Coming afterwards to Paris, he was forced to beg, and asking Alms of a certain Lady, ſhe being pleaſed with the Boy's Mien, took him to carry her Children's Books to the College; which Opportunity he improved ſo well, that he profited mightily, and became ſo Learned in the Greek, that he taught it publickly afterward in the Univerſity of Bourges; but being ſuſpected of Proteſtantiſm, he left Paris, and was entertain'd by a Gentleman at Berri to Teach his Children. The King happening to lodge in that Houſe, Amiot was perſuaded to write ſome Verſes in Honour of the King, which being preſented by the Children, the King, as ſoon as he ſaw it was Greek, laid it down. The Chancellor hearing it was Greek, took it up, and being charm'd with it, ſaid, That if the Author had as much Vertue as Wit, he deſerved to be Preceptor to the King's Children, which was the firſt ſtep to his Preferment. He was afterwards made an Abbot, and ſent to the Council of Trent, where he made a Bold and Judicious Proteſtation. At his return he was made Preceptor to the King's Children, viz. Francis II. Charles IX. and Henry III. In 1560. he was made Great Almoner of France, which ſo enraged the Queen-Mother, that ſending for him to her Cloſet, ſhe told him, That if he did not demit the Charge, he ſhould not live 24 Hours; he excus'd himſelf, as having refus'd it, and then abſconded. The King miſſing him at his Table, ſent to ſeek him, and was ſo enraged at his not being found, that the Queen-Mother was forced to publiſh that ſhe would not moleſt him. The King had ſo much Reſpect for him, that one night when they were talking at Table of Charles V. having made his Preceptor Pope, he ſaid, That he would do as much for his, if he had an opportunity. At laſt, Amiot having ſeen the Exit of all his Three Scholars, died Anno 1593. Thuan.

AMIPSIAS, Amepſias, or Amiphias, a Comedian of Athens, railly'd by Ariſtophanes for the Heavineſs of his Expreſſion. Diogenes Laertius, in the Life of Sophocles, relates ſome Satyrical Verſes which he made upon this Philoſopher.

AMIRAS, a Prince of the Saracens, under whoſe Conduct they vanquiſh'd Hormiſda King of the Perſians, took Jeruſalem, and made themſelves Maſters of Egypt, Antiochia, Damaſcus, and all Syria, about 632.

AMIR-EL-MOSELEMIN, that is to ſay, Emperor of the Children of Salvation; the Sirname of certain Caliphs of Perſia, of the Sect of Hali. Marmol de l'Afrique.

AMITERNUM, Amiterno, an ancient City of Italy, of which the Ruines are ſtill to be ſeen in Abruzzo; remarkable for being the Place of Saluſt's Nativity. It was formerly the Seat of a Biſhop; ſince tranſlated to Aquila, the Capital City of the farthermoſt Abruzzo. However, there remains a little Village ſtill, which was afterwards built upon the Ruines of it, by the Name of St. Victorino. About the year of Rome 458. Spurius Carvilius the Conſul took it, after he had ſlain 2800 Men, and taken 4270 Priſoners. It was built upon the ſlope of a Hill, where there is nothing now left but a piece of a Theatre, ſome Foot-ſteps of a Temple, and a great Tower. Leander Alberti, Dion. Halicarnaſſ.

AMIXOCORES, a People of America in Braſil, near the Government of the River Janeiro.

AM-KAS, the Grand Salle in the Great Mogul's Palace, where he receives his Subjects, and appears alſo in Collar-days, with extraordinary Splendor: His Chair of State ſtands upon ſix Feet of maſſie Gold, ſet round with Rubies, Emeraulds, and Diamonds; 'tis valued at about 60 millions of Livres. Chagehan, Father of Aurengzebe, made this Magnificent Throne to ſhew his Riches in Jewels, which he had gotten from the Spoils of the old Patans and Raia's, conquer'd by him, and by the Preſents which the Ombra's are obliged to make the Great Mogul every year upon certain Holy-days. This Throne, as to the Curioſity of the Workmanſhip, does not come up to the Richneſs of the Materials: The greateſt inſtance of Art in it are two Peacocks, cover'd with Pearls and other Jewels, wrought into this Figure by a French-man, who was an admirable Workman, who having deceived a great many European Princes, by putting Doublets upon 'em, handſomly counterfeited, fled to this Court, and there made his Fortune. The Emperor, when on his Throne, appears in a white Satin Veſt, curiouſly embroider'd with Gold and Silk: His Turban is Cloth of Gold, ornamented with a Plume of Heron's Feather's, ſet round at the bottom with Diamonds of an extraordinary Bigneſs and Luſtre, with a vaſt Oriental Tophaz, which ſhines and blazes, like a little Sun, and is beyond all compariſon. He wears likewiſe a Necklace or Collar of large Pearls, which reaches almoſt down to his middle. At the Foot of his Throne all the Ombra's are rang'd in Order, and richly Habited: They ſtand upon an Alcove, with a brocaded Canopy, with deep Gold Fringes over it: The Alcove is rail'd in with Silver Balaſters. All the Pillars of the Hall are hung with Brocade, upon a Gold Ground: The Roof is adorn'd with a ſort of Canopy-Stuff with Satin Flowers: The Floor is covered with exceeding rich Carpets, of a very extraordinary largeneſs. In a Court near this Hall, there's a Tent call'd Aſpek, of the ſame bigneſs with the Am-kas, ſurrounded with great Balaſters, covered with Plates of Silver: 'Tis likewiſe ſupported by Pillars fac'd with Silver Plates: The outſide of this Tent is red, and the inſide is lin'd with painted Cloth, the Colours of which are ſo freſh, and the Flowers ſo natural, that they appear like a Garden hung i'th' Air. Bernier Hiſt. du Grand Mogul, Tome 3.

AMPHIARAUS, the Son of Oecleus and Hypermneſtra, a Grecian Soothſayer, who foreſeeing that if he went to the Theban War with Adraſtus, he ſhould be kill'd, hid himſelf; but his Wife Euriphyle betray'd him to Adraſtus for the ſake of a Gold Necklace. The firſt day that he came before Thebes, as the General was Feaſting the Principal Officers of his Army, an Eagle ſnatch'd an Arrow out of his Hand, which having dropp'd, turn'd into a Lawrel-Tree; and the next day the Earth opened in the ſame place, and ſwallow'd him up in his Chariot: However, he was Honour'd as a Deity, and had a Temple Conſecrated to him by the Name of Harma, or the Chariot. Pauſan.

AMPHIBALUS, Sirnamed Brito: Hector Boetius and Pitſeus ſay he was a very Learned, Pious, and Zealous Man, and Preached in England and Scotland, Converting the Heathens, and Confirming the Chriſtians, Writing againſt the Superſtition of the one, and for the Comfort of the other. He is ſaid to have been Biſhop of Angleſey, and to have ſuffered Martyrdom, An. 291. But this Story is reputed Fabulous by the Learned Archbiſhop Uſher.

AMPHICLEA, a Town in Greece, where was formerly a Temple Dedicated to Bacchus, whoſe Prieſts pretended to foretell future Events to all that made enquiry. Pauſanias.

AMPHICTYON, the Son of Deucalion and Pyrrha, who invented the Interpretation of Dreams and Portents, the 3d King of the Athenians after Cranaus, and Reigned 10 years. Euſeb. Juſtin.

AMPHICTYON, the Son of Hellen, who inſtituted that Famous General Council of the Greeks call'd Amphyctionium, the Members of which were choſen out of ſeven Principal Cities, but afterwards out of thirteen: Philip of Macedon was admitted among 'em, and allow'd to have Two Voices, as the Phocenſes had. The Preſidents of theſe Councils were call'd Amphictyones. Euſeb. Juſtin. The Amphictyones are ſaid by Diodorus Siculus to be a Tribe of Attica, and of that People that were call'd the Thury. But that which has drawn the Eyes of all Men on this Word, was, the giving this Name to the Twelve Judges of that Great Court, which aſſembled from all parts of Greece to the Thermopylæ. This Court is mentioned by Strabo, Pauſanias, Halicarnaſſæus, and many other of the Greek Writers. Pauſanias is of Opinion, that Amphictyon, the Son of Deucalion King of Theſſaly, was the firſt Inventer of this Council: Strabo, on the other ſide, refers it to Acriſius, the 14th King of the Argives. Herodotus, Lib. 8. agrees with Pauſanias, and adds, that the Seat of the Amphictyons was the Temple of Ceres upon the River Aſopus; and he deſcribes both that Temple and the Seats of that Court which was held there. The greateſt part of the People of Greece were ſubject to the Juriſdiction of this Court, which are enumerated by Strabo. Its firſt Seat was at Thermopylæ, and after this, it was removed to the Temple aforeſaid, and then to Delphos in Phocis. This Council was the Supream Tribunal of all Greece, and determined all the great and difficult Caſes, or Controverſies, that aroſe between private Men, or the States and Cities ſubject to its Juriſdiction. Their Sentences did often put theſe People into great Commotions, and were put in execution by Force and Arms. They met twice in the year, in Spring and Autumn. Every Nation in this Society ſent one, two, or three Deputies to this Court, according to their Power and Greatneſs; and Eſchines ſaith in his life-time there were twelve. Philip, the Father of Alexander the Great, in the end of the Sacred War, deprived the Phoceans of this Court, and removed it into Macedonia; but the Phoceans 60 years after recovered it back again, as a Reward for their good Services againſt the Gauls. Auguſtus Cæſar, and Antoninus Pius, renewed this Court; and Pauſanias, who lived under the latter of theſe, ſaith, that in his time it was in great Eſteem, and had then thirty Judges. It fell, and came to nothing, in all probability, about the time of Conſtantine the Great, when the Roman Power declined.

AMPHIDAMUS, of the Family of the Inachides: The Son of Alceus, and Brother of Lycurgus, as Pauſanias will have it; but from what Apollodorus ſays of him, we may rather conclude him the Son of Lycurgus, and the Grandſon of Alceus. Pauſan. in Arcad. l. 8. Apoll. l. 3.

AMPHIDANIAS, the Son of Buſiris, whom Hercules ſlew, together with his Father, as they were offering their Strangers in Sacrifice. Hoffman.

AMPHIDROMIA, Feaſts of the ancient Pagans, ſolemniz'd on the 5th day after the Birth of the Infant, at what time the Goſſips that were at the Labour, ran round about the Chamber and the Houſhold-Gods; then waſh'd their Hands, and deliver'd the Child to the Nurſe: Which done, the Parents and Friends gave ſmall Preſents to the Women, and made 'em a Feaſt. Athenæus.

AMPHILITUS, an Acarnanian Soothſayer, who to encourage Piſiſtratus to fall upon the Athenians, counterfeited Divine Pomp, and pronounced two Verſes in Greek, of which the Sence was, in Latin, thus:

Eſt nummus projectus, item ſunt retia tenta,
Nocte meant Thynni claro ſub ſidere Lunæ.

Upon which Piſiſtratus falling on the Athenians after their Supper-time, found ſome at play, others aſleep; and by that means gaining an eaſie Victory, became Maſter of Athens a third time. Herodot.

AMPHILOCHIUS, Biſhop of Iconium in the time of Theodoſius the Great, one of the moſt eminent Prelates of that Age, and one of the greateſt Defenders of the Orthodox Faith, againſt the Attacks of the Arian Hereticks. Amphilochius wrote ſeveral Treatiſes, cited not only by Theodoret, St. Jerom, Leontius Byzantinus, St. Cyril of Alexandria, and Joannes Damaſcenus, but likewiſe by the General Council of Epheſus, and the Second Council of Nice. All Learned Men agree, that the Life of St. Baſil, ſaid to be writ by Amphilochius, is none of his. Baron.

AMPHILOCHUS, a Demi-God. Plutarch reports, that he gave an Oracular Anſwer to one Theſpeſius of Solos. This Theſpeſius had been a Libertine, and enquired of the Gods whether ever there was any likelihood of his Reformation? Amphilochus told him, Yes, after he was dead: Which happen'd accordingly; for being kill'd, he came to life again three days after, and became a new Man. Plutarch de ſera Numinis Vindicta, cap. 42. Item de Defectu Orac.

AMPHIMADON, the Son of Melanthius, one of Penelope's Humble Servants, who was afterwards kill'd by Telemachus, Ulyſſes's Son. Odyſſ. 22, & 24.

AMPHINOME, Jaſon's Mother, who kill'd her ſelf with a Dagger out of impatience for the abſence of her Son. Natalis Comes, l. 6. c. 7.

AMPHINOMUS and Anapus, two Sicilian Brothers, who when the Flames of Ætna had ſet the City of Catana, and all the adjoining places, on fire, ventured through the Flames, and brought off their Parents upon their Shoulders. Val. Max.

AMPHION, the Son of Jupiter and Antiope, play'd ſo rarely on the Harp, that the Poets, to ſhew the Force of Sounds, feign'd that his Muſick made the Rocks to follow him, and that the Stones that form'd the Walls of Thebes, danc'd into that Order of themſelves, charm'd, as it were, by the Melody of his Lyre. By which it is to be underſtood, that being an Eloquent Man, he perſuaded the People to build Walls for their Defence. Apollonius, Natalis Comes.

AMPHIPOLI, Archontes, or Magiſtrates, ſet up by Timoleon at Syracuſe, after the Tyrannical Dionyſius the Younger had been chas'd from thence. This Alteration happen'd in the 411th year of Rome; and the Authority of theſe Magiſtrates continued to the time of Diodorus Siculus, which was about 300 years after. Diod. Sic. Bibl. l. 16.

AMPHIPOLIS, a Town of Thracia on the ſide of Macedonia, being an Archbiſhoprick; the Greeks call'd it Chriſtopoli ſince, and its modern Name is Emboli: It's ſituated on the River Strymon, which waſhes it on every ſide. It was formerly call'd Neuf-chemins, or Nine-ways. Ariſtagoras the Mileſian, flying from Darius, would have ſettled here, but was hindred by the Edonians, in the 69th Olympiad. The Athenians ſent 10000 Inhabitants thither afterward, who were all cut in pices at Drabeſque by the Thracians. This did not hinder Aginon, the Son of Nicias, to ſettle a new Colony there, after having chaſed away the Edonians. Thoſe People eſpouſing the Quarrel of the Lacedamonians againſt the Athenians, were the cauſe of the War being renewed in the time of Philip of Macedon. Perdiccas took Amphipolis in the 89th Olympiad. Thucydides, Juſtin.

AMPHISCII, the Name of thoſe People that liv'd between the Tropicks, becauſe, according to the Sun's coming up to the Two Solſtices, the Shadow changes, and falls ſometimes on the right hand, and ſometimes on the left. The Heteroſcii live within the Temperate Zones, and have their Shadow always pointing towards the ſame Pole. The Periſcii live under the Arctick Circle, and have their Shadows go round 'em.

AMPHISTIDES, a Man that had a great deſire to learn Arithmetick, but could never count above 5; from whence all Dunces in Arithmetick were called Amphiſtides's. Suidas.

AMPHISTRATUS and Recas, Coach-men to Caſtor and Pollux, who had the Government of ſeveral Towns beſtow'd upon 'em by Jaſon. Juſtin, l. 42. c. 3.

AMPHITHEATRE, a large Structure built either round or oval, with Rows of Benches, or Seats, for the convenience of ſeeing Sights, which were ſhewn in the Area of it: The Ground was covered with Sand, that the Gladiators and Beaſts might fight there with the better convenience. The ancienteſt Amphitheatres now remaining, are, that of Verona in Italy, and the other of Niſmes in Languedoc. Lipſ. de Amphith. c. 2, & 3.

AMPHITRIO, a Theban Prince, married Alcmena, ſlew his Father-in-Law by an Accident, and vanquiſh'd the Teleboans by the aſſiſtance of Cometho the Daughter of Pterelaus, who being paſſionately in Love with Amphitrio, cut off her Father's Golden Lock, upon which the Fate of his Kingdom depended. See more in Alcmena. Apollodore.

AMPHITRITE, A Sea-Goddeſs, Daughter of Nereus and Doris, and Wife of Neptune: 'Tis ſaid ſhe had an Averſion for Marriage at firſt, but was perſuaded to let Neptune gain her by means of a Dolphin, which he ſent in queſt of her. The Name of Amphitrite is ſuppoſed to have been given her, becauſe ſhe encompaſſes the Earth, and grates upon the Extremities of it. Heſiod, Heſychius.

AMPHORITES, a certain Game, or Trial of Skill for the Exerciſe of Wit, ſet up in the Iſland Ægina, wherein an Ox was the Reward for ſuch Dithyrambic Poets as compos'd the nobleſt Panegyricks upon Bacchus.

AMPHOTERUS, Brother to Craterus, one of Alexander's Principal Officers. He was ſent, with 60 Ships under his Command, to ſubdue the Iſle of Coos; and afterward to Peloponneſus, to quiet ſome Diſturbances there, which the Lacedæmonians had raiſed: And in all his Employments, he behaved himſelf with great Courage and Conduct.

AMPHRYSUS, a River of Theſſaly, noted in fabulous Hiſtory, for that by the Banks of it Apollo is ſaid to have fed Admetus's Sheep. It runs by the foot of the Mountain Othrys, and empties it ſelf into the River Sperchini.

AMPHRYSUS, a River of Phrygia in Aſia the Leſs, the Waters of which made Women barren, if they drank them. There is alſo a Town in Phocis of the ſame Name. Plin. l. 32. c. 2. Steph.

AMPTHILL, or, as ſome ſpell it, Anthill, a Market-Town of Redbornſtoke Hundred in Bedfordſhire; it lies about 5 miles South of Bedford, and is an Honour belonging to the Crown, graced with a fine Seat and Parks in its Neighbourhood, belonging to the Earl of Ailesbury. It's 36 miles from London; the Market on Thurſday.

St. AMPULLA, an Order of Knighthood, inſtituted, as is ſuppoſed, by Clovis I. King of France, in memory of the Viol of Balſam which the Angel is feign'd to have brought to St. Remigius at the Baptizing the ſame Clovis, who was anointed with it alſo at his Coronation. The Knights of the Order bear, in a black Ribband, a Gold Croſs Anglée, enamel'd with Silver, and charged with a Dove holding a Viol in her Beak, received by a moving Carnation Hand. The Reverſe of the Medal is ſtamp'd with St. Remigius. Theſe Knights are Four Barons Feudaries to the Church of Rheims, who at the Coronation of the King of France, bear up the Canopy under which the Ampulla is carried in Proceſſion. Aimoin. Hincmar. Gaguin. Favin.

AMPURDAN, a ſmall Province in Catalonia, the Capital City of which is Emporias, formerly famous under the Name of Emporiæ: It conſiſted of three Cities, one of which the Phocian Greeks had; another which the Native Spaniards kept; and a third that was built by a Colony that Cæſar left there, after he had vanquiſh'd Pompey's Sons; which afterwards embodied into one. Near this City it was that Cato won a ſignal Battel from the Spaniards, with the Slaughter of 40000 of their Men, about the year of Rome 558. In proceſs of time it became an Epiſcopal See; but being often ruined by the Moors, the See and Trade of the City are removed to Gironne. Strabo, Ptolem. Steph.

AMRAM, the Son of Koath, the Son of Levi, the Father of Aaron, Moſes, and Miriam. Exod. 6.

AMRAPHEL, King of Shinar, one of the Four that made War againſt five other Princes, and was vanquiſh'd by Abraham, who took part with the Inhabitants of Sodom for the ſake of his Nephew Lot. Torniel.

AMSTEL, a ſmall River of Holland that runs by Amſterdam, and diſcharges it ſelf into the Arm of the Sea call'd the Y.

AMSTERDAM, Lat. Amſtelodamum, or Amſterodamum, vulgarly call'd Amſterdam, was at firſt a ſmall Caſtle by the Name of Amſtel, which deriv'd its Name from the River upon which it was built, and gave Title to the Lords that built it. Gisbert, or Giſelbert, drew ſome Inhabitants thither; ſo that it became at firſt an abode for Fiſhermen that liv'd in Thatch'd Cottages. But their Fiſhery procur'd a Trade among their Neighbours, which enrich'd 'em by degrees; and at length the Convenience of the Situation invited a great Number of Inhabitants; ſo that the Caſtle of Amſtel became firſt a Village, afterwards a conſiderable Town. Florentius IV. granted them certain Immunities in the year 1235. After this, another Gisbert built 'em Bridges and Towers. The Inhabitants alſo built new Houſes in the Neighbourhood, and then the Borough began to aſſume the Name of Amſterdam. Soon after, this little City was united to the County of Holland; and William IV. gave it new Privileges, which Albert of Bavaria confirm'd; and the Situation, the Trade and Induſtry of the Inhabitants rendred it ſtill more and more Conſiderable, though as yet it had no Walls, but only a Paliſado, till the year 1482. After a long Siege, it ſurrendred to William of Naſſaw. However, it is built upon ſo low a Foundation, that it would be in continual danger, but for the Damms and Sluces that over-top the utmoſt Heighth, to which the Swelling of the Wave are obſerved to aſcend. The little River of Amſtel, which now runs through the City, forms the great Canal of Dammerach: This Canal hath ſeveral Bridges, among which, that at the mouth of the River, call'd the New Bridge, is the faireſt, by reaſon of the Sluces, and that from thence one may ſee the famous Port where the variety of Ships and Merchandiſe, and the infinite Number of Seamen, make a Show worthy to be admired. There is alſo the Emperor's Canal, that of the Lords, and that of the Cingel, the Keys of which are pav'd with ſquare Stone, and beautified with Rows of Tile-Trees and Elms. The Streets of Amſterdam are very fair, large, and extreamly neat; the Merchants Shops full of precious and rare Commodities, the moſt rich and delicate that either China or the Indies afford. The Piazza's, Churches, and Publick Buildings, are very Magnificent; among the reſt the Town-Houſe is to be admired; the Entrance is remarkable for its Architecture, and ſeven leſſer Doors, wide enough for three Perſons to go a-breaſt: The Frontiſpiece is embelliſh'd with three Statues of Braſs, repreſenting Juſtice, Power, and Abundance; and a Marble Sculpture in Baſſo Relievo of a Woman ſupporting the Arms of the City, with a Neptune, Lions, Unicorns, and ſome of the ancient Heroes. The Exchange and Eaſt-India Houſe are Structures alſo worthy of the Obſervation of Travellers, not to omit their Magazines for all ſorts of Merchandices brought from all parts of the World, and their vaſt Store-houſes for their Shipping. Their Chief Churches, among ſeveral others, are that of St. Nicholas, and that of St. Catharine, where the Pulpit is ſaid to have coſt 60000 Livres. Their Houſe of Correction has this in particular, That lazy Vagabonds are put into a wide Vat with a Pump, into which the Water continually flows; ſo that the Offenders muſt either continually pump, or drown. There are alſo Houſes for Orphans, Hoſpitals for the Sick, and Bedlams for Madmen; and indeed all things are here to be ſeen order'd with extraordinary Charity and Prudence; a City from ſmall beginning become one of the moſt celebrated Emporiums of the Univerſe, Long. 24. 00. Lat. 52. 29. The Government of Amſterdam, for what concerns Matter of State, is by a Senate of 36 Men, who continue in that Charge during life: They were formerly choſen by the Burghers; but for theſe 150 years they have quitted that Privilege to the Senate, who chooſe ſuch as they think fit to fill up the Vacancies; and their Example is follow'd by all the Towns of Holland, but with ſome difference of Number. This Senate chooſes the Magiſtrates of the Town, as Burgomaſters and Eſchevins. There are Four Burgomaſters at Amſterdam, Three being choſen every year, and One continuing two years: The Three laſt are called the Burgomaſters in Charge, and preſide one after another after the firſt Quarter, that the old Burgomaſter preſides to inſtruct 'em in their Office. The Burgomaſter is choſen in Senate, by the Plurality of Voices of thoſe who have been formerly Burgomaſters, or Eſchevins. Thoſe Magiſtrates repreſent the Honour of the City on all Occaſions, and diſpoſe of other Offices which are ſubject to theirs. They have the only Power to meddle with the Publick Treaſury, and to judge what is good and neceſſary for the Safety of the City. They keep the Key of the Bank of Amſterdam. They are not obliged to expend any more than others upon what occaſion ſoever; and are re-imburſed out of the Common Stock for their Charges in Publick Ceremonies, as Entertaining Foreign Ambaſſadors, &c. There are Nine Eſchevins at Amſterdam, of which Seven are choſen yearly, there always remaining Two of the fore-going year. The Senate names Fourteen, of whom the Burgo-Maſters chooſe Seven when there is no Stadtholder, but at preſent William, King of England, being Stadtholder, as Prince of Orange, and General to the States, makes the Choice. They are abſolute Judges in all Cauſes Civil and Criminal, but on paying a Fine there may be an Appeal from them to the Courts in each Province: There are ſeveral other Officers under thoſe Sovereign Magiſtrates, of which the Principal are the Treaſurers. The Scout is Commiſſioner of the Policy, and the Penſioner is a Perſon Learned in their Laws and Cuſtoms, of which he inſtructs the Senate and Burgomaſters on occaſion, and makes all the publick Harangues. The Bank of this City paſſes for the greateſt Treaſury in the World: It is kept in a great Vault under the Stadthouſe, where all imaginable Precautions are taken for its Security, it being never open'd, but in the preſence of one of the Burgomaſters; ſo that the Riches of the Treaſury is not known. It is like the General Repoſitory, whither all the World carry their Money, looking upon it to be in as great ſurety as in their own Houſes; and on Bills of Exchange drawn hence, are the ordinary Payments among Merchants. The Revenues of this City are raiſed by a Tax on Merchandiſe, Houſe-Rent, and Lands belonging to it, beſides ſome extraordinary Impoſts. Sir William Temple's State of the United Provinces. This City is Judg'd impregnable becauſe of its ſituation. They tolerate all Religions; but none have Authority except Calviniſts and Lutherans. Hoffman.

AMSTERDAM, (New) a City of New Belgium, built upon the Mouth of the North River, with a ſpacious Harbour; alſo an Iſland belonging to the Hollanders in the Frozen Sea, not far from Spitzbergh; alſo another Iſland called by the ſame Name in the American Sea, near the Iſland of Rotterdam, between Peru, and the Iſlands of Saloman.

AMSTERDAM, a little Iſland near the Eaſt-Indies, towards Terra Auſtralis incognita, between New Holland and Madagaſcar. The Hollanders, likewiſe, have given this Name to another Iſland, near China, between Japan and Formoſa or Bel-Iſle.

AMULIO, (Marc. Antonio) made Cardinal by Pius IV. whoſe Credit was ſo great in the Sacred College, that he miſt but little of ſucceeding that Pope. He built a fair College at Padoua, and an Alms-Houſe for Twelve decay'd Venetian Noblemen, with 60 Ducats a year each for their Maintenance, and died in 1570. He was ſo Eloquent, that the Venetians ſent him as Ambaſſador to the Emperor, King of Spain, and Pope Pius the Fourth, who made him Biſhop, Cardinal, and Bibliothecary Apoſtolical. The Venetians were ſo offended that he ſhould have contravened an Ancient Law of the Republick, which forbids their Ambaſſadors to receive any thing from Foreign Princes, that they rais'd an Indictment againſt him, and Treated his Friends harſhly for his ſake in his abſence. Davity. Onuphr.

AMULIUS, (Silvius) King of Latium, the Son of Procas, and younger Brother of Numitor, whom he Dethron'd, and Murder'd his Son Lauſus; his Daughter Ilia he made a Veſtal Nun, to deprive her of Progeny; but he was afterward ſlain by Remus and Romulus, her Sons by a Sweet-heart; who reſtor'd their Grandfather Numitor to his Right. Procas left his Treaſures to Amulius, and the Crown to Numitor, whoſe Right was too weak for the others Money. Tit. Liv. Dionyſ. Halicarnaſſ.

AMUND, or Amond the Firſt, King of Swedeland, Son of Sibdager, lived a great while, as is pretended, before our Saviour; but this Opinion of the Swediſh Hiſtorians is ſomewhat to be ſuſpected. But however this may be, Sibdager having Conquer'd Norway and Gothland, and united 'em to Swedeland, Amund took care not only to maintain theſe Advantages, but made a farther Progreſs. He was buried at Upſal, with Gunilde his Queen, and Uffo, his Son, ſucceeded him. Saxo-Grammat. Lib. 1.

AMUND, or Amond the Second, Son of Ragwald, began his Reign about the year of our Lord 220. He rais'd an Army to revenge the death of his Father, upon Swald King of Denmark, who had kill'd him. But Reigning no more than Two years, he liv'd not long enough to execute this Deſign. Saxo-Grammat.

AMURATH the Firſt, Emperor of the Turks, Sirnamed Gaſis, or the Illuſtrious, one of the greateſt Princes they ever had: He began his Reign 1357. ſucceeded Solyman the Firſt, his Brother, made Adrianople the Seat of his Empire, after he had Conquer'd all Thrace, and the adjoyning Provinces, taking advantages of the weakneſs of John Paleologus, Emperor of Conſtantinople. He was the firſt that form'd the Militia of the Janizaries: He Ravaged the Coaſts of Macedon, paſs'd the Streights of Gallipoli with 6000 Men, and defeated the Prince of the Bulgarians, and the Deſpot of Servia; whoſe Head he cut off. Afterward he made an Alliance with the Deſpot's Son, and took his Siſter to Wife, the faireſt Perſon in all Greece, with whom he was paſſionately in Love. He made a Peace with the Emperor of Conſtantinople, who ſent him for Hoſtage one of his Sons named Theodorus. He ſubdu'd his Rebellious Baſſa's, and put out the Eyes of his Son Saux, who, with the Son of the Greek Emperor, had taken Arms to dethrone their Fathers. Afterwards, making War with Lazarus, Prince of the Triballians, he was kill'd by a Triballian Soldier in his Camp, in 1390. or thereabouts, after he had been Victor in 37 Battels: Some ſay that he was ſlain amidſt his Janizaries, by a Cavalier nam'd Milo, who kill'd him, as deſiring to ſpeak to him on ſome Matter of importance. Leunclav. Chalcondile. Baudier.

AMURATH the Second, ſucceeded his Father Mahomet in 1421. Muſtapha, the Son of Bajazet, encouraged by the Greeks, ſtruggled with him for the Crown; but being defeated in Aſia, and found in a Buſh, was ſtrangl'd before Amurath's Face. He beſieg'd Conſtantinople in Revenge with much Vigour, but was forced to raiſe his Siege. The Emperor of Conſtantinople ſet up his younger Son Muſtapha againſt him, whoſe Deſtiny was the ſame with the other Muſtapha's. He took Theſſalonica, which the Venetians had purchas'd of Andronicus, attack'd Caramania, beſieg'd Belgrade in vain; but made the Prince of Boſnia and John Caſtriot his Tributaries, Caſtriot being forc'd to ſend him his Five Sons as Hoſtages, who, contrary to his Promiſe, he cauſed to be Circumciſed, and Poyſon'd Four of 'em. Hunniades ſtop'd his Career, defeated him, and forced him to make Peace with the Chriſtians, which they perfidiouſly breaking, upon the Solicitations of the Legate of Pope Eugenius the Fourth, gave him the opportunity of gaining the famous Battel of Varna, where perceiving his Men to be worſted, he drew the Treaty out of his Pocket, and divers times ſpoke theſe words, Jeſus Chriſt, if thou be God, as thy People ſay thou art, Revenge the Injury which they have done thee, in breaking the Treaty which they have Sworn to me in thy Name. And the next year he overthrew Hunniades, of whoſe Men he ſlew 20000. In the mean time George Caſtriot, the Fifth of Caſtriot's Sons abovemention'd, commonly call'd Scanderberg, defeated ſeveral of his Baſſa's, and forc'd him to raiſe the Siege of Croy, Capital of Albania; for grief of which, he retired amongſt the Zichites, a Religious ſort of Turks in Aſia minor, but through the continual Sollicitations of the Janizaries, he reaſſum'd the Government, and brought a numerous Army before Croy a ſecond time; but finding he could not ſucceed, he was carried out of the Camp to Adrianople, where he expir'd in a Raving Condition, in the year 1451. and 75th of his Age. Leunclavius, Chalcondile.

AMURATH the Third, began his Reign in 1574. with the Murder of Five of his Brothers, according to the Turkiſh manner; bending his Forces againſt the Perſians, he took the City of Tauris, and defeated the Maronites; but having no other great ſucceſs that way, he invaded Croatia, whence he was repulſed with the loſs of 10000 Men. He oppos'd the Election of the Emperor Maximilian the Second, to the Crown of Poland, and ſet Bathori, Prince of Tranſilvania, on that Throne. The Emperor Rodolph, to revenge himſelf of the Affronts done to his Ambaſſadors, ſent an Army againſt him under the Command of Two Generals; the Baron de Tauffenbach being one of them, did wonders, with 12 or 14000 Men, againſt him: At length, the Revolt of the Janizaries, and the Vayvods of Tranſilvania and Moldavia, perplexed him to that degree, that being otherwiſe tormented with the Stone, he died in the year 1594. and 48th of his Age. Baudier, Chalcondile. Mezeray.

AMURATH the Fourth, the Son of Achmet, was ſaluted Emperor in 1623. being but 15 years old. In 1626 he beſieged Bagdat, but was forc'd to riſe from before it by the Perſians. The Polander and Coſſacks ſo hotly alarm'd him, that his Viſiers reſolv'd to have dethron'd him, had he not ſuddenly made a Peace with thoſe Enemies. In the year 1638. he beſieg'd Bagdat a ſecond time, with the greateſt Army that ever the Turks had on foot, and took it in 40 days: But not long after, his Debauches laid him in his Grave in 1640. and in the 32d year of his Age; being an exceſſive Drinker of Wine and Burnt-Brandy. Mezeray, Contin. Chalcond.

AMURATH, Prince of Graves, Count d'Egmont, Governor of Flanders and Artois. He made an Alliance between his Maſter the King of Spain, and the King of England; ſuppreſſed ſome Diſorders in Flanders, and ſignaliz'd himſelf by the Two Victories of St. Quintin and Graveling, where he took the Mareſchal de Thermes, General of the French Army. But after theſe great Exploits, he was taken with Count Horne, and at laſt convicted of High-Treaſon before the Duke of Alva, and beheaded at Bruſſels in 1568. 'becauſe he Patroniz'd the Liberties of the Netherlands. Meteren. Hiſt. Netherlands.

AMYCI Portus, a Harbour of the Thracian Boſphorus, fam'd for the Tomb of Amycis King of the Bebrycians, who was ſlain there, which Tomb was ſhaded with a Laurel-Tree, planted at the time of his Interment, and is called the Mad Laurel, becauſe that if any one carry a Branch of it on Shipboard, all the Ship's Company preſently fall together by the Ears, not to be pacified till the Branch be thrown into the Sea. It is now called Lamin, and Scala Marmorea. Gyllius in ſuo Boſphoro. Hoff.

AMYCLÆ, a City of Italy, between Gaieta and Terracina, built by the Laconians that accompanied Caſtor and Pollux; who gave it the name of their own City Amyclæ in Laconia. The Inhabitants of this City were ſo bewitch'd to the Doctrine of Pythagoras, who forbid the eating of Fleſh and killing of living Creatures; that believing it unlawful to kill the Serpents that bred in the Neighbouring Marſhes, they were frequently ſtung to death by them. Being often terrified with vain Rumours of the Enemies approach, they ordain'd, that no body ſhould offer to ſpeak of an Enemies coming; ſo that when the Enemy came indeed, and no body durſt open their Lips to declare it, they were ſurprized, and all put to the Sword. Hence the Proverb of unſeaſonable Silence, Amyclas perdidit ſilentium. Near to this City is the Den called Specus Amyclæum, now Sperlinga, whence alſo the Neighbouring Sea was called Mare Amycleum, now Mar d'Sperlinga; and the Bay call'd Sinus Amyclanus, now Golpho di Gaieta. Plin. Eraſm.

AMYCLÆ, a City of Laconia not far from Sparta, at the Feet of the Mountain Taygeta, famous for the Birth of Caſtor and Pollux, and a Race of Couragious Dogs; as alſo for a Temple Dedicated to Apollo, ſeated in a place ſhaded with all manner of Trees, and abounding in Fruit, and no leſs ſignal for the Structure and Riches within it: Whence Apollo was Sirnamed Amycleus. Virgil. Pauſanias.

AMYCLAS, the Maſter of a ſmall Shallop which Cæſar went on Board with his Face muffled up, and in an ordinary Garb, to whom, when he would have gone back, being toſs'd by a furious Tempeſt, Cæſar ſhewing his Face, cried out, Fear nothing, thou carrieſt Cæſar and his Fortunes. Lucan.

AMYCLAS, the Fifth King of Sparta, Lacedæmon's Son, to whom he ſucceeded. The Poets feign, that he was Hyacinthus's Father that Apollo had ſuch a Paſſion for, and afterwards Metamorphos'd into a Flower. Ovid. Lib. 10. Metam.

AMYCUS, King of Bebrycia in the Leſſer Aſia, who was wont to carry Strangers to Combat with him, and then to ſurprize 'em with Ambuſcadoes, and murder 'em; but was at length ſlain by Pollux, one of the Argonauts, for whom he had laid the ſame Snare, which Pollux was aware of, and made proviſion againſt it. Theocrit.

AMYDON, an ancient Town in Macedonia, upon the River Axius, ſome call it Verdari; 'tis mention'd both by Homer, and Juvenal, Sat. 3.

AMYMONE, the Daughter of Danaus, who, as ſhe was practiſing to draw a Bow in the Woods, wounded a Satyr, who thereupon would have Raviſh'd her; upon which ſhe imploring the aid of the Gods, Neptune came and reſcued her from the Satyr, but deflour'd her himſelf, and by him ſhe had Nauplius. Her Effigies Alexander the Great cauſed to be Engraven in a Saphire. Strabo.

AMYNTAS the Firſt, King of Macedon, ſucceeded his Father Alcetas, An. Mund. 3527. againſt whom Magabyzus ſent a formidable Army to revenge the death of his Ambaſſadors under the Command of Bubares; but the Perſian falling in Love with Amyntas's Daughter, Married her, and protected his Father-in-Law inſtead of doing him an injury. Amyntas Reign'd 48 years, and died about the year of the World 3575. Juſtin.

AMYNTAS the Second, ſucceeded Archelaus about the year of the World 3662, and Reign'd one year.

AMYNTAS the Third, ſucceeded Pauſanias, and was Father to Philip, Father of Alexander the Great.

AMYNTAS, Son of Perdiccas the Third of Macedon, the Lawful Heir of the Crown, but put by by his Uncle Philip, who was appointed his Guardian, and having the Sovereign Power in his Hands, would not be perſuaded to reſign it. Amyntas Married one of his Uncle Philip's Daughters; and being enraged that another ſhould enjoy his Right, laid Ambuſh for Alexander, which being diſcovered, occaſioned the loſs of Amyntas's Life. Juſtin.

AMYNTAS, the Seventeenth King of the Aſſyrians after Ninus, ſucceeded Aſcatades, Reign'd 45 years in great proſperity, and died about the year of the World 2624. There are ſeveral others of the ſame Name mentioned by thoſe that write the Life of Alexander. One who was the Favourite of Alexander himſelf; another that deſerted Alexander, and went over to Darius, and others of leſſer Note.

AMYNTIANUS, a Greek Hiſtorian living in the Reign of Marcus Antoninus Philoſophus, to whom he Dedicated a Panegyrick upon Alexander the Great, where he brag'd, his Stile ſhould come up to Alexander's Actions, tho, indeed, it ſunk much below the Dignity of the Subject. This Author likewiſe wrote the Life of Olympias, Alexander the Great's Mother, with a Compariſon between Dionyſius of Sicily and Domitian, together with the Life of Philip of Macedon and Auguſtus. Photius, Cod. 131. Voſſius, Hiſt. Græc. Lib. 2. Cap. 14.

AMYNTOR, King of the Dolopians, a People of Epirus, ſucceeded his Father Ormenus. He was kill'd by Hercules, for denying him free paſſage through his Dominions: His Wife was Hippodomea, but he had a Concubine, call'd Clytia, who falſly accus'd Phœnix, of a Deſign to Raviſh her. Apollodorus.

AMYRIS, a Sybarite, who being ſent to Delphos by his Countrymen, the Italians, to know whether the Proſperity they enjoy'd ſhould long endure, receiv'd for anſwer, That they ſhould be ruin'd when they paid more Honour to Men than to the Gods. It happen'd ſoon after that a Servant being beaten by his Maſter, ran to the Altar of the Gods for ſhelter, which nothing avail'd him; but having recourſe to a Friend of his Maſters, obtain'd to be more kindly us'd. Which Amyris underſtanding, he retired to Peloponneſus, foreſeeing the deſtruction of his Country. Apollodorus.

AMYRUTA, a Peripatetick Philoſopher, who liv'd at the Court of David, laſt Emperor of Trebizond, in the year 1461. He wrote againſt the Council of Florence, with great applauſe from the Greek Church: But afterwards he and his Children turn'd Turks, and he had a conſiderable Poſt in the Seraglio. Guillel. Life of Mahomet II. Lib. 4.

AMYTHAON, Son of Cretheus, King of Elis. He reign'd at Pilos in Peloponneſus, and was Father to Bias and Melampodius, who were afterwards Kings of Argos. Pauſanias is of Opinion, that he reſtor'd the Olympick Games, or at leaſt added ſome Circumſtances of Pomp to the Solemnity. Pauſan. Lib. 5. Steph. Bizantius adds, that the Country of Elis was call'd Amyathonia from him.

AMYZON, or Mezo, an old Town in Caria, with a Biſhops See, under the Archbiſhop of Stauropolis. The Acts of the Council of Epheſus call it Amazon by miſtake; It ſtands in Aſia the Leſs, and is mention'd by Pliny and Ptolemy. See Miræus. Notit. Epiſc. Orbis.

ANA, or Anna, an ancient City, which ſome Authors place in Meſopotamia, in Arabia Deſerta, upon the Euphrates, where there is a Fortreſs near an Iſland. It was formerly well Peopled, an Epiſcopal See, and had a good Trade; but now is ruined by the Wars. Texeira. Le Mire.

ANABAGATHA, a City of Aſia, and Archbiſhop's See, under the Patriarch of Antioch. It's mention'd by Leonard Abel Biſhop of Sarde, ſent thither by Pope Gregory XIII. in 1582. Le Mire. Notit. Epiſcop.

ANABAPTISTS, Katabaptiſts, or Antipædobaptiſts, ſo called from their re-baptizing Adult Perſons, and denying the Lawfulneſs of Baptizing Infants. John of Leyden, Mancer, Knipperdoling, and other German Enthuſiaſts, (of which Nicholas Stokius was the firſt) about the time of the Reformation were called by this Name, and held, That Chriſt was not the Son of Mary, nor true God; That we are Righteous by our own Merits and Sufferings; That there is no Original Sin; That Infants are not to be Baptiz'd; rejecting alſo Communion with other Churches, Magiſtracy and Oaths; maintain'd a Community of Goods, Polygamy, and that a Man may put away his Wife if of another Religion; That the Godly ſhould enjoy a Monarchy here on Earth; That Men have Free-will in Spiritual things; and that any Man may Preach and give the Sacraments. The Anabaptiſts of Moravia call themſelves Apoſtolical, going barefoot, waſhing one another's Feet, and having a Community of Goods; They have a Common Steward who diſtributes equally things neceſſary; They admit none but ſuch as can get their livelihood by working at ſome Trade; They have a Common Father for their Spirituals, who inſtructs them in their Religion, and Prays with them every morning before they go abroad; They have a general Governor of the Church, whom none know but themſelves, they being obliged to keep it ſecret; They are ſilent a quarter of an hour before Meat, covering their Faces with their Hands and meditating, doing the like after Meat, their Governor obſerving them in the mean time, to reprove what is amiſs; They are generally clad in Black, diſcourſing much of the Laſt Judgment, Pains of Hell, and Cruelty of Devils, teaching, that the way to eſcape thoſe is to be Re-baptized, and embrace their Religion. Roſſe's View of all Religions. The Author of the Hiſtory of the Bohemian Perſecution, gives a favourable account of thoſe Anabaptiſts, as that they were diligent in their Callings, injurious to no body, and very Charitable. Calvin, as appears by his Inſtitutions, charges the Anabaptiſts of his time, particularly, Servetus; with denying Infant-baptiſm; the Validity of Baptiſm by wicked Miniſters or Popiſh Prieſts; the Lawfulneſs of Magiſtracy, and Aſſurance of Salvation; adding, that they denied Oaths, Unchurch'd all Churches, becauſe of the Faults of Miniſters and Members; and aſſerted, That the Jews knew nothing of Eternal Life; and their Promiſes and Adminiſtration had no other proſpect but to Temporal Advantage. But our Engliſh Anabaptiſts are not to be judged of by any of thoſe Deſcriptions: They are generally for the Independant way of Church-Government, which, together with the denying of Infant-baptiſm, and not ſinging of Pſalms, (which yet ſome of them practiſe) are the only things they differ in from other Proteſtants; tho' there are among them who alſo deny the Lawfulneſs of Oaths, maintain Free-will, the Seventh day Sabbath, and the Thouſand years Reign. Thoſe that deſire to be more fully ſatisfied, may have recourſe to a Confeſſion of Faith Publiſhed by the Repreſentatives of above 100 of their Congregations in 1689. being the ſame in ſubſtance with the Aſſembly's, or Weſtminſter Confeſſion, except as before excepted. The Practiſe of Re-baptizing is charged upon Marcion, who maintain'd a third Baptiſm for Expiation of Sins; and that the ſame might be adminiſtred by Women. Epiphan. Hær. 42. The Cataphrygians, Novatians, and Donatiſts, Re-baptized thoſe of their Communion; and An. 256. thoſe of Cilicia, Cappadocia, Galatia, and the Neighbouring Provinces, declared in an Aſſembly, That the Baptiſm of Hereticks was null. Firmilian Biſhop of Cæſarea, and St. Dennys of Alexandria, were Patrons of this Opinion, and upon this Head wrote to Stephen Biſhop of Rome, who declin'd Communion with the Eaſtern Churches on that account, ſays Euſebius. Anno 256. St. Cyprian call'd a Council at Carthage, where they agreed that Baptiſm adminiſtred without the Church was invalid, which the Biſhop of Rome oppoſed. Tertullian, in his Book of Baptiſm, held, That Baptiſm conferred by Hereticks was Invalid: And Agrippinus, who liv'd 40 years, or above, before St. Cyprian, was of the ſame Opinion. This created a deal of Trouble in the Church; ſo that this Method to allay the ſame was found out by the Council of Arles, Can. 8. viz. To Re-baptize thoſe newly Converted, if ſo be it was found that they had not been Baptized in the Name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt: And ſo the Firſt General Council of Nice, Can. 19. ordered, That the Pauliamiſts, or Followers of Paul Samoſatenus, and the Cataphrygians, ſhould be Re-baptiz'd. The Council of Laodicea, Can. 7. and the Second of Arles, Can. 16. Decreed the ſame as to ſome Hereticks. Auguſt. lib. 2. de Bapt. Cont. Donat. Euſeb. l. 7. c. 4. Baron. An. C. 217, 218. In Theodoſius's Code, and that of Juſtinian, it is obſerved that thoſe Emperors put Anabaptiſts to death, L. 7. N. 5. Bapt. Her. L. 2. Cod. Juſtin.

ANÆTIS, a Goddeſs formerly in ſuch Veneration among the Lydians, Perſians, and Armenians, bordering upon Tartary, that they did nothing but under her Auſpices, and held their moſt Important Conſultations in her Temple. She was ſerv'd only by Female Prieſts, who were the moſt beautiful Virgins in all the Country, and who thought it an Honour to proſtitute themſelves to thoſe that came to Sacrifice to their falſe Deity; and, in effect, the blind Idolaters thought the better of 'em, and would the ſooner Marry them. The Feſtivals of this Idol were Annually celebrated with all manner of Debaucheries; ſome think they were inſtituted by Cyrus King of Perſia, in Memory of the Victory which he obtain'd over the Sacæ, by abandoning his Camp, which was full of Proviſions, wherewith that People had ſurfeited themſelves ſo, that they were eaſily ſurpriz'd. Herodotus, Pauſan. Plin.

ANANIAS, or Annas, High-Prieſt of the Jews, the Father-in-Law of Caiaphas, had Five Sons who ſucceeded him in that high Function one after another. Jeſus Chriſt was carried firſt of all before him, after his being apprehended in the Gardens of Mount Olivet. Authors have difficulty to reconcile Annas and Caiaphas, being both High Prieſts at the ſame time. Some ſay Annas was the others Deputy, as Serajah and Zephaniah, both call'd High Prieſts in Zedekiah's time: Others, that the one was Chief Prieſt, and the other Chief of the Sanhedrim; and Euſebius thinks that Annas had been depoſed by the Romans, and reſtor'd again after Caiaphas. Janſenius, Baronius, Sigonius.

ANANIAS, one of Daniel's Companions, being of the Children of the Captivity, he, together with Miſhael and Azarias, was caſt into the Fiery Furnace, becauſe he would not fall down and Worſhip the Image which Nebuchadnezzar ſet up; but God delivered them miraculouſly from the Fire, that their Garments were not ſo much as ſinged, which ſo convinced Nebuchadnezzar, that he own'd the God of Iſrael to be the moſt High God. This happened An. M. 3462. or 3455. Joſeph. Torniel. Dan. 3.

ANANIAS, a Jew, one of thoſe convinced by the Apoſtles Sermons, he pretended to have brought all the Money which he had for his poſſeſſion, and laid it at the Apoſtle's Feet; but he and his Wife were both ſtruck dead for lying to the Holy Ghoſt. Acts 5.

ANANIAS, of Damaſcus, to whom our Lord appeared in a Viſion, ordering him to go and pray with St. Paul, and open his Eyes after his Converſion, which he did accordingly, and then St. Paul was Baptiz'd. Acts 9. 22.

ANANIAS, a Jewiſh Prieſt of great Reputation; He was ſo much reſpected by Albinus, the Governor of Judæa, that he ſet 10 Highwaymen at liberty, that Ananias might have an opportunity of recovering his Son, whom ſome of their Gang had carried off, and threaten'd to kill him, unleſs he releas'd their Companions. Joſeph. Lib. 20. Ant. Judaic. cap. 8.

ANANUS the Second, of the Sect of the Sadduces, a ſevere Man, put St. James, the Brother of our Lord, to death, and was depos'd from the High Prieſthood by Agrippa. The Jews were extreamly angry at his putting James to death, thinking that their following ruine was occaſion'd by it. Joſephus.

ANANUS the Third, applauded by Joſephus for his Prudence and Piety, oppos'd the Zealots; but being overpower'd by the Recruits of the Idumeans that came to their aſſiſtance, was by them ſlain. Joſeph.

ANAPAUMENE, a Fountain in Moloſſia, a Province of Epirus in Greece, of which Pliny ſays, That its Waters extinguiſh Flambeaux when lighted, and lights them when extinguiſh'd; That it ceaſes flowing at mid-day, and a little while after flows again till midnight, when it ceaſes a ſecond time. Plin.

ANASTASIUS the Firſt, ordained ſtanding upon reading the Goſpel; and that no Lame or Infirm Perſon ſhould be received into Orders. He ſucceeded Siricius in the See of Rome, ſate Four years, and died in 438.

ANASTASIUS the Second, a Favourer of the Eutychians and Neſtorians, about 496. held the See Two years, and died voiding his Bowels, as Platina ſaith, as a Judgment for being an Acacian, when he had Excommunicated the Emperor Anaſtaſius for the ſame thing. Baronius.

ANASTASIUS the Third, ſucceeded Sergius the Third, An. 910. ſate Two years, and did nothing remarkable. Sigebert, Onuphrius.

ANASTASIUS the Fourth, ſucceeded Eugenius III. ſate One year and five months, and died in 1154. However in that ſhort time he raiſed that Noble Structure of Maria Rotunda, in the room of the Pantheon: He has a Tomb of Porphyry.

ANASTASIUS, Antipope, againſt Benedict III. about 855. but expell'd by the Emperor Lewis, at the requeſt of the Clergy and People of Rome. Baron. Onuph. Genebrard.

ANASTASIUS, Patriarch of Antiochia, a Virtuous and Learned Prelate, and a greater Writer, died in the year 599. He was call'd Sinaita, becauſe brought from Mount Sinai. He was hated by the Emperor Juſtinian for oppoſing the Sect of the Incorruptibles, and was Baniſh'd by Juſtin the Younger. He has writ a great many Tracts, but the Criticks are not all agreed about their being genuine; as De S. Trinitate; De Incircumſcripto; De Divina Incarnatione; De Paſſione & impaſſibilitate Chriſti; De Reſurrectione Chriſti. There are other Pieces go under his Name, which I ſhall omit to mention, becauſe of the uncertainty of their Author. Bellarmin, Poſſevin.

ANASTASIUS the Martyr, Patriarch of Alexandria, labour'd for the Converſion of the Jews, who put him to a moſt cruel death in 608. Nicephor. Baron.

ANASTASIUS the Third, Patriarch of Antioch, the moſt paſſionate of the Jacobite Hereticks; his Ambition to gain the Patriarchate, made him ſeemingly turn Orthodox; but having gain'd his deſire, he relaps'd, and drew the Emperor Heraclitus into the Errors of the Monothelites. Baronius.

ANASTASIUS, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, of the Opinion of the Image-breakers, but expoſed to publick Ignominy by Conſtantine Copronymus, who cauſed him firſt to be ſoundly Baſtinadoed for ſome Miſdemeanors, and carried through the Streets on an Aſs, with his Head towards the Tail; yet afterwards re-eſtabliſh'd him as Patriarch. Baronius.

ANASTASIUS, Emperor of Conſtantinople, from a very mean Perſon, rais'd by the Artifices of Adriadne, Zeno's Widow, whoſe Gallant he was, to the Imperial Throne. In the beginning of his Reign he Govern'd with much Juſtice and pretended Devotion, but afterwards turn'd Vicious and Heretical, which occaſion'd ſome Troubles betwixt him and his Subjects, headed by Longinus, the former Emperor's Brother; but he overcame them. He perſecuted the Orthodox, and depoſed Euphemius, Patriarch of Conſtantinople; for which being reproved by Hormiſda, the Roman Pontiff, he made Anſwer, Nos Imperare Volumus, nobis Imperari nolumus. Vitalianus, General of the Goths, revolted, and brought his Army to beſiege Conſtantinople; but being vanquiſh'd by Sea by the firing his Navy with Burning-Glaſſes, the Invention of the famous Mathematician Proclus, Anaſtaſius eſcap'd that danger. Being foretold that he ſhoul'd be kill'd by Thunder, he rais'd a round Structure to ſave himſelf; but after a moſt terrible Tempeſt of Thunder and Lightning, he was found dead in his Chamber, in the 88th year of his Age. Baronius.

ANASTASIUS, Biſhop of Nice: A Holy and Learned Prelate, living in the Eighth Century: The Treatiſe De Sacra Synaxi, De non Judicando, Deque Oblivione Injuriarum, which goes under the Name of Anaſtaſius Sinaita, does more probably belong to this Biſhop; becauſe there are ſeveral Paſſages concerning raſh Judgment tranſcrib'd from Johannes Climachus. Bellar. De Script. Eccl. Gretſer. &c.

ANASTASIUS, who wrote the Life of St. Maximus, and was his Scholar. This Life is inſerted in the Acts of Maximus, and is Tranſlated by Peter Morinus into Latin. We have it likewiſe in Baronius's Annals, under the year 656.

ANASTASIUS Bibliothecarius, a Roman Abbot, floriſh'd in the Ninth Century, under Pope Nicholas the Firſt, Adrian the Second, and John the Eighth; He was at the Eighth General Council, wrote the Acts and Canons of it, as he did alſo of the Sixth and Seventh, that is to ſay, the Third of Conſtantinople, and the Second of Nice. Sigebert reports, That this was done by Pope Nicholas the Firſt's Order. He Tranſlated likewiſe out of Greek, The Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, called, Tripartita, &c. We have one Epiſtle remaining of Phocius to Anaſtaſius Bibliothecarius, and one of Anaſtaſius to Hincmar Archbiſhop of Rheims. Sigebert de Script. Eccl. c.163. Bellarm. Baron. Voſſius, &c.

ANATALICO, a Village of Deſpotato, formerly Ætolia, ſeated like Venice in a Moraſs, and conſiſting of about 200 Houſes. The People plant Currants in the Fields adjoining, which are there a more delicious Fruit, and larger than at Zant. Spon.

ANATOLIA. Vid. Aſia.

ANATOLIUS, though of mean Birth, yet by the Strength of his Parts he arrived to the higheſt Dignity in Antiochia; but being diſcovered to be a Worſhipper of Idols, he was ſent to Conſtantinople, and there torn in pieces by Wolves, to which he was expos'd by the People. Some Authors ſay, that as he caſt his Eyes on the Image of the Bleſſed Virgin to implore her aid, the ſaid Image turn'd away its Head. Evagrius.

ANATOLIUS, a Deacon of Alexandria, promoted afterwards to the See of Conſtantinople, by the Strength of his Conduct. Dioſcorus, the Head of the Eutychians, preferr'd him, as believing him to be of his Opinion; but after the Death of Theodoſius the Younger, when Marcian came to the Throne, he openly declar'd for the Orthodox Faith, held a fair Correſpondence with Pope Leo, and ſent him a Confeſſion of his Faith. He afterwards aſſiſted at the Council of Chalcedon, and there ſeem'd to incline to the Eutychians. His Ordination of Perſons ſuſpected of Hereſie, occaſioned great diſturbances in the Church. Concil. Chalced. Act. 1. 3. & 6. Leo, Ep. 51, 52, &c. Baron. A. C. 449. 458.

ANAXAGORAS, a Clazomenian Philoſopher, the Diſciple of Anaximenes, forſook a great Eſtate and vaſt Wealth to betake himſelf to Contemplation. For which he being asked, why he took no more Care of his Country, I take a great deal (ſaid he) pointing with his Finger to the Skies. He was the firſt that join'd Underſtanding to Materia Prima; He affirm'd, That the Sun was a Maſs of burning Iron, much larger than Peloponneſus. See the reſt of his Opinions and Sayings in Diogenes Laertius.

ANAXANDRIDES, King of Sparta, ſubdued the Citizens of Tegea that had vex'd the Lacedæmonians in his Fathers time. His Wife being Barren, the Ephori order'd him to Divorce her, which he being loath to do, to pleaſe the Ephori Married another, and was the only Lacedæmonian who ever before had had two Wives: After which the firſt Wife brought forth Children. There was another Spartan King of this Name who ſubdued the Tegeans by means of one Lychas who diſcover'd Oreſtes's Tomb, the Oracle having told, That they ſhould never be overcome till it was found, which was to be by removing the Wind, the Beater, with the Thing Beaten, and the Ruine and Peſt of Mankind. Lychas coming into a Shop where he perceived a pair of Bellows, a Hammer, an Anvil and Iron, he concluded thoſe to be the Wind, the Beater and Beaten, and Ruine of Men; and removing them, found Oreſtes's Tomb, which carrying to Lacedæmon, the Tegeans were ſuddenly reduced. Herodot. Plutarch.

ANAXARCHUS, a Philoſopher of Abdera, and Hearer of Democritus, who being ſeiz'd by Nicocreon, Tyrant of Cyprus, his mortal Enemy, and by him pounded in a Stone Trough, with a Fortitude unimitable cry'd out, Pound on, pound on the Bag of Anaxarchus, (meaning his Skin) thou pound'ſt not Anaxarchus: And at the ſame time the Tyrant threatning to cut out his Tongue, I'll prevent thee, ſaid he, biting it off himſelf, and ſpitting it in the Tyrant's Face. Alexander the Great had ſo much reſpect for him, that he ordered him to have whatever he demanded, who accordingly having aſk'd 300 Talents, at which the Officers grumbled, Alexander caus'd to give him them, ſaying, That he took it as a Mark of his Eſteem that he would ask him a Gift ſuitable to himſelf. Anaxarchus was called Happy and Fortunate becauſe of the Greatneſs of his Spirit and Intrepidity in time of Danger. Diog. Laertius.

ANAXENOR, a Player on the Harp, highly eſteemed by the City of Tiana, but more by Mark-Anthony, who gave him the Revenue of four Cities for his Muſick. Strabo.

ANAXIDAMUS, King of Sparta, Son of Zeuxidamus, Reign'd with Alexander II. Under the Government of theſe two Princes; the Lacedæmonians reduc'd the Meſſenians. Anaxidamus being ask'd, Who govern'd handſomly in Sparta, anſwer'd, The Laws, and thoſe Magiſtrates that put them in Execution. Pauſan. in Meſſen. Plut. in Apophthegm.

ANAXILAS, Tyrant of the Rhegini, ſo moderate and juſt in his Government, that when he had left his Children, upon his Death-Bed to the Care only of Micalus, no more than one of his moſt Truſty Servants, the Princes and People choſe rather to obey a Servant, than deſert the Children: And the Servant diſcharg'd his Truſt faithfully and with Honour. Juſtin. Macrob.

ANAXIMANDER, a Mileſian Philoſopher, who held, that the Incomprehenſible and Infinite Univerſe was the Principle of all Natural Beings, incorruptible in the whole, but corruptible as to its parts. He was alſo the firſt Inventer of Sphere Rules for Dyalling and Geography. He is ſaid to have foretold an Earthquake to the Lacedæmonians, Diogenes Laertius.

ANAXIMENES, a Mileſian Philoſopher, held that the Air was Infinite, and the Original of all Things, even of the Gods; and that the Stars did not move above the Earth, but round about it. He was the firſt Inventer of the Quadrant. Diogenes, Voſſius.

ANAXIMENES, a Native of Lampſachus, both an Orator and Hiſtorian, and one of Alexander the Great's Tutors. He ſav'd his Country by a Wile: For Alexander having already reſolv'd the Deſtruction of it for favouring Darius, and fearing to be vanquiſh'd by the Intreaties of his Tutor, Swore by all the Gods of Greece whatever Anaximines begg'd him to do, he would do quite contrary; which the Philoſopher underſtanding, beſought him to ruine Lampſachus, Alexander being bound by his Oath, and taken with the readineſs of his Tutor's Wit, pardon'd the Town. Valer. Max. Suidas.

ANDREAS Cretenſis, call'd likewiſe Heiroſolumytanus, Liv'd in the latter End of the Seventh Century. He was one of the moſt Learned Men of his Time; and aſſiſted at the Sixth General Council at Conſtantinople in 680. and 681. He has left ſeveral Writings, collected in the Bibliotheca Patrum. Poſſevin in Appar. Sac. Gretſer, &c.

ANDREAS Cæſarienſis, Archbiſhop of Cæſarea in Cappadocia, flouriſhed in the Beginning of the Sixth Century: He wrote Comments upon the Revelations, inſerted in the Bibliotheca Patrum. Bellar. De Script. Eccl. &c.

ANDREAS, (John) an Eminent Lawyer of Bononia, Living in the Fourteenth Century. He wrote Novellæ upon the Five Books of the Decretals; Collected ancient Authors of his own Profeſſion, and digeſted 'em in order. His other Writings are, Additions upon the Speculum Juris of William Durandus; Gloſſæ in Sextum, & Clementinas, &c. Thithem. Bellar, &c.

ANDREAS, (Valerius) of Deſſel, a Village in Brabant; was born in 1588. He Profeſſed the Law at Louvaine; was a great Maſter of Languages, and the Polite Parts of Learning. He wrote ſeveral Treatiſes, but I ſhall mention none, but his Bibliotheca Belgica; De Belgis; Vita Scriptiſq; Claris; The beſt Edition was Printed 1643. This Author is frequently cited by me.

St. ANDREW the Apoſtle was born at Bethſaida, a City of Galilee on the Lake of Geneſareth, Son to John or Jonas a Fiſherman, and younger Brother to Simon Peter, as generally believed, though Epiphanius ſays he was elder; he was firſt Diſciple to John the Baptiſt, preſent with him at our Saviour's Baptiſm, and one of them that followed him to his Home, on the Baptiſt's Teſtimony that he was the Meſſiah; On which account he is by the Ancient Writers ſtiled the firſt called Diſciple, as being the firſt of them that came to Chriſt, though not called till afterwards. After ſome Converſe with Chriſt, he went and brought his Brother Simon to him, and ſtaying a little, returned to their Calling again. Somewhat more than a Year after, our Lord convinced them fully of his Divinity, by the Miraculous Draught of Fiſhes which they took at his Command on the Sea of Tiberias, where he found them Fiſhing, and thenceforth commanded them to follow him, which they did accordingly. So far the Holy Scriptures.

*Socrates, H. Eccl. l.*1. *c.*19. *p.*50. ſays, That it fell to Saint Andrew's Lot to Preach the Goſpel in Scythia and the Neighbouring Provinces, ſo that in inſtructing Cappadocia, Galatia, and Bithynia, he Travelled by the Coaſt of the Euxine Sea into the Deſarts of Scythia. An ancient Author in Menæo Græcor. λιτϐεγ. Νοεμβρ. ſub lit. π, ſays, That he came firſt to Amynſus, and being entertain'd by a Jew, prov'd in their Synagogue from the Prophets, that Chriſt was the Meſſiah; and having converted many, and conſtituted a Church here, went to Trapezus, a City on that ſame Coaſt, and thence to Nice, where he Preach'd and wrought Miracles two years, thence to Nicomedia and Chalcedon, and ſailing through the Propontis came to Heraclea and Amaſtris, overcoming abundance of Difficulties and Diſcouragements. Next he arrived at Sinope, a City on the Black Sea, ſtill famous for the Birth and Burial of Mithridates, where he met his Brother Peter, and ſtaid with him a conſiderable time, the Author alledging for Proof, that he himſelf ſaw the Chairs of white Stone there, whence they us'd to teach the People. He adds, That moſt of the Inhabitants being Jews, attempted to burn him in the Houſe, but failing in that, threw him on the Ground, trod him under Foot, dragged him about, beating him with Clubs, pelting him with Stones, and ſome of them biting off his Fleſh, till conceiving him dead, they threw him out of the City, but recovering again Miraculouſly, he re-entred the ſame publickly, by which and other Miracles he converted many. He went thence again to Amynſus, Trapezus, and ſo to Neo-Cæſarea, and Samoſata, where having baffled the Acute Philoſophers, he deſign'd thence for Jeruſalem; but after ſome time, returning to his former Provinces, he came to the Country of Abaſgi, and at Sebaſtopolis, between the Mouths of the Phaſis and the Apſarus on the Euxine Sea, he preached ſucceſsfully; hence he went to the Zecchi and Boſphorani, a People of the Aſian Scythia or Sarmatia, but finding them untractable ſtaid not long, only at Cherſoneſus, a great City within the Boſphorus, he continued Preaching for ſome time. Hence he ſailed to Sinope in Paphlagonia, to confirm the Churches which he had lately planted; and ordaining Philologus, one of St. Paul's Diſciples, Biſhop, he went to Byzantium, now Conſtantinople, where he preached the Goſpel, and ordained Stachys, whom St. Paul calls Beloved, firſt Biſhop of this Place. Baronius indeed aſcribes this Honour to St. Peter, but Nicephorus Calliſtus, *H. Eccl. l.*2. c. 39. l. 5. *c.*6. and Nicephorus Patriarch of Conſtantinople, ſay it was St. Andrew. Ανδρέας ὁ Απόστολος ἐν Βυζαντίῳ τὸν λόγον κήρυξας, &c. Niceph. C. P. in Chronogr. a Scal. edit. p. 309. Our Apoſtle being baniſh'd that City, fled to Argyropolis, a Neighbouring one, where he preach'd two years with good ſucceſs; and afterward travelling over Thrace, Macedonia, Theſſaly, Achaia, and Epirus, he propagated the Faith, confirming it by Miracles, and ſealed the ſame with his Blood at Patræ, a City of Achaia, in manner following, as recorded by the Presbyters and Deacons of Achaia, who were Eye-Witneſſes; and though there is ſome doubt whether they be really the Authors, yet the Account is ancient, becauſe mentioned by Philaſtrius de Hæreſ. c. 89. who lived about 380. It is thus:

Ægeas, Proconſul of Achaia, obſerving that multitudes turn'd Chriſtians, endeavour'd their reduction to Paganiſm by Flattery and Force. The Apoſtle addreſſing him reſolutely, did calmly offer to inſtruct him, but was derided as an Innovator, and an Aſſertor of that Religion whoſe Author the Jews had Crucified. Whence the Apoſtle took occaſion to explain the Doctrine of the Croſs, to which the Proconſul anſwered, That he might talk to them who would believe him, but if he would not ſacrifice to the Gods, he ſhould ſuffer on that Croſs which he ſo much extoll'd. Whereupon he was committed, and had certainly been reſcued by the People if he had not forbid them.

Next day [illegible] Chriſtianity, [illegible] Idolatry, de[illegible] condemn[illegible] the Apoſtle [illegible] Brother, [illegible] Seven Electors [illegible] Proconſul [illegible] that he ſhould [illegible] Nails, to make his death [illegible] went to Execution with [illegible] Countenance, [illegible] the Croud of People, who cried out, that he [illegible] condemned. The Bleſſed Apoſtle approaching the Croſs, ſaluted it joyfully, and [illegible] manner [illegible] might receive him [illegible] who [illegible] on it, and having Pray'd and Exhorted the People to Conſtancy in the Faith, he was faſten'd to the Croſs, where he hung two days teaching the People all the while; and when great Intereſt was made with the Proconſul to ſpare his Life, he earneſtly begg'd of the Lord that he might then Seal the Truth with his Blood, and expired on the [illegible] of November, but what year is uncertain; tho Moreri ſays it was Anno 69.

The form of this Croſs is ſaid to have been peculiar like a Saltire, or Letter [illegible] in St. [illegible] Serm. 133. affirms, that he was Crucified on an Olive-Tree. His Body was Enbalm'd, and Honourably Interr'd by the Proconſul's Lady. And Gregory Biſhop of Tours ſays, That on the Anniverſary of this Martyrdom, there flow'd from his Tomb a precious and fragrant Oil, which according to its quantity denoted the ſcarceneſs or plenty of the enſuing year; and that this Oil reſtored the ſick to their health if anointed therewith. He adds, that ſome years the Oil burſt out in ſuch plenty, that the Stream [illegible] the middle of the Church, if you'll believe him. [illegible] removed to Conſtantinople [illegible] Conſtantine [illegible] ried in the great Church, which he Dedicated to the Apoſtles; which being taken down ſome hundred years after by Juſtinian the Emperor, the Body was ſaid to be found in a Wooden Coffin. [illegible]

The ſaid Apoſtle was [illegible] Tutelary Saint of Scotland on the following occaſion. Athelſtan, King of England, or the Dane, to [illegible] granted Northumberland, as Buchanan thinks, having invaded the Picts, who then inhabited the South of Scotland, and overtaking their King Hungus at Hadington, about [illegible] miles from the Borders, in 790. the Picts being inferior in ſtrength, kept ſtrong Rear-guards in the night, while Hungus betook himſelf to Prayer; and falling aſleep, thought he ſaw Andrew the Apoſtle ſtanding by him, and promiſing Victory, and having declared this Viſion to his People, it inſpired them with Courage next day for the Battle, which as ſoon as begun, they add, that St. Andrew's Croſs in form of an X. appear'd in the Air, which did ſo terrify the Engliſh, and animate the Picts, that they obtain'd [illegible] Victory, [illegible] ſlew Athelſtan, the place of Battel on the River Tyne, [illegible] the Name of Athelſtan's Ford to this day; upon which Hungus aſcrib'd the Victory to St. Andrew, and beſides other Gifts, offer'd him the Tithes of [illegible] Demeſns. Buchan. So that the [illegible] having [illegible] the Picts in thoſe Countries, though they [illegible] to St. Andrew's Tutelage, [illegible] which [illegible] time, [illegible] King of Scotland, [illegible] Knighthood in Honour of St. Andrew, the Collar [illegible] up of Thiſtles and Rhue, the one not to be touch'd without hurt, and the other being an Antidote againſt Poiſon. Hence the Motto, Nemo me impune Laceſſet. At the Collar hangs the Picture of St. Andrew with this Croſs. Roſs's View of [illegible] Religions. This Order was in a manner obliterated, and King James VII. attempted a reviving of it, having created ſeveral of the Order.

ANDREW, firſt King of Hungary, ſurpriz'd and put out his Brother Peter's Eyes as a Hunting; he made the Pagans rebel againſt him, promiſing to re-eſtabliſh their Idolatry, which nevertheleſs he did not perform, but cut off the Biſhops and other Eccleſiaſticks that were of Peter's ſide, and ſhar'd the Kingdom with his Brother and Competiter Bela; who afterwards affecting the whole Monarchy did, by the aſſiſtance of the Polanders, overthrow his Brother Andrew, and put him to death about 1061. [illegible] ſius, Hiſt. Hung.

ANDREW the Second, King of Hungary, ſurnamed Hieroſolymitanus, from his Expedition to the Holy Land, Reigned 31 years, and died about the year [illegible]. He ſignaliz'd his Valour in the Holy Land, and acquir'd much Glory, but had ſome Controverſie with the Patriarch of Jeruſalem, and alſo with his own Subjects. From this King it was that the Hungarian Gentry obtain'd their Privileges which they are ſo zealous of. Bonfinius ſays he was very unfortunate in the Holy War, and that the Chriſtians were great loſers by him. This Prince granted 'em Privileges with a Condition annexed to the Charter, That if either himſelf or his Succeſſors oppreſſed them in their Rights, [illegible] ſhould [illegible] appeal'd [illegible] juſtifying his [illegible] when [illegible] King of Hungary, [illegible] Nobility. Upon which they [illegible] their Privileges [illegible] ſentence; and [illegible] ſolely [illegible] the Crown, they had confirm'd [illegible] Arbitrary [illegible] Life of [illegible]

ANDREW the Third: [illegible] the oppoſition of the [illegible], and Boniface [illegible] who ſupported [illegible], having graſped the Scepter of Hungary, he [illegible] two years, ſubdued almoſt all Auſtria, and died about [illegible]. Bonfin.

ANDREW, King of [illegible], was ſtrangled in 1345. by his Wife [illegible], at the ſame time Queen of Naples alſo, for endeavouring to introduce his [illegible] into the Government. [illegible] the difference of their Inclinations, the miſunderſtanding was fomented by an Hungarian Monk who govern'd him, and an Italian Laundreſs who became her favourite, and govern'd her, each of them ſtriving to be abſolute. [illegible]

ANDREW [illegible], a great Lutheran Miniſter, about 1590. He was for the Dutchy of Wirtemberg, effectuated an Union among the Princes of the Augsburg Confeſſion, and was by them employed in Affairs of greateſt Conſequence: He was Rector of the Univerſity of Tubingen. [illegible]

ANDREW of Harclay, ſo call'd from Harclay in Weſtmorland, the Place of his Birth; he lived in Edward the Second's time, and behaved himſelf with ſo much Gallantry, that at the Battel of Boroughbridge, which prov'd ſo fatal to the Barons, he ſlew Humphrey Bohun Earl of Hereford, and [illegible] Earl of Lancaſter, with many other Nobles; for which the King created him Earl of Carliſle, and gave him the Iſle of Man: But upon ſome diſguſt, he conſpired againſt the King, to bring in the Scots, for which he was condemned and forfeited.

ANDREWS, Lancelot, Biſhop of Wincheſter, in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, King James, and King Charles the Firſt; he was born in London, his Father, a Merchant of good Repute, ſent him from Merchant-Taylors School to Pembroke-hall in Cambridge; ſuch was his Pregnancy in all ſorts of Learning, that few things eſcaped his knowledge: What was ſaid of Claudius Druſus, might well be applied to him, That he was a Man of as good Parts as mortal Nature could [illegible], or Induſtry make perfect. Mr. Hugh Price, Founder of Jeſus College in Oxford, nominated him to be one of the Fellows there; at laſt he took the degree of Maſter of Arts, and then wholly applied himſelf to Divinity. [illegible] ſent for him to accompany him to [illegible], where he was Preſident; and there, by his [illegible] Preaching, he converted many Papiſts. By means [illegible] Walſingham, Secretary of State, he became Vicar of St. Giles's without Cripplegate, London, then Prebendary and Reſidentiary of St. Paul's, and afterwards Prebendary of the Collegiate Church of Southwell; next, upon Dr. [illegible] deceaſe, he was elected Maſter of Pembroke-hall in Cambridge; then he became Chaplain in Ordinary to the Queen, who made him firſt Prebend, and not long afterwards Dean of Weſtminſter. King James created him Biſhop of Chicheſter, whence he was tranſlated to Ely, and then to Wincheſter, [illegible] of the Chapel: He was a Pious, Acute, and Prudent Preacher, of a blameleſs Life, and very Charitable, having in his laſt ſix years given 1300 l. in [illegible]; and at his death left 4000 l. to Purchaſe 200 l. [illegible], for the uſe of poor Men and Widows. He [illegible] 25. 1626. in the third year of King Charles I. [illegible] of his Age, and lies buried in the upper Iſle of [illegible] Church of St. Saviours in Southwark, over whom is erected a very fair Monument of Marble and Alabaſter, with a long Latin Epitaph. He writ ſeveral Works ſtill extant, amongſt which is a Body of Sermons, being 96 in all.

ANDRIA, [illegible] Epiſcopal City of the Kingdom of Naples, in the [illegible] of Bari, dignified with the Title of Dukedom, [illegible] Family of the Caraffa's.

ANDR[illegible] counterfeited himſelf to be the Son of Philip, the [illegible] of Macedon, Anno 606. of Rome, and being at firſt [illegible] by the Romans, defeated Juventius the Praetor; but [illegible] vanquiſhed by Cecilius Metellus, and flying to a petty King [illegible], was by him delivered to the Romans, who [illegible] led him in Triumph, put him to death.

ANDROCLEUS, or Androcles, Son of Phintas King of the Meſſenians; he was killed becauſe he adviſ'd the delivering up one Polycrates to the Lacedaemonians, to be puniſh'd by them for his miſbehaviour. Pauſan. lib. 4.

ANDROCOTTUS, or Sandrocottus, a King of India, who finding himſelf in ſome danger, for having ſpoken ſlightly of Alexander the Great, fled for his Life, and being quite tir'd, lay down under a Tree, where a huge Lyon came and fawn'd upon him: By which good omen being encouraged, he took the Field, expell'd Alexander's Captains, and recovered a good part of India, which he left to his Poſterity. Juſtin.

ANDRODUS, the Name of the Roman Slave, ſo well rewarded by a Lyon for pulling the Thorn out of his Foot; that being expos'd to the ſame Lyon in the Amphitheatre, becauſe of his running from his Maſter, the grateful Beaſt would not ſo much as touch him, but fawn'd upon him to the admiration of the Spectators: So Androdus eſcap'd, and was made his Keeper. Gellius.

ANDROGEUS, the Son of Minos King of Crete, murdered by the Athenian Youth, who envied his being always Victor at the Attick Games. In revenge of whoſe death, his Father having taken Athens, impos'd an Annual Tribute of Seven Boys, and as many Virgins, which were expoſed to the cruelty of the Minotaur, till the Monſter was ſlain by Theſeus. Plutarch, Ovid.

ANDROGYNES, an ancient People of Africk, who were Hermaphrodites, having one Breaſt like a Man, and another like a Woman. Plin. lib. 7. cap. 2. Some of the Jews alledged that Adam was at firſt created ſo; but that afterwards the Man and Woman were ſeparated. Sixtus Senen.

ANDROMACHE, Hector's Wife, the Mother of Francion, or Francis, who was the firſt King of the Gauls, as the pretended Manetho, and ſome other ſuch Romantick Authors will have it. Hom.

ANDROMACHES, a Phyſician of Crete, who lived in the time of the Emperor Nero; who by compounding the Fleſh of Vipers with Mithridate, invented the Medicine Theriacum, or Theriacle. Caſtellan in Vit. Medic. Voſſius, De Scient. Mathem. cap. 33.

ANDROMACHUS, who call'd himſelf King of Syria, one of the moſt redoubted Princes of Aſia, he fought for Seleucus Callinicus King of Syria, againſt Antiochus, whom he defeated; but purſuing him too far, was taken by Ptolemy Euergetes King of Egypt, who ſet him at liberty on the deſire of the Rhodians. Polybius, lib. 4.

ANDROMEDA, the Daughter of Cepheus, expos'd to a Sea Monſter for the Pride of her Mother, in comparing her Beauty with that of the Nereides, but reſcued by Perſeus, who made her his Wife. Ovid. Metam.

ANDRONICUS the Firſt, uſurp'd the Imperial Diadem of Conſtantinople, having firſt ſtrangl'd his Nephew Alexis II. who was under Age, and committed to his Care, as alſo his Mother and others, ſparing neither Age, Sex, nor Relation to ſecure his Government. One of his Nephews whom he had baniſhed, ſtir'd up the King of Sicily againſt him, who beſieging Conſtantinople, Andronicus flatter'd his Subjects into a reſolute Defence; but returning to his Cruelty, and purſuing to death all whoſe Names begun with Iſ. being warned by a Magician, that ſuch an one would Dethrone him, he ordered Iſaacius Angelus to be apprehended, who flying to a Temple, the People took his part, and proclaimed him Emperor, ſeized Andronicus, put out his Eyes, ſet him on a ſcabbed Camel, ſpared none of his Family, and tormented him with Hooks and Harping-Irons for three days; during which time he was ſo ſenſible of the Juſtice of God, that he acknowledged it amidſt his greateſt Torment, and thank'd his Tormentors; and was at laſt hang'd betwixt two Pillars, after he had Tyrannized two years. Baron. Nicetas.

ANDRONICUS the Second, ſucceeded Michael Paleologus, a ſlothful and unfortunate Prince, who neglecting his Aſiatick Affairs, gave the Turks an opportunity to extend their Empire, and vanquiſh the Alans or Maſſagetes which he ſent to oppoſe 'em. He hir'd alſo for that end Rogerius Lauria, Admiral of the Spaniſh Fleet in Sicily, with better ſucceſs at firſt; but not being able to pay his Forces, they mutinied, and did him more hurt than good. At laſt his Grandchild Andronicus, whom he had indulg'd to exceſs, by the help of the Genoeſes invaded the Empire, Dethron'd his Grandfather, and thruſt him, almoſt blind with Age, into a Monaſtery, where he died, Anno 1332. This Prince perſecuted thoſe that were for uniting the Greek and Roman Church, and on that account digged his Father out of his Grave; for which he was Excommunicated by Pope Clement V. Gregoras Cantacuzen.

ANDRONICUS the Third, ſirnamed the Young, was made Emperor, after he had Dethron'd his Grandfather; and murder'd his Brother to rid himſelf of a Rival. With the aſſiſtance of the Turks he ſubdued the Mitylenians and Phocenſes; and while he was more intent upon the recovery of revolted Theſſaly, than to keep the Turks out of Europe, gave them opportunity to ſettle themſelves, and extend their Dominions; he died Anno 1341. in the 45th year of his Age. Gregoras Cantacuzenus.

ANDRONICUS Paleologus, Son of the Emperor Calo Johannes, being accus'd to his Father for conſpiring his death, was ſeiz'd by his order, and his Eyes put out with boyling Vinegar; yet, blind as he was, he fled to Bajazet, by whoſe aid he Dethron'd his Father, put both him and his Brother in Priſon, and was Proclaimed Emperor: But [illegible] eſcaping, and making a contract with Bajazet, to hold the Empire of him as his Tributary, Bajazet ſent him aſſiſtance to expel his Brother, and ſet the Imperial Diadem upon his Head. [illegible] ſays, that Andronicus reſtor'd his Father to his Honour, and ſuffered his Brother to be Crown'd.

ANNDRONICUS of Rhodes, a Peripatetick Philoſopher, purchas'd Ariſtotle's Works (which Sylla had carried to Rome) from Tyrannion, Sylla's Library-keeper; made it his buſineſs to review 'em, and correct the faults which had happened by length of time and careleſneſs, and then Publiſh'd them. Porphyrius.

ADRONICUS, Prefect of Pentapolis in Egypt, lived in the 5th Century, and was guilty of horrible Impieties towards God, Sacrileges and Outrages to Religious Things and Perſons: He was ſo inſolent as to ſay, That the Biſhops ſhould not be protected from his Severities, tho' they held Jeſus Chriſt by the Feet. He was afterwards Excommunicated at a Council held at Ptolemais, where Syneſius was Biſhop. After the Execution of the Cenſure, he asked pardon for his Barbarities, and ſubmitted to the Penance. Syneſius, Ep. 52. 57. & 68.

ANDRONICUS, (Tranquillus) one of thoſe Learned Greeks who were driven from Conſtantinople after the taking of that Town by the Turks in 1453. He travell'd firſt into Italy, and from thence to Bazil, where he Profeſs'd the Greek Language; from which Place he came to Paris, in the Reign of Lewis XI. And here Hermonymus of Sparta and himſelf, were both Greek Profeſſors.

ANDROPOMPUS, King of Athens, deſcended from Neleus King of Theſſaly, who accepting the Challenge of the King of Thebes, refus'd by Timoetes King of Athens, to end the War by a ſingle Duel, met his Antagoniſt at the Place appointed, and alledging that he had broke the Agreement by bringing a Second with him, killed the Theban King, as looking about to ſee who his Second ſhould be; for which the Athenians elected him, and depoſed Timoetes, A. M. 2875. Strabo.

ANDROS, Andro, an Iſland in the Ægean Sea, one of the Cyclades, with an Epiſcopal City, formerly under the Archbiſhop of Athens, 93 miles in compaſs, 10 miles from the Promontory of Geresto in Eubœa, and 20 from the Iſland of Delos. Here was formerly a Temple of Bacchus, the Water of whoſe Fountains was by the Ancients alledged to taſte of Wine each 7th of January. Plin.

ANDUZE, Lat. Anduſa, Sur le Gardon, a City of France in Low Languedoc, formerly a ſtrong Town, and one of thoſe that declar'd for the Proteſtants under the Duke of Rohan; but at length ſurrendred to Lewis XIII. who diſmantled it.

ANENAS, an Iſland of Norway, upon the South Coaſt of Finmark, near the Iſlands of Veſtrol and Sunnien, and in the midſt between Nidroſia and Wardhouſe.

ANET, upon the River Eure, a Town in the Iſland of France, dignified with the Title of Principality, belonging to the Duke of Vendoſme. The Caſtle is very magnificent, built in the Reign of Henry II. in favour of Diana de Poitiers, Dutcheſs of Valentinois. The Portal is a moſt admirable Structure, over which there ſtands a large Clock, and a Hart of Braſs, that with his Foot ſtrikes the Hours; and a little before the Clock ſtrikes, a Pack of Beagles of the ſame Metal are ſeen to move. The Gardens and Apartments of the Caſtle are alſo admirable.

ANGAMALA, upon the River Aicotta, a ſmall City of India, an Epiſcopal See which was tranſlated to Cranganor by Paul V. in 1609. It is ſeated in the Country of Malabar, and there, and in the Parts adjoyning, live the Chriſtians of St. Thomas. Le Mire.

ANGEDIVA, a little Iſland of the Eaſt-Indies, in the Kingdom of Decan, ſubject to the Portugueſe, who had a Town there, which is now demoliſh'd.

ANGELES, Angelopolis, an Epiſcopal City of New-Spain, built An. 1531. in the Province of Tlaſcala, 22 Spaniſh Leagues from the City of Mexico. Hoffman.

ANGELICI, a ſort of Hereticks ſuppoſed to have their riſe in the Apoſtles time; but grew moſt about An. 180. They were for worſhipping of Angels, and thence had their Name. Roſſe's View, &c.

ANGELITES, a ſort of Sabellian Hereticks, ſo call'd from Angelius, or Angelium, a Place in Alexandria where they uſed to meet. Niceph. l. 18. c. 49.

ANGERMANIA, Anger-man-land, a Province of Swedeland, where is alſo the River Angermannus, and one only City Hernoſand, upon the Bothnic Bay. To the North it has Bothnia, to the Eaſt the Bay of Bothnia, to the South Medelpadia, and to the Weſt part of it Lapland. Hoffman.

ANGERMUND, a Town of Livonia, in the Dukedom of Courland, upon the ſhoar of the Baltick Sea, two Leagues from Wenden to the North.

ANGERMUND, New, a little City of Germany, in the Marquiſate of Brandenburgh, toward Pomerania, upon the River Weſel, defac'd in the laſt Wars, hardly one League from the River Oder, two from Aderburg to the North, and ſix from Stetin to the South.

ANGERONA, the Goddeſs of Silence, Worſhip'd by the ancient Romans, who placed her Image under the Altar of the Goddeſs of Pleaſure, to ſignifie the ſatisfaction that Men reap by the benefits of Silence. Feſtus derives her Name from Angina, becauſe ſhe cur'd the Romans of the Squinancy. Plut. Plin.

ANGERS, Lat. Juliomagus Andicavorum, Andegavorum and Andium, Andegava and Andegavum, in Cæſar, Andes, a fair, large, and populous City, Capital of the Province of Anjou in France, ſituate in a pleaſant open Country, and rich Soil, upon the River Mayenne, which divides it into two Parts, is a Biſhop's See, Suffragan to the Arcbiſhops of Tours. Here are ſtill to be ſeen ſeveral Remains of its ancient Grandeur under the Romans; Its Cathedral built upon a height, is very remarkable for its three ſtately Towers, over the Portal whereof, the middlemoſt, upheld by the two others, ſeems to hang in the Air: Beſides theſe, there are ſeveral other Churches and Religious Houſes of both Sexes well worth the ſeeing. Not far from the Cathedral ſtands a Caſtle, Flank'd with 18 great round Towers, and ſome Half-moons: It's built upon a Rock, encompaſſed with a large and deep Ditch; yet it was taken by the Proteſtants in 1585. The famous Univerſity of Angers, founded by Lewis XI. in 1398. is ſtill much reſorted to for Law and Divinity, alſo for Philoſophy and Mathematicks, taught by the Fathers of the Oratory. The City is noted for its Proceſſion on Corpus Chriſti Day, thought the fineſt in all France; ſo that its commonly ſaid, the Rogations of Poictiers, the Mayory of Rochelle, and Proceſſion of Angers, are the fineſt Sights that can be ſeen. In 1665. ſome Members of the Univerſity, and Learned Citizens, deſirous to advance themſelves in Sciences, Petitioned Lewis XIV. for a Patent for their Academy, which being granted, they limited the number of the Members to 30. and ſince have obtain'd the ſame Privileges with the Royal Academy of Paris, (excepting the Right of Committimus) but they are not to debate Matters of Religion, nor treat of Politicks, but with a due regard to the King's Authority, the Nature of the Government, and the Laws of the Realm: Neither are they to judge of any Works but their own: If any be ſent 'em from other hands, they give their opinion, but neither cenſure nor praiſe it. Their Officers are a Director, a Chancellor, a Secretary, and under Secretary: This City is 26 Leagues Weſt of Tours, and within one mile of the Loire, which here has a Bridge over it, call'd to this day Pont Ce, becauſe built by Cæſar: It is alſo fam'd upon the account of Berengarius, who was Archdeacon here. Sancte Marthe, Du Cheſne.

ANGERVILE, (Richard) a Knight's Son, born at Bury in Suffolk, bred at Oxford, and becauſe of his Learning, made Governour to Edward III. before he came to the Crown, by whom he was afterwards advanc'd to be ſucceſſively his Cofferer, Treaſurer of the Wardrobe, Dean of Wells, Biſhop of Durham, Chancellor, and at laſt Treaſurer of England: He was a great Lover of Books, inſomuch that he alone had more Books than all the Biſhops of England in that Age, and choſe the Learnedeſt of the Clergy for his Chaplains: But Charity was the Virtue he moſt excell'd in. Every week he beſtowed eight Quarters of Wheat, bak'd into Bread, on the Poor; and when he went from Durham to Newcaſtle, (which is but 12 miles) he gave 8 l. to the Poor, and ſo proportionably when he went to other Places. He died in 1345.

ANGLES, ſo call'd from Anglen, a Place near Sleſwick in Holſtein, the Inhabitants whereof, and of the adjacent Parts, came over with the Saxons, and joyn'd with 'em in ſuch multitudes, that their native Soil is ſaid to have remain'd in the days of Beda uninhabited; of which Nation probably was Egbert, the firſt ſole Monarch of the Saxons, who caus'd the Kingdom to be called England, quaſi Angleſland, from whence came the Name of Engliſh.

ANGLESEY, in Lat. Mona, an Iſland and County of North-Wales, called by the Britains Mon or Firmon, and by the ancient Engliſh Saxons, Money; but ſince it became ſubject to the Engliſh, Angleſey, the Engliſh-men's Iſland (Ey in the Saxon Language ſignifying an Iſland.) T'is ſituate in the Iriſh Sea, within a mile of Carnarvanſhire, from which it's parted to the North-weſt by a narrow Streight called Menai; it's 20 miles long and 17 broad, the whole divided into ſix Hundreds, wherein are 74 Pariſhes, and but two Market-Towns. This is a Country ſeemingly barren and really fruitful, affording ſo much Wheat, that it's called the Mother of Wales; and ſuch excellent Millſtones, that when once in motion, if there be no Griſt, they will fire one another. Here is alſo found an Aluminous Earth, whence may be made Allum or Copperas. There are Trees digg'd up daily here out of the moiſt and mooriſh Places. The Market-Towns are Beaumaris and Newburg, the firſt ſending a Burgeſs to ſerve in Parliament, beſides the Knight of the Shire.

ANGOLA, a Kingdom in Africa, to the South of Congo: This Kingdom is reckon'd to comprehend eight Principal Provinces, every one of which is divided into ſmall Seigniories. The Provinces are Lovanda, Sinſo, Ilamba, Icollo, Onſaca, Maſſingan, Cambamba and Embacca: The Country is become very fruitful by good Manuring; and the Lands of Lovanda, which were barren, are made fertile by the Induſtry of the Portugueſes, who make no ſpare of the Pains of the Natives: They have alſo Peopled the Banks of the River Calucala, and Planted 'em with Oranges, Citrons, Pomegranates, and Vines, and have made another New-Spain of the Province of Ilamba. There is a certain Creature bred in this Iſland, by the Negroes called Quojas Morrou; by the Portugueſes, Salvage, which may be eſteem'd a kind of Satyr; It has a large Head, and a Face ſomething reſembling that of a Man; but the Noſe is flat, and turns up towards the Eyes: The reſt of the Body is very like to that of a Man; their Foreparts are bare, but their Backs hairy and black: This Creature is very ſtrong, vigorous and active; ſtands upright, and often walks on his two hind Legs. The Female has a Breaſt, Nipples, and Belly, like to that of a Woman. About 40 years ſince, one of the Females was brought into Holland, and preſented to Prince Frederic Henry; it was about the bigneſs of a Child of three years old, and ſomewhat fat, yet nimble and vigorous: It eat and drank very cleanlily, and lay in Bed as if it had been a humane Creature. The Negroes ſay, That the Males reſiſt Armed Men, are very ſtrong, and many times Raviſh Women. There is another ſort of Water-Monſter, which the Natives call Ambiſſiangulo, and Peſiengoni; the Portugals, Pezze-Mouller; and the Seamen, Sirene. It is about eight Foot long, and four in breadth, with an oval Head and Eyes, a high Forehead, flat Noſe, wide Mouth; but without either Chin or Ears: Theſe Creatures the Portugueſes take in Ginns, and when they are faſt in the ſnare, kill 'em with Darts; during which time they cry out like Men: Their Fleſh hath both the ſmell and ſavour of Pork. In the Lakes of this Country there are Hippopotami, or River-Horſes, and likewiſe ſtore of Whales. The greateſt Trade which the Portugueſes drive in Angola conſiſts in Slaves, which they buy and ſend into America 15000 in a year, to work at their Sugar-Mills, and in their Mines. The Principal Commodities which they import are Woollen Stuffs, Silks, Linen, Gold and Silver Laces, Wine, Brandy, Oyl and Spice. The Inhabitants uſe Bows and Arrows, with a kind of long Pike, and have of late learn'd to handle a Battel-Ax and Scimiter, but do not yet know the uſe of Fire-Arms: Their King can raiſe an Army of 200000 Foot, but they prove ſorry Soldiers, as well as the Congous; for 200 Portugueſes, with ſome Negroes, have often worſted their numerous Armies. The Kingdom of Angola was formerly divided into ſeveral large Seigniories, and each Sova or Lord was Soveraign within his own Territories; yet all acknowledged the King of Congo, and pay'd him Homage as their Protector. The King of Angola keeps his Court in a Village built upon a very high Rock, called Mapongo, inacceſſible of all but one ſide, though above two Leagues in Circuit. This Prince breeds a great number of Peacocks, and forbids his Subjects, upon pain of death, either to keep any, or to do his the leaſt damage. Moſt of the Inhabitants of Angola are ſtill Idolaters, and adore Moquiſies, or falſe Deities of Wood, to which they build Temples. The Ganga's or Prieſts are held in great veneration, becauſe they pretend that by vertue of theſe Moquiſies, they can even open the Heavens, and make Rain fall at pleaſure, diſcover the greateſt Secrets, and foretell things to come; but if they ever perform any extraordinary matter, it's by ſome ſecret in Phyſick, or by certain Charms, for they are all Magicians. The Jeſuits in 1584. Baptiz'd a great number of the Natives; ſo that in 1590. there were above 20000 Chriſtian Angolais. The Biſhop of Angola reſides at Louando ſan Paulo. Dapper deſcription de l'Afrique.

ANGOT, a Kingdom or Province in the middle of Æthiopia, environ'd with ſteep and impaſſable Mountains, reſembling an Amphitheater, in which are kept all the Children of the Royal Family till one of them is called to the Throne. On the North it is bounded by the Kingdom of Tigre, and on the South by that of Amarha; it has fruitful Valleys, and plenty of Corn and Cattel.

ANGOULEME, or Engouleme, a Town of France, upon the River Charante, Capital of Angoumois, with the Title of a Dutchy, Preſidial, Seneſchalſhip, and Biſhop's See, ſuffragant to Bourdeaux, the Ancients nam'd it promiſcuouſly Engoliſma, Ecoleſma, Equoleſma, &c. It's one of the Ancienteſt Towns of the Kingdom, ſituate on the top of a Mountain, at the corner of a great Plain, between the Rivers Charante and Anguienne, which meet at one end of it. It's inacceſſible on all ſides but one, and that very well fortified, as is alſo the Caſtle; but the Cittadel is almoſt ruin'd. Thevet ſays, That it was built by Agellius Marius, a Roman Conſul in Tarquin the Proud's time; but this is uncertain.

French Hiſtorians ſay, that the Walls of it fell of their own accord, when King Clovis took it from the Goths, An. 508. It ſuffer'd much in the 9th Century by the Normans, but more in the laſt Civil Wars.

ANGOUMOIS, a Province of Aquitain in France, between Poitou, Xaintonge, Perigord, and Limoſin: It's 25 Leagues in length, and but 16 or 18 broad: It is very fruitful in Corn, Wine, Saffron, and has excellent Paſture. Beſides Angouleme the chief Town, here are ſeveral others of Note, as Cognac, Bouteville, Roche-Foucault, with many more. This Province is watered with the Charante, and three other Rivers: The Inhabitants are Civil, Courteous, and good Wits. Du Cheſne.

ANGRA, a City of the Iſland of Tercera, one of the Azores, an Epiſcopal See under the Archbiſhop of Lisbon, and the Metropolis of all the Iſlands under the King of Portugal, a ſmall City, but well fortified with a large Caſtle bearing the Name of St. Philip.

ANGRIA, Angern, and Encern, a Town of Weſtphalia, where Hengiſt and Horſus were born, and the Burial-place of Duke Witikindus, the famous Saxon Warrior, with whom Charlemain fought ſo long. It is one League from Hervorden, and 8 from Munſter.

ANGUIEN, call'd Enguien by thoſe of the Low-Countries, is a little Town in Hainault, between Mons and Bruſſels, noted for being the firſt Barony of the Province, and for its Manufactories of all ſorts of Tapeſtries: It gives the Title of Baron to the Princes of the Houſe of Bourbon.

ANGUILLA, Anguis Inſula, one of the Leeward or Caribby Iſlands belonging to England, call'd Anguilla, or Snake-Iſland from its ſhape: It's in the Latitude of 18 Degrees and 21 Minutes on this ſide the Equinoctial, 33 Longitude, reaching about 10 Leagues in length, and 3 in breadth. Tabaco is its principal Commodity: There is alſo abundance of Tame Cattel ſince the Europeans ſtock'd it, whereas formerly none were to be found in thoſe parts; but inſtead of them, ſtrange kind of Creatures, as the Javaris, Opaſſum, Tatous, Aganty, and Allegators.

ANGUILLARA, a Town and Lake belonging to the State of Venice, in the Territory of Padua, near the River Adige, 8 miles from Rocuigo to the North, and 15 from Padua to the South.

ANGUILLARA, a Town of St. Peter's Patrimony, under the Juriſdiction of the Pope, upon the Lake Bracciano, or Sabbatinum, 5 miles from Bracciano, and 18 from Rome. The Lake Bracciano is alſo call'd Anquilaria; and at the expence of Adrian I. was brought to the Vatican for the Service of the Prieſts, to waſh the Poors Feet at Eaſter.

ANGUS, Lat. Anguſia, anciently Æneia, or Horreſtia, a County in the Eaſt of Scotland, bounded by the River Tay on the South, and North-Esk on the North: It was famous of old for giving Title of Earl to a Branch of the Great Family of the Douglas's, many of whom were not only Illuſtrious Generals, but Hero's: It now gives Title of Earl to the Eldeſt Sons of the Marquiſs of Douglas, the laſt of whom was the much-lamented Earl of Angus, a Young Nobleman of great Expectation, unfortunately kill'd in the famous Battel of Steenkirk in Flanders, An. 1692. whilſt ſignalizing himſelf, under King William's Standard, againſt the French, at the Head of his Regiment, ſo well known for the ſtupendious Victory they obtain'd over ſome Forces that appear'd for King James at Dunkell in Scotland, under the Command of their Gallant and Valiant Commanders, Lieut. Col. William Cleand, and Major Henderſon, who both fell in the Action, A. 1689.

ANHALT, a Principality of Germany, in Upper Saxony, with a little City of the ſame Name, almoſt utterly ruin'd: It is bounded by Saxony on the E. Halberſtadt on the W. Magdeburgh on the N. and Mansfieldt and the County of Hall on the S. The Houſe of Anhalt is one of the moſt Ancient, not only of all Germany, but alſo of all Europe: From this Family are ſprung thoſe of Brandenburg and Saxony. Bertius deſcript. Germ.

ANHALT, George, a Prince of that Family, born Aug. 14. 1507. He was a great Linguiſt, Lawyer, and Divine, and Privy Councellor to the Elector of Mentz, and Provoſt of Magdeburg: At laſt he turn'd Proteſtant Miniſter, a very ſucceſsful Preacher; was made Superintendant of their Churches in the Dioceſs of Magdeburg, obtain'd great Fame, wrote divers Books, and died An. 1553. Surius, Melchior Adam.

ANIAN, a famous Streight which the Spaniards call Eſtrecho d'Anian, between the Iſland of California and Terra de Jeſſo: It's thought to lie North of China and Japan, and to ſeparate Aſia from America; but of this there is no certainty.

ANIAN, or Anian-fu, in Latin Aniana, a Town in China, in the Province of Chuquanui.

ANIANUS, Biſhop of Alexandria, and Succeſſor to St. Mark, in the year 62. according to Euſebius; but Baronius places it in 64. He was a Perſon of great Vertue, and ſate 22 years. Euſeb. in Chron. Baron. Annal.

ANIANUS, an Abbot, born in Caſſel in Flanders. He liv'd in the 5th Century, about the year 450. and wrote a General Chronicle from the Beginning of the World to his own Time.

ANIANUS, an Egyptian Monk, liv'd in the time of the Emperor Arcadius, to the year 390. He wrote a Chronological Tract, in which he ſometimes agrees with the Opinion of Euſebius Cæſarienſis, and ſometimes contradicts him, as we may learn from Georgius Syncellus. Voſſius de Hiſt. Gr. l. 2. c. 20.

ANIAVA, by the Natives Aniwa, a famous Promontory in the Land of Jezo, North of Japan, diſcover'd of late by the Hollanders.

ANICETUS, Biſhop of Rome, ſucceeded St. Pius, as ſome ſay; and others, that Pius ſucceeded him: He forbade Clergy-men to wear long Hair; and after he had ſate 11 years, was Martyr'd about 178. The Sect of the Gnoſticks, with ſome others that troubled the Church, came to Rome in his time. St. Polycarp came alſo thither about the celebrating of Eaſter; but they could not agree, Polycarp maintaining that it ſhould be upon the 14th of March, according to the Cuſtom of the Eaſt, and Anicetus holding with the Weſtern Church, that the following Sunday was the time. But this difference of Opinion did not abate their Affection, nor hinder a good Correſpondence between 'em; for they received the Sacrament together, at which Anicetus gave St. Polycarp the Reſpect of the Conſecration. Bar. A.C. 167. Plat.

ANICETUS, Nero's enfranchis'd Bondman, Admiral, and Tutor, who contriv'd the Ship deſign'd for the Murther of Agrippina, Nero's Mother; and accus'd Octavia, Nero's Wife, of Adultery with himſelf, to gratifie his Maſter, who ſought occaſion to be rid of the one, and to divorce the other. Hoff.

ANICIUS Probus, Captain of the Pretorian Bands, and Conſul, was in great requeſt at Rome with Gratian the Emperor, about the year 371. He was a Man of ſingular Vertues, famous through the World for his Piety, and the Richeſt Citizen of Rome. When he ſent St. Ambroſe to be Governor of Inſubria, Liguria, and Emilia, he admoniſh'd him to Govern as a Biſhop, and not as a Judge. He at laſt retired from all his Publick Affairs, to ſpend his time in Devotion. Zoſim.

ANICIUS Baſſus, a Roman, of the Noble Family of the Anicii; firſt Conſul with Philip, in the year 408. and afterwards with Flavius Antiochus, in 431. He thought himſelf diſoblig'd by Pope Sixtus III. and plotted a Revenge, by the Aſſiſtance of Marinianus, another Senator. In the year 433. they accus'd the Pope of Debauching a Nun: The Emperor Valentinian having receiv'd this Information, call'd a Council at Rome, to which the Pope ſubmitted: But after a ſtrict Examination of the matter, he was acquitted; and Baſſus and Marinianus Excommunicated by the Synod, without any hopes of Communion till the point of Death. However, the Emperor did not think this Puniſhment ſufficient, but confiſcated Baſſus's Eſtate, and gave it to the Church. Anaſtaſ. in Sixt. 3. Baron. A. C. 433.

ANIGRUS, or Anicre, a River of Elis in Peloponneſus, where the Poets feign'd that the Centaurs, encounter'd by Hercules, waſh'd their Wounds, which made the Water bitter and muddy, that before was clear and ſweet.

ANILEUS, and Aſineus, two Jews, who, of private Men, became very Powerful: They were Brothers, and lived at Neerda near Babylon, where their Father dying, their Mother bound 'em to a Trade: Being beat by their Maſter for coming late to work, they took Arms, and retired into an Iſland of the Euphrates, where they built a Fort: The great Number of young Men that flock'd thither, put them in a condition to raiſe Contributions on their Neighbours; and their Number encreaſing daily, they grew formidable to the whole Country. Artaban King of Parthia ſent Troops to fight 'em, which they met, and defeated; whereupon that Prince was ſo taken with their Reſolution, that he deſired to ſee the Two Brothers, whom he entertain'd, and diſmiſs'd very kindly. Thus they proſper'd 15 years, until they abandon'd themſelves to Pleaſures, and neglected the Laws of their Anceſtors. Anileus fell paſſionately in Love with the Wife of the Governor of Parthia, and to enjoy her, made War againſt her Husband, kill'd him in Battel, and then Married her, who afterwards poiſon'd him. Aſineus after this, entred the Country of the Parthians, and won ſeveral Battels againſt Mithridates; but was defeated at laſt, and murder'd in the night, by the Babylonians. Joſeph. l. 18. Ant. Jud.

ANIMACHA, a River of India, in the Kingdom of Malabar: It riſes in the Kingdom of Calicut, and falls into the Ocean 6 Leagues from Cranganor. There is likewiſe a Town of the ſame Name ſtanding upon it.

ANJOU, a Province of France, divided into Higher and Lower, formerly a County, and now a Dutchy. The ancient Inhabitants are call'd by Ptolemy, Pliny, and Cæſar, Andes, and Andegavi: It has the Country of Maine to the North, Britany to the Weſt, Touraine to the Eaſt, and Poictou to the South: Its length is 30, and breadth 20 Leagues:

It's extraordinary Fruitful, produces pleaſant and wholeſom Wines, and abounds in fine Rivers, as the Loire, Mayenne, Dive, Eure, &c. Rich Fiſh-Ponds, and excellent Slate-Quarries. Angers is Capital of the whole, and lies in the Lower, as Samur in the Upper Province. The Old Inhabitants were Governed by Captains of their own, and then ſubdued by the Romans. Its Counts furniſh'd the third Race of Kings to the French, and the Plantagenets to the Engliſh, and is now united to the Crown of France ſince Lewis XI. and gives Title to a Prince of the Blood. Du Cheſne, Du Haillan. Henry II. of England was Hereditary Earl of Anjou by his Father; but it was loſt by his Son King John.

ANISTIUS, a Lacedæmonian, one of Alexander the Great's Couriers: 'Tis ſaid that he travell'd on foot in one Day from Sicyon to Elis, which was 1200 Stadia, i. e. 150 Miles. Solin. l. 1.

ANIUS, King of Delos, and High-Prieſt of Apollo, had three Daughters ſo much in Bacchus's Favour, that he gave them the Power of changing whatever they touch'd into Corn, Oil, and Wine: Agamemnon therefore would have taken them with him by force to the Grecian Army; but they complain'd to their Patron Bacchus, who metamorphos'd them into Pigeons. Ovid. The great ſtore of Corn, Wine, and Oil, exacted by Apollo's Prieſt, by the inſtigation of the Devil, to imitate the Sacrifice and Offerings of the True GOD, gave occaſion to the Fable. Hoffman.

ANNA, a City of Arabia Deſerta, upon the River Euphrates, of great Trade, and very populous, until the Turks deſtroy'd above 4000 Houſes in it during their laſt Wars.

ANNA, another Town of Arabia Deſerta upon the River Aſtan near the mouth of it.

ANNA, a Goddeſs preſiding over the Year: The Heathens Sacrific'd to her in the Month of March. Some People take her for the Moon, who, by her ordinary Revolution, makes Months and Years. Ovid. Faſt. l. 3.

ANNABERG, Annaberga, a ſmall Town of Germany, in the Province of Miſnia, upon the Hill Segneberg, towards Bohemia, near the River Schop, nine German Miles from Marpen to the South, and one from Marienberg.

ANNA Comnena, Daughter to Alexis, Emperor of Conſtantinople, flouriſh'd Anno 1118. ſolacing her ſelf, after her Mother and Husband's Death, by Reading, ſhe became extraordinary Learned. She wrote the Hiſtory of her Father's Reign in 15 Books call'd Alexiada. Zonaras commends her as a Woman of a great Soul, indefatigable Study, excellent Wit, elegant Stile, great Converſe with the Learned, and acquainted with the moſt abſtruſe Parts of Learning. Cave Hiſt. Liter.

ANNA Xinga, the eldeſt Daughter of the King of Angola, ſeiz'd the Kingdom after her Father's Death, in 1640. Being a Princeſs of Maſculine Spirit, ſhe made War her chief Diverſion, aſſuming the Name and Apparel of a Man, that ſhe might Command with more Authority. She had ſome Skirmiſhes with the Portugueſes, and afterwards turn'd her Arms againſt the Jagos, whom ſhe defeated in ſeveral Battels; and in 1646. ſack'd all the Villages of the Province of Oando, and carried the Inhabitants Captives.

ANNAACIOUS, Lat. Annacieugi, a People of Braſil in America, whoſe Country borders on the Government of Porto Seguro.

ANNAGH, a Town of the County of Cavan, in the Province of Ulſter, and another of the County of Downe, in Ireland.

ANNARUS, King of Babylon, was ſo abandon'd to his Pleaſure, that beſides the Exceſſes of his Table, he uſed to ſit at Dinner perfum'd in a Woman's Dreſs, with 150 Muſicians thrumming about him. Alex. ab Alex. lib. 5. cap. 2.

ANNE, Mother of the Virgin Mary, was the Daughter of Matthan, a Prieſt of Bethlehem, of the Tribe of Aaron: She was Married to Joachim, and after 20 or 22 years Barrenneſs, bore Mary the 8th of September, in the 739th of Rome. Some great Authors are of Opinion, that St. Anne had three Daughters by Joachim; others, with Gerſon, ſay, ſhe had 'em by three ſeveral Husbands. This Opinion they confirm by St. John, cap. 19. 25. mentioning that the Mother of Jeſus, her Siſter Mary, Wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalen, ſtood near the Croſs. Yet Baronius, and other Modern Authors aſſert, That theſe pretended Daughters were Anne's Siſters; ſaying, That ſhe did not Marry after ſhe bore the Virgin Mary; and anſwer the Words of St. John thus, That in Scripture near Kinſfolks are often term'd Brothers and Siſters.

ANNE, Wife of Elkanah a Levite, took her Barrenneſs ſo much to Heart, that ſhe wept continually. One day at the Tabernacle ſhe pray'd to God earneſtly that ſhe might become a Mother, vowing, That if He did bleſs her with a Son, ſhe would conſecrate him to His Service. God heard her Prayers, and A. M. 2900. ſhe bore Samuel, whoſe Name ſignifies Begg'd of God. Anne, to fulfill her Vow, committed the Child to Eli the High-Prieſt. She had other Sons, and three Daughters. 1 Sam. Joſeph. lib. 5. Antiq. Jud. c. 11.

ANNE the Propheteſs, Daughter of Penuel, being a Widow after ſeven years Marriage, paſs'd the reſt of her days in Faſting and Prayer in the Temple, and join'd with Simeon in Publick Praiſe that Day, when our Saviour was firſt preſented there; and having received the Conſolation of ſeeing him, died a little after, in the 84th of her Age, and firſt of Chriſt. Luke 2. 36.

ANNE, Siſter of Pygmalion the King of Tyre, who uſing her hard, ſhe retired firſt to Carthage, with her Siſter Dido, and after her death, to Battus King of Maltha, and thence into Italy, where, after many Adventures, ſhe drown'd her ſelf in the River Numicus, to ſhun the Anger of Lavinia, Wife of Æneas: But ſhe appear'd to him afterwards, and told him ſhe had taken the Name of Anna Perennis, by which ſhe was worſhipp'd among the Romans, who ſolemniz'd her Feaſt, in the Ides of March, with Debauchery and hard Drinking, believing that this Nymph would add as many Years to their Life, as they took Glaſſes to her Honour: Others ſay, they drank as many Glaſſes as their Miſtreſſes Name contain'd Letters. Martial alludes to this in theſe Verſes:

Nænia Sex Cyathis, ſeptem Juſtina bibatur,
Quinque Gycas, Lyde quatuor, Ida tribus.

ANNE, Dutcheſs of Britany, Daughter and Heireſs of Duke Francis II. was born in 1476. and promis'd in Marriage to Maximilian of Auſtria; but the Duke her Father dying ſoon after the loſs of the Battel of St. Aubin, ſhe was Married to Charles VIII. of France, who thereupon ſent away Margaret of Auſtria, Daughter of Maximilian aforeſaid (to whom he was contracted) who highly reſented this double Affront. ANNE of Hungary, Queen of Hungary and Bohemia, Daughter to Ladiſlaus VI. King of Hungary, &c. was Married to Ferdinand of Auſtria, Brother to Charles V. and ſucceeded her Father as Heir of both the Kingdoms, in virtue whereof Ferdinand was Crown'd at Alba Regalis in 1527. This occaſion'd cruel Wars in Hungary; for John de Zapol, Count of Scepus, and Vaivode of Tranſilvania, being alſo declared King by ſome Malecontents, and unable to cope with Ferdinand, put himſelf under the Protection of Solyman, Emperor of the Turks, who marched with a Powerful Army thro' Hungary, and ſate down before Vienna in 1529. This Princeſs bore all theſe Rubs of Fortune with great Patience, and died of her 15th Child, in 1547. Thuan. Marian. &c.

ANNE, Daughter of Frederick II. King of Denmark, was Married to James VI. of Scotland and 1ſt of England, in the year 1589. Baker's Chron.

ANNE of Cleves, Daughter of John III. Duke of Cleves and Juliers, was Marry'd to Henry VIII. King of England, and was afterwards Divorced from him. Burnet Hiſt. Reform. Vol. 1.

ANNE of Auſtria, eldeſt Daughter to Philip III. King of Spain, and of Margaret of Auſtria, was Married to Lewis XIII. call'd The Juſt, in November, 1615. After the Death of her Husband, ſhe was declared Regent by Lewis XIV. in 1643. and had the Adminiſtration of the Government during the Minority of her Son. This Queen built the ſtately Church of Val. de Grace, in the Fauxburgs of St. James, in Paris, &c.

ANNE, third Daughter of K. Charles I. was born at St. James's, March 17, 1637. She was a pregnant Lady above her Age, and died when not full four years old: Being minded by thoſe about her to call upon God, when the Pangs of Death were upon her, I am not able, ſays ſhe, to ſay my long Prayer, (meaning the Lord's Prayer;) but I will ſay my ſhort one; which was, Lighten my Eyes, O Lord, leſt I ſleep the Sleep of Death! This done, ſhe gave up the Ghoſt.

ANNEAU, a Town of Chartres in la Beauſe in France, made famous by the Defeat of a formidable Army of Germans, by Henry Duke of Guiſe, in 1587.

ANNEBAUT, Claude, Baron of Rets, Commandant of the Order of St. Michael, Mareſchal and Admiral of France, ſignaliz'd himſelf in defence of Mezieres, An. 1521. againſt the Count of Naſſaw; was taken at the Battel of

He was Chief Miniſter to Francis I. during Montmerency's Diſgrace, but ſet aſide by Henry II. He was a Perſon of extraordinary Probity, and without all Avarice. Thuanus, Mezeray.

ANNECY, in Lat. Annecium, a pretty large Town of Savoy, at the foot of the Mountains of Saymenoz, a Lake of the ſame Name, ſix Leagues South of Geneva, and reckon'd formerly the Capital of that Dutchy: The Lake is unfathomably deep, four Leagues long, and half a League broad, and gives riſe to the River Tioud. This Town is the Reſidence of the Titular Biſhops of Geneva, hath ſeveral Churches and Monaſteries, and the Houſes are all built upon Arches, which, with the ſeveral ſmall Channels that run from the Lake, render it a fine and pleaſant Place. Baudrand.

ANNESLEY; James Earl of Angleſey in North-Wales, is Son of Arthur Anneſley, the firſt who brought this Title into his Family. Being Lord Mount Morris, and Viſcount Valentia in Ireland, was, in the year 1661. created by the late King Charles, Earl of Angleſey, in recompence of his Good and Faithful Service, to the hazard both of his Life and Fortune. This Nobly Family is deſcended, by the Father, from the Ancient and Honourable Family of Anneſley in Nottinghamſhire; and by Mother, from the Philips of Piſton-Caſtle in Pembrokeſhire. The ſaid Arthur was Lord Privy-Seal moſt part of King Charles's Reign, and died in the Reign of King James II. being eſteem'd a Perſon of very great Learning and Parts. He was ſucceeded in his Eſtate and Title by his Son and Heir, James, the preſent Earl of Angleſey, Wedded to Elizabeth, Daughter to the Earl of Rutland, by whom he has ſeveral Children. Dugdale.

ANNIANUS of Campania, Deacon of Celedon, Amanuenſis to Pelagius, a great Champion of that Hereſie. He flouriſh'd An. 415. wrote againſt St. Jerome, and Tranſlated St. Chryſoſtome's Homilies. Cave, Hiſt. Lit.

ANNICERIS, a Diſciple of Ariſtippus: He ranſom'd Plato, and was Author of one of the Five Sects of Cyrenaicks. Diog. Laert. in Ariſtip.

ANNIUS de Viterbo, a Dominican Friar, and Maſter of the Sacred Palace; a good Linguiſt and Antiquary, but a far greater Impoſtor, as appears by the ſeveral falſe Pieces and forged Treatiſes, which he would have impoſed upon the World as real. Antonius Auguſtinus, in his 10th Dialogue, ſays, That he got ſome Inſcriptions engraved, which he afterwards hid in Meadows and Vineyards, and took care that they ſhould be found after ſome time, and then carry'd 'em in Triumph to the Magiſtrates of Viterbo, perſuading 'em that their City was of a longer ſtanding than Rome, and was built by Iſis and Oſiris, who liv'd 2000 years before Romulus. He died in 1500. Leander Alberti has been impos'd on by him; and ſo has Sixtus Senenſis, Nauclerus, Driedo, Medina, and others: For this reaſon Joſeph Scaliger, Suarez, Voſſius, Miræus, and ſeveral other Great Men, have caution'd young People againſt giving credit to the Relations of this Annius. Scalig. l. 1. de Emendat. Tempor.

ANNOBON, an Iſland of Africa upon the Coaſts of Guinea, towards the Cape de Lopo, Gonſalves, and the Iſle of St. Thomas: It's about 10 Leagues round: The Portugueſes diſcover'd it on New-year's-day, and therefore call it Annobon.

ANNOMEANS, the Name of the thorough-pac'd Arrians in the 4th Century, becauſe they held the Eſſence of the Son of God, unlike to that of the Father. Theſe Hereticks were condemned by the Semi-Arrians at the Council of Seleucia, An. 359. But they revenged themſelves of this Cenſure a year after, at a pretended Synod in Conſtantinople. St. Hilar. ad Conſt. Socrat. l. 2.

ANNONAY, in Lat. Annonæum, a Town in France in the Upper Vivarets, two Leagues from the Rhoſne; has the Title of Marquiſate belonging to the Family of Vantadour: Some Authors think this place very ancient, and that it had its Name from the Romans, who laid up great Proviſions of Corn in it, which they call'd Annona: However, it ſuffer'd extreamly in the laſt Civil Wars, being then twice pillag'd and burnt. Thuanus, Du Cheſne.

ANNONCIADE: There are ſeveral Orders and Societies of this Name; but the moſt remarkable is an Order of Knights, inſtituted by Amadeus Count of Savoy, in 1355. under the Name of the Knot of Love; which Name Amadeus VIII. the firſt Duke of Savoy, chang'd for that of Annunciado. The Collar had theſe Letters engraven in it; F. E. R. T. which ſignifie Fortitudo ejus Rhodum tenuit: His Valour held out Rhodes; meaning Amadeus the Great, who forc'd the Saracens to raiſe the Siege of Rhodes, in 1310. The Cloak was firſt Red, then Blue, and now of the Colour of an Amaranth, lin'd with Cloth of Silver, on a Ground of Blue, fring'd and border'd with True-Lovers Knots curiouſly wrought. The Great Collar of the Order, which the Knights wear at Solemn Feſtivals and Publick Ceremonies, weighs 250 Crowns of Gold. Guichenon Hiſt. de Savoye.

ANNONCIATION, a Feaſt kept by the Church of Rome, in memory of the Angel's ſaluting the Virgin Mary, and acquainting her that ſhe ſhould bring forth Chriſt. It us'd to be ſolemniz'd on the 25th of March, which is the Day, as St. Auguſtine thinks, whereon the Divine Word united it ſelf to Human Nature, until 659. that the 10th Council of Toledo in Spain, order'd it ſhould be ſolemniz'd upon the 18th day of December, becauſe it often fell in Paſſion-Week, a time of Penance rather than Mirth: But it was ſoon chang'd to its proper Day again, with Orders, That when it fell upon a Day deſtin'd to the Ceremonies of our Saviour's Death or Reſurrection, it ſhould then be kept after Eaſter. S. Gregor. Thaumaturg.

ANPADORE, a River in Candia, call'd by the Ancients Catharactus. Ptol. Suid.

ANSA, a River in Friuli in Italy; it runs by Aquileia, and diſcharges it ſelf into the Gulph of Venice. The Latins call'd it Alſa, which is likewiſe the Name of Hellaius, or the Ill in Alſatia.

St. ANSCHAIRE, Sirnam'd The Apoſtle of the North, firſt Archbiſhop of Hamburgh and Bremen, was born in France about 805. and brought up in the Monaſtery of Corbie. The Sweeds ſending for ſome Clergy-men to Preach the Goſpel in their Country, Anſchaire went thither in 829. became Archbiſhop of Hamburgh in 834. and died at Bremen of a Bloody-flux, in 869. after he had Converted a great part of the North. Paulin. Corbei Sax.

ANSE, a ſmall Town of France in Lyonnois, near the Sone, four Leagues North of Lyons. The Emperor Auguſtus kept a Garriſon of 2400 Men here, and call'd it Antium: Part of the Walls that ſurrounded the Roman Camp, as alſo part of that Prince's Palace, are ſtill to be ſeen, though the Town was almoſt utterly deſtroy'd in the laſt Civil Wars. A Council was held here by the Pope's Legate, An. 1101. where all thoſe who had vow'd an Expedition into the Holy Land, till they had put themſelves into a Condition to perform the Service, were Excommunicated. Parad. Hiſt. de Lyon.

ANSELM, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, ſucceeded to Lanfrank about the end of the 11th Age, and the beginning of the 12th: He was before Abbot of Le Bec, about 6 Leagues from Rouan in Normandy, in the Reign of William Rufus, and Henry I. his Brother. Baronius gives him this Glorious Character, That he was the great Light of the Church, becauſe the Holineſs of his Life, Soundneſs of his Doctrine, and Virtue of his Miracles, both alive and dead, his Devotion and Learning, are unqueſtionable. But it's added, That he was ſomewhat rigid, and ſpar'd no Man, no, not the King himſelf. Before his time, moſt of the Clergy led a Conjugal Life; but Anſelm order'd that they ſhould not Marry, and that none ſhould be admitted to Orders without a Vow of Celibacy: Such as were Married he turn'd out, cauſing their Goods to be ſeiz'd to the uſe of their reſpective Biſhops, and declaring them and their Wives in a ſtate of Fornication: Nor could the King himſelf, who commiſerated their Caſe, incline him to any Moderation, being hurried on, not ſo much by Ill-nature, as by the prevalent Error of thoſe Times: Whereupon he was baniſh'd by King Rufus, but recall'd by Henry at his coming to the Crown. Soon after his Reſtauration, broke out the Quarrel about the Biſhop's Inveſtiture, being a Branch of the King's Prerogative; againſt which Pope Urban had decreed, That none ſhould be Conſecrated Biſhop that was Inveſted by the King; the manner of which was, by giving the Biſhop a Ring and a Paſtoral Staff. Anſelm thereupon refus'd to Conſecrate ſuch as were Inveſted by the King, or to own any for Biſhop that had been Conſecrated in his abſence; ſo that he was forc'd to quit the Country again, till the matter being ſettled between the Pope and King, he was recall'd about 1107. In 1109. he died of a lingring Diſeaſe, and 400 years after, was Canoniz'd for a Saint. Mr. Wharton, in his Anglia Sacra, adds, That, An. 1075. Anſelm being at the Council of Bari, in the Kingdom of Naples, the Pope forgot to aſſign him his Place, becauſe of the Crowd of Prelates thronging in; but was quickly oblig'd to call for him, by the Subtilty of the Arguments brought by the Greeks, to prove that the Holy Ghoſt did not proceed from the Father; and finding himſelf run a-ground, he thought of Anſelm, and call'd for him aloud, thus: Father, Maſter, Anſelm Archbiſhop of England, Where are you? At which Anſelm ſtanding up, the Pope beſpoke him thus: Now, Maſter, there is need of your Learning and Eloquence: Come up hither, and defend your Mother the Church againſt the Greeks, as being ſent by God for that end. At which the whole Aſſembly faſtning their Eyes upon him, the Pope order'd him to come and ſit before him, by the Archdeacon of Rome, ſaying, Let us incloſe, in this World of ours, the Pope of the other World: And then diſcourſing before them all of his Genealogy, Ability, and Fidelity to the Roman See, for which he had ſuffer'd, the Debate was put off till next day, (though Anſelm was ready to undertake it extempore.) The Diſpute being renew'd at the time appointed, our Archbiſhop did ſo clearly and acutely diſcuſs the Enemies Arguments, as rejoic'd the Latins, and confounded the Greeks: Whereupon the whole Council applauded him, ſome commending his Faith, others his Learning, and all his Eloquence. To conclude, the Pope turning toward him, ſaid, Bleſſed be thy Heart, thy Underſtanding, thy Mouth, and the Words of thy Mouth: And becauſe it was the firſt time that ever any Archbiſhop of Canterbury aſſiſted at a Roman Council, a Place was appointed in the Circle, by the Archdeacon of Rome, for him and his Succeſſors for ever. This Learned Prelate wrote abundance of Books, the Catalogue of which is too long here to inſert; ſuch as are curious may ſee both his real and ſuppoſititious Works, in the Learned Dr. Cave's Hiſt. Literaria.

ANSELM, Deacon of Laon in the Iſle of France, flouriſh'd about 1103. He was a famous Man in his time, Author of the Bible with the Marginal and Interlineary Gloſſes, gathered from the Fathers: He wrote alſo Commentaries on other Places; the laſt Edition was at Antwerp, An. 1634. and ſome of his Works are aſcrib'd to Anſelm of Canterbury above-mention'd. Cave, ſupra.

ANSELM, Abbot of Gemblours in Brabant: He liv'd in the 12th Century. He continu'd the Chronicle of Sigebert his Predeceſſor, from the year 1112. to 1137. It was afterwards continu'd to 1149. and laſtly, a Monk of Anchin carry'd it on to 1225. This Chronicon was publiſh'd by Albertus Miræus, at Antwerp, in 1608. Miræus in Prolog. ad Chron. Sig. Valer. Andreas Bibl. Belg.

ANSELM, a Benedictine Monk of Rheims, liv'd in the 11th Century. He wrote a Journal of Pope Leo IX. Travelling into France in the year 1049. this Pope came to Cologne, where he had an Interview with the Emperor Henry III. and afterwards paſs'd on to Aix la Chapelle, Liege, Rheims, Metz, Mentz, &c. where he held ſeveral Councils. Anſelm relates all theſe Matters, and the Reaſons why the Pope took this Method. Sigebert de Script. Eccl. cap. 152. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. lib. 2. c. 44.

ANSENE, call'd in Latin Angira, a little Town in Egypt, 20 Leagues from Grand Cairo: This Place is mention'd by Ptolemy.

ANSER, a Poet very much in favour with Mark Anthony, whoſe Actions he wrote in Verſe, for which he was rewarded, by Mark Anthony, with a Country-Houſe at Falernum. Cicero makes an alluſion to this Buſineſs, in his 13th Philippick, where he tells us, De Falerno Anſeres depellantur. Virgil had no fanſie for this Poet, as we may underſtand by his pointing at him, in theſe Verſes, in his 9th Eclog.

Digna: ſed argutos interſtrepere Anſer Olores.

ANSIANACTES, a People of Africa, in the Weſtern part of the Iſle of Madagaſcar, near St. Mary's Iſland. Flacourt.

ANSIQUAINS, Lat. Anſicani, a People of Africa in the Upper Æthiopia, North of Congo towards the Loanchi, ſaid to be very Faithful and Dexterous.

ANSLO, in Latin Anſloga, a Town of Norway near the Sea, 56 German Miles Weſt of Stockholm, where there is a convenient Port upon a Streight, to which this Town has given its Name. It was almoſt burnt to aſhes under Chriſtiern IV. King of Denmark, who rebuilt it again, and deſign'd to have call'd it Chriſtianſtadt: It's the Seat of a Sovereign Court, and Biſhop's See, Suffragan to the Archbiſhop of Drontheim, and one of the conſiderableſt Towns in Norway, near the Fortreſs of Aggerhus, towards Frederickſtadt. Here is alſo a fine Navigable River. In this City were celebrated the Nuptials between King James VI. of Scotland, and Anne of Denmark, Nov. 23. 1589. Baudr.

ANSPACHIUM, Anſpach, a City of Germany in Franconia, with a Caſtle upon a little River of the ſame Name, which ſome call Onoltzbach, 6 Leagues from Noremberg, from whence the Princes of Anſpach, of the Houſe of Brandenburgh derive their Title: He has a Voice in the Diet of the Empire, but no Power to determine any Law-Suits among his Subjects, if the Sum exceeds 400 Florins.

ANTÆAS, a King of Scythia, who having taken Iſmena, a famous Muſician, ordered her to Sing at Supper; and when all that were preſent admired her Voice, ſwore a great Oath, That he had heard many a Horſe Neigh more pleaſantly; ſo little Delight had he in Muſick. Plutarch.

ANTÆUS, a Giant of Libya, Son of Neptune and Terra, who when he was tired, was wont to refreſh himſelf by touching the Earth; and who having deſigned to erect a Temple to Neptune of Men's Skulls, kill'd all he met; which Hercules underſtanding, went and fought him; but finding that Antæus was ſtrengthned by his Mother the Earth, he lifted him up in his Arms in the Air, and ſqueez'd him to death. This Fable is grounded in good part upon a real Truth; for Antæus is ſaid to be the Chieftain of an African Colony, which got thither partly by Land, partly by Sea, who being ſettled, had fortified himſelf in ſuch a manner, that the place was altogether impregnable; but Hercules drew him out of this Strong-hold by a Stratagem, and vanquiſh'd him. Hercules Married his Wife Tinga, and had Syphax by her, from whom Juba, King of Mauritania, pretended to have his Original; and Plutarch ſays, that Sertorius found the Corps of this Antæus at Tingis, ſuppoſed to be Tangier, and that it was 60 Cubits long.

ANTAGORAS, a Rhodian Poet, in great Favour with Antigonus, King of Macedon, who carried him always with him; and underſtanding that he was very buſie one day in cooking a Conger, as he ſate at Dinner call'd to Antagoras, and ask'd, whether Homer ever minded Cookery, when he wrote the Acts of Agamemnon? To which Antagoras made this quick Reply, That Agamemnon never went about his Camp to enquire who dreſs'd Fiſh. Pauſanias, Plutarch.

ANTAVARES, a People of the Southern part of the Iſle of Madagaſcar, between the Country of Matatane to the South, and the Vohitmanes to the North: Their Country is very fruitful in Rice, Sugar-Canes, and Honey, whereof they make Wine; nor do they want good Oxen, Fowls, &c. Theſe Conveniencies invited the French to ſettle there ſome years ago, but they were ſoon maſſacred by the Natives. There are ſome Mines of Gold in the Hills, whence the Blacks bring Gold-Duſt. Flacourt, Hiſt. de Madagaſcar.

ANTEGOA, one of the Caribby Iſlands in the Weſt-Indies belonging to England, Lat. 16. 00. betwixt Barbadoes, Guadalupe, and Deſirée; 6 or 7 Leagues long, and as much broad in ſome places: It's ſurrounded with Rocks, and of dangerous acceſs for Ships. It was formerly conceived uninhabitable for want of Freſh Water; but the Engliſh have met with ſome few Springs, beſides Ponds and Ciſterns, which the Inhabitants, who are about 8 or 900, have made for the preſervation of Rain-Water. It abounds with Fiſh and Fowl, and hath alſo Veniſon and Tame Cattel. The chief Commodities are Sugar, Indigo, Ginger, and Tabaco: It has plenty of Sea-Fiſh; the Dorada, by ſome call'd the Sea-Bream, and by others the Amber-Fiſh, is here common, being as good as Trout or Salmon, and ſo beautiful, that its Head in the Water ſeems to be of a Green gilt, and the reſt of the Body as yellow as Gold. The Sea-Parrots are alſo admirable both for Beauty and Goodneſs, and ſome of 'em have been found of 20 pound weight. Here are alſo plenty of excellent Tortoiſes of an extraordinary bigneſs. Amongſt its Sea-Monſters, the Shark and the Becune, both very greedy of Man's Fleſh, are of chief Note. They have alſo a Sea-Urchin, or Hedgehog, round as a Ball, and full of ſharp Prickles. The Canades and Flamets, amongſt the Wild-Fowl, deſerve our notice: The firſt, reckoned the moſt Beautiful Bird in the World, is about the bigneſs of a Pheaſant, exceeding kind and familiar with its Friends, but as ſevere to its Enemies. The Flamet is a very Beautiful Bird, but larger than the Canade, almoſt as big as a Wild-Gooſe. In the laſt place, this Iſland is liable to the Inconveniencies of an exceſſive Heat and troubleſome Hurricanes.

ANTEIUS Publius, being falſly accuſed of conſpiring Nero's Death, and fearing to fall into the Tyrant's hands, poiſon'd himſelf; but tired with the ſlow working of the Potion, cut his Veins to haſten his Death. Tacit.

ANTENOR, a Trojan Prince, accus'd by ſome to have join'd with Æneas to deliver Troy to the Greeks, at leaſt, that he betray'd his Country, becauſe he entertain'd the Grecian Ambaſſadors that came to demand Helena, and did not diſcover Ulyſſes, though he knew him in his Diſguiſe. However it were, he came into Italy at the head of a conſiderable Number of Trojans and Heneti, and expelling the Euganians that inhabited the Banks of the Po, built the City of Padua, the Inhabitants whereof do ſtill preſerve his Tomb, and in their Publick Shows repreſent ſomething of Troy and the Trojan Horſe. Brown's Travels, Homer, Virgil.

ANTEQUERA, a ſmall City of Spain in the Kingdom of Granada, famous for the Rebellion of the Moors under Ferdinand Valerio, who aſſum'd the Name of Mahomet Aben Humeia. Thuan.

ANTEQUERA Nova, an Epiſcopal City of New-Spain in America, and in the Province of Guaxaca, erected into a Biſhoprick by Paul III. in the year 1547. It has a Noble Cathedral built upon Marble Pillars.

ANTEROS, or Counterlove: Poets feign, that Venus obſerving her Son Cupid did not grow, adviſ'd with the Goddeſs Themis, who told her ſhe muſt get him a Brother, and that then there being a Reciprocal Love, Cupid would certainly grow; whereupon Venus got this Anteros, and immediately Cupid's Wings began to ſtretch. Theſe two Brothers were painted like two little Cupids, ſtriving to ſnatch a Branch of Palm-Tree one from the other, to intimate that True Love endeavours always to overcome in Kindneſs and Good Turns. The Grecians repreſented them in their Academies, to teach their Scholars to be grateful to their Benefactors, and return Love for Love. The Athenians worſhipp'd Anteros as a God, and built him Altars. Cic. l. 3. de la Nat. des Dieux.

ANTERUS, the 19th Biſhop of Rome, ſucceeded Pontianus, Dec. An. 237. order'd the Acts of Martyrs to be diligently recorded, and carefully laid up in the Treaſury of the Church. He alſo made an Order againſt Tranſlating Biſhops for their private Benefit, but only for the ſake of the Flock committed to 'em, and by the Leave of the Supream Biſhop. He was advanc'd in the Reign of Maximinus, ſate 11 years, and then ſuffer'd Martyrdom, according to Platina; but Dr. Pearſon and others think he ſate but one year.

ANTESSA, or Antiſſa, a City in the Iſle Lesbos, formerly a Biſhop's See, Suffragan of Mitylene. Ovid, and the ancient Geographers, ſpeak of it as having been formerly an Iſland of it ſelf, but in proceſs of time the Canal between it and Lesbos has been fill'd up.

ANTEVORTA, a Goddeſs worſhipp'd by the Romans for things paſt, as they did Poſtvorta for things to come, reckoning them the Councellors of Providence. Macrob.

ANTHARITUS, or Antharis, a King of the Lombards, Son of Clephis. After the Death of this Clephis, the Lombards, by Common Conſent, made choiſe of 30 Dukes to Govern in ſo many reſpective little Provinces, independantly of each other. But this Form of Adminiſtration laſted but 10 years, upon the account of the ill Conduct of theſe Governors, and their Diſputes and Miſunderſtandings with each other: For this reaſon Antharitus was declar'd King, in the year 586. St. Greg. l. 6. Ep. 21. Paul. Diac. l. 3. Hiſt. Long. c. 18. &c.

ANTHARIUS, King of the Sicambrians, who poſſeſſed the Dukedom of Guelders, plunder'd the City of Mayence, then a Roman Colony, but was afterwards ſlain by them in a Battel, 37 years before the Birth of Chriſt, and was ſucceeded by his Son Francus, whence the People were call'd Franks.

ANTHEMIUS, a famous Architect, exquiſite Statuary, and Learned Mathematician, ſignaliz'd by his Inventions to imitate Thunder, Lightning, and Earthquakes, by which he frighted Zeno the Rhetorician out of his Houſe, which was next to his.

ANTHEMIUS (Flavius) Emperor of the Weſt: He marry'd Euphemia, Daughter to the Emperor Marcian. The Emperor Leo ſent him into Italy, to Govern in the Weſt, where he was declared Emperor by the Army of Ricimer, 8 miles from Rome. He was afterwards kill'd by the Perfidiouſneſs of his Father-in-Law Ricimer, An. 472. Sidon. Apoll. Caſſiod. Evag. l. 2. c. 18.

ANTHEMIUS, Governour of Conſtantinople, a Perſon of great Worth: The Government of this City was entruſted with him, after the Death of Arcadius, and during the Minority of Theodoſius the Younger, An. 408. There was another Anthemius, Conſul with Florentius, in the year 415. Socrat. l. 7. c. 1. Caſſiod. in Faſt. Conſul. &c.

ANTHESPHORIA, certain Feſtivals ſolemniz'd by the ancient Greeks in Honour of Proſerpina, who at times adorn'd the Temple of that Goddeſs with all ſorts of Flowers, becauſe that when Proſerpina was raviſh'd by Pluto, ſhe was gathering Flowers upon Mount Ætna in Sicily. Claudian.

ANTHIUS, a City built by the Romans on the Eaſtern Shore of the Nile, as appears by many Marble Inſcriptions ſtill extant: It is now a beautiful, populous, well-govern'd City, and has many Skilful Workmen. The Fields about it yield plenty of Corn, Rice, and Dates, and the Inhabitants are very rich. Leo. Af. p. 304. This ſeems to be the Athribis of Ptolemy.

ANTHONY, the Sirname of an Engliſh Family, deriving their Original from the Saxons before the Conqueſt: The firſt of 'em appearing on Record, is John Anthony of Attleſtone, who Married the Daughter and Heir of one Deltoron a Norman, and for his Service to William the Conqueror, was reſtored to his Lands. From the ſaid John, are all thoſe of this Sirname in England deſcended, who for 20 Generations have lived in Fame and Honour, without a Blot in their 'Scutcheon, two of them having been Knights Batchelours, Signed by William Ryley, Herauld at Arms, Lancaſter, June 20. 1646. Since that time, there have been two Generations more; of this Family Joſeph, a Merchant of Amſterdam, is deſcended.

ANTHONY. See Antony.

ANTHROPOMORPHITES, otherwiſe call'd Audeans, from Audeus their Leader, were Hereticks that maintain'd God had a Human Shape, and that thereupon Man was created after his Image. The Followers of Montanus believ'd the Soul alſo to be corporeal; and Tertullian is charg'd with this Error. Sigebert, An. 939.

ANTHROPOPHAGI, Men-eaters, or Canibals, a People of America, eſpecially towards Braſil and the Magellanic Province. In the upland Countries the Spaniards have endeavour'd to extirpate them; but all to no purpoſe, having been frequently worſted by them, and repuls'd with great ſlaughter: But upon the Sea-Coaſts the Chriſtians have been too hard for them, and brought 'em under Subjection. There are likewiſe ſome of theſe Canibals in the Lower Æthiopia, confining upon the Caffres, and alſo in Zanguebar.

ANTIADIAPHORISTS, a Party of rigid Lutherans, who, according to Prateolus, diſallow'd of the Government of Biſhops, and the Ceremonies of the Church.

ANTIBES, Lat, Antipolis, a City and Sea-Port of Provence in France, formerly an Epiſcopal See under the Archbiſhop of Ambrun, which was afterwards tranſlated to Graſſe. It was a Colony of the Inhabitants of Marſeilles, who built it, which ſtill preſerves ſeveral Monuments of its Antiquity, as Inſcriptions, Urns, Statues, Pillars, &c. In 1608. Henry IV. purchas'd this City of Alexander Grimaldi, and Charles of Lorrain, Duke of Mayne, and united it to the Demeſns of Provence. It is defended with a Caſtle, has a convenient Port, and the adjacent Country is fruitful. St. Math. Godeau.

ANTI-CATONES, a Name which Julius Cæſar gave to two Books wrote againſt Cato, or rather againſt Tully, who wrote a Book call'd Cato, in Commendation of that Senator. Plutarch.

ANTI-CHRIST, by way of Eminence, the Name of a Perſon, whom St. Paul calls the Man of Sin, and the Son of Perdition, who at the latter end of the World is to appear more remarkably in oppoſition to Chriſtianity: His Reign is ſuppoſed to continue 3 years and a half, during the which time there will be a moſt terrible Perſecution. This is the Opinion of the Roman Catholicks. The Proteſtants are divided about the Perſon of Antichriſt: Grotius, and Dr. Hammond, apply the Scripture-Deſcriptions of this Perſecutor and Impoſtor, to Caligula, Simon Magus, and the Gnoſticks.

ANTICYRE, an Iſland of Theſſaly, famous for Hellebore, which is good for purging the Brain, whence came the Proverb, Naviget Anticyras, applied to thoſe who are fooliſh. Suetonius mentions a Prætor of Rome, who having repair'd hither for his Health's ſake, requeſted Caligula that he might have leave to ſtay there longer; which the cruel Emperor refus'd, and order'd him to be put to death, ſaying, It was high time to Bleed, ſeeing Hellebore had not cured his Madneſs.

ANTI-DICOMARIANI, a ſort of Helvidian Hereticks, who held that the Bleſſed Virgin had Children by Joſeph, after our Saviour. Epiphan. Hær. 78. Hieron. contra Helvid.

ANTIFELLO, Lat. Antiphellus, a City of Lyſia in Aſia, ſituate on the Mediterranean near Patara, formerly a Biſhop's See, Suffragan of Mira. Pliny.

ANTIGINES, one of Alexander the Great's Commanders: He had the Second Prize adjudged to him, of thoſe Eight which were given to Eight of the Braveſt Men in the Army. This Reward was a Regiment of Men conſiſting of 1000, whereas before, the Macedonian Regiment was but 500. He afterwards Commanded the Legion, or Brigade, call'd Algyraſpides. He betray'd Eumenes to Antigonus, and after having receiv'd the Reward of his Perfidiouſneſs, he was burnt alive in an Iron Cage, by the Order of that Prince, for fear he might ſerve him ſo afterwards. Quint. Curt. l. 5. c. 10.

ANTIGONIA, the Name of Two Cities, one in Epirus, now call'd Caſtro Argiro, another in Macedon, now Coiogna and Antigoca, alſo an Iſland diſcover'd by the Portugueſe near that of St. Thomas, another in the Propontis, betwixt Conſtantinople and Nicomedia.

ANTIGONUS, one of Alexander the Great's Captains and Succeſſors, to whoſe Share, by the Dividend agreed on amongſt 'em, Aſia fell; but this Contract being quickly violated, he killed and defeated Eumenes, when the Argyraſpides had deliver'd him into his Hands. After that he expell'd Seleucus out of Syria, who flying to Ptolemy Lagus in Egypt, it occaſion'd a bloody War between Antigonus and Ptolemy, aſſiſted by Caſſander; but Antigonus, by the help of his Son Demetrius, made good his Party, and having defeated Ptolemy in a Signal Battel, for joy thereof he built the City of Antigonia upon the ſpot, An. 448 of Rome; after which Caſſander, Seleucus, and Lyſimachus, united againſt him with 75000 Foot, 10000 Horſe, 6000 Chariots, and 67 Elephants. Antigonus joining with Pyrrhus King of Epirus, oppos'd them with 70000 Foot, 10000 Horſe, and 75 Elephants, but loſt the Battle and his Life near Epheſus, in the 80th year of his Age, and 453 of Rome. It's ſaid of this Antigonus, that ſeeing his Soldiers Playing at Tennis in their Armour, he ſent for the Officers to divert himſelf with 'em, but finding that they ſotted away their time in Taverns, he took their Commiſſions, and gave 'em to the Common Soldiers. To one that wonder'd at his mildneſs in his old Age, ſeeing he was ſo very ſevere when Young, he anſwered, That Mildneſs is the ſureſt way of preſerving what was got by force. To a Poet that call'd him Divine, ſays he, My Valet de Chambre can inform you to the contrary. He told one of his Sons, a Proud young Man, that to be a King, was to be but a Royal Slave, and that if he knew the weight of a Crown, he would have a care how he put it on his Head.

ANTIGONUS, King of the Jews, and Son of Ariſtobulus II. who being defeated by Herod, and forſaken of all the World, enter'd into an Alliance with the King of the Parthians, who upon the Promiſe of 1000 Talents, and 500 Women, ſent him a conſiderable Army under the Command of his Son Pachorus and Barzaphenez, with whoſe Aſſiſtance he beſieged Jeruſalem, cut off his Uncle Hircanus's Ears, to make him incapable of the High Prieſthood, defeated Joſephus the Brother of Herod, and having taken him Priſoner, cut off his Head. But at length being routed and taken by the Romans, under Soſius that aſſiſted Herod, he was ſent to Mark Anthony, who to gratifie Herod, from whom he had receiv'd a Sum, cut off his Head, and put an end to the Aſmnean Family, which had Reign'd 126 years. This happen'd 36 before Chriſt. Joſ. l. 14. and 15. Ant. Jud.

ANTIGONUS the Firſt, Son of Demetrius Poliorcetes, was King of Macedon after the death of Soſthenes; he was defeated by the Gauls under Brennus, who took his Camp, and afterwards expell'd his Kingdom by Pyrrhus; upon the death of his Enemy he recovered it again, and left it to his Son Demetrius, after 36 years Reign. Uſher. An. Juſtin.

ANTIGONUS the Second, King of Macedon, defeated Cleomenes King of the Lacedæmonians, An. 532. and taking Sparta, forc'd him to fly into Egypt next year; he vanquiſh'd the Illyrians, and after many other Victories died in the 12th year of his Reign. Uſher. Juſtin.

ANTIGONUS, or Antigonius Caryſtius, a Greek Hiſtorian. His Collectanea Hiſtoriarum Mirabilis, were Printed with Notes by Meurſius in 1619. He liv'd in the Reign of Ptolemy Lagus, and was very much in favour with the Princes of his time, for his Learning and Abilities. He wrote the Lives of Polemon, Pyrrho, Antipater, &c. A Treatiſe of Animals: Another concerning the Management of the Voice, &c. Athenæus, Lib. 3. & 7. Diog. Laert. in Chryſ. & Pyrrh. Dion. Halic. Lib. 1. Hiſt. Rom. Plut. in Vit. Rom.

ANTILEBANON, a Mountain of Syria over-againſt Mount Lebanon, there being a very fruitful Valley between 'em; ſome Authors ſay, that there was formerly a Wall which reach'd from one to the other. It is now inhabited by the Druſes, who are a ſort of Chriſtians; their chief Burrough is Albano. Strabo, Joſephus, Petro de la valle.

ANTILLES, ſeveral Iſlands that lie between the Continent of America Meridionalis, and the Eaſtern Coaſt of St. John Porto Rico. Columbus was the firſt that diſcover'd them in 1492. there are 28 of 'em conſiderable, which our Modern Geographers place in the Northern Sea, between Florida, New-Spain, and Southern America; they are all very fertil; the Air is temperate in the hotteſt Seaſons, never exceeding the heat of July in France; they are never troubled with Cold, and do not know what Ice is. The Trees are always green, and bear excellent Fruit. Theſe Iſlands are Peopled with Four different Nations, viz. the Cannibals, which are the Natives, the French, the Engliſh, and Dutch, who eſtabliſh'd themſelves here in 1625. The French are Maſters of Deſiderade, Grenade, Guadeloupe, Marigalante, Martinique, St. Croix, St. Alouze, St. Bartholomy; St. Chriſtophle is partly theirs, and the Engliſh have the other part of it, and are Maſters of Anguila, Antegoa, Barbadoes, Barmudas, Monſerrat, and Mevis. The Dutch poſſeſs Saba, St. Euſtache, and Walkeren. The Cannibals are Maſters of Bekia, la Dominique, and St. Vincent. There are 3 or 4 other ſmall Iſlands that are not inhabited at all. St. Thomas belongs to the Danes, Trinidad and La Margrite to the Spaniards.

ANTIMACHUS, an Ionian, who wrote a large Poem upon the Theban War; all the Greek Grammarians eſteemed him next to Homer, and he was preferr'd before him by the Emperor Adrian. Voſſius.

ANTIMACHUS, a Trojan Officer of Quality. 'Tis ſaid Paris brib'd him, to diſſuade the returning of Helena, which he afterwards effected. Hom. Iliad. Lib. 11.

ANTINOE, Antios, and Antinopolis, a City of Egypt, and Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Thebes; it was formerly call'd Adriample, becauſe rebuilt by the Emperor Adrian, and at times very conſiderable. It is now entirely demoliſh'd, and it's Ruines are to be ſeen within 10 Leagues of the Nile. Paladius ſpeaks of it, as having been ſo Populous in his time, that it had 12 Nunneries, Hiſt. Tripartit. Palad. Hiſt. Lauſ. This Town had its Name from Antinous, a Youth ſo paſſionately belov'd by the Emperor Adrian, that being drown'd in the Nile, he lamented him with as much tenderneſs as a Woman would her Husband, which occaſioned different Diſcourſes, ſome attributing it to the Fidelity of Antinous, others to the Emperor's Criminal Amour, who ordered the Greeks to Conſecrate him, and build him a Temple and Altar, whence he pretended that Antinous gave Oracles, tho' he himſelf compoſed 'em. He alſo commanded Sacrifices to be offer'd to him, and Honour'd him as a God, alledging ſometimes, that he was chang'd into a Star, and at others into a Flower, ſo that the Chriſtians had reaſon to upbraid the Greeks with this Idolatry. Spartian in Adria. Tertullian, Origen, Euſebius.

ANTINOMIANS, Hereticks, ſo call'd for rejecting the Law as a thing of no uſe under the Goſpel; They ſay that Good Works do not further, nor Evil Works hinder Salvation; That the Child of God cannot Sin; That God never Chaſtiſeth them, nor puniſheth any Land for their Sin; That Murder, Adultery, Drunkenneſs, &c. are Sins in the Wicked, but not in them; and therefore Abraham's Lying and Diſſembling was no Sin; That the Child of Grace being once Aſſured of Salvation, never doubteth afterward; That no Man ſhould be troubled in Conſcience for Sin; That no Chriſtian ſhould be exhorted to perform the Duties of Chriſtianity; That an Hypocrite may have all the Graces which were in Adam before his Fall; That Chriſt is the only Subject of all Grace; That no Chriſtian Believeth or worketh any Good, but Chriſt only Believeth and Worketh; That God doth not love any Man for his Holineſs; That Sanctification is no Evidence of Juſtification, &c. Pontanus, in his Catalogue of Hereſies, ſays John Agricola was the Author of this Sect. An. 1535.

ANTIOCHIA, now Antachia, once call'd the Great, and eſteem'd the Third City of the World. It is the Capital of Syria, and has the Title of a Patriarchate, ſituated partly upon a Hill, and partly in a Plain, divided by the River Orontes, in Scripture call'd Pharpar. It has been often deſtroy'd by Fire and Earthquakes, and as often rebuilt by the Roman Emperors, who admir'd its ſituation. The Saracens, who had ſubdu'd all Syria, took it An. 637 or 38, in Heraclius's Reign; but being retaken from 'em again by Nicephorus Phocas, in 966, the Saracens beſieg'd it again with 100000 Men, and took it in 970, fortifying it ſo, that it was thought impregnable. Yet the Chriſtians under Godfrey of Bouillon, beſieged it in 1097. and after a long and bloody Siege, took it on the 3d of June 1098. The Saracens, after many Attacks, carried it again on the 29th of May 1268. under the Conduct of the Sultan of Egypt, who demoliſh'd it. Since that time it has loſt its Reputation and Grandeur, there being now ſcarcely any thing ſtanding but the Walls, which in 1594 had 360 Turrets upon 'em. Strabo, Pliny. It was in this City about An. 41. that the Diſciples of Chriſt were firſt call'd Chriſtians; and Authors of the Church of Rome ſay, that St. Peter made it a Patriarchal See in his own Perſon, An. Chr. 38. and was ſucceeded by St. Evodiis, St. Ignatius, and above 70 more, of whom they give a Catalogue, beſides many others, of whoſe Names they profeſs Ignorance; and add, that ſeveral of theſe in the ſaid Catalogue, which they bring down to the year 1242. were intruded by Arians and others, and that the Saracens having taken the City about the Seventh Age, there was a long Vacancy; but the famous Calvin ſays, Inſtit. l. 4. c. 4. Sect. 4. that Patriarchs were firſt conſtituted by the Council of Nice; and though the Scripture ſpeaks of St. Peter's being at Antioch, they are ſilent as to the Patriarchate. This Church was infeſted by the Arians in the Fourth Century, who occaſion'd the Exile of their Patriarch Euſtathius, whereupon the People were about taking Arms in his Defence, but forbore, becauſe the Emperor Conſtantine approv'd his Depoſition. Hence follow'd a Schiſm, the Orthodox refuſing to Communicate with the Arians; ſeveral Prelates and Councils attempted a Reconciliation, but in vain, till about 412. that they agreed with the Church of Rome in the Papacy of Innocent I. The Councils of this City are ſaid to be once held by the Apoſtles An. 56. whoſe Canons are aſſerted as genuine by ſome, and denied by others. Moreri owns them to be uncertain. An. 253. a Council was held here againſt the Novatians. In 265 another Condemned the Errors of Samoſatenus. In 270 another was held againſt the Heretical Patriarch, who denied the Divinity and Eternity of Chriſt. In 335 ſome Heterodox Biſhops condemned and depoſed the Patriarch Euſtathius, becauſe he oppoſed them, but under pretext of Adultery, whereof the Woman who accus'd him, clear'd him afterwards. In 341, 90 Biſhops being aſſembled there, and moſtly Arians, depoſed St. Athanaſius, and publiſh'd divers Confeſſions of Faith, in one of which the Son was own'd to be Conſubſtantial with the Father. In 345 they Aſſembled again, and publiſh'd a new Formulary, which was rejected by the Biſhops of the Weſt. In 357 Eudoxius, the Patriarch, held another, and confirmed the Doctrine of the Anomeans. In 361 the Emperor Conſtance called another, deſigning to condemn the Doctrine of Conſubſtantiality, and baniſh'd St. Meletius, juſt then choſen Patriarch, for maintaining it; ſetting up Euzoius, an Arian, in his room. About 363, in the time of the Emperor Jovian, St. Meletius call'd a Council of 27 Biſhops, who wrote to the Emperor; owning the Conſubſtantiality of the Word, and the Council of Nice. In 378 a Council was call'd to Heal the Schiſm betwixt the Meletians and Euſtathians, where they alſo condemned the Errors of Apollinaris. In 383 another was call'd for that ſame end, and againſt the Meſſalians. Several other Leſſer Councils were held here, and the laſt mention'd was held by Innocent the Second's Legate, againſt Rodolphus Mamiſtan, a Frenchman, who denied the Pope's Supremacy over his See, whereupon he was Depos'd, and put into a Monaſtery, and coming afterward to Rome, to ſollicite his Re-eſtabliſhment, he was Poiſon'd as about to return to Antioch. Euſeb. Epiph. Chryſoſtom. Baronius. The Epocha of Antioch, which ſome Hiſtorians uſe, begun in the 48th or 49th before Chriſt, and 4664 or 4665 of the Julian Period. Scaliger. Petav. Antiochia was the Name of 10 or more ſeveral other Cities, of which the moſt conſiderable at this day is one upon the River Meander, now call'd Tachiali; one on the Euphrates, and another in Cilicia, which the Turks call Iſlenos. The Spaniards have one of this Name in South America, 15 Leagues from St. Foy.

ANTIOCHUS the Firſt, King of Syria, the only Son of Seleucus Nicanor, fell in Love with Stratonica, whom his Father had Married in his old Age; and not being able to ſubdue his Paſſion, it brought him into a conſuming Fever; the true cauſe of which being diſcover'd by his Phyſician Eraſiſtratus, through the irregularity of his Pulſe when the Queen came to viſit him, he gave notice of it to his Father, who, to ſave his Life, conſented he ſhould have her. He vanquiſh'd the Galatians, that frequently annoy'd his Subjects with their Incurſions, for which he acquir'd the Sirname of Soter or Saviour, the fury of his Elephants breaking the Enemies Cavalry, and contributing to the Victory; he wept becauſe they had a ſhare in it. He Reign'd 19 years, and died A. M. 3793. Polybius. Appian.

ANTIOCHUS the Second, Sirnam'd Theos by the Mileſians, for putting their Tyrant Timarchus to death, ſucceeded his Father Antiochus Soter, made War with Ptolemy Philadelphus, which was concluded by his Marrying Berenice, Ptolemy's Daughter, and putting away Laodice, by whom he had Two Sons. The Injured Queen Meditating Revenge, Antiochus, to prevent it, took her again, and put off Berenice after Ptolemy's death; but Laodice not being thus to be pleas'd, Poiſon'd him, and ſuborning Artemon, who did perfectly reſemble him, to lie a-Bed, and Counterfeit himſelf ready to die, ſhe ſent for the Grandees, to whom, as the real Antiochus, he recommended his Son Seleucus, Sirnam'd Callinicus, for Succeſſor; and this being done, Laodice publiſh'd the King's Death, ſolemniz'd his Funerals, and caus'd Berenice, who, ſome ſay, was her Siſter, to be Stabb'd, A. M. 3807. Appian. Alexandrin.

ANTIOCHUS Hierax, ſhall be mention'd here, who, tho he is not commonly rang'd among the Kings of Syria, yet he wore the Title of that Crown. He was Son to Antiochus Theos, and Brother to Seleucus Callinicus, whom he aſſiſted againſt their Uncle Ptolemy Euergetes, King of Egypt. This Antiochus was unfortunate in all his Attempts. His own Brother purſued him, and he was alſo diſcarded by his Brother-in-Law Artamenes, King of Cappadocia; and by theſe exceſſes of ill Luck, he was forc'd to retire to his Uncle Ptolemy Euergetes, who order'd him to be ſeiz'd. Notwithſtanding, he found an opportunity to ſlip the Guards, and eſcape out of Priſon, but was afterwards kill'd by a Parcel of High-way Men, in the year of Rome 527, and much about the ſame time that his Brother Seleucus died with a fall from his Horſe. Appian. Polyb. Juſtin. &c.

ANTIOCHUS the Third, Sirnam'd the Great, Son of Seleucus Callinicus, began his Reign A. M. 3830. After the death of Philopater, taking advantage of the Minority of his Son Ptolemy Epiphanes, he broke the League which he had made with the Father, and reſolv'd to recover his former Loſſes upon the Son. But the Romans, to whoſe Care Philopater had recommended him, forbid Antiochus to meddle with Egypt, which he took ſo hainouſly, that after he had ſubdu'd a great part of Greece, at the ſollicitation of Hannibal, he made War againſt the Romans, by whom, after many Battles with various ſucceſs, he was at laſt totally routed, and confin'd to Syria beyond Tauris, loſing all betwixt that Mountain and Ionia. After this, finding his Exchequer low, and going to recruit himſelf with the Plunder of the Temple of Belus, he was kill'd by the Rabble, who came to reſcue their Conſecrated Treaſure. Joſephus.

ANTIOCHUS the Fourth, Sirnam'd Epiphanes the Illuſtrious, or Epimanes the Furious, Son to Antiochus III. uſurp'd the Throne of his Nephew Demetrius, depos'd Onias High-Prieſt of the Jews, offering the Succeſſion to him who bid moſt. He pretended to the Guardianſhip of his Nephew Ptolemy Philometor King of Egypt, which he invaded on that account, An. 582 of Rome, but in vain. He attempted it again in 586, but was deterred by Popilius the Roman Ambaſſador, who order'd him to depart out of Egypt, the Kingdom of their Ally, and drawing a Circle round himſelf, told him, that if he did not give a poſitive Anſwer, he would declare War againſt him e're he ſtirr'd from the place, ſo that Antiochus was forc'd to obey. At the ſame time Jaſon endeavour'd to poſſeſs himſelf of Jeruſalem, whereupon Antiochus came and beſieged it, to make up his Loſſes elſewhere, and took it on the 16th of November, in the 568 of Rome, 168 before Chriſt, 80000 being kill'd, 40000 taken, and as many ſold for Slaves. He entred the Sanctuary, profan'd the Temple, ſet the Statue of Jupiter Olympius upon the Altar, ſacrific'd to him, and carried away all the holy Veſſels. At his return to Antioch, he cut off the Seven Brethren, the Macchabees, and all the Jews in his Dominions, who would not abjure their Religion. After which Matthias, and Judas Macchabeus, put ſome ſtop to his fury, defended their Country and Religion, and purified the Temple, and defeated his Armies, while he himſelf was routed by the Elymeans, as deſigning to rob the Temple of Perſepolis or Diana. Being adviſ'd of what the Jews had done on his return to Babylon, he Vow'd the utter ruine of Jeruſalem; but was prevented by a terrible death, being ſmitten by the Hand of God, A. M. 3891, and the Eleventh of his Reign. St. Auguſtin, St. Jerome, and others of the Fathers, look'd upon him as a Type and fore-runner of Antichriſt, from Dan. c. 11. To this it is added by Monſieur Le Clerk and Hoffman, that he was a Cunning, Violent, Cruel, and Profuſe Prince. Being Hoſtage at Rome, he ſpent exceſſively to gain the Love of the Grandees and People; and underſtanding that his Father Antiochus the Great was dead, eſcaped thence, uſurp'd his Nephew Demetrius's Throne, as above, ſeized all that belong'd to his Nephew the King of Egypt in Syria, and Impriſoned Cleopatra his Siſter, and Phyſcon his other Nephew, who complain'd of him to the Romans. He ſpent vaſt Treaſures in Banqueting and Drinking; and in his Cups would throw about huge Bags of Money in the Highways, ſaying, Let them take them for whom Fortune has deſign'd them. At other times he would go about in his Royal Apparel, with a Garland of Roſes, and a Lap full of Stones to throw at whomſoever he met. It was Cuſtomary for him to Bath among the Common People, and at the ſame time to Anoint with the moſt precious and fragrant Ointments; upon which one of the Vulgar telling him he was very happy, he caus'd a whole Veſſel of Ointment to be pour'd on the Fellows Head, which caſting a Perfume through the whole City, the People following the ſcent, came in ſuch Crouds to ſee what was the matter, that they tumbled upon one another, which was ſo good ſport for him, that he fell flat on the Ground, having almoſt kill'd himſelf with Laughing. Being at Antioch in the time of Publick Shews, he invited all the Grecians to a Treat, anointed each of them with Precious, Odoriferous Ointments, ſat down at Table, and ſerv'd them by turns, and did ſo far debaſe himſelf, that he Danced with the common Stage-Players, and meaneſt of the People, whereof they were more aſhamed than he. The reaſon of this Extravagant Humour, was aſcribed to his being exalted to the height of Regal Dignity, from being an Hoſtage, which ſubjected him to confinement. Macchab. 1. 2. Joſeph. Polyb. Liv. Plutarch.

ANTIOCHUS the Fifth, Sirnam'd Eupator, ſucceeded his Father Epiphanes in the year of the World 3810. and hearing that Judas Macchabeus beſieg'd one of the Towers of Jeruſalem, at the inſtigation of the Apoſtate Jews, he entred Judæa with 100000 Foot, and 20000 Horſe, and took Bathſura; but hearing that Philip, to whoſe Guardianſhip his Father had recommended him, was come from Perſia to Antioch, with an intention to ſeize the Kingdom, he made Peace with the Jews; in the mean time Demetrius, the Son of Seleucus Eupator, having made his eſcape from Rome, took Tripolis in Syria, whither the Syrians repairing as to the right Heir, he ſoon got Antiochus and Lyſias into his Power, and order'd 'em both to be put to death. Joſephus, Macchab. 1. 2.

ANTIOCHUS the Sixth, call'd alſo the Noble, ſuppoſed to be Grandchild to Antioch. Epiphan. was chaſed from his Country by Demetrius Nicanor, who being hateful to the People, Tryphon found out this Antiochus, and ſetled him on the Throne, by the aſſiſtance of the diſcontented Soldiers in the 609 of Rome, defeated Demetrius, took Antioch, and made a League with Jonathan High Prieſt of the Jews: Demetrius being broke, Tryphon thought to have made away with Antiochus, but was himſelf put to death by Jonathan at Ptolemais, who after Antiochus's death aſſum'd the Title of King, 2 Macch. Joſeph. 13. according to Morreri; but Hoffman ſays Tryphon cut off Antiochus.

ANTIOCHUS the Seventh, call'd Sidetes, the Son of Demetrius Soter, by the help of Simon the High Prieſt of the Jews, vanquiſh'd the Uſurper Tryphon; who thereupon fled to Apamea, whither Antiochus purſued him, took the Town by Storm, and put Trypho to death, who had Tyranniz'd Three years over Syria; nevertheleſs Antiochus prov'd ungrateful to the Jews, and beſieg'd Hircanus the High Prieſt in Jeruſalem, with whom having made a Peace, he march'd againſt the Parthians, but was vanquiſh'd and ſlain in Battel by Arſaces, in the Eleventh year of his Reign, and 625 of Rome. Polybius.

ANTIOCHUS the Eighth, called Gryphus, or Hawknoſe, the Son of Demetrius Nicanor and Cleopatra, who after the death of her Husband, murder'd her other Son Seleucus, for aſſuming the Crown without her conſent; and advanced Gryphus, in hopes to keep the Government ſtill in her own hands: But finding he began to be too buſie, prepar'd a Doſe of Poiſon for him, which Gryphus ſuſpecting, made her drink it off her ſelf. He Reign'd Peaceably for 12 years, not daring to attack the Jews for fear of his Brother Antiochus of Cyzicum, who at length engag'd him in a bloody diſpute for the Crown, which continued 18 years, and at laſt he was ſlain by Heracleon in the 45th year of his Age, and 29th of his Reign, An. M. 3958.

ANTIOCHUS the Ninth, called Cyzicenus, becauſe bred at Cyzicum, was Son of Sidetes and Cleopatra, made War upon his Brother Gryphus for the Crown, after whoſe death he was defeated, taken, and put to death by Seleucus VI. Gryphus's Son. An. M. 3959. Joſeph. l. 13.

ANTIOCHUS the Tenth, Son to Antioch. Cyzicenus, called Pius in Railery, becauſe he Married Selena, firſt his Father's, then his Uncle's Wife; he revenged his Father's death, by burning Seleucus at Mopſueſtia in Cilicia, and made brave reſiſtance againſt his Couſins, Philip III. and Demetrius Eucerus, Son of Gryphus, but was kill'd fighting Valiantly againſt the Parthians, in the Queen of the Galatiani's Quarrel, An. M. 3963. Joſeph. Appian.

ANTIOCHUS the Eleventh, Son of Gryphus, endeavouring to recover what his Brother Seleucus burnt, as above, was defeated, and killed in Battel by Antiochus Pius. Joſeph.

ANTIOCHUS the Twelfth, Sirnamed Dionyſius, youngeſt Son of Gryphus, uſurp'd the Soveraignty in his Brother Philip's abſence, and was kill'd in Battel againſt the Arabians, An. M. 3969. the Firſt of his Reign.

ANTIOCHUS the Thirteenth, Son of Antiochus Pius, called the Aſiatick in Mockage, becauſe he hid himſelf in Cilicia during the War with Tigranes King of Armenia, who took his Throne at the People's deſire. Lucullus having defeated Tigranes, reſtored Antiochus; but Pompey dethron'd him, thinking him not worthy to Reign, who hid himſelf while another uſurpt his Crown. Juſtin. There were Three other Antiochus's, Kings of Comagenia, a Province of Syria, the firſt of which was Conquer'd, and reſtored by Pompey, whom he afterwards aſſiſted againſt Cæſar, and was beheaded at Rome by Auguſtus for murdering his Brother. Of the Second there's nothing remarkable. The Third was enthron'd by Caligula, depoſed and reſtored by Claudius, aſſiſted Veſpaſian againſt Vitellius, perſecuted the Jews, and was dethron'd afterwards by the Emperor, for making an Alliance with the Parthians. Dion. Tacit.

ANTIOCHUS of Aſcalon, a famous Philoſopher, whoſe Diſciple Cicero became, both at Athens and Rome; Lucullus and Brutus were alſo his great Admirers. Strabo

ANTIOCHUS, Biſhop of Ptolemais in Phœnicia, liv'd in the beginning of the Fifth Century. He came to Conſtantinople in the year 400, when St. Chryſoſtome was abſent, and being naturally a Man of Elocution, he Preach'd there, with great Succeſs and Reputation; However, 'tis ſaid, this Prelate was ſomewhat too much a Courtier, and made uſe of his Talent to promote his Ambition. Severianus of Gabala, to whom St. Chryſoſtome had intruſted the Care of his Church, during his abſence, made an Acquaintance with Antiochus, and let him Preach in his Church, as hoping, by the Aſſiſtance of his Rhetorick, to gain the Audience. Afterwards Antiochus and Severianus joyn'd againſt St. Chryſoſtome, with Theophilus of Alexandria, Acacius of Beræa, and Cyrinus of Chalcedon; Theſe Biſhops proſecuted St. Chryſoſtome at the pretended Council at Quercum, and the Emperor Arcadius ſent him word, that Acacius, Antiochus, Severianus, and Cyrinus, had undertaken to juſtifie his Condemnation, at the Peril of their Heads. St. Chryſoſtome refus'd to be Tried by theſe Judges, and charges Antiochus and Severianus, with being openly Scandalous. Socrat. Lib. 6. Sozom. Lib. 8. Palad. Vit. S. Chryſoſt.

ANTIOCHUS, a Perſian Lord, of great Worth. The Emperor Arcadius dying in the year 408, requeſted Iſdigerdes King of Perſia, to be Guardian to his Son Theodoſius the Younger. Iſdegerdes accepted the Charge, and it not being Practicable for him to quit his Kingdom, and execute the Truſt in Perſon, he ſent Antiochus to Conſtantinople for this purpoſe, as being well aſſur'd of his Honeſty and Diſcretion. Antiochus anſwer'd the Expectation of his Prince, and acquitted himſelf with all imaginable ſincerity and advantage. Theophanes, Hiſt. Miſcil. Lib. 13.

ANTIOPE, Queen of the Amazons, who with the aſſiſtance of the Scythians, invaded the Athenians; but was vanquiſh'd by Theſeus. Alſo another of the ſame Name, Wife of Lycus, King of Thebes, who being deflower'd by Jupiter in the ſhape of a Satyr, brought forth Amphion and Zethus. Natal. Com.

ANTIPATER the Firſt, King of Macedonia, Son of Caſſander, and Brother to Philip, put his own Mother Theſſalonica to death, thinking that ſhe favour'd his Brother Alexander more than him; fearing the Power of Pyrrhus King of Epirus, and Demetrius the Son of Antigonus, whom his Brother Alexander had Armed againſt him; he fled to his Father in Law Lyſimachus King of Thrace, who deteſting his Crimes, put him to death. Juſtin.

ANTIPATER the Second, King of Macedonia, was dethron'd after 45 days Reign, and ſucceeded by Soſthenes, a Valiant Captain. Polybius. Liv.

ANTIPATER, an Idumean, a Man really Politick and Daring, the Father of King Herod; he aſſiſted Cæſar in his Egyptian Wars, where he gave good Proofs of his Valour and Conduct, and ſo inſinuated himſelf into his favour, that being then Governor of Judæa, Cæſar continued him, and proffer'd him a more conſiderable Preferment; but the Jews uneaſie under the Government of a Foreigner, one Malchus, who pretended to be his Friend, and a Perſon to whom Antipater had been extreamly kind, Poiſon'd him under pretence of ſecuring Hircanus's Authority. Joſeph. L. 14. Ant. Jud.

ANTIPATER, the Eldeſt Son of Herod the Great, by an Idumean, whoſe Name was Doris; This Son he recall'd from a Private Education, to oppoſe him to Alexander and Ariſtobulus which he had by Mariamne. Antipater laying hold of the opportunity, ſo incens'd his Father againſt thoſe Two unfortunate Princes, that he carried 'em to Rome, and accus'd 'em of a deſign againſt his Life: But they being dead, Antipater himſelf contrived in earneſt to haſten his Father's end; whereof being convicted before Varus, he was put to death, An. Chr. 1. Joſeph. L. 14, 15. Ant. Jud.

ANTIPATER, one of Alexander the Great's Commanders, and his Lieutenant in Greece, ſubdu'd the Revolted Thracians, Reliev'd Megalopolis beſieg'd by the Lacedæmonians, and overthrew 'em in Battel in the 424 of Rome. Notwithſtanding all this, the hatred which Olympias, Alexander's Mother bare him, made her Son recall him from his Government, which ſo incens'd Antipater, that he Poiſon'd him in the 430 of Rome; after that he was defeated by the Athenians, but overthrew the Greeks in Theſſaly, and being nominated Guardian to Alexander's Sons, died in the 433 of Rome. Quint. Curt. Lib. 6.

ANTIPATER, (Cælius) a Latin Hiſtorian, liv'd about the 630 of Rome: He wrote a Hiſtory of the Punick War, of which Brutus made an Epitome; it was much eſteem'd by Cicero, who often cites him; and the Emperor Adrian preferr'd him to Salluſt. Tit. Liv. L. 13.

ANTIPATER of Hieropolis, firſt Secretary to the Emperor Severus, afterwards Tutor to his Children Caracalla and Geta, laſtly, made Governor and Prætor of Hieropolis; where, underſtanding that Caracalla had murther'd his Brother Geta, he ſtarv'd himſelf to death out of grief. Tit. Liv.

ANTIPATER, Son of Seleucus Ceraunus. Notwithſtanding he is not reckon'd among the Kings of Syria, had a great ſhare in the Hiſtory of thoſe Princes, both upon the account of the great Poſts he held in the War, and his Adminiſtration in other Affairs. He commanded the Horſe, for his Uncle Antiochus the Great, againſt Ptolemy Philopater, and afterwards Treated the Peace between thoſe Two Princes. He follow'd his Uncle's Fortune in his Diſpute with the Romans, and after this Antiochus was routed at Magneſia, Antipater procur'd a Peace from Scipio, and got it confirm'd by the Senate. Polyb. Lib. 4.

ANTIPATER of Sydon. A Stoick Philoſopher, and a Poet; he liv'd in the 171 Olympiad. Cicero commends him for a very Ingenious Perſon, and he is rang'd, by Seneca, amongſt the Stoical Authors of the Firſt Claſs. In the Anthologia, we have ſtill 22 Epigrams of his Compoſing. There was another Poet of that Name, of Theſſalonica, who liv'd in the time of the Emperor Auguſtus. He wrote ſeveral things in Greek, of which we have ſome

Remains, in the Collection of the Greek Epigrams. Cic. Lib. 2. & 3. De Offic. Senec. Ep. 92. Suidas in Aul. Voſſius De Poet. Græc. Cap. 9. &c.

ANTIPATRIS, a Town of Phænicia upon the Mediterranean, 16 miles North of Jaffa, or Joppa; It was near this Place that Judas Macchabeus defeated the King of Syria's Army commanded by Nicanor; near this City Obadiah, Steward to Ahab, fed Three Prophets whom he hid from Jezebel's fury. St. Paul was convey'd hither by Lycias in his way to Cæſarea, to preſerve him from a Conſpiracy of the Jews, Acts 23. It's ſeated in one of the richeſt and beſt water'd Soils of Canaan, on the Mediterranean Sea, very convenient for Trade or War: But it was inconſiderable until Herod the Great, or Aſcalonite rebuilt it, and call'd it Antipatris in Honour of his Father Antipater: The Chriſtians made themſelves Maſters of it in 1101. under Baldwin, and the Saracens retook it in 1265. Doubdain. Voyage de la Terre Sainćte.

ANTIPHERON Oretanus, a certain Man mention'd by Ariſtotle, who always imagined he was his own Image; Seneca ſaid it was a Diſtemper which ſeveral labour'd under, proceeding from the weakneſs of the Eyes, which are not able to penetrate the neighbouring Air.

ANTIPHON, a Native of Ramnus, a Town in Attica, an Orator, of whom Thucydides gives this Elogy, That he gave place to none of the Athenians, either for Wit, Eloquence, or Virtue; he was put to death, as ſome ſuppoſe, by Dionyſius the Elder, for the ſharp Anſwer which he gave him; for the Tyrant asking him which was the beſt Braſs? He anſwered, That which made the Statues of Harmodius and Ariſtogiton, who where the two Perſons that kill'd the Tyrants of Athens. Herodotus. There were Eleven more of this Name, all Learned Men. 'Tis ſaid, he was the firſt Perſon that ever took a Fee for Pleading.

ANTIPODES, a Name given to thoſe that live under the ſame Meridian, and yet are Diametrically oppoſite; it comes from ἀντὶ againſt, and ποῦς a Foot, becauſe their Feet are oppoſite to one another; they have the ſame Elevation of their different Poles, as they are in different Hemiſpheres; ſo that our Mid-day is our Antipodes Midnight, and vice verſa. In former Ages it was thought impoſſible that there ſhould be ſuch a Place, eſpecially Peopled; our good Anceſtors not being able to conceive how the Deſcendants of Adam could croſs the vaſt Seas, that in their thoughts ſeparated both Hemiſpheres; but Chriſtopher Columbus, in 1452, and Americ Veſpucie, in 1497, undeceiv'd them. Jerom Vital, Lexicon Mathematicum.

ANTIPOPES is a Name by which ſuch are call'd that pretend to paſs for Popes, to the prejudice of them that are Legally choſen, and ſo cauſe a Schiſm in the Church of Rome. Here follows a Catalogue of all thoſe that have been ſince the Third Age to this preſent Time.

ANTISCOTI, or the Iſle of Aſſumption, an Iſland of N. America in New France, on the Gulph of St. Laurence, where the French have ſome Colonies.

ANTISTHENES, the Diſciple of Socrates, firſt of the Cynick Philoſophers, about 350 of Rome, which Diogenes one of his chief Auditors render'd ſo famous. His Doctrine was not quite ſo refined as that of other Philoſophers, his Morals harſh and abuſive, though he ſpoke reaſon in a great many things. To one that told him War carried off the Miſerable, You are deceiv'd, ſaid he, it makes a great many More than it takes off. To another who ask'd him, what he had learnt by Philoſophizing? To do voluntarily, anſwer'd he, what others do by conſtraint. He alſo us'd to ſay, He wonder'd that People took ſuch care in making the Body clean and neat, that did not mind the Soul. He ſaid, That the moſt neceſſary Knowledge, was to unlearn that that was Ill; and that Enemies were more neceſſary than Friends, becauſe, they uſually corrected thoſe Faults, which the other did but flatter. Diog. Laer.

ANTISTES, Sirnam'd Soſianus, a Latin Poet, who liv'd in the time of Nero. He was ſo hardy as to write a Satyr upon the Emperor, and yet lucky enough to eſcape with Baniſhment. Tacitus Lib. 13. & 16 Annal.

ANTITACTES, Hereticks ſprung from the Gnoſticks, who taught that Sin deſerved rather Reward than Puniſhment, and accordingly wallowed in all Crimes. Clem. Alex. Baron.

ANTITRINITARIANS, a Name given in general to all that deny the Trinity, though it's more particularly applied to the Socinians, that are alſo call'd Unitarii. Sandius's Bibliotheca Antitrinitariorum, gives a Catalogue of the Works of the Unitarians.

ANTIVARI, Lat. Antibarum, a Town of Dalmatia upon the Adriatick Sea. Pope Alexander II. of a Biſhop's See made it a Metropolis in 1062. and gave it 10 Suffragans, but it has ſince fallen under the Tyranny of the Turks. Some Authors take it to be the ancient Doclea; it is 10 miles E. of Dolcigno, and 18 of Scutari. Baron. An. C. 1062.

ANTIUM, now call'd Antio Rovinato, formerly the Metropolis of the Volſci, whither Coriolanus retir'd, famous for the Temple of Fortune. Auguſtus had alſo an Altar at Antium; and being Nero's Birth-place, he repair'd and beautified it with ſeveral Palaces. The Saracens deſtroy'd it; it is ſuppoſed to be the Place where now ſtands the Borough of Nettuno belonging to the Family of Colonna. Strabo, Dionyſ. Halicarnaſſus.

ANTOECI, are thoſe that live under the ſame Meridian, but in different Parallels, equally diſtant from the Equator, ſome in the Northern, others in the Southern Hemiſphere. They have Noon and Midnight at the ſame time; but their Seaſons differ, for whilſt one has Summer and the Longeſt days, the other has Winter and the Shorteſt.

ANTONGIL Bay, Lat. Antonii, Ægidii ſinus, Baye d'Antongil, a ſmall Bay belonging to the Iſland of Madagaſcar, ſo call'd by the Portugueze, but by the Natives Manghabei. It appears in the Eaſtern part of the Iſland towards the Iſle of Sancta Maria, which lies near it to the South; it's above 15 Leagues in length, having the Country of Vohemari to the North. The Bay is nine Leagues wide; and at the Mouth of it lies an Iſland which ſhelters the Ships that ride in the Haven from all Winds. Natal. Metel.

ANTONIA, the Daughter of the Emperor Claudius, refuſed to be Married to Nero who had already kill'd two of his Wives. In revenge of which denial, Nero accuſed her of Conſpiring againſt the State, and cauſ'd her to lay violent hands upon her ſelf. Sueton.

ANTONII Diemeni Regio, Iſland Van Antoni Diemens, a part of Terra Auſtralis, diſcover'd under Anthony Diemens, Governor of the Dutch Eaſt-India Company, the 4th of November 1642. That part which lies next to the Sea is only known, for the Hollanders do not yet know whether the whole be an Iſland or a Continent; there are ſeveral ſmall Iſlands not far from the Coaſt, and it lies upon the Pacifick Sea, in the mid-way between New-Holland and New-Zealand.

ANTONINUS, Sirnam'd Pius, was born Anno C. 86. adopted by Adrian, and ſucceeded him in the Empire, Anno 138. He was a Prince of goodly Preſence, Learn'd, Witty, and Eloquent, a good Politician, Prudent and Moderate. Philoſtrates remarks two notable Paſſages of his good Nature; the firſt, that when he was Proconſul of Aſia, and arrived at Smyrna, he was lodged in the Houſe of Palemon the Sophiſt, as moſt Commodious: The Sophiſt being in the Country, came home very late at Night, and kept ſuch a Clamour and Noiſe that he forc'd him to leave his Houſe at Midnight. This ſame Palemon coming afterwards to ſalute him at Rome, when made Emperor, he aſſign'd him an Apartment in the Palace, and told him, That he might take it freely, without hazard of being put out at Midnight. The ſecond was his Anſwer to a Comedian, who complain'd, that Palemon had put him off the Stage becauſe he Acted not to his Satisfaction; At what Hour (ſays the Emperor) did he put you off? At Noon, anſwers the Comedian; Then, replied the Emperor, You have no reaſon to Complain, for he put me out of his Houſe at Midnight, and I ſaid ne'er a Word. He had the tenderneſs of a true Father to his Subjects; and was ſo far from ſhedding Blood, that he had always the ſaying of Scipio in his Mouth, That he had rather preſerve one Citizen than kill 1000 Enemies. During his Reign he begun no War, in regard the Barbarians were more ſubmiſſive to his Virtues than his Arms; only the Daci, Alans, and Moors, he ſuppreſs'd by his Lieutenants, and by the Conduct of Lollius Urbicus quieted the Britains, and rais'd a Wall to defend them from the Scots and Picts. He perſecuted the Chriſtians it's true at firſt, but having read the Works of Juſtin Martyr, and the Apologies of ſome others, he recall'd his Decrees. He repair'd ſeveral Cities ruin'd by Fire and Earthquakes, both in Rhodes, in the Eaſt, in Africa and Gaul. He made a Law forbidding Husbands to accuſe their Wives of Adultery, if they were guilty thereof themſelves. He died of a Fever in the 77th Year of his Age, An. 161. Euſebius, Baronius. He adopted Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, and Lucius Aurelius Verus, who ſucceeded him together in the Empire. Verus carried on the War againſt the Parthians with ſucceſs, whilſt Antoninus managed Affairs at home; and Verus being dead, he Govern'd alone, and was ſucceſsful againſt the Germans, Sarmatians, Vandals, &c. He was the Author of the twelve Books, according to Suidas, Entituled, ἰδίȣ βίȣ Διαγωγῆς. containing the Duty of a good Prince, and not a Hiſtory of his own Life, as ſome have imagined; but only writ by him as a Rule for himſelf. Printed at London with an Excellent Commentary by Thomas Gataker in 1652.

ANTONINUS Commodus. Vid. Commodus.

ANTONINUS, Vid. Caracalla, Heliogabalus, Geta, Diadumenus, and Mar. Aurelius.

ANTONINUS: The Author of the Itinerary that bears this Name, is not yet well known; ſome Authors holding it was Antony the Meek that compos'd this Piece, others attributing it to Marcus Aurelius Antoninus the Philoſopher, or to ſome of the Princes of that Name. Jerome Surita, a Spaniard, conſidering the divers Paſſages of the Book in which Great Britany is mention'd, is confident it was writ in the time of Antoninus Caracalla. In fine, ſome pretend that the unknown Author liv'd in 337. and Simler ſeems to be of opinion that it was the ſame that compos'd this and another Itinerary, affirm'd to have been written by *Æthicus Iſter. Voſſius, l.*3. H. L.

ANTONIUS, (Marcus) a Man of ſo vaſt a Memory that he never forgot any thing, but expreſſed his Conceptions in as great order as a General draws up an Army, putting every thing in its proper place where it was moſt ſignificant. He was ſo ready at Pleading, that he confounded the Judges on the Bench, and never had any occaſion to meditate. Cicero.

ANTONIUS Nebriſſenſis, a Spaniard, and one of the greateſt Scholars of his time, was born in 1455. Studied in the Univerſity of Bologne in Italy to that advantage, that at his return into Spain he was employed to Teach in the Univerſity of Salamanca, which he quitted after 28 years ſtay, and offer'd his Service to Cardinal Ximenes, who was glad to have a Man of Reputation and Parts in his new Univerſity of Alcala. Here Nebriſſenſis taught until he died, in 1522. being then 77 years of Age. He left us a great many Pieces of his own Work, as new Methods for Learning the Latin, Greek, and Hebrew Tongues, Commentaries upon ſeveral Eminent Authors, as Juvenal, Perſeus, with Treatiſes of Hiſtory, and Coſmography. Voſſius, le Mire, Merula.

ANTONIUS Auguſtinus, Archbiſhop of Tarragon, one of the Learned'ſt Perſons Spain ever bred. He was born at Saragoſſa, Son of Antonius Auguſtinus, Under-Chancellor of Arragon, and Brother to Elizabeth, Dutcheſs of Cardoma. At the Age of 25 years, he wrote a Treatiſe, call'd, Emendationes & Opiniones Juris Civilis, which got him great Reputation. He was not only a great Lawyer, but likewiſe a Maſter of Polite Learning. He was at the Council of Trent in 1562. where he appear'd with advantage; and afterwards retiring to his Church at Tarragon, died there in the Year 1586. He has left ſeveral Treatiſes behind him; as, De Legibus & Senatûs Conſultis, with Fulvius Urſinus's Notes on 'em. Collectio Conſtitutionum Codicis Juſtiniani. Antiquæ Collectiones Decretalium, with very Learned and Judicious Notes. Canones Pœnitentiales. Conſtitutiones Provinciales & Synodales Tarraconenſium. Dialogi 40 de Emendatione Gratiani. Inſtitutiones Juris Canonici. Epitome Juris Pontificii Veteris. We have likewiſe Dialogues of his concerning Medals and ancient Inſcriptions, which he wrote in Spaniſh; and likewiſe Notes upon Varro, Feſtus, &c. Antonius Auguſtinus is an Author of great Eſteem among the Learned. Nicholas Antonio Bibl. Hiſp.

ANTONIUS Galateus, ſo call'd from Galatina, a Village in Italy in Otranto. He lived in the 15th Century, and was very much eſteem'd for his Wit and Learning. He was a Philoſopher, a Phyſician, a Poet, and a Geographer. Paulus Jovius, Pontanus, and Hermolaus Barbarus, gave a great Character of him; and he was conſulted by the Learned Men in his Time, for the Reſolution of difficult Points. We have a Deſcription of Gallipolis of his Writing, which he dedicated to Sannazarius; a Method for the Study of Philoſophy, which he Entituled, De Optimo genere Philoſophandi; and other very valuable Pieces. Towards the latter end of his time he was afflicted with the Gout, and to divert himſelf, he wrote a Panegyrick upon that Diſeaſe, call'd, Laudatio Podagræ. He died, as near as we can gueſs, about the Year 1490. *Paulus Jovius in Elog. c.*119. *Leand. Albert. Deſc. Ital. Voſſius Lib.*4. de Hiſt. Lat.

ANTONIUS De Godis (Henry) of Vicenza in Italy, a Famous Lawyer, who practis'd at Venice with great Reputation. He liv'd in the beginning of the 14th Century. He wrote ſeveral Tracts in his own Profeſſion, together with the Hiſtory of Vicenza. *John Baptiſt Pajarini, Lib.*6. Hiſt. Vicent.

ANTONIUS Primus, Sirnam'd Becco, Born at Tholouſe, was, in the Opinion of Tacitus, one of the greateſt Commanders of his time. The moſt remarkable of his Actions, was the Victory he gain'd for Veſpaſian againſt Vitellius, near Cremona, when Arrius Varus had raſhly charged the Enemy without his order. Tacitus obſerves likewiſe, that he had Elocution as well as Courage and Military Conduct. *Tacitus Hiſt. Lib.*3.

St. ANTONY, called, The Great, was born in 251. Decius being Emperor, and died in 356 at the Age of 105. He was an Egyptian, and became the Patron of many that retir'd to the Deſarts of Thebaide to live ſolitary Lives; ſome hold that he was bred an Attorney, others, that he never Studied; but moſt agree that he was the firſt that preſcrib'd the Rules of a Monaſtick Life. Polydor Virg.

St. ANTONY, an Order of Monks that obſerve St. Auguſtine's Rules; their chief Abbey is that of St. Antony of Viennois in Dauphine, which was firſt of all an Hoſpital to receive ſuch as were troubled with certain Inflammations, ſaid to be cur'd by St. Antony's Reliques, and therefore call'd St. Antony's Fire. Pope Boniface VIII. converted this Hoſpital into an Abbey in 1297.

St. ANTONY's Knights, a Military Order inſtituted by Albert Duke of Bavaria, Holland, and Zealand, when he deſign'd to make War againſt the Turks in 1382. The Knights wore a Collar of Gold made in form of a Hermit's Girdle, from which hung a Stick cut like a Crutch, with a little Bell, as they are repreſented in St. Anthony's Portraitures.

ANTONY of Bourbon, King of Navarre, Prince of Bearn, Duke of Vendoſme, &c. Eldeſt Son of Charles of Vendoſme, Duke of Bourbon, King of Navarre, by Jane D'Albert the only Daughter and Heireſs of Henry D'Albert King of Navarre; He was declared Lieutenant-General of the Kingdom of France, during the Minority of Charles IX. and commanded the Royal Army which took Bourges; ſoon after he beſieged Roan, where, as he was viſiting the Trenches, he was wounded in the Shoulder with a Musket Bullet, of which he died the ſame Year. He was the Father of Henry IV. of France, and ſometimes a Zealous Champion for the Reformed Religion. Thuan. D'Avila.

ANTONY, who aſſum'd the Quality of King of Portugal, was Son of Lewis, (the ſecond Son of King Emanuel and Mary of Arragon) by a Miſs called Toland; he was born in 1500. and became Prior of Crati; but after Sebaſtian's death, he took the Quality of King at Lisbon, the 24th of June 1531. but finding the Spaniards Party more powerful than his own, he fled for ſuccour to France, where he died in 1595. and was buried in the Franciſcans Church. He left ſeveral Baſtard Children, as Emanuel, and Chriſtopher, who alſo took the Title of King, and died at Paris of a Palſy in 1638. the 66th Year of his Age. He had another Son who turn'd Monk, and two Daughters who became Nuns, &c.

ANTONY, Duke of Lorrain and Bar, third Son of Rene Duke of Lorrain and Philippa of Guelders his Second Wife, was born in 1489. and brought up at the Court of Lewis XII. of France, whom he follow'd into Italy, where he was at the Battel of Agnadel, and afterwards ſignaliz'd himſelf at the Battel of Marignan in 1515. and on ſeveral other occaſions during that War. His Conduct and Addreſs in bringing the Peaſants of Alſace, and of the Biſhoprick of Strasbourg to their Duty, who revolted in 1525, got him conſiderable Reputation; he died in 1544. This Duke Married Rene of Bourbon, Daughter of Gilbert of Bourbon, Count of Montpenſier, and Vice-Roy of Naples in 1529. This Lady obtain'd of Francis I. the forfeited Eſtate of her Brother Charles Bourbon, Lord High Conſtable of France. They had two Sons and a Daughter, Francis Duke of Lorrain who ſucceeded Anthony; Francis who begun the Branch of the Dukes of Mercoeur; and Anne, firſt Married to Rene of Naſſau and Chalon, Prince of Orange, and afterwards to Philippe de Croui, the firſt of the Name, Duke of Arſchot.

ANTONY the Sicilian render'd his Name famous by burning the Arſenal of Gallipolis in 1475. This young Man was taken by the Turks when Mahomet II. made himſelf

Maſter of the Iſle of Negrepont, and made his eſcape to the Venetian Fleet commanded by Peter Mocenigo, then at Anchor at Napoli di Romania; he preſented himſelf to the Admiral, and told him he knew how to deſtroy all the Turkiſh Fleet, That to execute his deſign, he required nothing but a Bark and ſome few truſty Companions; which being granted him, he took in Fruit, croſs'd the Dardanelles, and feigning himſelf a Merchant, ſpent the Day in ſelling his Fruit, and at Night bore up and fir'd the Arſenal; but the People flocking from all ſides, he had not time to burn the Ships: So when he ſaw that the Flame had reach'd his own little Veſſel, he led his Companions into a Wood that ſtood near the Coaſt, where he was ſearch'd for and found by the Turks, who ſeeing his Ship ſink, and the Fruit ſwim on the Water, did not doubt but it was he that did this bold Action. Being had before the Grand Signior, and ask'd why he did ſo ill a thing, he made this reſolute Anſwer, That it was to ruine the Forces of the Common Enemy of Chriſtendom, and that he could wiſh, he had Stabb'd him to the Heart, as he had ſet Fire to the Arſenal. Mahomet admir'd this Generoſity, ſomewhat like that of Mutius Scævola, but did not imitate Porſenna, for he order'd him and his Companions to be Saw'd through the middle. The States of Venice gave his Brother a conſiderable Penſion, and Match'd his Siſter very well. Sab. L.9.

ANTONY of Lorrain, Count of Vaudemont, &c. Sirnam'd, The Undertaker, was the Son of Ferri of Lorrain, Sirnam'd the Couragious. Renatus of Anjou, King of Sicily and Naples, claim'd the Dukedom of Lorrain from him by the Marriage of Iſabelle, Eldeſt Daughter of Charles the Firſt, Duke of Lorrain, and had the Emperor's Deciſion in his favour; but Anthony, aſſiſted by France, withſtood him, defeated his Army, and having taken him Priſoner at the Battel of Bullegneville, ſent him to Dijon, where he was forc'd to condeſcend to hard Terms before he could obtain his Liberty. He died in 1447. D'Avila.

ANTRIM, a County, Barony, and Borough Town of the Province of Ulſter in the North of Ireland. This Town is but ordinary, and ſtands by the Lake call'd Lough-Neah, five miles South of Connor along the North-Eaſt Coaſt. The County is divided into nine Baronies, whereof Antrim is one: The County is bounded by St. George's Channel on the Eaſt, the River Ban on the Weſt, the Deucalidon Ocean on the North, and the County of Down on the South. Carickfergus is now the chief Town.

ANTRONIA, was a City of Theſſaly upon the Sea-Coaſt, ſo call'd from the great number of Dens and Caverns in the parts adjoining to it, but more particularly remarkable for the great ſtore of Aſſes bred thereabouts of a more than ordinary Bulk and Height; whence all huge ignorant ſottiſh Fellows were call'd Antronii Aſini.

ANTROS, vulgarly Cardovan, an Iſland of France in Guien, ſeated at the Mouth of the Gironde, where Henry IV. built the Tower of Cardovan, magnificently repair'd by Lewis XIV. which ſerves for a Light-Houſe to ſuch Ships as enter the River bound for Bourdeaux.

ANTRUM Sibyllæ, Lat. Grotta della Sibilla, a moſt Celebrated Place, ſtill viſited by Travellers, being a Den or large Room cut out of a hard Rock, eight Foot wide, fourteen in length, and thirteen high, the Floor pav'd with ſquare Tiles of Moſaick Work, the Walls lin'd with Stones of various colours, and the Roof embelliſh'd with Gold and Azure, where the Cumæan Sibyl had her Habitation and return'd her Oracles. It's in the Terra di Lavoro, near Cumæ.

ANTSIANACH, a Province of the Iſland Madagaſcar in Africa, with very high Mountains towards the Eaſt, almoſt in the middle of the Iſland, a Province large and rich, but little known to the Europeans.

ANTWERP, Lat. Antwerpia, Antwerpen by the Natives, by the Italians, Anverſa, vulgarly Antwerp, is a City of Brabant in the Spaniſh Netherlands, the Capital of the Marquiſate of the Holy Empire, with a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Malines. Some derive the name of this City from Hant a Hand, and Werpen to throw away, for that before Cæſar's coming into Gaul, a certain Giant whoſe name was Antigonus, kept in a Caſtle upon the Scheld, demanding of ſuch as paſſed by, half of what they carried about 'em, which if they in the leaſt refuſed, he cut off their Right Hands, and threw them into the River. This City was formerly one of the Richeſt and moſt Beautiful of the whole World, ſeated in a ſpacious Plain upon the right ſide of the Scheld, where the River divides the Dutchy of Brabant from the County of Flanders. It was enlarged by John I. John III. and Charles V. It contains 212 Streets, and 22 publick Piazza's. The Houſes are all Neat and Faſhionable, and many of them Magnificent. In a word, all the Structures both Sacred and Secular admirable. Our Lady's Church, the Cathedral, is a Piece of incomparable Workmanſhip; it's above 500 Foot long, 240 broad, and 340 high, contains 66 Chapels, embelliſh'd with Marble Pillars, all different in ſhape, and adorn'd with lovely Pictures as well as the Body of the Church. The Tower is one of the higheſt and faireſt of Europe, built of white Stone, wherein are 33 large Bells. The chief Doors are Cas'd with Marble, and gilt with Gold. This fine Church was almoſt burnt to the Ground in the Year 1533. and after that pillaged, during the Civil Wars, for Religion. It was erected into a Cathedral by Paul IV. in the Year 1559. There are four other Pariſh Churches, viz. St. George, St. James, St. Andrew, and St. Mallurge, beſides a great number of other fair Churches belonging to Religious Houſes, amongſt which the Jeſuits Church is very magnificent; it's paved with Marble on the two lower ſides one above another, which are ſupported by 56 Marble Columns; the four Roofs are hung with 38 large Pictures in Gold Frames, and the Wall has 40 croſs Windows fac'd with Marble. The chief Altar is all of Marble, Jaſper, Porphyry, and Gold. Our Lady's Chapel is no leſs conſiderable; the Pavement, Sides, and Vaults are all Marble. Its 50 Chapels, the Portal, and Jeſuits Houſe, are worth the ſeeing. Almoſt all the Fine Paintings there, are done by the Famous Rubens. The Town-Houſe conſiſts of four large Apartments, and the Eaſterlings-Houſe, the Exchange, and the Galleries that ſurround it, are worthy of Conſideration. The Cittadel, one of the ſtrongeſt, and moſt regular, is of a Pentagon Figure, with five Baſtions that defend one another, well Terraſſed, with large and deep Moats. It encloſes two little Hills that give a Proſpect all over the Countrey. This Cittadel was built in the Year 1567. by the Duke of Alva, the Deſign drawn by Paccotti, the famous Architect of Urbin. The City lies 18 Leagues from the Sea, between Malines, Louvain, Bruſſels, and Bruges, the Harbour is very lovely, and moſt convenient, there being no leſs than Eight Canals for Ships to come up by to the City, in the chiefeſt of which 100 may ride together. There are 74 Bridges upon theſe Canals, all which Conveniencies brought a great Trade to the Town. It ſuffered much in the Revolt of the Low-Countreys from the Spaniards, who plundered it three days together, burnt above 600 Houſes, and kill'd and drown'd 10000 of the Inhabitants. The Confederates repair'd it, but it was after that retaken by the Prince of Parma, after a Years Siege, memorable in Modern Hiſtory for the many Machines and Devices us'd in it; and has ſince recover'd much of its former Beauty, though the Neighbourhood of Amſterdam has deprived it of the greateſt part of her Trade. There are 25 Colleges, Nunneries, and Religious Houſes. The Jeſuits Treaſure is valued at Two Millions. Lon. 25. 51. Lat. 41. 16. Guichardin deſcription de pais bas.

ANUBIS, one of the Deities of the Egyptians, painted with a Dog's-Head holding a Palm-Branch in one Hand, and a Caduceum or Mercury's Wand in the other. Some ſay Anubis was Son of Oſiris, and follow'd his Father to the Wars, and that for his Martial Atchievements, and extraordinary Acts of Valour, he was Deify'd after his Death by the Egyptians; who, becauſe he was alſo a great Lover of Dogs, whoſe Picture he always painted upon his Shield, and bore in his Standards, they repreſented him with a Dog's Head. His Worſhip was tranſlated to the Romans, and ſo highly eſteem'd by Commodus the Emperor, that he cauſed his Head to be ſhav'd, that he might carry the Idol of Anubis about the Streets of Rome. But Mundus having Enjoy'd Pauline in this God's Temple, by the Contrivance of one of the Prieſteſſes, who made her believe that Anubis himſelf deſired her company in Private; and the Cheat being diſcover'd, the Emperor Tiberius commanded the Temple to be demoliſhed, the Statue of Iſis and Anubis to be thrown into the Tiber, and ſentenced the Prieſts and Prieſteſſes to be Crucified. *Diod. Sicul. Lib.*1.

ANYSIS, a blind Man, born in a Town of the ſame Name. He ſucceeded Aſychis in the Kingdom of Egypt. He was Invaded and Diſpoſſeſſed by Sabach K. of Æthiopia, which Sabach, being afterwards frighten'd in a Dream, march'd back into his own Country; whereupon Anyſis reaſſumed the Government, and when he died, made Sethon, a Prieſt of Vulcan, his Succeſſor. Herod. Euterp.

ANYTUS, a Rhetorician of Athens, conceiv'd ſuch a mortal Hatred againſt Socrates, becauſe he us'd to inveigh againſt ſuch Knaviſh Fellows as he was, that he reſolv'd to have his Life. To which purpoſe, getting Ariſtophanes on his ſide, he made that Comedian to beſpatter him in one of his Plays; then joining with Melitus and ſome others, he got him condemned to Death in the 95th Olympiad; but when the Philoſopher's Innocence came to be known, the People mutinied againſt his Accuſers; and Anytus being forc'd to fly to Heraclea, was there, as ſome ſay, ſton'd to death by the Inhabitants. Plutarch in Vit. Socratis.

ANZERMA, a ſmall City of the Southern America in the Kingdom of Popajan, upon the River Cauca near Cape Corrente, about 50 Leagues from the City of Popajan to the North, and 12 from Calamanta to the South. Quintus Curt Lib. 8.

ANZICHI, a People of Africa in the Eaſt of the Kingdom of Loango, govern'd by one Supream Monarch, having many Petty Kings under him. They barter Slaves, Ivory, and Cloath made out of Palm-Tree, with thoſe of Congo, for Salt and Shells, which is their Money. They are Cannibals, but eſteemed Valiant and Faithful to their Maſters.

ANZUQUI, a Town in the Iſland of Japan, in the Province of Vomi, upon the Bay of Meaco, the chief City of Japan, from whence it ſtands about 20 Leagues.

AON, the Son of Neptune, who being driven out of Apulia by his own Subjects, planted himſelf in Bœotia, and call'd that Country Aonia from his Name.

AONIA, the Mountainous part of Bœotia; but the ancient Poets apply that Name to the whole. Here the Muſes were ſaid to have dwelt, and therefore call'd Aonides. Hence alſo Aonium Nemus, and Lyra Aonia, celebrated by Ovid.

AORNOS, a Rock in India, ſo high, that it was thought inacceſſible to the very Birds. Hercules beſieged it in vain, but Alexander the Great underſtanding that it was kept by a Coward, ſaid, it was eaſie to be taken, and ſo found it. Arian. Alſo a River of Arcadia, and a certain contagious Lake of Epirus, and a Lake in Italy mention'd by Virgil.

AOSTE, the Country of the ancient Salaſſi, now a Dutchy belonging to the Duke of Savoy, comprehending ſix large Valleys amongſt the Alps, beſides that from whence it is named, which the River Doera divides in the middle. It's now called La Val d'Aoſta, from the chief City, formerly Auguſta Salaſſorum, either as being built by Auguſtus, or elſe inhabited by a Roman Colony. It's a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Tarantaiſe, and hath a Triumphal-Arch rais'd by Auguſtus, remaining almoſt entire, beſides a Colloſſus, and ſeveral other Monuments of Roman Grandeur. This City is 50 miles E. from Turin, and was the Birthplace of the Famous St. Anſelm, Archbiſhop of Canterbury. Guichenon Hiſt. de Savoye.

APACI, Apaches, a People of Northern America in New Mexico. Their Country is very large, and divided by the Spaniards into four ſorts of Nations, which are Apaches de Parillo, towards the South; Apaches de Xillo, Apaches de Novaio, to the North; and Apaches Vaqueros to the Eaſt: They are all Idolaters, and live under the Government of their Caciques, having ſeveral Strong Holds upon the Mountains, whither they retire upon the approach of the Spaniards.

APALACHI, or Apalachites, a People of Northern America in Florida, towards the Mountains of Apalatai. The Kingdom of the Apalachites contains ſeveral ſmall Provinces, of which ſome are in a fair Valley bounded to the Eaſt and North by a long Ridge of the Mountains Apalatai; to the South by the Province of Tagoueſta, the Inhabitants of which are Cruel and Barbarous; to the Weſt by the River of Hitanachi, which the Spaniards call the River of the Holy Ghoſt. The moſt conſiderable of the Provinces which are in the Valley, is call'd Bermarin, the next to that is Amana, and the third Matiqua. This laſt extends to the Mountains, where lie Schama Merato, and Aqua Laqua. The Capital City of the Country is Melitot in the Province of Bemarin, where the King keeps his Court, who is acknowledged for Sovereign by the particular Chiefs of the other, which they call Paracouſſet. The Country is Good and Fertile, the Inhabitants Open-hearted, and without Malice. However, their Neighbours force them often to betake themſelves to their Arms, which are Bows and Arrows, Clubs, Slings, and long Javelins that they throw with their Hands when they have once emptied their Quivers, which are of an Oval Form made of Ruſhes twiſted and pitch'd together, ſo artificially, that though cover'd but with a ſingle Leather, and extreamly light, no Arrow will pierce them. They formerly ador'd the Sun, but are now for the moſt part Chriſtians, being inſtructed by a French Colony carried thither by Captain Ribauld, in the time of Charles IX. Linſchot Deſcript. de l'America.

APAMEA, now Hama or Aman, upon the Orontes, a City of Syria, once an Archbiſhop's See under the Patriarch of Antiochia, and therefore conſiderable, and frequently mentioned by the Ancients. One of its Biſhops call'd Thomas, by his Addreſs and Prudence, preſerv'd it from the Arms of Coſroes, King of Perſia. It was built by Seleucus Nicanor, who gave it his Wifes name, by which means it became in a ſhort time the next City to Antiochia; and her Rival for Beauty and Riches. It is ſeated upon a pleaſant Hill, in the midſt of a Plain, encompaſſed with other Hills, and extreamly Fertile in all ſorts of Grain and Fruits. The City it ſelf is ſurrounded with the River Orontes and a Lake, which render the Gardens Lovely and Beautiful: The Neighbouring Fields abound in Paſturage, which the Kings of Syria did formerly reſerve for their own Horſes; and though at this time the City is much decayed, yet it is ſtill the moſt Populous in Syria next to Aleppo. On the top of the Hill ſtands a Caſtle, which not only commands the Town, but alſo the adjacent Plain. Lon. 70. Lat. 34.45. Plin. Lib. 5.

APAMEA, Apami, an Archiepiſcopal Town of Phrygia upon the River Marſyas, where it mixes with the Mæander, 80 Miles from Synnada to the South, and about 100 from Laodicea to the Weſt, now but thinly Inhabitated. Long. 59. 50. Lat. 39.50.

APAMEA, Apami, an Archiepiſcopal City of Bithynia, by the Turks now called Myrlea, ſeated upon the Propontis towards the Gulf of Polmeure, between Burſa and Cyzicum. Lon. 56.50. Lat. 49.56.

APAMEA, call'd alſo Miana, a Town of Midia, confining upon Parthia. There are alſo two other Towns of this Name in Meſopotamia, one upon the Euphrates, and the other upon the Tygris.

APANTA, a Province of the Continent of Southern America, between the Lake of Parime and the River of the Amazons. Texeira affirms, That the Country of the Apantes extends it ſelf on the other ſide of the ſame River, to the Weſt of the Province of Coropa.

APARIA, a Province of Peru in the Southern America, near the River of the Amazons, towards that part where it receives the Curavaya, to the North of the Province Pacomoro. On the other ſide it has to the Weſt the Country call'd Canella.

APATURIA, certain Feſtivals ſolemniz'd by the Athenians in Honour of Bacchus, which Budæus calls the Feſtivals of Treachery, from the Greek word Apate, that ſignifies Fraud; for the Athenians and Bœotians being at variance about the Bounds of their Countreys, their two Kings Melanthius and Xanthius reſolv'd to determine it by ſingle Combat, wherein Xanthius the Bœotian was ſlain by a Trick; for while the two Princes were engaged, there appeared behind Xanthius a third Perſon clad in a black Goat's Skin, at which they of the contrary Party crying out, That it was foul Play to bring a Second, whilſt Xanthius looked about to ſee who the Second was, Melanthius ſlew him. The Athenians thinking it to be Bacchus who appeared thus in their favour, inſtituted the Apaturia in acknowledgment of his Kindneſs. Others add, That Æthra, becauſe of ſome favour ſhe had received from Pallas, dedicated a Temple to her, ordering that the Trœzenian Virgins ſhould conſecrate their Girdles to Pallas Apaturia before their Nuptials. Venus was alſo call'd Apaturia, becauſe when the Giants ſought to have kill'd her, ſhe is ſaid to have hid her ſelf, till by the help of Hercules ſhe ſlew them every one. Heſychius, Herodotus.

APELLES, call'd the Prince of Painters, born at Cos, liv'd in the 112th Olympiad, about the 422d of Rome. Alexander the Great would ſuffer none but him to draw his Picture, and gave him one of his Concubines named Campaſpes of Lariſſa, hearing that he fell in Love with her as ſhe ſat to be drawn. He painted ſeveral Pieces mentioned with admiration by the Ancients, as the Portraiture of Antigonus, whom he drew with a ſide Face to hide the Deformity of his loſt Eye; a Picture of a Stone Horſe, ſo much to the Life, that the Mares neighed when they ſaw it; the two Portraitures of Venus, one iſſuing out of the Sea call'd Anadyomene, the other drawn for his own Countreymen, applauded by Ovid, with ſeveral others famous in the Writings of the Ancients. Valerius Maximus. Plin. Horace.

APELLES the Heretick, Diſciple of Marcion, alledg'd there were Two Gods, one Good, and another Bad. This laſt he ſaid form'd the World, and gave the Moſaick Law; the other was Author of the Goſpel and Redeemer of the World. Theſe Errors were common to him, with his Maſter Marcion, but being expell'd his Communion, he invented a new Hereſie, or rather Learn'd it of Philumene, a young Woman poſſeſs'd with an Evil Spirit, which ſhe pretended was the Holy Ghoſt. He then admitted but one God, made up of infinite Parts, deſpis'd the Laws and Prophets, and allow'd Jeſus but a Body of Air, which he diſtributed amongſt the Elements when he aſcended to Heaven. He alſo denied the Reſurrection of the Body. Bar. A. C. 146.

APELLICON, a Citizen of Athens in the 638 of Rome, heap'd up all the Books that he could get, not that he unſtood them, or had any love for Learning, but to make himſelf ſpoken of for his Library. He purchaſed Ariſtotle's Writings at a dear rate, but Sylla having taken Athens, carried them to Rome. Strabo, Lib. 13.

APENNINE, Apennino, a vaſt Mountain of Italy, which begins near Savona upon the Coaſts of Genoa, where it joins the Maritime Alps, from whence it runs through the middle of all Italy, forming a long ridge of Mountains that extend themſelves like a Bow to the very Streight that parts Italy from Sicily. The Apennine is call'd in ſeveral parts by ſeveral Names, between Lucca and Modena, Monte S. Peregrino, and is of a prodigious Height, though not quite ſo high as the Alps, and 700 miles long. Cluvier, Lib. 30.

APENRADE, a ſmall City of Denmark in South Jutland, and the Dutchy of Sleſwick ſeated upon the Baltick Sea, with a good Haven, three Leagues from Haderſleben, three from Thensburgh, and two from the Iſland of Alſen.

APER Arius, Captain of the Pretorian Bands, ſlew his Son-in-Law Numerianus the Emperor, Anno 284. to advance himſelf, and conceal'd his death till it was diſcover'd by the Stench of the Corps; whereupon he was ſeiz'd, and Diocleſian being proclaim'd Emperor, put him to death, and ſo fulfill'd the Prediction of a Magician, who told him, That he ſhould be Emperor after he had kill'd a ſavage Boar, being the ſignification of Aper's Name. This Family of Aper was famous at Rome, ſeveral of 'em having been Conſuls; as, M. Flavius Aper, who had been Conſul with T. Vetraſſius Pollion, in the time of the Emperor Aurelius; and M. Flav. Aper under Caracalla, An. Ch. 208. as alſo Aper, an ancient and much noted Grammarian.

APERIC, Oculos, Abrothos, a ſmall Iſland encompaſſed with ſeveral Rocks, about 70 Leagues from the Coaſt of Braſil, betwixt Europe and Pernambuca; they are terrible to the Mariners, extending themſelves under water above 50 Leagues: There are alſo other Rocks in theſe parts call'd by this ſame Name. Hoffman.

APETOUS, Lat. Apetubæ, a People of North America in Braſil, near the Government of Puerto Seguro.

APHEK, a City of Paleſtine, famous for a Temple of Venus, where her Adorers gave themſelves up to all manner of Laſciviouſneſs, as being the place in which ſhe is ſaid to have embraced her Adonis; but more memorable in Sacred Writ for the Overthrow of the Iſraelites by the Philiſtines, and the ſignal Victory of Ahab over Benhadad King of Aſſyria. Bochart des Colonies Phœniciens.

APHETÆ, a City of Magneſia, in a Province of Theſſaly, ſeated upon the Bay call'd Il Golfo del Vollo, from whence the Argonauts put to Sea, when bound to Colchos. Ap. de Argon.

APHGASI, a Clan of the Tartars, that inhabit on the Weſt-ſide of the Wolga, towards the South of the Kingdom of Aſtracan, upon the Caſpian Sea, to the River Cupa, which falls into the Palus Mæotis, beyond whom the Cyrcaſſian Tartars inhabit between the Euxine and Caſpian Seas. Guagn.

APHION, Caraſſer Hieropolis ad Mæandrum, a great City in the Leſſer Aſia, but dirty and ill built. It had an ancient Caſtle of Freeſtone, on a high Rock, ſeparated from the Mountains which lie South of it, and form a kind of Semi-circle. This City was at firſt a Biſhop's See, but now an Archbiſhop's. It lies 35 miles from Philadelphia to the South, in the Borders of Cairo. Baudr.

APHRODISIUM, a ſtrong and well fortified City of Barbary in the Kingdom of Tunis, upon the Sea-Coaſt, 20 Leagues diſtant from Adrumetum, or Mahumeta. Hoff.

APHRODISIUS, an Egyptian, one of St. Peter's Diſciples, and afterwards Biſhop of Bourges in France, as Volaterran will have it. Some are of opinion, that our Saviour was hid two years in his Houſe at Grand Cairo, during Herod's Perſecution. See Joſeph. Antiq. Jud. Lib. 18.

APHRODITE, one of the Names of Venus, from the Greek Word Aphros, which ſignifies Froth, becauſe the Poets feign her to have been engendred of the Froth of the Sea; by which Fiction, the Ancients ſignified, that Moiſture was one of the Principles of Generation, of which Venus was reputed the Goddeſs. Heſychius.

APHTHARDOCITÆ, a Sect ſprung from the Eutychians in the 6th Century: They could not comprehend our Saviour's Paſſion, holding that He was Immortal from the very firſt moment of His Conception. Bar. A.C. 535.

APHTON, a Sophiſt and Rhetorician of Antioch, living in the ſecond Century. He wrote ſeveral Tracts, particularly one of Rhetorick, ſtill remaining. Suid. in Apht. Volaterr. Anthrop. l. 13.

APHYTE, or Aphytis, a City of Thrace, not far from Pallene, fam'd for an Oracle of Apollo: The Inhabitants had alſo Jupiter Ammon in great Veneration, becauſe he appear'd in the Night to Lyſander, beſieging this City Ammon, and oblig'd him to deſiſt. Pauſan.

APIAN, (Peter) Bincwitz, a German Mathematician of Leiſnick in Miſnia. He made a great Progreſs in the Mathematicks, and read in that Faculty in the Univerſity of Ingolſtadt with great Applauſe. He dedicated one of his Tracts, call'd Coſmographicus, Geographica Inſtructio; or, Aſtronomicum Cæſarium, to Charles V. He likewiſe publiſh'd a Book, call'd Quadrans Univerſalis, & Aſtronomicum Inſtrumentum. His Son, Philip Apian, was likewiſe a conſiderable Mathematician and Phyſician, and Printed a Treatiſe De Umbris. Hen. Pantaleon, lib. 3. Proſopogr. Voſſius de Scient. Math.

APIARIUS, a Prieſt of the Church of Sicca in Numidia, being accus'd of ſeveral Crimes, was condemn'd by the Biſhops of that Province, about 417. Upon which, appealing to Pope Zoſimus, he defended himſelf with ſo much Artifice, that Zoſimus acquitted him. This is ſaid to have been the beginning of Appeals to Rome, of which ſeveral Authors have ſo variouſly diſcourſed. Bar. An. C. 419. the 5th Council of Carthage, C. 101.

APICATA, the Wife of Sejanus, who being divorced, wrote a Memorial with her own Hand to Tiberius, diſcovering the ſecret Contrivances of Druſus's Death, the treaſonable Concurrence of young Livia his Wife, debauch'd by Sejanus; the Villainies of Eudemus the Phyſician, and Ligdus the Eunuch; and ſo reveng'd her ſelf on her Rival. Tacit. Annal. 4.

APICIUS, a famous Glutton, that ſpent a conſiderable Stock, meerly to ſatisfie his Intemperance, and wrote a Treatiſe of the Delicacy of Eating: And after this, if we believe Seneca, he hang'd himſelf out of Deſpair, when he reflected that he had laviſh'd away all his Subſtance. Athen. l. 11. Senec. l. de Conſol.

APINA, an ancient Town of Italy, built by Diomedes, who at the ſame time founded Trica; and both of them being ruin'd ſince, gave occaſion to the Proverb, Apinæ & Tricæ, to denote Trifles: And hence Buffoons and Paraſites are call'd Apinarii. Mart. Plin.

APIOLÆ, an ancient City of Italy, taken by Lucius Tarquinius the Ancient, with the Plunder of which he laid the Foundations of the Capitol. Plin.

APIS, King of the Argives, the Son of Jupiter and Niobe, Reign'd in Achaia about 35 years; after which, having his Kingdom to his Brother Ægialeus, he paſs'd into Egypt, where he was known under the Name of Oſiris, and married Iſis. He civiliz'd the Egyptians, who were before a dull and brutiſh People; and having taught them the manner of Planting and Dreſſing Vines, was unanimouſly choſen to be their King. He Govern'd them prudently, and with ſo much Moderation and Juſtice, that after his Death they ador'd him as a God, under the ſhape of a Living Bull, which was kept in a Temple in the Iſland of Delta; and it was one of the principal Arcana of the Egyptian Religion, not to let this Bull live long, but after ſuch a time, to kill him in the Prieſts Fountain; and then they ſhav'd their Hair in ſign of Mourning. Great Sums were expended at the Interment of this Sacred Beaſt, and the Kings of Egypt themſelves were accuſtomed to attend the Funerals, giving from 50 to 100 Talents at a time towards them: Which Ceremony being ended, the Prieſt appointed for that purpoſe, ſought another young Beaſt reſembling the former, which ſo ſoon as he had found, the Mourning ceas'd. This Beaſt they tended with great care for 40 days, during which time the Women only were permitted to ſee it; but then they were alſo forbidden to approach it. After this, the Prieſts put the Bull into a cover'd Boat, which had a ſeparate Apartment enrich'd with Gold; and in that manner they carried him with great Solemnity to Memphis, whither the Egyptians repair'd to know the Truth of ſeveral things; for the Bull having two Chambers one within the other, it was taken for a good ſign if he enter'd in one, and a bad if he ſtay'd in the other: He alſo portended good or evil, according as he took or refus'd his Provender. When he was publickly ſhewn, he was always environ'd with Guards, and a Gang of young Childrent went before him, ſinging Hymns in his Praiſe, who many times, tranſported with a ſudden Fury, foretold things to come. See more in Serapis. There was alſo another Apis of Egypt, who was the firſt Inventor of Phyſick, as Clemens Alexandrinus, and Theodoret, affirm; adding withal, That Æſculapius did but enlarge and bring to perfection what the other had found out. Some Authors ſay, Æſculapius himſelf was the Apis ſpoke of; others, that it was the Nile ſo call'd: But a great many hold Apis to have been a rich Egyptian Merchant, who in time of a great Famine, help'd thoſe of Alexandria, and they in acknowledgment built him a Temple, which was demoliſh'd by Theodoſius the Great. He had another Temple at Canopus, a Town of Egypt, whither Men and Women flock'd from all places, ſinging and dancing in very undecent Poſtures. And this Superſtition of the Egyptian Bull, did alſo infect the Indies. Piere de la Val. Tom. 4. Cic. Ovid. Tacit. Euſeb. St. Aug. Ælian. The following Authors add concerning Apis, That this Ox, worſhipp'd by the Egyptians, was conſecrated to Iſis and Oſiris; That it was black, white fac'd, and had white Spots over the Body; That he had the Figure of an Eagle upon the Back, and that of a Beetle on the Tongue, and a Creſcent on the ſide, with the Hair of the Tail double; That he was call'd the Celeſtial Bull, and was thought to be conceived by the ſole Force of the Rays of the Moon; which agrees with the Sentiment of Ælian and Ammianus Marcellinus: Finally, That when this Beaſt happen'd to die, the Prieſts, cover'd with Buck-skins, made a hideous Noiſe, which the People anſwer'd as mournfully; ſo that there was nothing but Sadneſs until the New Bull was found, &c. Strab. Herodot. Pomponius Mela, Pliny.

APIS, King of Sicyon in Peloponneſus, ſucceeded his Father Telechin: He made himſelf Maſter of the whole Corinthian Iſthmus; and from him, part of Greece was call'd Apia. He Reign'd 25 years, and died in the year of the World 2016. and was ſucceeded by his Son Thelxeyon. Pauſan. Euſeb.

APODISIA, or Aphrodiſias, formerly a Biſhop's See, Suffragan of Stauropolis, now almoſt ruined, is in Caria, under the Turks, fam'd for giving Birth to Alexander Aphrodiſius, with ſome other great Prelates and Hereticks.

APOLLINARES Ludi, certain Solemnities inſtituted in Honour of Apollo by the Romans, (at the inſtance of Cor- nelius Rufus the Decemvir, upon a Prediction of the Soothſayer Martius) who at that time were Crown'd with Lawrel, and Sacrific'd a Bull and two Goats at their firſt Solemnization. It's reported, that an unexpected Invaſion forced them to quit their Sport, and take to Arms; and that during their Diſtraction, a Cloud of Arrows was ſeen to fall upon their Enemies; ſo that they preſently return'd Victorious to their Feſtival, where they found one C. Pompeius, an old Man dancing to a Minſtrel; and overjoy'd that their Sport had been continued without interruption, they cried out, All is ſafe, ſeeing an Old Man dances: Which Speech became afterwards Proverbial, when any ſudden Evil is ſeconded with good Event. Macrob.

APOLLINARIS, Biſhop of Laodicea in the 4th Age, taught Rhetorick at Beritus, and other places; turn'd part of the Scriptures into Verſe, and wrote many Books to ſupply the want of Publick Schoolmaſters, which Julian the Apoſtate had forbidden: After which, he became a great Heretick, and affirm'd, That the Divinity of Chriſt was to him inſtead of a Soul; That his Fleſh was ſent down from Heaven, and convey'd through the Virgin as through a Channel; That there were two Sons, one born of God, the other of the Virgin; That Jeſus Chriſt was conceived a pure Man, and that afterwards the Word deſcended into him, and had ſuch Operation in him as in the Prophets, but was not united to his Nature; That it was only by his Good Works that he became Great and Perfect; That God was Crucified, and that Jeſus Chriſt has no Body now: To which his Diſciples added many other Figments borrowed from the Manicheans, Tertullian, and Sabellius, which were all condemned in the Synod of Alexandria, where Athanaſius was preſent, and alſo in the Second Oecumenical Council of Conſtantinople. He wrote a great many Books; but of all his Works, there is nothing now extant but an Interpretation of the Pſalms in Verſe. St. Jerom in Chron. 366. Sozom. Socrat. Ruffin.

APOLLINARIS, call'd the Elder, to diſtinguiſh him from his Son of the ſame Name, was a Prieſt, and taught Grammar at Laodicea in Syria: He was Father to Apollinaris, Biſhop of Laodicea. Socrat. l. 2. c. 36.

APOLLO, the Son of Jupiter and Latona, and Brother of Diana, born at Delos: He is ſaid to have kill'd the Serpent Pitho, becauſe the Heat of the Son dries up the Peſtilential Vapours of the Earth; He was feign'd to wear long Hair, in reſemblance of the Sun-Beams: The Lawrel was conſecrated to him, becauſe the Heathens believed that a Lawrel-Leaf, being laid under a ſleeping Man's Pillow, made him dream true Dreams. The Fable of his Feeding Admetus's Sheep, was to denote, That all Creatures receive particular Benefit from the nouriſhing Warmth of the Sun; and his killing the Cyclops for forging Jupiter's Thunderbolts, alluded to the Sun's diſperſing thoſe Vapours that occaſion the Changes of the Air, and various Diſtempers in Human Bodies. He is call'd Sun in Heaven, Bacchus on Earth, and Apollo in Hell; and is repreſented with a Harp, to ſhew us the Harmony of the Spheres; with a Buckler, to ſignifie that he is Defender of the Earth; and with Arrows, to denote his Power of Life and Death. Natalis Comes, Macrob. Cic.

APOLLODORUS, the Name of ſeveral Perſons mention'd in ancient Authors; one an Epicurean Philoſopher, who wrote 300 ſeveral Treatiſes, and amongſt the reſt the Life of Epicurus himſelf: Another a Rhetorician and Grammarian of Pergamus, and Auguſtus Cæſar's Maſter in the Art of Speaking: Another who wrote the Hiſtory of the Parthians, cited by Athenæus and Strabo: Another of Athens in the time of Ptolemy Phyſcon, a celebrated Grammarian, Author of the Bibliotheca of the Original of the Gods, &c. Lactant. c. 2. de Inſtitut.

APOLLODORUS, an Athenian Painter of great Reputation, living about 410 years before Chriſtianity. He was the firſt that began to refine upon Nature, and to collect the Beautiful Parts from ſeveral Bodies to draw 'em into one; whereas before him, Painters were contented to come up to the Reſemblance. His Colouring likewiſe, for the Grace and Strength of it, exceeded all before him. Felebien Entretians ſur les Vies des Peintres.

APOLLONIA, now Piergo in the Kingdom of Albania, 35 Miles from Dyrrachium to the South, meanly Inhabited: There is another in Macedon upon the River Chabrius, or Cilargo, between Theſſalonica and Amphipolis, now known by the Name of Eriſſo: Another, formerly call'd the Great, in Thrace, 20 miles from Renkas, now in ruins, yet known by the Name of Seſpoli: Another in the Kingdom of Barca in Barbary, with a capacious Port, yet meanly Inhabited by the Arabians call'd Bonandrea: Another in Aſia the Leſs, by the Sea-ſide, and thought to be the Aſſos mention'd in the Acts, with ſeveral others of no great Conſideration.

APOLLONIA, a Promontory of Africa, upon the Southern Coaſt of Guinea, near the mouth of the River Mancu, 20 Leagues from the Caſtle of St. George Della Mina.

APOLLONIUS, General of Antiochus Epiphanes's Army, and Governour of Samaria, who made War againſt the Jews, and was ſlain by Judas Macchabeus. Joſephus ſpeaks thus of him: When Apollonius, Governour of Samaria for King Antiochus, heard how Judas Macchabeus went on, he march'd againſt him; but the Valiant Commander of God's People defeated his whole Army, kill'd him, then plunder'd his Camp, and carried his Sword in Triumph. He is ſuppoſed to be that ſame who was ſent by Seleucus to Rob the Sacred Treaſury at Jeruſalem; whereupon a Viſion of Angels appear'd like Horſemen, and withſtood him, ſo that he fell down half dead; but was reſtored by the Prayers of the Prieſts.

APOLLONIUS, Sirnamed Davus, General of Alexander Balas King of Syria's Troops, enter'd Judæa, and ſent word to Jonathan, Prince of the Jews, That he deſign'd to Fight and Conquer him. Jonathan moved at this Bravado, marched immediately from Jeruſalem with 10000 choſen Men, accompanied with his Brother Simon, and made himſelf Maſter of the Town of Joppe, and afterwards attack'd Apollonius; and having defeated his whole Infantry, purſued the Horſe to Azor, and burnt the Temple of Dagon, where part went to ſhelter themſelves; ſo that Apollonius loſt above 10000 Men by his ill Conduct and Raſhneſs. This happen'd in the 606 of Rome. Joſeph. l. 13. Ant. Jud.

APOLLONIUS Tyanæus, living in the firſt Age, was look'd upon a great Magician, and to have underſtood the Language of the Birds. At the ſame Hour that Domitian was kill'd at Rome, he ſtopp'd in the middle of his Speech, that he was making to the People of Epheſus, and cried out, Strike the Tyrant, ſtrike the Tyrant! Thou haſt hit him, thou haſt wounded him, thou haſt ſlain him; adding, that Domitian was kill'd: The Truth of which agreeing with the Certainty of the Fact, won him great Reputation. Philoſtratus, who wrote his Life, reports, that he died about the year 97. or 99. no body being preſent at his death, after he had impos'd a long time upon the World, and done the Chriſtians much miſchief. Ælius Lampridius, who extols him for a Saint, adds, that Alexander Severus, among the reſt of his Deities, privately worſhipp'd Chriſt. Abraham Orpheus, Apollonius Tyanæus.

APOLLONIUS of Arabanda, Sirnamed Molon, a Greek Author, who flouriſhed about the 670th year of Rome. Tully tells us he was his Maſter, firſt at Rome, and afterwards in Aſia. He wrote a Piece of Hiſtory; and Joſephus complains he has miſrepreſented the Jews. Cic. in Brut. Suet. in Jul. Cæſ. c. 4. Joſeph. l. 2. cont. Ap.

APOLLONIUS of Chalcis, a Stoick Philoſopher, flouriſhed about the middle of the ſecond Century. He was Præceptor to the Emperors Marcus Aurelius, Antoninus, and to Verus. He endeavoured all he could to perſuade Bardiſanes Syrus to renounce the Chriſtian Religion. Antoninus Pius had brought him from Chalcis to Rome, upon which Apollonius, being very much conceited of his Sufficiency, was ſo hardy as to tell the Emperor, That the Maſter was not obliged to run after the Scholar, but that 'twas the Scholar's Buſineſs to wait upon his Maſter. This Philoſopher being come to Rome, imagined that the Emperor ſhould have made him a Viſit in his Lodgings; Antoninus underſtanding his Vanity, rallied him upon't, and told him, ſmiling, That he perceived 'twas eaſier for Apollonius to come from Chalcis to Rome, than from his Lodgings to the Palace. This Philoſopher was very much in favour with Marcus Aurelius. Jul. Capitolin. in Anton Pio, & in M. Aurel.

APOLLONIUS (Lævinus) born near Bruges in Flanders, and lived in the 16th Century, in the year 1567. He publiſhed a Deſcription of Peru; and the year after, he Printed the French Expedition into Florida, and the Defeat of the Spaniards. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

APOLLONIUS of Perga in Pamphylia, call'd the great Geometrician, flouriſhed about the 510th year of Rome, in the Reign of Ptolemy Euergetes, King of Egypt. Cardan gives him the ſeventh Place among the fine Wits of the World. He has wrote ſeveral Treatiſes; the moſt conſiderable is that of Cones, tranſlated into Latin by Johannes Baptiſta of Meſmes, and afterwards by Frederick Commandon. Strab. l. 17. Card. l. 6. de Subtil.

APOLLOPHANES, a Stoick, who affirmed there was but one Vertue, and that was Prudence. Alſo another of the ſame Name, to whom, at the time of Chriſt's Paſſion, Dionyſius the Areopagite cried out, Aut Author Naturæ patitur, aut Mundi Machina diſſolvitur. Voſſius.

APOLLOS, or Apollo, an Alexandrian Jew, who being converted to Chriſtianity, came to Epheſus in the year 51, and did the Church much Service, as being a Perſon of great Elocution, and very Underſtanding in the Old Teſtament. 1 Cor. 3. Acts 18.

APONUS, modernly call'd Abano, a hot Fountain in the Neighbourhood of Padua, in the State of Venice: Bathing in it cures a great many Diſtempers. Suetonius ſays, that the Emperor Tiberius order'd a Lot to be thrown into't, there being then a Report, that ſuch an Expedient would let him into the Knowledge of future Events. Sueton. in Tiber. c. 14. Lucan, l. 7.

APOSTOLICKS, or *Apotactick*s, Hereticks that ſprung from the Encratites and Cathari, took this Name, becauſe they made Profeſſion of never Marrying, and renounc'd Riches. St. Epiphanes obſerves, That theſe Vagabonds that appear'd about 260. made uſe for the moſt part of the Apocryphal Acts of St. Andrew, St. Thomas, St. Epiphanes and St. Auguſtine. Bar. An. C. 260. There was another Sect of this Name about the 12th Century; they were againſt Marriage, and never went without lewd Women: They alſo deſpis'd Infant-Baptiſm, Purgatory, Invocation of Saints, and Prayers for the Dead; and call'd themſelves the True Body of the Church, condemning all uſe of Fleſh with the Manichees. St. Bernard wrote againſt them in 1147. Baron. Genebrard.

APOTHEOSIS, the Ceremony which the Romans obſerv'd when they Deified their Emperors or Great Perſonages, that had deſerved well of their Country: To this purpoſe they made the Figure of the Party deceaſed in Wax, and laid it in a Bed of State; this Bed was plac'd in a great Hall in the Palace, whither the Senators, Ladies, and Phyſicians, came for ſeven days to viſit and bear it company: On the eighth day the moſt conſiderable Senators and Knights carried the Bed to the Publick Place, the New Emperor, High Prieſt, Magiſtrates, and Ladies, following the Pomp. Here the Emperor having taken his Place, the Quire of Muſicians ſung the Praiſes of the Deceas'd; which being done, they walk'd in fine Order to the Field of Mars, thoſe that bore the Statues of all Great Commanders from Romulus's time, and the Repreſentations of the Cities and Provinces ſubject to the Roman Empire, going firſt: After theſe came the Knights and Roman Soldiers with led Horſes, and ſuch Preſents as were made for the Ornament of this Pomp: The laſt bore an Altar cover'd with Ivory, and enrich'd with Gold and Pearls. In Mars's Field was a Pile five or ſix ſtories high in form of a Pyramid, cover'd with very rich Tapiſtry, having the deceas'd Emperor's Golden Chariot on the higheſt; here the Knights deliver'd the Bed to the High Prieſt, who placed it on the ſecond Story, which they perfum'd with all ſorts of Aromatick and precious Liquors. This done, the new Prince and the Deceaſed's Kinsfolks broke the Image, whilſt the Knights on Horſeback and the Soldiers afoot ran round the Piles, with great numbers of Chariots driven by Coachmen in Purple, repreſenting the Famous Commanders and Noble Roman Lords. At laſt the Emperor roſe, and ſet fire to the Pile; and whilſt the Repreſentation burn'd, an Eagle was let looſe from the top, which frighted by the Flame, made haſte to ſoar out of ſight; and this they made the People believe was the Soul of the Emperor departed going to Heaven. If it were an Empreſs, or other Lady of High Quality, they let looſe a Peacock. There was but one of theſe Solemnities in the time of the Roman Kings, and that was for Romulus: His Mother was alſo reckon'd a Goddeſs, but not with ſolemn Conſecration. In the time of the Republick, Anna Perennis alone was the only one to whom the Senate order'd Sacrifice; and Julius Cæſar was the only Emperor to whom they order'd ſuch Divine Honours. Goltzius, Roſin. Ant. Rom. Herodian, l. 4. c. 2.

APPENZEL, Lat. Abbatis Cella, a Village of Swiſſerland, in all reſpects equal to a City, being very rich, well inhabited, and large, and gives Name to the laſt of the Swiſs Cantons, which in ſo few, producing ſo many Warlike Men, that one of them ſometimes put a Troop of the Enemy to flight, it was admitted the 13th into the Helvetian League, An. 1513. The Town is ſituated on the River Sintra, four Leagues from St. Gall, and ſix from Conſtance. The Country is encompaſſed with extraordinary high Mountains on the Borders of Rhetia, and hath eight other remarkable Towns beſides Appenzel, which were formerly ſubject to ſeveral Lords and Counts then united under the Abbot, and at laſt form'd themſelves into a Commonwealth, by the Approbation of the Emperor Rupertus, having obtain'd their Liberty from the Abbot, partly by Arms, and partly by Money, An. 1408. But three years after, the Abbot renewing his Pretenſions, they entred into a Confederacy with ſix of the other Cantons, but were, through the Abbot's means, Proſcribed by the Emperor, and Excommunicated by the Pope. To the latter they oppoſed a contrary Decree, baniſhing his Legate, with ſome of the more obſtinate Prieſts, and cutting off others; and from the former they were protected by their Mountains. The Abbot accuſing them to the College of Electors, obtain'd a Decree, That the other Towns off Swiſſerland and the Upper Rhine ſhould reduce them; ſo that thoſe of Appenzel having loſt two Battels, a Peace was concluded, but violated by the Neighbouring Nobility four years after; and the Canton having obtain'd a Victory, poſſeſſed themſelves of two Neighbouring Valleys, and for a Sum got the Emperor's Proſcription taken off; and entring a League, as beforeſaid, were receiv'd as a part of the Helvetick Republick. This Canton is now divided into 12 parts; 6 of them call'd the Inner Appenzel, lying near the Town, are Popiſh; and the other 6, call'd the Outer Appenzel, being partly free, and partly ſubjected to Noblemen, are Proteſtants, who think it their Intereſt to live a-part from the Papiſts. Hoffman.

APPIAN, a Greek Hiſtorian, deſcended from one of the beſt Families of Alexandria, where he became ſo conſiderable at the Bar, that he was choſen to be one of the Emperor's Procurators. His Hiſtory, containing about 24 Books, began with the Burning of Troy, to the Reign of Auguſtus, from whence he continu'd it down to Trajan; but of all theſe numerous Volumes, we have only ſome few left, containing the Punic, Syrian, Parthian, Mithridatic, Spaniſh, Civil, and Illyrian Wars, and a Fragment of the Wars with the Gauls, of which one Edition was Printed by H. Stephens, and another at Amſterdam in 1670. Voſſ. l. 2. de Hiſt. Græc.

APPIAN, James, Prince of Piombino in Tuſcany, Nephew to Pope Martin V. liv'd in the 15th Age; and having no Children by his Wife, made uſe of a young Woman which he fanſied, and ſhe being with Child, and coming near her time, he invited the Florentines and Sienois to ſtand Goſſips. The Deputies of theſe Citizens coming accordingly, were ſtrangely ſurpriz'd to ſee a Child as black as any Egyptian, which unexpected Accident alſo amaz'd the Prince, and hindred the Celebration of the Ceremony; ſo that the Deputies return'd as they came. A Moor, one of the Prince's Servants, was ſuſpected to have been beforehand with his Maſter, and his Flight confirm'd the Suſpicion. Æn. Sylv. Eur. c. 56.

APPIAN-WAY, a High-way from Rome, through Capua to Brunduſium, 350 miles in length, of which, ſome of the Pavement ſtill remains, firſt done by Appius Claudius, from the Port Capena to Capua, and continu'd to Brunduſium, either by C. Gracchus the Tribune, or C. Cæſar, or elſe by Auguſtus.

APPION, a famous Grammarian of Alexandria, living in the Reign of Tiberius. Aulus Gellius mentions him as a Perſon of great Learning, but his Pride made him intolerable: He us'd to ſay, that thoſe People he Dedicated his Books to, were all immortaliz'd; for which reaſon, Tiberius the Emperor us'd to call him Cymbulum Mundi. This Appion was ſent by the Heathen Alexandrians to Caligula, at the ſame time the Jews of that City diſpatch'd Philo to this Emperor. This Affair gave afterwards occaſion to Joſephus to write againſt Appion. Aul. Gell. l. 5. c. 14. Joſ. l. 18. Antiq. Jud.

APPIUS Claudius, or Clauſus, born at Regellum, a City of the Sabines, who, becauſe he diſſuaded his Country-men from entring into a War with the Romans, was conſtrain'd to retire to Rome, where he was receiv'd into the Number of the Senators, and changing his Name of Clauſus into Claudius, became the Head of the Claudian Family, which was afterwards ſo Illuſtrious. Being thus become a Naturaliz'd Roman, he was made Conſul with P. Servilius Priſcus; and having defeated the Volſci, he cut off the Heads of all the Hoſtages which thoſe People had at Rome, becauſe the Volſci had violated the Treaties for which their Hoſtages were Guarrantees. But Claudius being the moſt violent of all the Senators againſt the Plebeians, and moſt rigid in his Military Diſcipline, he drew upon himſelf the Hatred of the People and Soldiers; ſo that the firſt were continually moving Tumult and Sedition; and the other, being under his Command in a ſecond Expedition againſt the Volſci, wilfully ſuffer'd a Defeat to bring him into Diſgrace: So that he died in favour with none but the Nobility. Plut. in vit. Pub.

APPIUS Claudius, his Son, had neither the Virtue nor Merits of his Father; for abandoning himſelf to his Luſts, he committed thoſe Crimes which coſt him both Life and Honour. Upon the Change of the Conſular Government, he was made one of the Decemviri, who had the abſolute Authority of the Conſuls; and while he was in that high Place, he fell in love with Virginia, the Daughter of Lucius Virginius, a Military Tribune, affianc'd to Lucius Icilius, who had been a Tribune of the People; but not being able to compaſs his ends by the fair means of Preſents and Flatteries, he ſuborn'd one M. Claudius, to demand the Virgin as his Fugitive-Slave, born in the Houſe of one of his Bond-Slaves, who had ſold her to Virginius's Wife. The Suit coming before him, he adjudg'd Virginia to Claudius, who carried her away by force: Upon which, Virginius, ſeeing his Daughter dragged into Captivity, ſnatch'd a Knife from the next Butcher's Stall, and ſtabb'd her to the Heart. Theſe Violences occaſion'd Tumults; the Effects of which were, That the Decemviri were pull'd down, and the Conſuls reſtor'd. Appius was accus'd for his Injuſtice by Virginius, and committed to Priſon, where, for fear of worſe Puniſhment, he poiſon'd himſelf. T. Liv. Flor.

APPIUS Claudius, Sirnam'd the Blind, becauſe he grew dim in his old Age, was he that Pav'd the High-way to Brunduſium. His Antipathy to the Plebeians made him mad, that he ſhould be aſſociated with Volumnius, a Plebeian, in the Conſulſhip, and had like to have loſt him all his Honour in the War wherein he Commanded againſt the Tuſcans and the Sabines, had not Volumnius come in time to his Succour; which enraged him ſo much the more, to ſee the Honour of the Victory attributed to the Perſon whom he hated. However, he was Grave and Eloquent, and oppoſing the Peace which Pyrrhus ſent to make with the Romans, then at low ebb, carried it by dint of Argument. Flor. Plut.

APPIUS Claudius, his Son, croſs'd over into Sicily, to ſuccour the Mammertines againſt the Carthaginians, and was the firſt of the Romans that made Conqueſts out of Italy: He defeated Hiero, and overthrew the Carthaginians. Polybius.

APPIUS Herdonius, a Slave in Rome, having got together a Rabble of Slaves and Exiles, in hopes of recovering their Liberties and Fortune, ſeiz'd upon the Capitol, which they kept until it was recovered again with the death of Publicola the Conſul, and the Slaughter of Herdonius and a great Number of his Accomplices, An. 294. Tit. Liv.

APPLEBY, a Market and Borough Town in the Eaſt of Weſtmorland: It's the Abellada of the ancient Romans, therefore the more conſiderable for its Antiquity, ſituate on the South-ſide of the River Eden, with a fair Stone-Bridge: It chiefly conſiſts of one broad Street riſing from North to South, upon an eaſie Aſcent; in the upper part ſtands a Caſtle, at the other end a Church and Free-School, with an Alms-houſe, endow'd by the Lady Clifford in 1652. The Aſſizes and Seſſions for this County are uſually held in this Town, which is 197. miles from London, and has a good Market on Saturdays. It ſends two Burgeſſes to Parliament.

APPLEBY, Sir Edmund, was Son to Sir John Appleby, and born at Great Appleby in Leiceſterſhire, which gave Name to their Family: He ſignaliz'd his Valour in France, at the Battel of Creſſy, and in the Reign of Richard II. went twice into France with John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaſter, the firſt time to treat of a Peace betwixt both Kingdoms: and the ſecond, to wait upon that Duke, and the Lady Conſtance his Wife, as far as Caſtile in Spain, whither he went with a great Power to take poſſeſſion of that Kingdom, in right of his Wife.

APPLEDORE, a Market-Town of Blackbourn Hundred in the South parts of Kent: 'Tis ſeated upon the Rother, from London 54 miles.

APPRIES, the Son of Pſammis, Reign'd in Egypt 15, or, as others ſay, 35 years. This is that Appries whom the Prophet Jeremiah calls Pharaoh-Hophrah, chap. 44. and whom God threatens with the Swords of the Cyreneans, Ezek. 29. 1. and 30. 20. where he Propheſies againſt Egypt. This Appries ruin'd Sidon, and is ſaid to have put Jeremiah to death. It's reported of him, That he was of Opinion that neither God nor Man could deprive him of his Kingdom, he had ſettled himſelf, as he thought, ſo firmly in it: Nevertheleſs, he was vanquiſh'd by Amaſis; and being taken, was ſtrangled by the Egyptians, who hated him mortally. Euſebius, Mariana.

APRIO, Apros, Apri, or Theodoſiopolis, ſo call'd, becauſe the Emperor Theodoſius lov'd it, and reſided much in it. It ſtands in Thracia, and was formerly an Archiepiſcopal See, under the Patriarch of Conſtantinople.

APROSITA, or the Inacceſſible Iſland, one of the Canaries in the Atlantick Ocean: Some will have it to be Porto Sancto, near Madera; though Sanſon is of Opinion, that it is Iſla de San Borondon, otherwiſe Ombrio, by the Spaniards often call'd La Incantada, E la non Tronada.

APT ſur le Calavon, Lat. Apta Julia, an Epiſcopal City of Provence, under the Archbiſhoprick of Aix, very ancient, and formerly one of the largeſt and moſt famous of the Celtic Gauls, and withal a Roman Colony, as the Ruines of an Amphitheatre ſufficiently teſtifie. The famous M. Scuderi was a Native of this place. There is ſtill to be ſeen, in the Court of the Biſhop's Palace, the Epitaph which was made upon the Emperor Adrian's Horſe that was nam'd Boryſthenes. In the year 1365. there was a Council held at Apt, concerning Church-Diſcipline, made up of the three Provinces of Arles, Aix, and Ambrun. Bouche Hiſt. de Provence.

APTERA, ſo called from the Greek Word ἀπτέρος, which ſignifies without Wings; a City in the Iſle of Crete, where the Poets ſay, that the Sirens loſt their Wings, and fell into the Sea, being overcome with Grief that they were conquer'd by the Muſes. The Greeks call'd Victory alſo by this Name, repreſenting her without Wings, that ſhe might not leave 'em.

APTERAS, King of Crete, ſucceeded his Father Cydon: He was Contemporary with Cranaus, King of Athens. Pauſan.

APUA, a large Town of Liguria, upon the Confines of Tuſcany, 5 miles from the Source of the River Magra, about 4 miles from the Appennine, and Confines of the Dukedom of Parma, and 15 from Brugneta. It's under the Juriſdiction of the Dukes of Tuſcany, who redeem'd it from the Spaniards within theſe few years; a very ſtrong Town, and formerly a Fief of the Dutchy of Milan.

APUEIS, a People of the Southern America in Braſil: Their Country lies towards the Springs of Rio del Janiero, adjoining to the Province which the Portugueſes call Capitania di Rio Janiero, of which they are preſent Maſters.

APULEIUS, a Platonic Philoſopher born at Madaura, a City of Africa, lived in the ſecond Age, in the Reigns of Adrian and the two Antoninus's: He ſtudied firſt at Carthage, afterwards at Athens, where he applied himſelf to the Doctrine of Plato; then going to Rome, he fell to the Law, and became an excellent Pleader: But being more charm'd with Philoſophy, he preferr'd it before the Law. He was the Son of Theſeus, a Perſon of good Quality, and Salvia, Plutarch's Kinſwoman. He married a rich Widow of Tripoli, whoſe Name was Pudentilla; upon which, Sicinius Æmillianus accus'd him before Claudius Maximus, Proconſul of Aſia, as if he had kill'd Pudentilla's Son, and forced her Affections by Magical Charms; but Apuleius acquitted himſelf by an Apology, which is ſtill extant. He wrote upon ſeveral Subjects, though the greateſt part of his Works are loſt; but his Golden Aſs, in eleven Books, we have ſtill. The other Tracts of Apuleius, are his Oratio de Magia: De Dogmate Platonis, ſive de Philoſophia: De Deo Socratis & Florida, &c. Scal. Voſſ. St. Aug. l. 8. de Civ. Dei.

APULEIUS, Panſa, was Conſul with Valerius Maximus Corvinus, in the 454th year of Rome. 'Twas in his time that there were 4 Prieſts and 5 Augur's choſen out of the Body of the Plebeians; ſo that from this Date, the Commons ſhar'd the Honourable Offices of the Government with the Patricians, or Nobility. Some time after, Apuleius beſieg'd Nequoynum, now call'd Narni, in Umbria; which place was, after a year's League, betray'd to the Romans by two of the Garriſon. Liv. Hiſt. Rom. l. 10.

APULIA, now Puglia, a large part of the Kingdom of Naples, and once a Kingdom of it ſelf, under Roger the Norman, Charles of Anjou, and ſeveral other Princes. It lies between the Appennine Southwards, and the Adriatick Sea to the North. It's divided into Apulia Daunia, for which ſee Capitanata and Apulia Peucetia, now Tarra di Bari: This part, beſides the Province of Bari, comprehends alſo ſome part of Baſilicata, and ſtretching out from the River Aufidus, now call'd Lo Fanlo la Terra de Otranto Eaſtward; contains theſe modern Cities; Andria, Aſcoti, Bari, Barleta, Bitonto, Bovino, Gravina, Luceria, Manfredonia, Trani, Troia, Venoſa, for which ſee under their Names. See Puglia. Apulia is a great Corn-Country, but exceſſive hot, and in ſome years all is burnt up. The Jeſuits are the Proprietors of one half of this Province, and they treat the Tenants with the ſame Rigour that the Barons of the Kingdom of Naples do generally uſe towards their Farmers; ſo that they ſometimes die of Hunger in the moſt plentiful Years, their Corn being exported from them into Spain. Burnet.

APURIMA, a River of the South America, in Peru, riſes in the Province of Parinococha, at the foot of the Mountains call'd Cordillera de los Andes, and running through Cuſco, after a courſe of about 50 or 70 Spaniſh Leagues, throws it ſelf into the Xauxa, or Rio de Maragnon, between the Rivers Albancai and Incai, which empty themſelves into the Xauxa.

APURWACA, by ſome Caperwaca, a River of South America in Guiana, one of the largeſt and moſt conſiderable in the Country.

AQUA-DOLCI, Glacinero, or Athiras, a River of Thrace, falling into the Propontis by Celiverea.

AQUA-PENDENTE, Lat. Acula, and Aquula, a City in St. Peter's Patrimony, ſeated on a riſing Ground by the River Pelia, abounding in Waters, from whence it has its Name. It was made a Biſhop's See by Pope Innocent X. in the year 1650. inſtead of Caſtro, which was demoliſh'd for the Murther of their Biſhop.

AQUARII, Hereticks ſo call'd, becauſe they us'd only Water at the Lord's Supper. St. Cypr. Epiſt. 63. St. Aug. Hær. 64.

AQUA-SPARTA, a ſmall City of Italy in the Dutchy of Spoleto, ſeated upon a Hill between Amelia and Spoleto, Dignified with the Title of a Dukedom, belonging to the Family of the Ceſi's.

AQUATULCO, a Town and Harbour of North America in New-Spain, and Province of Guaxaca, upon the Pacifick Sea, about 34 Spaniſh Leagues from New Anticaria Southward, where the Spaniards have a Caſtle and ſome Inhabitants.

AQUA Viva, a Town in the Kingdom of Naples, and Province of Bari, which gives its Name to an Illuſtrious and Ancient Family, which hath produced ſeveral Great Men.

AQUELUNDA, a vaſt Lake in the Eaſt Parts of Congo, and Angola, in Africa, 600 miles from the Atlantick Ocean, to which it ſends many conſiderable Rivers. Pery.

AQUI, and Aquita, a City and Province in the Iſland of Niphonia which belongs to Japan, near the Streights of Sangua.

AQUIGIRES, Lat. Aquigiræ, a People of Braſil in North America, near the Province of the Holy Ghoſt.

AQUILA, a City of the farther Abruzzo in the Kingdom of Naples, with a Biſhop's See ſuffragant to Civita de Chiari. 'Tis ſaid this City was built, or repaired by the Emperor Frederick II. or, as others ſay, by Charles King of Naples, upon the deſcent of a Hill, along the ſide of the River Peſcara: It roſe from the ruines of Amiterno and Fortuno, from which laſt place Alexander IV. tranſlated the Biſhop's See to Aquila. Leand. Alber. deſcript. Ital.

AQUILA, Sirnam'd Ponticus, as being a Native of Synopus, in the Province of Pontus, flouriſh'd in the Second Century, under the Reign of the Emperor Adrian, who made him Surveyor of his Buildings, and gave him order to rebuild the City of Jeruſalem, which he call'd Ælia after his own Name; during which time, he got ſome inſight into the Chriſtian Religion, inſomuch that he was Baptiz'd; but being Excommunicated for his fond adherence to Aſtrology, he turn'd Jew, and being Circumciz'd, Tranſlated the Bible into Greek; but by the remaining Fragments it appears, that the Hebrew, from whence he took it, was extreamly corrupted by the Rabbins: However it was pleaſing to the Jews, who afterwards read it in all their Synagogues; not long after, he made a Second Tranſlation, which the Jews liked better than the former; for beſides that it was wholly according to the Letter, it was alſo ſtuffed with Jewiſh Traditions, which he learn'd from his Maſter Rabbi Akiba, by which means both the Verſion and Notes were held ſo dangerous, that the Emperor Juſtinian forbid the Jews to read it. St. Jerome, Baronius.

AQUILA, (Henry) a Carmelite Monk of Germany, liv'd in the Fourteenth Century: He wrote divers Treatiſes. In Cantic. Canticor. Lib. 1. Quodlibetorum, Lib. 2. Quæſtiones Ordinariæ, &c. Poſſevin. in App. Sacro. Lucius in Bibl. Carmel.

AQUILEIA, upon the confluence of the Anſa and Torre, a City of Italy in Friuli, dignified with the Title of a Patriarchate, formerly ſo conſiderable, that it was call'd Roma Secunda. It receiv'd its firſt riſe from a Latin Colony ſent thither by the Senate of Rome, conſiſting of about 3000 Foot, which were afterwards augmented to 1500 Families more: The Emperor Auguſtus enlarg'd, embelliſh'd, and frequently made it the Place of his Reſidence; for there it was that Herod the Great accus'd his Two Sons by Marianne, before him. Tiberius alſo reſided there for ſome time; and Veſpaſian was alſo proclaim'd firſt in this City. The Tyrant Maximin beſieg'd it, and was ſlain before it in 234. at which time the Aquileians wanting Bow-ſtrings, out of their fidelity to the Romans, cut off their Wives Hair to ſupply that defect: In memory of which Action, the Senate ordered a Temple to be erected, and dedicated to Venus the Bald. This City was 12 miles in circuit, the Seat of ſeveral of the Roman Emperors; and at laſt became the Bulwark of Italy, againſt the Inroads of the Barbarians. Attila took it after Three years Siege, with the greateſt Army ever heard of, which well nigh periſhed before it in 452. and the Lombards utterly ruin'd it again in 590. After which, Charlemain having quite extinguiſh'd the Empire of the Lombards, Aquileia belong'd to the Emperors and Kings of Italy; but their claim ceaſing, it fell to the Dukes of Friuli, and Patriarchs, then to the Venetians, and afterwards to the Arch-Dukes of Auſtria: But now this City, that was formerly Imperial, is become the Habitation of Fiſhermen, the ill Air having driven away all the reſt of the Inhabitants. Leand. Alb. deſcript. Ital. Lon 30. 10. Lat. 45. 45. Popiſh Authors ſay, That St. Mark wrote his Goſpel, and founded the Church in this place. The firſt Council of Aquileia was Aſſembled in 381. againſt the Arians, in the time of Pope Damaſus, which laſted but one day, from one in the Afternoon till ſeven; They wrote a Letter to the Emperors, Gratian and Valentinian, for the Union of the Churches of the Eaſt. Gregory XII. who had been depoſed by the Council of Piſa, held a Synod here to propoſe an Accommodation. Sponde. Rainald.

AQUILIUS Manius, ſent Ambaſſador to King Mithridates, who cruelly put him to death, by pouring melted Gold down his Throat. Pliny, Lib. 33.

AQUILIUS Sabinus, a Noble Roman, call'd the Cato of his Age; In the year of our Lord 214. he was Conſul with Silius Meſſala, and in Anno 216. with Sixtus Cornelius Anulius. He Profeſs'd the Law, and was Father to Fabius Sabinus, another great Lawyer, whom the Emperor Alexander Severus took into his Privy Council. Rutilius in Vit. Juriſc. in Fab. Sabino.

AQUILONIUS, or Aquilon, (Francis) a Jeſuit of Bruſſels. His Talent for the Mathematicks was ſo conſiderable, that he gave the Low-Countreys an inclination for this Study. He Publiſh'd Six Books of Opticks, and was preparing other very curious ones, among the reſt, ſome Catoptrica, and Dioptrica, but was prevented the finiſhing of them by death in 1617. Aligamb. Deſc. Soc. Jeſ. Voſſius de Mathem.

AQUIN the Firſt, King of Norway, appropriated the Revenues of the Church to his own uſe; for which Gregory the Ninth threatned to Excommunicate him. Of Aquin the Second and Third there is nothing remarkable.

AQUIN the Fourth, King of Norway, Married Margaret Daughter of Voldomar III. King of Denmark, her Father's Heireſs, at whoſe Inſtigation Aquin laid claim to Sweden, and having defeated Albert in the year 1387. conſtrain'd him to reſign his Crown, and ſo united the Three Northern Kingdoms, thô others ſay that Aquin died, and that his Wife perform'd this Heroic Action her ſelf. Crantz. Hiſt. Sept.

AQUINO, Lat. Aquinum, a City of Italy in the Kingdom of Naples, in the Terra Di Lavoro, being a Biſhop's See, Suffragan of Capua; it's very ancient, and was formerly a Roman Colony, but now almoſt ruin'd, and only noted for the fam'd Thomas Aquinas, the Poet Juvenal, and other great Men. It ſtill gives the Title of Count to the Duke of Sara. Tit. Liv. Tac. Cluvier.

AQUISGRANUM: See Aix la Chapelle.

AQUITAIN, a Province of France. The Third part of the Ancient Gauls, which Julius Cæſar encloſes between the Garonne, the Pyrenees, and the Ocean. That which may be truly call'd the Modern Aquitain, that is to ſay, as it lies at this day, is enclos'd by the Loire, the Ocean, and the Pyrenees; ſome Modern Authors divide all Aquitain into Three parts, the firſt of which comprehends Berry and Bourbonnois, both on this ſide, and beyond the Allier, the Upper and the Lower Auvergne, Rouvergne, Albigeois, le Velay, Gevaudan, le Querci, the Upper and Lower Limoſin, and the Upper and Lower Marche; The Second includes the Bourdelois, and Medoc, Xaintonge, and Aunis, and Angoumois; The Third takes in Armagnac, Bigorre, Comminges, and Coſſerans, Bearn and Lower Navarr, Baſques and Lands, Bazadois, and the Leſſer Gaſcoign, all which Three parts contain the Cities of Auch, Bourdeaux, Bourges, Agen, Aire, Albi, Angouleſme, Bayonne, Clermont, Cahors, Condom, Dax, Leſcar, Lectoure, Limoges, Lombez, Oleron, Periguex, Le Puy, Cominges, Coſſerans, Baſas, Rodez, Xaintes, Sarlat, Tarbes, Vabres, Moulins, Bergerac, Blaye, Brive, Pau, St. Licer, &c. Aquitain derives its Name from the abundance of Water with which it is ſupplied. As for the Romans, they made ſeveral Attempts upon this Province. Pompey ſubdued the People of Cominges and Coſſerans, by the Name of Conſoranni and Convenæ; and Craſſus, Cæſar's Queſtor, Conquer'd all the reſt. After the Romans Fortune fail'd, Aquitain came under the Goths in the year 409. until they were expell'd in 507. by Clovis, who regain'd the Provinces of Aquitain, which the Goths had uſurped from the Empire: Afterwards Aquitain was erected into a Kingdom by Charlemain, who added ſome other Territories to it, and made his youngeſt Son, Lewis the Debonnaire, the firſt Soveraign of this new Realm; until Charles the Bald, after the death of his Second Son Charles, ſuppreſs'd the Kingdom of Aquitain, and gave it to ſeveral Dukes, whoſe Governments were either for Life, or during Pleaſure; which afterwards ſeveral of thoſe Governors taking advantage of the Diſorders in the Reign of Charles the Simple, turn'd it into particular and Hereditary Fiefs, that form'd the Earldoms of Poitou, Auvergne, Limoges, and the Dutchy of Guienne, &c. Sometime after the Engliſh poſſeſs'd it entire, Henry III. was created Duke of Aquitain, and Peer of France, by Lewis the IX. Edward I. was ſaid to have loſt it; but being reconcil'd to Philip the Fair, receiv'd it again; and Edward III. in this very Province, overthrew, and took King John Priſoner. Charles VII. recovered it, after a bloody Battel won from the Engliſh in 1452. Lewis XI. gave it to his Brother Charles; but he dying without Iſſue, it return'd to the Crown. Mezeray Hiſt. de France.

ARABIA, in Hebrew, Harab, Hereb and Ereb, which the Oriental People call Arabiſtan, is a ſpacious Region of Aſia, the length of which, taken from the moſt Northerly part next to Egypt, to Cape Razalgate, between the Arabian Sea and the Gulph of Ormus, is above 600 Leagues. The breadth from North to South, between the Mouths of the Two Gulphs, the Perſian and the Arabian, is above 500 Leagues. Arabia is ſurrounded with the Red Sea, which makes it almoſt a Peninſula: To the Eaſt lies the Perſian Gulph, to the South the Arabian or Indian Sea; To the Weſt the Red Sea, or the Sea of Mecca, call'd alſo the Arabian Gulph; and to the North, Syria, Diarbec, and Euphrates. It is uſually divided into Arabia Petrea, now Barrab; Arabia Deſerta, at this day Beriara, or Arden; and Arabia Felix, call'd alſo Hyaman; which latter Name, 'tis ſaid, the Saracens gave it. It's thought alſo, that Iſhmael ſeated himſelf ſelf in this Country, and that the Arabians are deſcended from him. Arabia Petrea derives its Name from the City of Petra, ſeated on the Lake of Sodom, now call'd Arach, as being built upon a Stony place, or rather Rocks. This part is bounded with the Red Sea, and Egypt to the Weſt; the Deſart of Arabia to the Eaſt; by Paleſtine and Syria to the North; and to the South by a Chain of Mountains that divide it from Arabia the Happy; beſides Petra, it contains the Cities of Boſtra and Buſſereth, Mada, and Madbah, and Toror Eltor on the Red Sea, near to which is white Alabaſter, Coral, and Mines of Load-Stone, which oblig'd the Mariners formerly to uſe only Wooden Pins in their Ships. 'Tis thought the Iſraelites took their March this way into the Deſart. Arabia Petrea is a very barren Country, where the Children of Iſrael made their abode for 40 years together: In this are the Mountains of Sinai and Horeb, ſo famous in Scripture, Horeb to the Weſt, and Sinai to the Eaſt. Arabia Deſerta extends it ſelf from Syria and Arabia Petrea, to the Gulph of Balſora, between Euphrates and the Mountains of Arabia the Happy: It is more level than Arabia the Stony, but fuller of Sands and Deſarts; and if it has any fertile Parts, they lie moſtly on that ſide next Euphrates. It contains Two Cities, both call'd by the Name of Anna; but that which lies upon the Euphrates is the moſt conſiderable. The Plains of Sand are ſo ſpacious and long as to take up 12 days Journey, and Travellers are forc'd to direct themſelves by the Mariners Compaſs, and ſuffer much for want of Water, that which they have being alſo of an ill taſte. Some ſay that it is governed by one King, who has a moving Court, and others, that it is governed by Petty Princes who have their dependance upon the Turks. Arabia the Happy, call'd in Scripture Saba and Sabæa, from Saba, Ham's Grandſon, is a vaſt Peninſula that ſtretches out from the Mountains that ſeparate the Two other Arabia's to the Ocean. Upon the right hand of it Weſtward lies the Red Sea or Sea of Mecca, call'd alſo the Arabian Gulf; on the left hand Eaſtward the Gulf of Balſora, and Ormus, call'd the Perſian Gulf Southward; right before it lies the Eaſtern or Indian Sea, call'd alſo the Sea of Arabia. This is a fertile Country, and produces Balſom, Myrrh, Frankincenſe, Caſſia, Manna, and ſeveral other Drugs and Spices, but the moſt fruitful part of the Country is that which lies between Cape Razalgate and Cape Mozandon. The chief Towns of this Country are Medina, Mecca, Zibit, Tatach, Almacarana, Maroba, Misfa, Maſcat, Sohar, Bahr, Maſcalat, and ſeveral others; ſome of which are under particular Princes, and others, which is rare in Aſia, obſerve a Democratical Government. The Air of all Arabia, and the Neighbouring Country, is pretty healthful, though extraordinary hot; in ſome Places it Rains but twice or thrice in a year, in other Places rarely at all, but there is a Dew in the Night which ſupplies that want. The Sands are carried about by the Winds, and rais'd in Mountains, ſometimes in one place and ſometimes in another, ſo that no body can be certain of their way any otherwiſe than by the Compaſs, and many times Travellers are choak'd and overwhelm'd with the Sands. In Arabia Felix they have abundance of Animals of different Species, but their Camels and Horſes are moſt eſteem'd. In their Seas are found Coral, Pearl, and the Cornelian much eſteem'd becauſe eaſie to be Engraved. Moſt of the Arabians pretend to be deſcended from Iſhmael; they are lean and ſwarthy, have a wild kind of Look, wear their Beards long, looking upon them as ſacred, and therefore perfume their Gueſts Beards as a ſign of their great eſteem for them; They are alſo Superſtitious, Melancholy, Thoughtful, Sober, and contented with little; Sowre Milk is a Delicious Drink amongſt them. Thoſe that live in Cities are Tradeſmen, Traffick, or addict themſelves to the Study of Philoſophy, Phyſick, Aſtrology, and Mathematicks. They that live in the Country are divided into ſeveral Clans, or Tribes, under their particular Cherifs, or Heads, to whom they are very obſervant; Theſe lie in Tents, and make no longer ſtay in any place than there is Food for their Cattel: They agree well enough among themſelves, and Rob in whole Regiments, ſetting ſometimes upon great Caravans, and Plundering thoſe who carry the Grand Signior's Revenues; They are always Arm'd, and for the moſt part on Horſe-back, and Rob Strangers, but ſeldom kill; They bring their Horſes up to any thing, and are ſuch great Lovers of 'em, that they keep their Genealogy, thô they are generally ignorant of their own. At their Entertainments they ſit round on the Earth, or upon their Knees, holding their Arms a-croſs upon their Stomachs, or putting one of their Hands under their Elbow, and Combing their Beard with the other; Their Beards they eſteem Sacred, Swear by them, and look upon it as a great injury to have any body touch them, or caſt any foul thing upon them. The Arabians of Africa came thither in 635. and another Race of them in 999. They live in Villages compoſed of Tents, having Two Paſſages, which in the Night they ſhut up with Thorns to keep out Lions; They are Lazy, Poor, and Miſerable, degenerating from their Anceſtors, who extended their Conqueſts into Aſia, Africa, and Europe. They are Lovers of Philoſophy, Aſtrology and Phyſick, and have had great Men in all theſe Faculties; Their Language is fine and ancient, and their Letters join'd together, ſeveral of them being not diſtinguiſhable but by Points. Their Æra or Date is the Hegira, from the 16th of July 622. They had formerly very Potent Princes, who made War againſt the Aſſyrians, Ægyptians, Perſians, and Romans, Jews and Græcians, and under their Califfs had a great Command in Aſia and Africa, under the Name of Saracens. There were Two Councils held in Arabia, the firſt againſt Beryllus, Biſhop of Boſtra, who denied that Chriſt had a diſtinct Eſſence from the Father before his Incarnation, from which Origen Reclaim'd him about 229. Another was held about 246. againſt ſome Biſhops, who held, That the Soul died and roſe again with the Body; which Origen alſo refuted. The Ancient Inhabitants of Arabia Felix had a Cuſtom, that one Wife ſerved all the Kindred, or at leaſt all her Husband's Brethren. An Inſtance there is in Strabo, Lib. 6. of a certain King that had a beautiful Daughter, and 15 Sons, who were all in Love with her; and being Married to the eldeſt, ſhe nighted with him, but the reſt had acceſs to her by day; and as they went in they left their Staff at the Door, ſo that none muſt enter while that was there. This Woman being wearied out, got a Staff like one of theirs, and ſet it at the Door to prevent their coming ſo frequently; which one of the Brethren perceiving, and knowing where he had left the other Fourteen, he accuſed her of Adultery, which their Laws puniſh'd by death; but the Matter being diſcovered, ſhe was acquitted. They uſed to Circumciſe all their Males at 13 years old, becauſe Iſhmael was Circumcis'd at that Age, Gen. 17. Theſe People were from him firſt called Iſhmaelites, next Hagarens, and at laſt Saracens, chuſing rather to be called after the Miſtreſs than the Maid. They call themſelves the Nobleſt People in the World, and for that reaſon Match with no other. They were never ſubdued by the Egyptians, Greeks, Romans, nor Turks; but according to Morden, the Grand Signior's Baſſa's pay to thoſe Vagabond Arabians, to preſerve themſelves from being Spoiled in their Journeys. The Beduins, noted for Robbery, have their principal maintenance that way; and are ſo dextrous on Horſeback, in managing their Bows and Half-pikes, that 10 of them will attack 30 Turkiſh Muſqueteers. Arabia Petrea was anciently poſſeſs'd by the Midianites, Moabites, Amalekites, and Edomites; and in this Country Reigned Og, King of Baſhan: It has its Name from Petra, a Rock, and a ſtrong City built upon it, Beſieged in vain by Severus and Trajan, who threw away his Imperial Habit, and fled from before it for his Life. It is thought to be the ſame which Amaziah King of Judah took by War, and called Joktheel, after he had ſlain 10000 Edomites, 2 Kings 14. 7. The Soldans of Egypt kept their Treaſure therein, becauſe of its ſtrength. The Arabians in former Ages were Idolaters, adoring the Sun, Moon, and Stars, and ſometimes Trees and Serpents: They alſo had a particular Veneration for the Court of Alcara, or Aquebila, which they believ'd was built by Iſhmael. And it's generally thought, that the Magi, who came to adore our Saviour, were the firſt Apoſtles of their Country, where St. Jude afterwards Preach'd the Goſpel: But Mahomet perverted his ſimple and credulous Country-men, who propagated this new Sect after his death; now they adhere to Melick's Interpretations of the Alcoran, thô ſome follow Odman: But the Arabians of Africa have ſet up above 60 different Sects. The Arabick Language is ſo well underſtood in Abyſſinia, that they that ſpeak it may Trade and Travel in that Country, as well as in their own. Amongſt the Arabians of Aſia there are ſome Greek Chriſtians towards Mount Sinai and Horeb towards the Red Sea, and in the Deſarts of Arabia Petrea and Deſerta; but there are few or none at all in Arabia the Happy, unleſs it be at Maſcate, Galaſate, and in ſome other Places that belong to the Portugueſes. Tavernier, Chriſtophorus Furerus, Herodot. Hottinger. Joſeph. Strabo. Diodor. Sicul. Zonaras. Marmol. Paul. Jov.

ARABICUS Sinus, the Red Sea, Mer Rouge, and Mer de la Mecque by the French, extends it ſelf between the Upper and Lower Æthiopia, Egypt and Arabia, dreaded by the Seamen, by reaſon of the Rocks and Shallows near to both Shoars, eſpecially that of Arabia, where it is ſupplied but with few Rivers. It was that which the Iſraelites paſs'd through. Hoffman.

ARABINUS, an Infamous Judge, eſpecially for taking Bribes, turn'd out of the Senate by the Emperor Alexander Severus, with this Exclamation, O Deities! O Jupiter! O Immortal Gods! Arabinus not only lives, but has the Impudence to come into the Senate. Herodian.

ARACH, or Petra, the chief City of Arabia Petrea, ſuppos'd to be the ſame with Rabah, Capital of Moab; it was afterwards an Archbiſhop's See, firſt under the Patriarch of Alexandria, and then under him of Jeruſalem: It was formerly alſo call'd Syriacopolis, and Mons Regalis, and now call'd Arach: It ſtands on the Borders of Paleſtine; Long. 66. 45. Lat. 30. 20. There was alſo a Town of this Name built by Nimrod. Gen. 10.

ARACHNE, the Daughter of Idmon, a Lydian Virgin, ſo skilfull at the Needle, that ſhe ventur'd to contend with Minerva, who to puniſh her Inſolence tore her work in pieces; which grieved Arachne ſo much, that ſhe hang'd her ſelf: However Minerva was ſo compaſſionate to her, that ſhe turn'd her into a Spider. The Mythologiſts by Arachne denote Nature, by Minerva Art, which Poliſhes the former. Ovid.

ARAD, Arath, Hudar, one of the Kings of Canaan, when the Iſraelites Conquered that Country, which was afterwards the boundary of the Tribe of Judah to the S. E. He beat them in a Battel, till they called in the Divine aſſiſtance by a Vow, after which they prevailed, ſlew him, and deſtroyed his Cities, and called the Place they ſtood on Hormah, that is, an utter deſtruction. Here the Poſterity of Jethro, Moſes's Father-in-Law, choſe to live, Numb. 21. 1. There is alſo a Mountain in Aſia of this Name, well known for the Fable of Prometheus, and is that part of Mount Taurus, which lies between the Euxin and Caſpian Sea from Eaſt to Weſt, running through the Countries of the Mingrelians, Ceitachians, Achaans, and the Aſiatick Tartars: Theſe Mountains are very high, and always cover'd with Snow. This ridge of Mountains has ſeveral Names.

ARADUS, the Name of an Iſland and Town of Phœnicia, upon the Coaſt of the Mediterranean, near Syria, hard by the City Tortoſa, (call'd Antharadus and Orthoſia) Theſe Two Towns were formerly Epiſcopal Sees, but are now under the Turk, and almoſt ruin'd. St. Jerome in Ezek. Mela, &c. obſerve, that Aradus took up formerly the greateſt part of the Iſland. The Ancients were of Opinion, that Andromeda was expos'd to the Sea Monſter near this Place. Between the Iſland and the Continent, there was formerly a famous Fountain of Freſh-water, at the bottom of the Sea, where the depth was 75 Foot; which Freſh-water, notwithſtanding, was brought to the Town of Tortoſa, by certain Pipes, made of boil'd Leather. Plin. lib. 5. c. 31.

ARAFAT, a Mountain in the midſt of a ſpacious Plain, about a League from Mecca, with a Moſque at the Top, whither the Turkiſh Pilgrims, after they have taken ſeven turns about the Temple of Mecca, and ſprinkled themſelves with the Waters of the Wells Zemzem, retire in the Evening, and ſpend that night and the next day in Devotion. The day following they kill a great many Sheep in the Valley, at the foot of the Hill, of which they ſend part to their Friends, and diſtribute the reſt to the Poor, in memory of the Oblation which Abraham would have made of his Son Iſaac. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

ARAGON, otherwiſe in Latin Tarraconenſis Hiſpania, where formerly the Jacetani, Lacetani, and Acitani liv'd, lies between the Pyreneans next to France, Navarre, Caſtile and Catalonia. At preſent Aragon is a barren Country, and but thinly inhabited. The Chief City of the Country is Saragoſſa, upon the Ebro, the others are Hieſca, Jacca, Taraſona, Monſon, Albara, Sin, Balbaſtro, Daroſa, &c. There is alſo a River of this Name which riſes out of the Pyrenean Mountains, near the Village of Sancta Chriſtina, runs by Sangueſſa, &c. and joining with the Arga, throws it ſelf into the Ebro, a little below Calahorra. Mariana, De Marca. &c.

ARAGUIES, or Aracuites, a People of the Southern America in Braſil; Their Country lies near the Portugueſe Government of Pernambuco.

ARAKIL-VANC, a Village and famous Monaſtery at the foot of Mount Ararat in Armenia. This Name ſignifies the Monaſtery of the Apoſtles, and is a Place the Armenians have a great Devotion for, becauſe they believe Noah retir'd thither after the Deluge, to Sacrifice to God for his own and Families preſervation. They alſo give out, that St. Andrew's and St. Matthew's Corps were found there. Sir John Chardin's Deſc. of Perſia in 1673.

ARAM, Son of Shem, and Brother to Arphaxad. He liv'd till about the year 1680 of the World. He is ſuppos'd to be the Anceſtor of the Aramites, afterwards call'd Syrians. Gen. cap. 10. Joſeph. l. 1. c. 6. Antiq. Jud. Bochartus Phaleg.

ARAM, Son of Ezrom, and Father of Aminadab. Ruth c. 4. St. Matth. c. 1.

ARAN, or the Valley of Aran, Arantia, a very fertile Valley of Aragon, in the Pyrenees; La Vieilla is the moſt conſiderable Borough of the Country. This Valley is near St. Beat, and it's in its Mountains that the Garonne has its Source.

ARANIAS, in Lat. Aranus. A River in Tranſilvania, riſing near Cloſſemburgh, and joins afterwards with the Mariſe, or Merich.

ARARAT, a Mountain of Armenia, near the City of Erivan, upon which the Ark of Noah reſted after the Deluge, ſo high, that a Dutch Traveller aſſures us, that in the year 1670. he was ſeven days a going up to the top, at five Leagues a day; That before he got thither, he came into the Second Region of the Air, where the Clouds are thickn'd into Rain, Snow, &c. which renders it ſo cold, that he was ready to periſh; that afterwards, when he got higher, the Air was more temperate. He adds theſe other Particularities, That he is ſatisfied this Mountain is higher than either Caucaſus or Mount Taurus; That at every five Leagues diſtance he found a Hermit's Cell; That theſe Hermits gave him Guides to lead him the right way; That a Hermit which liv'd on the very Summet, told him, that for 20 years that he liv'd there, he neither felt Heat or Cold, nor ſaw a drop of Rain; he would alſo make him believe, that Noah's Ark was ſtill entire in a certain place of the Mountain, the Temperateneſs of the Air hindring it from rotting away, and gave him a Croſs which he pretended was of that Ark. Mallet deſcriptien de l'Univers.

ARARI, a River of the Southern America in Braſil, falling into the Northern or Atlantick Sea, in the Government of Tamaraca.

ARAROS, Son of the Comedian Ariſtophanes. He wrote ſeveral Plays, but with ſo little Genius, that he became a Proverbial Block-head; it being common to ſay of an ill Poem, that 'twas more heavy than Araros. Suidas in Araros. Athenæus, lib. 3. c. 2. & 35.

ARAS, a Sicyonian, and the Firſt King of the Phliaſians in Peloponneſus. He built a Town call'd Arantia, from whence the Province afterwards had its Name. Pauſan. in Corinth.

ARASTH, a City of the Province of Aſgar in the Kingdom of Fez, upon the Weſtern Coaſt, where the River Luca falls into the Ocean. It's ſurrounded with good Walls, and has the advantage of a convenient Harbour for ſmall Veſſels. The Country round about affords good ſtore of Cotton, and the River furniſhes the Inhabitants with excellent Shad Fiſh. Marmol.

ARATUS, General of the Acheans, defeated Nicocles, Tyrant of Sicyon, and united that City to the Republick of the Acheans, when but 20 years of Age, about 502 of Rome; Nine years after, he ſurpriz'd the Caſtle of Corinth call'd Acrocorinthus, and expell'd the Garriſon of Antigonus Gonatas King of Macedon. He made Alliances with Ptolemy King of Egypt, and delivered Argos from its Tyrants. He reſtor'd Philip II. of Macedon, to his Kingdom, for which Kindneſs that ungrateful Prince caus'd him to be Poyſon'd in the 540 of Rome. Plut. Pauſ. Polybius.

ARATUS, born at Soli, a City of Cilicia, flouriſh'd in the time of Ptolemy Philadelphus toward the 480 of Rome, and ſpent moſt of his time in the Court of Antigonus Gonatas, the Son of Demetrius Polyorcetes, where he wrote his Phænomena and Dioſemia, ſo pleaſing to Cicero, Claudius, and Germanicus Cæſar, that all Three tranſlated 'em into Latin. Several Learn'd Men have beſtow'd Comments upon theſe Pieces, amongſt others Sir Edw. Sherbourn. Voſſius.

ARAUCO, a River, City, and Valley of South America, the moſt fertile in the Country, between the Cities de la Conception and Imperiale, on the Sea of Chili, and near the River Lebo. The People of Arauco were at continual Wars with the Spaniards for above 100 years, but a Peace was concluded betwixt 'em in 1650.

ARAYA, one of the moſt Celebrated Capes in South America; it ſtretcheth with a ſharp point from Weſt to Eaſt, over againſt the Weſt Point of Margaretta, forming the North Point of the River Oronoque. It has Salt Pits that yield a vaſt quantity of fine Salt, much beyond whatever was diſcovered elſewhere in the World. There is a great Controverſie from whence this Salt ſhould come, the Sea never overflowing it, and the Author thinks it comes from the nature of the Soil, coagulated by the Rain Water, and boil'd up to Salt by the heat of the Sun, which is here very intenſe; and the ſame is obſerved in the inland parts of Africa, and Aſia, where Sea Water could never come. The Soil yields nothing elſe of Uſe to the Life of Man, but the Inhabitants fetch their Water at 3 miles diſtance. Till the year 1605. the Dutch fetched Salt freely here, but then 18 Spaniſh Men of War fell unexpectedly upon them, and deſtroyed their Ships. In 1622 there was a great Controverſie about theſe Salt Pits between the Spaniards and the Dutch Weſt-India Company, whereupon the King of Spain built a Fort to hinder them from coming at it. Laet, p. 671. Lat. 11. 22. N.

ARAXES, a large and rapid River riſing out of the Ararat Mountains of Armenia, which after it has been ſwell'd with ſeveral leſſer Rivers and Torrents, falls at laſt into the Caſpian Sea. Bridges have been built over it ſeveral times, but all the Art of Man could never make 'em ſtrong enough to reſiſt the violence of its Stream, wherefore Virgil 8 Æneid. gives it this Epithet: Et pontem indignatus Araxes. When the Snow melts from the Hills, there is no Mould or Dam but what its impetuoſity will beat down before it, but when the Waters are low it may be foorded over upon Camels near to Eſqui Julfa, where the Channel being broad, is neither too deep, nor the Stream over violent. Strab. Lib. 8.

ARBA or Arbee, a City of Paleſtina, formerly call'd Hebron and Mamre; it was, as ſome ſuppoſe, the burying-place of the Four Patriarchs, Adam, Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, Gen. 23. There is alſo an Iſland and City, with a Biſhop's See of this Name, in the Adriatick Gulf on the Coaſt of Dalmatia.

ARBACES, Governor of the Medes for Sardanapalus, ſo highly concerned to ſee his Sovereign Spinning amongſt a Company of Women, that he caus'd the People to Revolt, and put himſelf at their Head to dethrone the Effeminate Monarch; The Iſſue was, that Sardanapalus burnt himſelf in his Palace, and Arbaces being proclaim'd King, began the Monarchy of the Medes, which laſted 317 years under Nine Kings, till Aſtyages was expell'd by Cyrus. Arbaces Reign'd 22 years, and died A. M. 3206. Juſtin. Petav. Rat. Temp.

ARBE, by the Sclavonians, Rab, Arba, Arbum and Scardona; an Iſland in the Adriatick Sea, upon the Coaſt of Dalmatia, near Auſtria. There's a Town likewiſe of the ſame Name, with a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhoprick of Zara. Plin. Lib. 3. c. 21. Miræus, &c.

ARBELA, a City of Sicily, whoſe Inhabitants were ſo Sottiſh, that it gave occaſion to the Proverb, Quid non fies Arbelas profectus.

ARBELA, a Town of Aſſyria upon the River Lycus, famous for the Third Battel which Alexander fought againſt Darius, the gaining of which won him the Empire of Perſia. This Battel was fought Oct. 1. in the Second year of the CXII Olympiad, 331 years before Chriſt; and ſeveral Authors obſerve, that there was a great Eclipſe of the Moon Eleven days before the Fight. Tavernier. Q. Curt. l. 1. c. 1. The place of Battel was a pleaſant and fruitful Plain, about 15 Leagues in compaſs, and well Watered. In the middle it has a Mountain, upon which riſes a Hill half a League in compaſs, covered with lovely Oaks. The Memory of Darius's Defeat here is conſerved by Tradition from Father to Son.

ARBELUS, Son of Nimrod. The firſt Mortal that was Deify'd. Cyril. contr. Julian. Lib. 3.

ARBES, a City of the Kingdom of Tunis in Barbary, two days Journey from Bona to the South, and three from Cairuan or Cairoan to the S. W. Nub. p. 88. It ſtands on the moſt beautiful Plain in Africa, and is watered by plenty of delicate Fountains. Here are many Roman Antiquities and Inſcriptions, and its Walls are beautiful and ſtrong.

ARBOGASTUS, born in Gaul, inſinuated himſelf ſo well into the favour of Valentinian the Younger, and Theodoſius, that he was ſent to oppoſe Victor the Son of Maximus, who endeavoured to preſerve that part of the Empire which his Father had uſurped, and acquitted himſelf ſo well, that he defeated and ſlew Victor, which gain'd him a high Reputation both at Court and in the Army. Afterwards his hatred to Sunnon and Marcomir engaged Valentinian in an unſucceſsful War againſt thoſe Princes, which made him grow ſo weary of Arbogaſtus, that he gave him a Diſcharge from his Employments with his own hands. But Arbogaſtus was then arrived at ſuch a height of inſolence, that he tore the ſaid Diſcharge before the Emperor's face; but fearing his Reſentment, plotted with the Chamberlain, and ſtrangled the Emperor in his bed. Arbogaſtus was after this vanquiſh'd by Theodoſius, and to prevent his falling into his Power, laid violent hands upon himſelf. Gregoire de Tours, l. 2.

ARBOGEN, or Arbo, a City of Sweden in the Province of Weſtmania, upon a River of its own Name.

ARBOIS, a ſmall City in the Franche-Comte, ſuppoſed to be the Arboroſſa of Ammianus Marcellinus, famous for good Wine.

ARBORICHES, ſuppos'd by ſome to be the ancient Inhabitants of Zealand, and by others the ancient Taxandri about Maeſtricht, converted by St. Lambert. Biſhop Mire, Becan.

ARCADIA, a Province of Peloponneſus, now called Traconia, bounded with the Country of Argos to the Eaſt, Elis to the Weſt, Achaia Propria to the North, and Meſſenia to the South. It was firſt call'd Pelaſgria from Pelaſgus King of the Country, afterwards Arcadia from Arcas Son of Jupiter and Caliſto. Its chief Towns are Megalopolis, Mantinea, famous for the Battel fought by the Thebans, commanded by Epaminondas, againſt the Lacedæmonians, which laſt kill'd 10000 Arcadians, about the 386th of Rome, without the loſs of one Man of their ſide, and ſometime after they drew all Greece upon 'em for their Sacrilege in plundering the Temple of Jupiter Olympicus. This Country has been theſe 280 years under the Turks, till of late it was regain'd by the Venetians, with the reſt of the Peloponneſus. This Country was govern'd by Kings until about A. M. 3210. when Ariſtocrates their King being engaged in a bloody War with the Lacedæmonians, kill'd himſelf at his Daughter's Tomb. The Country is Mountainous and Woody, but fruitful in Corn and Paſturage, and abounds with Springs, Lakes, Pools and Rivers. The People are Valiant and Warlike. Polyb. Pauſanias.

ARCADIA, formerly a conſiderable Town in Crete or Candia, with a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Candia. The Gulph of Arcadia was called by the Ancients Cypariſſius Sinus. There is likewiſe another Town in Peloponneſus near Meſſinia call'd Arcadia.

ARCADIUS, the Son of Theodoſius the Great, Emperor of the Eaſt, Married Eudoxia the Daughter of Leontius, which Ruffinus his Tutor, and Captain of the Pretorian Bands, who deſign'd him for his own Daughter, reſenting, ſtir'd up the Goths againſt him, in hopes that Arcadius ſhould be forced to make him his Companion in the Empire; but this deſign was ſo odious to the Soldiers, that they kill'd him before the very Tribunal, when he came thither to be propos'd. Ruffinus thus put out of the way, Gainas a Gothick Captain, and an Arian, reduc'd the Emperor to thoſe ſtreights, that he was forc'd to deliver him up his deareſt Friends and beſt Counſellors to be cruelly murdered; however Gainas was afterwards defeated, and his Head cut off, and brought to Conſtantinople, and there expos'd to the deriſion of the People. After this happy Execution, Arcadius deſtroy'd the Temples of the Gentiles, expell'd the Arians, and caus'd the Laws againſt Hereticks and Arians to be exactly put in execution. A happy Emperor had he govern'd himſelf, not been led away by his Wife, and Eunuchs, through whoſe perſuaſion he baniſh'd St. Chryſoſtom. He died Anno 408. aged 31. Socrates, lib. 5. Theophanes, ARCADIUS, a Biſhop, and Pope Celeſtin's Legate to the Council of Epheſus. Profectus and Philip were join'd in Commiſſion with him, but the Pope's Repreſentation did not procure him the Honour of Subſcribing firſt to the Council. Baron. in Annal. Peron. Reponce au Roi de Grand Britain.

ARCADIUS, a Biſhop in Africa, living in the fifth Century; a Perſon of great Piety and Learning, and a ſtrong oppoſer of the Arians. He was afterwards, upon the Score of his Zeal, put to death by Genſericus, King of the Vandals, who was an Arian. Victor Uticenſis, Hiſt. Perſ. Vandal.

ARCANDAM, or Alcandrinus, an Arabian Aſtrologer. There is a Book of his Printed at Paris in 1542. Entituled, De Veritatibus & Prædictionibus Aſtrologiæ, & præcipue Nativitatum. Voſſius de Scient. Mathem. c. 64.

ARCAS, the Arcabrica of the Ancients, now a ſmall Town of Spain in Caſtile, formerly very conſiderable, and a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Toledo. The Biſhop's See was tranſlated to Cuença by Lucius III. at the requeſt of Alphonſo IX. King of Caſtile. Garſias Loaiſa.

ARCAS, the Son of Jupiter, and Caliſto, who narrowly miſs'd killing his Mother, whom Juno had transform'd into a Bear; and therefore to prevent the like misfortune, Arcas was alſo chang'd into one, and both placed in the Heaven to form the Conſtellations of the greater and leſſer Bear, ſo much obſerv'd by Mariners. Ovid. Metam.

ARCATHON, a Harbour of France in Aquitain upon the Ocean, between the Mouths of the Garonne and the Alour, hardly ſix Leagues diſtant from Bourdeaux to the Weſt.

ARCE, the Capital of Arabia Deſerta, and the ſame with Petrea Joſeph. lib. 4 cap. 4. Antiq. Jud.

ARCESILAUS, a Native of Pitane, a City of the Æolians, firſt the Diſciple of Autolycus the Mathematician, whom he follow'd to Sardis, then of Xanthus the Muſician, and Theophraſtus; but coming to Athens, he betook himſelf wholly to Crantor, and was Founder of the Second or Middle Academy: He taught that all things were ſo uncertain, that it was above the Power of Man to diſtinguiſh Truth from Falſhood; he was a ſubtil Diſputant, and a good Orator, very obliging, and extreamly Liberal, as appears by his Favours to Acteſibius, to whom he ſent a Thouſand Crowns, with all his Gold and Silver; and at another time lay'd a Bag full of Crowns under his Pillow. One day being aſk'd, Why ſo many of his Sect turn'd Epicureans, when none of the Epicureans ever quitted theirs? He anſwered, That a Man might eaſily make himſelf an Eunuch; but an Eunuch could never make himſelf a Man. Meaning, that it was eaſie to ſlip from Wiſdom to Debauchery, but almoſt impoſſible to return from Debauchery to Wiſdom. Lact .l. 30. Herod.

ARCHAGATHES, (Son of Agathocles King of Sicily) a Perſon of great Courage, but inſulting and paſſionate; his Temper diſoblig'd the Soldiers to that degree, that at laſt they cut his Throat. He left a Son of his own Name, who poiſon'd his Grandfather Agathocles. Diod. Sic. l. 20. Bibl. Hiſt.

ARCHANGEL, Lat. Archangelopolis, St. Michael Archangel in French, a famous Emporium in the Province of Duris, in the N. of Muſcovy, upon the River Dwina, which near this Place divides into two Branches, making the Iſland of Podeſmeske, and falls into the White Sea, ſix German miles beneath this City. This Paſſage was firſt diſcovered by Richard Chandler an Engliſhman, Anno 1554. beſore which time the Muſcovites had no Commerce with theſe Parts of the World, but by the Baltick, the Narve, and Poland; whereupon the Engliſh were at firſt treated with great kindneſs by the Muſcovites, and their Emperor Baſilovite granted the Engliſh the ſole Privilege of Trading thither, Anno 1569. but the Dutch, Danes, and Swedes, have now as much Liberty as they: And Archangel being but a Village at that time, is now become a Rich and Populous City. Lat 64. Mr. Lane relates, that in the year 1553. Sir Hugh Willoughby was ſent to diſcover the North-Eaſt Paſſage to China; Richard Chandler, the Maſter of one of the Ships, was ſeparated from the Fleet, and by chance arrived at Archangel, and Wintered there that year; of which ſee more below. Sir Hugh Willoughby, with 70 Men, periſhed that year in Lapland. When Chandler firſt came into the White Sea, he found a Boat Fiſhing, which having never before ſeen a Ship, fled from him, and when he came up with them, fell down at his feet, and would have kiſſed them, and were hardly to be perſuaded to ſell him any thing without leave of their Prince; but they gave him plenty of Victuals for nothing: The Emperor was very kind, and in 1555. a Company was ſettled there under Mr. George Killingworth upon good Privileges. This Place, in all the ancient Voyages, is called Colmogro, and is placed 100 Verſts from the Bay of St. Nicholas, Lat. 64. 25. by Mr. Jenkinſon the River is called Pinego. In the year 1566. the Emperor of Ruſſia granted to Queen Elizabeth, That no Ship, of any other Nation but the Engliſh, ſhould Trade to any of his Ports on the North Sea, from Wardhouſe to the River Obb. The Ports are reckoned thus: Petzora, Cola, Mezen, Petchnigo, the Iſland of Shallaway, on the mouth of Dwina, Colmogro, or the River Obb. From Colmogro to Wardhouſe is 800 Verſts; from Colmogro to Uromo, the fartheſt Place of Trade with the Samoieds, are 345 Verſts. Burrough, an Engliſhman, obſerved the true Latitude of Michael Archangel to be 64. 54. That of Colmogro to be 64. 25. The Meridian Altitude at Archangel 42. 30. At Colmogro 42. 15. Archangel is placed on the Eaſt ſide of the Dwina, and when we were there (in 1663.) was not very great; but yet ſo Populous, that it could ſcarce hold the Inhabitants and People that reſorted thither to Trade with the Engliſh and Hollanders. Carlile's Ambaſſy, p. 79. Soon after this it was burnt, and almoſt all reduced to Aſhes, p. 91. The Caſtle of this Place was built about 1506. and this Town became a Mart about 1591. the Road for Ships being at St. Nicholas on Roſe Iſland, and the Mart at Colmogro.

ARCHELAUS, Son of Herod the Great, ſucceeded him as King of Judea, in the ſecond year of Chriſt. As he was preparing to go to Rome for Cæſar's Confirmation, he put 3000 Men to death for a Sedition that happen'd when he puniſh'd certain Perſons that had pull'd down a Golden Eagle ſet up over the Portal of the Temple. Antipas, his Brother, contended with him for the Crown; and the Jews who deteſted the Cruelties of Archelaus, favour'd his Title: So that Auguſtus, under the Title of Ethnarch, gave him the half of what Herod poſſeſs'd, over Judea, Idumea, and Samaria. Returning to Judea, he diſplac'd Joazar, and confer'd the High Prieſthood upon Eleazar; and after that he Married Glaphyra, Alexander's Widow, the King of Cappadocia's Daughter; but in the 10th year of his Government, Auguſtus, upon the Complaints which the Jews made of his Tyranny, baniſh'd him to Vienna in the Dauphinate, where he died. Joſeph. l. 17. Antiq. Jud.

ARCHELAUS the Firſt, King of Macedon, Son and Succeſſor of Perdiccas II. was a moſt cruel Prince, and deſigning to ſecure his Kingdom by the death of all his neareſt Relations, threw his own Brother, not above ſeven years of Age, into a Well; and murder'd Alcetas and Alexander at a Banquet to which he had invited 'em. He adorn'd his Kingdom with beautiful Edifices, fortified all his Cities, and increas'd the Number of his Forces both by Sea and Land: But one of his Favourites, to whom he had promis'd his Daughter, which he gave to another, kill'd him. Thucydides, lib. 2.

ARCHELAUS, King of Lacedæmon, ſucceeded Leotychidas, or as Pauſanias will have it, Ageſilaus's Father, Anno Mundi 3144. He Reign'd 60 years, and took the Town of Ægis, and ſeveral other Places of Importance. Pauſanias, lib. 3. Euſeb. Chron.

ARCHELAUS the Second, King of Macedon, Son of Archelaus the Firſt, to whom he ſucceeded, and Reigned four years. He was killed in Hunting by Craterus, one of his Favourites, who thereupon uſurp'd the Crown, and held it three days. Diod. Sic. lib. 14.

ARCHELAUS, General of Mithridates's Forces in Athens, valiantly defended the Haven of that City, call'd the Piræum, againſt Scylla, General of the Roman Army. It's reported, that when he perceiv'd Scylla's deſign of putting fire to one of the Towers, he rub'd it over with Allum, which fruſtrated all his Efforts; yet the City was taken, and Scylla caus'd Archelaus to be ſlain at the foot of the Altar, whither he fled for refuge. Aul. Gellius, lib. 15. Strabo, l. 12. & 17.

ARCHELAUS, a Philoſopher, was the Diſciple of Anaxagoras and Socrates's Maſter, nor did he leſs deſerve the Title of a Phyſician, becauſe he was the firſt that brought the Phyſick of Ionia to Athens. He affirm'd that Heat and Cold were the Principles of all things; and was the firſt that diſcover'd that the Voice was nothing but a certain modification of the Air. He likewiſe held that the World was Infinite; and that whatever was juſt or unjuſt, was only ſo by cuſtom. He flouriſhed about the 84th Olympiad, 444 years before Chriſt, Diog. La. vit. Phi.

ARCHELAUS, Biſhop of Chaſchara in Meſopotamia. This Prelate underſtanding that the Heretick Manes had wrote a Letter to pervert a Perſon of Quality, and apprehending his Doctrine would be very infectious in his Dioceſs, oblig'd him to a Conference, in which he confounded him to that degree, that he made him quit the Country. St. Jerome affirms, that the Biſhop wrote this Conference in Syriack, and that afterwards it was Tranſlated into Greek. Archelaus liv'd in the third Century, in the Reign of Probus. Euſeb. Chron. St. Hierome, de Script. Eccl. c. 27.

ARCHIAS, a Native of Corinth, deſcended from Hercules, built the City of Syracuſe 13 years after the Foundation of Rome: Having his choice given him by the Oracle which he conſulted, whether he would have Health or Riches, he choſe the latter. Dion. Halicarn.

ARCHIAS, (Aulus Licinius) a Greek Poet, defended by Tully in the Conſulſhip of Piſo and Maſſala, in the 694th year of Rome. Archias wrote a Poem of the Cymbrian War, and began another of the Conſulſhip of Cicero; but we have now nothing remaining of this Poet but ſome Epigrams. S. Cic. pro Arch-Poet.

ARCHIBONZ, the High Prieſt in Japan: The other Prieſt being called Bonzai.

ARCHIDAMIA, the Daughter of Cleonymus King of Sparta, underſtanding that the Senate had made a Decree, That all the Women ſhould depart the City before Pyrrhus ſate down before it, as he threatned to do, went with a Sword in her hand into the Council-Chamber, and told the Senators, That the Mothers of ſo many brave Warriors as were preparing to fight the Publick Enemy, had no leſs Courage than themſelves, in the defence of their Country; and by that means obliged the Senate to revoke their Decree. Plutarch in Pyrrho.

ARCHIDAMUS, King of Sparta, Son of Ageſilaus the Great, ſucceeded his Father in the year of Rome 392. cut off 10000 Arcadians, without the loſs of one Man on his ſide; furniſh'd the Phoceans under-hand with Men and Money, which they made uſe of to Plunder the Temple of Delphos. Being call'd by the Tarentines to aſſiſt 'em againſt the Lucanians and Brutians, he Sail'd into Italy with a numerous Fleet, but was kill'd as ſoon as he Landed by the Meſſapians. When firſt he ſaw the Arcubaliſta's, or Engines to ſling Stone, he ſaid, That True Manhood and Courage was going out of the World, when Men were inventing ways to fight at a diſtance. Being aſk'd how far the Lacedæmonians Dominions extended? He replied, As far as they could carry their Lances. Seeing a Phyſician that would needs be making Verſes without any good Succeſs; I wonder, ſaid he, You ſhould chuſe rather to be counted a bad Poet, than a good Phyſician. Hearing how Philip, after a Victory obtain'd, threatned the Lacedæmonians, he bid him look upon his Shadow in the Sun, and he ſhould find it no bigger than before the Victory. Plutarch in Apophtheg.

ARCH-DEACON, a Name anciently given to the Firſt Deacon, or he who was Head of the reſt. St. Auſtin gives this Title to St. Stephen, becauſe St. Luke names him in the firſt place. In the firſt Ages of Chriſtianity, none but Deacons were capable of this Preferment, ſo that when he that had it took Prieſt's Orders, he could no longer be Arch-Deacon: But in proceſs of time, this Title was likewiſe given to Prieſts, as we may ſee in Hincmar in the year 877. Now the Arch-Deacon is, as it were, the Biſhop's Vicar, and viſits in the Dioceſs for him.

ARCH-DUKE, his Privileges among others are, That he receives his Inveſtiture from the Emperor or his Ambaſſadors, with the Ceremony of the Sword within his own Territories. He receives it ſitting on Horſeback, cloath'd in a Royal Mantle, having a Leading Staff or Trunchion in his hand, and a Ducal Crown upon his Head. He is, by Birth, Chief of the Emperor's Council, and cannot be proſcrib'd or baniſh'd; all Attempts againſt his Perſon are puniſh'd with the Penalties of High Treaſon: And he Adminiſters Juſtice within his own Territories without Appeal, by virtue of a Privilege granted by Charles V. Du Cange.

ARCHIDAMUS, King of Sparta, Son of Endamidas, march'd againſt Demetrius Poliorcetes, who took Athens in the year 455 of Rome, and continued his march towards Sparta. Archidamus preſented him Battel, but was unfortunate, and forc'd to retire; Demetrius purſu'd him to Sparta, where Archidamus rallied, and fought a ſecond Battel, but loſt it. Plut. Demetrio.

ARCHIDAMUS, a Biſhop, and Legate of Pope Julius to the Council of Sardica. Athan. Apol. 2.

ARCHIGALLUS, that is to ſay, Head of the Eunuchs. He was Sibyl's High-prieſt. Tertullian rallies this Office, with a great deal of Wit and Satyr, in his Apologetick, and in his Book De Reſurrectione Carnis.

ARCHILOCHUS, an Iambic Greek Poet, born at Paros, 666 years before Chriſt, was ſo ſharp and Satyrical upon Lycambes, who Married his Daughter to another, thô he had promis'd her to him, that he caus'd him to Hang himſelf; he was ſo careleſs of what he ſaid to the diſgrace of any one, that the Spartans were forbid to read his Works. Pauſanias.

ARCHIMANDRITA, the Head of a Monaſtery, in the Language of the Greeks, the ſame with an Abbot with us. Mandra ſignifying the ſame with Monaſterium.

ARCHIMEDES, of Syracuſe, an excellent Mathematician, ſo very much given to his Studies, that his Servants were often forc'd to break open his Cloſet, and take him from his Contemplation to eat. He invented many fine Machines, and made a Sphere of Glaſs, whoſe Circles repreſented the Motions of the Heavens. He diſcover'd the Goldſmith's Cheat, and how much other Metal he had mix'd with the King's Gold in making the Crown, without melting or otherways ſpoiling that curious Piece; and was ſo extraordinarily pleas'd when he had made this Diſcovery, that he ran naked from his Bath into the Town, crying out like a mad Man, I have found it, I have found it; no body underſtanding what he meant. When Marcellus beſieged Syracuſa, he found means to raiſe the Roman Ships into the Air, and ſet 'em on fire with Burning-Glaſſes of his own Invention. When the Town was taken, he was ſo very intent upon a Demonſtration of Geometry, that he neither heard the noiſe, nor minded any thing elſe, until a Soldier that found him tracing of Lines ask'd him his Name, and upon his Requeſt to be gone, and not diſorder his Figure, kill'd him. Marcellus, who had given expreſs Orders to uſe him civilly, was much concerned for his death, and receiv'd his ſurviving Friends very kindly for his ſake. He was ſlain in the 542 of Rome, and 212 before Chriſt. We have ſeveral Pieces of his Works, as Opera Mechanica; Circuli dimenſio; De numero Aren. &c. Plutarch in Vita Marcelli.

ARCHINUS, a Citizen of Argos, who being order'd to diſtribute new Arms to the Inhabitants, and put up the old ones, Arm'd a Company of Mercenary People, and made himſelf Maſter of the City. Polyenus.

ARCHIPELAGO, which the Engliſh Seamen call the Arches, is that part of the Ocean which lies between Aſia, Macedon, and Greece.

ARCHIPELAGO de Maldivas, a part of the Indian Ocean toward the Coaſt of Malabar and Maldivas, where are 600 different Iſlands.

ARCHIPELAGO di Mexico, is the Gulph of Mexico, commonly ſo called by the Engliſh, Dutch, and French, where there are infinite numbers of Iſlands.

ARCHIPELAGO du Noveau Pais bas, part of the Northern Ocean in North America, between the Coaſt of the New Belgium, and the Iſland vulgarly call'd l'Ange Eylandt, ſtrew'd with little Iſlands.

ARCHIPELAGO di St. Lazaro, part of the Eaſtern Sea toward the Iſland of Thieves, between Japan, the Philippines, and New Guinea.

ARCHIPHERACITES, a Title which the Jews gave to them, whoſe Office it was to read the Law, and expound it to the People. Grotius in Nov. Teſt.

ARCHIPOLIS, one of the Conſpirators againſt Alexander the Great. This Plot was diſcover'd by Dymnus, one of the Party, to Nicomachus, who inform'd the King of it. Quint. Curt. lib. 6. cap. 7.

ARCHITECTURE, or the Art of Building. This Art is not ſo ancient as the uſe of Houſes, which neceſſity forc'd Men to build in the very beginning, but neither durable nor beautiful until the firſt Inhabitants left wandring, and ſettled in particular Places, then they began to build more ſolidly, and at laſt becoming powerful and rich, would be magnificent in their Building, which gave occaſion to invent the Rules of Architecture, whereof the Ancients had two ſorts, Civil and Military, the firſt is ſtill in uſe, but the ſecond has chang'd, becauſe of the different ways of defending Places, and fortifying 'em, ſince the invention of Powder and Cannon. The Maſters of this Art have invented five different Orders of Architecture, with Proportions and Ornaments ſuitable to the bigneſs, ſtrength and beauty of the Work that is deſign'd. Theſe Orders are the Tuſcan, the Dorique, Ionique, Corinthian, and Compoſite, differing each from other in the proportion of the Colonne, or in their Entablements, which comprehends the Architrave, Friſe and Corniche. Some add to theſe five the Order of the Caryatides, and the Perſick, the firſt differing from the Ionique in this only, that Statues of Women are made uſe of inſtead of Pillars, the other is the Dorique Order with the Statues of Perſians bound like Priſoners in places of Pillars. When theſe ſeveral Orders are made uſe of together in any great Building, they are diſpos'd ſo, that the moſt ſolid and ſtrong bear the delicate and weak, as the Dorique the Ionique, the Ionique the Corinthian, and the Corinthian the Compoſite. Felibien Vies des Architects.

ARCHONTES, a Name the Athenians gave to the nine Magiſtrates or Governours of their City. The firſt took the Title of King, the ſecond that of Archon, the third of Polemarque, the others were called Theſmothetes. The King was the head of the State, and had power to aſſemble all the other; the Archon was to take care that every body had juſtice done him, eſpecially Widows, and their Pupils; and ſuch Women as were with Child after their Husband's death. The Polemarque, or Generaliſſimo of the Armies was overſeer of all things that belong'd to the War; the Theſmothetes or Law-makers ſate in the Council of State with the other three. Before Solon's time theſe Magiſtrates were choſen by Suffrages, but he thought more convenient it ſhould be done by Lot, with this proviſo, That ſuch as were choſen that way, ſhould appear before the Senate, who upon an enquiry into their Lives and Deportments, were to judge of their Merit, and at laſt their Sentence was to be approv'd in the general Aſſembly of the People. Pauſanias, Juſtin, Euſeb.

ARCHONTIQUES, Hereticks that appear'd about 175. ſo call'd becauſe they held that Archangels created the World, they denied the Reſurrection, and plac'd perfect Redemption in a Chimerick Knowledge. They ſaid, that God of Sabaoth exercis'd a cruel Tyranny in the 7th Heaven; that he engendered the Devil, who begot Abel and Cain of Eve. Theſe Errors they defended by Books of their own making, which they called the Revelation of the Prophets and the Harmony. Baron. Godeau. A. C. 175.

ARCH-PRIEST, an Eccleſiaſtical Dignity, formerly given to the Principal Prieſt in the Cathedral Church. His buſineſs was to inſpect the conduct of the Prieſts, and the reſt of the Clergy; to Adminiſter the Communion in the Biſhop's abſence, and to take care of Widows, Or-phans, and poor Travellers, no leſs than the Arch-Deacon. Afterwards the Title of Arch-Prieſt was given to the Principal Parſons of the Dioceſs, or to the Deans; they are diſtinguiſh'd into Arch-Prieſts of the City, and Arch-Prieſts of the Country, or Rural Deans: They are mention'd in the Second Council of Tours, in Anno 567. and in the Capitularies of Charles the Bald, who died Anno 877. Du Cange, Gloſſarium Latinitatis. In the Greek Church, the Arch-Prieſt is call'd πρωτοπάπας; and in the Catalogue of the Officers of the Church of Conſtantinople, he is ſaid to give the Communion to the Patriarch, and the Patriarch to him; That he is the Head of Buſineſs in the Church, and in many Caſes repreſents the Patriarch. Goar, in his Remarks upon this Catalogue, affirms, That the Arch-Prieſt among the Greeks ſucceeds in ſome meaſure to the Ancient Chorepiſcopi, and that in the Iſlands which belong to the Venetians, he ordains Readers, and is Judge in Cauſes Eccleſiaſtical. Richard Symon.

ARCHYTAS, of Tarentum, a Pythagorean Philoſopher, redeem'd Plato out of the hands of Dionyſius the Tyrant, who would have put him to death; his Vertue was in ſo great eſteem, that he was choſen ſeven times Governor of Tarentum; he was an excellent Mathematician, and the firſt that found out the Cube in Geometry; he alſo made a Pigeon of Wood that flew, which needs not ſeem impoſſible, ſeeing of later times a Workman of Norimbergh made an Eagle of Steel that flew to meet Charles V. This Archytas regulated the Order of the Predicaments, and was one of the moſt famous Pythagoreans of his time. Cardan. Voſſius.

ARCIGOVINA, a Province of Dalmatia, bounded by Boſnia, Mantenero, and the Adriatick Sea, and call'd by the Italians, Santa Sabata. It is 70 Leagues long, and 30 broad, and is ſuppoſed to contain about 70000 Families. The Capital of it is Caſtel-Novo, which was taken by the Venetians in the Year 1687. The only Places now Poſſeſſed and Garriſon'd by the Turks, are the Caſtle of Mocrovatz, and the Town of Blaſaia. The reſt of the Province is a fruitful Plain full of Populous Villages, and for the moſt part inhabited by Chriſtians, who after the taking of Caſtel-Novo, in the beginning of the Year 1688. appeared very willing to caſt off the Turks, and ſubmit to the Venetians.

ARCISSA, a great Lake of Armenia Major, which ſeveral Modern Authors call Mer de van, by reaſon of the City Van which ſtands near it. They gave it the name of a Sea becauſe the Waters are ſalt; and Pliny ſays, That nothing ſinks in it. Some call it Lac de Vaſtan, and others La Mer de Armenie. Baudrand.

ARCLOW, a ſmall Town which gives Denomination to a Gounty in the Province of Leinſter in Ireland; it lies upon the Sea, 31 miles South of Dublin, and gives the Title of Baron to the Dukes of Ormond.

ARCUDIUS, A Prieſt of the Greek Church, born at Corfu; Famous for his Worth and Learning. He was much valued, and employ'd by Pope Clement VIII. He died in the Year 1621. He publiſhed ſome Pieces of Antiquity, and wrote ſeveral of his own. The moſt Conſiderable of the laſt ſort are, De Concordia Eccleſiæ Orientalis & Occidentalis—— in 7 Sacramentorum Adminiſtratione. De Purgatorio, Adverſus Barlamum. De Proceſſione Spiritus Sancti. Leo Allatius, de Conſenſu Eccleſ. C. 7. Miræus de Script. Sæc. 17.

ARCUEVIL, a fair Village within a League of Paris, corruptly ſo called, whereas the true Name of it is Arcus Julianus, from an Aqueduct built there by Julian the Apoſtate, in 357. when he came to refreſh himſelf at Paris after the German War.

ARCULUS, a Pagan Deity, who took care, that Trunks and Cabinets were not broke open. There was ſome Diſpute between this pretended Divinity and Laverna, a Goddeſs, who was ſaid to be a Well-wiſher to Thieving. Feſtus, St. Auſtin de Civit. Dei.

ARDALEON, a Comedian of Alexandria, who acted the Myſteries of the Chriſtian Religion upon the Stages, to render them ridiculous; but being afterwards converted of a ſudden, he ſuffered Martyrdom for the Faith. Martyrologe Romain.

ARDASCHAT, anciently Artaxat, a City of Armenia upon the Confines of Erivan. It now lies in Ruines, only there are ſtill ſome remains of the Palace of Tiridates, as the Front, and four rows of Pillars of Black Marble, and ſeveral pieces of an Ancient Building, the Structure of which ſeems to have been very magnificent. This Heap of Ruines the Natives call Tact-Tirdat, or the Throne of Tiridates. Sir John Chardin's Hiſtory of Perſia.

ARDEA, an Ancient City of Latium, the Royal Seat of Turnus, and Metropolis of the Rutuli, now in Ruines; only there is a Caſtle ſtill which bears the Title of Marquiſate, belonging to the Family of the Ceſarini, upon the Coaſt of the Tyrrhene Sea, Long. 36. 25. Lat. 41. 30. Alſo a River of France in Normandy, which falls into the Britiſh Ocean near the City of Auranches.

ARDEBEL, or Ardevil, lies in 38. 50. Lat. in the Country of Adrilegizan, in a round Valley encompaſſed with Mountains of a great height, and in Winter covered all with Snow, which render this Place unhealthful, eſpecially to Strangers, that are not uſed to ſudden Changes. Every day at Noon here is a Whirlwind, which laſteth an Hour; for theſe Cauſes they have no Oranges, Lemons, or Grapes, but Corn is plentiful and very cheap, as alſo Paſturage. To this City belongs 75 Villages. It is great, but not cloſe built, nor at all fortified. It is watered by a ſmall Rivulet called Baluchlu, which in April is very great, increaſed by the Rains, and Mountain Snows, ſo that it endangereth the Town, if care be not taken againſt it. This Place, beſides Natural Baths of Warm Water, is honoured with the Sepulchres of Twelve Kings of Perſia, viz. Shack Sephy, Sedredin, Tzind, Sultan, Aider Shack, Aider Iſmael, Tamas Iſmael II. Muhemed, Coddebende Brother of Iſmael, Iſmael Myrſa, Hemſe Myrſe, Abas. The Revenue belonging to theſe Sepulchres is greater than that of the Crown. It drives a great Trade with Giſlan, Georgia and Curdiſtan. It was the Capital of Perſia before Alexander the Great's time. The King of Perſia has a fine Garden here, and becauſe of the Tombs of his Anceſtors it is a Sanctuary to Offenders, much viſited by Pilgrims, and accounted ſo Holy, that they forbid the Uſe of Wine in it, but in vain. It's the Road for the Caravans of Silk which go for Smyrna and Conſtantinople by 900 Camels at a time. Hackluit.

ARDRA, Ardres, a Kingdom with a Capital City of the ſame Name in Guinea in Africa. The City is 12 Leagues from a little Bay call'd La Praye, where the Ships ride. The Walls are made only of Earth, but ſo ſolid that no Mortar is comparable to it, and their Ditches are within the Wall. No body enters the King's Apartment unleſs he be expreſly ſent for, except the Grand Marabout who enters at all hours. The Palace is large and well built, with lovely Gardens belonging to it. The King is held in ſo great veneration, that none but the Grand Marabout, appears before him any otherways than proſtrate upon the Earth. The Great Marabout is he whoſe Deciſions are Authentick, and without Appeal, in all matters as well of Religion as State. This Prince in 1670 ſent an Ambaſſador to the King of France, to offer him an Aſſurance of Commerce, a particular Protection for his Ships, and an Abatement of Cuſtoms in favour of the French. This Emperor's Ambaſſador, called Matheo Lopez, was Accompanied with three of his Children, three of his Wives, and ſeveral Slaves. Delbee Voyage de Guinee in 1669.

AREOPAGITES, and Areopagus, the Senators and Senate-Houſe of Athens, ſtanding upon the top of a Hill of that Name near the City, founded the ſame Year that Aaron was Conſecrated High-Prieſt of the Jews, viz. A. M. 2545. in the Reign of Cecrops. Areopagus took its Name from Ἄρης Mars, who was the firſt Perſon that ever was indicted there, and accuſed by Neptune for killing his Son Halirrothius. As for the Judges, who were called Areopagites, they never heard any Cauſe but in the Night, that they might diſcuſs Matters with more ſedateneſs of Mind, or elſe becauſe they would not be ſurpriz'd with Objects that might move either their Hatred or Compaſſion. Before theſe Judges it was that St. Paul was call'd to give an Account of his Doctrine, and at the ſame time Converted Dionyſius, one of their number. Herodotus, Thucydides. Act. 17.

AREQUIPA, a City of Peru in South America, 26 Leagues from Lima, 70 from Cuſco, and ſeven from the South-Sea. The Spaniards report, That in the Reign of the Incas they would convey Fiſh from Arequipa to Cuſco in a very ſhort time, the Indians being laid upon the Road at ſuch diſtances as to hand them from one to the other. It is one of the moſt conſiderable Cities of Peru, as well for the Goodneſs of the Soil, which produces both Corn and Wine, as for the Convenience of the River Chila, which runeth along by the City, falls into the South Sea, and makes a convenient Harbour, from whence all ſorts of Merchandizes are brought up to the City; nor is it leſs Wealthy by reaſon of the Silver Mines not above 14 Leagues from it. It's alſo a Biſhop's See under the Archbiſhop of Lima, but the Country where it ſtands is ſubject to Earthquakes; beſides that, there is a kind of Vulcano or Burning Mountain, which in 1600 threw up burning Stones and Aſhes, with ſuch a roaring and noiſe, that it was heard as far as Lima, and ſpoil'd the Fruits of Peru. De Laet. Hiſt. du Nouveau Monde.

ARETAPHILE, the Wife of Nicocratus, Tyrant of Cyrene, paſſionately belov'd by her Husband, as being one of the moſt beautiful Ladies of her time; but in regard he exerciſed unheard of Cruelties upon his People, Aretaphile reſolved to Revenge her firſt Husband, whom he had ſlain to gain her, and to deliver her Country from Oppreſſion, by Poiſoning him; but being catch'd in the Deſign, was Rack'd, and pretending that it was only a Philtre, was acquitted. Afterwards ſhe gain'd Lyſander, the Tyrant's Brother, by promiſing him her Daughter, to Murder Nicocratus, and ſupply his room; to which Lyſander was eaſily perſuaded; but proving no leſs cruel than his Brother, ſhe got him ſurpriz'd, ſew'd in a Sack, and thrown into the Sea, by the Aſſiſtance of Anabus Prince of Libya. After this, the Cyrenæans, in acknowledgment of their Liberty, offer'd her the Sovereignty, which ſhe refuſed, that ſhe might live a private Life with her Friends. Plutarch de virt. Mul.

ARGAN, a City of New Caſtile in the Dioceſe of Toledo, noted for a Council in 1473. where all thoſe who did not underſtand Latin, were excluded from Church-preferments; all Biſhops obliged to ſay Maſs thrice, and every ſingle Prieſt four times a Year.

ARGANTHONIUS, King of the Tarteſſians, an Ancient People in Spain, according to Anacreon and Herodotus: He liv'd 150 Years, though Pliny will allow him but 120. However, Silius Italicus, to mend the Matter, gives him 300. Sil. Ital. Lib. 3.

ARGEUS, the Son of Lycimnius, forcibly taken away by Hercules, who promis'd to bring him again to his Father; but the Boy dying by the way, Hercules burnt his Body, and ſwept up the Aſhes, that he might in ſome meaſure perform his Promiſe; from whence it's ſaid came the Cuſtom of burning the Dead. Plut.

ARGEES, the Figures of Men made up with Ruſhes, which the Prieſts of the Roman Veſtals us'd to throw into the Tiber, from the Wooden Bridge, every 15th of May. Some ſay this Ceremony came from Evander King of Arcadia, who having paſs'd into Italy out of Greece, us'd to caſt the Figures of 30 Men into the River, to repreſent 30 Ar-

Siens his great Enemies: But others hold, that the occaſion of it was this, The Barbarous Nations, that firſt inhabited the Latin Country, us'd to throw all the Greeks and Achaians they caught, into the River; until Hercules, in his Voyage through Italy, perſuaded them to leave off that Barbarous Uſage of Strangers; and that they might not ſeem to change their Ancient Ceremony, bid them make uſe of Ruſhes made up in Man's ſhape. Tit. Liv.

The ancient Inhabitants of which were the Argivi, and the latter the Danai: It's a Marſhy Soil and full of Vines. The Capital of it was Argos, ſeated on the River Inachus 11 German miles from Corinth to the S. and 16 from Lacedæmon to the N. It had a Caſtle called Lariſſa, which ſtood above the City. Ptol. Long. 51. 20. Lat. 36. 16. This was one of the moſt ancient Cities in Greece, being built by Inachus in the time of Moſes, and the firſt of thoſe alſo that freed themſelves from the Dominion of their Kings. They had great Wars with the Lacedæmonians their Neighbours; but eſpecially in the time of Darius Hyſtaſpes, Father of Xerxes. It kept its Liberty till the year of the World when it firſt fell into the hands of the Acheans, and with them under the Romans, towards the end of the 157 Olympiad. It was an Archiepiſcopal See. The Venetians bought it in 1383. The Turks took it in 1463. And in 1686. General Moroſini retook it for the Venetians.

ARGINUSÆ, a little Iſland belonging to Greece. 'Twas there that the Athenians, under Conon, gain'd a Victory over the Lacedæmonians, who loſt their General Callicratides. Plutarch in Conon.

ARGIPPEI, Ancient People of Sarmatia, who, according to Herodotus and other ancient Authors, were born Bald, with a large Chin, and little or no Noſe at all; Their Voice was different from that of other Men: They fed on the Fruit of Trees, and were never troubleſome to their Neighbours, by whom they were often choſen to decide Differences. Herodotus, Lib. 2.

ARGLAS, a ſmall Town of Ireland, in the Province of Ulſter, and County of Downe. It has a Haven belonging to it, and gives the Title of Earl to the Lord Cromwell of Oakham.

ARGO, the Ship in which Jaſon, with his 54 Theſſalian and Argive Hero's, ſail'd to Colchos to fetch the Golden-Fleece; It was ſaid to have been 50 Cubits in length, allowing two Cubits diſtance between every two holes, according to the Proportion ſet down by Vitruvius. The firſt long Ship that ever was ſeen in Greece.

ARGOLUS, or Argoli, (Andrew) of Tagliacozzo, in the Kingdom of Naples. He was a great Philoſopher and Phyſician, but his Inclination lay moſtly for Mathematicks and Aſtronomy. He died about the Year 1650. His Works are, De Diebus Criticis. Ephemerides ab Anno 1630, ad 1700. Aſtronomicorum, Lib. 3. Problemata Aſtronomica, &c. Lorenzo Crazzo in Elog.

ARGONAUTÆ, a Name given to thoſe Valiant Græcians that accompanied Jaſon to Colchos, in his Expedition for the Golden-Fleece, An. M. 2791. The number of thoſe Adventurers was 52 or 54. whereof Hercules, Hylas, Theſeus, Pirithous, Orpheus, Peleus, and Telamon, famous both in Greek and Latin Poets, were the Chief. Some ſay theſe Argonauts ſail'd to Scythia, and that the Golden-Fleece was nothing but the vaſt Riches of that Country, the Inhabitants getting great quantity of Gold in the Rivers that ran from, or by Mount Caucaſus: And becauſe they made uſe of Sheep-skins with the Wooll on, to take up this Metal in Powder, it gave occaſion to call them Golden-Fleeces. Several Authors give different Explications of this Fable, ſome ſaying, That the Golden-Fleece ſignifies Virtue; and that when Poets ſpeak of Jaſon's conquering Bulls that vomited Flames, they would repreſent by theſe furious Beaſts, our head-ſtrong and unruly Paſſions. Others ſay, That this Fable is a Leſſon of Chymiſtry, denoting by the ſeveral Paſſages of that tedious Voyage, the long and many alterations of Bodies, before they are brought to the Perfection meant by the Golden-Fleece. Suidas thinks, That famous Fleece was a Book made of Sheep-skins, containing the Secret of the Tranſmutation or Philoſophers-ſtone; and that Medea ſtole it from her Father Æetes, King of Colchos, and gave it to her Lover Jaſon. In fine, according to the Opinion of ſeveral others, which ſeems the moſt reaſonable, The Golden-Fleece ſignifies Honour and Glory; and this Fable teaches young Men, not to live idle in their own Country, when there is no occaſion to ſhew their Courage, if they can ſignalize themſelves elſewhere; and that ſuch as aſpire to any conſiderable Place, or are call'd by their Birth or Parts to Govern, ſhould have ſeen ſeveral Countreys to learn their Cuſtoms and Ways, and to make themſelves known by their good Qualities, that ſo they might be the more eſteemed by Strangers, with whom afterwards they may have occaſion to deal. Apollonius Argonaut 4.

ARGOS, a Noble and Ancient City of Peloponneſus, the Capital of Argia or Argolis, now Parva Romania de la Morea. The Territory belonging to this City was bounded Eaſtward by the Egean Sea, and Gulf of Napoli di Romania; Weſtward by Arcadia; to the South by Laconia; and Northward by Corinth, and the Gulf of Engina. The Kingdom of the Argives is very ancient, for it began with Inachus in the year of the World 2197. and ended with Acriſius, Anno M. 2742. Inachus lived 346 years before the departure of the Children of Iſrael out of Egypt. In the time of Chriſtian Religion it was a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Corinth, afterwards erected into a Metropolitan it ſelf. In 1383. the Venetians purchas'd it of the Widow of Peter Cornari, Lord of Argos and Napoli. In 1463. the Sangiac of Corinth made himſelf Maſter of it; but in the Year 1686 General Moroſini recover'd it again from the Turks. *Strabo, Lib.*8. The Caſtle of Argos is about three Hours diſtant from Napoli di Romania, ſituate on a high Hill, at the foot of which is a Town, containing about 100 Houſes; the Inhabitants of which being for the moſt part Rich and Wealthy, when the Venetians approached, they carried the beſt of their Moveables and Houſhold-ſtuff into the ſaid Caſtle, which is well defended by the Natural Situation of it. It had alſo eight Iron Guns, and ten Patereroes, ſome ſmall quantity of Proviſion in it, with a Ciſtern not very well furniſhed with plenty of Water. The Argives, an ancient People of Greece, derive their Original from Inachus the Builder of Argos in Peloponneſus, who was the Founder of the Argivi. The beginning of this Kingdom was *A.M.*2091. 300 years before the Reign of Cecrops, the firſt King of the Athenians; 674 years before the Ruine of Troy in the time of Abraham, and in the 44th Year of the Life of Iſaac. This Inachus was the Progenitor of the moſt celebrated Royal Families in the Peloponneſus.

ARGOW, a Country of Swiſſerland, Neighbouring upon the Lake of Conſtans, ſo call'd from the River Arg. Some Modern Authors, that divide Swiſſerland into four Parts, make Argow to be one.

ARGUIN. There is here a knot of Iſlands, which lie South of Cape Blanco, in a Bay on the Weſtern Coaſt of Africa, 30 miles from the Continent: They were firſt diſcovered in 1443. and call'd Arguin from the Principal of them, which only hath freſh Water. They are Seven in number, inhabited by the Azenaghi, who ſubſiſt on the Fiſhing Trade. Pory, p. 55. Hackluit, T. 2. p. 2. p. 188. Lat. 19. 00.

ARGUIN, a ſmall Iſland on the Coaſt of Negritia, firſt poſſeſſed by the Portugueſe, who built a Fort in it in 1455. but were beat out by the Hollanders in 1633. thoſe outed by the Engliſh ſome years after, which laſt were diſpoſſeſſed, and the Place ruin'd by the French in 1678. The Dutch begin to ſettle there again. It lies in the Atlantick Ocean, upon the Coaſt of the Kingdom of Gualata, about the 20 D. of Northern Latitude.

ARGUS, the Son of Phrixus, by Minerva's direction, built a Galley of 50 Oars, which from the Builder's name was called Argo, and carried the Argonauts to Colchis. The fourth King of Argos in Peloponneſus, was likewiſe called Argus, and, as 'tis ſuppoſed, left his Name upon the Town and Country. *Euſeb. Chron. Apollod. Biblioth. Lib.*1.

ARGUS, the Son of Ariſtor, whom the Poets fain to have had 100 Eyes, with 50 of which he ſlept and wak'd by turns. Juno made choice of him to guard Io, belov'd by Jupiter; but Mercary lull'd him aſleep with his Flute, and ſlew him by Jupiter's command. Juno, to recompence his Fidelity, chang'd him into a Peacock, and placed his Eyes in the Bird's Tail. The Moral of this Fable ſhews, That he who is entruſted with conſiderable Affairs, can never be too watchful in the Diſcharge of his Duty. Ovid.

ARGYLE, Lat. Argathelia, or Argadia, a County in the Weſt-Highlands of Scotland, having Tarbat, formerly a diſtinct County, united to it, ſo that this Shire contains the Countries of Argyle, Kintyre, Cowal, and Lorne, part of Lochabor, Morbem, Sunart, and Annamurchan, on the Continent, and the Iſlands of Hay, Jura, Collonſay, Mull, Tirie, and ſeveral others. It is bounded on the South with the Iriſh Sea, on the Weſt with the Weſtern Iſlands, on the North with the Shire of Innerneſs and part of Perthſhire, and to the Eaſt with Lenox and another part of Perthſhire. The Country of Argyle hath for a long time belonged to the Chief of the Campbels, to whom it gives the Title of Earl; a Family whoſe very Name denotes their Valour, as ſignifying the Field of War; nor has their behaviour at any time been unanſwerable. He is the firſt Earl in Scotland; and beſides the Title of Argyle, is Lord Kintyre, Campbel, and Lorne, the laſt of which gives always Title to the Eldeſt Son of the Family, which makes a great Figure in Scotland, becauſe of the Greatneſs of their Clan, Number of their Vaſſals, Honourable Allies, and Hereditary Offices, ſuch as Juſtice-General of the Shire of Argyle and the Iſles, Lord-Lieutenant and Sheriff of Argyle, Heretable Maſter of the Houſhold (i.e. Hereditary Lord High-Steward of the Houſe) to the King, and ſeveral other Offices within his own Bounds: They were Juſtice-Generals of all Scotland, till by Contract betwixt King Charles I. and the Marquis of Argyle, then Lord Lorne in 1628. he reſigned that Office into the King's Hands, and got ſecured to himſelf and his Poſterity to be Juſtice-General of Argyle, and the Iſles, and where-ever he had Land in Scotland. The Chief of the Campbels, one of the ſaid Earl's Predeceſſors, in September 1308. made that famous Indenture, yet extant, with Sir Alexander Seaton, and Sir Gilbert Hay, whereby they bind themſelves to ſtand to their outmoſt to the Defence of their Sovereign Lord King Robert Bruce,as well againſt French and Engliſh, as Scots,ſubſcribed with all their Hands,and Seal'd at Cambuskenneth. He Honourably Entertained and Aſſiſted the ſaid K. Robert againſt Baliol; and for his good Service the King gave him Margery Bruce his own Siſter in Marriage. His Son aſſiſted King David Bruce in his Minority, joined with the Lord Robert Stewart, one of the King's Royal Predeceſſors, defeated the Engliſh at Dunoon, and took that Caſtle from them, for which the King made him Hereditary Governour of the ſaid Caſtle, allowing him a yearly Penſion, and created his Couſin John Campbel, Earl of Athol, who died without Succeſſion. King James I. being detained for a long time Priſoner in England, one of the ſaid Earl's Predeceſſors, whoſe Eldeſt Son was Married to the Daughter of Robert Duke of Albany, and Siſter to Duke Mundoch the Governor of Scotland, improved that Opportunity ſo effectually for the Advantage of the ſaid King James I, that he prevailed with the Governour to Ranſom and Reſtore him to his Father's Throne. Colin Earl of Argyle, did conſtantly adhere to K. James II. who in his young years was reduced to great ſtraits by thoſe who conſpir'd againſt his Authority, but was ſettled on the Throne by this Earl's Aſſiſtance; for which good Service he made him Lord High Chancellor of Scotland, and gave him ſeveral Lands. Gileſpicus, or Archibald Earl of Argyle, was kill'd at Flodden-Field, as fighting Valiantly for King James IV. Colin Earl of Argyle, was one of the Three that Govern'd Scotland in King James Vth's Minority, and the only Man able to make head againſt the Douglaſſes, being Commiſſionated for that effect. Archibald Earl of Argyle, was Lord High Chancellor in Queen Mary's Reign, a great Promoter of the Reformation, and Oppoſer of the French Tyranny, and then Current Perſecution. Colin Earl of Argyle, his Son and Succeſſor, was alſo Lord-Chancellor of Scotland in King James VIth's Reign. Archibald Earl of Argyle, was in 1641. Created Marquis, joined with the Parliament of Scotland, was a Zealous Aſſertor of the Presbyterian Government, was look'd upon as one of the greateſt Stateſmen of his time, contributed much to the Reception and Coronation of Charles II. in Scotland, and put the Crown upon his Head. Yet after the Reſtauration, Anno 1661. he was Condemn'd and Beheaded, on an Indictment for alledged Compliance with Oliver, being the Epidemical fault of the time. He declared himſelf Innocent on the Scaffold. Archibald his Son, when Lord Lorne, Commanded King Charles II's Foot Guards, ſignaliz'd himſelf againſt Oliver, and never Capitulated till he was ordered to do ſo by the King, yet was forfeited alſo, but ſoon after reſtored to the Title of Earl, and Condemn'd again in the latter end of Charles II. his Reign, for Explaining the Teſt in theſe Words. I have conſidered the Teſt, and am deſirous to give Obedience as far as I can. I am confident the Parliament never intended to impoſe Contradictory Oaths, and therefore I think no Man can explain it, but for himſelf, and reconcile it as it is Genuine, and agrees in its own ſenſe, and I take it in ſo far as it is conſiſtent with it ſelf and the Proteſtant Religion, and I do declare, I mean not to bind up my ſelf in my Station, and in a Lawful way to endeavour any thing I think to the Advantage of Church or State, not repugnant to the Proteſtant Religion, and my Loyalty, and this I underſtand as part of my Oath. But eſcaping from the Caſtle of Edinburgh, (his Eſtate being diſpoſed of to others) he got over into Holland, whence with a few Men he landed in Scotland in the beginning of the late King James's Reign, a little before the Duke of Monmouth landed in England, but never having gotten above 2000 Men together, was defeated, taken, and beheaded at Edinburgh, June 30. 1685. upon the Sentence of Explaining the Teſt. His Zeal for the Proteſtant Religion, and againſt introducing of Popery, was ſaid to be the Cauſe of his fall. He was reckoned an Accompliſh'd Stateſman and a great Soldier. His Son Archibald, the preſent Earl, came over with the Prince of Orange, and was very Inſtrumental in the Revolution in Scotland, and owned as Earl of Argyle by the Parliament before they took off the Attainder againſt his Father, which by the Claim of Right was declared to be a Reproach to the Nation. His Lordſhip was ſent from the Nobility, with other two from the Barons and Boroughs, to offer the Crown of Scotland in the Name of the Convention of States, to Their Majeſties King William and Queen Mary; for whoſe Service he carried over a Regiment to Flanders, conſiſting almoſt all, both Officers and Centinels, of his own Name and Family. His Eldeſt Son the preſent Lord Lorne, is a Youth of great Expectation, concerning whom it is remarkable, that when he was but Five Years old, he jumpt out of a Window Three Stories high, without receiving any hurt; and as near as can be Calculated, it happened in the very Minute that his Grandfather ſuffered. ☞ This Account was given by the Preſent Lord's Direction.

ARGYRA, a Nymph whom Solemnus was ſo deeply in Love with, that finding her always Cruel, he died of grief. Venus chang'd him into a Fountain that bore the Nymph's Name, whoſe Waters were a Sovereign Remedy againſt Love, by making ſuch as waſh'd themſelves with them immediately forget their Miſtreſſes. Pauſanias.

ARGYRASPIDES, or the Silver-Shield-bearers, were a Part of Alexander's Macedonian Army, who having ſignaliz'd themſelves by ſo many Victories, ſcorn'd any other Captain but Alexander himſelf; they are frequently mention'd by Arian in his Hiſtory of Alexander the Great. The Emperor Alexander Severus had a Band of Soldiers alſo that bore Silver Shields, in imitation of his Nameſake. Q. Curt. Juſt.

ARHUSEN, an Epiſcopal City of Denmark in North Jutland, under the Archbiſhop of Lunden, ſeated upon the Sound, and belongs to the King of Denmark; but in the Year 1644. was taken, and almoſt ruin'd by the Swedes. It's 10 miles S. of Albourg, two W. of Funen, and 26 N. of Lubec.

ARIA, a Country of Perſia, now call'd Choraſans, having to the North Bactriana and Margiana; to the Eaſt Parapomiſus; to the South Drangiana; and to the Weſt Parthia; but ſomewhat more remote from Hyrcania. The chief City of the Province, formerly bearing the Name of Aria, is now call'd Herat or Serheri, 31 Spaniſh Leagues from Burgian, a large and wealthy City, much celebrated for the Roſes that grow about it: Alſo a ſmall Iſland of the Baltick Sea, near the South part of the Iſle of Funen, where ſtands the Caſtle of Roping, belonging to the Dutchy of Sleſwick.

ARIA, a Lady of Padua, the Wife of Pætus Cecinna, a Roman Senator, who being convicted of being an Accomplice in Scribonius's Conſpiracy againſt the Emperor Claudius, was condemn'd to death, and brought from Illyrium to ſuffer at Rome; Aria follow'd him in a Fiſher's-Boat, and exhorted him to die Couragiouſly, Stabbing her ſelf, and then giving him the Dagger to do the like, ſaying, That ſhe did not feel her Wound, but that his would prove her death. This was An. Chr. 48. Plin. lib. 7. Her Daughter would have imitated her example on juſt ſuch another occaſion, but was perſuaded by her Husband to forbear for her Children's ſake.

Caſta ſuo Gladium cum traderet Aria Pæto,
Quem de Viſceribus traxerat ipſa ſuis:
Si qua fides, Vulnus quod feci non dolet, inquit,
Sed quod tu facies, hoc mihi, Pæte, dolet.

ARIADNE, Daughter of Minos King of Crete, who compell'd the Athenians to ſend him a yearly Tribute of young Boys, which Poets ſay, were to be devour'd by the Minotaure; tho' others think, that Taurus was a Valiant, but Cruel, Barbarous, and Paſſionate Commander of King Minos. However Theſeus being ſent into Crete, with a Tribute of young Athenians, Ariadne was much taken with his Mein, Strength, and Addreſs; and as a Teſtimony of her Love, gave him a Clew of Thred, and ſhew'd him how by the guidance of that, he might come out of the Labyrinth. Theſeus kill'd the Minotaure, and carried the young Athenians and Ariadne off, leaving her afterwards in an Iſland of the Archipelago, called Naxos or Dia. The Authors cited by Plutarch ſpeak differently of this; ſome hold, That Ariadne hang'd her ſelf for Deſpair; others, That being with Child, and not able to bear the toſſing of the Waves, ſhe was put a-ſhore in the forementioned Iſland; There are alſo ſome that ſay, She Married Onarus, one of Bacchus's Prieſts; others ſay, Oenopion, King of the Country, call'd afterwards Bacchus; who, if we give credit to Poets, plac'd Ariadne's Crown among the Stars. Plutarch in Theſ.

ARIADNE, the Wife of Zeno, Emperor of Conſtantinople, being, as ſome fanſie, weary of her Husband, finding him dead Drunk, commanded him to be put up in an empty Tomb, where coming to himſelf, he fell Mad and Died. After his death ſhe ſet the Imperial Crown upon the Head of Anaſtaſius her ſuppoſed Gallant, excluding Longinus, Zeno's Brother. Zonar. Annal.

ARIAMNUS, an Aſiatick Gaul, of ſuch vaſt Wealth, and ſo extraordinary Liberal and Magnificent, that he promiſed all thoſe of his own Nation, ſettled in Galatia, to give 'em a whole year's Entertainment; which he perform'd with wonderful Order and Decorum, tho' the People of the Neighbourhood throng'd to him in Shoals. He divided his whole Eſtate into ſeveral Quarters, and all along the Road ſet up Tents, that in whatever part the People arriv'd, they might not want a good Reception. Athenæus.

ARIAN, a Philoſopher, Geographer, and famous Hiſtorian, born at Nicomedia, a Town of Bithynia, where he ſtudied, and was afterwards Prieſt of Ceres and Proſerpina: He writ alſo the Hiſtory of Alexander the Great, his Maſter Epictetus's Diſcourſes, and his own Enchiridion. Suidas calls him the Young Xenophon, and ſays his great Parts raiſed him firſt to the Dignity of a Conſul, and afterwards to be Governour of Cappadocia under Adrian. Voſſius, l. 2. Hiſt. Graecor.

ARIAN of Athens: He wrote a Book De Venatione & Cura Canum, publiſhed by Holſtenius in 1644.

ARIANO, an Epiſcopal City of the Kingdom of Naples, in the Province call'd Principato Oltra, under the Archbiſhop of Beneventum, ſeated upon a Hill of difficult acceſs, and Dignified with the Title of a Dukedom. Alſo a City upon the Po, Capital of Poliſino. Arino.

ARIARATHES the Second, ſucceeded his Unkle Holophernes about the 112th Olympiad, 330 years before Chriſt: This Prince, who during Alexander's Reign had kept himſelf neuter, was, after his death, attack'd by Perdiccas, whom he oppos'd with an Army of 30000 Foot, and 20000 Horſe; but being overthrown, was taken, and crucified with his Principal Officers. But Juſtin ſays, That on this Defeat, the Cappadocians kill'd their Wives and Children, and having ſet fire to all their moſt valuable Goods, threw themſelves into the Flames. Strabo, l. 12. Diod. de Sicil.

ARIARATHES the Third, not able to withſtand the Victorious Macedonians, retired into Armenia, where underſtanding that Perdiccas and Eumenes were dead, and Seleucus and Antiochus were together by the ears, he took Courage, and, aſſiſted by Ardoata King of Armenia, vanquiſh'd Amyntas, one of Alexander's Lieutenants, and recover'd the Kingdom of his Anceſtors. Diod.

ARIARATHES the Fifth, King of Cappadocia, aſſiſted his Brother-in-Law Antiochus, King of Syria, againſt the Romans: But Antiochus being defeated, he ſent Ambaſſadors to Rome to make his Peace with the Senate, which coſt him 100 Talents. This Prince ſpent his time in trivial Occupations; he ſtopp'd the River Mela's entrance into the Euphrates, and having made a great Lake, raiſed the Ground in the middle, to form ſmall Iſlands: But the Euphrates overflowing its Banks, drown'd a great part of Cappadocia, and did conſiderable Damage in the Country of the Galates. The Romans hearing of this, order'd Ariarathes to pay 300 Talents towards the Damage. This Prince afterwards built the Town Ariarathe in Cappadocia. Tit. Liv. l. 5.

ARIARATHES the Eighth, being expell'd by Nicodemus, was reſtor'd by his Unkle Mithridates Eupator; who afterwards, upon ſome Diſguſt, made War upon him with 80000 Foot, 10000 Horſe, and 600 Chariots; whom Ariarathes oppoſed with as great a Force: But Mithridates being unwilling to hazard the Succeſs of a Battel, cauſed him to be aſſaſſinated before the Armies engaged. Juſt. lib. 30.

ARIAS Montanus, (Benet) one of the Learnedeſt Divines that Spain ever bred, flouriſh'd in the 15th Century: His Friends, tho' of Noble Extraction, could not allow him a Competency to go through his Studies, which made ſome conſiderable People in Seville take an occaſion to ſupply him. Here he made great Progreſs in the Sciences; and then going to Alcala, did not only learn Divinity, perfecting himſelf in the Greek and Latin, but alſo learn'd the Hebrew, Syriac, and Chaldaic Tongues: Afterwards travelling into Germany, France, Italy, &c. became a good Proficient in their Languages; and being received into the Order of the Knights of St. Jaques, was ſoon after made Prieſt. He accompanied the Biſhop of Segovia to the Council of Trent, where he gain'd great Reputation; and at his return thence, retired to a pleaſant Place near Aracena, in the Mountains of Andaluſia, to be the leſs diverted from his Studies. Philip II. of Spain employ'd him to prepare and publiſh another Edition of the Bible, after that of Alcala, finiſh'd by the Care of Cardinal Ximenes: Arias accompliſh'd this Work with great Glory. He died at Seville, in the Houſe of the Knights of St. James, in 1598. His other Works are, Elucidationes in Evangelia, in Acta Apoſtolorum, in Epiſtolas, in Apocalypſ. in Commentaria, in 12 Prophetas, in 30 priores Pſalmos, in Iſaiam. Antiquitatum Judaicarum, l. 9. Sponde in Annal. Le Mire.

ARIATHES, Son of Mithridates Eupator, Conquer'd Cappadocia, and chas'd King Ariobarzanes from thence: This Succeſs rais'd ſuch a Jealouſie in his Father Mithridates, that not being able to endure the Reputation of the Son, he order'd him to be poiſon'd. Appian, Plutarch.

ARICA, a Port of Peru, with a capacious Haven and a ſtrong Caſtle. In the year 1578. Sir Fran. Drake entred it with Two Ships, and took Three belonging to the Spaniards, in which there was not one Mortal found, thô they had 57 Wedges of Silver aboard, each of 20 pound weight: So ſecure were the Spaniards then in thoſe parts. Mr. Tho. Cavendiſh, our Country-man, who viſited it in the year 1587. ſaith, it lies in 18 Deg. 31 Lat. The Town was then very Populous and Rich, and he having but a few Men, durſt not attempt it; but he took Two Ships in the Port. The Dutch in 1599. Sailed to this Port, and found it rather to be a ſafe Road than a Haven, it being well defended from the North, Eaſt and South Winds, but not from the Weſt, nor of eaſie and ſafe approach. The Gold and Silver is brought hither from Potoſi by Peru in a Ship guarded by a few Indians and Spaniards, who come hither in March or April, and here they Ship the Plate, which in May goes to Lima. In the beginning of laſt Century, the Spaniards firſt fortified this place, being driven to it by the Depredations of the Engliſh and Dutch: The Town is Governed by a Corrigidor, nominated once in ſix years by the King of Spain. When Sir Francis Drake was here, the Town conſiſted but of 20 Houſes; afterwards it aroſe to 100. Laet. 465. 66. This Town ſtands, according to Acoſta, 70 Leagues from Potoſi, according to others 80. Oliver Vander Noort placeth it Lat. 18. 40. Drake, and moſt others, 11. 30, or 31.

ARICIA, now call'd Riccia; formerly a conſiderable Town in Italy, but is now reduc'd to a ſmall Village. It ſtands in Campagnia di Roma, and gives a Duke's Title. The Lake of Aricia is now call'd Lago-dinemi. Plin. Liv.

ARIDÆUS, a Baſtard Brother of Alexander the Great, whom his Father had by Lariſſa an Actreſs, was advanc'd to the Throne after Alexander's Death, which Olympias not enduring, retired to Epyrus, where having ſtrengthned her Party before Caſſander could ſend ſuccour to Aridæus, got the unfortunate Prince into her power, and put him to death, Euridice his Wife, and 100 Noble Macedonians that were of his Party. Juſtin, Euſebius.

ARIDICES, a certain Philoſopher, of whom Macrobius reports the following Paſſage. Being invited, with ſome other Men of Letters, to dine with one of the Kings manumiſs'd Slaves, he had the diſſatisfaction to ſee himſelf and the other Philoſopher's laugh'd at, by this Purſe-proud Fellow; who deſigning to put him to a ſtand, deſir'd to know, what was the reaſon that the Flower of a Black Bean and a White, were of the ſame colour. The Philoſopher, being angry at this ridiculous Queſtion, deſir'd the Free'd Man, to reſolve him firſt, whence it came to paſs, that Two Whips, one made of White Thongs, and another of Black, made the ſame Marks upon a Slave's Shoulders. Macrob. Saturnal. 7.

ARIMA, a City and Sea-port of Japan, in the Kingdom of Ximo; the Inhabitants have baniſh'd all the Chriſtians thence.

ARIMANES, one of the three Sovereigns, to whom ſome Pagan Philoſophers attributed the Government of the World, That is to ſay, God, the Spirit, and the Soul, under the Names of Orimanes, Mithra, and Arimanes: To God the Unity of Parts, and of the Whole; to the Spirit, the Order of Parts, united by the Power of God: And to the Soul, the Motion of that which is in good Order, by Virtue of the Superior Powers. The Perſians gave this Name to the Principle of Evil, as that of Oromazes to the Cauſe of Good. Stanly, Orient. Philoſophy.

ARIMASPI, certain People of the European Sarmatia, who poſſeſs thoſe Countries, which at this day include Ingermaland, the Dukedom of Novogrod, and the Dutchy of Pleskow in Muſcovy. Herodotus, Farnebius.

ARIMATHEA, Arimathia, Ramatha, Rama, Ramula, a City in the Tribe of Ephraim, in which Saul firſt was anointed, Samuel was born, lived and died here; and Joſeph of Arimathea, who buried our Saviour, was of this Place. 1 Sam. 1. 1. Math. 11. Matt. 27. It is now by the Turks called Ramola. See Rama.

ARIMAZES, Sovereign of part of Sogdiana, toward Scythia, who kept himſelf in a Caſtle built upon an inacceſſible Rock, where he had 30000 Soldiers, and Proviſions for two years; and being ſummon'd by Alexander to ſurrender, ask'd him whether he could fly, which ſo incens'd that Prince, that he reſolv'd to attack him. The next night about 300 young Macedonians gain'd the top of the Rock, which was ſteep on every ſide, and above 30 Furlongs high, which ſo terrified Arimazes, that he came down to Alexander's Camp, with his Kindred, and the principal Nobility, in hopes of Pardon; but Alexander was ſo provok'd by the inſolence of his Anſwer, that he order'd 'em all to be firſt whipt with Rods, and then hung upon Croſſes at the foot of the Rock, Q. C. l. 7.

ARIMOA, an Iſland of Aſia, near New Guinea, diſcover'd by the Hollanders in 1616. under the Conduct of William Schouten.

ARINTHIUS, a Roman, Conſul with Modeſtus, in the Reign of Valens and Valentinian, Anno 372. He favoured the Orthodox againſt the Arians, was an intimate friend of St. Baſil's, and much valued by him. Leſueur, Hiſt. l'Egl. & de l'Empire.

ARIOBARZANES, King of Cappadocia, Elected by the People of that Country, with leave of the Roman Senate, upon which he was immediately attacked by Tigranes King of Armenia, and Mithridates King of Pontus; but finding himſelf too weak for ſuch potent Enemies, he retir'd to Rome, where he ſtay'd till Sylla having overthrown Tigranes, reſtor'd him to his Throne: After this, Ariobarzanes vanquiſh'd Ariarathes, the Son of Mithridates, and by the aſſiſtance of the Romans, join'd to his Territories Two Provinces of Greater Aſia, and part of Cilicia. Plutarch. Eutropius.

ARIOBARZANES, King of Armenia. Some Authors believe him the ſame with him of Cappadocia. Diodorus Siculus mentions a Perſian Governor of Phrygia of this Name; And Quintus Curtius ſpeaks of another, who oppos'd Alexander the Great's Paſſage into Perſia, and was kill'd in the Field. Diod. Sic. Lib. 15. Quint. Curt. Lib. 4 & 5.

ARION, a Muſician and Poet, born at Methymna in the Iſland of Lesbos; He was the firſt Inventor of Dithyrambicks or Songs in Praiſe of Wine and Bacchus. Periander Entertain'd him a long time in his Court, after which he Travelled into Italy and Sicily, and got a great Eſtate in Money, with which returning to Corinth, the Seamen out of Covetouſneſs to make themſelves Maſters of his Wealth, threw him into the Sea, where a Dolphin charm'd with the ſound of his Harp and Voice, took him upon her Back, and carried him to Cape de Maini, which is the moſt Southern Point of all Morea, and there ſet him aſhore, upon which Arion went to Periander at Corinth, who puniſh'd the Seamen according to their Deſerts. They that will have this a real Truth and no Fable, grounded upon the Story of Jonas, refer it to the XLI Olympiad, which anſwers to the 138 of Rome, and 3438 of the World. Solin. Herodotus.

ARIOSTO Lewis of Ferrara, an Italian Poet, he liv'd with Cardinal Hippolyto D'Eſte, who carried him into Hungary, but he refus'd to accompany the Prelate a ſecond time. Alphonſo I. Duke of Ferrara, the Cardinal's Brother, took him into his Family, as his Companion in all his Divertiſements; and in that time of leiſure it was, that Arioſto compos'd the greateſt part of his Satyrs, his Comedies, his Poem of Orlando, and the Wars of the Moors againſt Charlemain under their King Agramont. The Poets of thoſe times waſted their Wits upon Knight Errantry and Romances, which is the reaſon that his Digreſſions are too affected to be true, however his Style is pure, and his Expreſſions lofty, his Deſcriptions wonderful, though ſometimes he wants Judgment. 'Tis ſaid of him, that he ſpoke well, but thought amiſs, and therefore having Dedicated his Poem of Orlando to Cardinal D'Eſte, upon his Preſenting it; Mr. Lewis (ſaid he) where the Devil did you pick up ſo much Trompery. He died July 13. 1533. Paul. Jov. in Eleg. c. 84.

ARIOVISTUS, King of the Germans, an Ambitious Prince, at firſt declar'd a Friend to the Romans, but afterwards falling into Gaul with a Powerful Army, was utterly routed by Cæſar in the year of Rome 696.

ARIPERT the Firſt, King of the Lombards, Son of Gondebaud. He ſucceeded Rodald, who was murther'd by a Lombard, in the year of our Lord 657. He Reign'd 5 or 6 years, and left Two Sons, Pertharit and Godebert, who diſputed the Right to the Crown for ſome time, and gave Grimoald an opportunity to carry it from 'em both. Paulus Diac. Lib. 5. Longobar.

ARIPERT the Second, Son or Kinſman to Reginbert Duke of Turin, who had uſurp'd the Crown of the Lombards, from Luitbert Son of Cunibert. This Uſurper enjoyed the Crown but 3 months: After which Aripert Reign'd, and to fix himſelf in his Government, order'd Luitbert to be ſeiz'd, who was but an Infant. He gave the Cottian Alps to Pope John the Sixth, and wrote a Letter to him in Gold. A Lombard Duke call'd Anſprand or Ariſprand, revolted from Aripert; This latter not finding himſelf ſtrong enough to fight him, retir'd for France. And being in a Barge, over-laden with Treaſure, was drown'd in the Teſin. Luitprand ſucceeded him, and confirm'd the Donation which he had given to the Holy See. Paul. Diac. Lib. 6. Bede, Ado Vienen.

ARISTAGORAS, the Son of Melpagoras, Son-in-Law and Kinſman to Heſtiæus Tyrant of Miletum. About the year 247 he revolted from the Perſians, and perſwaded the Athenians and other Greeks to take Arms againſt 'em. Afterwards in the year of Rome 250, having got together about 20 Ships, he made incurſions into the Enemies Country, and burnt the City of Sardis, which ſo incens'd Darius, that he order'd his Attendants, every evening before he went to Supper, to put him in mind of revenging the Affront he had ſuffer'd by the ſack of that City. Herodotus.

ARISTARCHUS of Samos, a Grammarian and Critick, Scholar to Ariſtophanes of Byzantium, and Contemporary with Crates, in the 158th Olympiad, and 606th of Rome. He wrote nine Books of Animadverſions upon Homer's Iliads and Odyſſes, and lived in the time of Ptolemy Philometor, King of Egypt, who made him Præceptor to his Son Ptolemy Lathurus. Voſſ.

ARISTEUS, a Jew, that liv'd at the Court of Ptolemy Philadelphus, King of Egypt: This Prince eſteem'd him ſo much for his Moderation and Wiſdom, that he gave 6000 Jewiſh Slaves their Liberty for his ſake, and ſent him to Jeruſalem to the High Prieſt Eleazar, to ſend him Learned Men to Tranſlate the Jewiſh Laws out of Hebrew into Greek: Eleazar choſe Seventy two, ſix of each Tribe, who made that Verſion commonly call'd the Verſion of the Septuagint: And Ariſteus compos'd a Hiſtory of all that paſs'd in this Buſineſs. The Bibliotheca Patrum has a Greek and Latin Tract, tranſlated by Mathias Gorbitius, whom Bellarmin, Binius, and ſome others believe to be the genuine Ariſteus, cited by Tertullian, Euſebius, and St. Jerome, &c. But ſeveral Criticks are of another Opinion, amongſt which we may reckon Ludovicus Vives, Salmeron, Scaliger, &c. who make no queſtion of this Book's being ſuppoſititious, and counterfeited by ſome Rabbin; which Opinion ſeems to be confirmed beyond diſpute by Valeſius, in his Notes upon Euſebius. Euſeb. l. 9. Præpar. Evang. Hieron. Præf. in Pentat. Ludovic. Viv. l. 18. de Civ. Dei; Valeſ. ad Euſeb. Hiſt. l. 5. Joſeph. l. 2. Ant. Jud.

ARISTEUS, Son of Apollo and Cyrene, (Cicero calls him the Son of Bacchus;) he fell in love with Euridice, Orpheus's Wife, who endeavouring to get rid of him, was bit by a Serpent, of which ſhe died. The Nymphs were ſo angry at this, that to be reveng'd, they kill'd Ariſteus's Bees; who having Sacrific'd ſome Bulls, by the Advice of the Oracle, recover'd what he had loſt. He is ſaid to have invented the way of making Honey, Oil, and Cheeſe. Apollod. l. 2.

ARISTIDES, an Athenian, Sirnamed The Juſt, the Son of Lyſimachus, was by the means of Themiſtocles, who look'd upon him with an envious Eye, baniſh'd for 10 years, after he had given many ſignal Proofs of his Conduct and Probity. However, he was recall'd at the end of 6 years, or, as others ſay, ſooner, and was at the Battel of Salamine: He alſo Commanded, together with Pauſanias, in the year of Rome 275. at the Battel which the Greeks won from Mardonius, near the City of Platea in Bæotia, and by his Moderation and Equity perſuaded the Greeks to unite againſt the Perſians; and that there might be a Fund of Money to carry on the War, he ordered the Receivers to carry into Delos 460 Talents every year, every Talent amounting to 600 Crowns. But notwithſtanding that he managed the Publick Treaſury, and had been all along in great Employments, he died ſo poor, that he was buried at the Publick Charge. The States alſo took care to Marry his two Daughters, and allow'd his Son a good Maintenance. Cornel. Nepos.

ARISTIDES, an Athenian, and Platonick Philoſopher: He flouriſhed in the ſecond Century, in the Reign of Adrian. He was a Chriſtian, and wrote an excellent Apology for Chriſtianity, which he preſented to the Emperor. St. Jerome and Euſebius mention this Defence as extant in their time. Euſeb. Hiſt. l. 4. c. 3. & 5. Hieron. de Script. Eccl. & Ep. 35. ad Mag. Orat.

ARISTIDES, a Painter of Thebes, who flouriſh'd in the time of Apelles: He is ſaid to be the firſt who attempted to draw the Mind and repreſent the Paſſions. Plin. l. 34. c. 8. & l. 35. c. 10.

ARISTION, an Athenian, greatly eſteem'd by Mithridates King of Pontus for his Policy and Wit; was by him ſent to the Cities of Greece, to perſuade them to throw off the Roman Yoak. He wrought upon the Athenians ſo far, that he perſuaded them to join with Mithridates, as Defender of Aſia and Greece; which was the reaſon that Sylla, having taken Athens, caus'd Ariſtion to be drawn from the Altar, whither he fled for Sanctuary, and to be ſlain before the Statue of Minerva. Pauſan. in Atticis.

ARISTIPPUS of Cyrene, call'd the Elder, the Diſciple of Socrates, liv'd about the 96th Olympiad, and year of Rome 360. He founded a new Sect of Philoſophers, who were call'd Cyreneans. He is tax'd for being the firſt that took Money of his Scholars, and taught Philoſophy for Gain. He made no ſcruple to frequent the Courts of Princes, keep his Miſtreſſes, and fare deliciouſly, anſwering thoſe that tax'd him for it, That if it were not a good thing to Feaſt and Eat well, People would not practice it on their Holy Feſtivals. He had a nimble Wit, and was quick at Repartees. One time a Fellow purſuing him with opprobrious and ſcurrilous Language, and asking him why he made ſuch haſte away? Becauſe, ſaid he, thou art accuſtomed to give foul Language, and I am not accuſtomed to hear it. Another time Dionyſius the Tyrant telling him, That he ſaw a great many Philoſophers haunt the Gates of Great Men, but few Great Men trouble Philoſophers Houſes: 'Tis becauſe the Phyſicians, ſaid Ariſtippus, always viſit the Sick. The ſame Dionyſius having refus'd him a Kindneſs which he begg'd for another, he fell at his Knees: Which the Company wondring at, 'Tis, ſaid he, becauſe the Prince's Ears are in thoſe Parts. He wrote 3 Books of the Hiſtory of Libya, which he Dedicated to Dionyſius; and 25 Dialogues under the Title of Artabazus. Diog. Laert.

ARISTIPPUS the Younger, Grandchild to the former, was inſtructed in Philoſophy by his Mother Aretia, and therefore call'd Metrodidactos. He became a moſt ſtout Defender of the Cyrenaic Sect, which admitted the two Motions of the Soul, Pain and Pleaſure, for Principles, calling Pleaſure a Motion of Gentleneſs, and Pain a Motion of Violence. Diog. Laert.

ARISTOBULUS the Firſt, Sirnam'd Philellen, King of the Jews, and eldeſt Son of Joannes Hircanus, Prince and High Prieſt, ſucceeded his Father A. M. 3951. and join'd the Royal Diadem to the Pontifical Tiara. During his Father's Life, he took care of the Siege of Samaria, and defeated the Forces of Antiochus of Cyzicum; afterwards, having chang'd the Principality of Judæa into a Kingdom, he made his Brother Antigonus his Companion in the Government, and put the other three in Priſon, together with his Mother, whom he ſtarv'd to death; and for an accumulation of his Crimes, having conceiv'd a Jealouſie of his Brother, he cauſed him alſo to be ſlain, and then died for grief himſelf the firſt year of his Reign. He enlarg'd his Dominions with this addition; he added Iturea to his Dominions, and compelled the Inhabitants to turn Jews. Joſeph. l. 13.

ARISTOBULUS the Second, King of the Jews. After the death of his Mother Alexandra, A. M. 3985. he aſſum'd the Crown, tho' younger than Hircanus, whom he defeated in Battel, and forc'd him to confirm him in the poſſeſſion: In the mean time, Aretas, King of the Arabians, taking part with Hircanus, beſieged Ariſtobulus in the Temple of Jeruſalem; who being reliev'd by Scaurus, Pompey's Lieutenant, purſued his Enemies, and defeated 'em. Upon which, Hircanus repair'd to Pompey, then at Damaſcus, for Succour; thither alſo went Ariſtobulus: Pompey promiſed to reconcile them, as ſoon as he had ſettled ſome other Buſineſs. In the mean time, Ariſtobulus withdrawing himſelf privately, without ſpeaking a word, ſo incens'd Pompey, that he beſieged and took Jeruſalem, and ſent Ariſtobulus and his two Sons Priſoners to Rome: From whence eſcaping with his Son Antigonus, he returned to Judæa, and raiſed an Army to maintain his Right: But being defeated by Gabinius, was again ſent to Rome, where he was ſoon after ſet at liberty by Julius Cæſar, who deſign'd to make uſe of him againſt his Enemies in thoſe Parts: But then he was poiſon'd by Pompey's Party; and at the ſame time Scipio beheaded his Son Alexander. Joſ. Ant. Jud. l. 13.

ARISTOBULUS, High Prieſt of the Jews, Son of Ariſtobulus II. and Alexandra the Daughter of Hircanus, to whom Herod the Great gave the High Prieſthood at 17 years of Age, feigning a Reconciliation with Alexandra, the young Prince's Mother, and Marianne's Siſter. But the extraordinary Joy of the People to ſee Ariſtobulus advanced to that Dignity, occaſion'd his Ruine; for it ſo raiſed Herod's Jealouſie, that he cauſed him to be ſmother'd in the Bath, An. M. 4005. and to conceal the Murder, made a pompous Funeral for him.

ARISTOBULUS, the Son of Herod and Marianne, who was ſo unfortunately engag'd in thoſe Crimes which were charg'd upon his Brother Alexander, that notwithſtanding the Innocency of both of 'em was ſufficiently known, they were ſtrangled at Sebaſtia, in the year of the World 4049.

ARISTOCLEA, the Daughter of Theophanes, a Citizen of Halyartus, belov'd by two young Gentlemen, whoſe Paſſion and Jealouſie occaſion'd her death. One of theſe Lovers was called Strato, the other Calliſthenes, who was the better Gentleman, but not ſo rich as the other; and therefore Theophanes had promiſed him his Daughter in Marriage. Strato diſſembled his Reſentment, and came to the Wedding, pretending a deſire to preſerve the Father's Friendſhip, ſince he had loſt all hopes of Marrying the Daughter: But his real Deſign was to take her away by force; and watching his opportunity, when Ariſtoclea went to ſacrifice to the Nymphs at the Fountain of Chiſſoeſſa, according to the Cuſtom of the Country, being ſeconded by ſome of his beſt and ſtouteſt Friends, he ſeiz'd upon the Bride. Calliſthenes generouſly oppoſed Violence with Violence; but whilſt they fought on both ſides, the poor Lady expired in the Scuffle: Upon which Strato kill'd himſelf; and Calliſthenes, not able to endure ſo ſad a Spectacle, went whither his Deſpair led him, and never appear'd more. Plut. Amat.

ARISTOCLIDES, Tyrant of Orchemene in the Peloponneſus, not being able to win the Affection of the fair Stymphalide, put her Father to death, and afterwards more barbarouſly cauſed the Virgin her ſelf to be ſlain at the foot of Diana's Altar, where ſhe thought her ſelf ſecure: But the whole Country reſenting that deteſtable Action, roſe up unanimouſly to revenge the Virgin's Death, and deprived the Tyrant both of his Crown and Life. S. Jerome.

ARISTOCRATES the Firſt, King of Arcadia, having forc'd a lovely Virgin, that was Prieſteſs in the Temple near Orchomene, his Subjects revolted, and ſton'd him to death; and afterwards ordered, That the Prieſthood of that Temple ſhould never be conferr'd but upon a Married Woman. Pauſan.

ARISTOCRATES the Second, and laſt King of Arcadia, Son of Hicetas, and Grandſon of Ariſtocrates I. This Prince raiſed an Army to aſſiſt his Allies the Meſſenians againſt the Lacedæmonians; but being bribed, he ordered his Troops to fall back as ſoon as the Battel was begun; and by this means the Meſſenians were totally routed. Afterwards he refuſed to Command the Meſſenian Army, which provok'd his Subjects to a general Revolt, and occaſion'd his being murther'd. Pauſan. in Meſſen.

ARISTODEMUS, King of the Meſſenians in the Morea, maintain'd a furious War againſt the Lacedæmonians, who took ſeveral Places from him. He retired to Rome; and being reinforced with new Recruits, made a great ſlaughter of the Enemy; who to re-people their Land, were forced to proſtitute their Wives and Daughters to Strangers; whence ſprang the Parthenians, who 30 years after, under the Conduct of Philantus, the Son of him that gave the Counſel, went into Italy, and took the City of Tarentum. In the mean time Ariſtodemus having ſacrific'd his Daughter by advice of the Oracle, kill'd himſelf upon her Tomb, after 6 years Reign, in the 14th Olympiad, about 30 years after the Foundation of Rome.

ARISTODEMUS, the Son of Ariſtocrates II. King of Arcadia, would have ſucceeded his Father; but the Arcadians, looking upon him as a Tyrant, rejected him: Thereupon he paſſed into Italy, and was very ſerviceable to the Romans in their Wars againſt Tarquin the Proud. Returning into Arcadia, he got poſſeſſion of his Father's Throne: But ſuch was his Pride and Luxury, that his Subjects ſoon grew weary of him; and the Friends of ſeveral Citizens, whom he had baniſh'd, that he might ſeize upon their Eſtates, conſpired and ſtabb'd him in his Chamber, being let into it by Zenocrita, Wife to one of the Exiles, but kept by him as his Miſtreſs. Plutarch de virtute Mulierum.

ARISTODEMUS the Second, Tyrant of Arcadia, vanquiſh'd the Lacedæmonians, and ſlew their King Acrotatus in Battel; yet was murther'd by his own Subjects, who would endure no other Sovereigns after Ariſtocrates II. Plut.

ARISTODEMUS of Sparta, being ready to enter that famous Battel of Thermopylæ, between the Lacedæmonians and Perſians, was taken on a ſudden with ſuch a Defluxion upon his Eyes, as rendred him altogether unſerviceable, by which means he was the only Man of 300 that eſcap'd. Upon his return to Sparta, being tax'd with Cowardice, he was ſo ſenſible of the ſeeming Diſgrace, that he ſacrific'd himſelf at the Battel of Platea, ruſhing in among the thickeſt of his Enemies, who kill'd him. Herod. l. 7.

ARISTOGITON, an Athenian, of the Family of Alcmæon, who, together with Hermodius, kill'd Hipparchus in the 66th Olympiad. His Brother Hippias, to revenge his Death, put ſeveral in vain to the Torture, and among the reſt a Courteſan, who bit off her Tongue to prevent a Diſcovery. The Athenians afterwards erected Statues to Ariſtogiton and his Companions, for ſhewing 'em the way to regain their Liberty. Thucyd.

ARISTOLAUS, Commanded a Legion under the Emperor Theodoſius the Younger: He was, upon the account of his Parts and Piety, made choice of, to reconcile St. Cyril of Alexandria, and John of Antioch, which he happily effected, ed, the latter being perſuaded to ſubſcribe the Council of Epheſus, to quit the Neſtorians and join the Orthodox Party. Baron. A. C. 432.

ARISTOMENES, a General of the Meſſenians, that perſuaded them to revolt from the Lacedæmonians, whom they worſted in ſeveral Rencounters, until the latter borrow'd a Commander from the Athenians by advice of the Oracle; and then they overcame the former. Ariſtomenes is applauded for his Juſtice and Chaſtity, becauſe he would not ſuffer his Soldiers to violate the Daughters of the Spartans, whom they had ſurpriz'd at a ſolemn Sacrifice. Ariſtomenes being afterwards taken by the Lacedæmonians, and in danger to loſe his Life, thoſe Virgins would not return home, until they ſaw their Deliverer at Liberty; who after he had diſtinguiſh'd himſelf by many Noble Atchievements, was at laſt ſlain; and being opened, his Heart was found hairy. Pauſ. l. 4.

ARISTON, a Stoick Philoſopher, and Diſciple of Zeno, to whoſe Opinion he added ſo much, that he paſſed for the Founder of a new Sect. He held, That the main Scope of Man was to live between Vertue and Vice: That a wiſe Man was like a good Actor, who, whether he play'd a King or a Servant, did very well. He did not value Natural Philoſophy, nor Logick; his only Studies were Morals. He compared Logicians Arguments to Spiders Webs, which ſignifie nothing, though there be a great deal of Artifice in 'em. He liv'd about 480 of Rome. Strab. l. 7.

ARISTON, a King of Lacedæmon, famous for Prudence and Courage: Being told, That it was the Duty of a King to do Good to his Friends, and Evil to his Enemies; he anſwer'd, It was moſt becoming a Prince to preſerve his Friends, and endeavour to gain his Enemies by kind Offices. Another time being ask'd, How many Lacedæmonians he had? he anſwer'd, As many as were neceſſary to repell his Enemies. Underſtanding that there were Funeral Orations made for certain Athenians who fell as fighting valiantly againſt the Lacedæmonians; If the Vanquiſh'd are ſo highly Honour'd, ſays he, What Applauſes do the Victorious deſerve. Plut. in Apophthegm.

ARISTONICUS, Son of Eumenes, by an Epheſian Concubine, diſguſted that Attalus had left his Kingdom of Pergamus to the Romans, raiſed an Army to wreſt it out of their hands, and defeated the Conſul Licinius Craſſus, in the 623d of Rome: But the next year he was taken by Perpenna, ſent to Rome, and ſtrangled in Priſon by order of the Senate. Tit. Liv. l. 59.

ARISTOPHANES, a Greek Comedian, Contemporary with Euripides, Demoſthenes, and Socrates, in the 80th Olympiad: He wrote above 50 Comedies, of which there are but 11 extant. His Hatred againſt Socrates ſufficiently appears in his Plutus, and Comedy of the Clouds, full of Invectives againſt that Philoſopher, and by ſeveral other Satyrs. Plutarch made a little Treatiſe, wherein he compares Menander to Ariſtophanes, and prefers the firſt to the latter, blaming Ariſtophanes for his Smut and Scurrilities. Voſſius.

ARISTOTIMUS, one of the Principal Men of Epirus, and Tyrant of the Chief City of that Country, where he exercis'd his Authority with extraordinary Cruelty, putting ſeveral of the Inhabitants to death, and baniſhing others: Being requeſted by the Ætolians to ſend the Baniſh'd their Wives, denied 'em that Favour at firſt; but upon ſecond Thoughts granted it; and as they were ready to go, he ſtripp'd 'em of all they had of any Value, expos'd them and their Daughters to be Raviſh'd, and cut the Throats of their young Infants. But he was at length ſlain by Hellanicus, after he had Tyranniz'd 5 Months. Vid. Hellanicus.

ARISTOTLE, the Chief of the Peripatetick Philoſophers, was born at Stagyra, a ſmall City of Macedon, in the 99th Olympiad, about 384 before the Birth of Chriſt. It's ſaid, That Nicomachus, his Father, Phyſician to Amyntas, Grandfather to Alexander the Great, deriv'd his Original from Æſculapius. He loſt his Parents in his Infancy, at what time Proxenes, a Friend of his Father's, took care of his Education, but bred him looſly; ſo that he quitted his Studies, and betook himſelf to the Follies of Youth, and, having ſpent moſt of his Eſtate, turn'd Soldier: But that not ſuiting his Temper, he conſulted the Oracle of Delphos what Courſe he ſhould ſteer, and was adviſed to go to Athens and ſtudy Philoſophy. Thither he went, being 18 years old, and ſtudied under Plato till 37; in which time, having ſpent his whole Eſtate, he got his Bread by ſelling Sweet Pouders, and venting ſome Receipts which he had learn'd. He follow'd his Studies with that extraordinary Diligence, that he ſoon ſurpaſs'd all the Great Men in Plato's School. He eat little, and ſlept leſs; and that he might not overſleep himſelf, he is ſaid to have lain with one hand always out of the Bed, having a Ball of Braſs in it, which by its fall into a Baſon of the ſame Metal awak'd him. He converſ'd with a Jew, to inform himſelf of the Sciences and Religion of the Egyptians, and ſo prevented the trouble of travelling into that Country. After Plato's death, he quitted Athens, and retired to Atarnya, a little City of Myſia, where his old Friend Hermyas Reigned, and gave him his Siſter Pythias in Marriage, whom Ariſtotle loved ſo paſſionately, that he offer'd her Sacrifice. About three years after, Hermias being taken by the King of Perſia's General, Ariſtotle retired to Mytelene, the Capital of Lesbos, where he ſtay'd, till Philip of Macedon, hearing of his great Reputation, ſent for him to be Tutor to his Son Alexander, then about 14 years of Age; which Alexander undertook, and in 8 years taught him Rhetorick, Natural Philoſophy, and Ethicks, and a certain ſort of Philoſophy which he taught no body elſe: So that Philip and Olympias erected him Statues, and rebuilt Stagyra for his ſake, which had been almoſt ruined by the Wars. But afterward, loſing Alexander's Favour for adhering to Calliſthenes, his Kinſman, accuſed of a Conſpiracy againſt Alexander's Life, he retired to Athens, where he ſet up his New School, and the Magiſtrates gave him the Lycæum, ſo famous afterwards for the Concourſe of his Diſciples. He was thought to have conſpired againſt Alexander, but without any Foundation, as 'tis believed, becauſe Alexander at the ſame time order'd him to apply himſelf to the Study of Animals, and ſent him for his Encouragement 800 Talents, which amounts to 480000 Crowns, beſides a great number of Fiſhers and Huntſmen, to bring him all ſorts of living Creatures. Being accuſed of Impieties, by a Prieſt of Ceres call'd Eurymedon, he wrote a large Apology for himſelf; but knowing the Athenians to be jealous of their Religion, and being terrified with the hard Uſage which Socrates met with on that account, he retired to Chalcis, a City of Eubœa, where, according to St. Juſtin and St. Gregory Nazianzen, he threw himſelf into the Euripus, becauſe he could not comprehend the Reaſon of its Ebbing and Flowing. A ſecond ſort ſay he poiſon'd himſelf, rather than he would fall into the hands of his Enemies: And a third, That he died of the Colick in the 114th Olympiad, the 432d of Rome, and 63d of his Age, two years after Alexander. The Stagyrites carried away his Body, and erected Altars to his Memory. His Philoſophy did not render him moroſe, for he was gentle, affable, and a good Friend. Being asked one day, What a true Friend was? he anſwer'd, One Soul in two Bodies. He had a Daughter by Pythias, Married to Demaratus King of Lacedæmon, and a Son call'd Nicomachus, whom he loved tenderly, and addreſs'd his Books of Morality to him. Diogenes Laertius adds, That after Ariſtotle had Studied 15 years under Plato, he begun to differ from him in Opinion, which the Old Man reſented to that height, that he call'd him Rebel, and an ungrateful Fellow. He held, That there was a certain Knowledge, or Science, which the Soul learns by the Senſes, as ſo many Meſſengers deſtined to acquaint her with what paſſes abroad: That from the Knowledge of Particulars, by the help of Underſtanding, ſhe form'd certain evident, general Propoſitions, the Foundation of Science: This Method he learn'd of Archytas, who had it of Dexippus; who in his Categories which he form'd, plac'd Subſtance at the Head of all the reſt. But becauſe this Knowledge depends on our Senſes, which are ſubject to Errour, Ariſtotle ſought to find out an infallible Principle, by means of an Univerſal Organ, which is Demonſtration by way of Syllogiſm. Beſides Philoſophy, he writ of Poetry, Rhetorick, Law, &c. to the Number of 400 different Treatiſes, according to Diogenes Laertius; but Francis Patricius of Venice ſays, he wrote 747. He left his Writings with Theophraſtus, his beloved Diſciple and Succeſſor in the Lycæum, and forbad they ſhould be ever publiſh'd: Theophraſtus, at his death, truſted them to Neleus, his good Friend and Diſciple; and he being alſo dead, they were buried in the Ground at Scepſis, a Town of Troas, to ſecure them from the King of Pergamus, who made ſtrict ſearch for Books to embelliſh and augment his Library: Here they lay 160 years, until being almoſt ſpoil'd, they were ſold to a rich Burgeſs of Athens, call'd Apellicon, where Scylla found them when he made himſelf Maſter of that City, and carried them to Rome, where, after ſome time, they were purchaſed by a Grammarian, call'd Tyrannion, whoſe Heirs ſold them to Andronicus of Rhodes. This laſt begun to make our Philoſopher better known; for he not only repair'd what they had loſt by Time and Ill-keeping, but alſo put them in a better Order, and got them Copied: So that there were many that follow'd Ariſtotle's Doctrine in the Reigns of the Twelve Cæſars; and their Number increaſed much under Adrian and Antoninus: Marcus Aurelius and Lucius Verus appointed Alexander of Aphrodiſium to teach the Peripatetick Philoſophy at Rome; and the Learned in ſucceeding Ages commented upon it: Yet the Firſt Doctors of the Church diſapproved this Doctrine, as allowing too much to Reaſon and Senſe, until Anatolius, Biſhop of Laodicea, Didymus of Alexandria, St. Jerome, and St. Auguſtine, appear'd in its Favour. In the 6th Age, Boetius tranſlated Ariſtotle into Latin, and made him known in the Weſt: But from his time to the 8th Century, Joannes Damaſcenus was the only Man that made an Abridgment of his Philoſophy, and wrote any thing of him. The Grecians, in the 11th and following Ages, applied themſelves much to it, as did the Arabians in Africa, who wrote Commentaries upon moſt part of his Works: The Chief Men were Avicenna and Averroes. The Africans brought it into Spain, and the Spaniards into France, where it was taught in the Univerſity of Paris, until Amauri, defending ſome particular Opinions by its Principles, was condemn'd of Hereſie in a Council held there in 1210. And then all Ariſtotle's Works that could be found were burned, and the reading of them forbidden, under pain of Excommunication. This Prohibition was confirm'd, as to the Phyſicks and Metaphyſicks, in 1215. by the Pope's Legate, who gave leave to read his Logick, inſtead of St. Auguſtine's, uſed at that time in the Univerſity: But Albertus Magnus, and Thomas Aquinas, ſoon after wrote Commentaries upon the whole; and the Cardinals, ſent Commiſſioners by Pope Urban V. to reform the Univerſity, in 1366. licenſed all People to read what the others had forbidden; and in 1448. Pope Stephen approved all his Works, and had them tranſlated afreſh into Latin. This Encouragement, with the Emulation of ſome Popiſh Orders and Sects, as the Nominaliſts, Realiſts, Thomiſts, and Scotiſts, occaſioned ſo many Commentaries and particular Explications, that Patricius, in his time, reckons above 12000 Printed Volumes on this Subject, which brought much Diſcredit to the Doctrine of that Great Man. The Univerſity of Paris obliged themſelves, in 1611. to teach no other Philoſophy but Ariſtotle's; and this was confirm'd by Acts of Parliament in 1624, and 1629. John de Launoy's Books of Ariſtotle's Fortune. *Peripateticæ diſcuſſiones Patricii. ARISTOTLE, Battus, King of the Iſland Thera, in the Ægean Sea, and afterwards of Sirene in Libya. He built this Town, and Reign'd there 50 years. Herodot.

ARISTOTYMUS: See Ariſtotimus.

ARISTOXENUS, a Philoſopher of Tarentum, and Diſciple of Ariſtotle, hoped that his Maſter would name him his Succeſſor; but being diſappointed, ſpoke of him always with contempt. He compos'd 453 Pieces of Muſick, Philoſophy, and Hiſtory. His Treatiſe of Harmonick Elements was Printed not long ſince at Oxford. Aul. Gell. l. 4. Cic. St. Jer.

ARIUS, or Thuras, King of the Aſſyrians, ſucceeded Ninias, and ſubdued the Bactrians, a People of Scythia. He began his Reign An. Mund. 2039. and Reigned 30 years. In his time Circumciſion was inſtituted, Sodom and Gomorrha were burnt, and Iſaac was born. Euſeb. Genebr. Suid.

ARKLOW, a Market, Borough, and Sea-Town of Lemſter in Ireland, 12 miles South of Wicklow: It formerly gave Name to a County, and now is a Barony in the County of Wicklow, the Title whereof is enjoy'd by the Duke of Ormond.

ARLES, Lat. Arelatum, an Archiepiſcopal City of Provence, to which Marſeilles, Toulon, St. Paul Trois Chaſteaux, and Orange, are Suffragan, was one of the moſt ancient and famous Cities of the Gauls, and where the Aſſemblies of the Seven Provinces of Viennois, the Firſt and Second Aquitain, Novempopulania, the Two Narbonnoiſes, and the Maritime Alpes, were bound to meet every year, and ſate from the middle of Auguſt to the middle of September. And indeed Arles ſtill retains ſeveral Monuments of its Antiquity and Opulency; as, the Remains of an Amphitheatre, Aqueducts, Columns, and Statues, among the reſt, one of Diana, ſtill to be ſeen in the Town-Houſe. Conſtantine the Great made choice of it for his Reſidence, and the Seat of the Empire of the Gauls. The Viſigoths beſieg'd it in 429. but Aëtius reliev'd it. About the year 513. it was taken by the Franks, who made themſelves Maſters of all the reſt of the Province. In the year 730. the Saracens took it; but it was ſoon recover'd by Charles Martel, and ſo remain'd in the poſſeſſion of the French till 879. that Boſon caus'd himſelf to be declar'd King of Arles, that is, of the Province of Burgundy: And this was the beginning of the Kingdom of Arles. In 1213. Frederick II. granted ſuch particular Privileges to this City, that it declar'd it ſelf a Commonwealth, and was Govern'd by a Chief Magiſtrate, ſtil'd a Podeſtat, by Conſuls, and a Judge. The People elected the Podeſtat, the Archbiſhop nam'd the Conſuls, and the Podeſtat appointed the Judge. But this Republick laſted not above 37 years, being utterly diſſolv'd by Charles I. Count of Provence, in the year 1251. The Fidelity of this City to the Succeſſors of Rodolphus, gain'd it great Advantages, for the Emperors enlarg'd its Privileges from time to time, eſpecially Conrad III. and Frederick I. who in 1167 conſtrain'd the Dukes of Zuringen to quit all their Claims to the Kingdom of Arles, to William de Beaux, Prince of Orange, in 1214. And Raymund, the Son of William, ſurrendred all his Title to Charles I. Count of Provence; under which Counts it remain'd, until at length it was reunited, with the reſt of the Province, to the Crown of France. An. 312. or 314. a Council was held here of African Biſhops, by order of Conſtantine, who came thither in Perſon to take cognizance of the Accuſations againſt Cecilian, Biſhop of Carthage: There were 200 Biſhops there, who made 22 Canons, in ſome of which they condemn'd the Donatiſts: This was 16 years before the General Council of Nice. The Emperor Conſtantius held another here in 354. where the Arians condemn'd St. Athanaſius. In 449. Ravenius, Archbiſhop of this Place, held ſeveral Councils for Reforming of Manners, and the Diſcipline of the Church. In 475. another Council was held here againſt the Predeſtinarians. The firſt of thoſe Councils is Learnedly treated of by Biſhop Stillingfleet, and the fourth by Archbiſhop Uſher. Arles is at this day a very large City, with a fair Cathedral, and 8 Pariſh-Churches, a Royal Academy for Languages and Sciences, confirm'd by the King's Letters Patents in 1669. Nor is the Roman Obelisk one of the meaneſt Ornaments of this City, firſt diſcover'd in the Reign of Charles IX. in a private Garden, but not erected till the year 1677. It's all of one entire piece of Oriental Granite, which is a Stone both harder and more precious than Marble; it's 52 foot high, and 7 foot thick in the Baſis. Gregoire de Tours.

ARLEUX, a little Town in the Netherlands, ſubject to the French, 6 miles S. of Doway, and 8 N. E. of Cambray, in Hainault.

ARLINGTON, a ſmall Village in the middle, between Harlington and Shepeſton, the Birth-place of Henry Bennet, created Baron of Arlington by King Charles II. March 4. 1664. Earl of the ſame, April 22. 1672. Lord Chamberlain of the Houſhold to King Charles II. Septemb. 11. 1674. and died July 28. 1685. He was Son to John Bennet of Arlington, bred at Oxford, and there, during the Civil War, became Under-Secretary to George Lord Digby, Secretary of State; afterwards a Voluntier in the Army, and ſignaliz'd himſelf at Andover. He follow'd King Charles II. beyond Sea, who Knighted him at Bruges, March, 1658. and ſent him Leiger to the Court of Spain: After his return, he was made Privy-Purſe, Principal Secretary of State, Knight of the Garter, and one of the Plenipotentiaries to treat of a Peace betwixt the French King and the States, in 1672. and the Emperor and French King, in 1674.

ARLON, Lat. Arlunum, a City of the Spaniſh Netherlands, in the Dutchy of Luxemburgh, Dignified with the Title of a Marquiſate, in the year 1103. ſeated upon a Hill, where the ancient Inhabitants were wont to adore the Moon, 4 Leagues from Luxemburgh, and 6 from Montmedy. Guicciardin. Lon. 25. 18. Lat. 49. 25.

ARMA, a City and Province of South America, in the Kingdom of Popajan, 25 miles from St. Foy, and 50 from Popajan.

ARMADABAT, a very large and rich City of Aſia, near the Indian Sea, the Metropolis of the Kingdom of Guzarata, and one of the Chief Towns belonging to the Mogul. It is 18 Leagues from Cambay, and 45 North of Surat, thought to be the Barbari of the Ancients. Baudr.

l'ARMADE, a Regiment that keeps Guard at the Gate of the King of Portugal's Palace, and which only has the Privilege of Lodging in the City.

ARMAGH, a County, Barony, and Town of the Province of Ulſter in the North of Ireland. The County is divided into five Baronies, whereof Armagh is one; the Town, miſerably defac'd by Fire in Tir-Owen's Rebellion, ſhews nothing but the Ruins of an ancient City, reduc'd to a few poor Cottages, which hardly preſerve the Reputation of a Market and Borough-Town; and yet it's the Seat of the Primate of all Ireland, call'd Armacha, or Ardinacha. The Primate was ſubject to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, until 1122. that it was exempted by one Papirio, the Pope's Legate. This Place was taken by Oliver Cromwell in 1650. The County is one of the Fruitfulleſt in Ireland. Joſelmus ſays, that St. Patrick Founded Armagh about 445. it's ancient Name being Druin Silogh, i. e. Willow-Grove, and upon his account made Metropolis of Ireland; and according to that Author, was a famous City, until about 848. that it was burn'd by the Danes, being then an Univerſity.

ARMAGNAC, Aremorica, a Country of France in Gaſcoigne, between Bearn, Bigorre, Le Pais de Cominges, Languedoc, and Gutenne: It is extreamly populous and fertile, containing above 14 Cities, and water'd with ſeveral Rivers that fall into the Garonne. It has had its particular Counts, famous in the Hiſtory of France; and there are counted in it above 1800 Fiefs ſubject to the Ban and Arrierban.

ARMAIS, or Armeſes, King of Egypt, and Son of Acencheres XI. It's ſaid he built a Baſon of 3600 Stades, or Furlongs, in compaſs, and 40 Cubits deep, to preſerve the Waters of the Nile in a great Drought. In the middle of this Pond he built a manificent Tomb, and upon this, two high Pyramids, one for himſelf, and the other for his Queen, with two great Statues plac'd each upon a Throne. Authors add, That he gave the Profit of the Fiſh of this vaſt Pond to his Queen, to buy her Eſſences and Pomatums. Joſ. cont. Appion.

ARMAND of Bourbon, Prince of Conti, Knight of the King's Order, Governour of Guienne, and afterwards of Languedoc. His Father Henry II. of that Name, Prince of Conti, deſigning him for the Church, kept him cloſe to his Studies, and procur'd him the Abbeys of St. Denys, Cluni, Lerins, and de Moleme; but he quitted all theſe for the Army. He was made Governour of Guyenne in 1654. afterwards General of the King's Forces in Catalonia, where, in 1655. he took Villefranche, Puycerda, and Chatillon; whereupon he was made Lord Steward of the King's Houſhold, and then diſpatch'd into Italy, to Command the Forces there with the Duke of Modena. He was made Knight of the King's Order in 1662. and died four years after.

ARMELLINO, made Cardinal by Leo X. becauſe he was an excellent Projector for raiſing Money; but ſo extreamly hated by the People for his Taxes and Impoſitions, that in a Conſiſtory call'd by Adrian VI. to raiſe Money for the Neceſſity of the Church, Cardinal Colonna told his Brethren, That if they would flea Armellino, and demand a Quatrino, or Farthing, of all that would be willing to ſee him in that Condition, the Coffers would ſoon be fill'd. He was beſieg'd in the Caſtle of St. Angelo, together with Clement VII. and died of Grief for being plundered of all he had by the Germans. Paul. Jov.

ARMENIA, a large Country of Aſia, moſtly under the Turks: It's uſually divided into Greater and Leſſer; the Greater, now call'd Turcomania and Curdiſtan, was much more famous anciently than now, as having no other Advantages but what Nature has afforded it in its Bounds and Situation; for the whole Armenia is encloſed between Mountains, Rivers, and Seas. To the North lie the Montes Moſchiſi, that ſeparate it from Colchis, Iberia, and Albany, which is generally call'd Georgia: To the South it has the Mountains Taurus and Niphates, which part it from Meſopotamia, or Aſſyria, now call'd Diarbeck: Weſtward the Euphrates divides it from Leſſer Aſia, or Anatolia: The Caſpian Mountains bound it Eaſtward on that ſide next to Media, at this day known by the Name of Servan. There are other Parts of Armenia that lie towards the Caſpian Sea, between Albania and Media; and others towards Pontus Euxinus, or the Black Sea; and therefore ſome Geographers extend the Bounds of Armenia as far as thoſe Seas. The Cities of Curdiſtau, or Turcomania, are Erzerum, Cars, Van Shildir, Teflis, Revan, Derbent, &c. of which ſome belong to the King of Perſia. The Leſſer Armenia, now call'd Aladuli, or, according to others, Pegian, is entirely under the Turk: The principal City of this Country is Maraz. There is alſo Savas, or Sebaſta, and ſome others, which are uſually placed in Anatolia, or Aſia the Leſs. Armenia is full of Valleys, Lakes, and Rivers. The Mountains of Anti-Taurus cuts it from Eaſt to Weſt. The Air is wholeſom, tho' ſomewhat cold by reaſon of the Mountains: They have abundance of Fruit and Corn, but little Wine: There is alſo Bole Armene, Amomum, which is a kind of odoriferous Shrub, Honey, Silk, and Silver-Mines towards Servan. The Paſture is very good, eſpecially for Horſes. It was upon the Mountains of this Country that the Ark reſted; and ſome will have Paradiſe to have been alſo here. The Armenians are a good ſort of People, ſatisfied with a very little; many of them induſtrious, and great Traders in Aſia and Europe. This Country was formerly ſubject to the Perſians, and afterwards to the Macedonians; yet it has had ſome Kings of its own, whereof Tigranes, the Firſt, and moſt conſiderable, ſided with his Father-in-Law Mithridates againſt the Romans, but was at laſt forced to hold his Crown of them. The Armenians, in the following Ages, pay'd Homage to the Emperors of Conſtantinople, until 1515. that they were utterly Conquer'd by Selim the Turkiſh Emperor. Ricaut Hiſt. of the Turkiſh Empire.

The Apoſtle St. Bartholomew Preach'd the Goſpel in Armenia, and the Number of the Faithful increaſed conſiderably in the following Ages; ſo that in the Fourth Century their Church flouriſhed under their Biſhop Gregory, when not only the Clergy, but alſo Laicks and Virgins ſuffer'd for the True Faith. About the end of this ſame Age it was perſecuted by the Arians. It withdrew it ſelf from the Patriarchs of Conſtantinople in the Ninth Age, and ſeparated quite from the Greek Church, having now two Patriarchs of their own; one in the Greater, the other in the Leſſer Armenia: The firſt reſided generally at Sebaſte, but now lives in the Monaſtery of Etchemiazin near Ervan: The ſecond, that formerly kept his See at Melilene, lives now at Sis, near Tarſis in Cilicia. The Armenians held, That the Holy Ghoſt proceeded from the Father alone, mix'd no Water with the Wine in the Chalice, and gave the Communion to little Children: They denied that the Sacraments conferr'd Grace; as alſo Purgatory, tho' they pray'd for the Dead, and imagin'd that there was no Enjoyment of Glory until after the General Reſurrection. Their Monks and other Clergy live ſingle, and obſerve two or three very rigorous Lents in the year. Father Galanus a Theatin, in his Book Printed at Rome, An. 1650. adds to this former account, That the Armenians affirm St. Jude and St. Thaddæus, were Apoſtles of that Country, as well as St. Bartholomew, who, they ſay, were put to death by King Sanatrug: That their firſt King, who believed in Chriſt, was Abagarus of Edeſſa, or Upper Syria. He adds, That they follow Eutyches's Doctrine, and hold that there is neither a Paradiſe for Saints, nor Hell for the Damn'd, till after the laſt Judgment; but that the Souls of all deceas'd expect that Day, all in one Place, where the Juſt have Joy in their Hope of Bliſs, and the Bad ſuffer in foreſeeing their certain Damnation. Some there are amongſt them, who believe that our Saviour deſcended into Limbus Patrum, and deſtroy'd Hell, and that Damnation conſiſts only in being deprived of God. They keep Chriſt's Birth and Epiphany on the 6th of January, which they ſay was our Saviour's Birth-day; and that he was Baptized on that ſame Day of the Month, the 30th year of his Age: They deny the Pope's Supremacy, admit but One Nature in Chriſt, compos'd of Humane and Divine, without any mixture. Their Reſpect for Doctors and Maſters is very great, becauſe they think their Dignity repreſents that of Jeſus Chriſt call'd Rabbi; for they prefer them to Biſhops, and allow them greater Privileges. The Patriarchs ſay, The Ignorance of theſe latter forced them to it; and that this ſhould not ſeem ſtrange, ſeeing that in the Chuach of Rome, ſome Cardinals, who are neither Prieſts nor Deacons, precede Archbiſhops and Patriarchs. Some of the Armenians own the Church of Rome, and were united to the ſame at Caminieck in 1666. having a particular Patriarch of their own. And Popiſh Authors ſay, That there was an Union in 1036. when Maximus their Patriarch, with the Biſhops of Media and Perſia, aſſiſted at the Council of Jeruſalem. But this Union hath been ſeveral times renewed and broken. They add, That in 1552. ſome of them ſeparated from the Patriarch of Babylon, and choſe another, who ſubmitted to Pope Julius III. and that the Succeſſor of this Patriarch aſſiſted at the Council of Trent: But ſince that time, they have again ſubmitted to the Patriarch of Babylon. Strabo, Juſtin, Euſeb. Spond. Scalig. Petav. Le Mire.

AMENTIERS ſur le Lys, in Lat. Armentariæ, a City of Flanders, 3 Leagues from L'Iſle, 3 from Ypres, and 4 from Baſſe: It has been often taken and retaken in this laſt Age. The Archduke, Governour of the Low Countries, in 1647. took it from the French; who not long after, became Maſters of it again, and ſtill are in poſſeſſion of it, by the Treaty of Aix la Chapelle. It's conſiderable for its Linnen Manufactury and Trade.

ARMIERS, a Town of Hainault in the Low Countries, ſubject to the French; it ſtands on the Sambre, 8 Miles S. W. of Maubeuge, and 15 S. of Mons. Lon. 23. 6. Lat. 52. 4.

ARMINIUS, General of the Cheruſci, a People of Lower Germany, revolted from the Romans about the 9th year of Chriſt; ſurpriz'd and defeated Varus in Weſtphalia, not far from Paderborn, and cut off three Roman Legions; but was afterwards routed by Germanicus, whoſe Soldiers he endeavoured to debauch; and, laſtly, killed by his own Followers, for affecting a Kingly Government. Tacitus extols him, both for his Generoſity and Courage. Tacit.

ARMINIUS, (James) Head of the Perſuaſion of the Arminians, or Remonſtrants; born at Oudewater upon the Yſſel, a Town of Holland, in the year 1560. He ſtudied at Utrecht firſt, and afterwards at Marpurgh in the Country of Heſſe; from whence returning to Holland, he was ſent to Geneva, and was Beza's Scholar. He was ſome little time at Baſil, and travell'd from thence to Padua, to hear Zabarella, who profeſs'd Philoſophy in that City. His ſtay in Italy was not many Months, from whence he travell'd back into Holland, and was made a Miniſter at Amſterdam; and ſome time after, Divinity-Profeſſor in the Univerſity of Leyden; Here it was that he ſet up that which ſome People call the New Doctrine, concerning Predeſtination, tho' it had been held before by Melanchton, Nicholaus Hemingius, and many other Divines. He held, That Predeſtination did not conſiſt in any abſolute and irreſpective eternal Decree of ſaving ſome Perſons, which God had not then ſo much as decreed to create; which was Beza's Opinion; Neither upon the ſuppoſition of Creation, and the Fall of Adam, to ſave ſome particular Perſons, without any antecedent Reſpect to our Saviour, as the Brethren of Delft believed: But his Scheme of Predeſtination was, That all thoſe were predeſtinated to be ſaved, who being in a lapſed

Condition, ſhould reſign themſelves to the Call of God Almighty, believe in our Saviour, and live up to the Terms of the Goſpel. Gomarus, who died Profeſſor of Groningen, was then at Leyden, where they wrote one againſt another. Arminius publiſh'd ſeveral Tracts to defend his Opinion, as Declaratio Jac. Arminii ; Examen Libelli Perkinſii de Prædeſtinationis modo & ordine ; Analyſis Cap. 9. ad Romanos ; Diſſertatio de vero ſenſu Cap. 7. ad Romanos, &c. He died An. 1609. in the 49th year of his Age. He was a Perſon of conſiderable Learning, very Regular in his Life, and Obliging in his Converſation. His Doctrine was condemn'd afterwards in the Synod of Dort, and ſome of the Principal Perſons ſeiz'd, who would have had it tolerated : John Barnevelt, Penſioner of Holland, was put to death upon this account, in 1619. Hugo Grotius was impriſon'd in the Caſtle of Lovenſtein, where a great many other Arminian Miniſters were confined : But no Rigours and Severities whatever, could fright Arminius's Party from their Doctrine, or prevent their meeting together. At preſent their Religion is tolerated all over Holland. Spondanus in Annal. Meurſius, Ath. Batav. Arminius de Clar. Sententiæ, p. 95, 96, &c.

ARMIRO, Eretria, a Sea-Port, and City of Theſſalia, mention'd by Livy, Strabo, Thucydides, Polybius, and Stephanus : It lies upon the Sinus Pelagicus, which from it now is call'd the Gulph of Armiro, 17 Engliſh miles from Lariſſa to the South. Out of this Gulph the Argonauts looſed, when they went to Colchis for the Golden Fleece ; and in it the Navy of Xerxes was ſorely ſhatter'd by a Tempeſt, which then ſaved Greece. In the ſame Bay, or Gulph, lies Volo, Demetrias, and Pagaſe ; in which laſt, the Ship Argo was built. Ptolem. Long. 51. 00. Lat. 38. 50.

ARMLEDER, a Captain that headed a great Number of Peaſants in Germany, who maſſacred all the Jews they could meet with, becauſe a Jew ran a Penknife into a conſecrated Hoſt. After they had plunder'd and baniſh'd the Jews, they fell upon the Chriſtians, until the Emperor, Lewis of Bavaria, cauſed their Leader to be ſeiz'd, and put to death. This happen'd in 1338. Boſquet in Vita Bened. 12. Sponde, A. C. 1331.

ARMORICA, Bretaigne in France, anciently ſo call'd; but the Word in the Gaulick, originally ſignifies Maritime, and may take in all thoſe Parts under the Second Lyonnois, bordering upon the Sea.

ARMS, or Coats of Arms, Marks of Nobility and Honour, compos'd of Figures, Metals, and Colours, repreſented in Eſcutcheons, for the diſtinction of Perſons and Families. Theſe were not uſed before the 10th or 11th Age ; for the Tombs of Princes and Noblemen dead before that time, are obſerved to have none at all : The moſt ancient to be ſeen are ſimple Croſſes with Gothick Inſcriptions. Tho' this is the Common Opinion, That Coats of Arms begun to be made uſe of about the time of the firſt Croiſade ; and that the ſeveral Marks of Diſtinction which the Princes and Noblemen of that League wore, gave occaſion to their uſe : Yet ſome will have them to be of a much longer ſtanding ; for Favin, in his Theatre of Honour, ſays, That the Offspring of Seth made uſe of the Figures of divers natural Things, as Fruit, Plants, and Beaſts, in their Arms, to diſtinguiſh them from the Deſcendants of Cain ; and that the Children of Cain had for their Coats of Arms, the Figure of the different Inſtruments they uſed in their ſeveral Mechanical Employments. Others will have Coats of Arms to have been uſed at leaſt when the Iſraelites came out of Egypt, becauſe it's ſaid in the Book of Numbers, Ch. 2 That God's People encamped by Tribes or Families, diſtinguiſh'd from each other by their Colours and Standards : And hence ſome will have theſe 12 Tribes to have repreſented the Signs of the Zodiack, and for their Coats of Arms aſſign them the Images of theſe Conſtellations. This Subject is ſo Noble, that it will not be amiſs to mark the chief Cauſes and Occaſions of chuſing the different Colours and Things repreſented in Coats of Arms : The moſt conſiderable are the Name, ſome remarkable Actions, Dignities, and Officees, the Croiſades, Devices, and ſymbolick Alluſions. Lewis the Young, the firſt King of France that took the Lilies, is ſaid to have taken them becauſe Lys ſounds ſomewhat like his Name : Others ſay, it's becauſe that Prince was call'd Ludovicus Florus. The three Martins, in the Arms of the Houſe of Lorrain, is in memory of the three which Godfrey of Bouillon ſpitted upon one Arrow, as they ſate upon a Tower of the Walls of Jeruſalem, when he laid a Siege to it. Cupbearers, Carvers, &c. took the Cup and Knife in their Arms, as Marks of their Office. The Towns which croſs'd themſelves for the Popes, during their Wars with the Germans, took the Croſs, and retain it ſtill in their Arms. The Arms of the States of Holland, being of the lateſt, are very remarkable, viz. Seven Arrows in a Lion's Paw, repreſenting the Seven United Provinces, and a Sword, denoting the Arms they took in their own Defence : They alſo put a Hat upon this Lion in the beginning, to ſhew their Liberty ; and have Crowned him ſince, as a ſign of their Sovereignty. As for ſymbolick Alluſions, Lions were given to the Courageous and Valiant, and the Eagle to the Sagacious and great Wits. The Town of Orleans gives three Hearts of Lilies for its Arms, to ſhew the Cordial Love it bears France. St. Maloes has Dogs, alluding to the Dogs that Guard it, &c. Pere Menetrier Origine des Armiries.

ARMSTRODER, (Sir Robert) lived in the Reign of King Charles I. and was a skilful Antiquary, and a noted Soldier ; brought off 500 Engliſh-men from 6000 Spaniards, for 3 Leagues together, croſs a long Plain, without the loſs of one Man, tho' they might have ſurrounded him at pleaſure. Being a Man of good Diſcourſe, that could Droll well, and Drink hard, he was ſent to Denmark, where he no ſooner arrived, but he went to wait on the King, and begg'd a quick Diſpatch : The King, pleas'd with his Good Humour, order'd his Buſineſs to be diſpatch'd that Night, and him to be ſent aboard when aſleep. Amaz'd at it when he awak'd, he preſently made his way for England, whither he return'd before it could be well ſuppoſed he was landed in Denmark. To him, and Sir Henry Wotton, we owe the Art of making Tapiſtry here in England, brought over hither by Klein a German.

ARNAY le Duc, Arnæum Ducum, a ſmall City of Burgundy in Auxois, about 5 or 6 Leagues from Autun, pleaſantly ſeated, where the Bailiff of Auxois ſometimes keeps his Seat.

ARNEDE, a Town of the Southern America upon the Pacifick Sea in Peru, with a pretty good Haven.

ARNHEIM, Arenacum; a City of Guelderland in the Low Countries, ſeated upon the Rhine, in the poſſeſſion of the Hollanders, large, well fortified, and populous. Otho IV. Duke of Gueldres, order'd it to be made a Place of Strength and Defence. Charles V. ſettled there in 1543. the Council of Gueldres and Zutphen. The Hollanders took it in 1585. However, it's ſtill the Place where the Chancellor and Governour of Guelderland reſides, as being the Chief Town of the fourth Quarter of that Dutchy, two Leagues from Nimeguen, and as many from Doesburgh. It was taken by the French in 1672. but ſoon after quitted. Long. 27. 20. Lat. 32. 2.

ARNHEMII Regio, t'Land van Arnheimd, a part of the Terra Auſtralis, lately diſcover'd by the Hollanders, upon the Coaſt of Auchidol, South of New Guinea, between Carpentaria and the Region of Concord.

ARNHUSIA, Arnhuſen, a little City of Germany in the Lower Pomerania, under the Duke of Brandenburgh, near the River Riga, four Leagues from Colberg and the Baltick Sea.

ARNO, Lat. Arnus, a River of Tuſcany in Italy, which riſes near the Fountains of Tiber, and runs betwixt Piſa and Florence : It's Navigable as far as the latter.

ARNOBIUS the Elder, an African, who flouriſh'd about 297. He taught Rhetorick at Sicca, a City of Numidia, and was Lactantius's Maſter. He turn'd Chriſtian in the Reign of Diocleſian ; and to evidence the Sincerity of his Converſion, writ Seven Books againſt the Gentiles before he was Baptized, the ſlight Errors whereof are the more pardonable, becauſe writ before he was well grounded in the Chriſtian Faith. Poſſev. Le Mire, Bellarm.

ARNOBIUS the Younger, writ of Unity, the Trinity, Concord of Grace, and Free-will, by way of Dialogue between him and Serapion, wherein he affirms the Writings of St. Auſtin to be of equal Authority with thoſe of the Apoſtles. He flouriſh'd in the 5th Century, after the Council of Chalcedon, about the year 460. Bellarmin, Poſſev.

ARNOLD, Lord of Andilli, (Robert) born at Paris in 1589. of a Noble and Ancient Family of Auvergne, appear'd at Court very young, and was employ'd in the moſt important Affairs of State : His known Integrity made his Prince, with whom he was very free, take no exception at any thing he ſaid, and conſent to moſt things he deſired for his Friends or others. At laſt, weary of the World, quitted this Intereſt at Court at 55 years of Age, and retired to the Convent of Port-Royal des Champs, where his Mother, ſix of his Siſters, and five of his own Daughters, were Nuns. It was here he compoſed his fam'd Works, and finiſh'd his excellent Tranſlations, Printed in Eight Volumes in Folio. He died in 1674. the 86 year of his Age. Arnold de Pomponne, his Son, was Ambaſſador in Sweedland, and whilſt there, choſen Secretary of State by Lewis XIV. Thuan. S. Marthe, Godeau.

ARNOLD de Mechtal, of the Canton of Underwal in Switzerland, who, to be reveng'd on Lundenberg, Governour of that Province for the Emperor, who had put out his Father Henry's Eyes, join'd himſelf with Wernher Stauffacher of the Canton of Switz, and Walter Furſtius of the Canton of Uri, in order to throw off the Imperial Yoke ; and accordingly, in the year 1307. effected their Deſign, and laid the Foundation of Liberty, each for his ſeveral Canton. Simler.

ARNOLD de Villa Nova, a Catalonian, the moſt famous Phyſician of his time. He wrote againſt the Church of Rome, and was therefore condemn'd by Clement V. and his Inquiſitors, for an Aſtrologer, a Magician, and an Heretick. He died in 1309. Vander Linden, Spond.

ARNOLD de Breſcia: He affirm'd, That Lands and Eſtates belong'd not to the Clergy, but only to the Laity; That Rome was to be reſtored to her ancient Liberty, by the Expulſion of the Pope and Cardinals. Upon which he was much careſs'd and follow'd by a Company of Libertines, who are generally ready to ſeize the Patrimony of the Church, and abet the Doctrines of Sacrilege: This erroneous Opinion raiſed great Commotions in Italy, which were ſuppreſs'd by the Arms of the Government: And Arnold being at laſt delivered up, was firſt hanged, and then burnt. He alſo maintain'd ſome Errors in the Sacrament of Baptiſm. He was executed Anno 1155. Otho Friſingen, l. 2. de Reb. Geſt. Fr. Platina, Onuphrius, Genebrard.

ARNON, a River, having its Source in the Mountains of Arabia, and paſſing through the whole Deſart, falls into the Lake Aſphaltites, dividing the Moabites from the Amorites; which was very difficult to paſs, becauſe it abounds with Stones; tho' God made it eaſie to the Iſraelites, as may be gather'd from Numb. 21. 14. where it is mention'd what he did in the Red Sea, and at the Brooks of Arnon.

ARNOTS, People of Albany, upon the Eaſtern Coaſts of the Gulph of Venice; they are a kind of Vagabonds that have no ſettled Habitations. The Albanois, that live in the Iſle of Nio, in the Archipelago, towards Europe, are alſo call'd Arnots.

ARNSBERG, a County of Germany in Weſtphalia, with its Chief Town of the ſame Name, having Paderborn on the E. March on the N. and W. and Weſterwald on the S. formerly ſubject to Counts of its own, but now to the Biſhop of Cologne. Baudr.

ARNSBURG, a ſmall City, Capital of the Iſle of Oeſel in the Baltick Sea, ſubject to the King of Sweden: It's defended with a ſtrong Caſtle.

ARNSTADT, a ſmall Town in Germany on the River Gera in Thuringioman, 3 German Leagues S. of Erford, and ſomewhat more from Gotha. It's the uſual Reſidence of the Counts of Schwartzenburg. Baudr.

ARNULPH, King of Bavaria, and Son of Carloman by a Miſtreſs of his nam'd Litovinda, Elect Emperor of the Weſt in 888. when Guy Duke of Spoleto, and others, aſſum'd the ſame Title in Italy. He ſuppreſs'd the Sclavonians, aſſigning them Moravia by Treaty; which being broke on their part, he totally rooted them out. After that, he expell'd the Normans, and haraſs'd Lorrain, which he had given to his Son Zenebald: Thence marching to aſſiſt Pope Formoſus in Italy, againſt Lambert, Son of Guido, Duke of Spoleto, he join'd with Berengarius, Duke of Friuli, and took Bergamo, and Rome it ſelf, where he was Crown'd by Formoſus in 896. and in a few days after beſieg'd Spoleto; but being poiſon'd by one of his Servants, at the inſtigation of Guido's Lady, his Body was ſo infected, that returning into Germany, he died of the Louſie Diſeaſe, Nov. 14. 899. Luitprand.

ARNULPH the Wicked, Duke of Bavaria: He flouriſh'd about 930. He was ſo barbarouſly Cruel, that he gloried in ſacrificing every thing to his Paſſion and Intereſt. About 920. he call'd in the Hungarians to pillage Franconia and Thuringia, and was always at War with his Neighbours: But going into Italy about 932. at the Perſuaſion of Rathier, Biſhop of Verona, he was defeated by King Hugo: After which, returning into Germany, he was kill'd upon the Sacking of Augsburg. Baronius, Sigonius, Bertius.

ARNULPH the Great, Count of Flanders, ſucceeded his Father Baldwin II. about 917. a Daring and Courageous Prince: He kill'd, or at leaſt was preſent when William Longſword, Duke of Normandy, was murdered, whom he ſent for, under pretence of a Conference, near Pequigni on the Somme, in 943. His Hatred towards him proceeded from the taking of Montrevil by the French. He died in 963. aged 92. Sigebert, Flodoard.

ARNULPH, Biſhop of Mets, from whom were deſcended the Kings of France of the ſecond Race, was conſiderable for his Birth, Employments, and great Parts: He had the Care of ſix Royal Houſes under Theodebert II. King of Auſtraſia; afterwards his Wife Dodé dying, or, as ſome think, withdrawing into a Nunnery, he was choſen Biſhop of Mets, after Papolus Clotair II. perſuaded him to keep in with his eldeſt Son Dagobert, to whom he had given the Kingdom of Auſtraſia; but the love of Solitude, and a retired Life, made him quit the Court and his Biſhoprick, to live in the Deſarts of Voſge with St. Romaric, which was a little before Clotair's death, in 628, or 29. It's not known what year Arnulph died in: He left by his Wife Dodé, Clodulfe, who was afterwards Biſhop of Mets, and Anchiſe, Father of Pepin Heriſtel, Ch. Martel's Father. S. Marth. Valois, Annal. Franc.

ARNULPH, Biſhop of Lizieux, lived in the 12th Age, and ſucceeded his Unkle John in that See, An. 1141. This Prelate was much eſteem'd by Pope Alexander III. whoſe part he took againſt the Schiſmaticks; and by Henry II. of England, whom he viſited to make up the difference between him and Thomas of Becket, Archbiſhop of Canterbury; but without ſucceſs. He reſented the Archbiſhop's Death very much, and wrote ſomething concerning it that diſpleaſed K. Henry; whereupon he retired to the Abbey of St. Victor Lez. where he died in 1182. S. Marthe, Bellarmin, Poſſevin, Le Mire, &c.

ARNULPH, a Magician of Egypt, who deluded a great many by his Charms and Inchantments: He came to Rome, and commonly kept at the Court of the Emperor Marcus Aurelius Antoninus. Dion writes, That he occaſion'd the Defeat of the Germans in 174. by a Rain that he cauſed, in invoking Mercury, and the other Dæmons of the Air. But Xiphilin ſays this is not true; and that the Glory of that marvellous Succeſs was altogether due to the Legion of the Chriſtians, then call'd Melitine, and after that Battel, Fulminant. Tertul. Euſeb. l. 5. Hiſt. c. 5.

ARNULPH of Weſel, a Town in the Dutchy of Cleves, Canon and Doctor of Divinity at Cologne; a Perſon of Note in the 16th Century: He was skill'd in the Languages, and wrote ſeveral Tracts; as Epitome Magiſtri Sententiarum; Confeſſio quadruplex ſuper Confeſſione Auguſtana; Partitiones Locorum Communium Religionis Chriſtianæ, &c. He died in the year 1534. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg. Mireus de Script. 16. ſæc.

ARNULPH of Lens, or Lenci, in Hainault, a famous Phyſician and Mathematician: His Iſagoge in Geometrica Elementa Euclidis, was Printed at Antwerp in the year 1565. Voſſ. de Scient. Mathem. cap. 57. ſec. 17. Valer. Andr. Bibl. Belg.

AROE, or Arren, a ſmall Iſland in the Baltick, belonging to the King of Denmark: It has one Town, call'd Copen, and depends on the Dutchy of Sleſwick.

AROER, one of the Cities mention'd in the Word Arnon, was call'd Rabbath Moab, it being the Capital City of that Nation; but loſing it to Seon, King of the Amorites, before the Children of Iſrael came up to it, it fell to the Children of Gad. Near it Jephthah overthrew the Ammonites, Numb. 21. 22, 23.

AROMAIA, a Province of South-America in New-Andaluſia, near the mouth of the River Orinoque, and adjoining to the Country of the Caribbes.

ARON Rachid, the 19th Caliph, or Succeſſor of Mahomet, Elected in 792. who not contented with the Tribute which Mahomet Mehedi his Predeceſſor had conſented to take, broke with the Empreſs Irene, and waſted ſeveral Provinces of her Empire; but was the next year forced to accept the ſame Tribute, that he might have leiſure to quell two Factions in Perſia, then grown to a Head, viz. the Sects of Abubequer and Hali. In 801. he again refuſed the Emperor Nicephorus's Tribute, and ravag'd all Romania; but afterwards made a Truce with him, upon Condition of 30000 Byzantines of Gold per Annum. At laſt Nicephorus, diſdaining the Perfidiouſneſs of Aron, who had ſo often broke his Word, took the Field, and recover'd all he had loſt before. Whereupon Aron ſent an Army to haraſs Romania, with the Iſlands of Cyprus and Rhodes, and at laſt died in Perſia, An. 814. Marmol.

ARONA, a ſmall City of Italy in Milanois, upon the Lake call'd Lago Maggiore, belonging to the Family of the Borromei, remarkable for the Birth of Cardinal Charles Borromeo, Archbiſhop of Milan; fortified with a ſtrong Caſtle, and very Populous.

ARONCE, or Aruns, Grandchild of Tarquinius Priſcus, King of Rome, Brother to Tarquin the Proud: Servius Tullius, that ſucceeded Tarquinius Priſcus, married his Daughter Tarquinia, by whom he had two Daughters; the eldeſt of a mild and virtuous Temper, the other cruel and ambitious: He married theſe two to his Nephews; the beſt-condition'd to Tarquin, a haughty, furious, and paſſionate Spark; and Tullia, the cruel and ambitious, to Aronce. The mild Temper counterbalanced Paſſion for ſome time; but at laſt Nature join'd what Fortune had ſeparated; for Tarquin not being able to ſuffer a mild Humour that check'd his Pride, and the furious Tullia being weary of living with Aronce, becauſe he valued no Greatneſs but what was Juſt and Virtuous, poiſon'd the other two to come together. This happen'd in the 216th year of Rome. Tit. Liv. Dionyſius Halicarnaſſæus.

AROSEN, or Weſteras, Lat. Aroſia, a City of Sweedland, the Capital of the Province of Weſtimania, with a Fortreſs upon the Lake Meler, near which there are Silver Mines. Here it was that Guſtavus I. afterwards King of Sweden, defeated Chriſtiern II. of Denmark in 1521. and in 1540. having ſummon'd the States to meer at this Place, he caus'd the Kingdom to be declar'd Hereditary, which was before Elective. This Town is a Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Upſal.

ARO T and Marot, two Angels feign'd by Mahomet to be ſent from God, to admoniſh Men to abſtain from Murder, falſe Judgments, and all manner of Exceſs; adding, That a handſom Woman having invited them to Dinner, made 'em drink plentifully; and being heated therewith, they attempted her to Folly, to which ſhe made ſemblance as if ſhe would yield, on condition, that they ſhould teach her the Words by virtue whereof they aſcended to Heaven: Which being done, ſhe retracted her Promiſe, and was immediately ſnatch'd up thither; where having told her ſtory to God, ſhe was turn'd into the Morning-Star, or Lucifer. And hence it was, ſays Mahomet, that God forbad the Uſe of Wine. Alcoran.

AROW, a Free City of the Canton of Bern, in the Country of Argow, between Olten and Biberſtien, upon the River Aar, whence it takes its Name; The Place where the Proteſtant Cantons hold their Dyets, as the Roman Catholicks do at Bern. Stumpf. Hiſt. de Swiſſe.

ARPAIA, formerly call'd Caudium, near to which are the Furcæ Caudinæ, now call'd Straito d'Arpaia, being a Paſſage betwixt two Mountains, where not above two Perſons can paſs a-breſt, famous for the imprudent Conduct of T. Veturius, and S. P. Poſthumius, who having unadviſedly brought their Army into that Paſs, they were beſieged by the Samnites, and obliged to ſurrender on theſe diſgraceful Conditions, That they ſhould paſs by Couples through a Yoke compoſed of two Pikes, croſs'd with a third a-top, without Arms, their Hands tied behind their Backs, and bare Headed; whence that of Lucan:

> —— Romana quæ Samnis,
> Ultra caudinas ſperavit vulnera furcas.
> Tit. Liv. Lucan.

ARPAJON, the Eldeſt Barony of Rovergue, a Province of France, erected into a Dutchy in 1651.

ARPENTRAS, formerly a City, now a Village call'd Vidy, upon the Lake Leman, below the City of Lauſanne. A Countryman plowing in the adjoining Fields, An. 1629. turn'd up the Effigies of a Braſs Bull, together with that of the Sacrificer; and there are commonly found Medals, broken Bricks and Tiles, which ſhew it to have been a City, or at leaſt a Town of greater Note than now it is. Plantin.

ARPHAXAD, Son of Sem, born the ſecond Year after the Flood, and 1659 after the Creation. He liv'd 438 years, and is thought to have given Name to that part of Aſſyria, call'd Arphaxitis, which Ptolemy calls Arrapachitis.

ARPINO, a Caſtle with a Town call'd Santo Dominico, belonging to the Terra di Lavoro, in the Kingdom of Naples, bordering upon St. Peter's Patrimony. Anciently a City call'd Arpinum, in the Poſſeſſion of the Volſci, where Caius Marius, Seven times Conſul of Rome, was born, and therefrom Sirnam'd Arpinas.

ARQUES, a Borough of France in Normandy, two miles from Dieppe, memorable for the Victory obtain'd there by Henry IV. Sept. 21. 1589. where he routed the Duke of Main's Army, conſiſting of above 30000 Men, with only 500 Horſe, 1200 French Foot, and 2000 Swiſſes.

ARQUES, by others call'd Arc, a Borough of France, near the Meuſe, in the Dutchy of Barr, the Place (as is ſuppoſed) where Joan of Arc, or the Maid of Orleans was born, in the Reign of Charles VII.

ARRACAN, or Arracaon, a City of India, ſeated in the Peninſula, on the farther ſide of the Ganges, upon the River Martaban, ſix miles from the Sea, and the Metropolis of a Kingdom of the ſame Name. The King of Arracan is very powerful. He and the King of Tangu in this Age ruin'd him of Pegu.

ARRAN, the Iſlands of Arran, ſo we call three Iſlands that lie in the Weſt of Ireland, at the Entrance of the Bay of Galloway, the biggeſt whereof is call'd Killenoy, the next to it Kiltronon, and the third Shere. Theſe were made an Earldom in 1661. in favour of Richard the ſecond Son to James Duke of Orm d.

ARRAN, Ar nia, an Iſland in the Weſt of Scotland, lying betwixt Cantyr on the Weſt, Argyle on the North, and Guningham on the Eaſt. It is ſituated 24 miles from Ailze to the Northward, is 24 miles long, and 16 broad, and ſo full of craggy Mountains, that only the Sea-Coaſts thereof are inhabited; where it is loweſt the Sea breaks into it, and makes a great Bay, the Entrance whereof is ſhut in by the Iſland call'd Lamlach, which together with the height of the Mountains breaking the force of the Wind, makes it a very ſafe Harbour; ſo that the Waters being here perpetually calm, there is ſuch plentiful Fiſhing, that if the Inhabitants catch more Fiſh than what will ſerve them for one Day, they throw 'em again into the Sea, as into a Fiſh-Pond, to be taken out thence at pleaſure. This Iſland is noted for giving Title of Earl to the Duke of Hamilton's Eldeſt Son.

ARRAS, a Town of the Low-Countreys, Capital of Artois, with a Biſhop's See Suffragan to Cambray. This is a Rich and Trading Town. Lewis XI. of France made himſelf Maſter of it in 1493. but reſtor'd it to the Emperor Maximilian. Afterwards the Mareſchals of Chaune, Chatillon, and Milleraye, laid Siege to, and carried it in 1640. after they had defeated the Cardinal Infanta that came to Relieve the Place. The Spaniards ſate before it in 1654. but were beat off with great loſs, ſo that it ſtill belongs to the French, who made its Fortifications very ſtrong and regular. Guichardin deſcription du Pais bas.

ARRIANS, a ſort of Hereticks, ſo nam'd from Arrius their firſt Founder. They denied the three Perſons in the Trinity to be of the ſame Eſſence, and affirm'd the Word to be a Creature, and that there was a time when he was not, &c. Being condemn'd by the Council of Nice in 325. they notwithſtanding proceeded in ſpreading abroad their falſe Doctrines, and having allur'd to their Party the Sons of Conſtantine the Great, the Goths, and Lombards, with a great many Biſhops, they perſecuted Athanaſius in the Eaſt, Hilarius in the Weſt, and held divers Councils: One at Antioch in the Preſence of Conſtantine, where they compos'd a new Form of Faith, abrogated the Acts of the Nicene Council, depos'd Athanaſius, and ſet up George of Cappadocia in his Place. They were afterwards condemn'd by the Synod of Sardica, which confirmed that of Nice, and reſtored Athanaſius, which ſo incenſed them, that they ſet up an Anti-Synod at Philippopolis, and expell'd Athanaſius a ſecond time. A third Synod was held at Milan to confirm the Arrian Hereſie, and the Condemnation of Athanaſius, but they only ſent Hilarius, Liberius, and Hoſius, into Exile. Beſides Arrians, they were call'd Exoucontii, becauſe they held that Chriſt was created, ȣ̓κ ὄντων, out of things which had no being. In their Doxologies they aſcribed the Glory to the Father through the Son in the Holy Ghoſt, not, to the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt. They alſo baptized Converts, ſprinkling their upper Parts as low as their Navle. At laſt, falling out among themſelves, they were quite ſuppreſs'd by the Laws of Theodoſius. The Arrian Principles, according to Spanheim, were, That Chriſt was only called God, by way of Title; That he was leſs than the Father, even on account of the Godhead, nor was he Conſubſtantial with the Father, who was only Eternal and without beginning; That he was a Creature, having a Beginning of Exiſtence, created out of Things, having no Being before the beginning of all Things; hence he was made God, and the Son of God by Adoption, not by Nature; and that the Word was alſo ſubject to Change; That the Father created all things by him as an Inſtrument; and that he was the moſt Excellent of all Creatures; That the Eſſence of the Father was different from the Eſſence of the Son, neither was he Coeternal, Coequal, nor Conſubſtantial with the Father; That the Holy Ghoſt was not God, but the Creature of the Son, begot and created by him, inferior in Dignity to the Father and Son, and Co-worker in the Creation. The principal Favourers of this Hereſie were (as ſome ſuppoſe) Conſtantine in his old Age, after the Council of Nice, being ſway'd by Conſtantia his Siſter. Conſtantius did alſo protect them; and the Emperor Valens was their chief Patron. The Biſhops who ſided with them were Euſebius of Nicomedia, Theognis of Nicea, Maris of Chalcedon, Secundus of Ptolemais, and Theonas of Marmarica. The Arrians were noted for Craft, Perfidiouſneſs, Inconſtancy, Reproaching the Orthodox, Flattering Princes, and Ambition to acquire the greateſt Biſhopricks. The Factions into which they ſubdivided were, Anomeans, Semi-Arrians, Acacians, Pure-Arians, ſome who agreed with the Orthodox in every thing, but calling Chriſt Conſubſtantial with the Father, as the Photinians or Scotini. Spanheim.

ARRIANUS. See Arian.

ARRIERE-BAN, a Name given in France to the Convocation or Meeting of Gentlemen or others, that hold Fiefs of their Prince, upon condition to ſerve him at their own Charges in his Wars for the Defence of their Country. This Name is thought to be derived from Heribannum, which ſignifies a Convocation or Aſſembly order'd by the Prince or Lord, or perhaps it is call'd Arriere-Ban becauſe it is a ſecond or after Convocation. the Ban being the firſt. See Ban.

ARRIUS, a Philoſopher of Alexandria, who preſented himſelf to Auguſtus, at his coming thither from the Battel of Actium, and was ſo highly Honour'd by him, that he declar'd there were but three Reaſons why he ſpar'd Alexandria, viz. the Memory of Alexander, the Beauty of the City, and his Reſpect to Arrius the Philoſopher. Plutarch.

ARRIUS, a Prieſt of Alexandria, who being diſappointed of the Biſhoprick thereof, which he endeavour'd to obtain againſt Alexander then Biſhop, broach'd and maintain'd ſeveral Erroneous, Heterodox Opinions, afterwards know by the Name of Arrianiſm: For which being convicted, he was firſt Excommunicated; but being an Excellent Diſputant, and well Learn'd, he behaved himſelf with ſo much Art and Cunning, that he gain'd a great many Biſhops and inferior Clergy to his ſide; and among others Euſebius Biſhop of Nicomedia, a Crafty and Lewd Perſon, in great Familiarity with Conſtantia, Siſter of Conſtantine. He was admoniſh'd by Conſtantine, both by Letters, and by Biſhop Hoſius, whom the Emperor ſent on purpoſe, to retract his Errors; but obeying neither, he was at the Council of Nice condemn'd to be Baniſh'd, and his Writings to be burnt; but Conſtantia and Euſebins prevail'd upon the Emperor to recal him, admit his cunningly contriv'd Confeſſion, and order'd him a new Hearing. For which purpoſe the Biſhops being ſummon'd to Conſtantinople, there happened a moſt terrible Conteſt between Alexander Biſhop of Conſtantinople, and Euſebius Biſhop of Nicomedia, Arrius's great Friend; inſomuch that Alexander ſhut himſelf up in the Temple all Night, praying to God that he would be pleaſed to work ſome Miracle for the Defence of his Truth; which he did accordingly; for after ſeveral days ſpent in Vexatious Diſputes, the next Morning after Alexander had thus pray'd, Arrius with his Followers, coming to the publick Meeting Place, he felt himſelf griped in his Guts, and turning aſide to a Houſe of Eaſement, together with his Excrements voided his Bowels, and in that died in unexpreſſible Torment, Anno 336. the Year before Conſtantine's Death. *Theodoret. Socrat. Lib.*1. See the Life of Cæſarienſis, in the 10th Tome of the Bibliotheque Univerſel.

ARROIS, the chief Caſtle in the Iſle of Mull, one of the Scotch Weſtern Iſles. It is over-gainſt Loghaber. Tim. Pont.

ARSACES, firſt King of the Parthians, elected by the People, who had revolted from the Macedonian Seleucidæ, A. M. 3808. ab U.C. 508. He reign'd 38 years in great Proſperity, ſpending all his time in eſtabliſhing his new Empire. After him ſucceeded two of the ſame Name, of whom nothing is Remarkable.

ARSACES, King of Armenia, to whom Julian the Apoſtate writ ſeveral Blaſphemous Letters againſt Chriſt; and, becauſe he was a Chriſtian, conſtrain'd him to join in the War againſt the Perſians, refuſing the ſuccours of all other Princes. After the Death of Julian, the Romans making Peace with the Perſians, quite excluded him the Treaty; ſo that he was wholly left to ſhift for himſelf againſt ſo potent an Enemy, which he did with good ſucceſs, till Sapor, under pretence of an Alliance, got him into his power, put out his Eyes, and made him die a miſerable Death. Ammian. Marcellin. Sozomen.

ARSACIA. See Casbin.

ARSACIUS, a Pagan High-Prieſt, to whom Julian the Apoſtate, deſigning to imitate the Chriſtians, wrote a long Letter, perſuading him to introduce Alternate Singing into the Temple, Diſtinction of Places, and ſome Reſemblance of Publick Penance after Scandalous Crimes committed. He farther admoniſhed him to erect Hoſpitals for the Sick, Alms-Houſes for the Poor, and Nunneries for Virgins. Sozomenes.

ARSACIUS, a Prieſt of Conſtantinople. He was put into St. Chryſoſtome's See, upon his Baniſhment. He was Brother to Nectarius Patriarch of Conſtantinople: Palladius ſays pleaſantly of him, that he had not ſo much as the Elocution of a Fiſh, and therefore muſt needs fill the Place very indifferently after St. *Chryſoſtom. Socrat. Lib.*6. c. 18. Pallad.

ARS-AGALER, The Name of thoſe, who were Maſters of Requeſts to the Grand Signior: Our Author obſerves, this Office is pretty different from that of the ſame Name in France. Ricaut. Turkiſh Hiſt.

ARSANES, Uncle to Ochus, and Father to Darius Codomannus. There was another of this Name, who was Governor of Caria and Cilicia, for the ſame Darius. *Quint. Curt. Lib.*3. c. 4.

ARSCHOT, Arſcotium, a ſmall City of Brabant, upon the River Demer, ſubject to the Spaniards, a Dukedom belonging to the Dukes de Croy, four Leagues Eaſt of Malines, and three of Louvain.

ARSENAL, is a Magazine of Arms, where all things belonging to the Artillery are laid up, as Mortars, Bombs, Granado's, Bullets, Lead, Muſquets, Armour, &c. and the Powder in a more ſecure and remote place from Fire. The beſt furniſh'd Arſenal in Europe is thought to be that of Venice, which is now far beyond what it was before it was burnt during the Wars of Cyprus. It's ſaid, That John Miches, a Jew, and great Favourite of Selim the Turkiſh Emperor, adviſed him to ſend ſome Turks privately to Venice to execute that Deſign, which much weaken'd the Venetians.

ARSENES, or Arſenius, Tutor and Godfather to Arcadius and Honorius, Sons to the Emperor Theodoſius, in much eſteem with the Emperor for his Piety and Learning. Theodoſius finding Arſenes ſtanding whilſt Arcadius kept his Seat to be taught his Leſſon, told him, He did not what became a Man in his Station; and Arſenes excuſing himſelf, That having the Honour to ſpeak to an Emperor, (for Arcadius was Aſſociated to the Empire at Six years of Age) he did not think it Manners to ſit down. The Emperor took off the Sons Imperial Robes, made Arſenes take a Chair and order'd the Child to ſtand always bare Headed, when he either ſaid, or was taught his Leſſon; often repeating this excellent ſaying, That his Children would be then truly worthy of the Empire, when they join'd Piety with their Learning. Arcadius made ill uſe of this Reprimand, eſpecially being afterwards near Correction, conceiv'd a mortal Hatred againſt his Maſter, whom he deſign'd to have put to death like a ſecond Nero, which Arſenes miſtruſting, withdrew ſecretly from Court after Theodoſius's Death, 394. and ſpent the reſt of his Life in the Deſart of Scethe in Egypt. Socrates, Surius, Buronius.

ARSENIUS, Biſhop of Hypſele in Thebais, of whoſe Murder Euſebius of Nicomedia, and ſome of his Gang, accuſed St. Athanaſius; for proof whereof they produced an Arm cut off from a dead Corps; though he was afterwards found alive, having been concealed for the purpoſe, and produced by St. Athanaſius at the Council of Tyre in 335. to give his Vote in behalf of that Holy Prelate. Socrat. Baronius, Theod. Hiſt. Eccl.

ARSENIUS, a Monk of Mount Athos in Macedonia, afterwards Patriarch of Conſtantinople; in the Year 1255, he drew up a New Nomo-Canon, i. e. A Collection of Canons, and Civil Laws, which were conformable to them, and made to fortifie them. He did not tie himſelf to the words of the Canon, but to the Senſe, and threw in Notes in ſome places, to ſhew how far the Emperor's Laws agreed with the Orders of the Patriarch. Doujat Hiſtoire du droit Canon.

ARSES, or Arſames, Son of Darius Ochus, made King by Bagoas the Eunuch, who had murder'd his Father. He reign'd Three years, but Bagoas fearing he would revenge his Father's death, ſlew him alſo, and all the reſt of the Royal Line. Diodor. Sicul. Juſtin.

ARSINOE, ſeveral Cities ſo call'd, and among the reſt one in Egypt, now call'd Azirut, 15 miles from Suez. And another in Africa, between Bernice and Ptolemais, now call'd Trochara. Ptolemy. Stephanus.

ARSINOE, Daughter of Ptolemy Lagus, Married to Lyſimachus King of Macedon, by whom ſhe had two Sons, Lyſimachus and Philip. After her Husband's death, ſhe reign'd as Guardian to her Children, and Married Ptolemy Ceraunus, her own Brother, who put his Nephews to Death, and Baniſh'd her into the Iſland Smandrachi, in 474 of Rome. *Juſtin. l.*17.

ARSINOE, Siſter to the laſt Cleopatra Queen of Egypt; ſhe was put to Death by Mark Anthony, to ſatisfie the Ambition of her Siſter. Appian. Lib. 5.

ARSYLIA, a vaſt Lake in Armenia, 60 miles long, but narrower, in the Dominions of the Turks, upon the Confines of Perſia, now call'd Lac de Vaſtan, or Mer d' Armenie.

ARTA, a City of Epirus in Greece, 15 miles from the Sea, upon the ancient River Acheron. The Inhabitants are about 2000. more Greeks than Turks, The Cathedral or Metropolitan Church, call'd Evangeliſtra, is very large, having as many Doors and Windows as there are Days in the Year; and was built by Michael Comnenus, as an Inſcription over the Entrance ſhews, having now but four Suffragan Biſhops under it, whereas formerly it had eight. Spon. l. 1. de ſes Voyages.

ARTABANUS the Firſt, King of the Parthians, Son of Phraates I. ſucceeded his Nephew Phraates II. He made War upon the Trogarians, and died of a Wound receiv'd in the Arm, but the time when not certainly known. Juſtin.

ARTABANUS the Second, Firſt King of the Medes, and then made King of the Parthians, as being of the Race or the Arſacidæ. He had Vonones for his Competitor, who defeated him in the firſt Battel; but Artabanus preſented him Battel a ſecond time, got an entire Victory, and ſettled himſelf upon the Throne, and put moſt of the Arſacidæ to Death, who had any colourable Pretenſions to the Crown. Afterwards deſpiſing the Age of Tiberius, he made himſelf Maſter of Armenia, and ſet up one of his Sons King there. This young Prince is call'd Arſaces, by Tacitus, and by Joſephus, Orodes. Artabanus ſent to the Romans, to demand the Treaſure, which Vonones had left in Silicia and Syria. He was at laſt reduc'd by Vitellius, who commanded in the Eaſt, and was forced to retire into Hyrcania, where he liv'd in the Woods for ſome time, while Tiridates was poſſeſſed of the Throne. But Tiridates being Expell'd by his Subjects, Artabanus recover'd the Crown, and was forced to quit it a ſecond time; However, it was not long before his Subjects re-eſtabliſhed him. He died about the Year of our Lord 48. *Joſ. l.*18. *Antiq. Judaic. c.*46 &c. Tacit. Lib. 5. Annal.

ARTABANUS the Third, took part with the Counterfeit Nero, in oppoſition to Veſpaſian, and died after ſo ſhort a Reign, that he is ſcarcely number'd among the Parthian Kings. Genebrard.

ARTABANUS the Fourth, and laſt King of Parthia, ſucceeded his Brother Vologeſes III. He maintain'd ſeveral Wars againſt the Romans, more eſpecially againſt Antonius Caracalla, who deſign'd to kill him under pretence of Courting his Daughter. In 227. Artaxerxes, a Common Soldier of Perſia, ſet himſelf up againſt him with that ſucceſs, that having worſted him in three ſeveral Battels, he depriv'd him both of his Crown and Life; ſo putting an end to the Race of the Arſacidæ, and tranſlating the Kingdom of the Parthians to the Perſians, A. C. 229. Dion. Herod. l. 1.

ARTABANUS of Hyrcania, becauſe he could not diſſuade Xerxes from his Expedition into Greece, murder'd him before he return'd, and made his Son Artaxerxes believe that his Brother Darius had done it, perſuading him to revenge it, and take poſſeſſion of his Kingdom; which Artaxerxes effected, and made Artabanus Partner in the Kingdom for ſeven Month; after which his Ambition and Wickedneſs being diſcovered, Artaxerxes pretending that his Coat of Mail was ſhorter than Artabanus's, deſired him to change,and while he was pulling it off, ran him through, and afterwards ſecured his Sons. *Juſtin. Lib.*2.

ARTABASDUS, made Emperor of the Eaſt in the room of Conſtantine Copronymus, who was hated for his Wickedneſs: But being afterwards defeated by Copronymus, and beſieged in Conſtantinople, Copronymus took him, and put out the Eyes of his 2 Sons, and the Chief of his Friends, and cauſed them to be led in Chains through the City. Theoph.

ARTABASES, Son of Pharnaces, one of Xerxes's Generals. He beſieged Potidæa, but was forced to riſe. Afterwards, he was at the Battel of Platæa, where the Perſians were routed, for preferring Mardonius's Advice to his. He retir'd with 40000 Men under his Command, refuſing to ſupport Mardonius in the Action. This happen'd in the 72d Olympiad. Herodot. Lib. 8.

ARTABAZANES, Eldeſt Son of Darius, excluded from the Crown of Perſia, becauſe born before his Father obtain'd the Sovereignty, and his younger Brother Xerxes, preferr'd, becauſe he was born after. This happen'd in the 72d Olympiad. Herodot.

ARTABAZUS, Son of Pharnabazus and Apamea, Daughter of Artaxerxes Mnemon, Governor of Myſia, Phrygia, and Bithynia. He rebell'd againſt his Sovereign Ochus, and being defeated, fled for Protection to Philip King of Macedon. During his Exile he obtain'd his Pardon, and returning into Perſia, ſerved Darius faithfully againſt Alexander. However, Darius being routed, he preſented himſelf and ſeven of his Sons to the Conqueror, who kindly receiv'd them, and made him Governor of Bactriana, valuing him highly for being true to his own Prince,notwithſtanding the Favours he receiv'd from his Father Philip. Q. Curt. l. 510.

ARTAPHERNES, one of the ſeven Perſian Princes that pretended to the Crown when Darius carried it; He was Governor of the Sea-Ports, and commanded an Army againſt the Ionians. After Darius's Death, he voted that Xerxes ſhould ſucceed him, and not Artabazanes, becauſe the firſt was born after the Father was King, and the other when but a private Lord. Herodotus.

ARTAVASDES, King of the Medes, maintain'd the War vigorouſly againſt Mark Anthony: Afterwards this King was Friends with that Roman General, who ſurpriz'd Artavaſdes King of Armenia, and carry'd him to Alexandria in Gold and Silver Chains, and there cut off his Head, and ſent it to Artavaſdes King of the *Medes. Dio. Lib.*49.

ARTAVASDES the Firſt, King of Armenia, Son of Tigranes. He was the Occaſion of Craſſus's being defeated, by failing to ſend him the Troops, which he had promis'd: He likewiſe prov'd falſe to Mark Anthony, but was puniſh'd for his inſincerity, in the manner above related, in the laſt Article. Appian. de Bell. Parth. Plut. in Craſ. Tacit. Annal. Lib. 2.

ARTAVASDES the Second, King of Armenia. He was ſet up by Auguſtus, after the Reign of Tigranes's Children, who ſucceeded their Father. Artavaſdes II. Reign'd but a littlewhile: For Caius Cæſar, being ſent into Armenia by Auguſtus, to quiet the Diſorders of that Realm, gave the Crown to Ariobarzanes ſoon after. Joſ. Antiq. Jud. l. 15. Tacit. Annal. l 2.

ARTAXERXES Longimanus, or Long-hand, ſucceeded his Father Xerxes, Anno ab U. C. 287. and Olympiad 78. He ſent his Uncle Achæmenes againſt the Ægyptians, who demanding Aid of the Athenians, occaſion'd a long War between the Greeks and Perſians. 'Twas under this Prince that Nehemiah and Ezra had leave to go to Jeruſalem to rebuild the City and Temple. Nehemiah c. 2. He reign'd 40 Years, and died A. M. 3629. Scaliger, c. 5. de Emenda. Temp.

ARTAXERXES Mnemon, or Good Memory, ſucceeded Darius about the year of Rome 349. He ſlew his Brother Cyrus, who contended for the Crown, in the firſt Battel. He put to death his Son Darius, for revolting from him, after he had declared him his Succeſſor. He had fifteen Sons by ſeveral Women, Reigning above forty Years, in the heighth of Eaſe and Plenty, but being once on a time conſtrain'd to fly for his Life, and to eat dry Figs and Barley Bread to ſatisfie Hunger, he cry'd out, "Οἵα ἡδονῆς ἄπειρος ἤμην! What a Delicacy have I been ignorant of! He died A. M. 3689. ab U. C. 389. Diod. Juſtin. Lib. 10.

ARTAXERXES Ochus, ſucceeded his Father Artaxerxes Mnemon, in the year of Rome 389. and fix'd himſelf in his Kingdom by the Murder of 80 of his Brethren and Kindred, as Q. Curtius relates it. He put Artabanus to death for conſpiring againſt him, recover'd Egypt by the ruine of Nectenabo, deſtroy'd the City of Sidon, and ravag'd all Syria. In his time 'tis believ'd Bagoas profan'd the Temple of Jeruſalem, and impos'd a Tribute of 50 Drachma's upon the Jews for every Lamb that was offer'd in Sacrifice. However it was, Artaxerxes continuing his Cruelties, was Poiſon'd by Bagoas in the Year of Rome 414. after he had Reign'd 25 years. Joſephus Lib. 11.

ARTAXERXES, King of Perſia, Brother to Sapores the Second, to whom he ſucceeded in the year 380. He had often given great proof of his Courage in the Wars which Sapores made with the Romans; but his own Reign was more peaceable, continuing no longer than four years. Sapores the Third ſucceeded him.

ARTAXERXES, from a private Perſian Soldier, rais'd himſelf to be King: He rebell'd againſt Artabanus, K. of the Parthians in the year 226. and after ſeveral leſſer Advantages, he at laſt killed Artabanus in a pitch'd Battel: And thus the Government of the Parthians was extinguiſhed, and that of the Perſians reviv'd,. which had been interrupted ever ſince Darius. Artaxerxes ſent Ambaſſadors to Alexander Severus the Emperor, to demand the Reſtitution of Syria, and ſeveral other Countries of Aſia; and to make good his Claim, came againſt him with an Army of 120000 Horſe, and 700 Elephants; all which Alexander defeated, and forced him back into Perſia, according to Lampridius; though Herodian ſays, the Romans had the worſt. He died Anno Chriſti 242. after he had reign'd 15 years. See more of him in Artabanus IV. *Oroſus, Lib.*7. c. 11.

ARTAXIAS, Governor of the Greater Armenia for Antiochus the Great, revolted from his Sovereign, relying on the Friendſhip of the Romans, and erected his Province into a Kingdom, which his Poſterity enjoy'd, though himſelf was defeated by Antiochus Epiphanes, and died in Captivity. *Strabo Lib.*11.

ARTAXIAS, the Second of that Name, King of Armenia, and Son of Artavaſdes that was ſurpriz'd and taken Priſoner by Mark Anthony, who put this Son upon his Father's Throne. Artaxias was no ſooner proclaim'd King, but he ſought means to ſet his Father at Liberty; failing in his generous Deſign, he was baniſh'd to Parthia, where after ſome time, he rais'd an Army, and dethron'd him that was ſet up in his Place, but was kill'd by his own Officers. Joſephus, Lib. 15. Tacit. Lib. 2.

ARTEMBARES, a Great Nobleman of Media: His Son being a little Boy, was beaten by young Cyrus, who was much about his pitch, and paſs'd for no more than the Son of the King's Shepherd: Artembares went to Court, and complain'd of his Boy's being Box'd, to Aſtyages King of Media, which gave that Prince an occaſion of diſcovering Cyrus to be his Grandſon. Juſtin. Herod. l. 1.

ARTEMIDORUS of Cnidus, a City of Caria, Son of Theopompus; He flouriſh'd in the Reigns of Auguſtus and Tiberius, being Greek Profeſſor, and ſo intimate with Brutus, that he made him privy to his Conſpiracy againſt Julius Cæſar, the Particulars whereof Artemidorus writ down, and preſented them to Cæſar by way of Caution, as he went to the Capitol; but ſuch was Cæſar's Deſtiny, that he put up the Paper without Reading, thinking it might be read at leiſure, and ſo was Murder'd, the Paper being found about him after his Death. There were likewiſe ſeveral others of this Name, Artemidorus a Grammarian of Tarſus, in the time of Trajan. One Sirnam'd Ariſtophanes, Diſciple of Ariſtophanes of Byzantium: And two of Epheſus, one a Geographer, the other an Aſtrologer. Strab. l. 14.

ARTEMIDORUS, of Epheſus, commonly called Daldianus, becauſe his Mother was born at Daldis, a Town of Lydia. He liv'd in the time of Antoninus Pius, and wrote a Book of Chiromancy, and another of Oneirocriticks, or the Interpretation of Dreams.

ARTEMISIA, Queen of Caria, and Wife of Mauſolus, bore ſo great a Love to her Husband, that ſhe erected a Monument for him, eſteemed one of the ſeven Wonders of the World, Drunk his Aſhes mingled with her ordinary Drink, and ſet up a Prize for him that wrote the beſt Panegyrick in praiſe of him, which was won by Theopompus. Suidas.

ARTEMISIA, Queen of Halicarnaſſus, Liv'd in the 74th Olympiad, and was more Ancient than the former. Herodotus ſays, She was Lygdamis's Daughter; That ſhe marched with Xerxes, in his Expedition againſt the Greeeks, and gave him better Advice than any other of his Allies. *Herod. l.*7.

ARTEMON, a Syrian of very mean Birth, but ſo like Antiochus King of Syria, Sirnam'd Theos, that the Queen, after ſhe had poiſon'd this Prince, made uſe of him to get the Crown for her own Son Seleucus Callimachus; for having hid the King's Body, ſhe pretended he was very weak, and ſhew'd the Lords Artemon in a Bed, who deſir'd 'em to make Seleucus his Succeſſor; and ſome time after the King's Death was publiſh'd. This happen'd in the 507 of *Rome. Pliny, Euſebius, Genebrard, Lib.*2.

ARTEMON, a Hereſiarch in the third Century, denied Chriſt's Divinity, or that he had any conſiderable advantage over the Prophets. His Diſciples join'd with the Theodotians, and ſaid, Their Doctrine was always held in the Church until Pope Victor's time; That Zephyrinus, who ſucceeded him, begun to queſtion its Truth. Euſeb. lib. 5. Hiſt. c. 26. 27. Baron. A. C. 296.

ARTEMON of Clazemenium, Inventor of the Battering-Ram, Tortoiſe, and other Warlike Machines, accompanied Pericles to the Siege of Samos in 312. of Rome: There was another of this Name that wrote the Lives of Painters. Voſſius lib. 3. Hiſt. Græc.

ARTEVELDT, James, a Fleming, born in Ghent; he lived in the 14th Century, Married Richard Brewer's Widow, and taking part with Edward III. of England, he raiſed himſelf almoſt to an Abſolute Power in Flanders: But ſtriving to make the Son of Edward III. of England, Count of Flanders, he was kill'd in 1345. His Son Philip Arteveldt, not ſo Politick, though Richer, Revolting from the Count of Flanders, put himſelf at the Head of 40000 Flemings; but was defeated at the Battel of Roſebeque in 1382. and there ſlain. Meyer. Hiſt. de Flanders.

ARTHEMIUS, a General under Julian the Apoſtate, who Impriſon'd and put him to death for defending the Innocency of the Chriſtians, and breaking the Idols. Baron.

ARTHUR, a Britiſh King, one of the World's Nine Worthies, Reign'd, as his Hiſtory tells us, in the beginning of the 6th Age; firſt he was, ſays Nennius, Chief General for the Britiſh Kings, in their Wars againſt the Saxons; but 'tis certain, that he was more magnified in Songs and Romances than in true Stories: Beſides the 12 great and ſucceſsful Battels he is ſaid to have fought againſt the Saxons, (the laſt of which was at Badon-hills) ſome Hiſtorians will have him to have expell'd hence the Saracens, then unknown in Europe; to have conquer'd Friezland, and all the North-Eaſt Iſles as far as Ruſſia; and to have made Lapland the Eaſtern bound of his Empire; but when all theſe Exploits ſhould be done, it does not appear: Certain it is, that he had no reſt from the Saxons till after the 12 Battels, and then the Britains, far from ſeeking Conqueſts abroad, fell to Civil Wars at home, for which we have Gildas his Teſtimonies. One would think Policy requir'd of King Arthur, rather to have carried the War into Saxony, to keep the Saxons from coming hither, than to have gone about to Conquer Kingdoms as far as Ruſſia, being ſcarce able here to defend his own. In ſhort, who this Arthur was, and whether any ſuch ever Reign'd in Britain, has been doubted heretofore, and is by ſome to this very day.

ARTHUR, the Firſt of this Name, Count of Britany, Son of Geofrey, ſirnam'd the Fair, Count of Anjou, and third Son of Henry III. King of England: This Arthur was born at Nantes in 1187. and bore the Title of Count of Anjou in 1199. Richard I. call'd the Proud, Son and Succeſſor of Henry II. dying, Arthur endeavouring to ſucceed him, was deprived of his Right by his Uncle John, who after many Battels, ſurpriz'd him at the Siege of Mirebeau, and carried him to Roan, where he was never heard of: Some ſay his Uncle had him aſſaſſinated, and order'd his Body to be thrown into the River. Du Cheſne Hiſt. d'Angleterre, Argentre Hiſt. de Bret.

ARTHUR the Third, Duke of Britany and Touraine, Peer, and Lord Conſtable of France, &c. ſecond Son of John V. and Jeanne of Navarre, was born in 1393. taken Priſoner at the Battel of Agincourt in 1415. carried to England, and kept until 1420. At his return thence, he ſided with the Duke of Burgundy for ſome time, but left him, and joined with Charles VII. of France in 1424. by whom he was made Lord Conſtable of France. This Duke was very ſucceſsful againſt the Engliſh in Normandy, Poictou, and at the Battel of Patai in Beauſſe in 1429. and no leſs afterwards in reconciling the Duke of Burgundy to the French King, and reducing the City of Paris in 1437. He alſo made himſelf Maſter of Meaux in Brie, Bayeux and Caen in Normandy, and defeated the Engliſh at the Battel of Formigni in 1450. In 1457. he ſucceeded his Brother John VI. and his two Nephews, Francis I. and Peter II. in the Dutchy of Britany, but died ſoon after, leaving no Iſſue by any of his three Wives. Froiſſard Hiſt. T. 3. Argentre Monſtrelet.

ARTILLERY. By this Word are underſtood all ſorts of great and ſmall Cannons, and other Warlike Engines, us'd now inſtead of the Battering-Rams and other Machines of the Ancients. Cannons were firſt made uſe of in 1318. after Berthold Schwartz, a Franciſcan, and great Chymiſt, invented Gunpowder, and the Venetians were the firſt in Europe that made uſe of 'em in their War againſt the Genoueſes. The Count of Salisbury beſieging Mans in France, in 1425. taught the uſe of them to the French; and the Jews, ſome time after Baniſh'd out of Spain, taught it the Turks. The Great Maſter of the Artillery Commands all the Officers of the Artillery, Cannoneers, Pioneers, &c. Orders the Works at Sieges and Incampments, takes care of Tents and Pavillions, of Caſting Cannons, and making Powder, &c. Before the invention of Cannons, there was a Great Maſter of the Croſs-bows, whoſe uſe the French learn'd in 1199. of Richard I. call'd Lyons Heart, King of England, who died himſelf of a Wound by one of theſe Croſs-bows, at the Siege of the Caſtle of Chalus in Limoſin. Mezeray Etat de la France.

ARTOIS, Lat. Arteſia, a Province of the Low-Countries, an Earldom under the King of France, between Flanders, Picardy, Boulonnois and Cambreſis, comprehending the Cities of Arras, Aire, St. Omer, Bethune, Bapaume, Heſdin, Renti, St. Paul, &c. fertile in Wheat, being water'd by the Rivers Lys, Scarpe, Aa, &c. Artois was ſubject to the Romans, and afterwards to the Kings of Auſtraſia; ſince whoſe times it has often chang'd Maſters. Lewis the XIth of France made himſelf Maſter of Arras in 1477. after Charles the Bold or Raſh, Duke of Burgundy; but Mary of Burgundy, this Charles's Daughter, Marrying Maximilian the Firſt of Auſtria, Father of Philip I. and Grandfather of Charles V. and Ferdinand I. Francis the Firſt of France, was forc'd by the Peace of Madrid in 1529. to quit 'em to Artois, which was afterwards poſſeſſed by Philip II. and III. but the French Re-conquer'd it under Philip IV. Son of the laſt, who yielded it 'em by the 35th Article of the Pyrenean Peace in 1659. reſerving to himſelf the Towns of Aire, and St. Omer, ſince taken by the French. Cæſar Comm. lib. 2. Guicciardin deſcript. du Pais Bas. Meyer, Froiſſard, du Puy.

ARU, a City and Kingdom of Aſia, in the Iſle of Sumatra; the Town is on the Streight of Malaca, over-againſt the City of that Name.

ARVA, or Orova, a City and County on the Borders of Poland, near the Carpathian Mountains in Hungary.

ARVA, or Arve, a River of Foſſigny in Savoy, riſing out of an inacceſſible Mountain, (on which Rock Chryſtal is form'd) always cover'd with Snow, much more rapid than the Rhone (in which it loſes it ſelf, within a Musket-ſhot of the Gates of Geneva, at a place called la Queüe d'Arve.) When the Snow thaws, or great Rains fall, it ſwells ſo of a ſudden, that it makes the Rhoſne remount towards the Lake, as may be ſeen by the Mills turning that way. A little before the Maſſacre on St. Bartholomew's day, in 1572. the Arva overflow'd to that degree, that the Age of Man could not remember the like. There is ſome Powder of Gold found in the Sands of this River; ſome that underſtand how to pick it up, get above a Crown a day by it.

ARVALES, a Society of 12 Noble Romans that met on certain days to Sacrifice for the Fruits of the Earth: This Ceremony was firſt begun by Acca Laurentia, Romulus's Nurſe, who every year, aſſiſted with her 12 Sons, us'd to Sacrifice to the Gods, and pray for a good Harveſt; one of theſe Sons dying, Romulus took his place to compleat the Number of 12. and order'd, that this Society ſhould be afterwards call'd Fratres Arvales, from Arvum a Field: They generally met in the Capitol, in the Temple of Concord, or in the Wood conſecrated to the Goddeſs Dia, five miles from Rome, upon the Road now call'd Via Campana; when they ſacrificed, they wore a Crown made up with Ears of Corn, enterwoven with white Ribbons, which is thought to have been the firſt ſort of Crown us'd by the Romans. Varro, Plin. Fulgentius.

ARUNDEL, (Henry) the preſent Lord Arundel of Wardour, is the Grandchild of Thomas, who for his great Service againſt the Turks, at Gran in Hungary, where he took their Banner with his own hands, was by the Emperor Rodolphus, dignified with the Title of Earl of the Sacred Empire, to continue to him and his Heirs for ever; but the Peers of this Realm diſputing his having any Precedency by virtue of the ſame, King James, in conſideration of his Merit, advanc'd him to the Dignity of an Engliſh Peer, under the Title of Lord Arundel of Wardour. To the ſaid Thomas ſucceeded his Son of that Name, Father of the preſent Lord Arundel, who was Lord Privy-Seal to King James the Second. His Arms are Sable, and Swallows Argent 3. 2. and 1. in regard the Name ſeems to come from the French, Hirondelle, which ſignifies a Swallow. This Family hath been eminent in the Weſt of England ever ſince the Conqueſt. Dugd.

ARUNDEL, John, of Trerice in Cornwal, the preſent Baron of that Name, is the Son of Richard, by Gertrude the Daughter of James Bagge of Saltham, and Widow of Nicholas Haning, Kt. which Richard, was by King Charles II. (March 29. 1664.) created Baron Arundel of Trerice, in conſideration of his own, and his Father's Service againſt the Parliament Army; he having loſt two Brothers, held out Pendennis Caſtle, and ſignaliz'd himſelf in divers occaſions in that War. Trerice has been the Ancient Seat of the Family, ever ſince John Arundel, the firſt known Anceſtor, who came in with the Conqueror, fix'd his Seat in that Place, from whom deſcended the famous Sir John Arundel, who in the Reign of Henry VII. was Vice-Admiral of the King's Fleet; and amongſt his other Exploits, overcame, and took Duncan Cambell, whom the Scots call'd their Admiral, and the Engliſh a Pirate, but a valiant Man: The Arms of this Family are the ſame with thoſe of Arundel of Wardour. Dugdale's Baron. of England.

ARUNDEL, Sir John, Sheriff of Cornwall in the Reign of Edward IV. who being forewarn'd that he ſhould be ſlain on the Sands, left his Houſe at Ebbingford, near the Sea, and remov'd to Trerice, his more inland habitation; but it happen'd the ſame year he was Sheriff, that the Earl of Oxford ſurpriz'd Mount Michael for the Houſe of Lancaſter; and as he went about to reduce it by Command from the King, he loſt his Life in a Skirmiſh on the Sands thereabouts: Sic Fata viam invenerunt.

ARUNDEL, in Latin Aruntia, a Town of the County of Suſſex in England; is neither big, nor well Peopled, yet is much noted for its famous Earls. Thomas Earl of Arundel and Surrey, Lord Marſhal of England, who ſent William Petty into Aſia, to ſearch for ſome curious Monuments of Antiquity, where he bought thoſe which we call Arundel Marbles, of a Turk who had taken 'em from a Learned Man, ſent by the famous Peyreſch into Greece and Aſia upon the ſame deſign: Theſe precious Marbles were plac'd in the Earl's Houſe and Gardens, upon the Banks of the Thames. Selden wrote a Book of what they contain'd in 1629. which has been a great help to P. Petau, Salmaſius, Voſſius, and ſeveral other Learned Men in their Works. Theſe Ancient Marbles diſcover ſeveral things, both concerning the Hiſtory and Chronology of the Greeks. Amongſt the 79 Epochas mark'd in 'em, there are three very particular, viz. the 9th, which they reckoned from the arrival of the firſt Ship out of Egypt into Greece, 1512 years before the birth of Chriſt; the 12th, which they counted from the time that Ceres came to Athens in Erichteus's Reign, and the 40th from the day that Comedies begun to be Acted at Athens, according to Suſarion's Invention. Another of theſe Marbles ſhews what gave occaſion to the Fable of the Centaurs, viz. Hunting the wild Bull, firſt invented by the Theſſalians, and afterwards practis'd in the Roman Cirque, by Julius Cæſar's Orders; they alſo furniſh us with ſeveral other curious Obſervations, as, that the Cuſtom of burning Bodies was laid aſide in Macrobius's time; and that none but Emperors, Veſtals, and Men of ſpecial Note, were ſuffer'd to have their Tombs within the Walls of Rome. The Name, State, and Dignity of Earl, belongs to him that is poſſeſs'd of this Mannor and Caſtle, without any other Creation, as appears by the Parliament Rolls of the Second of Henry the Sixth. The Corporation ſends two Burgeſſes to Parliament. Selden, Gaſſendi, Lydiat, Prideaux.

ARUNTIUS, Grandchild of Tarquinius Priſcus, King of Rome, and Brother to Tarquin the Proud, Married Tullia, Servius Tullius's Daughter, a haughty, imperious Woman, who poiſon'd him becauſe too mild, to Marry his Brother Tarquin, who was more agreeable to her Temper.

ARUNTIUS, Son of Tarquin the Proud, and Tullia the Cruel, was expell'd Rome with his Father. Afterwards marching with him to recover his Kingdom, and ſeeing the Conſul at the Head of his Army, Yonder is the Man, ſays he, that drove us out of our Country; Ye Gods! Avengers of Kings, aſſiſt me: At which words, ſetting Spurs to Horſe, he rid directly to Brutus the Conſul, who received him as Gallantly, running one another quite through the Bodies with their Spears, dropping both from their Horſes, and expiring at the ſame inſtant. Liv.

ARUNTIUS Nepos, (Lucius) Conſul with M. Claudius Marcellus Æſerninus: He wrote the Hiſtory of the Punick War in the time of Auguſtus, and died in the Reign of Tiberius.

ARUSPICES, certain Southſayers among the Romans, predicting things to come from the Entrails of Beaſts: So call'd ab aris inſpiciendis, from inſpecting the Altars. They firſt of all obſerv'd the Victim when brought to the Altar, then conſider'd of the Entrails, the Liver, Heart, and Lungs, and took notice how the flame environ'd and burn'd the Sacrifice, what ſmell it emitted, and how the Incenſe ſmoak'd. By all which, they endeavour'd to underſtand the Will of their Gods, the Good they were to hope, &c. The People of Hetruria were the firſt inventers of this Superſtitious Divination, which was often accompanied with Magick, and Romulus choſe a certain number, whereof he compos'd a College of Aruſpices. Dion. Halic. Peucer.

ARUVEIÆ, or Aruveques, a People of South-America, in the Country of the Caribbees, near the River Eſſekebo, very ſtrong, and at continual enmity with the Inhabitants of the Caribbees.

ARZILLE, a Sea-Town of the Kingdom of Fez, in the province of Hasbata, upon the Atlantick Ocean, ſmall, but well fortified, with a good Harbour, anciently call'd Zilia. Alphonſus V. King of Portugal, took it by Storm in 1471. built a Fort to it, and brought away all the Inhabitants to Portugal, particularly Mahomet, about ſeven years of Age, afterwards King of Fez, who, in 1508. beſieging Arzille with 100000 Men, retook it from the Portugueſe, all but one Tower; but Don Pedro of Navarre, coming with timely Succours, beat him out again. After this the Portugueſe quitted it, with ſome other Places, to ſave the expence of Garriſons. In 1578. Muley Hamet reſign'd it again to Sebaſtian King of Portugal; but the Cheriffs of Morocco retook it, and hold it to this day. It's 140 miles N. W. of Fez. Davity de l'Afrique.

ARZINA Reca, a River in Lapland, between Cola to the Weſt, and the entrance of the White Sea to the Eaſt; the Country about which being deſolate, Sir Hugh Willoughby and all his Ship's Company periſhed here by Hunger and Cold, in the year 1553. after he had firſt paſſed the North Cape; the Ship was found the next year, and a Relation of his Voyage in Writing. Hackluit, Part I.

ASA, Aſhſa, a ſmall but very beautiful City in Arabia Felix, on the Shoars of the Perſian Gulph, two Stations North of Baharaim in the way to Balſara. Nub. p. 122.

ASA, King of Juda, ſucceeded Abiah. He was a fortunate and good Prince, but fell into ſome few Miſcarriages towards the latter end of his Reign. 1 Kings 15. 2 Chron. 13.

ASAN, King of the Bulgarians in the XIth Age, who, with the aſſiſtance of the Turks, made Progreſs in Syria and Aſia, in the unactive Reign of the Emperor Michael. This Prince quitted the Communion of the Church of Rome for that of the Greeks, which change diſguſted Pope Gregory the IXth to that degree, that he perſuaded Beta, King of Hungary, to declare War againſt him, and order'd a Croiſade upon this account. There have been three Kings of Algier and Barbary of this Name, after the death of Barberouſſe, and Aſan, or Aſſan Cigale, famous in the Turkiſh Hiſtory in the Reigns of Mahomet III. and Achmet I. Spondanus, A. C. 1238.

ASAN Calaffat, a famous Pirate of Algiers, was a Greek Renegado; he took a great many Prizes in the Seas of Candia and Greece, but was at laſt met, as he was Sailing home with a very rich Booty, and his whole Squadron defeated, and taken by ſome Chriſtian Gallies. It's ſaid, he was a great Magician, that every day after Sun-ſet, he us'd to lay a Book of the Black Art upon his Table, which he found open every morning, with directions in the firſt Page of what he was to do, and ſhould happen to him that day: They add, That he uſed to lay two Arrows, or Swords upon this Book, and that he knew by the motion of theſe, whether he was to fight the Ships he met, or no. Mercure Francois.

ASANDER, Governor of Boſphorus for King Pharnaces, who, being overcome by Julius Cæſar, fled to him for Sanctuary; but he diſloyally and treacherouſly ſlew him, and carried his Head to the Conqueror, who, as a recompence, gave him Dynamis, Daughter of the unfortunate King, to Wife, together with the Kingdom of Pontus and Boſphorus. After the Death of Julius Cæſar, Mark Anthony gave the Sovereignty of Boſphorus to Darius, Pharnaces's Brother; but he was repuls'd by Aſander, who, after he had Reign'd a long time, in the 80th year of his Age he was expell'd by Scribonius, and died of Grief. Dion. lib. 54.

St. ASAPH, Biſhop of the Dioceſe of that Name in North-Wales, was born of Honourable Parentage in Flintſhire, and lived in the Sixth Age. Llan-Elvy in this County, afterwards call'd from him St. Aſaph, is the Place where he was bred, under Kentigern the Scotch Biſhop, who had a Convent conſiſting of 663 Monks, ſome employed abroad in Husbandry, others about work at home, the reſt attended Divine Service in the Convent; Aſaph among thoſe was eminently conſpicuous for Piety and Learning, inſomuch, that Kentigern being call'd back into his own Country, reſign'd both his Convent and Cathedral to him, who liv'd ſo Religious a Life, that after his death, the Name Llan-Elvy was chang'd into St. Aſaph.

ASAPH, of the Tribe of Levi, a conſiderable Muſician, and one of the Quire of the Temple. He is ſuppoſed to have been the Penman of 12 of the Pſalms. 1 Chron. chap. 6. Kinchi.

ASBAMEA, a Fountain of Cappadocia, thus deſcrib'd by Philoſtratus: There is, ſays he, in the Neighbourhood of Tyanæa, a Water which is cold at the Spring-head, and afterwards boils like a Caldron over a hot Fire; immediate Death to Villains and Perjured Perſons, but pleaſing and wholſom to the Virtuous and Upright. Bochart, Ammianus Marcel.

ASCALAPHUS, Son of the Nymph Orphea and the River Acheron, told Tales, and prevented Proſerpine's Reſcue. This enrag'd her to that degree, that ſhe threw ſome of the Water of Phlegeton upon him, and made him an Owl. Ovid. Metam. lib. 5.

ASCALON, a City of Judæa, in the Tribe of Dan, upon the Sea-ſhore; one of the ſtrongeſt Forts of the Philiſtines. About the year 1153. it was taken by Baldwin King of Jeruſalem, after a Siege of five or ſix Months. It's now ſo mean, that there are not above 60 Families of Moors in it, and a Garriſon of Turks, to prevent the Incurſions of the Arabs, the Chriſtians taking in freſh Water at the River Sorec, which runs hard by it. This City was fam'd for a Temple dedicated to the Mother of Semiramis. It was alſo the Birth-place of Herod the Great, call'd the Aſcalonite,* and a Biſhop's See, Re-fortified by Richard I. King of England, during the Holy War. Joſeph. l. 6. c. 1. Miræus, &c.

ASCANIA, a very ancient Caſtle in Germany, which formerly gave Title to the Princes of Anhalt, and was the chief Place of the County, half a League from Asbenſeben, which roſe from its Ruins. Baudr.

ASCANIUS, Son of Æneas and Creuſa, ſucceeded his Father in the Kingdom of the Latins, and defeated Mezentius King of the Tuſcans, who refus'd to make a Peace with him. He founded Alba Longa, which he made the Capital City of his ſmall Kingdom, and died Anno Mundi 2915. after a Reign of 38 years. Dion. Halicarn. lib. 1.

ASCARIC, a Prince of the Gauls, who not liking the Romiſh Government, broke the Truce he had made with them, and joining himſelf with Rhadegaiſius, they were both defeated, and taken by Conſtantine in the beginning of his Reign; who cauſed them to be devour'd by Dogs; ſays Eutropius, Euſeb.

ASCENSION, an Iſland in the Bay of St. Lawrence, in North-America, 50 Leagues from Cape Briton to the N.W. and 15 from the Continent to the N.E. the middle of the Iſland is in 49. It is a goodly Champaigne Land, without any Hills, ſtanding all upon White Rocks and Alabaſter; the Sea-ſhoar abounds with Trees of all thoſe ſorts that are in France, and it has many Wild Beaſts. This Iſland, I take to be the ſame with Natiſcoteck. Hackluit, T. 3. p. 238.

ASCENSION Iſland, or Acemſaon, upon the Coaſt of South-America, about 100 Leagues from Braſile, four Leagues long, and one broad; ſubject to the Portugueſe, who diſcover'd it on Aſcenſion-day, whence it had its Name. There are neither Trees, Graſs, nor freſh Water to be ſeen in it; and Rain-Water ſtinks in 24 hours. It ſerves for a Harbour to ſuch Ships as have miſs'd of St. Hellens, and abounds with extraordinary large Tortoiſes, very pleaſant to the Taſte. Mandeſlove Voyage des Indies.

ASCETÆ, a ſort of Chriſtians in the Primitive Times, who practis'd greater Auſterities than ordinary. Their Habit was ſomewhat particular, wearing a Cloak like the Greek Philoſopher's Pallium, as is obſerved by Euſebius, concerning the Prieſt Heraclas, lib. 6. c. 19. Tertullian is ſuppos'd to be of the number of theſe Aſcetæ. This Name was afterwards given to Monks. Socrat. Evagr. lib. 2.

ASCHAFFENBURG, a City of Germany in Franconia, upon the Maine, between Wirtzburg and Francfort, ſubject to the Elector of Mentz, and his uſual Seat. It was formerly an Imperial Town, and is now divided into the Upper and Lower. It has a very fine new Palace, where the Elector reſides, which is called Joansburg. Baudr.

ASCHAM, Roger, was born at Kirby Wilk in Yorkſhire, and bred in St. John's College in Cambridge, being both born and bred for that Age which was to refine Greek and Latin to a Politeneſs, and raiſe 'em to an Eloquence: He was Tutor to the Princeſs Elizabeth in Queen Mary's Reign, for the Latin Tongue, and Secretary for that Language in her own; from his Cradle a Royal Servant, and to his Grave a great Favourite; a Great Man he might have been, had his Ambition been as great as the occaſion was fair. He was alſo the Univerſity Orator at Cambridge. He and his dear Smith were the greateſt Pattern of true and diſintereſted Friendſhip, ſo open-hearted they were to each other, without reſerve, jealouſie, or fear, abhorring all Artifices, hating all Concealments: Their Thoughts they vented into each others Breaſts, and there looked upon 'em by Reflection: If one obſerved in the other any Inadvertency, Neglect, or Miſcarriage, he was plain with him, and rebuk'd him for it, and then they lov'd again. In ſhort, ſo great was their happineſs in Friendſhip, that neither of them could call any thing his own; and as they enjoyed each others Felicity, ſo they eas'd one another upon all incident Croſſes with their common Cares and Pities. He was an honeſt Man, and a good Shooter, Archery (whereof he wrote a Book call'd Toxophilus) being his principal Exerciſe in his Youth, which in his old Age he exchang'd for a worſe Paſtime, neither ſo healthful for his Body, nor profitable for his Purſe, I mean Cock-fighting, which very much impar'd his Eſtate, ſo that he died Rich only in two Books, his Toxophilus and Scholarcha, wherein lay both his Eſtate and Monument. Baker's Chron.

ASCHERLEBEN, a little City of Germany in Saxony, in the Principality of Anhalt, upon the Wiper, between Halberſtadt and Mansfield, almoſt ruin'd by the German Wars.

ASCITES, certain Arabian Robbers, ſo call'd, becauſe they uſed to tie Bladders together to paſs the Rivers. Plin.

ASCLEPAS, Biſhop of Gaza in Paleſtine. He flouriſhed in the fourth Century: He was a Prelate of great worth, and one of the General Council of Nice. The Arrians, who had a great Intereſt in Conſtantine's Court, charged him with ſeveral Crimes, and got him depos'd about the year 330. but his Faults were only an Averſion to that Hereſy. After the death of Conſtantine, he was reſtor'd; but the Arrians got him expell'd the ſecond time He retir'd to Pope Julius, who declar'd him both Innocent and Orthodox, in a Council at Rome in 331. He was afterwards juſtify'd and reſtor'd by the Council of Sardica. St. Athan. ad Solit. Epiphan. Hier. 69. Sozom. lib. 3. Theod. lib 1.

ASCLEPIADES, Son of Diotimus, a Greek Hiſtorian in the Reign of Ptolemæus Epiphanes. He wrote the Life of Alexander the Great, cited by Arian; the Hiſtory of Bithynia, &c.

ASCLEPIADES, a Phyſician of great Eſteem at Rome, in the time of Pompey the Great: He rejected the Doctrine of Hippocrates, which he call'd the Doctrine of Death; allowing his Patients much more freedom, and recovering them with the uſe of Wine, won himſelf great Reputation: But fearing leſt he ſhould fall ſick, and ſo loſe his Credit, he threw himſelf down Stairs, when very old, and died. Voſſius de Hiſt. Græc. lib. 1. c. 18.

ASCLEPIODORUS, of Alexandria, a Great Mathematician, Herbaliſt and Lapidary, who travelling over all Syria, ſaid, he found only three ſober, modeſt Perſons. Alſo a Painter of the ſame Name, much eſteem'd by Apelles, to whom Mnaſon the Tyrant gave 43200 l. for 12 Pictures of 12 Gods. Suidas in Aſclepiod.

ASCLEPIODOTUS, Captain of the Guards under Conſtantius Chlorus in the year 296. He defeated Allectus, who having killed Carauſius, got himſelf proclaimed Emperor in Great Britain, as both Eutropius and Euſebius obſerve. 'Tis probable, that 'twas this Aſclepiodotus that wrote the Life of the Emperor Diocleſian, cited twice by Vopiſcus, in the Life of Aurelian.

ASCLETARION, an Aſtrologer, mentioned by Suetonius, who having predicted Domitian's Deſtiny, and being ſent for, not denying it, the Emperor ask'd him what death he himſelf ſhould die? To which the Aſtrologer anſwer'd, He ſhould be torn in pieces by Dogs. Domitian, to convince him of a falſe Prediction, commanded him to be immediately kill'd, burnt, and his Aſhes thrown into Tyber; but he was no ſooner laid on the Pile, but there aroſe ſuch a Storm of Rain, as diſperſed the People, and put out the Fire; whereupon ſeveral Dogs coming, ſeiz'd the Body, tore it in pieces, and devour'd it in a moment. Suetonius in Domitian.

ASCODROGILES, or Aſciles, Hereticks that appear'd about the year of our Lord 173. they pretended they were repleniſh'd with Montanus's Paraclet, and introduc'd the Bacchanals into the Churches, where they had a Buckskin full of Wine, and went in Proceſſion round it, ſaying, This was the Veſſel of New-Wine ſpoken of in the Goſpel. St Auguſtin, Baronius, A. C. 173.

ASCOLIA, Feaſts that the Peaſants of Attica celebrated in honour of Bacchus, ſacrificing him a Buck, becauſe this Beaſt is a great deſtroyer of Vineyards; they fill'd up the Skin, and took pleaſure to ſtand upon it with one Foot, holding the other up in the Air that they might fall. Suidas, Pollux, Virgil.

ASCOLI ſur Tronti, or Aſculum in Picenis, an Epiſcopal City of Italy: The Inhabitants whereof having enter'd into League with the Romans in the Marſic War, grew weary of their Government, and plotted the death of the two Conſuls on the Latin Holy-days; but being diſcover'd, they openly kill'd the Proconſul, his Lieutenant Fonteius, and all the Romans that were in their City, and then betook themſelves to Arms, in the year of Rome 663. but being worſted, their City was laid in Aſhes; and being repair'd, was one of them that became the Temporal Demeſnes of the Pope. Leander Albert's Deſcription of Italy.

ASCOLI di Satriano, a City of Italy, in the Kingdom of Naples, a Principality, and Biſhop's See, under the Archbiſhop of Beneventum: It lies in Puglia at the foot of the Mountains, towards the farther Principality. Near this Place, C. Fabritius, the Roman Conſul, fought with Pyrrhus King of the Epirotes, in the year of Rome 476. In the 12th Century it was ruin'd by Roger Guichard, but ſoon repair'd, though at preſent of little conſideration. See the following Aſcoli.

ASCOLI, Lat. Aſculum Picenum, an Epiſcopal City in Italy, in the Territories of the Church, on the River Tarennum, well built, and fortified at the foot of the Mountains, divided into four parts, having two Ancient Caſtles, 100 ancient Towers, 6 Bridges. 9 Gates. It was taken in 485. from the Piceni, whoſe Capital it was; made more famous by the Battel between Fabritius and Pyrrhus King of Epirus, and after this the Seat of the Bellum Sociale under Popedius, which ſhook the Roman Commonwealth; in the end of which War it was ruin'd. It is 20 miles W. from the Adriatick Sea, 9 S. of Montalto, and 18 N. of Firmo. Pope Nicholas IV. was born here. Baudr.

ASCONIUS Pedianas, an excellent Grammarian of Padua, living in the Reign of Auguſtus, and a particular Friend of Virgil and Livy. 'Tis this Aſconius who is ſuppos'd to have wrote thoſe curious Remarks upon ſeveral Orations of Tully, which are ſo much valu'd: We have loſt a good part of theſe Notes, which were written for the uſe of his own Children. 'Tis probable that there was another Aſconius Pedianus, who wrote ſeveral Pieces of Hiſtory, and is cited by Pliny. Some Authors ſuppoſe 'em but one; but 'tis more likely that the Hiſtorian was the Son of the other. Euſeb. Chron. Scaliger in Animad. Voſſius Tib. 1. de Hiſt. Lat.

ASCOUGH, (William) Biſhop of Sarum, and Confeſſor to King Henry VI. He was dragg'd from the High Altar by Jack Cade's followers, as he was officiating, and barbarouſly Murder'd upon a Neighbouring Hill, where they ſtripp'd his Body ſtark naked, June 29. 1450.

ASCRAZAPES, King of Aſſyria, ſucceeded Ophratanes, in the year of the World 3050. 'Twas in the Reign of this Aſcrazapes or Anatyndaraxes, (for ſo he is alſo call'd) that Jonas Preach'd Repentance to the City of Niniveh. Some Chronologers place this Converſion of Ninivites under Sardanapalus; but the circumſtances of Time and Perſon agree much better with the other. Euſeb. Calviſ. Chron.

ASDRUBAL, Son of Mago, defeated firſt in Africa by Attilius Regulus, and after that by Cæcilius Metellus, near Palermo in Sicily, where he had 26 Elephants kill'd, and 104 taken, which were carried to Rome firſt, and then led about all over Italy.

ASDRUBAL, Amilcar's Son-in-Law, Hannibal's Father, govern'd Spain 8 years, and rais'd the Reputation of Carthage more by his Cunning than Courage. He was ſtabb'd in the midſt of his Guards by a Barbarian Slave, whoſe Maſter he had put to death; who being apprehended, appear'd undaunted, and derided the moſt cruel Torments of his Executioners. Cornelius Nepos in Amilcar.

ASDRUBAL, the Brother of Hannibal, another Carthaginian General, who having enter'd Italy with a numerous Army, and being come as far as Piacenza, with a Reſolution to join his Brother Hannibal, was there ſurprized, and utterly defeated by Claudius Nero, and Livius Salinator, with the loſs of his own Life, 50000 of his Men ſlain, and 5000 taken Priſoners. His Head was cut off, and thrown into Hannibal's Camp, which he beholding, cry'd out, I now doubt no longer of the Ruine of Carthage. Liv. Flor.

ASDRUBAL, Son of Giſco, a Carthaginian General in the third Punick War, being driven out of Spain, return'd into Africa, and by giving his Daughter Sophonisba to Syphax King of Numidia, engaged him in the common Quarrel, ſo that when Scipio Æmilianus beſieged Utica, he aſſiſted his Father-in-Law with 100000 Men, but were both utterly defeated. Tit. Liv. Eutrop. Florus.

ASDRUBAL, Sirnam'd Hædus, a noble Carthaginian, and one of thoſe that were ſent to Rome to ſue for Peace, after Hannibal was beat by Scipio, and was ſo fortunate as to obtain a Truce for 40 years, which was afterwards broke by the Carthaginians themſelves. This Peace or Truce was concluded in the year of Rome 605. upon Terms very diſadvantageous to the Carthaginians. Aſdrubal took the Field with 200000 Men, harraſſing the Roman Quarters violently, and ſparing no body he could ſurprize. This happen'd in the year 606. The year after Scipio the Younger being arrived in Italy, forc'd Aſdrubal to quit the Field, and took the Garriſon of Nephera from him, with the loſs of 60000 Carthaginians. After this misfortune, Aſdrubal retir'd to Carthage, which was taken by Scipio in the year of Rome 608. Then this unfortunate General threw himſelf into Æſculapius's Temple, a place of impregnable Situation, where he defended himſelf for ſome days; but finding he could not hold out long for want of Proviſions, ſurrender'd to Scipio. Aſdrubal's Lady cut her own and Children's Throats before her Husband's Face, chooſing rather to periſh in the Temple, than to fall into the Enemy's Hands. Livy, Eutrop. Florus.

ASELLA, a Roman Lady of great Quality and Virtue. She liv'd about the year 380. and was one of thoſe Ladies who conſulted St. Jerome about the meaning of the Holy Scriptures, which ſhe ſtudied with great application. Hieron. Epiſt. ad Marcel.

ASELLATA, and Hamata, the Names of two Factions in Belgium, that plagu'd the Country for 200 years; firſt rais'd by Margaret, Siſter to William, Count of Holland, and Wife to Count Lewis of Bavaria, who ſucceeding her Brother, brought to the Houſe of Bavaria the Counties of Hainault, Zealand, and Holland, and introduced Lewis of Bavaria, which gave riſe to many Troubles, that continu'd till Philip Duke of Burgundy was declar'd Heir to Jacoba Daughter to William IV. who was firſt Married to John Duke of Brabant, and afterward being Divorced, was Married to the Duke of Glouceſter, whom Philip of Burgundy vanquiſh'd.

ASELLIUS, (Gaſpar) of Cremona, a Learned Phyſician, who flouriſhed about the year 1630. and was the firſt that found out the Milky Veins in Man's Body, whereof he writ a Book, publiſhed in 1627. Entituled, De Venis Lacteis, quarto vaſorum Meſeraicorum genere. Vander Linden de Scriptis Medicor.

ASGAR, a Province of Fez in Africa, towards the Weſtern Coaſt, joining to the Province of Hasbat: The richeſt part of Africk for Corn, Cattel, Wooll, Leather, and Butter. It's chief Cities are Araſch, and Alcaſar-quivir.

ASHBEY, or Aſhby de la Zouch, a Market Town and Barony of Weſt-Goſtcoat Hundred in the North-Weſt of the County of Leiceſter, bordering upon Derbyſhire, belonging to the Earls of Huntington, 89 miles from London, Market on Saturdays.

ASHDOD, a City, formerly one of the Principalities of the Philiſtines, afterwards a Biſhoprick, Suffragan of Cæſarea, but now a ſmall Village called Alzette by the Turks.

ASHER, Son of Jacob by Zilpah, Leah's Handmaid, liv'd 226 years, and died A. M. 2413. His Father Bleſſing him, told him, his Land ſhould be Fat, and yield Royal Dainties.

ASHFORD, a Market Town of Chart Hundred in the South-Eaſt Parts of Kent, 48 miles from London, Market on Saturdays.

ASIA, one of the largeſt Quarters of the World; ſo call'd by the Greeks, from the Nymph Aſia, Daughter of Oceanus and Thetys, the Wife of Japhet: Or, as others ſay, from one Aſius, Son of Cotys, Grandchild of Maneus a Lydian. This part of the World was firſt Peopled; here the Law of God was firſt promulgated, and Chriſt appeared in the Fleſh. In this Quarter many of the greateſt Monarchies in the World have had their riſe. From hence all Arts and Sciences derive their Original; as alſo almoſt all the ſeveral Religions that have been practis'd in the World; as Paganiſm in Aſſyria, Judaiſm among the Jews, Chriſtianiſm in the Holy Land, and Mahometiſm in Arabia. On the North 'tis bounded by the Northern, Frozen, Scythian, or Tartarian Sea; on the Eaſt by the Sea of China; on the South by the Seas of India and Arabia; and on the Weſt 'tis divided from Africa by the Red Sea, and the Streights of Babel Mandel. 'Tis parted from Europe by the Archipelago, the Streight of Caffa, the Lake Mæotis, the River Don, and a Line from Don to the River Obi. From the Helleſpont to the City Malaca, the fartheſt part of India in the Levant Sea, it extends it ſelf 1300 German Leagues; from Eaſt to Weſt, i. e. from the Archipelago to the Ocean of China 1750. and from North to South, i. e. from Malaca to the Sea of Tartary 1550. The Ancients uſually divided it into the Greater and Leſſer: The Greater comprehending the Aſiatick Sarmatia, Scythia, Gedroſia, Carmania, Drangiana, Arachoſia, Sogdiana, Bactriana, Hyrcania, Margiana, Parthia, Perſia, Suſiana, Media, Albania, Iberia, Colchis, Armenia, Meſopotamia, Aſſyria, Arabia, Syria, India on both ſides the Ganges, Paleſtine, Phœnicia, Cappadocia, Cilicia, Galatia, Pontus, Bithynia, Lycia, Pamphylia, &c. The Leſſer containing Phrygia, Myſia, Lydia, Caria, Æolis, Ionia, and Doris. But Modern Writers divide the whole among Five particular Monarchies, viz. The Grand Signior, the King of Perſia, the Great Mogul, the Emperor of China, and the Cham of Tartary: Aſia Minor, which is Natolia, is under the Grand Signior, bounded by the Mediterranean, the Black Sea, the Archipelago, the Sea of Marmora, and Euphrates. By the Moderns it is divided into four Beglerbegſhips or Prefectures: The firſt (which lies upon the moſt Weſtern Parts of the Egean or Mediterranean Sea) containing Bithynia, Phrygia, Lydia, Paphlagonia, Myſia, Caria, Ionia, Æolis, and part of Galatia. The ſecond (which is the moſt Northern part) comprehending the other part of Galatia, Pontus, and Cappadocia. The third (toward the South of the Mediterranean) including Cilicia, Pamphylia, and Lycaonia. And the fourth (lying Eaſtward next Euphrates) containing the Leſſer Armenia of the Ancients. After the Deluge, the Empire of the Aſſyrians began in this part of the World by Belus or Ninus, and continued to Sardanapalus; then it paſs'd to the Medes by Arbaces to Aſtyages; to the Perſians by Cyrus to Darius; to the Grecians and Macedonians by Alexander the Great. The Parthians alſo eſtabliſh'd a very powerful Empire, which ended under Alexander Severus, and paſs'd again to the Perſians, until it was deſtroy'd by the Turks and Saracens; but it flouriſh'd again about 1515. under Iſmael. The Air of this great part of the World is very temperate; and if we conſider its Gold, Silver, Rarities, Fruit, plenty of Corn, Simples, Drugs, &c. (all which will be ſpoken in their particular places) we ſhall readily judge it the richeſt part of the whole World. Strabo, Plin. Herodot. Cluvier, Sanſon, du Val, Baudr. Merula.

ASINARA, now Zanara, formerly call'd Hercules's Iſland, an Iſland of Italy Weſt of Sardinia, reaching Northward 28 miles in Circuit, belonging to the Town of Saſſari, from which it is 15 miles to the North. It has a good Caſtle, and is memorable for the defeat of the Genoueſe by the Arragons in a Sea-fight near to it. Anno 1409. Baudr.

ASINARIA, a Solemnity kept by the Syracuſians, in memory of the Victory gain'd over Nicias and Demoſthenes, two Athenian Generals, who were taken near the River Aſinarius in Sicily, now call'd la Falconara. Plut. in Vit. Nic.

ASINDUM, or Medina Sidonia, a Town of Andaluſia, and a Dukedom belonging to the Family of the Guſmans, ſeated upon a Hill between Cadiz and Munda, 17 Leagues South of Seville.

ASINIUS Pollio, a Roman Orator in the Reign of Auguſtus, and Conſul with Domitius Calvinus, in the year of Rome 714. He Triumph'd over the Dalmatians, and was very ſerviceable to Mark Antony, joining him with 7 Legions. After the Peace at Brunduſium between Antony and Cæſar, he lay quiet, and refuſed to accompany Cæſar to the War of Actium, for the Love he bore to Antony. He wrote a Hiſtory in 17 Books, and left behind him ſeveral Orations and Tragedies. Auguſtus writing Verſes againſt him, preſs'd him to anſwer them; to which he reply'd, He would never write Verſes againſt a Man, in whoſe Power it was to Proſcribe him. He died in the 80th year of his Age, in the 159th Olympiad, and the 47th of Auguſtus his Reign. Voſſius, Geſner.

ASINIUS Gallus, Son of Aſinius Pollio, hated by Tiberius, firſt for marrying Vipſania his Wife, whom he lov'd, tho' oblig'd by Auguſtus to quit her for Julia; ſecondly, for ſtanding up in the Senate, and telling him he might chuſe which Part he pleaſed, when, out of pretended Modeſty, he deſired to know of the Senate what Part of the Government he ſhould aſſume: For which Gallus afterward in vain endeavoured to appeaſe him; but not being able to compaſs it, ſtarv'd himſelf voluntarily, as ſome ſay; tho' others affirm he was forced upon this Puniſhment. He wrote a Compariſon between his Father and Cicéro, preferring the firſt, which the Emperor Claudius anſwered. Tacitus, l. 1.

ASKRIG, an inconſiderable Market-Town in the North-Riding of Yorkſhire, 175 miles from London.

ASLAN, General of the Tartars, who, in the beginning of the laſt Age, made ſeveral Incurſions into Muſcovy and Poland; and having dethron'd Sat in 1525. was elected Cham in his room. But Sat flying to Conſtantinople for the Grand Seignior's Protection, Aſlan encamped at the Head of 60000 Horſe upon the Boriſthenes, with the King of Poland's Leave, watching the Motions of the Turks; but they not ſtirring, in 1533. he raiſed a War againſt the Muſcovites, and died ſoon after. Neugebeau Hiſt. ae Pologne.

ASMODAI, a Name the Jews give to the Prince of the Devils, as we may ſee in the Chaldaick Paraphraſe upon Eccleſiaſtes, chap. 1.

ASOPH, Aſaphi, Saffia, or Azaphi, a Sea-Port in the Kingdom of Morocco, 5 Leagues South of Cape Contini, which anciently was the moſt Southerly Port known on this Shoar. It was built by the Africans, and contained about 4000 Families in the Nubian Geographer's time. The Soil about it is very fertile, but the Inhabitants know not how to improve it: The Portugueſe taking advantage of the Diſorders thoſe People were in, fortified their Factory, and being furniſh'd with Ammunition and Cannon, pick'd a Quarrel with a Townſman, and ſlew him; and after that, 150 more, who would have reveng'd his Death. The King of Portugal hereupon ſent 5000 Men, who joining the Arabians, conquer'd moſt of the Kingdom of Morocco, and laid waſte many of their flouriſhing Cities. Leo Africanus. It lies in Lat. 32. 00. The next Port is Sancta Cruz.

ASOPH, a City ſituate not to the North of the Tanais on the Crim ſide, but to the South by Circaſſia, upon a riſing Ground near the Palus Mæotis, and not built upon an Iſland, (as ſome have falſly writ:) It's found, by the lateſt and correcteſt Obſervations, to be 51 Degrees North Latitude. When the Czar of Muſcovy laid ſiege to it in 1695. it was begirt with an irregular Wall, ſtrengthen'd with ſeveral old-faſhion'd Towers, whereof the two oppoſite ſides ſtood almoſt parallel with the River: In the middle of that ſide that looked to the Eaſt, there was a great and very high Tower, beſides another Fortification in the form of a Citadel for the Gariſon: The Wall form'd many Angles on the Eaſt-ſide, and had one Bulwark only on that of the Weſt. The Turks had moreover added, as it were, a new Wall to it, which conſiſted of Earth, and four high Bulwarks, with a Ditch, not well built. The two Bulwarks to the South-Eaſt ſtood near enough to one another, and over-againſt the Hill that Commanded the City: The third to the South-Weſt was at a good diſtance from the other two; and the fourth to the Weſt yet farther from the third. The Curtain between the two laſt Bulwarks had an obtuſe Angle in the middle: There was alſo ſuch another Angle to the Curtain that looked to the Eaſt, and touch'd upon the River, with Paliſado's along the Shoar. A little above the City ſtood two ſquare Stone-Towers, one on each ſide of the River, which, by a thick Chain that croſs'd it and their Artillery, could hinder the Coſſacks Barks to paſs by, who were wont in the Night to go a robbing upon the Black Sea. The Czar laid ſiege to it in Perſon, in the year 1695. but turn'd the Siege into a Blockade for that Winter: He renewed the Siege the following year, beat the Turkiſh Fleet near it, and ſoon after the Town ſurrendred to him upon Articles. The Czar has ſince fortified it very much; for where the above-mention'd obtuſe Angle is, they have added two New Bulwarks, and enlarged and mended the Old, according to the Art of Modern Fortification: They have raiſed an Half-moon between each Bulwark, and a Counterſcarp by the Ditch; as alſo a Cover'd-way on the other ſide, from whence they have drawn a Line to the top of the Hill that Commands the City; for the defence of which Line, they have built a Fort. They have likewiſe erected a new Fortreſs over-againſt Aſoph in the Moraſs, with which it has a Communication by a Bridge of 30 Arches. The City, which is in the middle, they have named St. Peter; and the Body of the Place conſiſts of 6 Bulwarks; the 2 firſt face the River, with an Half-moon between them: The Bulwarks on each ſide of them ſtand near one another; and the 2 laſt, that look to the North, are farther diſtant, and have 3 Half-moons: They have raiſed the Ground, that ſo it may Command Aſoph; and when the Wind is Southerly, the Moraſs is all under Water; ſo that there is no coming at the Fortreſs but by the way of the Bridge: The Czar has alſo been indefatigable in making the Harbour fit for the receiving of large Men of War. So that upon the whole, Aſoph, if conſider'd in reſpect to its vaſt Strength and commodious Situation, may be reckon'd one of the moſt conſiderable Places in the known World; and undoubtedly his Czariſh Majeſty, for all the Pretenſions of the Turks to have it reſtor'd them, will never be brought unto it, but rather venture a War with the Mahometans for the detention of a Place he ſo much values, and may be of ſo much real Uſe and Benefit to him.

ASOPUS, a River of Achaia call'd Arhon; 'tis one of the Branches of the River Scephiſus. There's another River of the ſame Name in Peloponneſus, near the Promontory of Malea; and a third in Aſia, hard by Laodicea. Strabo l. 8. Pauſan. l. 2.

ASPAR, (Patricius) General to Theodoſius the Younger in 425. He ſet his Father Ardaburus at Liberty, who had been taken Priſoner by John the Tyrant of Ravenna; but was beat by the Vandals in Africk. After his return he grew ſo Powerful, that the Emperor Leo Iſauricus being afraid of him, gave his Daughter Ariadne in Marriage to one of his Sons, to gain his Friendſhip: But growing ſtill more inſolent, and being alſo a profeſs'd Arrian, the Emperor put him and his Father to death in 471. Marcell. in Chron.

ASPASIA, born at Miletum, and Daughter of Axiochus, flouriſh'd in the 87th Olympiad. She was a Perſon of great Learning, Elocution, and Beauty: Theſe Qualities in conjunction, captivated the Athenian General Pericles to that degree, that after ſome unreputable Correſpondence between them, he was perſuaded to marry her. She had ſo much the Aſcendant over him, that ſhe put him upon a War againſt Samos, who at that time diſputed the Town of Pryene with the Miletians. In ſhort, Pericles took Samos about the year 313. of Rome. This Aſpaſia likewiſe was part of the occaſion of the Peloponneſian War. Plut. in Vit. Pericl. Athenæus, &c.

ASPENDIUS, a famous left-handed Harper, who touch'd the Strings with ſo delicate and ſmooth a Stroke, that he could ſcarcely be heard by any body but himſelf: From whence the Grecians uſed to ſpeak Proverbially of Thieves, That they were Aſpendian Harpers, becauſe they lov'd to do their Buſineſs without noiſe. Aſconius in Orat. in Varr.

ASPENDUM, a City of Pamphylia, upon a high Hill, overlooking the Sea, tho' a pretty way diſtant from it, built by the Argives, the place where they offer'd Sows in Sacrifice to Venus, being the firſt Beaſt Mopſus the Builder thereof met with, after he had vow'd to ſacrifice the firſt living Creature he met to that Goddeſs.

ASPER, a little Piece of Silver Coin in Turkey, about the value of 8 or 9 Deniers French, which amounts to about 2 d. Engliſh. Ricaut.

ASPERUM Mare, part of the Æthiopian Sea, between Aromata and the Iſland of St. Laurence, now call'd Coſte de Melinde.

ASPHALTITES, a Lake of Judæa, ſo call'd from the great Flakes of Bitumen that continually boil up in it, the place where Sodom and Gomorrah ſtood, that were deſtroy'd with Fire from Heaven. It is alſo call'd the Dead Sea, becauſe no Fiſh will live in it, and Birds flying over it drop down dead. 'Tis 580 furlongs in length, and 150 broad, 35 miles Eaſt of Jeruſalem, and receives the River Jordan into it, environ'd with Mountains. Joſeph. lib. Ant. Jud.

ASSARACUS, Son of Tros and Calirrhoe: He was Father of Capys, and Grandfather of Anchiſes. He is well known in Homer and Virgil.

ASSASINIANS, a Mahumetan People that poſſeſs'd 10 or 12 Cities near Tyre in Phœnicia. They choſe a King among themſelves, whom they call'd The Ancient of the Mountains, and bred up their Youth to aſſaſſinate whom they pleas'd; whence they had their Name. They paid a yearly Tribute to the Knights-Templers, and offer'd to turn Chriſtians, if they would acquit them of it; but the Knights-Templers refus'd, which had no ſmall Influence on the Ruine of Religion in the Eaſt. Authors ſpeak diverſly of theſe People; ſome ſay they were an Order of Mahumetan Knights; that they call'd the place they liv'd in Paradiſe, paſſing their time in all manner of Pleaſures and Delight; and holding that they ſhould enjoy more ſolid Satisfaction in the other Life, freely expos'd themſelves to all Dangers. They aſſaſſinated Lewis of Bavaria in 1231. and in 1252. ſent Preſents to St. Lewis of France then in Syria. In 1257. Haloen, the Cham of Tartary, took their Towns, and put their Ancient of the Mountains to death. Guillaume de Tyr. Hiſt. Orient.

ASSEFS, a ſort of Magiſtrates in Perſia, which the Sophy diſpatches into his reſpective Provinces in the place of ſome of the Kans, which he has ſet aſide, becauſe of the numerouſneſs of their Under-Officers and Retinue, which came up almoſt to the Royal Grandeur, and conſum'd a great part of the Revenue of the Provinces. Tavern. Voyage de Perſ.

ASSER, a Rabbin, living in the 4th Century, about the year 370. He was Author of the Babylonian Talmud, which notwithſtanding was not finiſh'd by him, ſome others having a hand in this Work about the year 500.

ASSERIM, a Caſtle well fortified upon a Mountain in the Kingdom of Cambaya, in the Dominions of the Great Mogul, 15 Spaniſh Leagues Eaſt of the Indian Sea, and as many South of Surat; in the poſſeſſion of the Portugueſe, and by them call'd La Roche d'Aſſerim.

ASSIDEENS, a ſort of Jews ſo call'd from Chaſidim, or Tſadikim, its Synonymon, which ſignifies Juſt: But after ſome time, the Chaſidim diſtinguiſh'd themſelves from the Tſadikim; theſe holding preciſely to the Holy Scripture, the other affecting a more eminent Degree of Sanctity than was commanded by the Law. The People had great Veneration for theſe laſt, who inſtituted Works of Supererogation, not as indifferent, but neceſſary to Salvation. It was from them that the Phariſees ſprung, and from theſe the Eſſenes, who all preach'd, That their Traditions were more perfect than Scripture; and by little and little fell into the Errors of the Sadducees, who taught, That we were not to hope for any Recompence for our Good Works in the other World, nor to fear any Puniſhment for our Crimes; and denied the Reſurrection of the Dead. 2 Macchab. 14. Vid. Joſ. Scal. & Druſium.

ASSISE, or Aſſiſi, Lat. Aſſiſium, a Town of Italy, with a Biſhop's See in Umbria: It ſtands in the Pope's Territories, and is famous for the Birth of St. Francis.

ASSOCIATION, or Portuga, an Iſland in America ſubject to the Engliſh, 14 miles Weſt of Margarita, 4 miles long, and 1 broad, yielding 3 or 4 Ships load of Salt every year; abounds with Goats and Guiacum, is naturally fenc'd with Rocks, and hath a convenient Harbour. Heylin.

ASSONAH, or Aſſonna, a Book of the Turks, which contains their Traditions: This Arabian Word ſignifies the ſame with the Jewiſh Miſna; that is to ſay, A Second Law: For the Alcoran is, as it were, the Mahometan Bible, and Aſſonah a ſupplemental Book of Traditions. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

ASSUMPTION, This City is ſeated 25. 00. Lat. 300 Leagues above Cape Mary, on the Eaſt Bank of the River Paraguay; it is commended for the Convenience of its Site, and the Number of its Inhabitants, above any City in La Plata, of which it is the Capital. About the year 1630. it had 400 Spaniſh Families, and ſome thouſands of Mulattoes. The Country is very pleaſant and fruitful, and the Air ſo temperate, that the Trees are ever green. It was built by Cavaza de Vacca, about the year 1542. Laet. p. 529.

ASSUR, or rather Aſhur, the Son of Sem: He liv'd ſome time in Shinaar with his Kinſman Nimrod; but leaving him, he built Ninive and Calah.

ASSYNT, a ſmall Country in the North of Scotland, part of the County of Roſſe on the Weſt-ſide, lying on the Deücaledon Sea to Strathnaver. The ancient Inhabitants were the Creones, or Cerones. It has a Lake called Loch-Aſſin, and on the Eaſt, Mountains of Marble and Alabaſter.

ASSYRIA, now call'd Arzerum, a large Province of Aſia, under the Grand Signior, bounded with Media, Suſiana, Meſopotamia, and Armenia; the chief Cities whereof are, Moſul, which is the ancient Ninive; Cteſiphon, the Royal Seat of the Parthians; Arbelle, now a Village, famous for Darius's Defeat by Alexander; Schiarazur towards Perſia, &c. The firſt Monarchy of the World began in Nimrod, who without diſpute was the Aſſyrian Belus; and the Country was call'd Aſſyria, from Aſſur, or Ninus his Son; for the Dynaſties of the Egyptians, and Antiquities of the Celte, Spaniards, Cimbrians, Scythians, Arabians, &c. are but Fables. Nimrod, whom prophane Authors call Belus, was its firſt King, A. M. 1879. 2175 years before Chriſt; he began his Reign at Babylon, which he built upon the Euphrates, and liv'd there 65 years. Ninus his Son ſucceeded, and remov'd the Royal Seat to Ninive, which he built upon the Tigris. Semiramis Reigned after her Husband Ninus; and Ninyas, or Zames, ſucceeded her; betwixt whom to Sardanapalus, there are none famous in Hiſtory. Arbaces revolted from this laſt King, and oblig'd him to burn himſelf at Ninive, in A. M. 3178. 876 years before Chriſt, and 100 before the firſt Olympiad. The Kings of Aſſyria are reckon'd 37 from Nimrod the firſt, to Sardanapalus the laſt; and the duration of the Monarchy is reckon'd 1300 years. The Name of King is alſo given in the Scripture to ſeveral Governours of Ninive, as Ziglath Pilnezer, &c. Juſt. Clem. Alex. St. Aug. l. 12. de Civ. Dei.

AST, Lat. Aſta, an Epiſcopal County and City of Italy, in the Dukedom of Savoy, under the Archbiſhop of Milan. This City is ſituated upon Tanare, large, and well fortified with a ſtrong new Caſtle and Citadel. The County formerly depended upon the State of Milan; but in 1531. Charles V. gave it to Charles III. Duke of Savoy. It is 15 miles off of Caſal, and 16 Weſt of Alexandria.

ASTABAR, a City of Turcomania, upon the Frontiers of Perſia, a League from the River Arras, not large, but very neat, containing four Caravanſera's, or Inns, with a Fountain to every Houſe. 'Tis alſo remarkable for its excellent Wine, and the Root Rovas in great abundance, which ſerves to dye Cloth Red, and generally uſed all over Perſia for that end; more eſpecially in the Mogul's Country: This is the only place this Root grows in; it's ſmall, and ſomewhat like Liquorice; whole Caravans come to Ormus to buy and ſend it to the Indies. It gives ſuch a ſtrong and quick Tincture, that an Indian Bark laden with ſome, being ſplit upon the Rocks, the Seas all along the Coaſt appear'd red for a long time. Tavern. Hiſt. de Perſia.

ASTACHAR, Lat. Aſtacara, a City in Perſia, near the River Bendimir.

ASTARAC, or Eſtarac, Aſtaracum, & Aſtaracenſis Tractus, a little Country of France in Gaſcoigne: It gives a Title to an Earl, and lies between Armagnac and Bigorre.

ASTAROTH, an Idol of the Philiſtines, which Samuel commanded the Jews to pull down. It was alſo the Name of the falſe Deity of the Sidonians, ador'd by Solomon when he turn'd Idolater. The Word ſignifies a Flock of Sheep and Riches: And ſome ſay, That as Jupiter Ammon was ador'd under the ſhape of a Ram; ſo Juno Ammon, or the Moon, was worſhipp'd under the Form of an Ewe. But others believe that Aſtaroth was King of Syria, thus call'd for his great Wealth. Tho. Goodwin de ritibus Hebræorum.

ASTARTE, a certain Heathen Divinity, call'd in Scripture the Goddeſs of the Sidonians. Solomon, in complaiſance to his Concubines, built Altars to this Idol. 'Tis generally thought that Aſtarte is the ſame with Atergatis, or Derceto, ſo much worſhipp'd by the Syrians. Tully believes this Goddeſs to be one of the four Venus's, and the ſame that marry'd Adonis. Ælian. Tertul. in Apologet. Cic. de Nat. Deor. l. 3.

ASTER, a Citizen of Olynthus, who ſhot out one of Philip of Macedon's Eyes, as he beſieg'd Methon, having writ upon the Arrow, Aſter ſends this Arrow to Philip. Plut. in Philip.

ASTERABATH, or Starabath, Aſterabaſia, a Town and Province of Perſia, in Tabareſtan, towards the Caſpian Sea. See Olearius.

ASTERIA, Daughter of Cœa, Latona's Siſter; ſhe fled from the amorous Purſuits of Jupiter, and was turn'd into a Quail. Ovid. Metam. l. 6.

ASTERIUS, King of Crete, Son of Apteras: He ſucceeded his Brother Lapithas, and continued the Syrian War which his Brother had begun, bringing away by force Europa, Agenor's Daughter; and his Sirname being Taurus, the Poets feign'd that Jupiter in the ſhape of a Bull run away with her. He had three Sons, Minos, Sarpedon, and Rhadamanthus. Herodot. l. 4.

ASTERIUS, an eloquent Defender of the Arrians in the Reigns of Conſtantine and Conſtans, call'd by St. Athanaſius the Arrians Advocate. Yet they durſt not prefer him to Orders, for fear of expoſing Themſelves and Cauſe, he having openly ſacrificed to Idols, in the Reign of Maximianus Hercules. Herman. vie St. Athan.

ASTERIUS, Biſhop of Amaſia in Pontus: He lived towards the end of the 4th Century. Photius has preſerved us ſome Extracts of his Sermons, or Homilies. Rubenius publiſh'd five of his Homilies at Amſterdam, in the year 1608. which are ſince inſerted into the Bibliotheca Patrum. Combeſis, a Dominican, publiſh'd ſeven other Homilies of this Author, in the year 1648. 2d Council of Nice, Act. 4. & 6. Phot. Cod. 271.

ASTERIUS, Biſhop of Petra in Arabia, in the 4th Century, was firſt engaged in the Arrian Party, but afterwards came over to the Catholicks at the Council of Sardica. His holding conſtant to the Orthodox Belief, occaſion'd his Baniſhment into Libya, where he was ill treated: Afterwards, in the year 362. he aſſiſted in the Council held by Athanaſius at Alexandria, and was from thence diſpatch'd to Antioch, to reconcile the Differences of that Church. Hilar. Athanaſ. ad Solit. Baron. in Annal.

ASTLEY, (Sir Jacob) of Melton-Conſtable in the County of Norfolk, Kt. Bar. Eldeſt Son of Sir Edward Aſtley and Elizabeth, Daughter of Jacob Lord Aſtley, Baron of Reading; Marry'd Blanch, Daughter of Sir Philip Woodhouſe, of the ſaid County, Bar. This Sir Jacob is Lineally deſcended from Philip de Aſtley, who was poſſeſs'd of Lands at Aſtley and Hillmorton, in the County of Warwick, in the Reign of King Henry I. from which Philip, Thomas Lord Aſtley deſcended; who was ſo unhappy as to be miſled into the Intereſt of Simon Montford, Earl of Leiceſter, with whom he was ſlain at the Battel of Eveſham, in the Reign of King Henry III. The Mannor and Lands at Hillmorton above-mention'd, have continued in the Family of the Aſtleys ever ſince the time of Henry I. and are at preſent in the Poſſeſſion of Sir Jacob Aſtley, who is deſcended from the aforeſaid Thomas Lord Aſtley, by Editha his ſecond Wife, Siſter and Coheir of Sir Peter Conſtable of Melton in the County of Norfolk; which ſaid Editha gave her Lands in Melton, and ſeveral other adjacent Towns, to her Son Stephen Aſtley, in 1236. which Eſtate has, without Alienation, come down to the preſent Sir Jacob Aſtley, who is the Seventeenth in Deſcent, ſince the Aſtleys remov'd from Warwickſhire to Melton-Conſtable in Norfolk. There was of this Family one Sir John Aſtley, in the 17th of King Henry VI. famous for maintaining a Duel on Horſeback againſt one Peter de Maſſie, a French-man: This Combat, at which Charles King of France was preſent, was fought at Paris, Sir John Aſtley coming off with a full Advantage. Afterwards, in the 20th of King Henry VI. he engaged in another ſingle Fight with Sir Philip Boyle, an Arragonian, who had been ſent into France by the King his Maſter, to find out ſome Perſon of Courage and Character to encounter with; but not meeting with an Anſwer to his Challenge, he came into England, where Sir John undertook him in Smithfield, the King and Court being Spectators: This Duel was managed on Foot, with Battle-Axes, Swords, and Daggers; in which Aſtley perform'd ſo well, that he was Knighted by the King, and had 100 Marks per Annum ſettled upon him for Life: And afterwards giving further Proofs of his Bravery, was made Knight of the Garter. Jacob Lord Aſtley, Baron of Reading above-mention'd, was a younger Son of Iſaac Aſtley of Melton-Conſtable, Eſq; and Mary, the Daughter of Edward Walgrave, Eſq; He was bred to the Profeſſion of Arms, and was Major-General of all the Engliſh Forces in the Service of the United Provinces: He likewiſed ſerved the King of Denmark againſt the Emperor; afterwards he was made Serjeant-Major-General of all the Engliſh ſent over, under the Command of the Marqueſs of Hamilton, to the Aſſiſtance of Guſtavus Adolphus, King of Sweden, againſt the Emperor: In all which Honourable Poſts, he acquitted himſelf to general Satisfaction. Upon his Return for England, the unhappy Diviſions here, call'd him again to Action for the Defence of his King and Country: In the firſt Expedition againſt the Scots, he was made Major-General of the King's Army, Commanded by the Earl of Arundel: He had the ſame Poſt in the ſecond Expedition againſt Scotland, under the Earl of Northumberland, and was likewiſe made Governour of Plimouth: And when the Rebellion in England broke out, he had his old Poſt of Major-General of the King's Army; in which Command, both at Edgehill, Brentford, Gloceſter, Newbury, Cropredy-Bridge, Leſtithiell, &c. he behaved himſelf with great Courage and Conduct. He was likewiſe Governour of the Garriſons of Oxford and Reading, and one of the Principal Directors of His Majeſty's Military Affairs. In conſideration of which eminent Services, he was, in the year 1644. created Baron of Reading, to him and his Heirs. He died at Maidſtone in Kent, in 1652. The Arms of this Family are, Azure, a Cinque Foyle, Ermin, with a Border Engrayl'd Or. Dugd. Warwickſhire, Sir Edw. Walker Garter, or Principal King at Arms, &c.

ASTOMI, a People of India, about the Fountains of Ganges, hairy all over like the Downe that grows on Leaves of Trees: They are likewiſe a ſort of People who are ſaid to have no Mouth. Pliny places them in India; and others, with more probability, in the heart of Africk. The Original of this Fable about them, is derived from a Cuſtom of certain Africans beyond Senega, a Branch of the River Niger; theſe People counting it a Diſcredit to ſhew their Faces, gave occaſion to others to ſay they had no Mouths. Vin. le Blanc, Part 2. Plin. Baudr.

ASTORGUE, or Aſtorga, Lat. Aſturica Auguſta, an Epiſcopal City of Spain, in the Kingdom of Leon, formerly under the Archbiſhop of Bragua, now under the Archbiſhop of Compoſtella; ſituated in a Plain, upon the River Torto, well fortified, but thinly inhabited, having nothing conſiderable in it but a few Towers, a Market-place, and a Cathedral at the end of the Town.

ASTRACAN, now a Province ſubject to the Great Duke of Muſcovia, tho' formerly a Kingdom under a King of Tartary, upon the Frontiers of the Tartarian Deſart, toward the mouth of the River Volga. It was taken from the Tartars by John Baſilovitz, Grand Duke of Muſcovy, in 1554. 'Tis as hot there in September and October, as 'tis in France in the middle of Summer; yet in the deep of Winter, (which is not above two Months) the Weather is ſo ſevere, that the Ice on the River bears laden Traneaux, or Travelling Sledges. The Inhabitants drive a great Trade in Salt, which is of a violent Flavour, and ſold very cheap: This Salt they gather in the Iſle Dulgoi, and in the Deſarts, where there are abundance of Veins of Salt: It ſwims upon the Water an inch thick like Rock-Cryſtal, and in ſuch great quantity, that one may have as much as he pleaſes, paying but a Half-penny Cuſtom for a Poude, or 40 Pound weight; and ſome ſay that there are Mountains two Leagues from Aſtracan, where 30000 Men may work inceſſantly, without finding the bottom of ſome Salt-Mines that are there. From Aſtracan to the Caſpian Sea, the River is ſo ſtock'd with Fiſh, that the greateſt Carps are ſold for the 6th part of a Penny. There are alſo great Numbers of Tortoiſes, becauſe the Tartars nor Muſcovites never eat of them. In former Ages all Nagaya was inhabited by Tartars, who had their King, and liv'd in good Intelligence with thoſe of Crim and Cazan: But the Great Duke, John Baſilovitz, having reduced the Tartars of Cazan under his Obedience in 1552. attack'd thoſe of Nagaya; two years after, made himſelf Maſter of Aſtracan, whence he drove the ancient Inhabitants, and Peopled it with Muſcovites, who alſo inhabit all the Walled Towns of the Country, keeping the Tartars in their Tents and Huts in the open Field, leſt they might rebell. In 1558. the Caſtle of Aſtracan was neither ſtrong nor fair, but wall'd with Timber; the Czar had order'd that Wall to be pull'd down, and rebuilt with Freeſtone; and they were then doing it. The Town was alſo wall'd with Earth and Timber, but the Buildings within it left baſe and ſimple. The Air ſtunk by reaſon of the great quantity of Sturgeon taken here, on which the Inhabitants for the moſt part live; and there was then a Famine and a Plague in the Town, occaſion'd by a vaſt number of Naked Tartars who died about the Town of Hunger, and were left unburied. This was then the fartheſt Fortreſs the Ruſſians had towards the South-Eaſt. In the year 1596. Selim ſent an Army of 25000 Horſe, and 30000 Janizaries, againſt this City, to which 80000 Crim-Tartars join'd themſelves, the far greateſt part whereof periſh'd, without doing the Ruſſians any conſiderable Damage. In the year 1574. this Kingdom was invaded by an Army of 70000 Turks and Tartars; but Winter, and the News of a great Army from Muſcow, forced them to retreat without any Succeſs, after they had beſieged Aſtracan 6 Weeks. But the Crim-Tartars made themſelves Maſters of it in the year 1661. and it was recovered by the Ruſſians in 1662. In 1669. it was environ'd with a ſtrong thick Stone-Wall, (not uſual in Ruſſia) and mounted with 500 Braſs Cannon, and had a ſtrong Garriſon, and Ammunition proportionable. It affords a Noble Proſpect without, having many Towers and Steeples. It is much frequented by the Tartar Nations, Perſians, Armenians, and Indians, who bring their Goods over the Caſpian Sea in ſmall Veſſels, the chief Trade here being Silks. In 1669. June 23. the ſtrong City of Aſtracan was betray'd by its own Garriſon into the hands of Stenco (Stephen) Radzin, a Rebellious Coſſac, who with intolerable Cruelty maſſacred all the Great Men and Officers that fell into his hands, and many of the Citizens that betray'd the City. It was retaken by the Czar in 1671. The Iſlands below it ſwarm with Wild-Fowl, which they catch with Hawks. It abounds with large Melons and excellent Grapes. The City of this Name is very beautiful to ſee to, having abundance of Towers and Steeples; but the Houſes within are only of Wood, and ill-built, being upon the Borders of Europe and Aſia: It's much frequented by Tartars, Muſcovites, Perſians, Armenians, and Indians, which makes it a Town of good Trade. Olearius Voyage de Moſcovie, &c.

ASTRÆA, Daughter of Jupiter and Themis, and Goddeſs of Juſtice: She came from Heaven in the Golden Age to live on the Earth; but the Wickedneſs of the Iron Age was ſuch, that ſhe fled to Heaven again, and was plac'd in the Zodiack. Heſiod. in Theog.

ASTURIES, or Aſturia, by the Spaniards Las Aſturias, a Province of Spain, between Galicia and Biſcay, divided into two Parts, Aſturia de Ovieda towards Galicia, and Aſturia de Santellano towards Biſcay. The whole Province is barren, mountainous, and but thinly inhabited. It formerly gave Title to the Eldeſt Son of the King of Caſtile. In the beginning of the 8th Age, the Chriſtians here were forced to the Mountains by the Saracens, where chuſing Don Pelagio, of the Royal Race of the Goths for their King, in 717. they again beat out the Infidels, and founded their Kingdom a new. The People of this Country ſtill retain the ſame Name they had in the Romans time: They took this Name from the River Aſtura, now call'd Iſtura, Yſtura, and Aſtura, which waſheth Leon, and falleth into the Douro. They were then divided by the Mountain Vendius into two parts: That part which lay on the North of theſe Mountains was cold, barren, and very rugged; but yet was famous for fine Saddle-Horſes. The Inhabitants were obſerved alſo to be a rude, barbarous ſort of People; ſo that Auguſtus forced them from the Mountains into the Plains, that they might be the more eaſily Civilized, after he had in Perſon Conquer'd them in the year of Rome 727. A. M. 3924.

ASTYAGES, Son of Cyaxares, and Grandchild of Phraortes, the 9th and laſt King of the Medes. He began his Reign in the 46th Olympiad, about the year of Rome 160. He dream'd, when his Daughter Mandana, whom he had married to Cambyſes, King of Perſia, was with Child, That a Vine ſprung out of her Boſom that ſpread it ſelf over all Aſia; which ſo troubled him, that he reſolv'd, by the Perſuaſion of the Magi, to kill the Infant as ſoon as born. Accordingly when Mandana was delivered of Cyrus, he ſent Harpagus, who, inſtead of deſtroying, found a way to preſerve the Child; which Aſtyages a long time after hearing of, he was ſo incens'd, that he caus'd Harpagus to eat his own Son, who, in revenge, call'd in Cyrus, who dethron'd his Grandfather, in the year of Rome 196. and 56th Olympiad; and thereby put an end to the Monarchy of the Medes, after it had continued 317 years. Herodot. Cleo. Juſt.

ASTYANAX, Son of Hector and Andromache: He was thrown (after the taking of Troy) from the top of a Tower by Ulyſſes's Order. Ovid. Met. l. 13.

ASTYNOMI, a Name which the Athenians gave to Ten Men, who had Authority to inſpect the Muſick and Behaviour of Singing-Women and Muſicians. Some ſay they were likewiſe Surveyors of the Highways. Meurſ. in Pyr. Plat. l. 6. de Repub.

ASYCHIS, King of Egypt, ſucceeded Micerinus: We can't tell preciſely in what time he lived. He made a Law, by which every one was obliged to lend a Man Money, upon condition of Pawning his Father's Corps; with this Proviſo, That the Burying of the mortgaged Corps ſhould be in the Creditor's Power. This King likewiſe built the largeſt Pyramid which was then in Egypt. Herod. l. 2.

ASYLE, a Name given to Privileged Places, whence Offenders could not be forced, without offending the Gods and Religion. Cadmus built one at Thebes, Romulus one at Rome in the Sacred Grove, between the Capitol and Palace: The Meſſenians, Lacedæmonians, and other Nations, appropriated this Privilege to their Temples. Tiberius obſerving that the greateſt Crimes paſs'd thus unpuniſhed, aboliſh'd them. Pope Boniface V. to put a greater Value upon the Chriſtian Religion, order'd that the Churches and Altars ſhould be Places of Shelter, to any that could make their eſcape to them. The Aſyles, or Privileged Places, which God permitted among the Jews, were very different from theſe other, becauſe they were but for ſuch as kill'd a Man by chance, or ſome unexpected Accident. Sueton. Plut. in Romul.

ATABALIPA, a King of Peru, of the Family of the Inca's, about the beginning of the 16th Age, and one of the moſt Magnificent Monarchs of America. He put to death one of his Brothers, and made Cuſco the Capital City of his Kingdom. He lived in Peace, having ſubdued moſt of the neighbouring People, (till Francis Piſaro, in 1525. made a Diſcovery of his Country, and ſettled in ſome of the beſt Cities thereof, occaſion'd all his Misfortunes: At firſt he offer'd him his Service, thinking thereby to entangle him; that Bait failing, he defeated and took him, uſing him very cruelly, pillaging his Treaſuries, and at laſt, contrary to his Promiſes, ſtrangled him An. 1533. which God reveng'd in a little time. Garcilaſ. de la Vega. Hiſt. de Peru.

ATALANTA, the Daughter of Schæneus, King of Scyros, extreamly ſwift of foot: She told her Suitor, That he that could out-run her, ſhould have her: Which Challenge Hippomanes, admiring her Beauty, accepted, throwing behind him, as he run, 3 Golden Apples at three ſeveral times; which ſhe ſtooping ſo often to take up, he outrun her, and ſo won her according to her own Propoſals. But they were afterwards both turn'd into Lions, becauſe, in contempt of Religion, they lay together in the Temple of Cybele. Ovid.

ATALANTA, Daughter of Jaſius, King of Arcadia: Hunting was only her Inclination. She was the firſt that wounded the Caledonian Boar, and had the Honour of Advantage ſecur'd her by Meleager. Ovid. l. 8. Metam.

ATAS, or Athas, a young Footman, who ran 60 miles in 6 hours. He lived in the Conſulſhip of Vipſanius. Plin. l. 7. c. 20. There are now in Perſia a ſort of Couriers call'd Chaters, or Foot-meſſengers, who perform their Journies with incredible expedition: They are beaten to this Trade from their Infancy, and are never admitted into the Number of theſe Meſſengers, without ſome extraordinary Performance, which is ſhewn in the preſence of the Court, and with a great deal of Solemnity. Tavern. Thevenot.

ATAULPH, Brother-in-Law to Alaric, King of the Goths, was with him at the ſacking of Rome, and ſucceeded him the next year in 410. The ſame year he plundered Rome a ſecond time, and carry'd away Placida, the Emperor Theodoſius's Daughter, and married her at Narbonne, in 414. Going into Spain he was kill'd by one of his own Men, call'd Vernulphus, at Barcelona, in 415. after he had Reigned 5 years. Genebrard. Chron.

ATE, a miſchievous and ill-natured Goddeſs, who took delight in engaging Men in Troubles and Quarrels, perverting their Underſtanding, and dulling their Reaſon. There was no way to be ſecured from her, but by having recourſe to the Lites, Daughters of Jupiter, who ſaved Men from her Anger with this Circumſtance, That the more ſhe was in Paſſion, the leſs Power they had with her, &c. This Ate is nothing elſe but the Evil and Injuſtice we commit, which is the real Source of our Trouble and Miſfortunes. The Lites are our Prayers, which we are to make uſe of in our Calamities. Laſtly, it is evident, That when our Crimes are very great, that then we meet with the greater Difficulties in obtaining our Pardon. Eraſmus in Adag.

ATELLA, an ancient Town in Campania in Italy: Here was formerly a great Amphitheatre, where the Comedies call'd Fabulæ Atellanæ were play'd: The Argument of theſe Plays were Satyr and Ridicule; but afterwards theſe Farces growing lewd and ſmutty, they were forbidden to be Acted by the Senate. Schrad. Monum. Ital.

ATEPOMARUS, a King of the Gauls, who having almoſt reduced the Romans, ſent them word, That unleſs they would reſign him their Wives and Daughters, he would farther purſue his Conqueſts. Which being underſtood by the Romans, the Maids adviſed their Maſters to ſend them in their Miſtreſſes Habits: Which Advice being follow'd, and the Gauls overcome with Wine and fallen aſleep, one of the Servants, as was agreed, gave notice to the Romans by a lighted Torch from the top of a Tower; whereupon all at once ruſhing upon the Enemy, they obtain'd a great Victory; in memory whereof, the Romans kept an Annual Feaſt, call'd The Maid's Feaſt. Plut. in Parallel.

ATERGATIS, Goddeſs of the Aſcalonites, half Woman, half Fiſh, the ſuppoſed Mother of Semiramis, who, having been deflower'd, fell into ſo deep a Melancholy, that ſhe threw her ſelf into a Lake; and being never found, it was believed ſhe was turn'd into a Fiſh. Kircher Oedipus Ægyptiacus, Tom. 1.

ATERNUM, or Peſcara, a well fortified Town in the Kingdom of Naples, in the hither Abruzzo, 15 miles Eaſt from Lanciano, and 12 from la Citta di Penna.

ATH, or Aeth, a City of the Low Countries in Hainault, not very large, but beautiful, rich, and well fortified; taken by the French in 1667. and confirm'd to them by the Peace of Aix la Chapelle; but reſtor'd to the Spaniards in 1678. ſituate upon the River Dender, upon the Borders of Flanders, 2 Leagues from Leſſine, between Mons and Oudenard. It was alſo beſieged by the French under Monſieur Catinat, in 1697. and ſurrendred to them upon Articles; but reſtored the ſame year to the Spaniards by the Peace at Reſwick.

ATHALARIC, King of the Oſtrogoths in Italy, Son of Eutharic and Amalaſuntha, ſucceeded Theodoric, under the Tutelage of his Mother, in 526. and ſhar'd with his Couſin Amalaric, King of the Viſigoths, what his Grandfather left him in Gaul, reſerving Provence to himſelf, over which he made Felix Liberius Governour, who was preſent at the Second Council of Orange, in 529. At the Requeſt of Pope Felix III. he publiſh'd an Edict for preſerving Eccleſiaſtical Privileges. At laſt the Goths, diſdaining he ſhould be under the Tutelage of a Woman, took him from his careful Mother, pretending to breed him in Military Diſcipline; but inſtead thereof, he was led into all manner of Debaucheries, which ſo waſted his Body, that he died of a Conſumption, An. 534. after a Reign of 8 years. Greg. de Tours.

ATHALIAH, Daughter of Ahab, and Mother of Ahaziah, put to death by Jehu. See more of her 2 Kings 11.

ATHAMANIA, a Country of Epire, between Acarnania, Ætolia and Theſſaly. 'Twas a Commonwealth for ſome time, and afterwards Govern'd by ſeveral private Lords: Theſe petty Princes ſurrendred to Philip, Father to Perſeus, King of Macedon. Liv. 36. & 38.

ATHAMAS, Son of Æolus, King of Thebes. He married Nephele, by whom he had Phryxus and Helle: But Nephele running mad by the impulſe of Bacchus, and wandring among the Woods, he married Ino, who proving a hard Stepmother to his Children, they betook themſelves to flight: Which ill Treatment, conniv'd at by Athamas, Juno reveng'd, poſſeſſing him with ſuch a raging Frenſie, that when Ino came to him, he thought ſhe had been a Lioneſs, and the Children her Whelps; wherefore ſnatching her Son Learchus from her Arms, he daſh'd his Brains out againſt a Rock; which Ino ſeeing, fled with her Daughter Melicerte, and threw her ſelf headlong into the Sea. Ovid. l. 4. Metam.

ATHAMAS, a River of Ætolia, of that wonderful Quality, that it would light a Torch dipp'd in it when the Moon was in the Wain. Ovid.

ATHANAGILDUS, King of the Viſigoths, murder'd Agila, againſt whom he rebell'd, and plac'd himſelf in his Throne, in 554. He had two Daughters, Geleſwintha and Brunechildis; the firſt married to Chilperic, King of Soiſſons, and the other to Sigebert, King of Auſtraſia. Iſid. in Chron. Greg. de Tours.

ATHANARIC, a Judge of the Goths towards the end of the 6th Age, the moſt Potent of all the Goths, yet refuſing the Title of King. He began his Government about the year 369. and warring with the Emperor Valens, conſtrain'd him to ſue for Peace. He was a violent Perſecuter of the Chriſtians: At laſt being expell'd by his own Subjects, he went in Perſon to Conſtantinople to beg Aid of the Emperor Theodoſius, who received him kindly; but he died within a Month after his arrival, and was magnificently buried at the Emperor's Charge. Baron. An. C. 381. Marcell. Oroſius.

St. ATHANASIUS, Patriarch of Alexandria, bred up by Alexander, Patriarch of the ſame City, a bitter Enemy to the Arrians in the Council of Nice; who joining with the Meleſians and Euſebians, and having ſlily wrought upon the Emperor Conſtantine, got him depoſed, and baniſh'd as far as Triers: Whereupon, for fear of the worſt, he fled to Conſtantine the Younger, King of France, by whom he was reſtored two years after, and form'd his Confeſſion of Faith at Alexandria. Not long after, he was a ſecond time accus'd by the Arrians, in a Synod held by them at Antioch, and again expell'd in 341. And that very year he took his ſecond Journey to Rome to Pope Julius, where he continued until his Expulſion being reverſed in the Council of Sardica in 347. and in that of Jeruſalem in 349. he returned to Alexandria: But being ſtill expoſed to new Attacks under Conſtantius, Julian, and Valens, he was at laſt forced to fly to the Deſarts, where he liv'd in Grotto's and Caves the ſix remaining years of his Life. The Orthodox Prelates that appear'd for him, were Companions of his Exile; and Pope Liberius was roughly handled, becauſe he refuſed, for ſome time, to ſubſcribe his Condemnation, which he was ready enough to do afterwards. Amongſt the Doctors of the Church, he had this Advantage whilſt he lived, That his Condemnation and that of the Orthodox Faith, paſs'd for the ſame thing. He died the 2d of May, An. 371. after he had labour'd vigorouſly in the defence of the Church 46 years. We have ſeveral Editions of his Works, whereof that of Paris in 1627. with P. Nannius's Corrections, is the moſt valued. Voſſ. Le Mire, St. Jer. Greg. Naz. Maimb. Hiſtoire d'Arrianiſm.

ATHANASIUS, Biſhop of Ancira; he lived in the 4th Century. There was another of this Name, Sirnam'd Hernioſus, an Heretical Patriarch of Alexandria, who ſucceeded Peter Mengus, in the year 491. Evag. Baron. There was likewiſe a Patriarch of Conſtantinople call'd Athanaſius in 1290.

ATHANATES, or the Immortal, a Name the Perſians gave a Body of 10000 choice Men, which was always kept compleat, by filling up the Number as ſoon as any were kill'd, or died: They had great Confidence in this Body of Men, and never engag'd them but in deſperate Caſes. Q. Curtius ſpeaks of them thus: Proximi ibant quos Perſæ Immortales vocant ad decem millia. Herodot. l. 7. Heſychius, Suidas.

ATHBOY, a well inhabited Market and Borough-Town of Leinſter in Ireland; it lies in the County of Eaſt-Meath, 8 miles S. W. of Cavan.

ATHDORA, once a fortified Town of Munſter in Ireland, about 9 miles S. of Limerick.

ATHEAS, King of Scythia, ſucceeded his Father Scyles; was a Warlike, Haughty, and Politick Prince, ſucceſsful in his War with the Triballians and Illyrians; and promis'd to declare Philip of Macedon his Succeſſor, upon condition that he would ſend him ſuch and ſuch Supplies: Which Philip agreed to; but the Supplies coming too late, Atheas ſent them back without Pay for the Expedition; which being demanded of him, he anſwer'd, Courage was all the Wealth of the Scythians. Afterwards Philip, by his Ambaſſador, deſiring leave to enter Scythia, and ſet up the Statue of Hercules at the mouth of the Danaw; he replied, That he might come alone, but not with an Army. Upon which an open War enſu'd, and the Scythians tired out the Macedonians by their continual Incurſions, and avoiding ſet Battels. Juſt. l. 9. c. 2. Oroſ. l. 3. c. 3.

ATHENÆUM, a Name by which the Ancients call'd their Publick Academies, where all ſorts of Sciences were taught. They had alſo Feſtivals call'd Athenæa, which they celebrated once in 5 years in Honour of Minerva. The Athenæum that was at Lions, where now the Abbey d'Ainai ſtands, was famous for the Plays inſtituted by the Emperor Caligula, where, near the Altar of Auguſtus, there were Prizes propos'd for Greek and Latin Eloquence: They that put in for any, and did not carry it, were forced to blot and deface their Compoſition with their Tongue; or if they would not do this, were whipp'd, or duck'd in the Soane that runs by the Town. Juvenal alludes to this, when expreſſing a certain Perſon's Fear, he compares him to one that was to walk barefoot upon Serpents; or to an Orator that was to declaim before the Altar at Lions:

Aut Lugdunenſem Rhetor dicturus ad Aram.

ATHENÆUS of Naucratis, wrote a Treatiſe of the Deipnoſophiſts, in 15 Books, epitomiz'd by Hermolaus of Byzantium, and Learnedly commented on by Iſaac Cauſabon. He alſo wrote a Hiſtory of the Kings of Aſſyria, in the Reign of Marcus Aurelius, in the ſecond Age. Cauſab. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Græc.

ATHENAGORAS of Athens, a Chriſtian Philoſopher, who ſeeing the Cruelty of the Perſecution of the Chriſtians, wrote an Apology in Defence of their Innocence, and preſented it to Marcus Aurelius Antoninus. He alſo wrote a Treatiſe of the Reſurrection of the Dead; both which have been often Printed in ſeveral places. Trithem. Bellarm.

ATHENODORUS of Tarſus: He flouriſh'd in the Reign of Auguſtus, and was Tutor to Tiberius, obtaining, as his Reward, the exemption of Tarſus from Tribute. To reſtrain the natural Impetuoſity of his Pupil, he order'd him to repeat the 24 Letters of the Greek Alphabet, before he obey'd the Dictates of his Paſſion. Euſeb. Vign. Voſſ.

ATHENS, now Setines, the Capital City of Attica, anciently a Kingdom, the Chief Seat of Learning and Valour, taking its riſe A. M. 2496. and continuing 487 years, under 17 Kings, the firſt whereof was Cecrops, and the laſt Codrus, Son of Melanthus. After that, they were Govern'd by 10 Archontes, or Rulers, during Life; then by Archontes for 10 years; and at laſt by annual Prætors. Draco firſt gave them Laws, which were too ſevere; then Solon inſtituted milder, introducing Democratical Government, in 160 of Rome, and 594 before Chriſt, 34 after Piſiſtratus uſurp'd the Soverignty; and tho' twice Baniſh'd, left the Power, after 18 years Reign, to his two Sons, Hippias and Hipparchus, who held it 14 years, until Harmodius and Ariſtogeiton, of the Family of Alcmeon, ſworn Enemies to Piſiſtratus, kill'd Hipparchus, in the 241ſt of Rome. Hippias was baniſh'd in 244. He invited in the Perſians, who in 264. loſt the Battel of Marathon, and 10 years after were defeated at Sea, near the Iſle Salamis, now call'd Coluri. After this Advantage, the Republick of Athens flouriſh'd extreamly, and became as fruitful in great Commanders and Learned Men, as any of the whole Univerſe. The Lacedæmonians, jealous of its Greatneſs, rais'd it Enemies; all Greece engag'd in the Quarrel. This was the firſt Peloponneſian War, begun by the Thebans by the taking of Platea, that belong'd to the Athenians, and ended 27 years after, in the taking of Athens by Lyſander, General of the Lacedæmonians, in the 350th of Rome, who ſettled 30 Tyrants to Govern it, which were expell'd by Thraſibulus in 353. and Democracy re-eſtabliſh'd by Pauſanias. Thus it grew Powerful again, and not only maintain'd a War againſt the Thebans and Spartans, but alſo againſt Rhodes and its ſtrong League. In 416. Philip of Macedon, after he had gain'd the Battel of Cheronea, intended to have levell'd Athens, but was diſſwaded by the Orator Damades. It ſuffer'd under Alexander the Great; and after his death, more under Antipater, Craterus, and Caſſander. Demetrius made it free again; but being refus'd ſhelter there, after his Defeat in Phrygia, he inveſted and made himſelf Maſter of the Town, after a year's Siege, in 458 of Rome. Some time after, it ſhook off the Macedonian Yoak, and put it ſelf under the Protection of Rome, until Ariſtion making himſelf Tyrant thereof, irritated the Romans, who took and plunder'd it under Scylla, in the 667th of Rome, and 87th before Chriſt. After this, Pompey permitted it the uſe of its Laws, for which Kindneſs it declar'd for him againſt Cæſar; who after the Battel of Pharſalia, when he had Power to puniſh his Enemies, ſaid, Truly the Athenians deſerve to be chaſtiz'd; yet in conſideration of the Merit of the Dead, I pardon the Living. In fine, Athens was one of the moſt famous and flouriſhing Cities in the World; all was Magnificent in it, and worth the Admiration of Poſterity. The Areopage, the Lycæum, the Academy, Porticus, Temples, and other fine Buildings, are well deſcribed in the Works of ancient Authors. St. Paul Preach'd here, and ſeveral Perſons of Note embrac'd Chriſtianiſm, as Dionyſius the Areopagite, and a Noble Lady call'd Damaris. And after that, the Church of Athens became very conſiderable; for in the ſecond Century a great number of the Athenians ſuffer'd Martyrdom, animated by the Example of their Biſhop Publius. This happen'd in 123. under Adrian, who came to Athens in 126. This City was afterwards erected into an Archbiſhoprick. Their Victories, Captains,and famous Philoſophers, ſee in their proper places. This famous City, formerly the chief Place in the known World, for all manner of polite Learning, is defended by a Citadel call'd Acropolis, inacceſſible on every ſide, ſave the Weſt; ſeated in the middle between two Hills; the one call'd Muſæum, within Cannon-ſhot; the other Ancheſmus, which has no place to mount great Guns on, being ſpired like a Sugar-loaf, and having no more compaſs on the top, ſave that in which St. George's Chapel is built, the place where formerly the Statue of Jupiter was worſhipp'd. The City is North of the Citadel, and ſo cover'd by it, that it can hardly be ſeen on that ſide next the Sea; well ſituated, and wealthy, tho' in a hot Climate, which is temper'd by the North Winds. The Inhabitants are about 10000, Greeks and Turks; the latter have 4 Moſques in the City, and one in the Caſtle. The Citizens are reckon'd Treacherous and Cunning, whence the Proverb, From a Jew of Salonica, a Greek of Athens, and a Turk of Negropont, good Lord deliver us. They ſpeak Greek and Turkiſh promiſcuouſly, and differ only in Habit, which the Greeks wear cloſer on their Bodies. Their Women, who ſeldom ſtir abroad, cover their Heads with a Veil of Calico, and throw over them a large Crimſon Velvet, or Violet-colour'd Mantle, with their Silver Claſps. The Maids never go abroad till their Wedding-day, being courted by Proxies. Upon their Nuptials they wear a large Crown of Filigram and Pearls, and are led from Church to the Bridegroom's Houſe, with Hautbeaux, Drums, and other muſical Inſtruments playing before them. The Archbiſhoprick of Athens is not worth above 4000 Crowns a year, wherefore moſt of the Jeſuits are retired to Negropont; but the Conſuls of England and France keep each of 'em a Chapel here. The Soil about it is fruitful in Wine and Olives, eſpecially thoſe call'd Colymbades, reſerv'd for the Grand Signior's own eating, being large and well taſted. The Caſtle ſtands on the North, on a deſcent from the City, in which is a magnificent, large, white Marble Temple, ſupported with beautiful Pillars of black Marble and Porphyry. On the Frontiſpiece are the Figures of Horſemen as big as the Life, prepar'd for Combat: Round about it are to be ſeen the Noble Atchievements of the ancient Greeks in Baſſo Relievo, every Figure almoſt two foot and an half high. Cloſe by this Temple is a beautiful white Marble Palace, much decay'd. At the foot of the Caſtle are 17 Columns, (18 foot about, and proportionable in height) the remainder of 300, which they ſay formerly belong'd to the Palace of Theſeus. Over the Portal, yet entire, is this Inſcription in Greek:

And another within, thus:

The City of Athens is the City of Adrian, and not of Theſeus.

Here is alſo the Fanari, or Lanthorn, of Demoſthenes, whither he retired to Study in privacy: It is a ſmall Marble Tower, with 6 Columns round it, and a Lamp with 3 Branches over the Duome, which covers it; whence perhaps it was called The Lanthorn, ſuppoſed to have been Dedicated to Hercules, by the ſeveral Figures cut in the Frizes thereof, combating in Lions Skins. Here are alſo the Ruines of the Areopagus, whoſe Glacis, or Senate-Houſe, 40 paces long, is ſupported by vaſt pieces cut out of the Rock, and pointed like a Diamond, in the midſt whereof is a kind of Speaker's Chair cut out of the Rock, with Seats round it for the Senators. Add to theſe the Remains of the Temple of Victory, built after the Ionic Order, where the Turks lay their Powder: The Arſenal of Lycurgus, and the Temple of Minerva, both of Doric Order. It was taken by Mahomet II. in 1455. but regained by the Venetians in 1687. Tavern. Voyage de Perſe, Spon Voyage d'Italie, Coronelli Deſcript. de Morée.

ATHENUM, or Athene, a Town of the Kingdom of Naples, in the hither Principate, near the River Tanagro, at the foot of the Appennine, not very large, tho' a Princedom, 9 miles Weſt of New Marſico, and 16 of Potentia.

ATHERSTON, a Market-Town in Warwickſhire, 48 miles from London; the Market kept on Tueſdays.

ATHESIS, a river of Italy, riſing out of Mount Brenn, the biggeſt of all the Alpes, in the County of Tyrol, and augmented by Eiſoc, and ſome other Rivers, and falls into the Adriatic Sea, 15 miles from Venice.

ATHIRCO, the 29th King of Scotland, making great ſhew of Valour, Ingenuity, and Bounty in his Youth, ſucceeded after his Father's death; but his Vices increaſing with his Age, he did ſo offend his People by his Avarice, Peeviſhneſs, Luxury, and Sloth, that they conſpired againſt him with Nathalocus, a Nobleman, whoſe Daughter he had deflour'd, ignominiouſly beaten with Rods, and proſtituted to his ruffianly Courtiers, that finding himſelf deſerted of all, he became his own Executioner, in the 12th year of his Reign, about the year 240. Buchan.

ATHLONE, a Barony and City of the Province of Connaught in Ireland: The Town is ſeated on both ſides of the River Shannon, about 15 miles S. E. of Roſcommon Town, in the County of Wicklow, is a Biſhop's See, and call'd the Key of Connaught; that part on the Eaſt-ſide of the River is call'd Engliſh, and the other part on the Weſt, Iriſh Athlone, which of the two was beſt fortified, when Their Majeſties Forces ſate down before it in the Month of June, 1691. under the Command of Lieutenant-General Ginkle; but its principal Strength conſiſted in its Caſtles; notwithſtanding which, it was taken, after a few days ſiege, by Storm, June 20. the Granadiers marching up to the Breaſt in Water, under the ſhelter of our Cannon, forced the Enemy from their Poſts, and in leſs than an hour made themſelves Maſters of the Town, where 1000 of the Iriſh and French were kill'd, and 500 taken Priſoners. An Action as great as any this Age has afforded, to which none can be compared but the famous Battel of the Boyne: To the good Succeſs whereof, the Prince of Heſſe-Darmſtadt, the Duke of Wirtemberg, Count Naſſau, Major-Generals Tetau, Mackay, Talmaſh, and Brigadier Bellaſis, did very much contribute by their Conduct and Bravery. His Majeſty, upon his return from Flanders, conferr'd upon Lieutenant-General Ginkle the Title of Earl of Athlone, for his good Conduct in the Reduction of that Place and the reſt of the Country.

ATHOL, Atholia, a fruitful Country in the very heart of Scotland, in the woody Paſſages of Mount Grampius, part whereof extending into a Plain at the foot of the Mountain, is call'd the Blare of Athol, which ſignifies a place without Trees. This County gives the Title of Marquiſs to the Chief of the Murrays.

ATHOS, a great Mountain of Macedon, in that part now call'd Jamboli, running out into the Ægean Sea like a Peninſula, between the Bay of Monte Santo, and the Golfo di Conteſſa, over-ſhadowing the Iſle of Lesbos 87 miles to the Eaſt. Xerxes, in his Invaſion of Greece, cauſed it to be dug a mile and half through, to make way for his Ships. 'Tis join'd to an Iſthmus 12 Furlongs broad, in which are 24 Monaſteries of Greek Monks, and is the only part of Greece where the Chriſtians pay a Reſpect to carv'd Images, they having a Marble Image of the All-Holy Virgin, call'd Panagia, plac'd upon a high point of the Rock, moſt commonly cover'd with Snow, yet reſorted to by the Devouter ſort. Herodot. l. 7. Belon. De la Guilletier.

ATHY, a Borough of Leinſter in Ireland, ſeated upon the River Barrow, in the County of Kildare, near the Borders of the Queens-County.

ATLANTIDES, the Name of thoſe Stars call'd Vergiliæ, or Hyades: They are ſaid to be the Daughters of Atlas, becauſe he firſt diſcover'd them. There are likewiſe ſome Iſlands in Africa and America of this Name, as alſo ſome People living about Atlas, mention'd by Diodorus Siculus, l. 3.

ATLAS, King of Mauritania, and Brother of Prometheus, an excellent Aſtronomer, ſuppos'd to be Contemporary with Moſes, and to have invented the Uſe of the Sphere; feign'd by the Poets to be turn'd into a Mountain, from his taking his Obſervations of the Stars upon the Mountains of Mauritania. Scaliger, Voſſius, Petau.

ATLAS, a Mountain in Africk, divided into the Greater and Leſſer: The Greater, by the Natives call'd Ayduacal, parts Barbary from Biledulgerid; the Leſſer, call'd Erif, extends it ſelf all along the Coaſt of the Mediterranean Sea, from the Streights of Gibraltar, to the Kingdom of Tunis. The Greater, in ſeveral places, is full of Deſarts, and extream cold; but where the Air is more temperate, the Towns are well Peopled. They have no Spring nor Autumn, the Winter laſting from October till April, all the reſt being Summer. The Nubian Geographer, p. 75. tells us, This Mountain, near its riſe, is called Mount Dara, which exceeds moſt of the Mountains of the World in Heighth, Fertility, Length, and the Plenty of its Caſtles and other Buildings: It begins from the Weſt Ocean in the Borders of the Kingdom of Sus to the South, and runs Eaſt as far as Tripoli, where it ends, the moſt Eaſtern part of it being called Nafsua. There is upon this Mountain above 70 Caſtles and Strong-holds, the moſt unacceſſible of which is Tanimal. The Truth is, this Mount begins at Cape de Non, or Nao, in 28. 40. Lat. between the Deſarts of Zanhaga to the South, and Teſſet to the North, and running Eaſt to almoſt 15 Degrees of Long. it turns N. E. as far as the Borders of the Kingdom of Fez, ſeparating Teſſet, Sus, and Morocco, on the Weſt from Biledulgerid, to the Eaſt at 29 Degrees of Lat. it turns N. E. and divides Barbary to the North, from Biledulgerid to the South; and tho' about Tripoli it takes the Name of Servai, yet it continues its courſe by various turnings to the Red Sea, parting the Kingdom of Nubia from Egypt, where the Nile croſſeth it. It is called Giandel, and it ends at Bugie on the Red Sea. This Mountain is inhabited ſtill by the old Natural Africans, who ſpeak their ancient Tongue, and tho' they are Tributaries to the Arabians, are ſtill under their own Princes, and ſome are perfectly free, and they continue in the Pagan Idolatry of their Anceſtors: This is alſo true of the other mountainous Countries. Leo, p. 26. They worſhip the Sun and Fire, which have had ſtately Temples, wherein they maintain'd Fires that were never ſuffer'd to go out. Marmol de l'Afric, lib. 1.

ATOSSA, Daughter of Cyrus King of Perſia; Democedes, a Greek Phyſician, cur'd her of a Diſtemper, which, by the Deſcription, ſeems to be the ſame with the French Diſeaſe. Herodot. l. 3, & 4.

ATQUANACHUQUES, a People of North-America, in the S. E. part of Virginia, toward New Belgium, now inhabited by the Engliſh.

ATRAX, or Voidanaz, a City of Theſſalia, 30 miles Weſt of Lariſſa, 60 Eaſt of Fricca, and about 50 from Mount Olympus, the Inhabitants whereof were formerly ſuch great Magicians, that Statius calls Magick Artem Atraciam.

ATREUS, Son of Pelops and Hippodamia, ſucceeded his Uncle Euryſtheus in the Kingdom of Mycenæ and Argos, A. M. 2845. The Poets feign, That being vex'd at his Brother Thyeſtes for Courting his Wife Ærope, he baniſh'd him the Court; but underſtanding that he had two Children by her, ſent for him again, and made him eat them; at which horrid Act the Sun withdrew his Light. 'Tis alſo the Title of one of Seneca's Tragedies. Ovid.

ATRI, Lat. Atria, a City of Naples in the hither Abruzzo, and a Dukedom belonging to the Family of Aquaviva; now but thinly Peopled.

ATROPALUS, a Governour of Media, under Darius Codomannus: After the Defeat of his Prince, he caſt himſelf at Alexander's Feet, and preſented him with an hundred Amazons, who were ſent back by this Prince, who would not ſuffer them to be affronted by the Soldiers. After Alexander's Death, Atropalus return'd to Media, poſſeſs'd himſelf of the Government, and left it to his Family. Strabo, lib. 11.

ATROPOS, one of the Parcæ, or Fatal Siſters, Lacheſis and Clotho were the other two.

ATTALUS I. King of Pergamus, Liberal and Courageous: He ſucceeded Eumenes in the year of Rome 512. and ſubdu'd the Galatians, extending his Conqueſts into Aſia as far as Mount Taurus. He Reign'd 43 years, and died in the 556 of Rome. Strab. T. Liv. Polyb. l. 5.

ATTALUS II. His Brother Eumenes ſent him to Rome, where accompliſhing his Embaſſie, he return'd, and was left Tutor to his Brother's Son, under whom he Reign'd 20 years. He held out Pergamus againſt Antiochus, and made him quit the Siege; and afterwards fought againſt him at Magneſia for the Romans. He alſo aſſiſted Manlius againſt the Galatians, wag'd War with Perſeus, King of Macedon, and defeated Pruſias, King of Bithynia, took him Priſoner, and deliver'd him up to his Son Nicomedes. Farther, he took Diegilus, King of Thrace, put a ſtop to the Incurſions of Demetrius, King of Syria, and utterly overthrew the Pſeudo-Philip. He built Attalia and Philadelphia in Lydia, ſent Preſents to Scipio Æmilianus before Numantium, and was ſtil'd the Friend and Ally of the Romans, and was ſlain at laſt by the Treachery of his Nephew Attalus IV. Appian, Strabo.

ATTALUS III. Sirnamed Philopater, King of Pergamus, began to Reign in the year of Rome 616. Reigned 5 years, and dying Iſſueleſs, made the Romans his Heir. Lit. Liv.

ATTALUS Arianus, Præfect of Rome, when Alaric beſieg'd it the ſecond time, againſt whom he ſo gallantly behav'd himſelf, that the Senate, in conſideration thereof, created him Emperor; whereupon growing Proud, he ſlighted the Embaſſie of Honorius, who ſent to offer him a ſhare of the Empire. However, the year following, A. C. 410. Alaric deſpoil'd him of his Empire; and being afterwards taken going into Spain, and preſented to Honorius, he only cut off one of his Hands, and pardon'd all the Soldiers that had taken his part. Oroſ. Zoſim.

ATTEIUS Capito, the Elder, a Tribune of the People, and afterward Commander of a conſiderable part of the Forces during the Wars between Auguſtus and Mark Antony. He, together with Agrippa, ſubſcrib'd the Accuſation againſt Caius Caſſius. Vell. Paterculus.

ATTEIUS Philologus, a Native of Athens, but a Latin Grammarian in the time of Auguſtus, intimately acquainted with Saluſt and Aſinius Pollio; the firſt of whom he taught Rhetorick, and for the laſt he writ an Abridgment of the Roman Hiſtory. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Lat.

ATTICA, a Province of Achaia in Greece, now call'd the Dutchy of Athens: The People were divided formerly into 10 Tribes, who took their Names from ſo many of their Heroes; each Tribe had a part of Athens, with ſeveral Boroughs and Villages. Afterwards there were 3 others join'd to the 10, and had ſome of the Towns allotted them: Out of each of theſe, 50 Perſons were choſe to make up the Number of the Prytani, who were the Judges of Athens, and had their Tribunal in the Prytanæum. The Names of theſe 13 Tribes were, 1. Erechtheidæ, call'd ſo from King Erechtheus. 2. Egeidæ, from Egæus, Jaſon's Father. 3. Pandionidæ, from Pandion, King of Athens. 4. Leontidæ, from Leon, who ſacrific'd his Daughters for his Country. 5. Ptolemaidæ, in Honour of Ptolemy, Son of Lagus. 6. Acamantidæ, from Acamas, the Son of Theſeus. 7. Hadrianidæ, from Hadrian. 8. Oeneidæ, from Oeneus, Son of Pandion. 9. Cecropidæ, from King Cecrops. 10. Hippothoontiquæ, from Hippothoon, Son of Neptune. 11. Aiantidæ, or Æantidæ, from Ajax, Son of Telamon. 12. Antiochidæ, from Antiochus, Son of Hercules. 13. Attalidæ, from Attalus, King of Pergamus. Spon. Voyage to Greece and Italy, in 1675.

ATTICUS, (T. Pomponius) a Roman Gentleman, and intimate Acquaintance of Marc. Cicero, as appears by his ſeveral Epiſtles to him: He withdrew from Rome to Athens during the Civil Wars of Cinna and Sylla, where he learn'd to ſpeak Greek as well as Latin. When theſe Troubles were over, he came back again to Rome, where he behav'd himſelf ſo well during the Civil Wars of Pompey, Cæſar, Mark Antony, and Brutus, that without ſiding with any, he was beloved by them all. He refus'd all Publick Employments, to ſpend all his time in his Studies, keeping no Servants but ſuch as could read for him upon occaſion. He writ Annals, and divers other Pieces both in Greek and Latin, and died very old. Cicero wrote many of his Epiſtles to him. Atticus was likewiſe the Name of a Platonick Philoſopher of the 2d Century, who was alſo an Hiſtorian. Euſeb. C. Nepos, Cic.

ATTICUS, Son of Herodes Atticus, a Wealthy and Noble Athenian, ſo ſtupid, that he could never learn his Letters, which made his Father get him 24 Servants, and name them after the 24 Letters of the Alphabet, pinning the Letter or Name of every Servant upon his Breaſt, that his Son might be able to call each by their Names: By which means at laſt he learn'd to read, but could never make any uſe of it. Philoſtrat.

ATTICUS, Patriarch of Conſtantinople, living in the 5th Century: He was a good Man, but had little Learning. His Promotion to the See of Conſtantinople was in the Life of St. Chryſoſtome, about 4 Months after the death of Arſacius. This method of getting into the See, was altogether unjuſt and uncanonical: Upon this ſcore, neither Pope Innocent I. nor a great many other Biſhops, would communicate with him. The Pope had ſent Legates for the reſtoring St. Chryſoſtome, which were ill treated, and ſent back without effect. 'Twas thought Atticus had a ſhare in this Buſineſs, which made the Miſunderſtanding between the Pope and him ſtill greater; however, St. Chryſoſtome dying in the mean time, Pope Innocent receiv'd Atticus to Communion, upon condition that he ſhould put St. Chryſoſtom's Name in the Church-Diptychs. Atticus wrote ſeveral Treatiſes, particularly De Fide & Virginitate, in two Books, which he compos'd for the Emperor Arcadius's Daughters. Socrat. l. 6. c. 18. & l. 7. c. 25, 26. Sozom. l. 8. c. 17. Trith. De Script. Eccl.

ATTIGNY, a Borough of Champaigne in France, in the Dioceſe of Rheims, 11 miles S. E. from the Town of that Name, much defaced during the Wars between the French and Spaniards, but well recover'd ſince the Peace in 1659. Remarkable for a ſmall Council held there under Pope Paſchal I. where Lewis the Debonnaire, King of France, touch'd with remorſe for having put to death his Nephew Bernard King of Italy, and ſhut up his other Nephews in a Cloiſter, confeſs'd his Crimes, and did publick Penance in the Preſence of the Biſhops and People of France. Flodoard. Aimoin.

ATTILA, King of the Hunns, a Scythian and a Pagan, firſt fell into Thrace, which he waſted, An. 441. then ravag'd all the Eaſt, and compell'd the Emperor Theodoſius to pay him Tribute. After that, having put his Brother Bleda to death, he invaded the Empire, paſs'd forward into the Weſt, and was call'd The Scourge of God. In 450. and 451. having over-run Hungary and Germany, he entred Gaul with 500000 Men, pretending to attack the Viſigoths in Aquitain; and after he had Sack'd Metz, Treves, Tongres, Arras, and all the Cities that lay in his way, Beſieged Orleans, which had Capitulated, if Merovæus, Aetius and Theodorick, joining their Armies, had not fallen unexpectedly upon him, beat him off, and afterwards fought that memorable Battel in the Plains of Chalons in 451. where the Hunns loſt above 200000 Men. But notwithſtanding this great loſs, he march'd into Italy, fell into Friuli, and ruin'd Aquileia and ſeveral other Cities; and marching for Rome, was hinder'd by the Prayers of St. Leo. Returning into his own Country, upon his Wedding Night he was taken with a ſudden Bleeding, of which he died. Jornandes de l'Origine des Goths.

ATTILIUS Calatinus, Conſul with Sulpitius Paterculus in the year of Rome 496. They offer'd the Carthaginians Battel in ſight of Palermo, which they refus'd, and put to Sea; upon which Attilius follow'd them ſo cloſe, that his Rear was at a great diſtance when he engaged them, which had coſt him dear if his Rear-Admiral had not made haſte to his Relief. In 500. being again Conſul with L. Manlius Vulſo, they defeated a Navy of 120 Sail, and took Palermo: And in 505. he was choſen Dictator. Tit. Liv. Polyb. Flor. Oſoſe, &c.

ATTILIUS Regulus, Conſul with Julius Libo, in the year of Rome 487. who together ſubdued the Salentines, and took their chief City Brunduſium. In the year of Rome 498. being Conſul a ſecond time with Manlius Vulſo, they defeated the Carthaginians by Sea and Land; and after Manlius's Return to Rome, Regulus took Aſpis, routed Amilcar and Aſdrubal, and took ſeveral Towns almoſt within ſight of Carthage. But refuſing to give the Carthaginians ſuch Articles of Peace as they deſired, they ſent for Zantippus from Sparta, who kill'd 30000 of his Army, and took himſelf and 15000 more Priſoners, in the year of Rome 499. Neverthleſs in 503. the Carthaginians ſued for Peace, and ſent Regulus with Ambaſſadors to Rome, obliging him by Oath to return if Peace was denied. And though they imagin'd his deſire of Liberty would make him ſollicitous for Peace, he violently oppos'd it: Yet according to his Oath, he return'd into Africa with the Ambaſſadors, where the enrag'd Carthaginians are ſaid to have put him to a moſt tormenting Death; though ſome are of opinion, that he died a natural Death, and that the other Report was only rais'd by Regulus his Wife, to excuſe their hard uſage of the Carthaginian Priſoners: Boſtar and Amilcar were committed to her Cuſtody, as a Pledge for the Redemption of her Husband. Attilius Cimber was one of the Aſſaſſines of Julius Cæſar. Pomponius de Origine Juris.

AUGUSTIN (Saint) Son of Patricius and Monica, born at Tagaſte in Numidia in 354. Being put early to School, he abhor'd the Greek Learning, as being generally Fabulous. Being ſent thence to Madaura, and afterwards to Carthage, he led a more looſe ſort of Life, till reading Cicero's Dialogue, Entituled Hortenſius, it ſomewhat reclaim'd him; and ſeeking farther after Truth, he had like to have fallen into the Manichæan Errors. Before he was 20 years of Age, he had Learn'd of his own accord, Ariſtotle's Predicaments, and underſtood all the Liberal Sciences. He firſt taught Rhetorick at Tagaſte, then at Madaura, then at Rome; whence he was invited by Symmachus, where hearing St. Ambroſe, he ſuck'd in the Principles of pure Religion, and was Baptized in 387. when he was 33 years old. After this, being inclin'd to a Religious Life, he reſolv'd to return into Africa, and taking Rome in his way, writ two Treatiſes againſt the Hypocriſie and Impoſture of the Manichees; and three years after was ordained Prieſt at Hippo, where he liv'd till elected Biſhop thereof in 395. when he became a ſharp and zealous oppoſer of the Manichees and Donatiſts, deſiring the Emperor's Aid, as to their Extirpation, which ſo incens'd the Hereticks, that they laid wait for his Life. He and St. Jerome had ſome ſmall difference, occaſion'd by an Epiſtle of his, touching the diſpute of St. Peter and St. Paul, but they were ſoon reconciled. He alſo plainly confuted Pelagius; and hearing that Semipelagianiſm began to ſpread it ſelf among the Gauls, he publiſhed two Treatiſes, De Prædeſtinatione, and De Perſeverantiæ Dono. Being after this invited to the Council of Epheſus by Theodoſius the Younger, he died in 430 in the 76th year of his Age, and 36th of his Biſhoprick, Hippo being then beſieged by the Vandals; who, though they took the City, ſpared the dead Body, Writings and Library of that Holy Man. Luitprand King of Italy in 725. bought the Relicks of his Body from the Vandals, and Tranſported them from Sardinia to Genoua, and from thence to Pavia, where they were laid in a Church Dedicated to his Memory. The Popes and Learned Men of his time conſulted this great Man, and the Councils of Africa nam'd him alone to write againſt the Pelagians, nor was his Doctrine leſs eſteemed ſince: The Councils of Carthage, Toledo, Orange, Florence, and Trent, uſe his Terms, and form'd their Decrees according to his Concluſions; all Doctors, both Ancient and Modern, Glory to be his Diſciples; Popes have given his Doctrine as a Rule of their Belief concerning Grace. Clement VIII. wiſh'd he were to ſit Judge of the Diſpute between the Dominicans and Jeſuits of his time. We have ſeveral Editions of his Works, whereof that of Antwerp, An. 1577. and of Paris 1586. are reckon'd the moſt Correct. Poſſidius, Proſper, *Marcellin. AUGUSTOW, a City of Poland, upon the Frontiers of Lithuania in Podlaſſia, between Bielsko and Grodno, upon the River Bebretz.

AUGUSTOW, a very ſtrong City of Poland, in the Dutchy of Maſſovia, and Palatinate of Bielsk on the Nerew, 65 miles N. of Bielsk, 140 N. E. of Warſaw, and 180 E. of Dantzick. Lon. 44. 38. Lat. 53. 14.

AUGUSTUS Cæſar, the ſecond Roman Emperor, Son of Octavius and Accia, and Julius Cæſar was his Great Uncle, born in the year of Rome 691. in the Conſulſhip of Cicero and Antonius. When his Father died, he was but four years old; and at 12. he made his Grandmother Julia's Funeral Oration. At 20. he was made Conſul, and Julius's Heir. He quell'd five Civil Wars; in the laſt of which he overthrew Mark Antony at Actium, An. U. C. 721. having before defeated Brutus and Caſſius at Philippi, in 712. Lucius Antonius at Perugia, in 714. and the younger Pompey at Sea, in 718. He ſhut up the Temple of Janus three times; offer'd twice to reſtore the Supreme Power to the Senate, was a ſevere Adminiſtrator of Juſtice, made excellent Laws, was 13 times Conſul, and after he had ſettled a firm and well-grounded Peace, he died at Nola, 14 years after the Birth of Chriſt, in the 57th of his Reign, and 76th of his Age. Of Stature rather low than tall, a handſom Countenance, with a modeſt Look, and his Noſe ſomewhat riſing next his Forehead, his Hair lightly Curling, and his Eyebrows meeting: His Behaviour Prudent and Courageous, without Oſtentation. He was very exact in the execution of Juſtice; Corrected many ill Cuſtoms that got ground during the Civil Wars; and to add Pleaſure to Profit, inſtituted Plays, viſited all the Provinces excepting them of Africa and Sardinia, and reform'd the Kalendar in 746. of Rome, ordering that the Intercalation of the Biſſextil day in February ſhould be omitted until 12 years were paſs'd. The meeting of his Eye-brows, according to Phyſiognomiſts, was a ſign of his inclination to Virtue, and of his firm and ſolid Friendſhip; others will have it denote an inclination to Study, which ſutes him very well, for he was a great admirer of Learning, and wrote good Proſe and Verſe himſelf; his ſmall and ill-joined Teeth, according to Suetonius, preſaged a ſhort Life; but this Temperance counterbalanced that defect, for he liv'd 76 years; but was much troubled with Rheums, Gout, and the Gravel. Spon. Recherche de l'Antiquité, Suetonius, Tacit. Plutarch. Dion. Velleius.

AUGUSTUS, Romulus, or Auguſtulus, the laſt of the Roman Emperors, Son of Oreſtes, a Patrician, and Maſter of the Militia, who caus'd him to be ſaluted Emperor at Ravenna, after he had expell'd Nepos, that call'd in Odoacer King of the Heruli, who entring Italy, made himſelf Maſter of Rome, put Oreſtes to death at Piacenza, defeated his Brother Paul at Ravenna, and ſhut up the little Auguſtus in a Caſtle of Campania, call'd Lucullana. Caſſiodorus, and Macellan.

AVICEN, an Arabian Phyſician and Philoſopher in the XIIth Age, at firſt nam'd Haſen, Son of Hali and Citara, born at Balech or Usbech in 992. very Witty, and of ſo prodigious a Memory, that 'tis ſaid he could ſay all Ariſtotle's Metaphyſicks by heart: But his extraordinary Debauches bred in him ſeveral Diſeaſes, of which he died in the 58th year of his Age. He wrote Canon Medicinæ, l. 5. De Medicinis Cordialibus, Cantica, Opera Philoſophica, &c. which are all Tranſlated out of Arabick into Latin. Voſſius, Vander Linden.

AVIENUS Feſtus, a Latin Poet in the Reigns of Feſtus and Gratianus, who turn'd all Livy's Hiſtory into Iambick Verſe.

AVIGLIANO, Avilana, a Town in Piedmont, 20 miles W. of Turin; it is ſeated on a Hill, and has a ruinous Caſtle.

AVIGNON, a City of Provence, ſubject to the Pope. It is alſo an Univerſity, and was made an Archbiſhoprick, with four Suffragans under it, in 1475. by Sixtus IV. ſuppos'd to have been built by the Marſeillans or Phoceans that founded Marſeilles. It has had ſeveral Maſters, Goths, Franks, and Saracens, who were quickly driven out by Charles Martel, with very great ſlaughter. Pope Clement VI. purchas'd it of Jane I. Daughter of Charles II. Count of Provence, for 80000 Florins of Gold, or 48000 Livres of France, which Sum they ſay, was never paid neither, but in good part deducted for Tributes due to the Pope for the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily. It has 7 Pariſhes, 7 Colleges, 7 Hoſpitals, 7 Gates, 7 Palaces, 7 Monaſteries, and 7 Nunneries, all in the Myſterious number 7. The Univerſity was founded by Charles II. Count of Provence in 1303. who endowed it with many fair Privileges. The Trade of the Town is very conſiderable, and the Walls beautiful, all of Freeſtone, with ſeveral Towers. The Jews have here a ſmall Synagogue, for which they pay Tribute. The French affirm that Queen Jane had no power to alienate this Town, nor any other part of her Domaine; beſides they pretend ſhe was not of Age; That her Grandfather Robert had forbid it expreſly in his Will; That his Council declar'd this Alienation null and unlawful; That the ſame

Pope Clement VI. a year after this Sale, declar'd all Alienations that this Princeſs made, or ſhould make, null: It was upon this pretence, that the Parliament of Provence reunited this Town and the County Venaiſſin to the Crown in 1663. upon a Quarrel that happen'd between the King of France and the Pope, about the Duke of Crequi, Ambaſſador then at Rome; but it was reſtor'd again by the Peace of Piſa in 1664. The French took Poſſeſſion of it likewiſe in 1689. but return'd it to the preſent Pope, who governs it by a Vice-Legate, and has a Seat of Juſtice and a Mint there. The Town is very well ſituated in a fruitful Plain, having the Rhone to the Weſt, and on the other ſide an Arm of the Sorgue, the main Stream running through the middle of the Town. The Durance, a League from it, parts its Territory from Provence. Here are ſtill fine Monuments of the Magnificence of the ſeveral Popes that reſided in it. The Palace they liv'd in, built by John XXII. and the fine Church of Notredame, &c. are worth ſeeing. Lon. 25. 20. Lat. 43. 25.

AVILA, upon the Adain, an Epiſcopal City of Spain, in Old Caſtile, under the Archbiſhop of Compoſtella: It is a Town of great Antiquity, at the Foot of the Mountains call'd Sierras d'Avila.

AVILA, (Lewis) a Spaniſh Gentleman, born at Placenza, a Favourite of Charles V. who beſtow'd on him a Commandery of the Order of Alcantara, and ſent him Ambaſſador to Paul IV. and Pius IV. He wrote Commentaries of the Wars of Charles V. with the Proteſtants of Germany: As alſo Memoirs of the Wars of Africa; but is tax'd by Thuanus for being too partial in the Emperor's behalf. Thuan. Hiſt. lib. 4.

They wore a black Ciſtercian Habit, and bare for their Arms a Croſs Flower de Luce in a Field Or, having for their Creſt, two Birds Sable. Vaſconcellos, Le Mire, Orig. Ordin. Equeſt.

AVITUS, (Flavius Eparchius) of the Province of Auvergne in France: By perſwaſion of Theodoric, King of the Viſigoths, his Brother Frederic, the Senators and Principal Officers of the Empire, he aſſum'd the Title of Emperor, after the Death of Maximus, Crown'd firſt at Orgon, and afterwards at Arles in 455. But the Faction of Ricimir, Colonel of the Roman Guards, was ſo ſtrong againſt him, that he was depos'd two years after, and created Biſhop of Piacenza, in Lombardy, and died in a ſhort time after, Gregoire de Tours.

AVITUS Alpius, a Latin Poet, in the time of Auguſtus and Tiberius: He wrote two Books in Verſe of the Lives of famous Men.

AVITUS, (Alcimus) Archbiſhop of Vienne in Dauphine, a Perſon of great Quality, having an Emperor to his Uncle, but more remarkable for his Learning and Piety, Eloquentia & Sanctitate præcipuus, as Ado, one of his Succeſſors ſpeaks of him. This Prelate preſided firſt at the Council of Epaune, and afterwards at another at Lions about the year 517. He left likewiſe ſeveral Tracts, which are Printed with Notes, by Sirmondus: Amongſt them are 87 Epiſtles; A Homily concerning Rogations; Eight Pieces of Homilies; A Poem frequently cited by the Ancients, divided into five Books: The firſt concerning the Origin of the World, the ſecond of Original Sin, the third of the Order of Providence, which he calls De Sententia Dei; the Deluge is the Argument of the fourth, and the fifth treats of the Children of Iſrael's Paſſage through the Red Sea. *Gregor. AURELIUS, (Cornelius) of the Family of Lopſen, born at Goude in Holland: He flouriſhed about the year 1500. in the Reign of Maximilian I. He was a Canon Regular of the Order of St. Auſtin, and Maſter to Eraſmus. He wrote two Treatiſes, one called Defenſio Gloriæ Batavinæ; and the other, Elucidarium Vanarum Quæſtionum ſuper Batavina Regione. Bonaventura Vulcanius publiſh'd theſe two Treatiſes under the Title of De Situ & Laudibus Bataviæ. There are likewiſe ſome other Pieces aſcrib'd to him. Vulcanius in Præf. Aurel. Voſſius lib. 3. de Hiſt Lat.

AURENG Zeb, third Son of Cha-Jehan, the Great Mogul, made himſelf Emperor, (which he ſtill holds without moleſtation) by depoſing his Father, who ſoon after died, murdering two of his Brothers, baniſhing a third, turning out the Cadi that oppos'd his Coronation, and advancing others more obſequious in their ſtead. See this at large under Cha-Jehan. He has Reign'd now 40 years, and is computed to be 100 years old.

AURIEGE, Ariega and Aurigera, a River of France in the Country of Foix, where it takes its beginning; ſo called from the Gold Sand that appears at the bottom and ſides of it. Being augmented with the Lers, Arget and Leze, it empties it ſelf into the Garonne, within two Leagues of Tholouſe.

AURICK, Lat. Auricum, a ſmall City of Germany in Eaſt-Frizeland, the uſual reſidence of the Counts of Embden. The Country about, is hence called Auricker Land.

AURIFICUS, (Nicholas) of Sienna, a Carmelite Monk, flouriſhing in the 16th Century. He wrote ſeveral Pieces, which are ſufficient Proofs of his great Learning. The moſt conſiderable are, De Vita & Moribus Clericorum; Summa Aurifica; De Cambiis; De Velamine Mulierum. Poſſev. in Appar. Lucius Bibl. Carm. &c.

AURILIAC, Lat. Auriliacum, a neat and well-built City of France in the Upper Auvergne, noted for the Trade it drives in Bone-Lace.

AUSEN, a River of Italy, now call'd Serchio, which riſing not far from Minucciano, runs through Grafiniamec, and being augmented in its courſe by ſeveral other Streams, falls into the Tyrrhene Sea, about 12 miles below Lucca.

AUSONE, or Auxone, a pleaſant, ſtrong City of France in the Dutchy of Burgundy, upon the Soame, five Leagues from Dijon, and about four from Dole.

AUSONIUS Decius Magnus of Bourdeaux, a Rhetorician, Poet, and Tutor to the Emperor Gratian, by whoſe means he was created Conſul in 379.

AUSPURGH, or Ausburgh, an Epiſcopal and Imperial City of Germany in Suabia, under the Archbiſhop of Mayence, ſeated upon a part of the Rivers Lich and Werden. 'Tis ſo ancient, that Tacitus ſpeaks of it as the Capital City of the Rhatians, and that Auguſtus ſent a Roman Colony thither, where it was call'd alſo Auguſta, rendring it ſelf very conſiderable, till about the year 451. when Attila almoſt ruin'd it. Afterwards it was repair'd, and reduc'd by the Swedes and Germans, who continu'd joint Poſſeſſors thereof, till Clovis in 496. defeated the Germans at the Battel of Zulpick, and brought it under the Power of the Kings of Auſtraſia. In the 9th Age the Germans recover'd it, and made it a Free and Imperial City, only the Hungarians were a little troubleſom to it, till vanquiſh'd by the Emperor Otho in 955. In Lothaire II's time, it was almoſt burnt down to the Ground, but roſe again with greater Splendour under Conrade III. and Frederick Barbaroſſa. In 1632. the Duke of Bavaria beſieged and took it, having reduced the Inhabitants and Soldiers within it to live upon Rats, Mice, and ſuch like Vermin. At laſt it was reſtor'd to its Liberty by the Peace of Oſnabrug. The Air is good, Streets large, and it abounds with Artificers of all ſorts, chiefly Goldſmiths. The Senate-houſe is a curious Piece of Architecture, before which is a Fountain, in the midſt whereof is the Statue of Auguſtus in Braſs, with other Figures of the ſame Metal. The Arſenal alſo and the College are ſtately Buildings. The Walls are built after the ancient manner with Towers, the Moats are wide, deep, and well fill'd with Water, and in ſome places defended with Halfmoons and Baſtions. Maximilian I. aſſembled the Diets of the Empire in this City, whither Luther came in 1518. to give an account of his Faith. Charles V. held a Diet here in 1530. where the Proteſtants preſented their Confeſſion of Faith, form'd by Melancthon, and the ſame Emperor in one held in 1548. propos'd the Formulary call'd the Interim, for the Communion under both kinds, and Prieſts Marrying. Now Lutherans and Catholicks have an equal Liberty of Conſcience, and ſhare in the Government of the Town; for of the ſeven Councellors that compoſe the Privy-Council, the two chiefeſt call'd Preſidents of the Republick, are Proteſtant and Catholick; three of the other five are Roman-Catholicks, and the Senators, Syndicks, and other Officers are of both Religions. As for the three Treaſurers, they are two Proteſtants and one Catholick one year, and two Catholicks and one Proteſtant the next, &c. Ausbourg is Capital of the Circle of Suabia. This Place is rendred very famous for the League made here between the Emperor, Swedeland, Holland, Franconia, and other Free and Imperial Cities againſt the growing Greatneſs of France in 1683. and was chiefly accompliſh'd by Addreſs and Intereſt of the Prince of Orange, now K. of England. Marcus Velſerus, Bertius, Cluvier, Thuan. Le Mire.

St. AUSTIN, the Apoſtle of the Anglo-Saxons, and firſt Archbiſhop of Canterbury, was a Roman Monk of the Order of St. Benedict, and liv'd in the ſixth Age. Then Reign'd over part of this Iſland Ethelbert the Potent King of Kent, whoſe Wife was Bertha, Daughter to Clotaire I. King of France. Ethelbert and his People were Pagans, and the Queen only with her Servants did openly profeſs the Chriſtian Religion, which they had liberty to do by her Contract of Marriage. The King had a great Affection for the Queen, and ſhe made an advantage of it to work him by degrees into a good opinion of the Religion ſhe profeſs'd. When ſhe ſaw him in a fair Diſpoſition, ſhe gave Intelligence thereof to the then Pope Gregory the Great, and pray'd him to ſend over fit Perſons to compleat the Work, in order to Plant the Goſpel in this Iſland. The Pope ſent Auſtin, with ſeveral others, about the year 596. by whom the King was converted, which contributed much to the Converſion of the People. The King upon his Converſion remov'd to Reculver, a Sea Town of Kent, and left Auſtin in poſſeſſion of his Royal Palace, who conſecrated the Church in the Palace, and prevail'd with the King to build a Monaſtery without the Walls, dedicated to Peter and Paul, with a Church-Yard to it. Upon Chriſtmas-day, Auſtin Baptized above 10000 Saxons, beſides Women and Children. Soon after this he was Ordain'd Biſhop by the Archbiſhop of Arles, according to the Pope's Mandate, who ſent him the Pall by Mellitus, Juſtus, and Paulinus, Anno 601. Three years after this Auſtin conſecrated Mellitus and Juſtus Biſhops, to Preach the Goſpel to the Eaſt-Saxons, whom the Thames divided from Kent, whoſe King Segebert was then converted by Mellitus, and St. Paul's Church in London built. Juſtus was made Biſhop of Rocheſter, and a Church built there by King Ethelbert, dedicated to St. Andrew. At laſt having Ordain'd Lawrence a Prieſt to ſucceed him in the See of Canterbury, he departed this Life Anno 614. Thus Chriſtianity was planted again in this part of the Iſland, which having flouriſh'd before in the time of the Britains ſince the Reign of King Lucius, was, after the Saxon's Eſtabliſhment, confin'd amongſt the Britains in Wales, the reſt of the Iſland being over-ſpread again with Heatheniſm. But it is obſervable that Auſtin was the firſt who ſubjected the Church of England to Rome, by owning the Pope's Supremacy, contrary to the Practice of the Britiſh Church, which own'd no ſuch dependency, nor would the Britiſh Biſhops in the time of Auſtin, acknowledge the Papal Authority, nor Auſtin himſelf to be their Archbiſhop, which he took ill of 'em. St. Greg. lib. 7. Ep. 30. Bede, l. 1. c. 25. Hiſt. Eccl. &c.

AUSTRASIA, a part of Germany, or rather of France, on this ſide the Rhine, comprehending all that lies between the Rhine, the Scheld, the Meuſe, and Mount Vauge, the ſame very near with that which we now call Lorrain, only larger, and having greater Appendages. Thierri I. Son of Clovis the Great, was the firſt King of it, and Dagobert, Son of Sigebert, 'the laſt; after whoſe Reign it was united to the Crown of France, and never had any particular King afterwards. The chief Cities hereof, which are now comprehended in the Dukedom of Lorrain, have, together with their Dependencies, belong'd to the Kings of France for above theſe 100 years. Gregoire de Tours, Mezeray.

AUSTRIA, a Region of Germany, comprehending a part of Noricum, with ſome part of Pannonia, and part of Germany, bordering upon the Danube, bounded on the Eaſt by Hungary, on the Weſt by Bavaria, on the North by Moravia, and on the South by Stiria. 'Tis divided into the Upper and Lower; the Upper beyond, the Lower on this ſide the Danube; Vienna is the Capital City. The Country is very fruitful, and has ſome Mines, eſpecially of Sulphur. 'Twas firſt made a Marquiſate by Otho I. afterwards made an Arch-Dukedom by Frederick Barbaroſſa, in 1136. and is the only one of that Title in the World. Of this Houſe are lineally deſcended the Emperors of Germany.

The Houſe of Auſtria.

To omit the opinion of Spaniſh Genealogiſts, whereof ſome fix the Original of the Auſtrian Family in one of the Græcians hid in the famous Trojan Horſe, and others derive it from Noah's Ark: Let us examine their Teſtimony that offer nothing upon the ancientneſs of Families, but what they ground upon ſolid and inconteſtable proof. This Noble Family begun but in the 13th Century, and Charles V. is thought to have been of this opinion when he return'd this remarkable Anſwer to a flattering Genealogiſt, That he made more Account of Vertue and Glory than of long Succeſſion of Anceſtors, that for want of good evident proof was and might well be conteſted. Nor do Authors agree concerning the Original of this Family, ſome pretend it to be derived from the Kings of Auſtraſia, ſome from the Counts of Altembourg, others hold Peter Frangipani an Italian withdrawing into Switzerland in 1130. or 35. during the Schiſm of Peter of Leon, call'd Anacletus II. againſt Innocent II. had a Son, by Name Albert Frangipani, who built the Caſtle of Hapsburg, and was Grandfather of Rodolphus, acknowledged by all to be the firſt of the Houſe of Auſtria, who being choſen Emperor at Francfort in 1273. neglected nothing to promote the Intereſt of the Empire, and eſpecially of his own Family. Ottocaire II. King of Bohemia, had taken poſſeſſion of Auſtria in right of his Wife, which he pretended was next Heireſs to Frederick, who died in 1246. or 48. without Iſſue. Rodolphus maintain'd that it was a Fief-Male, and for that reaſon was to return to the Empire upon the default of Heirs Male; hereupon he takes Arms, and having kill'd the King of Bohemia in a Battel fought at Vienna in 1278. gave the Inveſtiture of the Dutchy to his Son Albert, who chang'd the Title of Hapsburg for that of Auſtria: And his Succeſſors, to render it the moſt Important Principality of Germany, erected it into an Arch-Dutchy, and were privileg'd to create Counts, Barons, and Gentlemen, throughout the Empire, and were not to be depoſed nor call'd to an account on any pretence whatſoever. Stiria and Carinthia were alſo united to Auſtria. Rodolphus died in 1291. and had ſeven Sons and eight Daughters, whereof Albert I. and Rodolph II. only had Iſſue. Albert being Emperor, was kill'd in 1308. by his Nephew the Son of Rodolphus. He left ſix Sons, Frederick the Fair, Rodolph III. Leopold, Othon, Henry, Albert II. and five Daughters. Frederick was choſen Emperor in 1314. and died in 1329. his Children did not ſurvive him any conſiderable time; his Brothers had alſo the ſame misfortune: Whereupon Albert III. ſirnamed the Wiſe, and Diſſembler, quitted his Eccleſiaſtical Beneſices, and Married to continue the Family, and dying in 1358. left Rodolphus IV. who died without Iſſue, Albert III. Leopold II. and Frederick II. Albert died in 1395. leaving Albert IV. ſirnam'd the Wiſe, or the Mathematician, who died in 1404. leaving Albert V. ſecond Emperor of the Name, who did in 1439. and in whoſe Sons George and Ladiſlaus ended the Race of Albert III. But the Family was preſerved in the Poſterity of Leopold II. Son of Albert II. This Leopold died in 1385. and left William the Ambitious, who died without Iſſue in 1405. Leopold III. ſirnam'd the Fat and Haughty, who died in 1411. Frederick III. who died in 1440. from whom the Emperor Sigiſmond took the Caſtle of Hapsburg, and Erneſt I. who after the death of his Brothers and Nephews, quitted his Church-Living, as his Grandfather Albert had done, Married, and left five Sons, whereof Frederick IV. the Eldeſt, was the firſt that took the Title of Arch-Duke of Auſtria. He was choſen Emperor in 1440. and died in 1443. leaving many Children, who died Iſſueleſs, except Maximilian I. who having Married Mary of Burgundy, Daughter of Charles the Bold, the richeſt Heireſs then in Europe, ſucceeded his Father in the Empire in 1493. and died in 1519. leaving Philip I. call'd the Fair, King of Spain, Arch-Duke of Auſtria, &c. who in 1496. Married Jane of Arragon, Daughter and Heireſs of Ferdinand V. ſirnam'd the Catholick, King of Arragon, Granada, and Sicily, and of Iſabella Queen of Caſtile and Leon; which new Alliance rais'd the Houſe of Auſtria to that height which it has ever ſince appear'd in, and gave occaſion to this Diſtich:

> Bella gerunt fortes, tu felix Auſtria Nube,
> Nam quæ Mars aliis, dat tibi regna Venus.

Philip I. died in 1506. leaving two Sons, Charles V. and Ferdinand, who were both Emperors, and made the Diviſion of the two Branches of the Houſe of Auſtria. Charles V. rais'd the Grandeur of this Family to the higheſt period: He was born at Ghent in 1500. and being King of Spain, Arragon, and Sicily, was choſen Emperor in 1519. He died in 1558. having given the Crown three years before to his Son Philip II. who govern'd 42 years, and died in 1598. He had four Wives, Mary of Portugal, Mary of England, Iſabella of France, and Anne of Auſtria, by which laſt he had Philip III. who died in 1621. This Prince had four Sons and three Daughters, Philip IV. Charles who died without Iſſue, Ferdinand Cardinal, and Alphonſus who died young, the eldeſt Daughter was Married to Lewis XIII. of France. Philip IV. died in 1665. he was Married to Elizabeth of France, by whom he had Mary Tereſe of Auſtria, Married to Lewis XIV. and by his ſecond Wife Mary Anne of Auſtria, Daughter of Ferdinand III. and Siſter to the Emperor Leopold; he had three Sons that died young. Charles II. the preſent King of Spain, born the 6th of November 1661. and Margaret Mary Tereſe Married to the ſame Leopold in 1663. and died in 1673. The famous Don John of Auſtria who was born in 1629. and died at Madrid in 1679. was Philip the IVth's Natural Son.

The Houſe of Auſtria in Germany.

Ferdinand, firſt Emperor of this Name, and firſt of this Branch of Germany, was the ſecond Son of Philip I. and Brother to Charles V. who generouſly reſign'd him all his Poſſeſſions in Germany in 1520. made him be choſen King of the Romans that ſame year, and ſettled him in the Empire in 1556. This Ferdinand was alſo King of Hungary and Bohemia in right of his Wife, Daughter of Ladiſlaus VI. King of Hungary; he died in 1564. and had four Sons and two Daughters. All the Hereditary Eſtate of the Houſe fell to his youngeſt Son Charles II. who alſo had 15 Children. Ferdinand II. his Son, was adopted by the Emperor Matthias in 1617. and Crown'd Emperor in 1629. he died in 1637. and was ſucceeded by his Son Ferdinand III. who died in 1659. He was thrice Married, and left many Children, as Leopold the preſent Emperor, Eleanor Mary, firſt Married to Michel Koributt Weiſnowiski King of Poland, and after his death to Charles IV. Duke of Lorrain in 1678. Mary Anne, Wife of Philip IV. and Mother to Charles II. the preſent King of Spain, &c. Leopold I. call'd Leopold-Ignace-Francis-Balthaſar-Joſeph-Felicien, was born the 19th of June 1641. choſen Emperor in 1658. Married Margaret Mary Thereſe, Daughter of Philip IV. of Spain in 1666. by whom he had a Son that died young, and a Daughter: This Empreſs dying in 1673. he Married Claude of Inſpruck, and this dying in 1676. took for his third Wife Anne Mary Joſeph of Neubourg, born in 1655. by whom he has Joſeph-Jacob-John-Ignace-Euſtace, born in 1678. and ſeveral other Children. *Guilliman Hiſt. AUTHIA, in Latin Altilia, a River of Picardy in France: It riſes at Coignin, near the Borders of Artois, a little above the Caſtle of Authie, runs to Dourlenſe and Auxie, and falls into the Sea at Pont de Collines, at a place call'd l'Pas d'Authie.

AUTOLYCUS, Son of Mercury, and a famous Robber, harbouring in Mount Parnaſſus. Alſo a famous Philoſopher and Aſtronomer in the year of Rome 414. Tutor to Arceſilas.

AUTOMENES, King of Corinth, ſucceeded his Father Teleſtes about the year of the World 3274. and Reign'd but one year. In the year 3275. three years before the firſt Olympiad, there was an Annual Magiſtracy ſet up at Corinth, call'd Prytanes. It is not certain whether this change happen'd after the death of Automenes, or that he made a voluntary Reſignation of the Crown; but this may be affirm'd, that the new Government laſted till the time of Cypſalus and his Son Periander, who were Tyrants, as they called them, of Corinth. Euſeb. in Chron. Pauſan. l. 2.

AUTONOE, Daughter of Cadmus King of Thebes, and Hermione: She was Married to Ariſteus, and Actæon's Mother. Ovid. Metam lib. 3.

AUTRE, a Market-Town of St. Mary Ottery Hundred in Devonſhire, about 12 miles Eaſt of Exeter.

AUTUN, in Lat. anciently Bibracte, now Auguſto-dunum, an Epiſcopal City of France in Burgundy, upon the River Arroux, under the Arch-Biſhop of Lyons, memorable for the Council of the Druids, and School of the Gauls, anciently had in much Veneration. 'Twas about 2000 paces in circumference, wall'd round, beautified with a Capitol, ſeveral Temples, and other Magnificent Edifices, whoſe Ruines ſpeak its ancient Grandeur. 'Twas firſt waſted by Attila, then plunder'd by the Normans, and afterwards very much impoveriſh'd by the ancient Kings of Burgundy, who kept their Court at Chalon. Yet it is ſtill conſiderable for its Churches and other Eccleſiaſtical Buildings.

AUVERGNE, a Province of France with the Title of an Earldom, bounded on the Eaſt by Le Forets, on the Weſt by the Upper Limoſin, Quercy, and La Marche; on the South by Cevenes and Rovergue; and on the North by Bourbonnois. 'Tis divided into the Upper and Lower, the Lower extends it ſelf by the Banks of the River Allier in a moſt fertile Plain, whoſe Capital City is Clermont. The Soil is fruitful of Corn and Wine, and abounds in Mineral Waters; The Inhabitants drive a great Trade in Tapeſtry, Bone-Lace, Linen Cloth, Knives, Kettles, and other Commodities. The Upper is remarkable for Mount Cantal, high, and much frequented by Botaniſts for the abundance of Simples which grow there. The Soil is good for Paſturage, and the People Trade much in Cheeſe and Mules. The Inhabitants of the whole Province are naturally Induſtrious, Ingenuous, and good Soldiers.

AUVERGNE, (Marſhal) born in Limoſin: He flouriſh'd about the year 1480. and wrote the Hiſtory of Charles VII. in French Verſe, which he call'd Les Vigiles du Roy Charles VII. La Croix du Maine, Bibl. Franc. p. 312.

AUX, Lat. Auſci, an Archbiſhoprick and a City in the County of Armagnac in France; it ſtands on the River Sers, a little above its fall into the Garonne. It is 20 miles North-Weſt, and one of the Richeſt Archbiſhopricks in France.

AUXENTIUS, an Arrian, born in Cappadocia, afterwards a pretended Biſhop of Milan. He went into the Intereſt of Gregory, Pſeudo-Patriarch of Alexandria, and was concern'd in his Irregularities: Gregory to reward him made him a Prieſt. This happen'd about the year 342. or 343: Afterwards the Emperour Conſtantius coming to Milan in 355. and having baniſh'd Dionyſius the Biſhop of that City, order'd Auxentius to be ſent for out of Cappadacia, and made Biſhop, notwithſtanding he was a perfect Stranger to the Town, and did not ſo much as underſtand Latin, his Arrianiſm being his only Merit. The Emperor Valentinian was ſorry to ſee the Diviſions of the Town, Auxentius being perfectly deſerted by the Catholick Party: However, this Prince gave no Diſturbance to the People, upon the ſcore of Conſcience, but let Matters reſt as he found them. St. Hilary of Poictiers being at Milan, remonſtrated with a great deal of Freedom againſt Auxentius, and drew up a Charge againſt him in writing, which he preſented to the Emperor, in which he accuſed him of being a Blaſphemer, and an Enemy of JESUS CHRIST. Valentinian order'd a Conference, which Auxentius endeavour'd to decline; but finding himſelf preſſed, complied ſo far as to ſay, The SON was Truly GOD. He was obliged to a publick Declaration of this Confeſſion, and ſhuffled with the Emperor, as we learn from St. Hilary. Afterwards he was Excommunicated in a Council, held at Rome under Pope Damaſus, in the year 368. He fell under the ſame Cenſures likewiſe by the Sentence of St. Athanaſius, and the Biſhops of Gaul. Notwithſtanding he was not depoſed, but held the See to his death, which happen'd in the year 374. in which year St. Ambroſe was choſen into his Place. *Hilar. cont. Auxent. Baron. Annal. AXBRIDGE, a Market-Town of Winterſtoak Hundred in the North-Weſt parts of Somerſetſhire, ſo call'd from the River Ax near which it is ſituate.

AXEL, Lat. Axella, a Town of Flanders ſurprized by the Hollanders in 1586. under whom it has continued ever ſince; a league and half Weſt of Ulſten, and 4 of Ghent, and 6 Weſt of Antwerp. It was the firſt Action of Count Maurice of Naſſaw, after the States made him General, in 1587.

AXERETO Blaſius, Admiral of the Galleys of Genoa in 1435. and Victor in the famous Sea-fight near the Iſle of Ponce, where he took Priſoners Alphonſus V. King of Arragon, John King of Navarre, Henry Grand-Maſter of the Order of St. James, and ſeveral other Princes and Great Lords.

AXHOLM, an Iſland of Manlie Wapentake in the North-Weſt of Lincolnſhire, made an Iſland by the Rivers Trent and Idle, with a Dyke Southward, which makes the Communication between thoſe two Rivers. From North to South it reaches about 10 miles, and 5 from Eaſt to Weſt where broadeſt; in which compaſs of Ground it contains ſeveral Towns, Part of it is flat and mooriſh, and that yields a ſweet Shrub call'd by the Country-people Gall; the middle Parts, being a riſing Ground, are exceeding fertile, and amongſt other things yield abundance of Flax. Here is alſo ſome ſtore of Alabaſter.

AXIEM, a ſtrong Caſtle upon the Coaſt of Guiney, at the mouth of the River Manca, 5 leagues from the Promontory of Apollonia, in poſſeſſion of the Dutch.

AXIOPOLI, a Town of Bulgaria, ſubject to the Turk; it ſtands on the Danube, 153 North of Adrianople, and 220 North-Weſt of Conſtantinople. Long. 50. 50. Lat. 45. 28.

AXIOTHEA, a Woman of great Senſe and Parts, who put on Mans Clothes to go to Plato's School: Clemens Alexandrinus mentions other Women that did the ſame thing. This Practice gave occaſion to ſome ill Reports, which all the Wiſdom and Gravity of Plato's Character could not ſilence. Menag. in Diog. Laert.

AXUMA, once the Metropolis of Abyſſinia, by the Natives call'd Acſum, beautified with ſtately Structures, Palaces, Obelisks, and other Royal Buildings, ſome of whoſe Ruines are yet to be ſeen; now but thinly Peopled, by reaſon of the Devaſtation of the Turks and Adelenſes: 7 days Journey from the Red Sea, in 14 Degrees and a half of N. Lat.

AYMONTE, a Town of Spain, in the Province of Andaluſia, upon a Hill, at the mouth of the River Ana, 18 leagues Weſt of Cadiz, and 22 from Seville, fortified againſt the Incurſions of the Portugueſe.

AZAMOR, a City of Ducala, in the Kingdom of Morocco in Africa, at the mouth of the River Ommirabi. The King of Portugal made himſelf Maſter of it in 1508. and quitted it again voluntarily in 1540. as not defenſible, becauſe commanded by a Hill. The Moors were no ſooner repoſſeſs'd of it, but the Portugueſe Governour of Maragan hearing of it, ſcal'd the Walls in the night, kill'd or took all the Moors that were in it, and brought to Portugal the Governour and two Alphaqui's, who were afterward chang'd for Chriſtian Priſoners.

AZAZEL; neither the Jewiſh nor the Chriſtian Commentators of the Bible are agreed about the Signification of this Word, which we find in the ſixteenth Chapter of Leviticus: Some Rabbins believe that it was the Name of a Mountain, whither the High Prieſt ſent the Scape-Goat mention'd in this Place. St. Jerome tranſlates the Word Azazel, by Caper Emiſſarius; and herein he follows the Septuagint: This Opinion is likewiſe ſupported by Grotius. Spencer de Leg. Heb. Ritual.

AZEK, a City of the Amorites, which fell to the Tribe of Judah: It was here that God ſmote the Army of the five Kings, who beſieged Gibeon, with Hail-ſtones. This City was afterward fortified by Rehoboam.

AZEM, a Kingdom of India beyond the Ganges, joining to the Lake Chiamay, one of the beſt Countries of Aſia, affording all that is neceſſary for the Life of Man, beſides Gold, Silver, Iron, and Lead-Mines, and great ſtore of Silk. Here is alſo the beſt Gum-Lac, growing upon Trees in great abundance; and excellent Grapes, of which they make no Wine, only dry them, and extract a ſtrong Water from them. Tho' they have no want of Cattel, yet they delight moſt in Dogs-fleſh, and ſupply their want of Salt by a Pouder made of Fig-leaves dry'd and burn'd, and then boil'd in Water, at the bottom whereof is a ſort of very good white Pouder, which they uſe for Salt. The Capital City is Kemmerouf, and their Kings are interr'd at Azoo, their Tombs being cramm'd with all manner of Riches, as believing that they ſhall enjoy all ſorts of Delights in the other World: For this reaſon alſo ſuch Women as love the Deceaſed, poiſon themſelves, that they may be buried with them, as are alſo Elephants, Horſes, Dogs, &c. for their Service. The People are naturally Idle, and have never any Taxes impos'd upon them by their Kings, who content themſelves with the Income of their Mines, and purchaſe Slaves of their Neighbours to work in them. This Kingdom was diſcover'd by Mirgimola, General to the Great Mogul, about the year 1663. It lies upon the River Ganges, in 29 or 30 Deg. of N. Lat. The King is a Pagan, Powerful, and very Rich, and his Subjects happy: The principal City is Azoo, which this General took, and found a vaſt Treaſure buried with their Kings for many Ages; but their King lives at Kemmeroof, 25 days Journey beyond Azoo. The Inhabitants of this Country are very Valiant, and admire Dogs-fleſh above all other Dainties. Tavern. p. 2. l. 3. c. 17. This General embarked at Daka upon the Gulph of Bengala, and went up about 100 Leagues N. E. to Azoo, which belong'd to this Kingdom of Bengala; from thence he marched 26 days farther to the North, when the Raja met and fought him; but being beaten, was forced to retreat to Guerguon, his Metropolis, which the General took alſo, and there found a vaſt Treaſure, it being a Place of Traffick; but the Rains coming on, the General was forced to Winter there, and his Army was reduced to great ſtraits for want of Proviſions; after which, with much difficulty he returned into the Kingdom of Bengala, and the next year died of a Sickneſs he got in this Expedition. Bern. Hiſt. Mogul, p. 52.

AZINCOURT, a ſmall Village in Picardy near Blangi, famous for the great Victory won by the Engliſh under Henry V. over the French the 25th of October, 1415. The French loſt above 10000 killed upon the ſpot, amongſt whom were four Princes of the Blood, with Charles d'Albret, Lord High Conſtable of France, and above 1500 taken Priſoners. This Defeat proved of very ill Conſequence to them, as may be ſeen in the Article of Charles VI. of France, and under Henry V. of England.

AZONES, a Name which the Greeks gave to certain Idols, which were Deities at large, not appropriated to the Worſhip of any particular Town or Country, but acknowledged in general by all; of this ſort were the Sun, Mars, Luna, &c. Theſe pretended Gods were called by the Latins, Dii Communes, and are mention'd by Virgil in the 12th Æneid:

AZORES, certain Iſlands in the Atlantick Ocean, about 9 in Number, under the Juriſdiction of the King of Portugal; ſo call'd from the abundance of Hawks bred therein. Their Names are Tercera, or the Iſle of Jeſus Chriſt, St. Chael, St. George, Dico, Fayal, Gracioſa, Floras, and Corva; which two laſt, becauſe remote from the reſt, are much expos'd to Pirates. They are full of Rocks, yet abound in Fruit, and eſpecially in what they call Batatas, which grows like Turneps, and eats very well: They have alſo good Beef, Corn, Wine, &c. Some think that theſe Iſlands are the Cathiterides of Ptolemy, or the Caſſiterides of Pliny; and Boterus is of Opinion, that they began to be inhabited in 1449. Alphonſo Henry of Portugal was carried Priſoner to Tercera, the chiefeſt of the 9, in 1669. and is kept there ſince. The chief Town of this Place is Augra, a Biſhop's See, Suffragan to Lisbonne. Ortel. in Theat. Geogr. Golnitz, &c.

AZORIUS, (John) a Jeſuit, born at Louca, a Town of Spain, in the Dioceſe of Carthagena: He lived in the 16th Century. His Merit preferr'd him to the beſt Poſts in his Society, where he was Rector of ſeveral Colleges: He was a conſiderable Linguiſt, a good Scripturiſt, and Moral Philoſopher. He wrote three Tomes; Inſtitutionum; Moralium; In cantica, &c. Ribadeneira, & Algamb. De Script. Soc. Jeſ.

AZUAGUES, a diſperſed People of Africa, reſiding chiefly at Tremeſen, Fez, and Tunis, tho' ſcattered here and there all over Barbary and Numidia. They generally ſpeak Arabick, and boaſt themſelves to have been originally Chriſtians, diſtinguiſhing themſelves from the Africans, Arabians, and other Mahometans, by never ſhaving their Beards, nor cutting their Hair, and are always at enmity with them.

B.

B. Several Nations give this Letter a middle Sound, between U and B, as the Spaniards and Gaſcoigns. The Egyptians, who made the Figure of ſome Animal ſtand for their Characters, made uſe of a Sheep for B, which ſeem to pronounce this Letter by their bleating. Pierius, l. 47. *Deſ. BAAL, or Bel, an Hebrew and Chaldaick Word, which ſignifies Lord, or Mighty. It was the Name of the Idol of the Moabites and Phœnicians, and of moſt of the Nations that border'd upon the Jews. It ſeems that the Idolaters amongſt them pretend to adore the True God under the Name and Figure of Baalim, Hoſ. 2. 16, 17. The Grecians, who were accuſtomed to take the Eaſtern Divinities for their own, call'd this Bell, ſometimes Jupiter, ſometimes Mars; but the truth is, That the Babylonians underſtood by it either the Stars and Hoſt of Heaven, or ſuch Kings and Hero's whoſe Memory they had conſecrated to Poſterity by a Religious Worſhip. The Phœnicians ador'd the Sun under the Name of Baal and Moloch. 'Tis thought this Idol was the firſt invented by Superſtition, and the original Worſhip of Idolatry. Selden de Diis Syris.

BAAL, a King of Tyre in Phœnicia, who ſucceeded Ithobulus: He undertook the Government after the Town was demoliſhed by Nebuchadonozor. After him, for about 13 or 14 years the Adminiſtration of Tyre was in the hands of Judges, who depended on the Aſſyrian Empire. Joſ. cont. Appion, l. 3.

BAALGAD, Bagad, or Begad, an Idol of the Syrians, which they accounted the Goddeſs of Fortune, Kerch.

BAALHASOR, a place in the Tribe of Ephraim; whither Abſalom invited his Brethren, and kill'd Amnon the eldeſt.

BAAR, a Country of Suaben in Germany; the ancient Inhabitants of which were call'd Vargiones; it lies near the Fountains of the Danube, and takes its Name from the Mountain de Baar, in Lat. Abnobi, whence the Danube has its Original and Name Danubius, quaſi de Abnobius. The Prince of Furſtemberg is Sovereign of this Country. Baudr.

BAARAS, the Name of a wonderful Plant on Mount Libanus in Syria: It begins to appear in May, after the Snow is thaw'd; when it begins to grow dark, it gives a Light like that of a ſmall Torch, and continues ſo until morning. The Arabs call it the Herb of Gold, and believe it may perform the great Work of Tranſmutation; however, they dare not pluck it up, becauſe they have obſerved, That ſuch as attempted it, died ſuddenly. The reaſon of it is, That this Plant grows in a Soil that makes it exhale ſuch venomous bituminous Steams, as choak thoſe that gather it; and is alſo the cauſe of its ſhining in the night.

BAASHA, one of the Generals of Nadab, King of Iſrael, who kill'd that Prince while he beſieged Gabath, a City of the Philiſtines, and uſurp'd the Crown. 1 Kings.

BABAS, an intimate Friend and Miniſter of State to Herod the Aſcalonite, who in recompence of his great Services, had his Eyes pull'd out. Joſeph.

BABEL, the Name of a City and Tower, which the Sons of Men began to build before their ſeparation in the Plains of Meſopotamia. Now becauſe this Word ſignifies Confuſion, and it's ſaid, Gen. 12. 7. That God confounded their Language, that they might not underſtand each others Speech; the Jews have invented a heap of Fables, telling us, That the Language of Mankind, that was then the ſame, was changed into 72 different ones: But the Opinion of Caſaubon the Younger, and of ſeveral other Learned Men of this Age, ſeems more probable, viz. That this Confuſion was nothing elſe but a Miſunderſtanding amongſt them, that hindred the Work to go on, and occaſion'd their ſeparation: After which, they having but little or no Communication with one another, and meeting with ſeveral things unknown to them before, they call'd them by differing Names; whence aroſe our various Speeches. This ſeems the more likely, becauſe we perceive in reading the Hiſtory of Moſes, That the Language of thoſe Nations that did not live far aſunder, was much the ſame. Heylin writes, That this prodigious Work was undertaken by the Advice of Nimrod, to ſecure the People from a ſecond Deluge, which Heber and his Family oppos'd as unlawful; but the Majority prevailing, they began to build, and advanced it 5146 paces from the Ground, with a Baſis and Circumference proportionable, having a winding Paſſage to go up on the outſide, ſo large, that Carts might meet and turn; and, according to Verſtegan, not only affording Lodging, but Fields of Corn and Graſs for Maintenance. Heyl. l. 3. p. 113. St. Jer. St. Aug. Clem. Epiphan.

BABEL-MANDEL, call'd by the Spaniards, El Eſtrecho de la Mecca; by the French, Les Detroits de Babel-Mandel; by the Engliſh, The Streights, &c. from a River of the ſame Name, which flows thither from the Kingdom of Adel; or, as ſome ſay, from an Iſland of that Name, which lies at the very mouth of the Red Sea, betwixt Africa and Arabia Fœlix. The Arabians call it the Gulph of Weeping. Baudr. Strabo ſays, That the Paſſage into the Red Sea was anciently ſecured by a Chain drawn from each ſide of the Iſland to the Shoar, from whence it's 3 miles diſtant, is 2 Leagues in compaſs, and 20 paces high above the Water.

BABILUS, an Aſtrologer in Nero's time; he told this Emperor, who was in fear of his Life upon the apparition of a Comet, That the Stroke might be diverted by the Death of other Illuſtrious Perſons: Whereupon he reſolved to ſacrifice the Leading Men of the Roman Empire. Sueton.

BABINGTON, (Gervaſe) Biſhop of Worceſter, born in Nottinghamſhire, and of a conſiderable Family: Queen Elizabeth made him firſt Biſhop of Landaff, and afterwards Biſhop of Worceſter. He was famous for his Preaching, and wrote ſome Books in Divinity. He died at 60 of the Jaundice, in the year 1610. Hierolog. Anglicana.

BABOLITZA, or Babolza, call'd Manſuetinum in Antonin's Itinerary, a Town and Caſtle of Lower Hungary, 5 miles Weſt of Zigeth. Baudr.

AUTUN, in Lat. anciently Bibracte, now Auguſto-dunum, an Epiſcopal City of France in Burgundy, upon the River Arroux, under the Arch-Biſhop of Lyons, memorable for the Council of the Druids, and School of the Gauls, anciently had in much Veneration. 'Twas about 2000 paces in circumference, wall'd round, beautified with a Capitol, ſeveral Temples, and other Magnificent Edifices, whoſe Ruines ſpeak its ancient Grandeur. 'Twas firſt waſted by Attila, then plunder'd by the Normans, and afterwards very much impoveriſh'd by the ancient Kings of Burgundy, who kept their Court at Chalon. Yet it is ſtill conſiderable for its Churches and other Eccleſiaſtical Buildings.

AUVERGNE, a Province of France with the Title of an Earldom, bounded on the Eaſt by Le Forets, on the Weſt by the Upper Limoſin, Quercy, and La Marche; on the South by Cevenes and Rovergue; and on the North by Bourbonnois. 'Tis divided into the Upper and Lower, the Lower extends it ſelf by the Banks of the River Allier in a moſt fertile Plain, whoſe Capital City is Clermont. The Soil is fruitful of Corn and Wine, and abounds in Mineral Waters; The Inhabitants drive a great Trade in Tapeſtry, Bone-Lace, Linen Cloth, Knives, Kettles, and other Commodities. The Upper is remarkable for Mount Cantal, high, and much frequented by Botaniſts for the abundance of Simples which grow there. The Soil is good for Paſturage, and the People Trade much in Cheeſe and Mules. The Inhabitants of the whole Province are naturally Induſtrious, Ingenuous, and good Soldiers.

AUVERGNE, (Marſhal) born in Limoſin: He flouriſh'd about the year 1480. and wrote the Hiſtory of Charles VII. in French Verſe, which he call'd Les Vigiles du Roy Charles VII. La Croix du Maine, Bibl. Franc. p. 312.

AUX, Lat. Auſci, an Archbiſhoprick and a City in the County of Armagnac in France; it ſtands on the River Sers, a little above its fall into the Garonne. It is 20 miles North-Weſt, and one of the Richeſt Archbiſhopricks in France.

AUXENTIUS, an Arrian, born in Cappadocia, afterwards a pretended Biſhop of Milan. He went into the Intereſt of Gregory, Pſeudo-Patriarch of Alexandria, and was concern'd in his Irregularities: Gregory to reward him made him a Prieſt. This happen'd about the year 342. or 343: Afterwards the Emperour Conſtantius coming to Milan in 355. and having baniſh'd Dionyſius the Biſhop of that City, order'd Auxentius to be ſent for out of Cappadacia, and made Biſhop, notwithſtanding he was a perfect Stranger to the Town, and did not ſo much as underſtand Latin, his Arrianiſm being his only Merit. The Emperor Valentinian was ſorry to ſee the Diviſions of the Town, Auxentius being perfectly deſerted by the Catholick Party: However, this Prince gave no Diſturbance to the People, upon the ſcore of Conſcience, but let Matters reſt as he found them. St. Hilary of Poictiers being at Milan, remonſtrated with a great deal of Freedom againſt Auxentius, and drew up a Charge againſt him in writing, which he preſented to the Emperor, in which he accuſed him of being a Blaſphemer, and an Enemy of JESUS CHRIST. Valentinian order'd a Conference, which Auxentius endeavour'd to decline; but finding himſelf preſſed, complied ſo far as to ſay, The SON was Truly GOD. He was obliged to a publick Declaration of this Confeſſion, and ſhuffled with the Emperor, as we learn from St. Hilary. Afterwards he was Excommunicated in a Council, held at Rome under Pope Damaſus, in the year 368. He fell under the ſame Cenſures likewiſe by the Sentence of St. Athanaſius, and the Biſhops of Gaul. Notwithſtanding he was not depoſed, but held the See to his death, which happen'd in the year 374. in which year St. Ambroſe was choſen into his Place. Hilar. cont. Auxent. Baron. Annal. A. C. 355. ---59, 60. & ſeq.

AUXERRE, Lat. Antiſſiodorum, a City of France upon the Confines of Burgundy, ſituate upon the Yonne. It is large and beautiful, ſeated upon a Plain about 12 leagues from Sens.

AUXOIS, Lat. Alexienſis Tractus, a Country of France in Burgundy, between Auxerrois, Autunois, and Dijonnois, towards Champagne, having a particular Bailliage that keeps Courts at Avaton, Arnay le Duc, and Semur.

AXBRIDGE, a Market-Town of Winterſtoak Hundred in the North-Weſt parts of Somerſetſhire, ſo call'd from the River Ax near which it is ſituate.

AXEL, Lat. Axella, a Town of Flanders ſurprized by the Hollanders in 1586. under whom it has continued ever ſince; a league and half Weſt of Ulſten, and 4 of Ghent, and 6 Weſt of Antwerp. It was the firſt Action of Count Maurice of Naſſaw, after the States made him General, in 1587.

AXERETO Blaſius, Admiral of the Galleys of Genoa in 1435. and Victor in the famous Sea-fight near the Iſle of Ponce, where he took Priſoners Alphonſus V. King of Arragon, John King of Navarre, Henry Grand-Maſter of the Order of St. James, and ſeveral other Princes and Great Lords.

AXHOLM, an Iſland of Manlie Wapentake in the North-Weſt of Lincolnſhire, made an Iſland by the Rivers Trent and Idle, with a Dyke Southward, which makes the Communication between thoſe two Rivers. From North to South it reaches about 10 miles, and 5 from Eaſt to Weſt where broadeſt; in which compaſs of Ground it contains ſeveral Towns, Part of it is flat and mooriſh, and that yields a ſweet Shrub call'd by the Country-people Gall; the middle Parts, being a riſing Ground, are exceeding fertile, and amongſt other things yield abundance of Flax. Here is alſo ſome ſtore of Alabaſter.

AXIEM, a ſtrong Caſtle upon the Coaſt of Guiney, at the mouth of the River Manca, 5 leagues from the Promontory of Apollonia, in poſſeſſion of the Dutch.

AXIOPOLI, a Town of Bulgaria, ſubject to the Turk; it ſtands on the Danube, 153 North of Adrianople, and 220 North-Weſt of Conſtantinople. Long. 50. 50. Lat. 45. 28.

AXIOTHEA, a Woman of great Senſe and Parts, who put on Mans Clothes to go to Plato's School: Clemens Alexandrinus mentions other Women that did the ſame thing. This Practice gave occaſion to ſome ill Reports, which all the Wiſdom and Gravity of Plato's Character could not ſilence. Menag. in Diog. Laert.

AXUMA, once the Metropolis of Abyſſinia, by the Natives call'd Acſum, beautified with ſtately Structures, Palaces, Obelisks, and other Royal Buildings, ſome of whoſe Ruines are yet to be ſeen; now but thinly Peopled, by reaſon of the Devaſtation of the Turks and Adelenſes: 7 days Journey from the Red Sea, in 14 Degrees and a half of N. Lat.

AYMONTE, a Town of Spain, in the Province of Andaluſia, upon a Hill, at the mouth of the River Ana, 18 leagues Weſt of Cadiz, and 22 from Seville, fortified againſt the Incurſions of the Portugueſe.

AZAMOR, a City of Ducala, in the Kingdom of Morocco in Africa, at the mouth of the River Ommirabi. The King of Portugal made himſelf Maſter of it in 1508. and quitted it again voluntarily in 1540. as not defenſible, becauſe commanded by a Hill. The Moors were no ſooner repoſſeſs'd of it, but the Portugueſe Governour of Maragan hearing of it, ſcal'd the Walls in the night, kill'd or took all the Moors that were in it, and brought to Portugal the Governour and two Alphaqui's, who were afterward chang'd for Chriſtian Priſoners.

AZAZEL; neither the Jewiſh nor the Chriſtian Commentators of the Bible are agreed about the Signification of this Word, which we find in the ſixteenth Chapter of Leviticus: Some Rabbins believe that it was the Name of a Mountain, whither the High Prieſt ſent the Scape-Goat mention'd in this Place. St. Jerome tranſlates the Word Azazel, by Caper Emiſſarius; and herein he follows the Septuagint: This Opinion is likewiſe ſupported by Grotius. Spencer de Leg. Heb. Ritual.

AZEK, a City of the Amorites, which fell to the Tribe of Judah: It was here that God ſmote the Army of the five Kings, who beſieged Gibeon, with Hail-ſtones. This City was afterward fortified by Rehoboam.

AZEM, a Kingdom of India beyond the Ganges, joining to the Lake Chiamay, one of the beſt Countries of Aſia, affording all that is neceſſary for the Life of Man, beſides Gold, Silver, Iron, and Lead-Mines, and great ſtore of Silk. Here is alſo the beſt Gum-Lac, growing upon Trees in great abundance; and excellent Grapes, of which they make no Wine, only dry them, and extract a ſtrong Water from them. Tho' they have no want of Cattel, yet they delight moſt in Dogs-fleſh, and ſupply their want of Salt by a Pouder made of Fig-leaves dry'd and burn'd, and then boil'd in Water, at the bottom whereof is a ſort of very good white Pouder, which they uſe for Salt. The Capital City is Kemmerouf, and their Kings are interr'd at Azoo, their Tombs being cramm'd with all manner of Riches, as believing that they ſhall enjoy all ſorts of Delights in the other World: For this reaſon alſo ſuch Women as love the Deceaſed, poiſon themſelves, that they may be buried with them, as are alſo Elephants, Horſes, Dogs, &c. for their Service. The People are naturally Idle, and have never any Taxes impos'd upon them by their Kings, who content themſelves with the Income of their Mines, and purchaſe Slaves of their Neighbours to work in them. This Kingdom was diſcover'd by Mirgimola, General to the Great Mogul, about the year 1663. It lies upon the River Ganges, ~~in~~ 29 or 30 Deg. of N. Lat. The King is a Pagan, Powerful, and very Rich, and his Subjects happy: The principal City is Azoo, which this General took, and found a vaſt Treaſure buried with their Kings for many Ages; but their King lives at Kemmeroof, 25 days Journey beyond Azoo. The Inhabitants of this Country are very Valiant, and admire Dogs-fleſh above all other Dainties. Tavern. p. 2. l. 3. c. 17. This General embarked at Daka upon the Gulph of Bengala, and went up about 100 Leagues N. E. to Azoo, which belong'd to this Kingdom of Bengala; from thence he marched 26 days farther to the North, when the Raja met and fought him; but being beaten, was forced to retreat to Guerguon, his Metropolis, which the General took alſo, and there found a vaſt Treaſure, it being a Place of Traffick; but the Rains coming on, the General was forced to Winter there, and his Army was reduced to great ſtraits for want of Proviſions; after which, with much difficulty he returned into the Kingdom of Bengala, and the next year died of a Sickneſs he got in this Expedition. Bern. Hiſt. Mogul, p. 52.

AZINCOURT, a ſmall Village in Picardy near Blangi, famous for the great Victory won by the Engliſh under Henry V. over the French the 25th of October, 1415. The French loſt above 10000 killed upon the ſpot, amongſt whom were four Princes of the Blood, with Charles d'Albret, Lord High Conſtable of France, and above 1500 taken Priſoners. This Defeat proved of very ill Conſequence to them, as may be ſeen in the Article of Charles VI. of France, and under Henry V. of England.

AZONES, a Name which the Greeks gave to certain Idols, which were Deities at large, not appropriated to the Worſhip of any particular Town or Country, but acknowledged in general by all; of this ſort were the Sun, Mars, Luna, &c. Theſe pretended Gods were called by the Latins, Dii Communes, and are mention'd by Virgil in the 12th Æneid:

> See Servius in loco.

AZORES, certain Iſlands in the Atlantick Ocean, about 9 in Number, under the Juriſdiction of the King of Portugal; ſo call'd from the abundance of Hawks bred therein. Their Names are Tercera, or the Iſle of Jeſus Chriſt, St. Chael, St. George, Dico, Fayal, Gracioſa, Flores, and Corva; which two laſt, becauſe remote from the reſt, are much expos'd to Pirates. They are full of Rocks, yet abound in Fruit, and eſpecially in what they call Batatas, which grows like Turneps, and eats very well: They have alſo good Beef, Corn, Wine, &c. Some think that theſe Iſlands are the Cathiterides of Ptolemy, or the Caſſiterides of Pliny; and Boterus is of Opinion, that they began to be inhabited in 1449. Alphonſo Henry of Portugal was carried Priſoner to Tercera, the chiefeſt of the 9, in 1669. and is kept there ſince. The chief Town of this Place is Augra, a Biſhop's See, Suffragan to Lisbonne. Ortel. in Theat. Geogr. Golnitz, &c.

AZORIUS, (John) a Jeſuit, born at Louca, a Town of Spain, in the Dioceſe of Carthagena: He lived in the 16th Century. His Merit preferr'd him to the beſt Poſts in his Society, where he was Rector of ſeveral Colleges: He was a conſiderable Linguiſt, a good Scripturiſt, and Moral Philoſopher. He wrote three Tomes; Inſtitutionum; Moralium; In cantica, &c. Ribadeneira, & Algamb. De Script. Soc. Jeſ.

AZUAGUES, a diſperſed People of Africa, reſiding chiefly at Tremeſen, Fez, and Tunis, tho' ſcattered here and there all over Barbary and Numidia. They generally ſpeak Arabick, and boaſt themſelves to have been originally Chriſtians, diſtinguiſhing themſelves from the Africans, Arabians, and other Mahometans, by never ſhaving their Beards, nor cutting their Hair, and are always at enmity with them.

B.

B. Several Nations give this Letter a middle Sound, between U and B, as the Spaniards and Gaſcoigns. The Egyptians, who made the Figure of ſome Animal ſtand for their Characters, made uſe of a Sheep for B, which ſeem to pronounce this Letter by their bleating. Pierius, l. 47. *Deſ. BAAL, or Bel, an Hebrew and Chaldaick Word, which ſignifies Lord, or Mighty. It was the Name of the Idol of the Moabites and Phœnicians, and of moſt of the Nations that border'd upon the Jews. It ſeems that the Idolaters amongſt them pretend to adore the True God under the Name and Figure of Baalim, Hoſ. 2. 16, 17. The Grecians, who were accuſtomed to take the Eaſtern Divinities for their own, call'd this Bell, ſometimes Jupiter, ſometimes Mars; but the truth is, That the Babylonians underſtood by it either the Stars and Hoſt of Heaven, or ſuch Kings and Hero's whoſe Memory they had conſecrated to Poſterity by a Religious Worſhip. The Phœnicians ador'd the Sun under the Name of Baal and Moloch. 'Tis thought this Idol was the firſt invented by Superſtition, and the original Worſhip of Idolatry. Selden de Diis Syris.

BAAL, a King of Tyre in Phœnicia, who ſucceeded Ithobulus: He undertook the Government after the Town was demoliſhed by Nebuchadonozor. After him, for about 13 or 14 years the Adminiſtration of Tyre was in the hands of Judges, who depended on the Aſſyrian Empire. Joſ. cont. Appion, l. 3.

BAALGAD, Bagad, or Begad, an Idol of the Syrians, which they accounted the Goddeſs of Fortune, Kerch.

BAALHASOR, a place in the Tribe of Ephraim, whither Abſalom invited his Brethren, and kill'd Amnon the eldeſt.

BAAR, a Country of Suaben in Germany, the ancient Inhabitants of which were call'd Vargiones; it lies near the Fountains of the Danube, and takes its Name from the Mountain de Baar, in Lat. Abnobi, whence the Danube has its Original and Name Danubius, quaſi de Abnobius. BABYLON, the Metropolis of Chaldæa, ſaid to be built by Nimrod, or Belus, the firſt King of the Aſſyrians, enlarged by Ninus, his Son and Succeſſor, and beautified by Semiramis, who made it one of the Wonders of the World. Its Walls were ſaid to be of brick, cemented with Bitumen, 32 foot thick; ſo that two Coaches with four Horſes abreaſt might eaſily go upon them; beſides that, it was 50 cubits high, with Towers 10 foot higher. The Circuit was about 360, or 368 furlongs; the Houſes were at an acres diſtance from the Walls, ſo that the City took up but 90 furlongs; nor were the Houſes join'd together, but the remaining Ground was till'd, partly to ſtop the ſpreading of Fire, and partly to nouriſh the Inhabitants in caſe of a Siege. The Euphrates ran through the middle of the City, and on both ſides of it were deep Ditches to receive the Water, when that River overflow'd: The two parts of the Town had a Communication by means of a Stone-bridge, that was alſo reckoned one of the Wonders of the Eaſt: But nothing was ſo ſurprizing as the Caſtle, which was 20 furlongs round, environ'd with Towers 30 foot in the Ground, and 80 above it: Upon the top of this Caſtle were the marvellous-Gardens, that appear'd afar off as if they hung in the Air; they were ſupported by ſquare Pillars, and by 20 ſtrong Walls, diſtant but 11 foot from each other; they were fill'd of very good Earth, in which there grew Trees of 8 cubits breadth, and 30 foot high, that bore exquiſite Fruit, being watered by the help of Pumps and ſecret Pipes. As to the Inhabitants, they were very Luxurious, and much addicted to Aſtrology; however, the City was fam'd for the Manufacture of Cloth of various Colours. Babylon began to decay in the time of the Seleucides, after Seleucus Nicanor had built Seleucia, near the Banks of the Tygris, and but 300 furlongs from Babylon, which in proceſs of time eclypſed the Luſtre of that ancient City, and even robb'd it of its Name. This is alſo the cauſe that the modern Geographers have taken Bagdat, which is built on the Ruines of Seleucia, for the Old Babylon. The Inhabitants were noted for their Skill in Aſtrology, and, as ſome ſay, invented it. Ranwolf, a Phyſician in Germany in 1574. ſaw, and thus deſcribes the then State of this City; By a ſmall Village on the Euphrates called Eulogo, or Felugo, is the Seat of the Old Babylon, a day and a half's Journey from Bagdat: The Lands about it are ſo dry and deſolate, that one may juſtly doubt the Fertility of it, and the Greatneſs of this City, if the vaſt Ruines, ſtill to be ſeen, did not baniſh all Suſpicion. There are ſtill extant ſome Arches of a Bridge over the River, which is here half a mile broad, and exceeding deep: Theſe Arches are built of Brick, and wonderfully compacted. A quarter of a mile beneath the Village, in a Plain, is the fallen Ruines of a Caſtle, and beyond that, the Ruines of the Tower of Babel, half a German mile in compaſs, which is now a Receptacle of Serpents and venomous Creatures; and amongſt them, Lizards with 3 Heads, call'd by the Perſians Eglo, and ſaid to be very venomous. A little above the fall of the Tigris into the Euphrates, is a City now call'd Trax, but formerly Apamea. All that travel over theſe Plains, will find vaſt Numbers of the Ruines of very ancient, great, and tall Buildings, arched Towers, and other ſuch-like Structures of wonderful Architecture, which being now for a long time deſerted, are in part tumbled down into heaps, and in part are yet ſtanding: There is only one Tower, which is call'd Daniel's, ſtill entire, and inhabited, from whence may be ſeen all the Ruines of this vaſt City; which ſufficiently demonſtrate the Truth of what ancient Writers have ſaid of its Greatneſs, by the vaſtneſs of their extent. Heylin ſays, That the Walls were 46 Engliſh miles in compaſs, and finiſh'd in one year by 200000 Workmen daily employ'd on them. Ariſtotle ſays, that it ought rather to have been call'd a Country than City; for when it was ſurprized by the Medes and Perſians, it was 3 days before the Inhabitants of the fartheſt parts were aware of it: But this is a great Miſtake, and the alteration of a Letter in the Greek might poſſibly occaſion it, and make the 3d part of day be taken for 3 days; for Xenophon, in his Κυροπαιδ. l. 7. tells us, That the Enemies having entred the Town, thoſe who liv'd at the other end of it, did not know it was taken till the 3d part of the day, i. e. not till 3 hours after Sun-riſe, it being the Cuſtom of the Greeks to follow the Babylonians in dividing the day into 12 parts, as we may learn from Herodotus, l. 2. When it revolted in Semiramis's Reign, ſhe had notice of it, as dreſſing her Hair, whereupon leaving her Head half dreſs'd, ſhe went and beſieg'd it, and never would dreſs the other half until ſhe recover'd it. Xenophon likewiſe tells us, That Cyrus took it, by cutting many deep Channels on the Banks of the Euphrates, into which having drain'd the Water, when the Babylonians were in the height of their Mirth and Feaſting, he march'd his Forces into the City by the dry Channel, and became Maſter of it. When it revolted from Darius Hydaſpes, Zophyrus, one of his Captains, mangling his Body, and cutting off his Noſe and Ears, fled to the Babylonians, and telling 'em that the King had treated him ſo for ſpeaking in their Favour, obtain'd the Command of their Forces, which he quickly ſurrendred, with the Town, into the hands of his King; who thereupon ſaid, That he had rather have one Zophyrus than 20 Babylons. It's alſo noted for Alexander the Great's Death. Q. Curtius ſays, it was leſſen'd a 4th part in his time; Pliny, That it was reduc'd to a Wilderneſs in his. St. Jerome ſays, That it was turn'd into a Park, wherein the King's of Perſia uſed to Hunt in his time; which was occaſion'd by the Injury of Time, the Removal of the Seat of the Empire thence by the Macedonians, and the Building of Seleucia near unto it by Seleucus. This City gave the Name of Babylonia to the adjacent Country. The Kings that Reigned in Babylon before Cyrus, are firſt Nabonaſar, famous for his Æra, which the Aſtronomers fixed upon the 26th day of February, A. M. 3306. in the 8th Olympiad, the 6th year after the Founding of Rome. Here followeth a Catalogue of the others:

BABYLON, a City of Egypt near the River Nilus over against Memphis, out of whoſe Ruines ſprang the Great Cairo, which is not far from it. It is in this Babylon that St. Peter is ſaid to have wrote his firſt Epiſtle, the other being a Deſart at that time. Marſh. Geneb. Torn.

BACAIM, a City in the Kingdom of Guzurate in the Eaſt-Indies, on this ſide of the Ganges, near the Gulph of Cambaya towards the S. The Portugueſe poſſeſs it ſince 1534. and have there a ſtrong Fortreſs: The Churches are rich and magnificent, the Houſes well built, the Market-places very large, and the River that runs by the Walls is able to carry Veſſels of the greateſt Burthens, which renders it very convenient for Commerce. Dellon. Relat. des Ind. Orient.

BACAR, a Valley on the North-ſide of Mount Libanus, in the Tribe of Nephthali, which reaches as far Eaſtward as Salmira in Syria. It is famous for its excellent Soil, good Paſturage, and numerous Flocks. Hoffm. Others ſay, That it was called in Latin Iturea Trachonitis, belong'd to the Tribes of Gad and Reuben, and was fam'd for excellent Archers. Cicero call'd its Inhabitants, Omnium gentium maxime Barbaros. There is alſo a Country in India beyond Ganges of this Name, having the Kingdom of Dellium on the W. and Patno on the E. from which it's ſeparated by the River Ganges.

BACCHANALIA, Feaſts celebrated in Honour of Bacchus, with ſo much Debauchery and ſuch infamous Ceremonies, that the Romans thought fit to ſuppreſs them, An. Rom. 568. This Feſtival had its Original in Egypt, whence it was brought into Greece by one Melampus, where the Athenians kept it more ſolemnly than all their Neighbours.

BACCHANETS, the Name of ſuch Women as followed Bacchus in the Conqueſt of the Eaſt-Indies. It was afterwards given to the Female Prieſts of that falſe God, who celebrated his Feaſt covered with Skins of Tygers or Panthers, and running all the Night, ſome with their Hair looſe with Torches and Links in their Hands, others crowned with Vine and Ivy-leaves, carrying a Thyrſus or Stick covered with the like Leaves. They had along with them Cymbal-players, Drummers, and others with Hunting-Horns, and they themſelves made a terrible Noiſe, ſhouting and bawling as they went along. The Men were apparelled like Satyrs, ſome riding upon Aſſes, and others led He-goats to ſacrifice them. Tertul. St. Auſtin.

BACCHARACH, or Bachrac, a ſmall Town on the Rhine, in the Low Palatinate, famous for its excellent Wine, which made it be call'd Bacchiara, the Altar of Bacchus, 22 miles Weſt of Mentz, 23 South of Coblentz.

BACCHIADES, the Name of ſome Families among the Corinthians, which derived their Original from Bacchia, Daughter to Bacchus, during whoſe Feſtivals they tore in pieces Acteon, Son to Meliſſus; which brought this Prince into ſuch Deſpair, that at the time of the Iſthmian Plays, he put himſelf before the Altar, and made horrid Imprecations againſt the Corinthians, if they neglected to revenge his Death; after which, he threw himſelf down from the top of a high Hill. The Corinthians, to avoid Meliſſus's Curſes, expell'd the Bacchiades out of their City; who ſhipping themſelves, arriv'd in Sicilia, and ſettled between the Promontories of Pachini and Pelorio. The Bacchiades Govern'd Corinth very happily for about 200 years, and made its Havens renowned for Trade. Strab.

BACCHIDES, General to Demetrius Soter, King of Syria: He was ſent into Judæa to conſtitute Alcimus High-Prieſt: At another time, being at the head of 20000 Foot, and 2000 Horſe, he met with Judas Macchabæus, who had not above 800 Men with him; however, Judas put him to flight, but receiv'd his Death's Wound in the purſuit. Jonathan being choſen General of the Jews upon his Brother's Death, courageouſly withſtood Bacchides, who endeavour'd to have him treacherouſly murdered; but his Deſign miſcarrying, and he himſelf being worſted in all Rencounters, he made Peace with the Jews, and went back to Antioch, and never return'd after with Arms into Judæa. Joſeph.

BACCHILIDES, a Greek Poet, with whoſe Writings Julian the Apoſtate was much taken; he read them daily, and learned ſeveral good Precepts out of them, amongſt others, That Chaſtity is the moſt beautiful Ornament of an Illuſtrious Life.

BACCHILUS, Biſhop of Corinth: He lived in the latter end of the 2d Age, and writ an excellent Treatiſe concerning the Celebration of the Feaſt of Eaſter, on the account of a Diſpute that aroſe in his time upon that Subject.

BACCHIO Bar-Ptolemeo, born at Savignano, a Village about 10 miles from Florence, An. 1469. was a Diſciple of Coſimo Roſſeli, but much more beholden to the Works of Leonardo de Vinci, for his extraordinary Skill in Painting. He was very well vers'd in the Fundamentals of Deſign; and beſides, had ſo many other laudable Qualities, that Raphael, after he had quitted the School of Perugino, applied himſelf to this Maſter, and under him ſtudied the Rules of Perſpective, together with the Art of Managing and Uniting his Colours. He turn'd Dominican Friar, An. 1500. and after ſome time was ſent, by his Superiours, to the Convent of St. Mark in Florence. He Painted both Portraicts and Hiſtories; and, by the Perſuaſion of Hieronymo Savonarola, a Dominican, he burn'd all his immodeſt Paintings, and afterwards declin'd that Liberty. He died at the Age of 48. An. 1517. Serafino Razzi, Felibien Entr. des Peint.

BACCHIO, (Peter James) born at Rezzo, and afterwards an Orator at Rome. Beſides ſome other Works, he wrote the Life of Philip Nerio, the Founder of his Order, in Latin and Italian. Miræus de Script. ſect. 17.

BACCHIUS, a famous Fencer or Gladiator, who lived in the Emperor Auguſtus's time: His Antago[illegible] was one Bithus, equal in Years, and ſo much alike in Strength, that neither could worſt the other; which occaſion'd the Proverb, Bithus contra Bacchium, when Combatants happen'd ſo equally match'd, that one could not get the better of the other. Eraſm. Suet.

BACCHUS, look'd upon by the Ancients to be the God of Wine, was Son of Jupiter by Semele, according to ſome Authors, according to others by Proſerpina; nor will ſome ſtick to ſay he had two Mothers; which indeed is as likely as other things ſaid of him; as, That Jupiter drew him out of his Mother's Womb, and put him into his Thigh, to make up what he wanted of the 9 Months, when the Mother loſt her Life through her indiſcreet Curioſity to converſe with his Father in the Rays of his Divinity. He was an Hermaphrodite, if we believe the Poet Orpheus, and accordingly it's ſaid he was always young. He was in great eſteem among the Egyptians; nor do we read of any People which at that time denied him the Veneration that was uſually paid to the Gods, except Scythia, thoſe of that Country holding it unreaſonable and ridiculous to adore a God that rendred People Fools or Mad. The various Opinions concerning the time and place of Bacchus's Birth, the manner of his Education, the Country where, and the Perſons that had the Care of his bringing up, are to be ſeen all at length in the 4th Book of Diodorus Siculus; where alſo is the Deſcription of his Exploits and memorable Actions, and of the Ceremonies of his Feaſt and Triumphs. The Indians worſhip him under the Name of Dionyſius; the Egyptians under that of Oſiris. The Romans call him Liber; and the Greeks give him ſeveral Names. Bochartus is of Opinion, That Bacchus comes from Bar-Chus, i. e. in Chaldee, the Son of Chus; and that Nimrod and Bacchus were the ſame Perſon. Bochartus Phaleg. lib. 1. cap. 2.

BACCIUS, or Baccio, (Andrew) an able Phyſician in the 16th Century, Author of ſeveral good Books: 1. De Thermis. 2. De Naturali Vinorum Hiſtoria. 3. De Venenis & Antidotis. 4. De Gemmis & Lapidibus pretioſis, &c. Vander Linden.

BACH, a ſmall Town of Lower Hungary, at the Confluence of the Danube and Sarwizze, belonging to the Archbiſhop of Colocza: It was under the Turks until 1686. but after the taking of Quinque-Eccleſiæ, it returned to the Obedience of the Emperor. It ſtands 70 miles S. E. of Buda, and 20 S. of Colocza.

BACHARIUS, or Bacchiarius, was a Perſon of Reputation in the 5th Century, living about the year 460. He was an Engliſh-man, or, as others ſay, an Iriſh-man, and a Diſciple of St. Patrick. In his Youth he ſtudied Poetry and Mathematicks, and wrote a Book about the Calculation of Nativities. He wrote alſo a little Tract by way of Letter, De Recipiendis Lapſis, which is now in the Bibliotheca Patrum. Gernard. in Cat. c. 24. Miræus in Auct. de Script. Eccl. &c.

BACHIAN, Lat. Bachianum, an Iſland and Kingdom of Aſia in the Indian Sea, reckoned one of the Molucco's: It's ſmall, but wonderfully fruitful, and belongs to the King of Machian, whence it lies 20 miles Southward, and about as far from the Iſland Gilolee Weſtward, almoſt under the Line: Its chief Town is of its own Name: It has a Caſtle call'd Barnevelt, which belongs to the Dutch. The Temperature of the Air is very unwholeſom, becauſe of the Vapours extracted by the ſcorching Heat of the Sun. The Chineſe poſſeſs'd theſe Iſlands in 1013. after them the Perſians, Arabians, Portugueſe, and Dutch.

BACIOSARY, or Bacha-ſerai, the Capital City of Little Tartary, call'd Precope: It is ſituated in the middle of the Country, upon the River Nabarta, and is conſiderable for being the Reſidence of the Cham of the Crim-Tartars. Tavern. Baudr.

BACKER, (James) an excellent Painter, Native of Harlingen, a City of Friſeland, one of the United Provinces; his chief Aim was to draw to the Life, wherein he was ſo expeditious, that a Harlem Woman, that came to Amſterdam, had her Picture begun and finiſh'd by him that very day, to the full length, with all the Embelliſhments that could be beſtow'd upon it by Art.

BACKOW, Lat. Backovia, a City of Moldavia well inhabited: It was made a Biſhop's See, and Suffragan of Colocza, by Pope Clement VIII. It ſtands on the River Alauſa, 25 miles N. W. of Targoviſco: Some call it Braiſlow. Baudr.

BACON, (Sir Nicholas) Lord Keeper of the Great Seal in Queen Elizabeth's Reign, was a Branch of the ancient Family of the Bacons of Norfolk and Suffolk, but born at Chiſelhurſt in the County of Kent. He was bred in Bennet's College in Cambridge, and having applied himſelf to the Study of the Common Law, he became Attorney of the Court of Wards; then was preferr'd to be Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, in which he continued about 18 years. He was not only a good Lawyer, but a Man of great Wit and Wiſdom, and of deep reach into all ſorts of Affairs: He had a ſpecial Memory to recollect all the Circumſtances of a Buſineſs, and as great Patience to debate and conſider them; witneſs his uſual Saying, Let us ſtay a little, and we ſhall have done the ſooner. In ſhort, he underſtood the true Intereſt of England, and promoted it to the utmoſt of his Power. To ſecure his own, he made uſe of the Policy of thoſe Times, viz. great Alliance; he and Cecil Married two Siſters; Walſingham and Mildway two more; Knowls, Eſſex, and Leiceſter were alſo linked together. As for Greatneſs, Sir Nicholas never affected it, giving for his Motto, Mediocri firma; nor was he ſo much for a large as a good Eſtate. His Houſe at Gorhambury in Hertfordſhire was convenient, but not at all ſtately; which made the Queen tell him, when ſhe call'd there in her Progreſs, That it was too little for his Lordſhip: To which he made this Anſwer, No, Madam; but Your Highneſs has made me too big for it. He was very corpulent in his old Age, to which the Queen alluding, us'd to ſay, Sir Nicholas's Soul lodgeth well. He died An. 1578. leaving two Sons, Sir Nicholas the firſt Baronet of England, and Sir Francis the Honour of his Age and Country.

BACON, (Sir Francis) created Lord Verulam, and Viſcount St. Albans, by K. James I. in 1620. and advanced by the ſame King to the Dignity of Lord High Chancellor of England; was a younger Son of Sir Nich Bacon, by his Lady Anne Cock. With this Advantage of Great Birth, he had a ſuitable Education; and ſuch Natural Parts, as rais'd him to a greater Eſteem in the World by his Knowledge, than he was in his own Country by the Honours and Dignities conferr'd upon him. He was born at York-Houſe in the Strand in 1560. Queen Elizabeth took Delight in his witty Diſcourſes, and admired him in his Childhood for his witty Repartees. He was ſent to Trinity-College in Cambridge at 16 years of Age, where he made ſuch progreſs, that he ſoon became the Admiration of the whole Univerſity. He quickly diſcover'd the Emptineſs of Ariſtotle's Natural Philoſophy, as fram'd for Diſputations, and no ways tending to the Benefit of Humane Life; and tho' he always ſpoke of that Author with Praiſe, he perſiſted in this Opinion all his Life-time. After he had run through the whole Courſe of Liberal Arts, he applied himſelf particularly to the Study of Politicks, to which his Genius led him. And when Sir Amias Paulet went Ambaſſador to the French Court, he was ſent with him into France, where he was ſoon after employ'd Agent between the two Courts, till his Father's Death call'd him home to look after his own private Concerns. Then he grew a great Stateſman, and was choſen the Queen's Advocate at 30 years of Age: His Generous and Affable Diſpoſition procur'd him all Men's Love and Wonder. He inſtill'd wholeſom Precepts of Prudence and Honour to Noblemen; Sound Principles of Arts and Sciences to the Learned; Noble Maxims of Government to Princes; Excellent Rules of Life to the People. His Port was ſtately; his Speech flowing and grave; his Religion was rational and ſober; his Spirit publick; his Love tender to his Relations, and faithful to his Friends; liberal to the Hopeful, juſt to all Men, and civil to his very Enemies. One Fault he had, That he was above the Age he lived in, in his Bounties to ſuch as brought him Preſents; and over-indulgent to his Servants, whoſe Riſe prov'd his Fall. How little he valued Wealth, appears in that when his Servants would take Money from his Cloſet, he would ſay, Ay, poor Men, that is their Portion. But he wanted at laſt what he was ſo careleſs of, if what is ſaid be true, That he grew a Burden to Sir Julius Cæſar, who kept him; and that the Lord Brook denied him Small-beer: Yet he had kept his Chancellor's Place 19 years, and did not forfeit it by any Offence againſt the King, but fell by the ſame Hand that rais'd him, the then Duke of Buckingham. He died without Iſſue at Highgate, in the Earl of Arundel's Houſe, Apr. 9. 1626. in the 66th year of his Age, and was buried in St. Michael's Church near St. Albans, where Sir Thomas Mutis, formerly his Secretary, erected a Monument of white Marble to his Memory, with an Epitaph compos'd by Sir Henry Wotton. It was ſaid of him, That as Socrates brought Morality to Diſcourſe, ſo did he Philoſophy from Speculation to Experience. Sir Walter Raleigh uſed to ſay, That the Earl of Salisbury was a good Orator, but bad Writer; the Earl of Northampton a good Writer, but bad Orator; and that Sir Francis Bacon excell'd in both. He left us theſe following Books: Hiſtoria Regni Henrici VII. De Sapientia Veterum. De Bello Sacro. De Naturali & Univerſali Philoſophia. Hiſtoria Ventorum. Hiſtoria Vitæ & Mortis. De Dignitate & Augmentis Scientiarum. Novum Organum Scientiarum.

BACON, (Roger) an Engliſh Franciſcan, lived in the 13th Century; and for his extraordinary Parts and Learning, was Sirnamed Doctor Mirabilis. His great Skill in Mathematicks got him the Name of Magician, inſomuch that the General of his Order cited him to Rome, where he was impriſoned; but having clear'd himſelf of the Imputation, was ſent back again into England, where he ſent Pope Clement IV. ſeveral Pieces of his Invention. He died in 1284. leaving ſeveral Works, whereof ſome, ſtill in Manuſcript, are to be ſeen in Oxford and other Libraries. Pitſæus.

BAGOTI, the Name of the great Witch which the People of Tonquin conſult, beſides their two Magicians, Taybou and Tayphowthouy. When a Child dies, the Mother, to learn the ſtate of the parted Soul, goes to this Bacoti, who takes a Drum, and beats a Call, to make that Soul appear before her, and tells the Mother ſhe ſees the Soul, which acquaints her of her good or evil Condition; but to pleaſe the Mother they generally ſay the Child is happy. Tavern.

BACQUET, (John) the King's Advocate of the Exchequer at Paris. He was very Learned both in the Municipal and Civil Laws, and wrote ſeveral Tracts in that Faculty. His Works have been enlarged with ſeveral Remarks, written by Claude de Ferriere, a Councellor of Parliament, and Printed for Denys Thierry, 1688.

BACQUIAN, or Backian, Bachianum, one of the Molucco Iſlands in the Eaſt-Indian Sea: It's between Machian and Gilole, and belongs to the Hollanders. It abounds with Fruit, and is water'd with ſeveral ſmall Chanels.

BACTRIA, an ancient Province of Perſia, between Margiana, Scythia, the Indies, and the Country of the Maſſagetes; part of it now lies in Chorazan, a Province of Perſia, and part of it in Mawaralnahr, commonly call'd Usbeck in Tartary: So that now Bactria is bounded by the River Albiamu, or Gehon, which is the Oxus of the Ancients. So that this Country lies between Perſia, the Dominions of the Great Mogul, the Kingdom of Thibet, and Tartary, under which it is comprehended. The Town of Bactria is the Termend of the Moderns in the ſame Country: 'Tis at preſent inconſiderable, and almoſt ruined. Diod. Sic. &c.

BACTRIANS, an ancient People of Perſia, who, according to Quintus Curtius, were the beſt Soldiers in the World, but rough and brutal, and had nothing of the Politeneſs of the Perſians. Some hold that they kept Dogs to devour ſuch as became uſeleſs either through their great Age or long Sickneſs; and it's ſaid that their Wives were well Apparelled, but were not Chaſte. They were much addicted to Aſtrology, and their Zoroaſter was ſuppoſed to be the Author of Magick.

BACU, Baruic, or Bachu, a Town of Perſia in the Province of Servan, upon the Caſpian Sea, great and famous for Traffick. Near to it is a Spring of Black Oil, which is uſed to burn throughout all Perſia: It gives its Name to the Caſpian Sea. There is another of the ſame Name in Arabia Fælix.

BACUCEN, Lat. Baduhemæ Lucus, the Name of a Village 3 leagues Weſt from Groninghen, ſo called for the greateſt Foreſt in Frieſland, one of the United Provinces, which the common People call Seven-Walden, thence Seven Woods: Others will have it Coevarden, a ſtrong Town of Over-Yſſel, in the Borders of Weſtphalia; but the firſt Opinion obtains. This Foreſt is famous for a Defeat of the Romans, who loſt 900 Men in the Skirmiſh. Tacit. Baudr. Hoffm.

BACURIUS, or Baturius, King of the Iberians, a People that lived towards Mont-Caucaſus on the ſide of the Caſpian Sea: He and his Subjects were converted about An. 327. in the Emperor Conſtantine's time, who made him Governour of the Holy Land. A Chriſtian Slave that was of his Court cured his Wife and Son, and ſo generouſly refuſed the Reward offered him, that his Virtue was much admired. This Prince being a Hunting, and having loſt ſight of his Retinue in a great Storm and ſudden Darkneſs, made his Application to the God that his Slave believ'd in, with a Promiſe to adore Him alone, if he delivered him from that Danger: He had hardly finiſh'd his Vow, when the Day clear'd up; and the grateful Prince fulfill'd his Promiſe, and became the Apoſtle of his Country.

BADAI, People of the Deſart Tartary, who adore the Sun, or a Piece of Red Cloth, which they lift up in the Air.

BADAJOZ, a Town of Spain in the Kingdom of Leon, Suffragan to the Biſhoprick of Compoſtella: It is the Pax Auguſta of the Ancients. The Moors gave it the preſent Name. It is ſituated upon the River Gaudiana, well fortified, being the Bulwark of Spain, againſt the Portugueſe, who beſieged it to no purpoſe in 1658. It has a Fort on the other ſide of the River, called St. Chriſtopher's Fort. It's large and populous, built upon a Hill. Longitude 13 Deg. Latitude 38 Deg. 45 Min. It's 85 miles North-Weſt of Seville, and 190 South-Weſt of Madrid. Plin. Marian.

BADARA, a Kingdom of India on this ſide the Ganges, in the Calicut: It's principal Town is of the ſame Name, and ſtands in a Peninſula, 6 leagues North from Calicut. Baudr.

BADE, or Baden, Bada, and Thermæ inferiores, a Town of Germany in Suabia, that bears the Title of Marquiſate: It is famous for its Baths, being 5 leagues off of Straſburg, and 8 of Spire. This Marquiſate is upon the Rhine, between Briſgaw and the Dutchy of Wirtemberg. Its Marquiſes are Princes of [illegible] Empire, and are of a Noble and Ancient Family. The Baden Durlach Branch has two Voices in the Diet of the Empire and in the Circle of Suabia; one for Durlach, and the other for Hochberg. Theſe two Branches act by turns in all theſe Diets, as it was regulated in the Peace of Munſter. This Noble Family of Baden derives its Original from the Duke of Zering, Bartholdus I. being Father to Herman the Founder of this Family. It's divided into two Branches, Hochberg and Durlach; the former Popiſh, the other Proteſtants. The preſent Prince Lewis of Baden, who hath been General for the Emperor in Hungary, and obtain'd ſuch great Victories, is of the firſt Branch.

BADE, or Baden, a Town in Swiſſerland, upon the River Limague: It is the Meeting-place of the Cantons for their Publick Concerns, and where Foreign Ambaſſadors come. It's between Bale and Zurich, and is an ancient Town. It was call'd by the Romans Aquæ Helveticæ; in ſucceeding Ages it was called Caſtellum Thermarum, and Thermæ Superiores, for its hot Baths, which are in great Repute. Theſe Baths are not in the Town, but a little below it, in a Village well built, in the middle of which there is a great Square, or Market-place, ſurrounded with well-built Inns, which are all furniſhed with Baths, for the Convenience of thoſe that Lodge there: There are 30 of them in all, beſides thoſe beyond the River. Tacitus ſays, That Cecinna, a Captain of Vitellius's Party, defeated near this Town an Army of Swiſſers that adhered to Otho, An. C. 69. Bade is Capital of a County that bears the ſame Name, and is one of the Free Towns of Swiſſerland, which, according to Simler, may be called Tributary, becauſe they raiſe Soldiers at their proper Coſt for the whole Republick. Tho' the Eight ancient Cantons are Sovereigns of it, nevertheleſs their Bailiff, who reſides there, has no Power, becauſe it Governs it ſelf by its own Laws, and chuſes its Magiſtrates; the ſmall Council conſiſts of 12 Perſons, who manage the Buſineſs of the Town, and examine all Civil and Criminal Proceſſes and Suits. Their Great Council is of 40, including the 12 of the Little Council, and the Chief of theſe is called Avoyer. It was in this Town that the Cantons ordered the famous Conference to be held in 1526. upon the Difference of Religion between Faber, Eccius, Murnerus, and the Deputies of the Biſhops of Conſtance, Baſle, Coire and Lauſanne on the one ſide, and Oecolampadius and his Companions on the other. This City is famous for the League the Cantons entred into in 1526. and for the General Diet of the Cantons held here in 1690. wherein they reſolved on a Neutrality in reference to the War between the Confederates and France, and to ſecure the Paſſage againſt the Biſhoprick of Baſle, and the four Foreſt Towns, in which the French did pretend to take Winter Quarters. This Town is 14 miles N. W. of Zurick, and 40 S. E. of Baſil. Simler. de Rep. Helvet.

BADEGISLE, Biſhop of Mans, he was Steward to Childerick King of France, who got him made Biſhop of that Place. He was married when he was choſen Biſhop, and without quitting his Wife, exerciſed his Function.

BADEN, a Town of Auſtria in Germany, belonging to the Emperor, ſtands 18 miles S. of Vienna.

BADENOCH, in Latin Badenacha, a Place in the North of Scotland, in the Province of Murray, towards the Mountains and the ſmall Province of Athol; it is a cold and barren parcel of Ground, parted in two by the River Spey.

BADENWELIER, a City in the Province of Briſgaw in Germany, between Friburg and Bazil, famous for its hot Baths. It's 15 miles N. of Bazil.

BADERIC, Son of Baſin King of Thuringia: He was kill'd by his Brother Hermenfroy, who was reſolv'd to make himſelf Maſter of all the Dominions which their Father had left between 'em. Gregor. Turon. lib. 1. See Amalabergue.

BADET, (Arnulph) a Frenchman of the Order of St. Dominick: In 1499. he publiſh'd a Treatiſe at Avignon call'd Breviarium de Mirabilibus Mundi; and in 1529. two other Pieces of his were printed at Lions, entituled, Margarita Virorum Illuſtrium: Margarita Sacræ Scripturæ. Miræus de Script. ſec. 16.

BADILLON, or Bodillon, a French Lord, who being ſtretched upon the Ground, and unmercifully whipp'd by King Childerick II.'s Order, join'd himſelf to ſome other Great Men, who reſented his ill Uſage, and conſpired to murther the King: To execute which, they way-laid him as he was coming from Hunting, and Badillon himſelf kill'd him with his own Hand, together with his Son and the Queen Bilechide, then with Child.

BAERT, or Bertius, (Arnulph) a celebrated Lawyer, born at Bruſſels, and Councellor of the Great Council at Malines: He has left ſeveral Treatiſes in his Profeſſion, i. e. Ad L. Unicam C. de Sententiis. Ad L. Vinum 22. De Rebus Creditis. Ad Tit. de eo quod Loco dari oportet, &c. This Lawyer died in the year 1627. Valerius Andreas Bibl. Belg.

BÆTICA, one of the 3 Parts of Spain, which the Romans divided into Tarraconenſis, Bætica, and Portugal. It derives its Name from the River Bætis, call'd now Guadalquivir, and comprehended Andaluſia, and a great part of the Kingdom of Granada. Aben Joſeph, the King of Morocco, took it from Alphonſus King of Caſtile, in the year 1195. Since that time the Sarazens held it till Ferdinand V. Grandfather of the Emperor Charles V. Mariana Hiſt. Hiſpan. The chief Cities of Bætica were Seville and Corduba.

BAEZA, in Latin Biatia, a City of Bætica in Spain, according to Pliny; but now belonging to Andaluſia; is a Biſhop's See, Suffragant to Toledo; but in 1249. united to that of Jaena by Pope Innocent IV. It was taken from the Infidels by Ferdinand King of Caſtile, in 1227 It was formerly called Batica, is large, ſituate on a Mountain, one league North of the River Bætis, as much Weſt from Ubeda, and hath an Univerſity, which was founded in 1538.

BAFFIN, or Baffin's Bay, Sinus Baffini, a Gulph in the Ocean in the Southern Lands beyond America Septentrionalis; it was lately diſcovered by the Engliſh under one Baffin, who called it by his Name. Sanſon, Du Val. Baudrand.

BAGAIA, Bagy, or Vagai, a Town of Numidia in Africa; the Emperor Juſtinian named it Theodoria, becauſe his Wife's Name was Theodora. Primianus a Donatiſt, Biſhop of Carthage, held a Council here in the year 394. againſt the Deacon Maximian, whom he had excommunicated.

BAGAMEDRI, or Bagamidri, Bagamidriæ Regnum, a Kingdom of Africa, in the Higher Æthiopia or Abyſſinia: It has the River Nilus to the Weſt of it, and is divided into 17 Provinces, whereof ſome make ſo many Kingdoms.

BAGAUDES, Peaſants in Gaul, who revolted about the end of the third Century againſt the Romans; they were Headed by Amand and Elian, two experienc'd Men. Herculeus Maximianus, whom Diocleſian aſſociated to the Empire after Carinus s Death, overthrew theſe Bagaudes about 85. or 86. The Bagaudes of Spain, in the Neighbourhood of Terragone, revolted about 452. but were beaten the year after by the Roman Troops and the Viſigoths, led by Frederick, Brother to their King Theodoricus.

BAGDEDIN, (Mahomet) an Arabian Mathematician; 'tis ſuppos'd he lived in the tenth Century: Several Tracts of Geometry are aſſign'd him, and amongſt others, one De Superficierum Diviſionibus: This Book was tranſlated into Latin by John Dee of London, and Frederick Commendini de Urbin; notwithſtanding the Criticks are of opinion, Euclide was the Author of this Piece, and that Bagdedin did no more than tranſlate it into Arabick. Proclus in Euclid. Voſſius de Math. C. 16. Sec. 4.

BAGDET, or Bagdad, a Town of Aſia upon the River Tygris, and in the Province of Hurac or Yerac, where the ancient Seleucia was, and ſtands about 38 miles from the ancient Babylon. Bagdet joins a Suburb by a Bridge of Boats, where, according to the Tradition of the Country, the Town was formerly built, which Situation deſtroys the Opinion of thoſe that call it Babylon; for the ancient Babylon was on the Euphrates, whereas this is upon the Tygris, where Seleucia ſtood. The Arabians call it Dar-al-Sani, that is, the Place of Peace. It's three miles in Circuit; its Walls are all Brick, Tarraſſed in ſeveral Places, and defended with Towers, in form of great Baſtions, on which are ſixty Pieces of Cannon. The Grand Signior keeps a Garriſon of 5000 Men in a Caſtle which ſtands in a Corner of the Town on the Water-ſide. The Baſha is generally choſen among the Viziers: The Cadi, or Judge, does the Functions of a Mufti. There are five Moſques in the Town, whereof two are very ſumptuous and remarkable for their Domes, covered with Tiles varniſhed with different Colours. There are ten Carvanſeras, and ſeveral Bazars, or Market-places, all vaulted and covered over head to keep off the ſcorching Heat. Bagdet is much reſorted to from all ſides, both for Commerce and Devotion, for all the Perſians hold, that their Prophet Ali lived there; and here dwell two ſorts of Mahometans, whereof ſome obſerve Mahomet's Law, according to the Alcoran; the reſt are a particular Sect called Rafedis. There are Roman-Catholicks, Neſtorians, Arminians, or Jacobites. The firſt have a Church ſupplied by Capucins, the ſecond likewiſe have one; but the others ſay their Prayers in the Capucin's Church, who adminiſter the Sacraments to them. There are alſo Jews, and a great many more come thither every year to viſit the Tomb of the Prophet Ezekiel, which is a day and a halfs Journey hence. The Turks made themſelves Maſters of this Town in 1638. when the King of Perſia was taken up in his War againſt the Mogul. Three Leagues off Bagdat, at an equal diſtance between the Euphrates and Tygris, are to be ſeen the Ruines of a Tower, called by the Country People that of Nimrod or Babel. But what the Arabians ſay, ſeems more probable, viz. that it was built by an Arabian Prince as a Beacon, or Light-Tower, to aſſemble his Subjects upon any preſſing Occaſion. Its Baſis is 300 Paces round, and is but 40 Yards high, built of Bricks, baked in the Sun, whereof each is 10 Inches ſquare, and three thick. It's hard to determine what form it had, becauſe the Ruines lay ſo confuſed; yet there is more reaſon to think that it was ſquare than round. Tavernier's Voyage, Thevenot.

BAGLIONI, Aſtor, a Noble Venetian, Governor of the Caſtle of Famagouſte in the Iſle of Cyprus; in 1570. and 1571. he killed the Turks 3000 Men, but was forced at laſt to capitulate, becauſe the Republick of Venice were too ſlow in ſending him Succour. Muſtapha gave them Honourable Conditions, but being in Poſſeſſion of the Town, he got him and Bragadin, Tiepoli, and ſeveral other Officers put in Irons, whom he afterwards cauſed to be Maſſacred in Baglioni's ſight, but reſerved him for ſome more cruel Puniſhment.

BAGNA, a Town in the Kingdom of Servia, Subject to the Turks, 44 miles from Niſſa, and 18 from Uſcopia.

BAGNAREA, a Town of Italy in the Country of Orvieto, in the Church-State, with a Biſhoprick depending immediately on the Holy See. It's the Balneum Regis, or Balneo Regum of the Latin Authors. It's noted for the Birth of Bonadventure the Seraphical Doctor, who flouriſh'd in the 12th Century. It's ſix miles S. E. of Orviedo, upon the River Adcar.

BAGNERES, a Town of France in the Valley of Campan in Bigorre. It's the Aquenſis vicus of the Latin Authors, which others take for Aquæ Convenarum, or Oneſiorum of the Ancients. It's Famous for its hot Baths, known ſince the time of the Romans, who embelliſh'd it with ſeveral Buildings, in whoſe Ruines were found Gold and Silver Medals. It's 18 miles S. of Tarbe. Baudr. Pap. Maſſon.

BAGNOLENSES, Hereticks, who followed the Errors of the Manichees, and began to appear in the eighth Century; they rejected the Old Teſtament, and part of the New, maintaining that God foreſaw nothing of himſelf, ſelf, and that he created no new Souls, and that the World had no beginning, &c. S. Antonin. Prateol.

BAGOAS, is rather a Common, than a Proper Name, and ſignifies an Eunuch in the Perſian Language, according to Pliny; and this is the reaſon why there are many that are not known by any other Name.

BAGOAS, or Bagoſe, a Perſian Eunuch, who was ſo great at the Court of K. Artaxerxes Ochus, that nothing could be done without his Mediation. He led the Armies of the King to Judæa, and Prophaned the Temple of Jeruſalem, impoſing a Tribute of 50 Drachms upon the Jews, for each Lamb they Sacrificed, after the High-Prieſt John kill'd his Brother Jeſus in the Temple, whom the Emperor loved very well. At his return into Perſia, he poiſoned the King, and placed Arſes, the youngeſt Prince, on the Throne, in the 414th year of Rome; and upon a bare Suſpicion, he poiſoned this young Prince four years afterwards; but Darius, Sirnamed Codomantus, who ſucceeded Arſes, put this ungrateful Eunuch to death, who alſo had a deſign to cut him off. Quintus Curtius, Joſephus.

BAGOAS, another Eunuch, whom Alexander the Great loved with an Affection not altogether Chaſt; he was ſo enraged againſt Orſines, a Peer of the Realm, deſcended from Cyrus, for making great Preſents to the King's other Favourites, and for calling him Concubine, that he vowed his Deſtruction; and played his part ſo well with Alexander, that Orſines was put to death, and this Villain had the Impudence to ſtrike him as he died. Q. Curtius.

BAGOE, a Nymph that taught the Tuſcans the Art of Divining by Thunder-Bolts. Some think her to be the Sibyl Erythrea, called otherwiſe Herophyle; others will have her to be after Herophyle's time, and ſay ſhe lived in Alexander the Great's days, and was the firſt Woman that interpreted Oracles. Alex. ab Alex.

BAGOPHANES, Governor of the Citadel of Babylon, received Alexander very magnificently at his Entry into this Town; that he might not ſhow himſelf leſs affected to that Monarch's Service than Mazeus, he ſtrewed the Ways with Flowers, and ſet up Altars of Silver on each ſide of the Cavalcade, on which not only the common Incenſe, but all ſorts of rich Perfumes were burn'd: In this Solemnity, the Preſents deſign'd for the King followed Bagophanes; they were Herds of Cattel, Horſes with rich Trappings, with Lions, Leopards and Panthers. Alexander was pleas'd with this Reſpect, and ordered Bagophanes to follow him in his Wars, and beſtowed ſeveral Marks of Honour upon him. Q. Curt. lib. 5.

BAGRADA, or Bagradas, a River of Africa, which waſhes Utica, near unto which Attilius and his Army, with Croſs-Bows and other Engines, kill'd a Serpent 120 Foot long, Plin. Aulus Gellius. The Nubian Geographer calls this River Nagiarda, whoſe Mouth being obſtructed by Sand at ſome Seaſons of the year, it overflows the Neighbouring Countries.

BAHAMA, an Iſland of America Septentrionalis, one of the Lucay Iſlands, 50 Leagues from Florida: This gives its Name to the Canal of Bahama, betwixt Florida and Cuba; ſo renowned for its Ebbing and Flowing, and its great Storms.

BAHIA de Todos los Santos, i. e. the Bay of all Saints, Sinus omnium Sanctorum, the ſixth Prefecture in Braſil, 30 Leagues from Ilheos to the North, 100 from Pernambuc to the South, at the heighth of 13 Deg. South Lat. It has this Name from a great deep Bay, full of lovely and fruitful Iſlands, abounding with Cottons, which reacheth into the Continent 14 Leagues from the South to the North. In the year 1627. Peter Heyns, the Admiral of the Dutch Weſt-India Company, entred this Bay, and finding before St. Salvadore, the Principal City, 22 Portugueſe Ships, four of which were Ships of War, and the reſt well Mann'd and Arm'd, and defended by 42 Cannons planted on the Shore, yet he entred and took the whole Fleet, with the Loſs only of his own Ship. He returned to this Bay again the ſame year, and took in it ſeveral other Ships laden with Sugar, which he afterward ſent into Holland. Laet. p. 587. In the year 1588. ſome Engliſh Ships entred this Bay, and attempted to Land, but were forced to Sea again by the Braſilians, as Jarrico a Jeſuite reports. Ib. p. 550. See St. Salvadore.

BAHIR, which is to ſay, Famous or Illuſtrious. Buxtorf, in his Bibliotheca of the Rabbins, takes notice, that the Jews have a Book of this Name, which is the ancienteſt of the Rabbins, and where the moſt profound Myſteries of the Cabbala are treated of, and that this Book was not Printed; but that there were ſeveral Paſſages out of it in the Works of the Rabbins. Its Author calls himſelf Rabbi Nehonia Ben Hakana, who, according to the Jews, was contemporary to Jonathan, Author of the Chaldee Paraphraſe; that is to ſay, about 40 years before Chriſt. The ſame Buxtorf quotes this Book to prove the Antiquity of the Points which are read with the Text of the Hebrew Bible, but he's miſtaken, for this Bahir is not ſo ancient as he pretends. P. Simon obſerves in his Catalogue of Jewiſh Books, that a ſmall Book alſo Entituled Bahir, was lately Printed in Holland; but ſays, that it is not at all likely that it ſhould be the ancient Bahir of the Jews, which was much larger, and never Printed.

BAHREM, or Baharen, an Iſland in the Perſian Gulf, over againſt El-katif, a Port of Arabia the Happy. This Iſland belongs to the King of Perſia, and is very famous for the great Fiſhery of Pearls, which holds from July to September, and has 3000 Barks employ'd in it: There is a good Town and Fortreſs about a League and a half diſtant from it. All them that fiſh are Arabians, and they pay a Tax to the Prince they are ſubject to for having Liberty to Fiſh, another to the King of Perſia, and a third to the Governor of Bahrem. Some of them that fiſh, dive to gather the Shells, whilſt the reſt guide the Bark, and draw the Ropes which the Divers are ty'd to. Thevenot.

BAHUS, a Caſtle and Government belonging to the King of Sweden in Norway. The Caſtle was built by Aquir, the 11th King of Norway, in 1309. It ſtands in the Iſland formed by the River Trolhete, and was confirmed to the Swedes by the Peace of Roskill in 1658.

BAHUS, one of the five Governments of Norway, where there is a ſtrong Caſtle of the ſame Name built upon a Rock, environed with Water. The Danes ſurrendred it to the Swedes in 1658. and beſieged it in 1678. to no purpoſe. Near unto this Caſtle is the Town of Malſtrand; conſiderable for Herring-Fiſhing: The Swedes became Maſters of it by the Treaty of the two Crowns in 1679. at Fontainbleau in France. This Town is 12 miles North of Goteburg, 120 North of Copenhagen.

BAIARIA, a River of Sicily, otherwiſe call'd Admirati. It is the Eleuterus of the Ancients, and falls into the Tuſcan Sea on the Eaſt-ſide of Palermo. Cluver. Deſcrip. Sicil.

BAJAZET, the firſt of this Name, and fifth Emperor of the Turks, ſucceeded his Father Amurath the Firſt in 1389. or the 791 of the Hegyra; he was ſirnam'd Gilderin, that is, Lightning, or a Thunder-bolt, to expreſs the Expedition of his Conqueſts. To mount the Throne, he got his Eldeſt Brother Jacub, or Jacob, ſtrangled, and was the firſt who introduced that barbarous Cuſtom of the Ottomans, of putting their Brothers to death at their coming to the Crown. He took from the Chriſtians, in the very beginning of his Reign, An. 1391, 92, 93. the Provinces of Macedonia, Bulgaria, Theſſaly, and ſeveral Places from the Greeks and Armenians, and turned moſt of the Aſiatick Princes out of their Eſtates and Poſſeſſions. This Torrent of Succeſs made the Chriſtian Princes tremble, and moved Sigiſmond, King of Hungary, to propoſe a League againſt the Tyrant. France granted him a conſiderable Number of common Soldiers, with 2000 Perſons of Quality that went Voluntiers, under the Command of John Count of Nevers, Son to the Duke of Burgundy. Theſe did great Feats in the beginning, but were all at laſt either kill'd or made Priſoners at the Siege of Nicopolis in Bulgaria; and in the Battel near that place, Sept. 28. 1395. the Hungarians taking little care to ſecond them, Bajazet cut to pieces above 600 of the French in the preſence of their General, and then ſet the Count and 15 more at liberty, for which 15 the Count promiſed to remit him 2000 Ducats Ranſom. After this Succeſs, Bajazet marched to Conſtantinople, and laid ſiege to it, which was relieved by Mareſchal Boucicaut, who returned into France with the Emperor Emanuel II. who came to thank Charles VI. for the Succour he had ſent him, and to beg a new Supply. Whilſt Bajazet continued his Cruelties, the Aſiatick Princes applied themſelves for Succour to Tamberlain, King of the Tartars, who having conquer'd the Parthians, made all the Eaſt to tremble: This Tartar gave Bajazet Battel near Angoria in Galatia, upon a Friday, the 28th of July 1402, took him Priſoner, and having got him, led him through his Army on a Mule, to puniſh his extraordinary Pride, and put him in an Iron Cage; and in this poſture ſet him under his Table to pick up Crumbs like a Dog; which, with the ſight of his Wife thus ignominiouſly uſed, enraged him to that heighth, that he daſhed his Brains out againſt his Cage, Anno Chriſti 1403. in the 15 year of his Reign, and 8th Month of his Captivity. Chalcondyl. Leunclavius.

BAJAZET the Second, came to the Crown after the death of his Father Mahomet II. in 1481. Zizim, his younger Brother, diſputed the Crown with him for ſome time, upon this Pretence, That Bajazet was not born when Mahomet came to the Throne; but after he was beaten in Aſia, and had begged Succour in Rhodes, France, and Italy, he died unfortunately of Poiſon, as it's thought, in 1495. Bajazet took from the Venetians Lepanto in Acarnania, Modon in the Morea, and Durazzo upon the Coaſt of Sclavonia. It's true, he was not ſo ſucceſsful in Egypt, for he was always worſted there: The Janizaries did alſo much diſquiet him by their Revolts; ſo that he was reſolved to have put them all to death, had not two Baſſa's diſſwaded him. After he had Reigned 13 years, there was ſuch a ſtrong Conſpiracy againſt him, that he was forced to yield the Crown to his Son Selim, who cauſed him to be poiſoned, as he withdrew himſelf to Didymothicos in Thrace. He died June 23. 1512. aged 74. Chalcondyl.

BAJAZET, a Turkiſh Prince, Son to Solyman II. and Brother to Selim II. This laſt, Heir to the Empire, had few good Qualities to recommend him, but was moſt loved by the Father: But Bajazet was a handſom Man, a well-bred, liberal, and learned Prince, beloved by all, and his Mother Roxana's Darling: But with all theſe commendable Qualities, he was exceedingly Ambitious, and tried all Methods to get the Crown; which provoked Solyman very much againſt him, but was appeaſed by the Mother. After the Sultaneſs's Death, he raiſed a great Storm, which fell heavy upon him. He Commanded in the Province of Cogne, near the Place that Selim was Commander of; This Neighbourhood fomented their Hatred. Solyman thought fit to put them farther aſunder, and ſo gave them other Governments. Bajazet taking this for a Deſign to ſurprize him, delay'd ſo long to obey, that they made all things ready to force him to it: This made him Arm and come to a Battel in 1559. wherein he was worſted. After this loſs he went off to Tacmas or Tacmaſes, King of Perſia, where he with his four Sons were ſtrangled. Thuan.

BAJÆ, a Town fallen to decay in Italy, ſtanding in Campania, in the Kingdom of Naples: This Town was in great Repute in the time of the Romans, who had a great many Villa's, or Country-Seats round about it; which made Horace ſay there was no Place in the World more pleaſant than Bajæ:

Nullus in Orbe locus Bajis prælucet amœnis.

'Tis parted from Puteoli by a Gulph, or Arm of the Sea, about 2 or 3 miles in length, over which the Emperor Caligula built a Bridge. The firſt Emperors loved the Town and Neighbourhood of Bajæ extreamly. The Remains of Bajæ ſhow the Structure of the Town has formerly been very ſtately. Strab. Plin. Suet. Tacit. &c.

BAJEUX, upon the River Aure, a Town of Low Normandy in France, which has the Title of Viſcounty, and is a Seat of a Biſhoprick Suffragant of Rouen: It's the Capital of the ſmall Country of Beſſin, and is but a League and half from the Sea. Some think that it is the People of this Dioceſs that Cæſar Names Bellocaſſi. This Town is 16 miles North-Weſt of Caen, and 84 Eaſt of Rouen.

BAIF (Lazarus) Abbot of Charroux and Grenetiere, Maſter of the Requeſts, and Councellor of the Parliament of Paris: He was a great Linguiſt, and particularly much a Maſter in Greek and Latin, which gain'd him a great Reputation with Fran. I. who put him in ſeveral honourable Poſts. He publiſhed ſeveral Pieces, and among others, that which gain'd him the greateſt Applauſe, was one De Re Veſtiaria, de Re Navali, & de Vaſculis; Printed by Robert Stephens at Paris, and by Froben at Baſil, in the year 1541. Paul. Jovius in Elog. Doct. c. ult. Blanchard Hiſt. des Maîtr. des Requêt.

BAILIFF, the Name of an Office brought hither by the Normans, which was an Office of Honour among the French, derived from the Greek Word βαλλειν, as one to whom the Care and Charge of Affairs was committed. Provincial Bailiffs in France have the Chief Adminiſtration of Juſtice in Counties. It's alſo uſed in Scotland as the Name of a Judge, and the Appellation of Aldermen. Spelm. Gloſſ. Archæon.

BAILLEUL, or Belle, Balliola, or Belliola, a Market-Town in Flanders about 3 leagues from Ypres.

BAILLI, (Yoland) Widow of Denys Capet, an Attorney in Paris; ſhe died in 1514. aged 88 years, and was buried in St. Innocent's Church-yard: Her Epitaph is to be ſeen there, which bears, That before ſhe died, her Children and Grandchildren made up 288. which ſhe might have ſeen all together.

BAILLI, or Baillif, Lat. Bailliſius, known by the Name of La Riviere, a Phyſician of Note about the year 1580. He was born at Falaiſe in Normandy, and Phyſician in Ordinary to the King: He was much celebrated for his Learning; but his particular Paracelſian way of Practice, made him cenſured by the Envious. He was at laſt obliged to write an Apology for his Method. In the year 1578. he publiſhed a Treatiſe call'd Demoſterion, ſive tres CCC. continentes ſummam Doctrinæ Paracelſicæ: This Tract is both in Latin and French. He likewiſe Printed a Book de Peſte, An. 1580. and likewiſe another of the Antiquities of Britany. La Croix du Maine, & du Verdier. Voupriuas Bibl. Franc. Vander Linden, de Script. Medic. &c.

BAILLON, (William) a famous Phyſician, born about the year 1538. of a conſiderable Family in Perche in France. He was ſo ſmart a Diſputant, that in the Phyſick-Schools he was commonly call'd The Batchelor's Scourge. Henry the Great would have preferr'd him at Court; but he choſe Quiet and Retirement rather than Intereſt and Honour. He writ ſeveral valuable Pieces, which were Printed after his Death with Commentaries, written by James Thevart, his Nephew's Son. R. Moreau de Illuſt. Med.

BAILY, (Lewis) a Scotch-man, Chaplain to King James I. of Great Britain, Author of the Famous Book, called The Practice of Piety, Dedicated to the Prince of Wales, ſo often Printed and Tranſlated into moſt Languages of Europe.

BAINES, (Ralph) Biſhop of Coventry and Lichfield, in Queen Mary's Reign, was born in Yorkſhire, was bred Fellow of St. John's College in Cambridge, where he made ſo good Progreſs in Greek and Hebrew, that being gone over into France, he was choſen Hebrew-Profeſſor at Paris, where he wrote a Comment in 3 Volumes upon the Proverbs, which he Dedicated to King Francis I. Returning into England in Queen Mary's Reign, he was made Biſhop of Coventry and Lichfield; but was deprived of both in the firſt of Queen Elizabeth; after which, he ſoon died of the Stone; An. 1560.

BAIONNE, a Town of France in Gaſcoigny, with a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Auch: It is ſituated on the Confluence of the River Adour and Nive: It's the Key of France towards Spain, and is a very rich and ſtrong Place. Its ancient Name is Lapardum; that of Baiona is modern, and is derived from the Language of the Baſques, in which Ona ſignifies Good, and Baia Bay, Gulph, or Port; whence comes Baiona, Baionne, that is, a Good Port. Baionne is conſiderable for its Commerce and Situation; the River Adour lies on one ſide, and Nive runs through and divides it into two unequal Parts: Both theſe Rivers join at the end of the Town, and form a commodious and famous Port for Commerce. The leſſer Part of the Town is call'd New-Borough, or little Baionne, which communicates with the greater by divers Bridges, the greateſt whereof leads to a large and rich Street. In the middle of the City ſtands the Cathedral in a large place, whence there is a Street that leads to the Market-place, where is a Gate with a great Tower on each ſide, near the Key, where the Boats lie that come from Dax upon the Adour. The Bridge call'd Baregave, leads into the New-Borough, where at the end of the Street of that Name, ſtands a Caſtle flanked with 6 great Towers, which defend one of the Gates where the Nive enters the City. There is another Caſtle in the Town, which has 4 round Towers, ſurrounded with a Ditch always fill'd with Water. There was a famous Congreſs in this City in 1565. between Charles IX. Catharine de Medicis his Mother, and Elizabeth his Siſter, Wife to Philip II. of Spain; in which, as 'tis ſuppoſed, an Agreement was made between the two Crowns, to ſuppreſs the Proteſtant Religion both in France and the Netherlands. Baionne is 32 miles South-Weſt of Dax, and 96 South-Weſt of Bourdeaux. Greg. de Tour, Sanſon.

BAIONNE, call'd Baionia de Galicia, a Town of Galicia upon the Sea, on one ſide of the Mouth of the River Minho, and the Town of Tui. Some Moderns take it to be the Aquæ Celinæ of Ptolemy; but Nonnius and others maintain that it is Orenſe upon Minho. It's 52 miles S. of Compoſtella, and 40 N. W. of Braga.

BAIRAM, a Feſtival of the Turks, which they keep after the Faſt of Ramazan: They have two yearly; the firſt follows immediately the Ramazan, as Eaſter, with us, follows Lent, and is call'd the Great Bairam; the other is call'd the Little Bairam, and is 70 days after the firſt. During the Bairam, the People leave their Work for 3 days: They make Preſents to one another, and divert themſelves extraordinarily. This Feaſt begins upon the firſt appearance of the next New Moon after their Ramazan. If the Clouds hinder the ſeeing this Planet, they ſtay a day; but if the Air continues dark and cloudy for ſeveral days together, they begin their Feaſt tho' they have not ſeen the Moon. The Bairam is publiſh'd at Conſtantinople, by diſcharging 3 Great Cannon that are upon the top of the Seraglio on the Sea-ſide; and then Drums are beaten, and Trumpets ſounded in all publick Places of the Town, and at the Greateſt Men's Houſes. Then all the Chief Officers of State, that are at Conſtantinople, aſſemble in the Seraglio, to pay the Grand Signior their Reſpects, and wiſh him a happy time of it; all which is done with much Ceremony. After this, the Sultan gives them a magnificent Dinner, and beſtows 16 Veſts, lined with Sables, upon 16 of the Chief of them. After this come the Sultaneſſes of the Old Seraglio, who are permitted to divert themſelves, and make good Cheer with them of the Great Seraglio, during the 3 days of Bairam. They have in this Feaſt very fine Conſorts of Muſick, and all other Recreations they can wiſh for. Ricaut.

BAIVA, an Idol of the Laplanders, adored as the Lord of Light and Heat. Some think it is the Sun; others, that it is the Fire. Some relate, That the great God Thor was called by theſe People Tiermes, or Aijeke, when they call'd upon him to preſerve their Lives, and to ſecure them from the Inſults of the Dæmons; but that they nam'd him Baima too; for to this very day they have not a particular Idol for this God; whether it be becauſe he is viſible enough of himſelf, or, as ſome ſkilful Men in the Myſteries will have it, That Thor and Baima are the ſame God, adored for different Reaſons. Scheff. Hiſt. Lap.

BAKER, (Sir Richard) Author of the Chronicle of the Kings of England, was born in Oxfordſhire, whereof he was High Sheriff in the Reign of King James I. An. 1621. BAKREN, an Iſland in the Perſian Gulph, belonging to the King of Perſia, who maintain'd a Garriſon of 300 Men in it: The Water is ſalt, and can be drank by none but the Natives; ſo that this Place would be deſerted but for the Fiſhery of Pearls about this Iſland, which maintains the Garriſon. Tavern.

BAKWELL, a Market-Town in Derbyſhire, of High-Park Hundred: It's a large Town, conſiſting but of one Pariſh, but has 7 Chapels, and is a Peculiar exempted from all manner of Epiſcopal Juriſdiction. It is a good Market for Lead, and all manner of Proviſions. It ſtands 150 miles from London.

BALA, a Market-Town in the Hundred of Penllyn, and County of Merioneth in Wales. This Town enjoys many Immunities, and is 145 miles from London.

BALAAM, a Prophet, according to ſome; and a Magician, according to others; lived Anno Mundi 2584. It was he whom Balac, King of the Moabites, ſent to Curſe the Iſraelites; but God guiding his Tongue, he was forced to Bleſs them. However, that he ſhould not loſe the Recompence he expected from that King, to make amends for the Benedictions he was compell'd to give the Iſraelites, he adviſed him to ſend ſome Moabite Women into the Camp of the Hebrews, who made ſeveral of them commit Fornication, and worſhip the Idol Baal-peor, which provoked God againſt them. Balaam was found dead afterwards among thoſe Midianites whom Joſhua ſlew.

BALACON, Lat. Volceæ, by the Germans call'd Plat-zee, a great Lake in the Weſt of the Lower Hungary, about 30 miles long from North-Weſt to South-Weſt, but not above 6 in breadth. It is bounded by Alba Regalis on the Eaſt, Caniſa on the Weſt, and Veſpim on the South. Baudr.

BALAD, or Baladad, King of Babylon, lived An. Mund. 3330. He ſent Ambaſſadors to Hezeziah, King of Judæa, to make Alliance with him. Some Criticks perſuade themſelves, That this King is the Nabonaſſer, whoſe Æra is ſo famous.

BALAGATA, a Kingdom of Aſia, in the Peninſula of the River Indus, on this ſide Ganges; it makes part of that of Decan, and ſtretches between the Branches of the Mountain Gara, beyond which are the Kingdoms of Golconda and Narſinga. In it is Deltabad, a Town of great Traffick.

BALAGUER, or Balaguier, Bellagurium, Valaguaria, and, according to ſome, Berguſia, a Town of Catalonia in Spain, upon the River Segre: It was taken by the Count of Harcourt, in 1645. after having defeated the Spaniſh Army which came to relieve it. It lies 3 Leagues South-Eaſt of Leida.

BALAMBUAN, a Sea-Port Town of the Iſle of Java in Aſia, which gives Name to the Channel called the Streights of Balambuan.

BALAMIR, King of the Huns, lived in the 4th Century, about 376. having paſſed the Boſphorus Cimmerianus, and the Palus Mæotis, on the other ſide of which his People lived. He ſet upon the Alans, ſome of which he ſubdued, and made the reſt join his Troops; and then attack'd and defeated the Goths called Groutonges. Ermenric their King murthered himſelf, that he ſhould not out-live this Diſgrace; and Vithimir his Succeſſor was ſlain in another Battel: So that the Goths loſing Courage, begg'd ſome Land of the Emperor Valens, on this ſide the Danube, to retire thither; which this over-eaſie Prince granted them, to his own and the Empire's Deſtruction. Balamir died a little after. Sozom. Ammian. Marcellin. Procop. de Bello Gott. &c.

BALANCE, Lat. Libra, a Name given to one of the 12 Signs of the Zodiack, which conſiſts of 8 Stars that reſemble a Balance: The Sun enters this Sign in September, the Autumnal Æquinox, which is perhaps the reaſon that this Conſtellation is called Balance, becauſe the Days and Nights are as it where in æquilibrium; whence the Poets ſay, That it is the Balance of Aſtræa, Goddeſs of Juſtice, who in the Iron Age quitted the Earth, and withdrew to Heaven. Heſiod.

BALANOS, King of the Gauls, who lived 165 years before Chriſt; T. Livius ſays, That he ſent Ambaſſadors to the Romans, to aſſure them of great Succours againſt Perſeus, King of Macedonia; which the Senate took ſo kindly, that they preſented him with a Golden Chain, and with a Cup of Gold that weigh'd two Pound: They ſent him alſo very fine Arms, and a Horſe richly capariſon'd. Tit. Liv.

BALATORIUS, King of Tyre in Phœnicia: He made himſelf Maſter of this Kingdom, after the Government of the Judges who ſucceeded Baal. Joſeph. contr. Appion, lib. 3.

BALATRONS, i. e. a debauch'd ſort of People. We are inform'd by Hiſtory, That the Emperor Henry III. at his Marriage with Agnes, Siſter to William Duke of Aquitain, ſent back all Farce-Players, Balatrons, or Mummers, and other ſuch ſort of Fellows, who came to divert him at this Solemnity, empty and diſcountenanc'd. Spelman makes this Remark from a French Book, call'd, Preuves de l'Hiſtoire des Compts de Poictou. Horace, in the firſt Book and ſecond Satyr, calls leud People Balatrones; and an ancient Commentator upon this Poet, brings the Etymology from one Servilius Balatro, who is mention'd in his ſecond Book: This Man being a leud Libertine, gave his Name to thoſe who reſembled his Qualities.

BALBASTRE, upon the River of Cinga, in Latin Barbaſtrum, Balbaſtrum, and, according to ſome, Belgida: It is a Town of Arragon in Spain, which has a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Saragoſſa. This Town was taken from the Moors by ſurprize, in the Reign of Peter, firſt King of Arragon of that Name, about 1101. It is 50 miles E. of Saragoſſa, and 38 N. W. of Balaguer.

BALBEC, Lat. Heliopoli, or Cæſarea Philippi, a City at the foot of Mount Lebanon, at firſt a Biſhop's See, afterwards a Metropolitan, Subject to the Patriarch of Antioch: It is ſurrounded with high Hills, and about 32 miles diſtant from Damaſcus, Tripoli, and Abyla. Baudr.

BALBI, or Balbus, (Jerome) Biſhop of Gurck, or Gorits in Carinthia, lived in 1525. His Works and his other valuable Qualities, made him much eſteem'd. His Book De Coronatione Principum, which he Dedicated to Charles V. was publiſh'd by Griphius at Lyons, in the year 1530. He writ likewiſe another Book, De Civile & Bellica Fortitudine. Voſſ. de Hiſt. Lat.

BALBINUS, (Decimus Cælius) Emperor, of a Noble Family, which he himſelf, by his proper Merit, raiſed to great Riches, was Governor of Aſia, Africa, Bithynia, &c. and was choſen Conſul the ſecond time in 227. Julius Capitolinus ſays, That Balbinus was much eſteem'd for his Eloquence. He was one of the beſt Poets of his Time. He and Papienus were choſen to oppoſe the Maximian Faction, after the Death of the Gordiani, and they were both proclaimed Emperors a little after. Papienus took the Field, and Balbinus ſtaid in Rome, where the People liked his Conduct very well. Papienus proving Cruel, he and his Son were maſſacred by the Soldiers, and Maximus was receiv'd at Rome in a kind of Triumph, and put in his Place. Balbinus was very ill pleaſed with this, tho' he durſt not ſhew it: But at length, the Soldiers not liking Emperors that were choſen by the Senate, and obſerving that there was no good Underſtanding between them, they managed this Opportunity to deſtroy both; for upon a day that the Plays of the Capitol were celebrated with great Magnificence, both the Emperors ſtaying in the Palace with a ſlight Guard, the Soldiers forced the Gates, and ſlew both in 237. Herodian.

BALBUS, (Lucius Cornelius) was Conſul in the year of Rome 714. He was born at Cadiz. He diſtinguiſh'd himſelf very handſomly in the Wars which the Romans made in Spain againſt Sertorius and the Luſitanici, inſomuch that Pompey being extreamly well ſatisfied with his good Services, declar'd him a Citizen of Rome. Lucius Gellius, and Cn. Cornelius, being Conſuls a little after, made a Law, That all thoſe that Pompey had made Citizens of Rome by the Conſent of a Council of War, ſhould be, to all Intents and Purpoſes, eſteem'd as ſuch: Upon this, Balbus added the Names of Lucius and Cornelius to his own. He made himſelf ſo much conſider'd at Rome, that Perſons of the Firſt Quality entertain'd a Friendſhip and Correſpondence with him; particularly Pompey, Craſſus, Cæſar, and Tully, had a great Regard for him. He was adopted by Theophanes, for whom Pompey had a great Reſpect: 'Tis upon the account of this Adoption, that Capitolinus calls him Balbus Cornelius Theophanes, where he tells us the Emperor Balbinus was deſcended from him. The good Fortune of Balbus procur'd him Enemies, who diſputed the legality of his Naturalization: When this Right came to be tried, Craſſus, Pompey, and Tully pleaded for him, and carried the Cauſe. In fine, Pliny obſerves, That Balbus was the firſt Foreigner who had the Honour to be Conſul. Cic. Orat. pro Cornel. Balb. & Epiſt. 7. ad Attic. l. 7.

BALDERICK, or Baldric, Biſhop of Utrecht, was Son to Ludger X. Count of Cleves, and Brother to Count Baldwin: He ſucceeded Radbode in 917. went glorioſly through ſeveral Enterprizes. He drove the Danes away, added to the Fortifications of Utrecht, and Rebuilt the Cathedral of St. Martin. In 966. he went into Italy to the Emperor Otho I. and obtained the Privilege of Coining both Gold and Silver, with a Confirmation of the Collegiate Church of Tiel in Guelderland. He Ruled Utrecht 59 years, and died in 977. Joan. de Beka.

BALDI, or Baldo Bernardum, Abbot of Guaſtallo, born at Urbin in 1553. He writ divers Treatiſes of Mathematicks, 1. De Tormentis Bellicis & eorum inventoribus. 2. Commentaria in Mechanica Ariſtotelis. 3. De Verborum Vitruvii ſignificationibus. 4. De Scamillis imparibus Vitruvii. 5. *Novæ Gnomonices, Lib. BALDOCK, a Market Town of Broadwater Hundred, in the North of Hertfordſhire, 30 miles from London.

BALDRICK, Native of Orleans, or, as ſome will have it, of Mehun, a ſmall Town upon the River Loire, lived in the 12th Age. He was made Abbot of Bourguevil in 1089. and afterwards Biſhop of Dol in Britany in 1114. He ruled his Church 22 years and 44 days, and aſſiſted at ſeveral Councils, and compoſed the Hiſtory of the War of the Holy Land in four Books, which contained all the remarkable things that happened from the beginning of that War to the taking of Jeruſalem by Godfrey of Bouillon in 1099. He writ two other Hiſtorical Books in Proſe and Verſe.

BALDUS de Eubaldis, (Peter) lived in the 14th Cent. and was one of the moſt eminent Lawyers of his time. He was born at Perugia, Son of a famous Phyſician, who took great care of his Education: He ſtudied Philoſophy and the Belles Lettres: He applied himſelf to the Law under Bartolus, and made a prodigious Progreſs in the Civil and Canonical part of this Faculty. He was Præceptor to Pope Gregory XII. He lived 76 years, and died in 1400. of the Bite of a favourite Dog, who being provok'd by ſome accident, bit him by the Lip. He has left ſeveral Works behind him. Super Codice, Lib. IX. Super F. novo, Lib. XII. Super F. Veteri, Lib. XXIV. Super F. Infortiati, Lib. XIV. Super 11 Decretalium, Lib. VIII. Conſilia, &c.

BALDWIN, or Baudovin, (Francis) a Lawyer of a Noble Family of Arras, where his Father was Counſellor, and the King's firſt Advocate; he came to France, and became very intimate with Cajas, Bude de Baif, with Charles du Moulin, and ſeveral other Learned Men of thoſe times. He taught the Laws ſeven years at Bourges, and afterwards at Strasbourg, Heidelberg, and other Places; he had the Curioſity to ſee Calvin, and the reſt of the Chief Learned Proteſtants; and it's ſaid he inclined that way, and Anthony of Bourbon, King of Navarre, had a great Eſteem for this Baldwin, and accepted very kindly the Inſtitutions of Hiſtory that he Dedicated to him, and made him Governor and Companion to his Natural Son Charles, who died Archbiſhop of Rouen, and ſent him to be his Envoy at the Council of Trent, where he was when that Prince was kill'd at the Siege of Rouen in 1562. His Death ruin'd Baldwin's Fortune, and check'd his Hopes, who being uneaſy in the Univerſity of Doway, and Beſançon, whither he was invited, he came back to Paris. He was much eſteemed by thoſe that had ſeen his Works, but much more by them that were acquainted with his Perſon; his Eloquence, and Knowledge in Hiſtory, and in all the Tranſactions of his time, made him be much admired whenever he ſpoke in Publick; and it's aſſured by many, that when he taught in Paris, there came Biſhops, Counſellors, and ſeveral other Perſons of Quality and Learning to hear him. Henry III. then but King of Poland, took ſuch a liking to his Character, that he ſent for him from Angers, where he taught, and made him Counſellor of State: He died of a burning Fever the 24th of October 1573. He left us theſe following Treatiſes: 1. Leges de re Ruſtica. 2. Novella conſtitutio prima. 3. De Hæredibus & Lege ſalcidia. 4. Prolegomena de Jure Civili. 5. Commentarii in 4 Lib. inſtitut. 6. Commentarii in leges Romuli & 12 Tabularum. And publiſhed ſeveral other Books of Hiſtory, Controverſie, &c. Papire Maſſon, St. Marth.

BALDWIN, Sirnamed Devonius, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, lived in the 12th Century, and owed his Riſe to his Virtue; he was born at Exeter in Devonſhire, whence his Sirname Devonius; he was Charitable, Good, and Patient to an exceſs, which made Urban III. write to him in theſe Terms; Urbanus ſervus ſervorum Dei Monaco ferventiſſimo, Abbati calido, Epiſcopo tepido, Archiepiſcopo remiſſo ſalutem. This Prelate follow'd Richard I. in his Voyage to the Holy Land, and ended his days when they were before Acre. He writ ſeveral Books; 1. De Corpore & Sanguine Domini. 2. De Sacramento Altaris. 3. De Sacramentis Eccleſiæ. 4. De Commendatione fidei. Pitſæus, Goodwin.

BALDWIN, See Baudovin.

BALE, or Baleus, (John) an Engliſhman, born in Suffolk, he took Habit at Norwich, in the Monaſtery of the Carmelites; he ſtudied in Cambridge, and afterward was made Prieſt, but married publickly in Yorkſhire, where he was much admired, until Edward Lee, who ſucceeded Cardinal Wolſey in the Archbiſhoprick of York, in 1531. got him taken up, and having ſent him thence, he was ſecured in London by Order from John Stocks, then Biſhop of that City. But Cromwel, whom Henry the Eighth had made Vicar, ſet him at Liberty. His Protector died a little after, and Bale left England, and did not return again until King Edward the Sixth's Time in 1547. Then, by the help of Friends, he got a Grant of the Biſhoprick of Oſſory and Kilkenny in Ireland, where he lived to Queen Mary's Time, and then fled to Baſil, from whence he returned again in the beginning of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, and died a little after, being 67 years old.

BALE, or Baleus, (Robert) called the Ancient, a Lawyer of London, lived about 1460. and was in great Eſteem for his Skill in the Law and Hiſtory. He writ the Chronology of London; A Treatiſe of its Liberties and its Conſuls; And the Hiſtory of Edward the Third.

BALEARES, Iſlands of the Mediterranean Sea, near the Coaſt of Valencia in Spain, known now by the Names of Majorca and Minorca. The firſt, which is towards the Eaſt, is 120 miles in circuit; its principal Towns in old time, were Palma and Pollentia, now Majorca and Puglienza. The other is leſs by the half. This Name is derived from the Greek Βάλλειν, which ſignifies to Dart or Throw, becauſe the Inhabitants of theſe Iſlands were very expert at the Dart and Sling. Florus ſays, they accuſtomed their Children to theſe Exerciſes from their very Infancy, and that a Child was not to have his Breakfaſt until he did beat it down from ſome high Place where the Mother put it. They lived in Dens under Ground, and wore Skins, as a Defence from Cold in Winter, and in Summer they went quite naked. They uſed to rub themſelves all over with an Ointment made of a certain Gum and Hog's Greaſe; they did not know what Gold or Silver was; they were very greedy of Wine, though they had none in their Iſland. As for their Women, when they Married, they lay firſt with all their own Kindred, before they came to Bed to their Husbands. When they liſted themſelves for the Army, they required no other Pay but Women and Wine, and did freely give four Men in exchange for one Woman. They did not burn their Dead, but beat their Bodies to pieces with Sticks, and put them into Urns, which they cover'd with Stones. When they went to the War, thay carried no other Arms but a Dart and three Slings, whereof they carried one in their Hand, hung another about their Necks, and girded themſelves with the third. Pliny, in his eighth Book, Chap. 55. ſays, That in former times there was ſuch a prodigious Number of Rabbits in this Iſland, that the Inhabitants were forced to beg Help of Auguſtus to clear their Land of them. Alphonſus of Arragon made himſelf Maſter of theſe Iſlands in 1344. and killed his Kinſman, who was Sovereign of it, in Battel. At the Battel of Creſſi, where the Engliſh defeated the French Army in 1346. and where a great number of Noblemen were left dead upon the Place, the King of Bohemia, and the King of the Baleares, were in the number of the ſlain. At preſent theſe Iſlands belong to the Spaniard, and are part of the Kingdom of Arragon. Mariana.

BALEUS the Firſt, Sirnamed Xerxes, ſucceeded his Father Aralius in the Kingdom of Aſſyria, A. M. 2111. He was a Warlike Prince, and made great Conqueſts in Syria and the Indies, which got him the Sirname of Xerxes, which ſignifies Conqueror, or Triumpher: He died A. M. 2140. when he had Reigned 30 years.

BALI, an Iſland of the Eaſt-Indian Sea, on the Coaſt of Java, from which it is ſeparated by the Channel of Palambuam. It's not above 40 Leagues in Circuit, but well Inhabited: The Men there having many Wives, ſo that beſides the great numbers Sold thence, it's reckon'd to nouriſh 600000. It has abundance of Cattel, Game, and Corn; as alſo whole Foreſts of Citron and Orange Trees; and a great quantity of Cotten. There are alſo Gold Mines, but the King will not ſuffer them to be dug, leaſt it might entice his Neighbours to come for a ſhare: Notwithſtanding he has a great deal of Gold Plate for his own uſe. The Inhabitants are Pagans, and adore what they firſt meet with in the morning, as they go out of their Houſes. They Trade but very little, though all the Ships that Sail from the Firm Land to the Molucco Iſlands, go juſt by them, and take in freſh Water and Proviſions there, which are Sold them very cheap. The Capital, which gives the Iſland its Name, is a very fine Town, where the King has a Magnificent Palace: He is ſeldom ſeen; and People addreſs themſelves to his Miniſter of State, whom they call Quillor; Under this Miniſter are ſeveral Governors of Provinces. The common ſort of People have a great Love and Honour for their King, and Courageouſly reſiſt thoſe that endeavour to diſturb the Publick Tranquillity. Mandeſlo, Voyage des Indes

BALIOL, (John) after the Death of Alexander King of Scotland, in 1285. without any other Heirs, ſave a Grand-Daughter, who died before Marriage, was Competitor with Robert Bruce for the Crown of Scotland. The Controverſie betwixt them being intricate, and both Factions too powerful to have it decided at home, the States choſe Edward I. of England to be Umpire, not doubting of his fair Dealing, becauſe of his Relation to their late King, and the Obligation put upon him by the Scots, in conſenting to Marry the above-mentioned Heireſs to his Son; whereupon coming to Berwick, he Summoned the Nobility to appear before him, proteſting, That he did not cite them as Subjects before their Sovereign, but as before an Arbitrator choſen by themſelves; and having taken the Oaths of all Parties to ſtand to his Award, he choſe 12 Engliſh, and as many Scots, of the moſt Prudent of all the States, and obliged them by Oath to determine according to their Conſciences; which fair procedure was very taking with the People: But to carry on his own Deſigns, he ſtir’d up more Competitors privately; and having ſent for the ableſt Lawyers in France, and propounded a falſe State of the Caſe, they devolv’d the Supream Power of Judging upon him, which rendred the Matter more intricate, ſo that the Meeting Adjourn’d until the following year; when being Conven’d again, the Crown was adjudg’d to Baliol; whereupon Edward, before Sentence was publiſh’d, ſent for Bruce, and promis’d him the Crown if he would Subject himſelf to the King of England, which he generouſly refuſed; then ſending for Baliol, he baſely ſubmitted to his Propoſals, and ſix years nine months after the Death of Alexander, was Crown’d at Scone, where all except Bruce Swore Fealty to him. Being thus Enthron’d, he went to Edward, who was at Newcaſtle upon Tine, and there, with ſuch of the Nobility as follow’d him, Swore Fealty to the ſaid King Edward; at which the reſt of the Nobles were extreamly enrag’d, but had not Force enough to make a Rupture with the two Kings; But not long after, Macduff Earl of Fife, being wrong’d in Judgment by Baliol, Appeal’d to King Edward, ſo that the Cauſe being removed to London, and Baliol caſually ſitting by Edward in the Parliament Houſe when it came to be mov’d, he was denied the Privilege of Anſwering by a Proctor, and forc’d to riſe from his Seat and anſwer at the Bar; whereat he was ſo incens’d, that he thenceforth ſought how to Reconcile himſelf with his Subjects, and break with King Edward; and a convenient opportunity happen’d by a War betwixt England and France; whereupon Ambaſſadors were ſent to the Parliament of Scotland from both Nations. The French deſir’d a Renovation of the ancient League with the new King, and the Engliſh demanded Aſſiſtance againſt France, according to their new Submiſſion. The Parliament anſwered, That the Requeſt of the French was juſt, as being agreeable to a League made by Univerſal Conſent above 500 years before, and inviolably kept; but that this Surrender to the Engliſh was Extorted from their King, and if it had been voluntary, was not binding, their Kings having no Power to act any thing relating to the Publick without the Advice of the States: Whereupon Ambaſſadors were ſent to renew the League with France, and demand a Wife of the Royal Blood for the King’s Son; and others were ſent into England to ſignifie, That Baliol revoked the Surrender of himſelf and the Kingdom, which had been Extorted from him. Edward in the mean time making a Truce with the French, ſent his Fleet, deſigned for France, againſt Scotland, ordering them to block up Berwick by Sea; but the Scots fought his Fleet at the Mouth of the River, took 18 Ships, and put the reſt to Flight. Edward being thereupon enrag’d, levied a great Army, march’d to Newcaſtle upon Tine, and once more Summoned Baliol to come and anſwer to what was laid to his Charge; but finding this did not take effect, he ſent for Bruce, and offer’d to ſet him on the Throne if he would help to drive Baliol out; to which Bruce agreed, ſo that Edward advancing, Beſieged Berwick, but deſpairing to take it by Force, compaſſed it by Stratagem; by Raiſing the Siege, and informing the Town by Bruce’s Party, That he did ſo becauſe Baliol was at hand to relieve it: The unwary Officers and Promiſcuous Multitude iſſuing out of the Town to receive their King, as they ſuppoſed, were immediately ſurpriz’d by a Body of Engliſh Horſe, who trod them down, and ſeizing the Gate, King Edward entred with his Foot, and ſlew 7000 Men, among whom were the Chief Nobility of Lothian and Fife; and a little time after the Caſtle Surrendring, he march’d forward to Dunbar, when encountring the Scots under Baliol, he defeated them after a ſharp Fight, Bruce’s Friends according to Agreement having withdrawn in time of Battel. But notwithſtanding, when Bruce demanded to be ſet upon the Throne according to Promiſe, he was anſwered by Edward, What have I nothing elſe to do, but to Conquer Kingdoms for you. The Caſtle of Dunbar, whither many of the Nobility had fled, was Surrendred ſoon after, and the Priſoners cruelly uſed by Edward. Thoſe of Edinburgh and Sterling having alſo yielded, he purſued Baliol as far as Montroſs, where by the Perſuaſion o Cumin of Strabegi, he made a new Surrender of himſelf and Kingdom, and was thence ſent Priſoner to England by Sea; and Edward returning to Berwick, Summon’d the Scotch Nobility to come thither, where he compell’d them to Swear Fealty; but William Lord Douglaſs refuſing it ſtoutly, was caſt into Priſon, where he died. Edward having thus Succeeded, made John Warren Earl of Surrey, Governor of the Kingdom, and return’d for London. Baliol a little while after was on the Pope’s Solicitation, and his own Promiſe to raiſe no diſturbance in Scotland, Releas’d, and ſent into France, his Son Edward being retain’d as an Hoſtage. After this, Edward being abſent in the French War, and the Scots reſolv’d to recover their Liberty, they choſe 12 Men to Govern the State, and under Conduct of John Cumin, Earl of Buchan, Invaded Northumberland, and Beſieged Carliſle, but could not take it. This Expedition did ſomewhat Encourage, but tended little to the Freedom of Scotland, whoſe ſtrongeſt Forts were Garriſon’d by the Engliſh: However, in this deſperate State of Affairs, William Wallace, of whom in his proper place, roſe up to be their Deliverer; and having been ſucceſsful in ſeveral Expeditions, his Followers proclaim’d him Regent. After which he took many of the Engliſh Garriſons, overthrew them in a great Battel at Sterling-Bridge, and in a ſhort time made ſo great a Change, that he quite expell’d them the Kingdom: This Battel happen’d in 1297. The Country being Untill’d during theſe Confuſions, a Famine and Peſtilence enſued; to prevent the direful Effects of which, Wallace having gather’d together all that were able to bear Arms, entring England, liv’d at Diſcretion from the latter end of October to the beginning of February, returning home with great Riches and Renown, none having dar’d to offer him Battel: Upon which, Edward return’d from France, march’d againſt Wallace, who met him in Stanmore, and obliged him to retire without daring to Fight. Wallace’s Succeſs created him many Enemies among thoſe that were Superior to him in Riches and Quality, who accus’d him of Aſpiring to the Crown, and thereupon rais’d Factions againſt him; which Edward underſtanding, he entred Scotland next year with a powerful Army, and gave the Scots a great overthrow at Falkirk, within ſix miles of Sterling, though they were 30000 ſtrong; their Generals, Cumin, Stuart, and Wallace, falling out about leading the Van, juſt as the Engliſh advanced, the two former envying the Glory of the latter, who was mightily griev’d when he found himſelf alſo charg’d by Bruce in the Rear; yet he made an an honourable Retreat; and Bruce, being Charm’d with his Valour and Conduct, deſir’d a Conference with him, which he agreed to on the Banks of the River Carron, and endeavour’d to perſuade Bruce, who charg’d him with aiming at the Crown, that he had no other Deſign but to defend his Country, deſerted by him his Lawful Prince, and expoſed to the Butchery of a cruel Enemy; this happened July 22. 1298. The Scotch loſt 10000 Men in this Battel. Cumin with his Body having retir’d without Fighting, ſome of the Chief of the Nobility being ſlain, amongſt whom was John Graham, the greateſt Captain next to Wallace for Valour and Conduct; Wallace diſmiſs’d his Army, and never acted more as General, though he did many conſiderable Services afterwards againſt the Engliſh with his own Friends. Edward having waſted the Country as far as Perth, return’d with his Army; and thoſe of the Scots, who aſſerted their Liberty, choſe John Cumin for their Regent, who by the French King’s Mediation, obtained a Truce; but Edward having committed the Ambaſſadors which the Scots ſent to Pope Boniface VIII. they reſolv’d to Fight it to the laſt, and expell’d all the Engliſh Governors and Garriſons; upon which Edward ſent a great Force againſt them under Ralph Confrey, who advancing as far as Roſlin, within five miles of Edinburgh, divided his Army into three Bodies, to lay the Country deſolate; Cumin having got together about 8000 Men, with the Aſſiſtance of John Frazer, attack’d one of their Camps, which he forc’d, and in a little time after obtained a bloody Victory over the ſecond; but was mightily aſtoniſhed at the advance of the third, his Men being weary, and many of them wounded: But the Captains having encourag’d their Men, with the remembrance of their double Victory, they begun again with a great deal of Courage; and after a long and bloody diſpute, put the Enemy to flight, February 24. 1302. Edward being incens’d that his three Armies were beat by one, on the ſame day, Levied a greater Force than he had ever done before; and attacking Scotland by Sea and Land, ravag’d the whole Country, and calling an Aſſembly of the States at St. Andrews, moſt of them ſwore Fealty to him, except Wallace and his Adherents. Edward courted him by great Promiſes; but his conſtant Anſwer was, That he had devoted his Life to his Country; and if he could do it no other Service, would die in its Defence: But fearing to be given up by the Nobility, who envied his Honour, he retir'd to his old Faſtneſſes. Edward appointed Governors and Magiſtrates all over the Kingdom, ſettled all things in Church and State according to the manner of England, and endeavour'd to aboliſh the very Name of Scots, deſtroying and carrying away all their own and the Roman Monuments and Records; and taking with him all thoſe from whom he fear'd any new trouble; and not only ſo, but tranſported into England all their Learned Men and Books, and among other things the Marble Chair, in which the Vulgar believ'd the Fate of the Kingdom did conſiſt. At his return to England, he left Ailmer Valentin as Vice-Roy to ſuppreſs all Diſturbances in the Bud; and the invincible Champion Wallace being betray'd into his hands, by one Monteith, whom he had brib'd, was inglorioufly Hang'd and Quarter'd at London; ſo that Edward promis'd himſelf a perpetual Peace from Scotland, but found his miſtake when Bruce begun his War; Of whom in his own place. Buchanan.

BALIOL, (Edward) Son to John Baliol abovemention'd, being ſtir'd up by one Twine, an Engliſh Fugitive, who had fled from Juſtice in Scotland, where he had an Eſtate, did, with the aſſiſtance of the King of England, invade Scotland in the Minority of David Bruce; and having defeated his Army near Perth, in a little time became ſo powerful, that being join'd with the Remains of his Father's Faction, he was declar'd King, and entred on the Kingdom in 1332. In the mean time Bruce's Friends having convey'd him and his Wife ſafe to his Father's Friend, Philip King of France, they choſe Andrew Murray, Son of the Siſter of Robert Bruce, Regent, and diſpatch'd Meſſengers to all Parts of the Country, to confirm their old Friends, and excite the reſt to Revenge; whereupon Bruce's Party took Perth after three Months Siege: But Baliol's Succeſs having rendred him ſecure, Archibald Lord Douglas, and Douglas Earl of Lideſdale, ſurpriz'd him in the night, routed his Army, and kill'd the Chief of his and the Engliſh Faction, December 25. 1332. After this they declar'd War againſt England, and ſent to viſit their King in France, and demand Succours of that Crown; but a little after Douglas of Lideſdale being defeated and taken by the Engliſh, who eſpouſed Baliol's Cauſe, Bruce's Intereſt declin'd; and as a Cauſe of War, the Engliſh pretended that the Scots with-held Berwick from them; but they anſwered the Engliſh Ambaſſadors, That their King himſelf, by Advice of his Parliament, had renounced all Pretenſions of Right to the Kingdom of Scotland in general, and to that Town in particular: However he laid Siege to the Town, which was valiantly defended by Sir Alexander Seaton, until want of Proviſions conſtrain'd them to capitulate; That if he was not reliev'd by the 30th of July, he ſhould ſurrender, upon which he gave his eldeſt Son as Hoſtage. The Scots in the mean time call'd a Parliament, and the Regent being taken Priſoner not long before, choſe Archibald Douglas their General, ordering him to invade England, and ſo oblige King Edward to raiſe the Siege; but as he was on his March, he received the News of the Capitulation, which mov'd him, contrary to the Advice of his beſt Officers, to make Head againſt the Engliſh, who were advantagiouſly Encamp'd on a Hill above the Town. The King of England perceiving their approach, though the day was not come, ſent to demand an immediate Surrender, threatning, if denied, to hang the Governor's Son, his Hoſtage, and for that end erected a Gibbet in ſight of the Town. The Governor Anſwered, That the time was not expir'd, and that both were oblig'd by Oath to obſerve the Capitulation; but perceiving his eldeſt Son led to Execution, as alſo his Brother who was taken in a Sally, he was extreamly perplex'd, being toſs'd betwixt Fatherly Affection, and Duty to his Country; his Wife perceiving it, did with a manly Courage exhort him to prefer the latter, though ſhe her ſelf was Mother to the two young Gentlemen; and ſo they withdrew, that they might not behold that diſmal Spectacle: Which did ſo much enflame the Earl Douglas, that he Charg'd furiouſly up the Hill to force the Engliſh Camp, whilſt they hurl'd Stones and Darts ſo thick, that they wounded and diſorder'd his Men before they came to a cloſe Fight; ſo that they tumbled in Multitudes from the Precipices, and by his Raſhneſs they were entirely defeated, and loſt about 14000 Men, amongſt whom was the General himſelf, with moſt of the Nobility of Bruce's Party. This is that famous Battel of Halidon-Hill, which happen'd on St. Mary Magdalen's day, in 1333. a little after which the Town and Caſtle ſurrendred. Edward having ſtay'd a few days, left Baliol to carry on the War, with the Aſſiſtance of Edward Talbot, a Noble and Gallant Commander. The Remains of Bruce's Party retired to Faſtneſſes and Garriſons; the next year Ambaſſadors came from the Pope and French King to mediate a Peace, and put an end to thoſe Controverſies; but Edward being puffed up with Succeſs, refus'd to admit them, thinking now that the Strength of the Scots was utterly broke. But not long after, Diſſentions ariſing among the Engliſh themſelves, particularly the Mourays, about Lands in Scotland, and alſo betwixt Baliol and the Nobles of his Faction, who join'd with Andrew Murray, Regent for Bruce, they broke out into a new War, and were ſucceſsful in ſome ſmall Enterprizes. Upon this the Engliſh invaded them afreſh, with a mighty Force both by Sea and Land; but their Fleet ſuffer'd much by a Tempeſt. The Land Army entred as far as Glaſcow, and Bruce's Party not being able to make Head againſt them, retired again to their Faſtneſſes; whereupon Edward Aſſembled a Council of his own Faction, took Baliol with him for England, and left David Cumin, Earl of Athol, as Vice-Roy. A little after, Robert Stuart, and Calen Campbel Earl of Argile, ſurpriz'd the Engliſh at Dunoon, cut off ſuch Forces as came to oppoſe them, and conſtituted new Regents for Bruce; and Cumin the Vice-Roy being reduced, did alſo ſwear Fealty to him, but did treacherouſly join with King Edward, who in a little time after invaded Scotland again. Bruce's Party were not ſtrong enough to give Battel to the Engliſh and Baliol's Faction, the Regent Stuart being ſick, and John of the Iſles having ſet up for himſelf; ſo that Randolph the conjunct Regent, being aſſiſted by Douglas of Lideſdale and Ramſay, march'd toward Edinburgh, and near unto it defeated a ſtrong Army of Gelderlanders, who were coming to the Aſſiſtance of the Engliſh; but Randolph was unhappily afterward taken in an Ambuſh, and carried to King Edward of England, then Beſieging St. Johnſton: But the Engliſh Fleet having ſuffer'd much by a Storm, he return'd for England, and appointed Cumin Vice-Roy again; who, with the Aſſiſtance of the Douglaſſes, was ſoon after routed, and kill'd by the Brucians, who choſe Andrew Murray for Regent; he in a little time laid Siege to a Caſtle of Cumin's, which the Engliſh relieved; and waſting the North of Scotland with Fire and Sword, they left Edward Baliol then to manage the War, and return'd home. Bruce's Party, though brought very low, beſieged and took an Engliſh Garriſon, and in a little time reduced moſt of the Country beyond the Forth. Next year, being 1337. the Engliſh, under the Earls of Saliſbury and Arundel, beſieged the Caſtle of Dunbar for ſix months, but in vain; and Bruce's Party defeated two Engliſh Armies Commanded by Monfort and Talbot; ſo that in a little time the Engliſh were almoſt totally expell'd the Kingdom: But the brave Regent Murray dying, Stuart was choſen in his place, who was very ſucceſsful in his Attempts againſt the Engliſh and their Adherents; and was ſo extream diligent, that thô he had been worſted five times in one day, in ſmall Parties, by one Abernethy, he purſued him till he ſlew all his Men, and took himſelf at night. He Sailed over to France, to acquaint King David Bruce with the State of Affairs; and at his Return, which was in 1339. he Levied an Army, and by the Aſſiſtance of Douglas, reduced Perth and Edinburgh Caſtle, which was ſtill held out by the Engliſh; after which, Alexander Ramſay, at that time the greateſt Soldier in Scotland, invaded England with an Army, and being attacked by a much greater Force as he was returning laden with Spoil, he defeated them; after which he took the Caſtle of Romborough from the Engliſh, March 30. 1342. On the ſecond of July that ſame year, King David Bruce returned from France after nine years abſence, when his Affairs were at a very low ebb, in regard of the three years Truce made betwixt England and France; and that the valiant Edward III. prepared to invade Scotland with 40000 Foot, 6000 Horſe, and a numerous Fleet, which Sail'd in November, but were ſo broken by Storms, that they were rendred uſeleſs: He advanced with his Army to Newcaſtle, whither the Scots ſent Ambaſſadors to obtain a Pacification for ſome Months, on condition, That if King David did not arrive in ſuch a time, they would become Subjects to the King of England; but King David had ſet Sail beforehand. At his Arrival he found his Party grievouſly divided among themſelves about Meum and Tuum; but having compoſed theſe Differences, declared War againſt England, which he invaded three times, without doing any thing conſiderable, beſides waſting the Country. After this, a Truce was concluded for two years; but the Engliſh having defeated the French, and beſieged Calais, the French King prevail'd with David King of Scots to invade England, contrary to the mind of the Nobility; and juſt as he was Levying his Army, the Earl of Roſs laid an Ambuſh for Reginald of the Iſles, and ſlew him with ſeven other Noblemen, which divided the Kingdom into new Factions: However the King perſiſted in his Deſign, and entring as far as Durham, deſtroyed the North of England, where part of the Engliſh Army being returned from Calais, he was defeated, moſt of his Nobility being ſlain, and himſelf taken by John Copland, two of whoſe Teeth he ſtruck out with his Fiſt, though he was grievouſly wounded by two Arrows, and diſarm'd; upon this, abundance of Caſtles in the South of Scotland were ſurrendred to the Engliſh, with the two bordering Counties, and the Scots oblig'd to quit their Claim to all the Lands which they held in England; and at the ſame time Baliol haraſs'd thoſe Counties which oppos'd him with Fire and Sword: And to all thoſe Calamities ſucceeded a Peſtilence, and mutual Wars amongſt the Highland Clans, &c. which together conſum'd one third of the People: However Douglas took Courage, and with his Friends expell'd the Engliſh from his own Poſſeſſions, and reduced great part of the South of Scotland. In the mean time John King of France ſent a Noble Embaſſy to Scotland, deſiring that they would not make Peace with England without his conſent; and for that end, ſent them ſome Money, which the Nobility divided among them, and attack'd and carried Berwick, &c, which oblig'd Edward to enter Scotland again with a powerful Army. Baliol his Vaſſal, met him at Roxburgh, where he made a new ſurrender of himſelf and the Kingdom, and in an unnatural manner incenſed him againſt his Country, becauſe they would not own him as King. Edward, according to his deſire, intended ſo to break the Scots, that they ſhould never more be able to Revolt; but his Fleet being ſhattered by a Tempeſt, he was forced to return for want of Proviſions, after having laid waſte ſome part of the Country. And Douglas, &c. upon his departure, drove the Engliſh out of three Counties. About the ſame time the French King being alſo taken by the Engliſh, the Scots ſent to treat about the Redemption of theirs, which was obtained, the Pope granting the Tenths of the Benefices for three years toward it; after which, Baliol's Claim to the Crown expired, and David returned; of whom in his proper place. Buchanan.

BALK, a City in the Usbeg Tartary, ſeated on the River Jihun, in the Confines of the Province of Choraſun, in the Kingdom of Perſia, between Samarhand to the N. W. and Candabar to the S. E. This City is under a particular Kan, who in the time of Cha-jehan, prevailing againſt the Kan of Samarhand, the latter called in the Indians to aſſiſt him under Aureng-Zeb: This Prince would have taken Balk, had not the two Kans foreſeen the Conſequence, and clapped up a Peace, and forced him to retreat.

BALKAN, Lat. Ilæmus, call'd by the Sclavonians, Cumoniza; the Italians, Coſtegnazzo, or La Catena del Mondo, The Chain of the World; and by Laonicus, Praſovo. BALLI, (Joſeph) a Canon of Barri in the Kingdom of Naples, born at Palermo in Sicily. He was thought to be the beſt Philoſopher and Scholaſtick Divine of his time. He came to Padua in 1635. where he publiſhed two Treatiſes of his own; De Fæcunditate Dei; & De Motu Corporum naturali. Thomaſin in Vit. Illuſt. Vir.

BALLIMORE, a Town of Leinſter in Ireland, which the Iriſh in their late Rebellion took great care to fortify; it is wholly ſurrounded with a Marſh, and when our Forces attack'd it in June 1691. the Cauſey that led unto it was defended by an old Caſtle: before the Gate whereof were three ſmall Forts to ſecure it. The middle Fort was Regular, with a Mote 20 Foot wide, and 10 Foot deep, about it; and had within it ſome Huts, inhabited by poor People. The 17th about Noon it was inveſted, and ſeveral Batteries being rais'd for the Attacks, the Governor was ſummon'd to ſurrender; but he refuſing, we play'd upon the Place with our Cannon and Mortars, and having made ſufficient Breaches, the Pontons for paſſing the Moraſs, and all other things for an Aſſault being in a readineſs, the Garriſon ſurrendred at diſcretion: It conſiſted of 830 Diſciplin'd Men, and 250 Rapperies.

BALLINASLOE, a little Town of Connaught in Ireland; it lies on the River Suc, in the Province of Roſcommon, about 10 miles South-Weſt of Athlone, in the Road from thence to Galloway, noted for the Encampment of our Forces before the Battel of Aghrim, June 1691.

BALLINEKIL, a Borough Town of Leinſter in Ireland, in the Queen's County, 10 miles from Kilkenny, and 8 S. of Mariſborough.

BALLINGACARRIGY, a Caſtle in the County of Cavan in Ireland, which was Gariſon'd by 200 Iriſh, and naturally ſo ſtrong, that it was thought impoſſible to take it without Cannon; yet when Colonel Wolſley came before it, the Iriſh ſurrendred after ſmall reſiſtance, May 13. 1690.

BALLORINUS, King of Sidon in Phænicia, was but a ſingle Soldier, raiſed to that Dignity by Alexander the Great, for ſome conſiderable Service he did to his Favourite Ephæſtion. Q. Curtius.

BALOUFEAU, (James) who went by the Name of the Baron of St. Angel, was an Attorney of the Parliament of Bourdeaux, who ſpent all his Father left him, run in Debt, and became one of the greateſt Cheats that ever was heard of: He had four Wives in ſeveral places all at one time, cheated the French King, the Marqueſs of Spinola, and the King of England; his Tricks were all diſcover'd at laſt, and he was hang'd at Paris in 1626.

BALSAC, or Balzac, is a ſmall ſpot of Ground in Angoumois in France, upon the River Charente, and it was from this Place that the Family of the Guez, allied to ſo many noble Families, took the Name of Balzac. John Lewis Guez, Sieur of Balzac, well known in this Age for his great Eloquence, was of Angouleſme, he lived with Cardinal Valette, whilſt his Father was with the Duke of Eſpernon; this brought him acquainted at Court, where he was ſo much looked upon by Cardinal Richelieu, that he honoured him with his Letters. The Repute he had of being the Eloquenteſt Man in France, created him ſome Enemies; as appears by the difference he had in 1627. with Father Goulu, chief of the Feüillans, and others: He died in the year 1654. The ſeveral Editions of his Books are now in two Volumes in Folio.

BALSAMON, (Theodore) a Deacon, and then Keeper of the Decrees and Charters of the Church of Conſtantinople, was call'd Nomophylax, and Chartophylax, and was afterwards made Patriarch of Antioch; he lived in the latter end of the 12th Century, with the repute of being the moſt Learned Man of his time: He writ ſeveral Works, whereof we have ſome in Juſtel's Bibliotheque of Canon Law; as his Notes upon the Nomocanon of Photius; and his Collection of Decrees and Conſtitutions of the Church, with the Notes of Charles Annibal Fabrot. The Roman-Catholicks pretend that this great Man being diſpleas'd with the Latins being Maſters of the Town of Antioch, where he was a Greek Patriarch, imploy'd his Wit and Learning to the diſadvantage of the Church of Rome, as appears in his Notes upon the Nomocanon; In his Meditations upon the Privileges of the Patriarchs; and in his Anſwers to Mark, Patriarch of Alexandria: Theſe Pieces, they pretend, are carried to that exceſs of Prejudice, that they have been condemn'd even by thoſe of his own Party. Baron. Bellarmin, Poſſevin.

BALTHASAR, thought to be the Name of one of the three Kings, or Wiſe Men, who were guided by a Star, and came to Worſhip our Saviour at Bethlehem: The Prophet Daniel was alſo called by this Name.

BALTHASAR Gerard of Villaſar, a Town of Burgundy, murder'd William I. Prince of Orange, the 10th of July, 1584. as he came through the Hall from Dinner, ſhooting him with a Piſtol into the Heart. The Prince's Guards took him as he was going out of the Town, and he was immediately tortur'd, to make him own who it was that put him upon that wicked Action; he anſwered, It was a Divine Inſpiration: Nor did he ever confeſs any thing elſe, if we believe Strada a Jeſuit, a great Friend to the Spaniards, and Enemy to the Prince, who ſays, That they who ſaw him Quartered, wondred to ſee a young Man, hardly 26. die with ſuch Conſtancy and Courage. Others ſay, That he confeſs'd at his Execution, That he was promiſed a Martyr's Crown in Heaven; and ſaid, That in hopes of that, he would have done what he did, if 50000 Men had been about him, and no hopes left for eſcape. But after all, Strada is not ſo hardy as to commend this Action; and Mezeray, in his Chronological Abridgement, calls it a horrible Fact. Mezeray.

BALTHASAR, Son of Evilmerodach, and Grandchild to Nabuchodonozar, the Great King of the Chaldees and Babylon, ſucceeded his Father A. M. 3495. in the 55th Olympiad; he is the Nerigliſſar of Prophane Authors, which the Babylonians called Naboander; he is alſo the Nericaſſolaſſer of the Aſtronomick Canon. Salian. Torniel. Pererius, and others ſay, that Balthaſar Reign'd 17 or 23 years; and that he was killed when Cyrus beſieged Babylon.

But we are well aſſured, that it was in the 56th Olympiad that his Subjects put him to death, and placed Darius the Mede upon the Throne. It was this laſt that Cyrus dethroned, and is called Nabonnadius in the Aſtronomick Canon, and is the Nabondinus of Beroſus, and the Labinet of Herodotus.

BALTICK, the Name of a Sea between Germany, Denmark, Swedeland, and Poland, it's call'd Ooſtzee and the Belt by them that live about it. It has a great many Iſlands, and is the Sinus Codanus of the Ancients: It joins to the Ocean or German Sea by that famous Channel called the Sund, and then ſtretching wider, it forms at laſt two great Gulphs, whereof one is called the Gulph of Boddes, or Botnia, and by them of that Country Bothenzee; the other is the Gulph of Finland, which the Germans call Finnichzee; beſides the Gulphs of Riga and Dantzick, which are leſs conſiderable. It is on the Coaſt of the Sea towards Pruſſem, that the Amber is found, which is believed to diſtil, or drop from the Pine and Fir-Trees that grow near the Sea-ſide, and are caſt in Tempeſtuous Weather upon the Shoar. It reaches S. E. as far as the Iſland of Zealand, where the Sound, or Belt, whence it takes its Name of Baltick, is Commanded by the Caſtles of Elſenour and Elſembourg, which bring a great Tribute to the King of Denmark; thence it runs Southward by the Dukedoms of Mecklembourg and Pomerland, as far as Dantzick; thence it turns Northward by Courland and Livonia, as far as Margen, where it forms the two Bays already mention'd; and Northwards of them receives the River Severi, into which fall the two vaſt Lakes Ladoga and Onega, which part Megrena and Cornelia, and have ſome communication with the White Sea; hence the Baltick runs N. as far as Weyburg, turns again, and runs S. W. as far as the Iſles of Aland, where it forms the Bodenzee which runs N. and S. having Finland and Bodia on the E. and Sweden on the W. At the moſt Northern Point lies Tornia, a Sea-Port.

BALTIMORE, a Borough Town, and convenient Port of Munſter in Ireland, gives the Title of Baron to the preſent Lord Baltimore.

BALTINGLASS, or Ballinglaſs, a Borough Town of Leinſter in Ireland, ſeated upon the Banks of the Uzzin or Slane, in the County of Wicklow, 12 miles S. of Bleſſinto, and not far from Caterlough.

BALUE, (John) a famous Cardinal in the Reign of Lewis XI. but of mean extraction, being a Taylor's Son of Poictiers; he ſtudied hard, and became fit for employment; he lived firſt with Juvenal of Urſins, Biſhop of Poictiers, and afterward with John of Beauveau, Biſhop of Angers, who made him his Vicar, and a Canon of the Cathedral. Afterwards Lewis XI. made him Biſhop of Evreux, and then of Angers, and got him a Cardinal's Hat from Paul II. but he was impriſoned a little after, for holding a Treaſonable Correſpondence with the King's Enemies. He had his Liberty by the ſolicitation of the Pope's Legate in France, and went to Rome, where he ſped ſo well, that Sixtus IV. ſent him Legate a Latere into France, and the King and he had a new Quarrel, becauſe he began to act without asking the King's Leave, and without ſhewing his Patent to the Parliament, which upon all ſuch occaſions, is to examine whether the Patent contains any thing contrary to the Prerogative of the Crown, or the Privileges of the Gallican Church; but this difference was adjuſted, and the Legate went back to Rome after the death of Sixtus, where he was made at firſt Biſhop of Albana, and then of Præneſte, by Innocent VIII. he died in 1491. Philip de Comines.

BAMBA, a Town and Province of the Kingdom of Congo in Africk, between the Rivers Lelunde and Loze.

BAMBA, or Wamba, King of the Viſigoths in Spain; Julian Biſhop of Toledo ſpeaks of various Troubles which happened at his Coronation, as that immediately after the Ceremonies were over, he had News brought him, that Hilderick Count of Niſmes had diſpoſſeſs'd the Biſhop of Aregius, put the Abbot Ranimir his Favourite in his place, re-eſtabliſhed the Jews, and committed violence in the Province of Languedoc; upon this News, Bamba ſent one Paul, a Kinſman of the former King's, againſt the Count, who made Peace with him, and after he had got himſelf Crowned at Narbonne, he rifled all the Churches of that Province. Bamba takes the Field to puniſh this Rebel, and in his return home again, deſtroyed a Fleet of 160 Ships from Arabia, that came from Africk to Spain; after which he left the Crown to Ervige, who had married a Kinſwoman of Receſiuntas, and went himſelf into a Convent, where he lived ſeven years, and died in 689. 'Tis ſaid, Receſiuntas being impatient to ſtay for the natural death of King Bamba, gave him a ſlow Poiſon. Roderic, Mariana.

BAMBERG, a Town of Franconia in Germany: It has a Biſhoprick depending immediately on Rome, and is ſituated upon a Hill, a little above the place where the River Mein and Rednitz join. Latin Authors call it Bamberga, and Babeperga; others think it is the Bergum of the Ancients: This Bamberg was built but in the 10th Century. The Duke of Franconia augmented it much in a little time; and the Emperor Henry II. called the Saint, who was Duke of Bavaria and Franconia, liked it ſo well, that he ſolicited Pope John XIX. to make it a Biſhoprick, and he himſelf aſſiſted at the Dedication of the Church; in 1014. there was a Council held in this Town, where Theodore of Luxemburg, the Empreſs's Brother, was ſuſpended from his Biſhoprick of Metz. It's a pretty Town, but of no conſiderable ſtrength; but there are ſtrong Places that belong to it, as Forkheim upon the River Rednitz and Cronach, where the River Cronach and Haſlach join the River Rabach; the Caſtle of Bodenſtein upon the River Putlag, with the Forts of Kupperberg and Hochſtat; the Country is very fruitful in all manner of Grain, bears Wine, Saffron, Liquorice, and Melons. The Biſhop of it has the Honour of having the four principal Electors of the Empire his Vaſſals for ſome part of their Eſtate, as the King of Bohemia for Prague, the Elector of Bavaria for Aversbach; the Elector of Saxony for Witteberg and Trebits, and the Marqueſs of Brandenburg for Cuſtrin: And theſe four Electors are Officers of this Biſhoprick; but they conſtitute Vicars in their places, to exerciſe their Offices of Cup-bearer, Lord Steward, Lord High Marſhal, and Chamberlain, when the new Biſhop is inaugurated, and when he makes his Publick Entry. Melchior Ott-Voit of Strasbourg, when Biſhop of Bamberg, founded an Univerſity in it, whither a great many Bohemians came to Study, and to learn the German Tongue. This City is 32 miles N. of Nuremberg, 40 E. of Wurtzburg, and 70 N. W. of Ratisbonne. Heiſ. Hiſt. de l'Empire.

BAMBERG, which ſome People miſtake for Bamberg in Germany, is a Town in Bohemia upon the Frontiers of Moravia, near the River Orlitz, five or ſix Leagues from Glatz or Glaſgoe.

BAMBYCATIANS, People that live near the River Tygris, they dreaded Gold and Silver, and all other Metals that might be Coined into current Money, ſo much, that they buried all they could light on, leſt it ſhould introduce amongſt them thoſe Corruptions and Vices which they ſaw amongſt thoſe who made uſe of ſuch Commodities. Alex. ab Alex.

BAMPTON, (John) an Engliſh Carmelite, living till about the year 1341. He was reckoned one of the beſt School Divines of his time. He is ſuppos'd the Author of ſeveral Tracts, as Lecturæ Scholaſticæ in Theologia; Quæſtiones octo de Veritate Propoſitionum, &c. Pitſæus de Script. Angl.

BAN, or Barno, a great River of Ulſter in the N. of Ireland, having its Source in the County of Armagh, paſſes through the vaſt Lake call'd Lough Neagh, then divides the County of Antrim from that of Londonderry, and falls into the Sea a little below Colraine; this River is famous for its great number of Salmons.

BAN, and Arrierban, a Publick Proclamation, requiring all the King of France's Subjects to meet in an appointed place to ſerve in the King's Armies, or furniſh Horſe and Foot according to the Rent-Rolls of their Free and Copyholds; the Ban conſiſts of Free-holders, and the Arrierban of Copy-holders: Thus ſome ſay; others think that the Ban is an ordinary Service, which every Vaſſal owes according to the value of his Eſtate; and that the Arrierban is an extraordinary Service which every Vaſſal owes the King: And others are of opinion, that Arrierban comes of the German word Heriban, which ſignifies the Proclamation or Cry of the Sovereign, and that ſo it's the ſame thing with Ban. Theſe Aſſemblies of the Vaſſals begun in the time of the Kings of the ſecond Race, and are mention'd in Charlemain's Records; but were much more frequent in the Reigns of the Kings of the third Line: Nor were the Clergy that had Eſtates exempted from this Service, but obliged either to come in Perſon, or ſend others. When they came in Perſon, they had the Command of their own Tenants, whom they incourag'd to fight, they being often ſo zealous for the defence of their Country, that they have ſignaliz'd themſelves by their proper Actions, and the defeat of the Enemy. They wore Armour over their other Church-Garments, which is the reaſon that the Painters of old repreſented the Prelates of France with Armour over their Surplices; and why in ſome Biſhop's Coats of Arms there are Head-pieces as well as Mitres. The Clergy were often diſpenſed with from Perſonal Service, and are now quite exempted from ſuch Duty; Lewis the XIII. having on the 29th of April 1636. agreed with them for a certain Sum of Money, which they promis'd to furniſh him with, when the Condition of the Country required it. The Kings of France have alſo exempted the Burgeſſes of ſeveral Cities from this Service, as alſo the Members of the Parliament of Paris, the King's Secretaries, and ſeveral others are exempted becauſe of their Places. The Ban and Arrierban were firſt aſſembled thus: The Miſſi Dominici, call'd Legati Regales, the King's Ambaſſadors, Perſons of higheſt Rank, went into the Provinces. Afterwards they were raiſed by the Bannerets, or Standard-bearers, who were ordered by the King or Lord-High-Conſtable of France, to pitch their Standards, and aſſemble their Vaſſals together; but now the King ſends his Letters-Patents to the Bailiffs or Seneſchals of the Provinces, and ſometimes to the Governors. De la Rocque traité du Ban & Arrierban.

BANAIAH, Son of Jehoiadah, one of David's great Warriors, and Captain of his Guards, he was of the Prieſtly Race, and lived about A. M. 3020. he killed two Brothers that had ſet upon him, who were Moabites, of Gigantick Stature, and the moſt Valiant amongſt them; afterwards he killed a huge Egyptian well-armed, though he himſelf had nothing but a Staff. He alſo killed a Lion in the midſt of a Pit in Snowy Weather. David commanded him to put Salomon upon his Throne, and Salomon ordered him to cut Joab's Head off, to whom he ſucceeded as General of the Army. Joſeph. l. 7. Ant. Jud. 2 Sam. 23.

BANBURY, a Market and Borough Town of Banbubury Hundred in the North of Oxfordſhire, ſeated in a Flat on the Weſt Bank of the Charwell, counted for Wealth and Beauty next Oxford. Near this Place Kinrick King of the Weſt Saxons overthrew the Britains in a ſet Battel, manfully fighting for their Lives and Fortunes. Here alſo Richard Nevill of Warwick overcame Edward IV. and took him Priſoner, whereby Henry VI. was reſtored to the Crown. In the Reign of King Charles I. this Place was taken and Garriſon'd for the King, Anno 1642. after Edgehill Fight; and two years after, it endur'd a ſharp Siege, and ſeveral Storms, till it was relieved by the Earl of Northampton. Ten weeks together was this Town afterwards beſieged An. 1646. under the ſame Governor that defended it before, viz. Sir William Compton, who having no proſpect of Relief, ſurrendred it upon honourable Terms. The Family of the Knolles have been Earls of this Place from the year 1616. This Town lies 53 miles from London.

BANCA, an Iſland in the Eaſt-Indies, with a Town of the ſame Name ſituated at the Eaſt-end of the great Iſland Sumatra, from which it is parted by the Channel of Anca over-againſt Baras, Palimban, and the Cape of Lucapara.

BANCHIN, a Londoner, of the Order of St. Auſtin: He lived towards the end of the 14th Century, and wrote divers Treatiſes, Contra Poſitiones Wicleffi; Determinationes variæ, &c.

BANCHO, a Scottiſh General of Royal Extract, who is very famous for his Victories againſt the Highland Rebels and the Danes in the Reign of Donald VII. but ſtain'd his Honour by conſpiring with Macbeth, and murdering the King; for which, Juſtice puniſh'd him by the hand of the ſame Macbeth, who cauſed him to be cut off, becauſe of a Prophecy, That his Poſterity ſhould afterward enjoy the Kingdom. See Donald VII. and Mackbeth. Buchan.

BANCOK, a Fortreſs in the Kingdom of Siam; it is a place of great Importance, becauſe it defends the Paſſage of the River. Le Sieur le Marc, a French Ingenier, was left there by the French Ambaſſador in 1685. to fortify the Place regularly. P. Tachard.

BANDA, an Iſland of the Sonde, in the Eaſt-Indian Seas, three Leagues to the Southward of the Iſle Ceran. It is ſix miles long, and two broad. It is ſaid, that Nutmegs grow in no other Iſland but this, and the little Iſlands Nera, Gunapi, Lantor, Puloway, Pulorin, and Beſſingin, which belong to it; and are ſo full of Nutmeg-Trees, that there is not one Acre but what is covered with them, except a Mountain that caſts up Flames in Gunapi: The Trees are in all Seaſons loaden with Flowers, and green and ripe Fruit. They call the Nuts Palla, and their fine Bark, which is our Mace, Bruna-Pella: The Hollanders have built two Forts there, which they call Naſſau and Belgica. The Road and Key are ſo good, that Ships can come within Piſtol-ſhot of the Forts, and lie under their Cannon. It is a common thing to ſee People live here above 120 years, the Air is ſo good, and the Nuts ſtrengthening the Stomach ſo much: The Inhabitants are Mahometans, who have a particular care of their dead; and ſome among them are of opinion, that they will not riſe to Life without being prayed for. Mandeſlo.

BANDE, a Military Order in Spain, now extinct; it was eſtabliſhed in 1332. by Alphonſus XI. King of Caſtile, who was the Chief of it, as were his Succeſſors after him. The Knights wore a Red Scarf upon the Right Shoulder, tied under the Left, and none could pretend to this Honour but ſuch young Men that had ſerved either at Court or in the Army for ten years. It is thought that the Knights of St. James, who are ſo numerous in Spain, and wear a Red Croſs, ſucceeded this Military Band. Mariana.

BANDER-Abaſſi, otherwiſe called Gomrom, a Town in Perſia upon the Coaſt of Farſiſtan, over-againſt the Iſle of Ormus; it is ſirnamed Abaſſi, becauſe the King Cha-Abas firſt brought this Place in Reputation for Commerce. The Engliſh and Dutch have their diſtinct Exchanges here near the Sea-ſide; and all the Ships that bring Goods out of the Indies for Perſia, Turky, and a great part of Europe, touch here, becauſe it is the beſt Harbour in the Perſian Gulph. The Air of Bander is very unhealthy, ſo hot, that Strangers cannot live there but from December to March; nor the very Natives but to April. In the beginning of May they remove to the Mountains, three days Journey from it, where they ſpend what they gain'd by their Commerce. The Wind begins to change in April, and at certain times is ſo hot and choaking, that it hinders reſpiration, and is for that reaſon called by the Arabs El Samiel, that is to ſay, a Poiſonous Wind, and by the Perſians, Bade Sambour, becauſe it kills in a moment. What is moſt ſurprizing is, that if one takes hold of any part of their Body who die ſo, it ſticks to his hand like ſlimy, naſty Fat, as if the Body had lain a Month. This Wind reigns principally in June, July, and Auguſt, and is ſometimes ſo hot, that it burns like Lightning: But what is very ſtrange and remarkable is, that it does no harm to them that are upon any River. There are two Forts in Bander, one towards the Eaſt, and the other towards the Weſt. Tavernier.

BANDER-Congo, a Town of Perſia, two days Sailing from Bander-Abaſſi; it neither wants good Air, nor wholeſom Water, but hath no Trade, becauſe there lie ſo many Iſlands between it and Ormus that the Paſſage is dangerous, eſpecially for Ships of Burthen.

BANDO, a Town and Kingdom of the Indies belonging to the Great Mogul, and lies between Geſlemere, Delli, and Agra; beſides the Capital which bears the ſame Name, it has Touri, Moaſta, Godach, Aſmere, which laſt is famous for the Tomb of Hoghe Mondee, whom the Mahometans Honour as a Saint. It is ſaid that King Ekbar came hither on foot from Agra to pray God for a Succeſſor.

BANDONBRIDGE, a Borough Town of the Province of Munſter in the South of Ireland; It ſtands in the County of Cork, on the N. Banks of the River Bande, eight miles Weſt of Kingſale.

BANDOULIERS, or Michelets, a famous ſort of Robbers, ranging about the Pyrenæan Mountains. The Martolois in Hungary have the ſame Reputation in their Profeſſion. Ricaut. of the Ottoman Empire.

BANGOR, Lat. Bangertium, a City in Carnarvanſhire in North-Wales, with a Biſhop's See ſuffragant to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury; it ſtands on the Menay which parts this County from the Iſle of Angleſey, and has been in times paſt very large, and therefore called Bangor Vaur, or Great Bangor. Hugh Earl of Cheſter fortified it with a Caſtle, which is now fallen in Ruines: Its Cathedral, Dedicated to St. Daniel, its firſt Biſhop in 516. was cruelly defac'd by that notorious Rebel Owen Glandowr, and afterwards repair'd by Henry Dean, a Biſhop of this Dioceſe. This Dioceſe contains in it all Carnarvanſhire and the Iſle of Angleſey, with part of Denbigh, Merioneth, and Montgomeryſhires, which make up in all 170 Pariſhes, whereof 37 are Impropriated. Here are three Arch-Deaconries, viz. Bangor, Angleſey, and Merioneth; but one is united to the Biſhoprick for the better ſupporting thereof. The Biſhoprick is valued in the King's Books, 131 l. 16 s. 4 d. and the Clergy's Tenths amount to 151 l. 14 s. 3 d.

BANGOR, or Banchor, Lat. Boncum, a City of Flintſhire in North-Wales, famous for a Monaſtery of great Antiquity, but long ſince ruinated. Beda ſays, the Monks were divided into ſeven Companies, each conſiſting of no leſs than 300 Perſons: It ſtood on the River Dee, where the two Gates of the Monaſtery, ſtill to be ſeen, are a mile from one another. Speed ſays, this was the firſt Monaſtery of the World; and Bede ſaith, that the Monks had their different Rulers, and lived all by their hand-labour; that Ethelfred, King of Northumberland, ſlew 1200 of them at the Inſtigation of Auſtin the Monk, as it's ſuppos'd, becauſe they refus'd Submiſſion to the See of Rome.

BANJALUCH, upon the Cetina, a large and ſtrong Town of Boſnia, belonging to the Turks, it is at the foot of the Mountains, and upon the Frontiers of Dalmatia, 30 miles N. E. of Spalatro, and 60 S. of Jaicza.

BANJANS, Idolaters that have ſpread themſelves in all the Provinces of the Indies; but more numerous in the Kingdom of Cambaya or Guzurate than in any other place. They believe there is a God who created Heaven and Earth, and yet worſhip the Devil, whom they believe to have been created to Govern the World, and plague Mankind. They have no light in their Country Churches, but that of Lamps, which burn day and night; and no other Ornaments but the Pictures of Beaſts and Devils Painted upon the Walls: But their Moſques or Temples in the Cities are well furniſhed with Statues of Gold, Silver, Ivory, Ebony and Marble. The Shape they repreſent the Devil under, is very dreadful: Their manner of Worſhip is thus; The Bramen or Prieſt of the Place ſeats himſelf near the Altar, and gets up at ſome times to Pray, and to Mark ſuch as come to adore the Devil, with a Yellow Mark on the Foreheads; the ſtuff they uſe for it is a compoſition of Water, Red-wood, and Rice pulveriz'd, incorporated together. They wear their Hair ſhort, but their Heads are not ſhaved. The Turks uſe them as the Chriſtians do the Jews. They are a ſort of People that underſtand Buſineſs pretty well, and that Trade in all things but living Creatures; but thoſe they will not meddle with, leſt they might ſell their Friends Souls, for they believe the Metempſychoſis: The Engliſh and Dutch make uſe of them for their Interpreters and Factors in ſeveral parts of the Indies. They Marry their Children at ſeven years of Age, to them of the ſame Trade or Calling that the Parents are of. The Women do not Veil their Faces as the Mahometans do, but wear Neck-laces and Pendants of the Richeſt Pearls; the Beauty of their Teeth they reckon to conſiſt in Blackneſs. Boys and Girls go naked until they are five years old. They agree in this with the Mahometans, that they think the chiefeſt part of Religion conſiſts in the purification and cleanſing of their Bodies; for which Reaſon they Bath themſelves every day, and hold a Straw in their hand, which is given them by the Bramen to keep evil Spirits off: This Bramen Preaches to them whilſt they are waſhing themſelves. They are divided into 83 principal Sects, and theſe ſubdivided into an infinite number of others; for each Family has its particular Superſtitions, the four chief are, the Ceurawath, the Samarath, the Biſnow, and that of Goeghy. There is a very remarkable Tree in their Country, known by the name of Banyan's Tree, which alone makes a little Foreſt; for the great Branches of the Body of the Tree produce other little ones which incline downward by little and little, until they reach the Ground, where they take Root, which way of growing holds up the great Arms, which grow to the length of 300 paces, having theſe Supports at every 15 yards diſtance. The Fruit of this Tree is about the bigneſs of a Walnut, the Shell is Red, and contains a ſmall Seed which nothing but Bats feed upon, which are of an extraordinary bigneſs here, being almoſt as large as Hens, and have Wings a foot and half long; they hang by their Claws with their Heads downwards: The Portugueſes make a dainty Meſs of them, and prefer them to Pullets. Tavernier.

BANKWELL, a Market Town of High-Peak Hundred in Derbyſhire; it lies on the South Banks of the River Wye, which a few miles from hence empties it ſelf into the Derwent.

BANNARA, a Town in the Indies, in the Kingdom of Bengall, in the Province of Patan, belonging to the Great Mogul; it ſtands near the River Ganges, and has Goure to the South, and Halabaſſa to the North.

BANNERETS, a Name formerly given in France to Gentlemen of great Eſtates, who were privileged to carry Colours in the King's Army; he was a Banneret that could raiſe a Troop of Gentlemen, his own Vaſſals, and could maintain them at his Charge. There were alſo Eſquire Bannerets, which had Free-holds with privilege of a Banner; but they wore white Spurs, to diſtinguiſh them from the others that wore gilt Spurs. This Title at the beginning was Perſonal, and he that had it held it by his Valour and Merit; but it became Hereditary afterward, and deſcended to thoſe that held the Banneret's Eſtate. De la Roque.

BANNIER, (John) General of the Swediſh Army in Germany: Guſtavus eſteemed him much for his Courage; He Commanded in chief in 1636. after Guſtavus's death, he defeated the Saxons twice, reduced ſeveral Towns in Miſnia, and beat the Imperialiſts commanded by Harsfeldt at the Battel of Vitſtoc; after which he went back into Miſnia again, and took Torgaw, but underſtanding that his Enemies had joined their Forces, he retired to Dreſden, and afterwards to the Iſle of Uſedom, where being Reinforced with 8000 Men from Sweedland, he march'd into Bohemia, defeated General Mazarini near Chemnitz, and General Hoskirch near Prague. The year after, he entred Thuringia, and in the Winter drew near Ratisbonne, where the Emperor held a Diet; but Picolomini made him retire. This happened in the beginning of the year 1641. about which time he was taken with a Fever, and died of it on the 20th of May at Alberſtadt. Lotichius, Puffendorf.

BANNO, a Borough and Sea Town of Leinſter in the S. E. Parts of Ireland, upon a Bay of its own name, 4 miles S. of Clamine.

BANNOCHBURN, a little Town of Scotland within two miles of Sterling, upon a River of the ſame Name, famous for one of the greateſt Battels that was ever fought in Britain, 100000 Engliſh being there defeated under the Command of Edward the Second, by 30000 Scots, Commanded by their King Robert Bruce: 200 of the Engliſh Nobility being killed, and as many taken. See Robert Bruce.

BANS, in Latin Banni, were in former times Governors of the Provinces that depend on the Kingdom of Hungary, as Dalmatia, Croatia, Servia. This Name is ſtill in uſe amongſt the Turks, who put them in the ſame Rank with their Beglerbeys, and gave them the Government of Provinces, and ſometimes of whole Kingdoms

BANS, or Bagnes, a Dominican of Montdragon in Guipuſcoa in Spain. He is counted the moſt eminent Commentator upon Thomas Aquinas, and has written five or ſix Folio's upon the Summes of this Schoolman. He has publiſhed likewiſe Remarks upon Ariſtotle's Logick, upon his Treatiſe of Generation and Corruption, &c. This Author died at Medina del Campo in 1604. being 77 years of Age. Razzi Hu'om Illuſt. Domin. p. 304. Miræus de Script. Sæc. XVII.

BANTAM, the Name of a Town in the Iſland of Java in the Indies; it's a very convenient Sea-Port, ſituated at the bottom of a Hill, whence it receives three Rivers, whereof one runs through it, and the other two by its Walls, and forms divers Canals. It has the moſt Traffick of any Town in the Indies: The French, the Engliſh, and the Hollanders, have great Magazines in it. The Hollanders are Maſters of a Place called Batavia, fifteen Leagues Eaſtward of Bantam. The Dutch made themſelves Maſters of Bantam in 1680. by aſſiſting the King of Bantam's Son againſt his Father, whom they defeated, and afterwards Impriſoned; ſo that no other Nations can touch there without their leave. All the Gardens of the Town of Bantam are full of Coco-Trees. They have no Bells there; But they ſupply the want of them by beating a great Drum, as big as one of the German Hogſheads, called Voeder; this is done at morning, noon and night. All the Gentry entertain a Guard at the Entry of their Houſes, and keep Slaves to watch in the night, becauſe they are then in fear of their Lives. Strangers live out of the Town. Girls are married here at eight years of Age, and that not only becauſe the Country is extraordinary hot, but becauſe the King Inherits the Eſtates of ſuch as die whilſt their Children are under Age, which he makes Slaves, as well as the Wife and Domeſticks of the Deceaſed. Women of the beſt Quality have but inconſiderable Portions, which are generally four Slaves, and a Sum of Caxas, whereof 3000 (a great Portion with them) hardly makes 25 Crowns of our Money. The Magiſtrates ſit in the Court of Paceban, where the Plaintiffs and Defendants appear without Solicitors or Attorneys. All Criminals have the ſame Puniſhment, which is to be bound to a Stake and run through the Heart with a Dagger. The Strangers are privileged from Death for a Compenſation, if they have not killed in cold Blood, and with Malice prepenſe. The King's Council meet under a great Tree when the Moon is up, and keep together until it diſappears. The Perſons of Quality, when they walk the Street, have a Pike and a Sword in a black Velvet Scabbard carried before them, to make them they meet to give them the Way, and ſit upon their Heels until they are gone by; they have a great number of Slaves behind, whereof one carries a Paraſol or Umbrello; they all go bare-foot, and would be aſhamed to be ſeen with Shooes in the Street, though they often wear them in their Houſes: They have an extraordinary care of their Daggers, they wear them at their ſide all the day, and put them under their Bolſter at night; they are Pagans; there is a great Moſque or Temple near the King's Palace, and beſides that, every Lord has one in his own Houſe. Mandeſlo.

BANTRY, a Sea Town of the Province of Munſter in the South-weſt Parts of Ireland, from whence the adjoining Bay is called Bantry Bay, noted of late for the Sea-fight on May-day, 1689. between part of our Fleet, under the Command of Admiral Herbert, now Earl of Torrington, and a French Squadron newly got thither with freſh Supplies for the Iriſh. Though the French had the Weather-gage, and a greater number of Ships, yet we loſt not one Man of War, and by impartial Account, the French loſt more Men than we.

BAPAUME, a Town of the Low-Countries in Artois; it was left to the French by the 35th Article of the Pyrenean Treaty in 1659. It is very ſtrong, lies five Leagues from Arras, and has Peronne on its other ſide; it is 14 miles E. of Arras, 15 South-weſt of Cambray.

BAPTES, Prieſts of Cotytto, Goddeſs of Impurity; which was in great Eſteem at Athens; where her Feſtivals were kept at night with all manner of Lewdneſs and Debauchery; they were called Baptes from the Greek Word Βαπτειν, which ſignifies to Waſh or to Dip, becauſe they uſed to plunge themſelves in luke-warm Water. Eupolis having writ a Satyr againſt their Impurities, they threw him into the Sea. Suidas.

BAPTISTA, (Spagnolus,) Sirnamed Mantuanus, becauſe born at Mantua in 1448. &c. He was General of the Carmelites for ſome years; he writ abundance of Poems, which are now comprehended in four Volumes. He was a ſharp Satyriſt againſt the Vices and Errors of the Church of Rome, being Author of that Poem,

——————Venalia Romæ
Templa ſacerdotes altaria ſacra coronæ
Ignis, Thura, Preces, Cœlum eſt venale Deuſque.

He died in 1516. Aged 68.

BAPTISTA, (Fragoſus) an eminent Jeſuite, born at Silvis in Portugal. He wrote a Book called Regimen Rei-publicæ Chriſtianæ, in three Volumes in Folio. He died in the year 1639. Alegamb. in Script. Soc. J.

BAPTISTA, (Fulgoſus) a Duke of Genoua, was outed of his Dominions by his Grandfather in the year 1483. During his Baniſhment, he writ nine Books of memorable Examples in Imitation of Valerius Maximus, which he Dedicated to his Son Peter. Camillo Gillino of Milan tranſlated this Treatiſe out of Italian into Latin.

BAR, or Barrois, a Country between Lorrain and Champagne, has the Title of a Dutchy, and belongs now to France; it is divided into two Parts by the River Meuſe; its Capital is Bar-le-duc, built by Frederick the Firſt, Duke of High Lorrain; he called it Bar, becauſe he deſign'd it ſhould be a Bariere againſt thoſe of Champagne, that uſed to make Incurſions into his Country; it was built in 951. the Country about is pretty Fertile. This Dutchy after ſeveral Marriages and Donations came to the Houſe of Lorrain; 'twas anciently held by Homage and Fealty of the Crown of France, to which the Dukes and Counts of Bar were Vaſſals. In the 16th Century the Princes of the Houſe of Lorrain, who governed at the Court of France, procur'd of Charles IX. and Henry III. the Regale for the Dutchy of Bar. The King's Attorney-General oppos'd the Verification of this Grant, ſo that the King was forc'd to come in Perſon to the Parliament. This happened in the year 1571. Afterwards in 1575. Henry III. made another Declaration in favour of the Duke of Lorrain, which the Attorney-General de la Gueſle, found contrary to the Rights of the Kingdom. After ſeveral Revolutions, by the 63d Article of the Pyrenean Treaty in 1659. the Dutchy of Bar was returned to the King, and united to the Crown; and by a particular Treaty which the late Duke made with Lewis XIV. 1662. he yielded up all his Dominions to him after his Death, as I ſhall inform the Reader more at length when I come to ſpeak of Lorrain. Du Cheſne, Hiſt. de Bar-le-duc, Du Pui Droits du Roi, Vignier de Roſiers, &c.

BAR, (Henry II.) Count of Bar, and Lord of Liney, &c. A Man of great Parts; he was much admired for his Bravery in the Battel of Bouvines, where he had the Honour to fight by King Philip Auguſta. After that War was at an end, he went to Rome, and took the Croiſade, went to the Holy Land in 1239. and was mortally wounded at the Battel of Gaza. Rigordus vit. Phil. Aug.

BAR-le-duc, Barro-ducum, Capital of the Dutchy of Bar. This Town was built by Frederick the Firſt, Duke of Lorrain, in 951. and was afterwards augmented and Embelliſh'd by the Counts and Dukes of Bar. It was taken in the laſt Age in 1632. and its ſtrong Caſtle, built upon a Rock, is demoliſhed. The Lower Town is well built, has fine large Streets, and is embelliſhed with ſeveral Churches, a College, and other Sumptuous Structures. This Town is 60 miles South-Eaſt of Rheims, 50 South-Weſt of Metz, and 115 Eaſt of Paris.

BAR-ſur-Aube, a Town of France in Champagne, upon the River Aube. It is indifferent well built, and much eſteemed for its good Vineyards; 25 miles Eaſt of Troyes, and 20 North-Eaſt from Bar-ſur-Seine.

BAR-ſur-Seine, a Town of France in Burgundy, called in Latin Barum ad Sequanam; it is ſituated upon the River Sequana or Seine, where it receives the Ourſe, the Arſe and Laigne, towards the Frontiers of Champagne, and five Leagues above Troyes. It is very pleaſant and well built, the Soil is fertile, and there are fine Meadows along the River ſide, and Hills on the other ſide, full of good Vines, which renders the Avenues very agreeable. It is 16 miles Eaſt of Troyes, and 56 North from Dijon.

BAR, upon the River Kow. Barum & Barium, a little Town of Podolia in Poland: 'Tis very ſtrong, being defended with a Fort upon a Rock, and encompaſs'd with a Moraſs and a River.

BARABALLI de Gayette, an Italian Poet, who did not think himſelf inferior to Petrarcha; he was deſcended of an ancient Family, was of a good Preſence, but his conceit of himſelf made him the Laughing-ſtock of the Court of Rome; he lived in the time of Leo X. who granted him the Honour of the Triumph, and mounted him upon an Elephant, that threw him down near the Bridge of the Capitol.

BARABBAS, a ſeditious Man, and Murtherer; who being Priſoner for his Crimes, was ſet at Liberty by Pilate, at the Requeſt of the Jews, who would have him ſaved, according to the Cuſtom of pardoning a Criminal at the Feaſt of Eaſter, and preferred him to Jeſus Chriſt, whom they would ſee put to Death by all means.

BARACH, of the Tribe of Nephtali, the fourth Judge of the Iſraelites; he ſucceeded to Ehud in 2720. and with the Aſſiſtance of Debora, who was alſo Judge of the People, he overthrew General Siſera in 2740. and delivered the Iſraelites from their third Servitude, that laſted 20 years under Jabin King of Canaan; he and Debora Judged the People, for almoſt 40 years, from Anno Mundi 2721. to 2760.

BARACHIAS, a Jew, Father of the Prophet Zacharias, as we may learn from the firſt Chapter of his Prophecy. The Learned have found ſome difficulty to know who this Barachias was, whoſe Son Zacharias was kill'd between the Temple and the Altar: Some are of opinion, that it was him who is call'd the laſt of the Prophets, but this is very improbable, becauſe the Temple was then demoliſh'd. Baronius believes that he was the Father of St. John the Baptiſt, and put to Death by Herod, becauſe he would not deliver up his Son John at the Maſſacre of the Innocents. The Cardinal ſupports his opinion by the Authority of Peter of Alexandria, in his Regulæ Eccleſiaſticæ, which were approved by the ſixth General Council, as likewiſe by the Authority of the Author of the Lives of the Prophets, aſſign'd to Epiphanius, of St. Bazil, of St. Gregory Nyſſen, of Origen, and ſeveral other Doctors. He adds, that Nicephorus Calliſtus reports from Hippolytus the Martyr, That the Father of this Zacharias was called Barachias, and that the refuſal to give up his Son was the cauſe of his Death. But St. Jerome affirms, that this Hiſtory is taken from an Apocryphal Author, and that the Zachary in queſtion was that Perſon whom King Joaſh order'd to be put to Death, 2. Chron. 24. 22. and that his Father Jehojada might have two Names, as 'twas common among the Jews, or at leaſt that the Name Barachias might be given him as a Title of Religion, becauſe in Hebrew it ſignifies The Bleſſed of the Lord. Moſt of the Moderns go into St. Jerome's Sentiment, and amongſt others, Janſenius, in the 23d Chapter of St. Matthew, where he ſupports his opinion by very ingenious Reaſonings, and makes a very handſom Remark upon the occaſion of this Zacharias, Son of Baruch or Barachias, mention'd by Joſephus in his fourth Book De Bello Judaico. Some of the Learned maintain, That Zacharias, the Son of Barachias, was killed in the Temple a little before the Siege of Jeruſalem, and that 'tis this Perſon whom our Saviour ſpeaks of in the 23d of St. Matthew. Cyril. in Anthrop. Origin. Hom. 16. in Matth. Hieron. lib. 4. in Matth. Baron. in Annal. Hamond.

BARAMPOUR, or Barampore, Barampura, a Town of the Eaſt-Indies, Capital of the Kingdom of Candiſ, in the Mogul's Territories, ſituated upon the River Tapte, which falls into the Gulf of Cambaie below Suratte. It's a great Town of Trade, but ill built, and unwholſome.

BARAS, See Hormiſdas.

BARATHRUM, a deep Gulf of Attica in Greece, in which they were wont to throw Criminals. It was fac'd with Stone like a Well, and had Iron Hooks turn'd upwards to receive the Criminal. There followed an unfruitful year upon the caſting one of Cybele's Prieſts into it, which the Oracle ſaid, was occaſion'd by Cybele's Wrath, which could not be appeas'd until that Hole were filled up; upon which there was care taken to ſatisfie her. Suidas.

BARBANCON, (Marie d') Daughter to Michael of Barbancon, Lord of Cany, being beſieged in her Caſtle of Benegon in Berry, by Montare Lord Lieutenant of Burgundy, ſhe got to the moſt dangerous Place in the Breach, and with a Half-pike in her Hand, ſhe repulſed the Enemies in three Aſſaults; but at laſt, want of Proviſions made her ſurrender; the King was ſo taken with her Courage, that he ordered ſhe ſhould be left in Poſſeſſion of her Caſtle and Eſtate. Thuan.

BARBADOES, is one of the Caribbe Iſlands in the Weſt-Indies, and the moſt conſiderable Colony the Engliſh enjoy in thoſe Parts; it lies in 13 deg. 10 min. North Latitude, ſo that the Days and Nights are here almoſt of an equal length all the year round, the Sun riſing and ſetting at ſix, or in leſs than half an hour before or after; but in three quarters of an hour after Sun ſetting is dark night, the twilights being no longer in thoſe Parts. It is ſomewhat of an Oval Form, broad toward the South-end, growing narrow to the North, with a bending in on the Eaſt-ſide, not above ſeven Leagues in length and four in breadth in the broadeſt Place, and contains ſomething above 100000 Acres: It was ſo well Peopled, that within that ſmall compaſs, it was ſaid to have contain'd near 50000 Inhabitants, beſides the Negro Slaves, who were almoſt double the number; it improved to this degree ſince the year 1627. but in the year 1698. they were leſs than half that number. The firſt Planters for want of Trade were driven to great Extremities, until ſome years after their firſt ſettling; but about the year 1640. their numbers being increaſed, and the Iſland yielding at that time good ſtore of Tobacco, Indico, Cotton, &c. Ships began to Trade there by way of Exchange, after which it began to flouriſh conſiderably, eſpecially after they had gotten Canes from Brazil, and planted them with good ſucceſs, and had learn'd the Art of making Sugar. This is now their principal Commodity, and beſides the Brown or Muſcovadoes, they make Clay'd Sugars in ſorts, ſome whiter and as good as Brazil, and likewiſe choice Reſin'd Sugars; but the Reſin'd is kept out of England, (and the Clay'd in great meaſure) by very high Duties, which have the effect of a Prohibition, to the great damage of the Barbadians, as they themſelves complain. This Iſland is hotteſt in July, Auguſt, September, and October, though not near ſo hot as while the Woods were ſtanding; and it would be unpleaſant living in it were it not for the cool Breezes that riſe with the Sun, and blow freſh almoſt all the year long, eſpecially all the other Months as the Sun mounts higher. Theſe Breezes blow always from the Eaſt, (with a Point two, or three, to the North) ſave ſometimes in the Months before-named, in which ſome years the Turnadoes or Hurricanes are. It is the Windward-moſt Iſland of all the Caribbees, by which it hath many Advantages, and hath in all times of War been the means of preſerving the reſt of the Engliſh Leewards Settlements from the Inſults of the Enemy. Notwithſtanding this Heat, the Air is ſo very moiſt, that any thing of Iron without conſtant uſage is ſoon eaten up with Ruſt. The Country in general is gradually riſing Ground, level in ſome Parts, and in others ſome high Hills, affording moſt lovely Proſpects all over the Iſland, with a continual Verdure: It is but indifferently watered with freſh Rivers or running Springs; but there are ſeveral Pools beſides, with which the Inhabitants are ſupplied, as alſo Ponds made by hand, and very good Draw-Wells. In ſhort, the Inconveniencies are over-balanced with the Pleaſantneſs of the Air, and heretofore with the Fruitfulneſs of the Soil, which yielded Crops all the year long; yet the Inhabitants obſerve two principal Seaſons for Planting of Indian Corn, Potatoes, &c. viz. May and November; but Sugar-Canes are planted from July to December: The Land is now much worn out by continual Planting, but that Defect is in ſome meaſure ſupplied by the great Charge and Induſtry of the Inhabitants in Dunging and Manuring the Land. Next to Sugar, their chief Commodities for Exportation are Cotton, Rum, Moluſſes, and Ginger. For the uſe of the Inhabitants, here are Oxen, Sheep, Goats, plenty of Hogs, ſeveral ſorts of extraordinary good Poultry, Fruits, Herbs, Corn, Pulſe, &c. Here they have the beſt and moſt delicious China-Oranges in the World, Shaddocks, Sweet, Sower, and Civil Oranges, Cittrons, Limons, Limes, Guavers, Cocoenuts, Plantains, Bonanoes, Pomegranates, Figs, and Pine-Apples, the laſt being the moſt delicious and fineſt of all Fruits whatſoever, with many other ſorts of very good Fruit, as alſo ſeveral moſt excellent Roots, viz. Potatoes, Yames, Eddeas, Carrots, Turnips, and ſeveral other ſorts of Roots. Of Trees, here are Cedar, Maſtick, Bully, Locuſt, Manchanneele, Red-Wood, White-Wood, Silk-Cotton-Tree, and that called Iron-Wood-Tree, Caſſia, Colloquintis, Semper-vivum, of which good Alloes is made, Tamarinde, and Caſavy, of which laſt they make very good Bread of the Root grated, the Juice being firſt ſqueezed out, which is poiſonous: Here is alſo the Poiſon-Tree, the Phyſick-Nut, Mangrove-Tree, Palmeto, and Lignum-vitæ and the Dumb-Cane, which being bitten or taſted, immediately ſo enflames the Mouth, Tongue, and Throat, that it hinders Speaking for a conſiderable time after. Trees here continue green all the year, except ſome few in the dry time, and at what time ſoever they are lop'd or cut, they ſpring again. In this Iſland is a Weed called the Senſitive-Plant, eſteemed one of the greateſt Rarities in the World, which as ſoon as touched with the Hand, the Leaves immediately cloſe together as if they were withered, but ſoon after the Hand is removed, ſpreads again, as alſo the Humble-Plant, which being touched, falls as the other cloſeth. Here are Snakes of ſeveral ſorts, which are no ways poiſonous or hurtful, otherwiſe than that they ſometimes but very rarely deſtroy Chickens, and ſuck Eggs; but then they are uſeful in deſtroying Rats, Mice, and other Vermin. The chief Town in the whole Iſland is St. Michael's, ſituated on or near Carliſle-Bay, in the South-weſt Part of the Iſland, where Ships have good Riding in an open Road; there are three other Port-Towns, Auſtins, the Hole, or St. James Town, and Spixes, or Little-Briſtol. Their Militia is ſix Regiments of Foot and two of Horſe, beſides a Life-Guard for the Governor. Formerly theſe Regiments were full, and the Life-Guard was at leaſt 100 Gentlemen; but the Taxes laid upon Sugars have ſo impoveriſhed that Iſland, that the Regiments are not half ſo full as they were, and the Guard much leſs, the Inhabitants being reduced to half their number, and much of their Land lying waſte. Before the Taxes likewiſe, 400 Ships commonly came yearly to this Iſland laden with all ſorts of Commodities, which here they vended, and Returned with the Commmodities of this Place; but now the number of theſe Ships ſeldom exceeds 200. The Iſland is Governed by the Laws of England, except where their own particular Laws make ſome alteration, which Laws are made by the Governor, Council, and Aſſembly; the Governor and Council being appointed by the King, and the Aſſembly choſen by the People.

BARBARY, a Country in Africa, bounded with Egypt on the Eaſt, and Biledulgerid and Mount Atlas to the South, with the Atlantick Ocean in the Weſt, and the Mediterranean on the North. Its length, from the Atlantick Sea to Egypt, is 600 German Leagues; and its breadth, between Mount Atlas and the Mediterranean, is about 80 Leagues. It is divided into five Parts, Barca, Tunis, Tremeſen, Fez and Dara, whereof the firſt is a Province, and the other four are Kingdoms. Though Barbary be under one of the Torrid Zones, yet the Mountains and Sea Coaſt between the Streights of Gibralter and Egypt are more Cold than hot; it begins to rain through all Barbary about the middle of October, and their greateſt Cold is in December and January, but ſo inſenſible, that they never have occaſion for any Fire. In April the Trees begin to flouriſh, and at the end of the ſame Month you have Cherries ripe in the Kingdoms of Fez, Algier and Tunis, and in ſome Parts of the Kingdom of Morocco. In the middle of May they gather their Figs; and the middle of July is the Seaſon for Apples, Pears, Plums and Grapes; but all their Fruits are not ready till the beginning of September. Their Spring begins the 25th of February, and laſts till the 28th of May, and all thoſe three Months the Weather is fair. The Inhabitants of Barbary are of three different Nations; for beſides the Natives, there are Turks and Arabians. The Men are allowed many Wives, yet generally they have but one Married Wife, but they keep ſeveral Slaves and Concubines. The Women and Girls are always veiled in the Preſence of Men, ſo that a Man knows no more of the Beauty of the Wife he Marries, than what he learns from the Father and the Mother, untill he goes to Bed to her. Enchantments and Witchcraft are very frequent in this Country, and they uſe Magicians and Witches for their Phyſicians, who cure them with Characters and ſome Words out of the Alcoran: When any falls ſick, they lay ſome Meat upon the Tomb of the Marabouts, who are the Saints of that Law, and imagine, that if any Creature eats it, he will immediately take the Sickneſs. It is obſerved, that in the three Languages they uſe, viz. the Arabick, African and Turkiſh, there is no Oath againſt the Name of God. The People are of a good mild Humour, ſeldom quarrel among themſelves, and when they do, ſeldom kill one another; they are very watchful of their Wives, and ſuch of them as live abroad under Tents, as the Arabians and Shepherds, are Laborious, Valiant and Liberal; but they that live in Cities, are Proud, Covetous, Revengeful; and though they Traffick much, they underſtand it but very little, and neither keep Banks, nor have Bills of Exchange. in former times they addicted themſelves to the Study of the Liberal Sciences, but their Princes have forbidden ſuch Studies for the future. They that live near the Sea Coaſt, uſe Fire-Arms and Pikes: but they that live in the Inland Towns, carry nothing but a Lance, which they uſe very dextrouſly. As for Age, they hardly exceed 60 or 70 years, unleſs it be ſuch as live in the Mountains, and are ſtrong and luſty at an Hundred years of Age. Barbary furniſhes Strangers with a great quantity of Goods, as Beef, Hides, Linen and Cotton, Raiſins, Figs and Dates. It is a very rich Country, as appears by the prodigious Revenues of the Kings of Morocco and Fez, and of the Baſhaws of Tunis, Algier and Tripoli, by its great Commerce with France, Italy, England, Holland, &c. The great Number of Moſques, and their Rents, is a Mark of the Wealth of the Country; there are an hundred at Algier, three hundred at Tunis, as many at Fez, ſeven hundred at Morocco, whereof the Chiefeſt have two hundred Ducats Rent a day. As for Government, part of Barbary is under Kings, as Morocco and Fez, and ſome other Places that are under Arabian Kings; the other Part is Governed by Baſhaws from the Grand Signior, as Algier, Tunis and Tripoli, who have Kings that are Vaſſals to them, as are thoſe of Concue and Labez, which are Tributary to Algier, and ſome Arabian Princes, who are to furniſh a certain Sum of Money and a Number of Men upon neceſſity. They that live on the Mountains, and in Tents in the Plains, are Governed by a kind of Commonwealth. In all Towns where the Grand Signior has a Baſhaw, he has alſo a Cadi, or Judge, who gives Sentence without Appeal in all Civil and Criminal Matters; and throughout all Barbary, every one pleads his own cauſe, except in Sally, a Town of Fez, where the Moors make uſe of Attorneys after the Faſhion of Spain. As for Religion, they have the Chriſtian, Jewiſh and Mahometan, and thoſe that live in the Mountains and Fields with their Flocks hardly have any at all. The Iman or Marabout, which is their Prieſt, Prays in the Moſque, and the People repeat what he ſays. The Women never go into their Moſques, for fear the ſight of them ſhould diſturb the Devotion of the Men. They have long Beads of 100 Coral Stones, all of a bigneſs, and at each Stone they cry, Sta-fer-lah, which ſignifies, God preſerve me. The Mufti, who is the Head of the Marabouts or Prieſts, and of the Santons or Religious, is Judge in all Cauſes Eccleſiaſtical. Their Morabouts apply themſelves much to Magick , and are in ſuch Veneration amongſt the Moors, that a Criminal is ſafe enough, if he can but get into one of their Cells, which are built near the Moſques. When theſe Prieſts die, they honour them as Saints, and burn Lamps before their Tombs. Their greateſt Feaſt is on Mahomet's Birth-day, which they keep the 5th of September with great Solemnity, ſinging that Prophet's Praiſes through the Streets, accompanied with a great Number of Muſicians : This Feaſt laſts 8 days, during which time the very Chriſtians are permitted to be in the Streets at night, which is prohibited under rigorous Puniſhments at any other time. When any one dies, his Friends hire Women that cry and take on ſtrangely , and tear and ſcratch their Faces till they bleed. The Body is not laid all at length in the Coffin, but is ſeated with its Face Southwards towards Meccha. Their Burying-places are in the Fields, near the Towns; they are wall'd in, and over-run with Flowers, which ſerve partly for Ornament, and partly to mind People of the tranſitory Pleaſure of this World. Since the Engliſh quitted Tangier, the Chriſtians have no Places in Barbary, but Larache, Oran, and Mamora, that belong to Spain, though there are ſome remainder of the ancient Chriſtians in Morocco , Fez, and Libya, who ſay Moſarabick Maſs, which is tranſlated into the Arabick Tongue out of Latin ; and there are ſome Greek Families, who have great Veneration for St. Stephen : The Jows that live amongſt them, are much the ſame with them among us, and are above 160000 Families. For Apparel , the Men wear wide Linings , and above them a ſtriped Gown, which hangs down to their Knees, buttoned before with Gold and Silver Buttons. Their Turban is of red Cloth, that has a piece of white Cotton winded ſeveral times about it : They wear painted Shooes without Ears, that tie under the Foot, as the Turks do : They wear Shooes looſe, that they may put them off, which they do as often as they go into their Houſes, and eſteem it uncivil and undecent to do otherwiſe. They ſhave off all their Hair, except a Bunch they leave on the top of the Head, by which they expect Mahomet will pull them up to Heaven. They wear Muſtaches , and ſometimes they have their Beards all of a length. They have a Sheath to their Belts, enrich'd with coſtly Pearls and three fine Knives. The Women cover their Faces with a fine Linen Cloth, and wear a Gown to their Knees : When they go to Town, they wear a pair of Cotton Linings, and wrap their Bodies in a great Cloak, and hide their Faces, that nothing can be ſeen but their Eyes ; ſo that they cannot be known in the Streets : But when they go into any Friend's Houſe, they leave their Attires and their Shooes at the Door, to give the Man of the Houſe notice that they are there, and that their Husbands would take it ill if he came in whilſt they paid his Wife a Viſit. The People of Barbary live for the moſt part on Rice , Beef, Veal, and Mutton ; Wine is forbidden them by Mahomet's Law, yet many Drink of it for all that. The Country is very fertile in all manner of Fruit, which grows better and bigger there than elſewhere. Dapper's Deſcription of Africk.

BARBERINI, a Noble and Ancient Family in Italy : Pope Urban VIII. and ſeveral Cardinals were of this Houſe ; and Lucretia Barberini married Francis d'Eſte, Duke of Modena, 1654.

BARBERINO, a little Town in Tuſcany, upon a low Hill, between Sienne and Florence, from which the famous Family of the Barberini's took their Name and Title.

BARBEROUSSE I. (Aruch, or Horuc) born in Mitylena, a Town in the Iſland Lesbos, in the Egæan Sea, was a Pirate for many years, and then went to Barbary, where he became ſo famous, that the King of Algiers begg'd his Aſſiſtance againſt the Spaniards. He came to Algiers , and having ſecured the Town, he ſtrangled the King in his Bath, and uſurped the Crown : After which , he conquered the King of Tunis, and enlarged his Conqueſts on every ſide , until the Count of Comares , Governour of Oran for the King of Spain, ſurprized him at the Paſſage of the River Huexda, eight Leagues from Tremeſen, where he and 1500 Turks that accompanied him, were cut off, in 1518.

BARBEROUSSE II. Cheredin, ſucceeded his Brother in the Kingdom of Algiers, and in a little time made himſelf Maſter of Conſtantina, reduced ſome Kings his Vaſſals, and drove the Spaniards out of a Fort that they had overagainſt Algiers. Solyman II. made him his Admiral , and with his help he took Tunis, plundered and ravaged Sicily, made frequent Deſcents on Italy, frighted the Spaniards, and joining himſelf with Francis I.'s Army, took Nizza in 1543. Before this, the Emperor Charles V. pretending to ſuccour Muli Haſſin, diſpoſſeſs'd Barberouſſe of the Kingdom of Tunis ; but this Misfortune did not put him out of the Grand Seignior's Favour , who made him both Baſſa and Admiral. He died in 1547. at Conſtantinople.

BARBOSA, (Arrius, or Arrias) born at Aviro in Portugal : He was a great Reſtorer of Learning in Spain, an excellent Linguiſt, and applied himſelf more particularly to Greek. He lived towards the end of the 15th Century, and wrote Quodlibeticæ Quæſtiones de Proſodia, Epometria, &c. Lælius Giraldus, Dial. de Poet. Nichol. Antonio Bibl. Script. Hiſp.

BARBOSA, (Auſtin) a Portugueſe , Biſhop of Eugento, and Son of Emanuel hereafter mentioned : He was a great Proficient in the Civil and Canon-Law, which he ſtudied at Rome. There are ſeveral Treatiſes of his Writing : De Officio Epiſcopi. Remiſſiones Doctorum ſuper varia loca Concilii Tridentini. Formularium Epiſcopale. Variæ Juris Tractationes. De Officio Parochi. De Canonicis. Repertorium Juris Civilis & Canonici , &c. Nicholas Antonio Bibl. Script. Hiſp. Miræus de Script. Sæc. 17.

BARBOSA, (Emanuel) Father to the above-mention'd : He was a conſiderable Lawyer, and the King of Portugal's Council in the Province of Aventeio. He Printed a Volume in Folio, called Remiſſiones Doctorum ad Contractus, &c. The reſt of his Works were publiſh'd by his Son. Nich. Anton. Bibl. Script. Hiſp.

BARBOSA, (Peter) an eminent Lawyer and Chancellor of Portugal, flouriſhing about the year 1590. In his Life-time he publiſh'd two Volumes in Folio, called Commentaria ad Interpretationem Tituli Digeſtorum, Soluto Matrimonio quemadmodum Dos petatur. Afterwards, in 1662. there were ſome of his poſthumous Works Printed at Lions, Entituled, Commentaria ad Titulos de Legatis, & de Vulgari Subſtitutione, & de Probatione per Juramentum. Nichol. Anton. Bibl. Hiſp.

BARCA, Son of Belus King of Tyrus in Phænicia, Brother to Pygmalion, came out of Tyrus in Africa with his Siſters Didon and Anna. He was the Founder of that Renowned Family of the Barcas, whence Hanibal deſcended.

BARCA, a great Country of Africa in Barbary, on the Mediterranean Sea, between Egypt and Tripoli : It is a very barren Country, being dry and rocky : It has the Town Garuena, called alſo Cerene, and ſome other Towns along the Coaſts. This Kingdom is bounded on the Eaſt by Egypt, on the North by the Mediterranean, on the Weſt by the Gulph of Sidera, the Great Sirtis, and Barbary, and on the South by Deſerts. It takes its Name from the City of Barca , which is ſmall, and ſtands towards the Weſt-end 550 miles from Alexandria. This City ſprung out of the Ruines of Berenice, near which it ſtood. In this Kingdom was the celebrated City of Cyrene, ſomething more to the Eaſt than Barca ; and 'tis a very fruitful Spot of Ground, and in the Greek and Roman times was very Populous, and well Cultivated, but is now almoſt wholly deſolate. *Nub.p.*92. The Gulph of Sidera, mentioned above, is the Great Sirtis of the Ancients, a Bay infamous for Shipwrecks, and the Shoars of it for Thieves and Deſolation, there being not one drop of freſh Water to be found in 4 days Journey between the Kingdoms of Tripoli and Barca. The Arabians inhabiting theſe Countries between Barbary and Egypt, feel great Miſery, the Country being ſo poor and barren, that it will hardly keep their Cattel alive ; and they have no Corn, nor any thing but Dates, ſo that they pawn their Children for Bread in Sicily, which are frequently made Slaves upon Non-payment. This Neceſſity makes them alſo very Thieviſh, taking all that a Man has, and then ſelling his Perſon to the Sicilians for Corn, to the diſcouragement of all Merchants and Trade. In ſhort, they are a rude, beggarly, hunger-ſtarved, perfidious People, diſtruſted by all Men. Barca is in part mountainous, and in part level : All along the foot of Mount Atlas on the North, is a ſpacious fruitful Plain, well watered with beautiful Rivers and Fountains. The Air is more ſubject to Cold than exceſſive Heat, and in Winter is often covered with deep Snows. The Mountains yield Fruit, but no Corn : The Inhabitants of thoſe places eat Barley-bread : The vaſt Woods are full of wild Beaſts of all kinds ; but in the Plains and Hillocks between theſe Mountains and Atlas, there is plenty of Corn ; but then they have no great plenty of Wood. Leo Af.p. 31. Pag. 266. he ſaith, The Deſartt of Barca contains in length from Eaſt to Weſt 1300 miles , and in breadth 200, and is deſtitute of Corn and Water. The Inhabitants are barbarous and beggarly beyond belief. The Moors began the Conqueſt of this Country next after Egypt, in the year of Chriſt 605. or, as their own Chronologers place it, in 686. Procopius ſaith, That Libya, properly and firſt ſo call'd, lay between Cyrene to the Weſt, and Alexandria in Egypt to the Eaſt ; and it was alſo of old call'd Marmarica.

BARCALON, the Name of the Firſt Miniſter of State in the Kingdom of Siam in the Indies, beyond the Gulph of Bengala : Beſides his Care of the King's Buſineſs, he ſits with the Oya's, or Ordinary Judges, to decide the Differences that happen between Merchants and Strangers.

BARCAPPARA, a Rabbi who lived in the Third Century, and compoſed a Work which the Jews call Toſaphta, and make uſe of it to explain the hard places of their Miſna.

BARCELONA, a Town of Cattalonia belonging to the King of Spain; it is a Sea-Port of the Mediterranean, bears the Title of a County, has a Sovereign Court and Univerſity, a Court of Inquiſition, and a Biſhoprick Suffragan to Tarragona. It is a great, rich, fair, and well-fortified Town; ſome Authors think it was built by Amilcar Barca, a Carthaginian Captain, about 300 years before our Saviour's Birth. It's this Town Ptolemy calls Βαρκίνων; St. Paulinus, Barcinus; Jornandes, Barcelona; and others Barcino, and Barcilona, and think it was the place Plinius calls Faventia. It was under the Romans, and afterwards under the Viſigoths, where their firſt King Ataulfus was murthered in 415. In the Eighth Age, when the Saracens ſettled themſelves in Spain, they became Maſters of Barcelona, the Spaniards endeavoured to retake it, but in vain. The French took it in 801. Its Governours had the Title of Counts, who afterwards became Proprietaries of it; From thence it fell to the Houſe of Arragon, and afterwards to that of Anjou; notwithſtanding the Spaniards kept poſſeſſion, the Emperor Charles V. was ſo well ſatisfied of the French Right, that he procured an expreſs Renunciation of it from Francis I. at the Treaty of Creſpi, in the year 1544. It's ſituated in a Plain by the Sea-ſide; There is the old and new Town, parted by a Wall, and round both is a ſtrong Rampart, with Towers, and ſome Baſtions; the Ditch is very deep. The Cathedral is a ſtately Building, as are moſt of the other Churches: The Streets are great and very clean, and the Key is very convenient and ſafe, being ſheltered from Winds on one ſide by Mount Imi, and by another leſſer Hill on the other ſide; At the end of the Key is the Light-Houſe, and a little Fort. In the year of Chriſt 412. during the Reign of Honorius, this City was taken by Athaulphus King of the Weſt-Goths, the Husband of Placidia that Emperor's Siſter, and from thence forward it was the Seat of the Kings of that Nation, which was called Gottalonia and Cattalonia. In time they conquered the reſt of Spain, and then Toledo became the Royal City till it was taken by the Saracens. This City was Honoured with the Title of an Earldom by Lewis the Good, after he had taken it from the Saracens. Charles the Groſs gave this Earldom to Godfrey d'Arria, for his Service againſt the Normans, and his Heirs. After the death of Raimond the laſt Earl, it was united to the Kingdom of Arragon, in 1162. There were Three Councils celebrated in this City, one in 540. one in 603. and the laſt in 1064. James II. King of Arragon, died here in 1327. Alphonſus IV. in 1336. and John II. in 1479. This Place was taken by the French in 1640. but returned under the Spaniard in 1652. after a very ſharp Siege; but nothing has made it more Memorable than the Siege of 1697. when after the moſt vigorous and obſtinate Defence the Beſieged made for ſeveral Weeks againſt the French Army, it was at laſt, July 15. ſurrendred upon very Honourable Articles, but very ſoon after given up again to the Spaniards by vertue of the Peace of Reſwick. It is 60 miles North of the Iſle of Majorca, 134 South of Narbonne, and 300 miles Eaſt of Madrid.

BARCELONNE, or Barcelonette, Barcelona and Nilla Barcelonæ, a Town and Valley formerly of Provence, but now belonging to Savoy, built in 1231. in the time of Raimundus Berenguerarius, the Fifth of that Name, Count of Provence, who called it ſo in memory of Barcelona in Cattalonia, whence his Predeceſſors came into Provence; others ſay it was built before, but being ruined by the Wars was rebuilt by Raimundus.

BARCELOR, a Town of the Indies upon the Coaſts of Malabar, with a convenient Port; it has Goa to the North, and Mangalor to the South; it formerly belonged to the Portugueſes, but now the Hollanders have it.

BARCELOS, a Town in Portugal upon the River Cavado; it is called Celiobriga Celerinorum; it has the Title of a Dutchy, and is below Braga about a League from the place where the River Cavado joins the Sea; it is 13 miles Weſt of Braga, and 20 North of O-Porto.

BAR-CEPHA: See Moiſes Bar-Cepha.

BARCHOCHEBAS, Barcochab, or Bencochab, a famous Impoſtor and a Jew; his Name ſignifies Son of the Star, wherefore he call'd himſelf that Star of Jacob that was to deliver the Nation from Slavery. He found ſome Followers, and revolted againſt the Emperor Adrian about the year 130. becauſe this Prince built the Temple of Jupiter over-againſt theirs in Jeruſalem. During this Rebellion they committed unheard of Cruelties upon ſuch Chriſtians as would not favour their Deſign. This War perfectly cruſh'd the Jews, in which there was above 580000 killed, beſides an infinite number that periſh'd by Famine and Contagious Diſeaſes. Euſeb.

BARCLAY (William) a Lawyer, deſcended of one of the beſt Families in Scotland; he ſpent his youth at Court, but having loſt all by the Civil Wars, and ſeeing his Country ruin'd, he went into France, where he began to Study, though 30 years of Age, and made ſuch progreſs, that he became Law-Profeſſor in the Univerſity of Pont-à-Mouſſon in Lorrain, and afterwards Councellor of State to the Duke. He came into England in 1603. upon King James's coming to the Crown, hoping that the change of Ruler would be followed with a change of Religion, but meeting with diſappointment, he returned into France, where he had the Place of Firſt Royal Profeſſor in the Univerſity of Angers. He died in 1609. He writ ſome Books, as De Poteſtate Papæ. De Regno & Regali poteſtate adverſus Monarchomacas. In titulos pandectarum de rebus creditis & de Jure jurando. Philip. Thomazin, Lorenzo Craſſo.

BARCLAY (John) Son of William Barclay; he was born in France, when his Father was Profeſſor of Law there; he came into England after his Father's death, and had conſiderable Employments under King James. He gain'd a great Reputation by his Satyricon Euphormionis, wherein he imitated Petronius's Style. Being uneaſie in England, he went into France, and thence to Rome, where he found a good Friend of Cardinal Maffeus Barberinus, who was afterwards Pope under the Name of Urban VIII. Paul V. was kind to him, as was alſo his Succeſſor Gregory XV. It was about this time that he writ ſomething againſt the Proteſtants, and publiſhed his Argenis, which was much more approved of than his Controverſy. He likewiſe writ a Treatiſe, Entituled, Icon Animorum, and a Collection of Poetry in 3 Books, and was about others before his death, which happened in 1621. Lorenzo Craſſo.

BARCLAY, (Robert) was born at Edinburg in the year 1648. was the Son of Colonel David Barclay, deſcended of the Barclays of Mathers, and Repreſentative of that Family. His Mother was Catharine Gordon, Daughter to Sir Robert Gordon of Gordonſtone, Son to the Earl of Southerland: Was Educated at Paris, under the Tuition of his Unkle Robert Barclay, Preſident of the Scotch College there. He returned to Scotland in Company of his Father, who went over for him about the year 1664. being 16 years of Age: A little after his coming over, he join'd himſelf to the People call'd Quakers, among whom he married about the 22d year of his Age, leaving 7 Children ſurviving him. He was reputed a great Man, as moſt in his Age, both with reſpect to Natural and Acquired Parts. He writ many Books in Defence of Chriſtianity, as held by the ſame People, particularly his Apology for the True Chriſtian Divinity, Dedicated to King Charles II. which he firſt writ in Latin, and then tranſlated it into Engliſh. The Character given of him, when dead, was, That he was of a ſound Judgment, ſtrong in Argument, chearful in Travails and Sufferings, of a pleaſant Diſpoſition, yet ſolid; plain and exemplary in Converſation; a Learned Man and good Chriſtian. He died in the 42d year of his Age, at his own Houſe at Urie, in the Shire of Mearns in Scotland, upon the 3d day of October, 1690.

He was a Miniſter in Holland before the Synod of Dort, and became a Remonſtrant afterwards; he was Profeſſor of Philoſophy in the famous School of Amſterdam when it was firſt Eſtabliſhed.

BARLÆUS (Melchior) of Antwerp, he was an excellent Poet, and lived in 1565. publiſhed divers Ingenious Poems, as Brabantiados, lib. 5. De Diis Gentium, lib. 2. Bucolica, &c. Valerius Andr. Bibl. Belg. &c.

BARLAND or Barlandus, (Adrian) born at a Town of the ſame Name in Zeland, he liv'd in the 16th Century. He wrote ſeveral Books, as De Chriſtianæ Hominis Intuitione. Locorum Veterum ac Recentiorum, Lib. III. Scholia in Selectas Plinii Epiſtolas. In Menandri Carmina, &c. Barland likewiſe publiſhed a Chronology from the beginning of the World to 1532. as alſo a Hiſtory of the Dukes of Venice, the Counts of Holland, Biſhops of Utrecht, &c. Valerius Andreas Bibl. Belg. Miræus in Elog. Belg.

BARLAND (Hubert) born at the ſame Town with the other above-mentioned, and living in the ſame time. Eraſmus had a value for him. He wrote ſeveral Treatiſes, as Velitatio Medica. De Aquarum diſtillatione, &c. He likewiſe Tranſlated ſome Parts of Galen into Latine. Eraſmus, Lib. 20. Ep. 101. Juſtus in Chron. Medic. &c.

BARLEMONT, a Town of Hainault in the Low-Countreys, ſubject to the French; it ſtands on the River Sambre, 17 miles South of Mons, and 25 Eaſt of Cambray.

BARLETA, Lat. Barulum, a City near to Old Canuſium, with a Haven or Sea-Port; it was reckon'd one of the Four ſtrong Holds of Italy in the middle Ages, it lies upon the Adriatick Sea, about 24 miles Weſt of Bari, and 4 South from the mouth of the River Oſanto, and 34 North Eaſt of Cirenza. It's a large and well inhabited City, belongs to the Kingdom of Naples, and is an Archbiſhoprick.

BARLINGUAS, or Berlinguas, Lat. Erythiæ, Spaniſh Iſlands on the Coaſt of Portugal, call'd formerly Londobris; they are about Two Leagues off the Shoar of the Portugueſe Eſtramadura. Geryon the Gyant is ſaid to have dwelt here. There is a ſmall Iſland in Portugal of this Name with a Caſtle.

BARLOW (William) Biſhop of Chicheſter. He was firſt Biſhop of St. Aſaph in the Reign of Henry VIII. When Queen Mary came to the Crown, he was obliged to retire into Germany; After her death, he returned into England, and was made Biſhop of Chicheſter, where he died in the year 1569. He wrote a Book of Coſmography, and ſome other Tracts. Bale de Script. Brit. Godwin, &c.

BARMACH, a famous Mountain upon the Coaſts of the Caſpian Sea in Schirvan or Servan, a Province of Perſia. It is very high, and has a great ſtraight Rock upon the top of it, which occaſion'd its being call'd Barmach, that ſignifies a Finger, becauſe it looks like a Finger rais'd above all the Neighbouring Mountains. It is very cold upon the top, though in the Plain at the Foot of it the Air be very mild. Here are yet to be ſeen the Ruines of Forts, which the Perſians ſay were built by Alexander the Great, and demoliſhed by Tamberlain. They are perhaps the Portæ Caſpiæ mention'd in ancient Writers.

BARNABAS, (Joſeph) a Diſciple of the Apoſtles, born in Cyprus, and living in Jeruſalem: He quitted all his Temporal Intereſt for Chriſtianity; ſold a conſiderable Eſtate, and laid at the Apoſtles Feet. 'Tis ſaid, he planted Chriſtianity at Milan, and preach'd in Liguria, or the Territories of Genoua. The Roman Martyrology likewiſe informs us, that St. Barnabas died for the Faith in the Iſle of Cyprus, under Nero. The time of his Martyrdom is generally fix'd on the 11th of June in the year 61. His Corps was afterwards found in the Reign of the Emperor Zeno, Anno 485. with the Goſpel of St. Matthew upon his Breaſt. Origen, Clemens Alexandrinus, and St. Jerome, mention an Epiſtle of St. Barnabas's, tho it was not placed among thoſe of the other Apoſtles. 'Tis not to be doubted but that the Epiſtle which we have is the ſame; See Menardus upon this Epiſtle, and the New Amſterdam Edition at the Head of the Patres Apoſtolici. Tertullian and ſome others believ'd St. Barnabas to be the Author of the Epiſtle to the Hebrews, Acts, c. 4. 9. &c. Tertul. de Pudic. Clem. Alex. Lib. 2 & 5. Strom. Hieron. in Cat. c. 6. &c.

BARNABITES, call'd Canons Regular of St. Paul; they were approved by Pope Clement VII. and Paul III. There have been many Learned Men of this Order, and they have ſeveral Monaſteries in France, Italy, and Savoy; They call themſelves Canons of St. Paul, becauſe their firſt Founders had their Denomination from reading St. Paul's Epiſtles; and they are call'd Barnabites for their particular Devotion for St. Barnabas. Spond. Le Mire.

BARNAGASSA, a Kingdom of Upper-Æthiopia in Africa, between the River Nilus and the Red-Sea, along the Coaſt of Abex; Barva is its Capital: It is a large Country, but ill inhabited. The Turks of Suaquen upon the Red-Sea us'd to make Incurſions into it, until the King of Barnagaſſa agreed to pay them 1000 Ounces of Gold as a yearly Tribute.

BARNAVELD, an Iſland of the Magellanick Streights near Terre del Fogo, and the Channel of Maire. It belongs to the Hollanders, who diſcovered it in 1616.

BARNESLEY, a Market Town in the Weſt of Yorkſhire, well built, ſtands 126 miles from London, and is noted for its Manufacture of Ware.

BARNET, High-Barnet, a Market Town of Caiſho Hundred, in the South of Hartfordſhire, ſeated upon a Hill in the Northern Road, 10 miles from London, of ſome Account for its Medicinal Waters, which by their taſte are thought to run through Allom Minerals, and memorable for a Battel fought here on Eaſter-Day 1471. between the Two Houſes of York and Lancaſter, wherein the former prevail'd.

BARNEVELDT, or John of Olden Barnefelt, a Hollander, famous in the beginning of the Seventeenth Century for the good Service he did the United-Provinces; he contributed much to the Eſtabliſhing of that Commonwealth; His great Zeal for the Liberty of his Country occaſion'd his having ſome Diſputes with the Prince of Orange; he was much eſteem'd by Henry IV. of France, and Queen Elizabeth; The diſingageing the Brill, Fluſhing, and Ramekins, from the Engliſh, was effected by his Conduct. In 1609 he ſtrongly adviſed the Truce which was concluded for 12 years between the Arch-Duke and the United-Provinces, and afterwards prevail'd with the States, not to concern themſelves with the War in Bohemia. Maurice Prince of Orange, who upon the Score of private Intereſt, was deſirous to keep on the War, was much diſguſted with Barneveldt. In the Diſpute between Armenius and Gomar, the Two Heads of the Remonſtrant and Contra-remonſtrant Parties, Barneveldt declared for the Firſt, who deſired no more than bare Toleration, and the Prince of Orange eſpous'd the Contra-remonſtrants ſide, who would not allow any manner of Liberty to the other. The Prince being the ſtronger, got the Synod of Dort conven'd in 1618. where the Arminians were condemn'd. After this Barneveldt was apprehended and beheaded, being 72 years of Age. He was accus'd of being in a Practice to deliver up the Country to the Spaniards: This Charge he poſitively denied to the laſt; neither was there the leaſt proof of it in his Papers. Leutichius, Thuldenus Hiſt. Noſt. Temp. lib. 1. Parrival. Hiſt. de ce Siecle, lib. 2. &c. Du Maurier Memoirs, &c. He was Ambaſſador for the Republick, and was in ſeveral other great Employments, but at laſt beheaded for endeavouring to deliver up the Country to the Spaniards. One of his Sons endeavour'd to ſtab Prince Maurice, for which he was condemned. Leutichius. Thulden.

BARNIMUS the Firſt, ſirnamed the Good, Son to Bogiſlaus II. Duke of the higher Pomerania; he ſucceeded his Brother Bogiſlaus III. He built 2 Cities, and founded ſome Monaſteries; he had 3 Sons, whereof the 2 youngeſt were Otho, from whom deſcended the Branch of Stetin, and Bogiſlaus IV. who was the firſt of that of Wolgaſt. The Eldeſt, who ſucceeded the Father under the Name of Barnimus II. was kill'd by Morcavitz, who ſurpriſed him a-bed with his Wife. Barnimus III. called the Great, Son to his Brother Otho, ſucceeded him, who made War againſt Lewis Elector of Brandenburg, and worſted him in ſeveral Rencounters, but made Peace with him at laſt, and conſented that Pomerania ſhould fall to the Houſe of Brandenburg, Heirs of his own Family failing. Spener.

BARNSTAPLE, a fine Market Town in Devonſhire, 154 miles from London, upon the River Taw, over which it has a fine Bridge; it ſends Two Burgeſſes to Parliament.

BARO, a Learned Woman, who in old times had applied her ſelf much to Philoſophy; and Suidas thinks, this is the Reaſon that ſuch as Argued ill were formerly call'd Baros.

BAROCHE, a Town in the Province of Guzerate in the Kingdom of Cambaya, belonging to the Great Mogol. It is in great eſteem for its River, which has a particular Property to make Linen very white, and for that Reaſon People come to it from all parts of the Great Mogol's Territories. The Engliſh have here a very ſtately Building, where their Preſident lives. There are great Flocks of Peacocks about this Town, but are ſo wary that there is no coming nigh them in the day time. The way they take them is thus: At night, they carry a kind of Banner with Peacocks drawn upon it to the Life, and on the top of the Poles that ſupport this Banner are two lighted Candles; this they reach up towards the Peacocks, who ſtretch out their Necks to admire the Light, and ſo are taken with Snares and Wires that are tied to the long Poles, and ſlipt upon their Necks. Tavernier.

BARON, an ancient Honourable Title amongſt the Nobility, eſpecially of France and Germany. It was taken differently at ſeveral times and places. Now we underſtand by it, a degree of Nobility that comes after Dukes, Marquiſſes, Earls, and Viſcounts; though there are ſome Barons in France and Germany that would not exchange their ancient Title of Baron for the new Title of an Earl, nor in publick Aſſemblies give place to either Count or Marquiſs. Barons are much Honoured in England, and have their Places in the Houſe of Lords, and this partly for their Birth, and partly for the Services they did the former Kings, who gave them Patents for this high Degree of Honour. The Scots Barons were anciently the only Title of Honour in that Kingdom, and had Power of Life and Death in their own Lands, but now Knights take place of them; yet there are of thoſe ancient Barons who ſlight the Honour of Knighthood. The Name is now much laid aſide, but retain'd ſtill by the Knights of Shires, who are choſen for Parliament. The Word in the Saxon Language ſignifies Man. There are 3 ſorts of Barons in England, ſome Feudal, deſcended from thoſe Barons to whom William the Conqueror divided the Country to be held of him; Others call'd by the Kings Letters to ſit in Parliament, which Cuſtom began in the time of Henry III. The Third ſort are Barons by Patents, who began in the time of Richard II. Spelman.

BARON, (Eginard) Native of Leon in Britany, was a famous Lawyer that lived in the Sixteenth Age.

BARONIUS or Baronio (Cæſar) Cardinal, he was of Sora, an Epiſcopal Town in the Terra di Lavoro in the Kingdom of Naples, and born in 1538. About the Twentieth year of his Age, he was employed by Philip of Nerio, Founder of the Fathers of the Oratory, to Catechize Children: Sometime after, to be more ſerviceable to the Publick, and eſpecially to the Clergy, he applied himſelf with great diligence for 20 years conſecutively in holding Conferences of the Eccleſiaſtick Hiſtory in the Church of the Oratory at Rome, and undertook to refute the Books of the Centuriators of Magdebourg in his Annals of the Church, which are in 12 Volumes, and reach to the 13th Age. Pope Clement VIII. made him Cardinal in 1596. and he had been made Pope in the Promotion of Leo XI. and Paul V. if the Spaniſh Faction had not hindred his Election, becauſe in his Annals he alledged, that the Crown of Spain founded its Right to Sicily on falſe Evidence. The plain dealing and ſincerity of this great Man diſpleaſed the Spaniards. And it is well known why they burnt the 6th Volume of his Annals; for a certain Perſon of that Nation made heavy Complaints, that the French were always ſpoken of, and little or no mention made of the Spaniards. To which Baronius reply'd, That his Work being but a Collection of what the Ancients had writ, it was not poſſible for him to Enlarge upon a Nation that was barren of Learned and great Men.

There are Three Things which hinder'd Baronius's Annals from being perfect; Firſt, His great want of Greek, which made him but a ſort of a Stranger to a great part of Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory, being in no Condition to Converſe with the Greek Fathers, but by the help of Tranſlations, which being often-times faulty, 'tis no wonder if they miſlead him. Secondly, Baronius was no abſolute Maſter in Chronology, nor indeed could be, conſidering the time he liv'd in, for then the Faſti Conſulares were not exactly corrected, nor the Olympiads, and other famous Epocha's certainly adjuſted: The Reigns of Emperors, the Succeſſions of Popes and Biſhops, not well ſettled: This gave occaſion to ſo many Chronological ſailures in Baronius, for which ſee the Learned Pagius in Critico-Hiſtorica Chronologia in Baronii Annales. The Third and greateſt Miſfortune of Baronius, was his being prepoſſeſs'd in favour of the Church of Rome. This Biaſs of Inclination frequently puts him upon the Uſe of ſuſpected and ſpurious Authorities for the Advantage of that See. Cave. Hiſt. Liter. Pars altera in Præfat. Spondanus abridged and continued Baronius's Annals, which were alſo continued by Bzovius, a Polander of the Order of St. Dominick, and by Olderick Rainald Father of the Oratory, and others. Beſides this Laborious and tedious Work, Baronius writ Notes upon the Roman Martyrology, and Compoſed the Life of St. Ambroſe. He was Library-Keeper of the Church, and died in 1607. being then 69 years of Age. He was very thoughtful, of few words, and ſeem'd moroſe, which proceeded from his continual application to his Work, which weakned his Stomach to that degree that he reliſhed no Meat, and thought it a great puniſhment to be forced to ſit at Table. Cauſabon and other Proteſtant Writers made Remarks upon his Works, which though they are ſomewhat faulty in the Chronology and Hiſtory, as being overaw'd in many things, yet if the greatneſs of the Deſign be conſidered without prejudice, it may be juſtly wondered how it ſucceeded ſo well as it did. Father Anthony Pagi has attempted a Critick upon Baronius, one Volume of which in Folio was wrought off in 1697. This Volume takes in the firſt Four Centuries. Spond. Bellarmin. Rainaldi.

BARRA, one of the Scotch Weſtern Iſlands, about 7 miles in length, very fruitful in Corn, and noted for a great Fiſhing of Cod and Whitings. It hath a Bay which is narrow at mouth, but hath an Iſland within it, and in that Iſland a ſtrong Caſtle. In the North part of the Iſland there is a Graſſy-hill, at the top of which is a freſh Water Spring, which flowing down with a Rivulet into the Sea, carries a ſhapeleſs Creature with it, repreſenting a Cockle; and in the Sands, where this Stream ſpreads at the ebbing of the Tide, the Inhabitants dig up great Shell-fiſh, of which they believe this Fountain to be the Seminary, and that they grow in quantity and ſhape by the Sea Water. Buchan.

BARRA, a ſmall Kingdom of Guinea in Africa, whoſe King was, by the inſtigation of the Dutch, prevailed with to attack the Engliſh Factory there in 1663.

BARRAUT, a Marquiſate of Guienne in France, and alſo a Fort upon the Frontiers of Dauphine in Savoy, one League from Montmelian. It was taken by the Duke of Leſdiguieres in 1528. on the 13th of March at night, in leſs than two hours, though the Garriſon had notice of his Deſign, and were ready to receive him with lighted Matches. Mezeray.

BARRIERE, call'd la Barre, (Peter) born in Orleans, was firſt a Boatman, and afterwards a Soldier. He was of a Melancholick Temper, and deſigned to kill Henry IV. in 1593. but was diſcovered by R. Seraphin, a Dominican of Florence, to whom he had communicated his pernicious Deſign, and could by no means be diſſwaded from it. He ſuffered for this Wickedneſs the 26th of Auguſt at Melun, without ſhewing the leaſt apprehenſion of the Judgment of God, and confeſſed, That he was put upon this Murther by a Capuchin of Lyons, Aubri Curate of St. Andrew of Paris, and the Jeſuite Varade. Mezeray, Thuan.

BARROS, or de Barros, (John) a Portugueſe, known well enough by his Hiſtory of Aſia. He was born in 1496. and brought up in King Emanuel's Court. He nam'd his Work Decadas de Aſia. He writ but 4 Decades, but others continued the Work after his Death, which happened in 1570. and they made up 12 in all.

BARROW (Iſaac) Son of Mr. Thomas Barrow, Citizen, and Grandſon of Iſaac Barrow Eſq; in Spiny-Abby in Cambridgſhire. He was born in London, Octob. 1630. His Mother was Ann, Daughter to William Buggen of North-Cray in Kent, Eſq; He was admitted in Trinity-College in Cambridge. His Circumſtances at firſt were very ſtrait, his Father having ſuffered much upon the account of his Loyalty, inſomuch that he was chiefly ſupported by the Generoſity of Dr. Hammond, to whoſe Memory he payed his Thanks in an Excellent Epitaph, inſerted in his Poems. When he was a Young Man, he was ſo much a Royaliſt, that he would not take the Covenant: He Travell'd a good part of the time of the Rebellion under Cromwell and the Rump. At firſt he Studied Phyſick, and made a great Progreſs in Anatomy, Botanicks, and Chymiſtry; but afterwards went into Holy Orders. He was choſen Greek Profeſſor in Cambridge 1660; 1662 he was choſen to the Geometry Lecture at Greſham-College, and the next year was made Mathematick Profeſſor at Cambridge. And in 1672. the King made him Maſter of Trinity-College in that Univerſity, and was pleas'd to ſay, when he beſtow'd it upon him, that he gave it to the beſt Scholar in England. He was a good Poet, and much valued that part of Poetry which conſiſts in Deſcription; as for our Plays, he was an Enemy to them, as being a Principal Cauſe of the Debauchery of the Times; To finiſh him in a Word, He was a Perſon of great and univerſal Learning, of an Exemplary Life and Obliging Behaviour. He died in May 1677. and lies buried in Weſtminſter-Abby with a Monument. His Works make Three Volumes. The Firſt contains, Thirty Two Sermons on ſeveral Occaſions; A Brief Expoſition of the Lord's Prayer; Of the Decalogue, &c. A Treatiſe of the Pope's Supremacy; A Diſcourſe of the Unity of the Church. The Second contains, An Expoſition of the Apoſtles Creed; Euclidis Elementa; Euclidis Data; Lectiones Opticæ 18. Lectiones Geometricæ; Archimedis Opera; Apollonii Conicorum Lib. 4. Theodoſii Sphærica Lectio de Sphæra & Cylindro. A Third Volume not yet Printed, containing, Sermons, &c. Lectiones Mathematicæ, Opuſcula Theologica, Poematia, Orationes.

BARRY, an Iſland in Glamorganſhire, ſo call'd from Baruch, a Holy Man buried there. It gave Sirname to the Noble Family of the Viſcounts Barries in Ireland. In a Rock or Cliff hereof by the Sea-ſide, ſaith Giraldus, there appeareth a very little Chink, unto which if you lay your Ear, you ſhall hear as it were the noiſe of Smiths at work, one while the blowing of Bellows, another while the ſtriking of Sledge and Hammer, ſometime the ſound of the Grindſtone, and Iron Tools rubbing againſt it, as alſo the hiſſing Sparks of Goads from the Furnace. Cambd. Brit. 643.

BARSANIANS, or Semidulites, Hereticks that began to appear in the Sixth Age. They maintained the Errors of the Gradanaits, and made their Sacrifices conſiſt in taking Wheat Flower on the top of their Finger, and carrying it to their Mouth. Baron. An.

BARSINE, Daughter of Artabazas, a Perſian Captain: She was taken at Damaſcus by Parmenio, Alexander's General, and was preſented to the King, who fell in Love with her, and Married her. She bore him a Son named Hercules, who lived to be Seventeen years of Age, and being then upon the point of ſucceeding his Father, both he and his Mother were murthered by Caſſander. Diodor. Sicul.

BARTAS, a Spot of Ground in Armagnac near Auch, whence William of Saluſte took the Name of Du Bartas.

BARTAS, (William du) was Born in 1545. deſcended of a Noble Family of Gaſcoign; his Father was Treaſurer of France. He publiſhed ſeveral Works in Verſe, and a Poem of the Creation of the World, intituled, The Firſt Week. The King of Navarre, afterwards Henry the Fourth, ſent him to Denmark, and employ'd him in his Affairs in England and Scotland, where King James would fain have retain'd him, but he lov'd his own Maſter too well to leave him for any other. He was as great a Soldier as a good Pen-man, and made a Deſcription in Verſe of the Battel of Ivry, won by King Henry the Fourth in 1590. and died the year after that, being the 46th of his Age.

BARTHE (Paul) Lord of Thermes, Mareſchal of France, and Knight of the King's Order, &c. He went through moſt of the Military Offices, was firſt a Captain, afterwards he was made a Colonel, and at laſt General of the King's Army in France, Piemont, Scotland, Italy, and Flanders, where he did ſeveral great Exploits. He lived in the Reigns of Francis the Firſt, Henry the Second, and of Francis the Second. He died at Paris, May the 6th, in 1562.

BARTHIUS, (Gaſpart) a German, who in the year 1634. publiſh'd his Adverſariorum in Francfort; 'Tis a Critical Treatiſe, and has a good many good Things in't. He wrote Notes upon Statius and Claudian. His Soliloques were publiſh'd in 1664. In ſhort, he was a very Learned Perſon, both in Secular and Eccleſiaſtical Studies. Bayle Dict. Hiſtor.

BARTHOLINUS (Jaſpar) a Phyſician of great Reputation in 1625 and 30. He was of Malmoe or Ellebogen, a Town of Schonen, that then belonged to Denmark, but now to Swedeland. He writ ſeveral curious Works of Phyſick, as Problematum Philoſophicorum & Medicorum Nobiliorum & rariorum miſcellaneæ propoſitiones. Anatomicæ inſtitutiones. Controverſiæ Anatomicæ. Syntagma Medicum & Chirurgicum, &c. Vander Linden.

BARTHOLINUS (Thomas) Son of Jaſpar Bartholin. He was a very able Phyſician, and made ſome Diſcoveries of the Lacteal and Lymphatick Veſſels. His Books, De Lacteis Thoracicis in homine brutiſque nuperrime obſervatis. Vaſa lactea dubia Anatomica, were publiſhed in 1652 and 53. Vander Linden.

S. BARTHOLOMEUS, Apoſtle; He was called by our Saviour in the year 30. He Preached after the Reſurrection rection of Jeſus Chriſt in Armenia Major, in Albania, and in the Eaſt-Indies, on this ſide the River Ganges, or rather in Æthiopia, where he was in the year 71 Flea'd alive, by Order of a Prince whoſe Brother he had Converted. Pantænus, a Chriſtian Philoſopher, that made a Voyage into thoſe Parts about 183. found that his Memory flouriſhed much there, and brought thence the Goſpel of St. Matthew, which St. Bartholomæus had left. Some of the Holy Fathers took him to be Nathanael, and the ancient Hereticks aſcribed a Goſpel to him. Cave, in his Life of the Apoſtles, ſuppoſes him to be Nathanael, and obſerves, that as St. John never mentions Bartholomew in the number of the Apoſtles, ſo the other Evangeliſts never take notice of Nathanael; becauſe, as he thinks, they were one and the ſame; and as in S. John, Philip and he are mentioned together, as coming to Chriſt; ſo in the reſt of the Evangeliſts, Philip and Bartholomew are conſtantly put together, becauſe called to the Diſcipleſhip at the ſame time; and adds, as a clearer proof, that Nathanael is mention'd among the other Apoſtles to whom our Saviour appear'd after his Reſurrection, John 21.12. He thinks Bartholomew was not his proper Name, and that it only imported his Relative Capacity, as Son or Scholar of Tholmæus Bar, ſignifying Son in the Hebrew; there being one Tholmæus, from whence the Sect of the Tholmæans, Doctors of the Law, took their Denomination. After his Labours in India, he is ſaid to have return'd to the more Weſtern and Northern Parts of Aſia. At Hierapolis in Phrygia he was at the ſame time with Philip deſign'd for Martyrdom, and for that end faſtned to the Croſs, but on a ſudden Conviction upon the Governor, that God would Revenge their Death, he was taken down and diſmiſs'd: After this he Preach'd in Lycaonia, and at Albanople in Armenia Major, where the Governor Commanded him to be Crucified with his Head-downward. Daras a City in Perſia, Liparis one of the Æolian Iſlands, and Beneventum in Italy, do all of 'em pretend to have had his Body ſucceſſively. Cave's Lives of the Apoſtles.

BARTHOLOMÆUS, Super-Intendant of the Waldenſes ſcatter'd in Bohemia, Croatia, Dalmatia, and Germany, in 1223. whom Matthew Paris calls Antipope, and alledges, that he us'd this Subſcription, Bartholomæus Servus Servorum Sanctæ Fidei Salutem. Crantz.

BARTHOLOMÆUS of Breſcia, called ſo becauſe he was of the Town of Breſcia in Italy: He lived in the XIII. Age, having the Repute of being the Learnedſt Man of that time. He Sacrificed his Life in 1258. to free his Country from the Oppreſſion of the Tyrant Acciolini. He made ſome Law Books, as Repertorium Decret. Diſputationes Decretalium, and compoſed the Chronology of the Towns of Italy.

BARTHOLOMÆUS Albici, was alſo of Piſa, but a Franciſcan Fryar: It was he that wrote a Book in Folio of the Reſemblances or Conformities of St. Francis with Jeſus Chriſt; his Blaſphemous Zeal making him raiſe that Patriarch of Monks above all the reſt, and endeavouring to prove that he did as great Miracles as Jeſus Chriſt. This Author died about the year 1380.

BARTHOLOMEW (Charles) Lord of Bienville near Compeigne, liv'd in the Seventeenth Century. He was a very Learned Man, and particularly valued by Cardinal Richlieu and Chancellor Seguiar. The Cardinal ſpoke Honourably of his Book, call'd, Les Veritez Francoiſes, and gives him the Title of an Hiſtoriographer.

BARTHOLUS, born at Sarſſo Ferrato, a Town in Umbria in Italy, call'd Sentinum by the Ancients. He liv'd in the 14th Century, and was one of the moſt Learned Lawyers in his time. The moſt Conſiderable of his Works are theſe which follow, Super Codic. Lib. II. Super F. Veteri, Lib. XXIV. Super F. Novo, Lib. XII. Super F. Infortiati, Lib. XIV. Super Inſtitutis Conciliorum. De Guelphis & Gibelinis, &c.

BARTON, a Market Town in the North of Lincolnſhire: It belongs to Yarborough Wapentake in Lindſey Diviſion, and is ſituated on the South-ſide of the River Humber, almoſt againſt Hull in Yorkſhire.

BARTON (Elizabeth) vulgarly call'd, The Holy Maid of Kent, noted in the Annals of England for her Religious Impoſture in the time of King Henry VIII. She had been a long time troubled with Convulſions, that not only Diſtorted her Mouth, but other Parts of her Body, in ſuch a manner, that moſt were of Opinion it could not proceed from any Natural Cauſe: The continuance of this Diſtemper diſpos'd her Body ſo, that ſhe could, when recover'd and well, Counterfeit the Diſtortions; which ſhe imparted to her Curate, who adviſ'd her to practice it often; and whereas ſhe us'd, when the Fit ſeiz'd her, to lie ſtill without motion, ſhe ſhould now ſometimes in her pretended Extaſie, utter Godly Sentences, inveigh againſt the Wickedneſs of the Times, but eſpecially againſt Hereticks, and Broachers of new Opinions, and ſhould relate ſtrange Viſions revealed by God to her. By theſe Jugglings, her Sanctity was held in Admiration, not only among the Vulgar, but among the Wiſer ſort, ſuch as Archbiſhop Warham, Biſhop Fiſher, and others. The better the Impoſture took, the more her Boldneſs increas'd; She prefix'd a Day whereon ſhe ſhould be reſtor'd to perfect Health, and the Means of her Recovery, by a Pilgrimage to a certain Image of our Lady. The Day being come, a great number of the People were deceiv'd by this pretended Miracle, when ſhe appear'd ſtreight and perfectly well: Then ſhe pretended a ſpecial Command from God to become Nun, and that one Dr. Bockings, a Monk of Canterbury, there preſent, was Ordain'd to be her Confeſſor, which he undertook willingly; and under that pretext reſorted to her very often at Canterbury, not without ſome Suſpicion; And the King's Divorce being then ſet on Foot, perſuaded her to deter him from it, by Denunciation of God's Reveal'd Judgment. The King hearing of it, cauſed the Impoſtrix to be apprehended; who upon Examination diſcover'd the Cheat, and her Accomplices; whereupon they were adjudg'd by the Parliament to Die, and accordingly they were Hang'd, having firſt publickly confeſs'd the Impoſture, and their Heads ſet over the Gates of the City; Others as Acceſſary, for not Revealing what they knew of the Matter, amongſt which was Fiſher Biſhop of Rocheſter, were Condemned in Præmunire, viz. Confiſcation of Goods and perpetual Impriſonment.

BARULES, certain Hereticks who held, that the Son of God had only a Phantome of a Body; that Souls were Created before the World, and that they lived all at one time. Sanderus.

BARWICK, Lat. Bervicium, Borcovicum, a Market, Sea Port, and Borough Town of Northumberland, upon the Borders of Scotland on the North-ſide. 'Tis ſeated at the very Mouth of the Tweed; from whence it's called Barwick upon Tweed, over which is a fair Stone Bridge, ſupported by many Arches. This is one of the ſtrongeſt Holds in England, formerly belonging to the Scots, but deliver'd up by William their King, to Henry II. as a Pledge for his Ranſom, being then Priſoner in England, upon Payment of the Money King John reſtor'd it to the Scots: But Edward I. retook it Anno 1297. After this it was won and loſt divers times, till in the Reign of Edward II. Sir Thomas Stanley took it the laſt time from the Scots. Moſt of its ſtrong Works are owing to the Engliſh, the Caſtle being built by Henry II. the Walls by other Princes: But the main Strength thereof, beſides that of its Situation, is owing to the Famous Queen Elizabeth, who added a new Wall to the old, and other Outworks according to the times ſhe lived in. The Town is large and populous, and the Houſes well built. It's like Newcaſtle, a County of it ſelf. 'Tis now made a Dukedom, King James II. beſtowing the Title of Duke hereof upon James Fitz-James his Natural Son, An. 1686. This Town ſends Two Burgeſſes to the Engliſh Parliament. Lon. 21. 43. Lat. 55. 48.

BASCI (Matthew de) Founder of the Order of Capuchins. He was Born in the Dutchy of Spoletto; and Fryar of the Monks called Obſervantines, in the Convent of Montefalioni. He affirm'd that God admoniſhed him in a Viſion to exerciſe a ſtricter Poverty, and that he ſhew'd him the true Habit of St. Francis. He withdrew in 1525. into a Solitude, where he was ſoon followed by a great many. Pope Clement XIV. approved this Congregation in 1528; and Baſci died in 1552.

BASIL on the Rhine, a Town of Swiſſerland, Capital of a Canton; has an Univerſity and a Biſhoprick depending on Beſançon. Latin Authors call it, Baſilea Rauracorum, but it is not the ſame with Auguſta Rauracorum, which is Augſt, a Village near Baſil; Authors differ much about the Derivation of its Name: It is a rich, fair, great, and well ſituated Town, divided into two parts by the Rhine; the greateſt of the two is on the French ſide, built on the Declenſion of a Hill in form of an Amphitheatre; The other part ſtretcheth into a fertile Plain, and both are joyn'd together by a good Bridge. The Rhine receives here the Two little Rivers of Birs and Wits, whoſe Water ſerves to cleanſe the Town, and to make ſeveral Mills go: It is much increaſed ſince the Ruine of Augſt; it was fam'd in Ammianus Marcellinus's time, becauſe this Author, who lived in the Fourth Century, ſpeaks advantageouſly of it. The Emperor Gratian built Two Forts in it to hinder the German Incurſions, and it grew bigger and bigger every day until the Twelfth Age, wherein it became a Free and Imperial Town. In the latter end of the Thirteenth Age, its Inhabitants were divided into Two Parties, by Reaſon of a War that then begun between Henry of Newcaſtell Biſhop of Baſil, and Rodolph Count of Hapsbourg, which is a Caſtle that lies between this Town and Zurick; but the News coming, that this laſt was choſen Emperor, thoſe that were of the Biſhops ſide Petitioned for Peace, which Rodolph generouſly agreed to. Afterwards Baſil join'd it ſelf to the other Cantons, and made up the Ninth. In the laſt Age they embraced Calvin's Doctrine, and drove their Biſhop away; ſo that now that Republick is the Powerfulleſt, and their Town the biggeſt and faireſt in all Swiſſerland, and of great Commerce too, lying between France and Germany. It has theſe Privileges by the Peace of Munſter in 1648. That it ſhall be Subject to no Decrees of the Empire, but ſhall enjoy a perfect Liberty; and that no Fort ſhall be built on the Rhine between it and Philipsbourg; nevertheleſs Lewis the XIV. built the Fort of Huninguen, within Cannon Shot of the Town. Since the Proteſtants made themſelves Maſters of Baſil, which happened under Philip Gandolphein, the Biſhops thereof reſide at Porentru, and are Princes of the Empire; And the Chapter is at Fribourg in Briſgaw. Oecolampadius in 1522. promoted the Reformation; And in 1529. the Images, and other Ornaments of Churches, being loaded on Twelve Wagons to be diſtributed among the poorer Sort for private Uſes, to prevent Quarrels, that were like to enſue by the Dividend, they were publickly burnt, and the Reformation was accompliſhed without any greater Tumult, chiefly by the prudent Management of their Conſul James Meyer. Since that time, this City has been a Place of Retreat to Perſons of the greateſt Quality from France during their Perſecutions. From this City Sebaſtian Bak and Volfgangus Meyer, were ſent to the Synod of Dort, in 1618. The Town-Houſe is a very ſumptuous Building, the Streets are large and fair, and there are very curious Paintings in the ancient Cloiſter of the Dominicans. Their Univerſity was founded in 1459. and had ſeveral famous Profeſſors in it, as Eraſmus, Amerbach, Buxtorf, Bauhin, and many others. Their publick Library, beſides Printed Books of all Kinds, has many curious Manuſcripts. The General Council held at Conſtance, that ended in 1418. decreed, That there ſhould be ſuch Eccleſiaſtical Aſſemblies called very often; and Pavia was agreed upon to meet in Anno 1423. but the Peſtilence that happened there, made it be changed for Siena, where the Council began on the 8th of November of that ſame year, and ended in February the year after. Pope Martin the Fifth preſided in it, and ordered that another ſhould be held in Baſil ſeven years after, and accordingly he himſelf ſent Cardinal Julian Cæſarini to preſide there in 1431; but this Pope dying ſoon after, Eugenius the IV. ſucceeded him, and began the Council on the Month of July of the ſame year. The firſt Seſſion was celebrated on the 14th of December, and this Council held about Eighteen years, either at Baſle, or at Lauzanne; but notwithſtanding all the Precautions that were taken, there never could be a perfect Intelligence between that Pope and theſe Fathers, for they maintained that the Council was above the Pope; whereupon they differed to that degree, that Eugenius declared the Meeting Diſſolved, and called another at Ferrara in 1437. which he afterwards removed to Florence in 1439. and thence in 1442 to Rome. All which time the Fathers of Baſil continued their Seſſions, which amounted to XLV. And though they were but few in Number, and at difference amongſt themſelves, they depoſed Eugenius, and choſe Amedæus VIII. Duke of Savoy, on the 5th of November 1439. who was then in the Wilderneſs of Ripaille; and at the ſame time they Decreed, That not only ſuch as had been Married, but alſo thoſe that actually were, might be choſen Popes. This Pope took the Name of Fælix the Fifth, but yielded to Nicholas the 5th on the 19th of June in 1449. At the beginning of the Council in 1431, the Huſſites of Bohemia were invited to Baſle, and were admitted into the Aſſembly on the 19th of January of the year 1433. and debated for ſome days upon Four Articles. This Aſſembly was approved by the Pope upon the Requeſt of the Emperor Sigiſmond, who came in Perſon and protected it, when the Difference happened between the Pope and the Fathers thereof. The XLV. and laſt Seſſion, was held the 16th of May 1443. yet the Council was not diſſolved until the end of Fælix the Fifth's Schiſm. It was this Council that ordained the Pragmatick Sanction, or Decree, which was received by an Aſſembly of the Clergy of France held at Bourges in 1438. in Preſence of King Charles the Seventh. The Art of making Paper was firſt found here in 1417. by Anthony and Michael Galicion, which gave great incouragement to Printers. Bernard Richel began to Print here in 1478. It's ſuppoſed to have taken its Name from Baſiliane, Mother to Julian the Apoſtate. Dr. Burnet, who ſaw this Place, ſaith, it is a Town of the greateſt extent of any in Switzerland, but it is not inhabited in proportion to its Extent. It ſtands upon a riſing Ground on the Rhine from the Bridge, over which it looks like a Theatre. Little Baſil, on the oppoſite Side of the River, makes about a fourth part of the whole Town. It is ſurrounded with a Wall and a Ditch, but it is expoſed on ſo many ſides, and hath ſo dreadful a Neighbour of the Fort of Huninguen, built by the preſent King of France within a quarter of a League of it, that it has nothing to truſt to but its Union with the other Cantons. Their Fondneſs for their Privileges, and refuſing to ſhare them with Strangers, are the Reaſons why this City and Canton are no better Peopled. In this Place lies buried the great Advancer of Learning, Eraſmus, who dy'd here, ſaith Hoffman, July 11. 1536. in the Seventieth year of his Age. And in this City, Holben, the great Painter, (about the Time of Henry the Eighth) was born. The Library here is the beſt in all Switzerland, and has a fine Collection of Medals, and Manuſcripts of Latin Fathers and Latin Tranſlations of the Greeks, in a Noble Room, and well methodized; moſt of the old Books were preſerved here at the Reformation, and they believe the Council brought many hither which were never carried away. They reckon there is in this City 30000 Men able to bear Arms, and that they can raiſe in the Canton four more. It ſtands Nine Leagues from Zurick, and Twenty four from Nancy. Hoffman adds, That this City being Excommunicated by the Pope for adhering to the Emperor Lewis of Bavaria, the Legat growing inſolent thereupon, the Inhabitants drowned him in the Rhine, which obliged them to enter into a League with Zurick, Bern, &c. for mutual Defence. In the time of the Council of Baſil, which Lewis XI. came with a great Army to diſſolve, he defeated 6000 Swiſſers near this City. In 1444. they joined with the reſt of the Swiſſers againſt the Houſe of Auſtria. The Nobility of the City was ſo enraged at the City's being Neuter, after the Victory obtain'd by the Swiſſers over the Emperor Maximilian, that they withdrew into Franche Comte, Alſace, &c. which adminiſtred Cauſe of continual Quarrel; but the City happily overcame. The ancient Government was by the Nobility, whoſe frequent Diſcords amongſt themſelves occaſioned great Commotions, many of them were baniſhed for ſiding with Catharine of Burgundy, and their publick Enemies in the time of the Council, and many left the City upon the General League of the Cantons, and ſuch as remained at the time of the Reformation withdrew into the Neighbouring Caſtles, from which time the Senate has been choſen by the People. This City has been often viſited with Peſtilence, Fire, and Inundations. An. 1400. Joannes Maulbergius, a Dominican, who inveighed ſharply againſt the Errors and Vices of the Age, foretold the Reformation. Baſil is 54 Miles South of Strasburg, 120 North Eaſt of Genoua, and 256 Eaſt of Paris.

BASILICA, or Baſilicate, a Province in the Kingdom of Naples, which comprehends the greateſt part of the ancient Lucania, Calabria, the Land of Bari, and the Gulph of Tarentum. Cirenza is its Capital; the other Towns are Venoſa, Tricario, Potenza, Fercondina, &c. This Province is very barren, and thin of Inhabitants.

BASILICA, this Name was at firſt given to thoſe ſpacious Halls, wherein Kings ſate in Perſon to hear their Subjects Grievances, and to do them Juſtice. It is derived from the Greek Word Βασιλικὸς, which ſignifies Royal. Theſe Halls were afterwards given to Judges, and the Chriſtians turned ſome into Churches, and built moſt of their other Churches upon that Model, which differ only from the Temples of the Ancients in this, that the Columns or Pillars are in the inſide, whereas thoſe of the Temples were without. Cicero and other Latin Authors, called all publick Structures by the Name of Baſilica; ſo that all Courts of Juſtice, Princes Palaces, Colleges, and other Magnificent Buildings, went by that Name.

BASILICÆ, the Laws and Ordinances of the Emperors of Conſtantinople; this Name comes of the Greek Word Βασιλικος, which ſignifies Imperial, in the Sence the Gracian Emperors gave it; for they attributed to themſelves the Name of Βασιλεὺς, Baſileus, giving other Sovereigns that of Ῥὴξ, Rex. Theſe Ordinances writ in Greek, were publiſhed in 888 by the Emperor Leon VI. Sirnamed the Philoſopher, Son to Baſilius, and Brother to Conſtantine; they are divided into Sixty Parts, and are called Ἑξηκοντάβιβλον, that is, The Book of Sixty Parts. It was the Emperor Baſilius that was the firſt Projector of this Method, and it's thought that Baſilica was derived from his Name, Baſilius. Cujacius.

BASILIDES, Biſhop of Aſtorga in Spain; he lived in the Third Age, about 258. and was accuſed of being a Libellaticus, that is, one of thoſe, that during the Perſecution, denied Jeſus Chriſt publickly, and received the Judges Protection. St. Cyprian.

BASILIDES, the Hereſiarch of Alexandria, Diſciple of Simon Magus, lived in the Second Age; he imagined a ridiculous Series of Gods, proceeding one from another, and from them Angels, who created each a Heaven; he made the number of theſe Heavens amount to 366. to anſwer the Number of Days in the Year; and added, that the Angels of the laſt Heaven created the Earth and the Men that inhabit it, and that their Prince was the God of the Jews, who deſigned to make all the other People ſubject to them. But the Father, who they ſay was unborn, and had no Name, ſent his Son to hinder this Injuſtice: This Son appeared in the Shape of a Man, but was none, and the Jews put to Death Simon the Cyrenean inſtead of him. And for this Reaſon they held, that they ought not to believe in Jeſus Chriſt Crucified, but in him that appeared to be Nailed on the Croſs, though he was not really ſo; he permitted all Carnal Luſt, and made uſe of Images of Wax, and of all the Impieties of Magick. He denied the Reſurrection of the Body, and maintained that God would pardon any Sins, but ſuch as were committed through Ignorance. He died in the Reign of the Emperor Adrian, about the year 125. and left a Son and Heir of his Impieties, by Name Iſidorus, who writ a Treatiſe, De adnata Anima. St. Epiph. Baron. Iren. lib. 2. c. 23.

BASILIDES, Biſhop of Aſtorga in Spain. He liv'd in the Third Century, about the year 258. He was accus'd of ſeveral Crimes, and amongſt others, of being one of the Libellatici, who privately denied Chriſt in the Perſecution, and got Certificates from the Judges to keep 'em from being diſturb'd. Baſilides attempted to return to the Government of his Church, without going through the Penance appointed by the Canons, this Buſineſs gave ſome Trouble to the Churches of Spain. St. Cyprian, Ep. 68.

BASILINA, Second Wife to Julius Conſtantius, Brother to Conſtantine the Great, ſhe was of a very Noble Family, and Mother to Julian the Apoſtate, and died not long after the Birth of that Prince. 'Tis plain ſhe was a Chriſtian, by her granting ſome Lands to the Church of Epheſus; but 'tis probable ſhe was concern'd with the Arrians, otherwiſe ſhe would not have been ſo paſſionately diſpleaſed with Eutropius, the Famous Biſhop of Adrianople, of whoſe Exile and Depoſition ſhe was in ſome meaſure the Cauſe. St. Athan. ad Solit. Ammian. Marcellin. lib. 25. &c.

BASILISCUS, who uſurped the Eaſtern Empire in the Fifth Century; he was Brother to the Empreſs Verina, Wife of Leo, called the Old, and made Generaliſſimo of the Army that was ſent againſt the Vandals; but having Intelligence with them, and a great Sum of Money ſent him by Genſericus, he ſuffered the Fleet which he commanded to be burned. He ſometime after dethroned the Emperor Zeno, and ſeated himſelf in his Place, but was abhorred by every body for his Impieties; he had the Confidence to condemn the Council of Chalcedon, and openly declared for the Followers of Eutyches; he recalled the baniſhed Heretick Biſhops, and publiſhed an Edict in their Favour againſt the Deciſion of the above mentioned Council. In the mean time Zeno returns with a powerful Army, gains Armatus General of Baſiliſcus's Army, reconciles himſelf to Verina his Step-Mother, and for her Sake pardoned his Enemy, who fled with his Wife Zenonida and his Children into the great Church. This ſecond Revolution happened in 477. Baſiliſcus was ſent into Cappadocia, where he died of Hunger and Cold. Armatus had alſo a Son named Baſiliſcus, who perſwaded his Father to revolt againſt the Tyrant, and was for that reaſon made Cæſar by Zeno, but was afterwards, upon his Fathers being put to Death for Treachery, reduced to be a Reader in our Lady Church of Blachernis, and ſome time after made Archbiſhop of Cyzicum in the Helleſpont, that he might wear the Purple as if he were Cæſar. This happened about the year 484. 'Tis thought Zeno was carried to theſe Extremities againſt Armatus out of fear, this latter being a General of great Experience, and much belov'd by the Souldiers. Procopius. Evagr. lib. 3. c. 3 & 4, &c.

BASILIUS the Great, Biſhop of Cæſarea in Cappadocia, was Son of Baſilius, that afterwards became Prieſt, and Brother to Peter, Biſhop of Sebaſtia, to Gregory of Nyſſa, and to Macrina, all famous for Holineſs of Life. He was born in 328. his Father took Care to teach him Humanity, after which he ſpent ſome time at Cæſarea and Conſtantinople; and in 344. he went to continue his Studies at Athens, where he became very intimate with St. Gregory Nazianzen. Being returned from Athens, he viſited the Monks of Egypt, Palæſtina and Syria, and then withdrew himſelf into the Deſart of Pontus, where he writ the Rules of a Monaſtick Life. This was in 362 and 370. after the Death of Euſebius, he was choſen Biſhop of Cæſarea in Cappadocia, but much againſt his Will. He was perſecuted by the Arians and other Hereticks, but he oppoſed them all with great Courage; they, and alſo divers of the Oxthodox, accuſed him of many Errors, as that he admitted a Plurality of Eſſences in the Holy Trinity, becauſe he made uſe of the Word Hypoſtaſis, a Term in thoſe days uſed to ſignifie Subſtance, and not Perſon. Beſides this, he was accuſed of befriending Euſtathius of Sebaſtia, an Arian Biſhop; but he ſhewed clearly that theſe were groundleſs Calumnies, and when he found that there was no hopes of rendring that Biſhop any better by fair Means and Forbearance, he writ againſt his Errors, and refuted them. He alſo writ againſt Apollinaris, and laboured with ſo much Zeal to unite the Faithful, that he was looked upon as the Peace-maker of all the Churches of the World. He died on the Firſt of January in 379. but the Latin Church transferred his Feaſt to the Fourteenth, which was the day of his Ordination. He writ many Books, which are all well known. The Religious Order of St. Baſilius is the moſt ancient of all other: It flouriſhed much in the Eaſt, and there are ſcarce any other Religious Orders there, but ſuch as obſerve his Rule.

BASILIUS, Biſhop of Ancyra, Chief of the Semi-Arians, lived in the Fourth Age. St. Jerome thinks that he was an Arabian; he was very laborious, and a good Scholar. The Arians put him in Marcellus of Ancyra's Place, whom the Council of Conſtantinople baniſhed in 336. but he was deprived, and his Ordination declared null in 347. by the Council of Sardica. In 351 he diſputed againſt Photinus with good Succeſs; and afterwards, when the Arians divided themſelves into pure Arians and Semi-Arians, ſet up for Chief of the laſt, jointly with George of Laodicea. They acted vigorouſly in the Council of Ancyra, and Sirmium in 359. againſt the Arians and the Anomæans. Baſilius gain'd much Credit in the Emperor Conſtantius's Court, and had a hand in the Third Confeſſion of Faith that was made at Sirmium, and made his Part good in the Council of Seleucia in 359. The Acacians were his powerfulleſt Enemies, againſt whom he diſputed in the Emperor's Preſence, and upon ſome Occaſion, took the Liberty to tell this Prince, that he went about to ruine the Apoſtles Doctrine; to which the Emperor made Anſwer, that it was he himſelf who occaſioned all the unhappy Diſorders of the Church; from this time his Party grew weak, and himſelf was at length depoſed in 360. by the Council of Conſtantinople, being accuſed of divers Crimes. He wrote a Book, De Virginitate, which poſſibly is the ſame which is aſſign'd to St. Baſil the Great againſt Marcellus, &c. St. Jerome. Socrates.

BASILIUS, Biſhop of Seleucia in Iſauria, lived in the Fifth Age, and was a Pious and Learned Prelate, but too eaſie to be ſeduc'd. It is likely he ſucceeded Daxien, who ſubſcribed in 431. to the Council of Epheſus. He was againſt the Deciſions of this Aſſembly, and favoured John of Antioch. In 348 he aſſiſted at the Council of Conſtantinople, and the year after, at that which was called Latrocinium Epheſi: He condemned Eutyches in the firſt, and in the laſt, the Reaſons of this Hereſiarch, upon a falſe Confeſſion of Faith, took ſo with him, that he received him again into his Communion, for which he was reprehended and depoſed by the General Council of Chalcedon in 451. but was re-eſtabliſhed a little time after upon the humble Acknowledgment of his Fault. We do not certainly know the time of his Death. Photius attributes but Fifteen Orations or Homilies to him, though we have Forty three that bear his Name, Tranſlated out of Greek into Latin, by Claudius Dauſquei of St. Omer, Canon of Tournay. They are inſerted in the Works of Gregory Thaumaturgus and St. Macarius, Printed at Paris: Father Francis Combeſis has publiſh'd a Homily of St. Stephen in Greek and Latin, which he reckons to be this Baſil's.

BASILIUS, Patriarch of Antioch, in the Fifth Century, and much Celebrated for his Piety, Prudence and Zeal for the Orthodox Faith, which he defended againſt the Enemies of the Council of Chalcedon. He was made Biſhop in 456. and liv'd but Two years.

BASILIUS the Firſt of that Name, Emperor of the Greeks, ſirnamed the Macedonian, becauſe he was of Macedonia, though his Flatterers would have him deſcended from the Arſacides. From a Private Gentleman to the Emperor he was aſſociated to the Empire by Michael the Third, called the Drinker, whom he endeavoured to reclaim from his diſorderly Life; but it was Labour loſt, and he found that this Prince had a Deſign upon his Life, whereof he took care to hinder the Execution. He was Crowned Emperor in 867. and he imploy'd his firſt Labour for the Repoſe of the Church; he depoſed the Patriarch Photius, to put Ignatius in his Place; but re-eſtabliſhed him again, and took his Part ſo far, that he was angry with the Popes who refuſed to admit him into their Communion. He had good Succeſs in the War which he begun in the Eaſt; he took Samoſata, and his Fleet regained ſeveral Towns which the Saracens had taken before in Sicily, and it was by his Care that the People of Ruſſia were made Chriſtians. He died the Firſt of March 886. a little after he had ſet his Son and Heir at Liberty, whom he kept Priſoner for Seven years, through the Lyes of one Theodorus Santabarinus. 'Tis ſaid, that Baſilius being a Hunting, was knock'd down by a Stag, and that one of his Retinue endeavouring to diſengage him, hurt his Side to that degree that he died on't. Curopalates.

BASILIUS the Second, called the Young, was Emperor of the Eaſt, Son to Romanus the Young, and Theophania, who being a Widow, Married Nicephorus Phocas: He and his Brother Conſtantine Porphyrogenetes ſucceeded John Zimiſcus in 975. He took ſome Saracen Troopers into his Pay, and employ'd them in Italy, where he took Barri, Matera, and the Part of Apuleia and Calabria, which Zimiſcus gave the Emperor Otho for the Portion of the Empreſs Theophania his Daughter; he overthrew the Inhabitants of Tripoli and Damaſcus; as alſo the Bulgarians, which got him the Name of Conqueror of the Bulgarians, who were the moſt dangerous Enemies the Empire had; they made themſelves Maſters of Servia, and of the beſt Places in Theſſaly, and ravaged the Neighbouring Provinces in a ſtrange manner. But Baſilius drove them out of all thoſe Places in 1001. and gained a memorable Battel in 1013 againſt Samuel, Prince of the Bulgariens, who was endeavouring to ſettle in thoſe Parts again. He took 15000 Priſoners in this Fight, whom he puniſhed cruelly, putting out their Eyes, and ſending them to their Homes, allowing each Company a Guide, with one Eye. This Cruelty broke Samuel's Heart, and got the Emperor no Credit, though he was famous for other Vertues. He died ſuddenly in 1025. and left his Crown to his Brother Conſtantine the Young. Zonaras, Cedrenus.

BASILIUS the Firſt of this Name, Great Duke of Muſcovy, who lived in the latter end of the Tenth Age; his firſt Name was Woldimer, and he was Son of Steſlaus. He embraced the Chriſtian Faith in 988. and changed his Name Woldimer for Baſilius, which became a Name common amongſt the Dukes that ſucceeded him. Baſilius II. Son to Demetrius II. lived about the year 1400. and left George III. Father to Baſilius III. This had John Baſilides, to whom Baſilius IV. ſucceeded in 1505. and was much eſteemed for his Wiſdom, Courage, and ſeveral Victories which he gained againſt the Tartars. He died in 1533. Sanſovin.

BASILIUS Suiski, Great Duke of Muſcovy, mounted the Throne in 1606. when Demetrius was murthered by the Rebels, but was rival'd by another Demetrius, backed by the Polanders, who defeated his Army at Kovelsko in 1607. worſted him the next year at Bolchow, and at laſt dethroned him in 1610. and ſhut him up in the Fort of Goſtin, where he ended his Life miſerably. Jacob. Butenfels.

BASILIUS, a Prieſt of Cilicia, lived in the latter end of the Fifth Age, in the Reign of Zeno and Anaſtaſius. He compoſed an Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory in Three Books, and made Sixteen others againſt John of Scythopolis, which we have loſt. Photius, Cod. 42. 107. &c.

BASILIUS, a certain Phyſician who lived in the latter end of the Eleventh, and the beginning of the Twelfth Age. It is ſaid of him, that he put on a Friars Habit, and went about to teach the Errors of the Bongomiles, of which he himſelf was the Head; and that after he had followed this Office Fifty years, he was taken at Conſtantinople, where the Emperor Alexis Comnenus the Ancient, cauſed him to be burnt about 1118. Baron. A. Ch. 1118.

BASILIUS (John of Padua) a Lawyer and Coſmographer, lived in the Thirteenth Century, about 1320. He writ divers Books, and among the reſt one of the Illuſtrious Families of Padua. Voſſius.

BASINA, Wife to Baſinus King of Thuringia, to whom Childeric King of France fled in 459. Baſina was ſo enamoured with this Stranger, that ſhe left her Husband and followed him; Childeric Married her, and begot Clouis I.

BASINGSTOKE, a Market Town of Baſingſtoke Hundred in the North Parts of Hampſhire, 39 miles from London; near to it the Duke of Bolton has a Seat, formerly a Stately and Beautiful Structure, and the greateſt Houſe of any Subject in England, but now ruinous.

BASQUES, or the Country of the Baſques, which ſome call the French Biſcay, is part of Gaſcony, between the Spaniſh Navarre, the Bearne, the Landes, and that part of the Ocean which is call'd the Sea of the Baſques. It comprehends the Lower Navarre, in which is St. Palace, the Country of Labour, where are Bagonne, and the Viſcounty of Soule, whereof the Capital is Mauleon of Soule. The Name of Baſques or Baſcos comes from the Latin Vaſcones, for ſo theſe People were called before Charlemain ſubdued Gaſcony. The Baſques are commended for their Addreſs and Fidelity, and for their Skill in Commerce with the Spaniards; they make certain Bargains, which they term Lies and Paſſeries. Their Language is particular, and they are known by their Drums. De Marca.

BASSA, See Bacha.

BASSANELLO, or Baſſano, a little Town in the Patrimony of St. Peter in Italy; near the place where the River Nero joins the Tiber, and not far off the Lake which the Ancients called Lacus Vadimonis, where P. Cornelius Dolabella, the Roman Conſul, defeated the Gauls and Tuſcans in 471 of Rome. Tit. liv. Polyb.

BASSANO, a Town of Italy in the Marcha of Treviſana, belonging to the State of Venice: It is ſituated upon the River of Brente, in a Country which abounds in all things, and eſpecially in Silks. The Carrares, ancient Lords of Padua, were of Baſſano, which was alſo the Birthplace of ſeveral famous Painters, and of Lazarus Baſſanus, that Learned Linguiſt, who firſt taught Greek at Bolognia, and afterwards at Padoua.

BASSE'E upon Duele, a Town in Flanders on the Frontiers of Artois, five Leagues from Liſle. It has been often taken and re-taken in this Age, but was at laſt left to the French by the Peace of Aix la Chapelle in 1668.

BASSE, an Iſland in the River Forth in Scotland, about eight miles South of the Iſle of May. It is nearer the Coaſt of Lothian than that of Fife by ſeveral miles, yet is reckoned to belong to the latter. It was formerly in poſſeſſion of a Family Sirnamed Lauder, who though they had ample Poſſeſſions elſewhere, choſe the Baſſe for Title. It is on every ſide a ſteep and inacceſſible Rock, except on the South-weſt, and there only acceſſible by one at a time, and that not without the help of a Cable or Crane; at the top of that ſmall Paſſage there is a Fort mounted with ſome Cannon, ſo that it is altogether impregnable. It was ſurpriz'd ſince the Revolution by ſome of King James's Party, with the Help of ſome Priſoners within; but being of ſmall Circuit, and at a great diſtance from the Shoar on each ſide, as it is not capable of receiving, neither is it capable of doing much hurt. It hath Graſs for about 20 Sheep, and a ſmall Warren with ſome Rabbets, and riſes to a great height in a Conical Form above the Sea. It hath a Fountain of very clear freſh Water, and is eſpecially noted for Birds called Soland-Geeſe, which come thither in April or May in great Numbers, at which time the Inhabitants are careful not to diſturb them till they have built their Neſts, after which they cannot be frighted by any Noiſe whatever. They are ſomewhat leſs than common Geeſe, but fatter than any other Fowl, and taſt much like Herring, on which they feed. They lay but one Egg, and that no oftner than once a year; and if their Egg be removed from its Place,no Man can make it lie there again. A great Profit is made by their young ones, which are taken from the Neſts by one let down over the Rock with a Cable: They are of an Aſh Colour, but the old ones are all White; their Feathers do alſo bring a great Income for filling of Beds; they have a long Neck like a Crane, and a Bill as long as ones Middle-finger, which is extreamly ſharp, and ſo firmly fix'd to their Breaſt-bone, that it cannot be pull'd thence. Nature having provided thus for its Preſervation, leſt it ſhould break its Neck by ſtriking at its Prey, which it does with that Violence, as to ſtrike through a Fiſh ſo deep into a Plank, that they cannot pull their Beak out again, ſo that they are often taken by faſtning a Herring to a Board on purpoſe. It is alſo obſerved concerning them, that if they be out of ſight of the Sea, they cannot fly. The Sticks of their Neſts furniſh Fuel to the Inhabitants. Gordon. Theat. Scotiæ.

BASSENTIN (James) a Scotchman, in great eſteem in the laſt Age, compoſed ſeveral Treatiſes of Mathematicks; amongſt others, one of the Uſe of the Aſtrolabe, and another of the Sphere.

BASSI (Angelo) called Politian, one of the Learnedeſt Men that were in Italy in the end of the Fifteenth Age; he was of Monte Pulciano, which is a little Town of Tuſcany, called in Latin, Mons Politianus, whence he had the Name of Politian. He was much eſteemed for his Wit and great Skill in the Latin and Greek Tongues, which he taught for Twelve years at Florence, whither he was invited by Laurence de Medicis, who drew all the ableſt Men of his Time thither. Baſſi being then a Prieſt, got a Canonicate, and was made Tutor to Coſmus of Medicis's Children, whereof one was John, who afterwards was Pope, under the Name of Leo the Tenth. Here Baſſi enjoyed himſelf quietly, converſing daily with learned Men, but moſt of all with John Picus of Mirandula. It was then he compoſed his Greek and Latin Epiſtles, which are in ſuch great eſteem among the Learned, and writ the witty Verſes, for which Paul Jove called him the Divine Poet, together with his admirable Tranſlation of Herodian. But Medicus's Diſgrace occaſioned that of all the Learned Men of Florence: Angelus Politian had his Part in it, which alſo broke his Heart, for he died in 1594, being Forty years of Age. Paulus Jovius, Voſſius.

BASSIANUS Landus, an Eminent Phyſician of Placentia in Italy, living in the Sixteenth Century; He has written ſeveral conſiderable Pieces. De Humana Hiſtoria. De Incremento. Iatrologia, &c. Wolfangus Juſtus in Chron. Medic. Vander Linden De Script. Medic. &c.

BASSOLIS (John) a Franciſcan, ſome will have him to be a Diſciple of Scotus. He got the Title of Doctor Ordinatiſſimus, and recommended himſelf to Poſterity by ſeveral Books that he publiſhed, as Commentaria ſeu Lectura in quatuor Libros ſententiarum. Miſcellanea Philoſophica & Medica, &c. He lived in the Fifteenth Century. Bellarmine.

BASSOMPIERRE (Francis) Knight of the Kings Orders, Colonel of the Switzers, and Mareſchal of France, was born in 1579. of a Noble Family in Lorrain. Chriſtopher of Baſſompierre his Father, a Man of Worth and Courage, was wounded in the Battel of Moncontour, and had the Title of Baron of Harouel, a Place in Lorrain. Francis Baſſompierre was made Maſter of the Artillery in 1617. at the Siege of Caſtle Porcien; and in 1620. he ſerved Mareſchal de Camp at the Fight of Pont de cé, and at the Sieges of St. John de Angeli and Montpelier, &c. The King made him Knight of his own Order, and Mareſchal of France the 29th of Auguſt 1621. and ſent him Extraordinary Ambaſſador into Spain, where he was when Philip the Third died. He was afterwards imploy'd in Suiſſerland and England by King Lewis the Thirteenth: He was at the Siege of Rochelle, at the Attack of the Paſſage of Suſa, and on all Occaſions gave great Proofs of his Conduct and Valour; notwithſtanding all which, he was ſeiz'd in 1631. and put in the Baſtile, where he was kept as long as Cardinal Richelieu lived.

It was in his Impriſonment there that he compos'd his Memoirs, and his Remarks upon the Hiſtory of Lewis the Thirteenth, written by Dupleix; with the Relation of his Embaſſies, and his Conduct in thoſe Negotiations. After Lewis the Thirteenth had ſet him at Liberty, he reſtored him to his Place of Colonel of the Switzers, and would have him be Governor of his Perſon; which he declin'd by reaſon of his great Age and Weakneſs. He died in 1646. of an Apoplexy, at the Duke of Vitry's Houſe in Brie.

BASSORA, the Capital of a Kingdom called of Baſſora, ſituated at the farther corner of Arabia Deſerta, upon the Borders of the Province of Ierak, near the River Schat-el-Arab, which is nothing but the Euphrates and Tigris joined together. It is 12 Leagues from the Perſian Gulph, which is thereabouts called the Gulph of Baſſora. Its Port is very good and ſafe, and ſince the Ruine of Ormus, a great number of Ships with Goods from the Eaſt-Indies come hither. The ſituation of this Town is ſo very advantageous, that it might be made one of the fineſt Places in the World, and as Rich as any, becauſe it lies ſo well for Commerce, that all Nations may Trade with it. Though there grow abundance of excellent Grapes about Baſſora, yet none dares to make either Wine or Brandy, both being prohibited under very great Penalties; the Baſhaw indeed had given the Carmelites Leave to make Wine, but this Privilege coſt them ſo much, that now they ſend to Schiras for the Wine they uſe at Maſs. The Baſhaw of this Place is not changed every three years, as the others of Turky, but is in ſome manner Hereditary, and ſometimes he prevails with the Grand Signior, by making him ſome conſiderable Preſent, to have his Son ſucceed him. Beſides his ordinary Revenues, he is a great Gainer by the Perſians that go to Mecha, for they come all by Baſſora, and he furniſhes them with Camels for their Journey, and makes them pay what he pleaſes for them. He has moreover 35 Sequins of every one of them to Guard them to Mecha and back again. This Baſhaw's Subjects are either Arabians or Sabeans; he has alſo ſome that are Perſians, and ſome Indians, who have two Pagodes at Baſſora. There are no other Francs or Chriſtians here, but bare-footed Carmelites, whoſe Church ſerves the Neſtorians and Armenians, who Pray, but never ſay Maſs in it. The other Francs that come to Baſſora, as Engliſh, French, Dutch, &c. come only to Traffick. The Baſhaw poſſeſſes all the Country of Gaban towards Perſia, and on Bagdat ſide; and has Degezair, an Iſland with a Fort in it to command the Euphrates and Tigris, which meet at the Point of this Iſland, and in Arabia Felix; he is Maſter of Port Elcatif, and the Town of Lehſa. This City was built by Omar II. Caliph of the Saracens, about the year of Chriſt 643. as Abul Pharaus ſaith. It is 15 days Journey from Babylon, 600 Miles from Ormus, and 20 Leagues from the Euphrates, Taver. p. 65. Within two Leagues of it ſtands the Ruines of Teredon, an ancient City, and of great Circuit. Balſora ſtands half a League from the Euphrates, and the Tide runs up beyond this City as far as the Fort of Gozno. About 150 years agone, this City belonged to the Arabians, and then it was taken by the Turks, and by one of their Baſhaws, ſold to Effraſias, who was the Grand-Father of Huſſein, Prince of Balſora in 1652. and ſo they Revolted from the Turks. Sha-Abas and Amurath both attempted this City; the latter after he had taken Bagdat, the other after he had reduc'd Ormus, both unſucceſsfully. This Prince has ſince made it a free Mart for all the World, and Governs it with great Order and Juſtice; ſo that it is thronged with all Nations, and is a Center of Trade between the Indies and the reſt of Aſia, to the Weſt and North, as far as Smyrna and Moſcow. The Prince takes not above four per Cent. yet is able to lay up three Millions of Livres in a year; his principal Gain ariſing from Horſes, Camels, Dates, and Money Re-minted. The Chriſtians of St. John are very numerous hereabout, amounting to 25000 Families, but of a degenerate corrupted Faith, for want of Knowledge, and the Books of the Scriptures, which the Mahometans have deprived them of. It is worth obſerving what dreadful Ignorance follows this Loſs, moſt excellently deſcribed by Tavernier, B. 11. C. 8. The Nubian Geographer every where calls it Baſra, and placeth it 15 Stations from Bagdat, 8 from Waſet, and 2 from Abadan, (that is 36 Miles, as he explains it) to the North, P. 120. 121. Avicenna, the great Arabian Phyſician, was born here in the year of the Hegyra 370. An. Ch. 992. and died at Hamada, being 58 years old—— Frederick Venetus, who ſaw it in 1563. calls it Baſora, an Arabian City, now under the Turk, who keeps it by an Army with vaſt Charges. The Arabians, called Zizarii, poſſeſs the Country about it, and the Turks cannot yet Conquer them, they being a Warlike populous Nation. This City is from the Gulph of Perſia 15 Miles, and drives a great Trade with Ormus for Spice and Drugs, carrying thither Rice and Dates of her own Growth; from Ormus it is diſtant 600 Miles. Hack. T. 2. P. 215. Ib. P. 251. It has ſtore of Wheat, Rice, and Dates, wherewith they ſerve Babylon, Ormus, and all Parts of India. It is one Engliſh Mile and half in Circuit; all the Buildings of the Caſtle and Walls are of Brick dry'd in the Sun. Every Month there came then hither from Ormus, divers Ships, from 40 to 60 Tuns, laden with Spices, Drugs, Indico, and Calecut Cloth, now called Caleco. Hack. P. 270. Thevenot.

BASSUS, an Heretick of the ſecond Age, he was Diſciple to Cerinthus, Ebion, and Valentinus; he held that the Lives of Men, and the Perfection of all things, conſiſted in 24 Letters and ſeven Planets; adding, that we are not to hope for true Salvation in Jeſus Chriſt. Prateol.

BASTE, (George) General of the Imperialiſts; he diſtinguiſhed himſelf in the beginning of this Age by his great Valour and Conduct, Commanded in Hungary in 1601. defeated the Rebellious Tranſilvanians, cut 10000 of them in pieces at the Battel of Moitin, took 42 Cannons, 106 Colours, and all their Baggage, made himſelf Maſter of Clauſemburg, and the next year, by carrying Biſtrith or Neſſa, forced the Rebels to have recourſe to the Emperor's Clemency. Ciro, Spontan. Hiſt. di Tranſylvania.

BASTIA, or the Baſtie, Capital of the Iſle of Corſica, has a ſtrong Fort and convenient Haven: It is thought to be the Mantinum of the Ancients. The Iſland belongs to the Genoueſes, and the Governor reſides at Baſtie, whoſe Inhabitants are good Seamen, and great Pirates. This Town is 64 Miles South of Leghorn.

BASTILE, a Royal Caſtle, which Charles the Fifth built for the Defence of Paris againſt the Engliſh. It's ſaid, that it was Hugues Aubricot, Provoſt of the Merchants, or Mayor of the Town, that gave the Deſign of the Work, and laid the firſt Stone of the Building the 22d of April 1369. It's remarkable, that he himſelf was the firſt Priſoner that was put into it, being accuſed of Judaiſm, and of Impiety againſt the Holy Sacrament. In 1634. it was environed with a Ditch and Bulwarks. This Caſtle conſiſts of eight great Towers, with Apartments between every two. It is here, that all Priſoners of State, that have done any thing againſt the Publick, or Government are kept. Le Maire, Paris Ancien & Nouveau.

BASTINGIUS, (Jeremy) Profeſſor of Divinity in the Univerſity of Leyden. He was born in 1554 at Calais, whither his Parents came from Ghent, where they were perſecuted for being Proteſtants. They bred their Son up in their own Sentiments, and ſent him to ſtudy at Bremen, whence he went to Geneva, and thence to Heidelberg, and ſo became very knowing in all Languages, eſpecially in the Greek and Hebrew. He was invited to Antwerp by thoſe of his Party, and was made a Miniſter of the Proteſtant Church; but the Town being taken in 1585. by the Duke of Parma, Baſtingius withdrew to Dordrecht, after which he was made Profeſſor of Divinity in the new Univerſity of Leyden, where he dy'd in 1598. Meurſius.

BASTION of France, a Fortreſs in Barbary, ſix Miles from Bonne, between the Kingdom of Tunis and Algier, the Black Cape, and the Cape of Roſes. There was formerly a Building of this Name within three Miles of the Fort, built in 1560. by two Merchants of Marſeilles, with the Grand Signior's Conſent, to ſerve as a Magazine and Place of Retreat for the Fiſhers of Coral, and ſuch as advanced Traffick in Corn, Skins and Wax, which they brought thither. But ſome time after, this Building was demoliſh'd by the Soldiers of Algier. In 1628. Lewis XIII. gave Order to Monſieur d'Argencour, Governor of Narbonne, and Architect to His Majeſty, to build a Fort there; but having laid the Foundation within three Miles of the Old, he was attack'd by the Moors and Arabians, who forc'd him to quit the Work, and re-imbark for France. The K. ſent afterwards and finiſhed the Work in 1633. which is ſtill in the Poſſeſſion of France, and has good Cannons mounted upon the Point of the Baſtion, with a ſtrong Garriſon in it. It comprehends within its Walls two Magazines, one for Merchandice, and another for Proviſions, with a Chapel and Hoſpital. Dapper.

BASTOINE, or Baſtonach, Bactonia and Bactonacum, a little Town of the Low-Countries in Luxemburg, near the Foreſt of Ardenne, three Leagues from Neuf Château, and eight from Luxemburg. It is a Town ſo well built, and of ſo great Trading, that the People of the Country call it Paris in Ardenne.

BASTON, (Robert) a Carmelite Friar, and famous Poet, in the time of Edward the Second, who carried him with him to Scotland to Celebrate his Victories; but receiving a total Overthrow at the famous Battel of Banockburn, Baſton being taken, was obliged to Celebrate the Victory of the Scots for his Ranſome: He begun his Poem thus:

And after a melancholy Deſcription of the Battel, in the ſame ſort of jingling Rhime, he concludes thus:

Sum Carmelita, Baſton cognomine dictus,
Heu! dole vitâ in tanta ſtrage relictus.
Si quid deliqui, ſi quæ recitanda reliqui,
Hæc addant hi qui non ſunt ſermonis iniqui.

He was born at Nottingham, and bred at Scarborough.

BATALE, a Player on the Flute: It was he that firſt made uſe of Womens Apparel upon the Stage, which is the reaſon that the Ancients called Laſcivious and effeminate Men, Batales.

BATAVI, ancient People of the Low Countries, renowned in the Writings of ancient Authors, and in the Commentaries of Cæſar. They poſſeſſed the moſt part of the Iſle of the River Rhine, that is, a part of South Holland, part of the Dutchy of Guelderland, and of the Lordſhip of Utrecht, which was formerly inhabited by the Batavi and the Menapians. The Hollanders are now called Batavi.

BATAVIA, formerly Jacatra, a Town of the Iſle of Java in Aſia, belonging to the Hollanders, diſtant fifteen Leagues from Bentam, which is Weſtward of it, towards the Channel of the Sonde in a very large and fruitful Plain. The Hollanders had a Magazine at Jacatra, and were ſo great Traders there, that the King began to grow Jealous of them. The Engliſh obſerving this, perſuaded the King to declare War againſt them, and aſſiſted him. The King attacked them about the latter end of 1618. and they defended themſelves to the Month of March in 1619. when they were relieved by their General Koen, who returning from the Molucca Iſlands, took and ruin'd Jacatra; but the Hollanders built afterwards upon its Ruines their Batavia, which is the fineſt Town of all the Eaſt-Indies, and would paſs for a good Town in Europe; for the Hollanders have ſpared no Coſt, as though they deſign'd it for the Capital of their Empire. The Streets are long, large and even, between two Rows of Trees, that are always green, and afford a Shade in all Seaſons: And what adds much to the Embelliſhment of the Town, is, that it hath fine Canals, bordered with great Trees as in Holland, ſo that the Inhabitants may go almoſt where they pleaſe both by Land and Water. The Houſes are well built, and the Utenſils kept ſo clean and handſome, that they ſhine like poliſhed Glaſs. The Circuit of Batavia is very great, and it is exceeding populous, there being People of all Nations that live in it, and pay a certain Tax each, for having Liberty of Trading there. One may ſee here well nigh 5000 Chineſe, the moſt part of them fled from China, when the Tartars became Maſters of their Country; and as they are induſtrious and expert People, they make Money of all things, for they Till the Ground, and there are few other Tradeſmen in Batavia but the Chineſe. Nothing can be imagined more pleaſing than the Avenues of the Town, the Roads that lead to the Gates being bordered with Sets of high Trees always green; beſides that, both ſides are adorned with Pleaſure-houſes and Gardens very neatly kept. At half a League diſtance from the Town, is the Fort, where is kept a Garriſon of 50 or 60 Soldiers, and beyond the Fort is the Chineſe Burying-place, where their Bonzes often make merry for their Dead, imagining that they are well pleas'd with their Mirth and Ceremonies. To act this part, they place themſelves in a Bower of Branches and Leaves, where they have divers Idols, which they hang upon the Bows that cover this Bower. The moſt part of their Tombs are as many magnificent Mauſolæums, wrought with a great deal of Art. Their Temple near that Place, is built both within and without like our little Churches. Their Prieſts are Cloathed much after the Chriſtian Faſhion; during the Sacrifice, they take ſome Turns in the Church, ſinging and obſerving the Sound of two Kettle-Drums, and four ſmall Bells, which make a pleaſant ſort of Noiſe. The two Altars, whereof one is at the end, and the other on the Left-hand, are perfumed and adorned with Candleſticks and lighted Tapers. The Service holds a long time, and they perform the Ceremonies with a great deal of Gravity and Modeſty. It is a very curious thing to obſerve the Government of the Hollanders in the Eaſt-Indies. The General, who reſides in Batavia, has Command over all the other Officers, but is himſelf accountable to the Company, and may, if he pleaſes, quit his Charge after three years Service. The Council of State conſiſts of the General, the Director-General, and ſix Counſellors, and in the Deciſion of Affairs, the greateſt Vote carries it; but the General, who has commonly but two Voices, ſometimes does not obſerve this Formality, eſpecially when he takes upon him the Succeſs of a Buſineſs, and promiſes to anſwer for it. A Counſellor's Place is worth 2000 Livres a Month, and the General has but 12000 Livres a year, with the Charge of his Houſe born; though, having all at his Diſpoſal, and rendring Account to none, he may be ſaid to be worth what he pleaſes. The great Council of the Country conſiſts of a Preſident, a Vice-Preſident, two Attorney-Generals, and of the ſix Counſellors. This Tribunal can judge and condemn the General himſelf. The third Council is that of the Sheriffs, that have the Care of the Town-buſineſs. The fourth anſwers to our Preſidials and Bailywicks; theſe Judge of Matters of leſs moment. The Director-General has the ſecond Place in the Government; all that belongs to the Commerce, paſſes through his Hands, but he is obliged to give an Account of it. There are ſix Governors of Provinces, viz. one of Coromandel, who reſides at Paſicate; one at Amboyna, whoſe Capital is Victoria; one at Ternate, a Place whoſe King the Hollanders oblig'd to yield to them, and allow him 1200 Crowns. They have another at Banda; another at Ceylon, who keeps at Colombo; and finally, one at Malaca. Next to the Governors of Provinces, the moſt conſiderable are the firſt Merchant, the Governors of Places, eſpecially the Governor of Batavia, the Preſidents, or Chiefs of the Counters. In the Martial Affairs, the Major-General is next in Command to the General. He that had this Office in 1687. was the Baron of St. Martins, a French Man: Next him, are the Captains, which become Colonels when they go out of the City. Their Army conſiſts of 12000 Men of ſtanding Forces, and they can equip 150 Veſſels. P. Tachard.

BATAVIA, is alſo the Name of a River in the Southern Lands near the Sea, firſt diſcovered by the Hollanders. It is in that Country particularly called Carpentaria, or Carpenter Landt.

BATCHELOR, a Name formerly given to thoſe Superior in Quality to Eſquires, but not able to raiſe a Company of Gens d'Arms, and therefore ſerved under the Standard of Bannerets, being allow'd Colours of their own, and to conduct their Vaſſals: They were ordinarily young Gentlemen, who endeavoured to acquire the Title of Batchelors by their Valour; and being an Order inferior to thoſe called Chevaliers, or Knights, Fauchet ſuppoſes, that they took their Name from Bas-Chevaliers; but common Cuſtom hath now obtained, both in England, Spain, and part of France, that young unmarried Men be all called by that Name. Bannerets and Batchelors begun to decline in France under Charles VII. who deprived the Bannerets of the Command of his Armies; though formerly all Perſons of Gallantry aſpired to that Title, as being next to an Officer of State. At preſent this Title obtains in Univerſities, being given to thoſe who finiſh their Study in any Faculty, becauſe of a Batoon put in their Hands to denote the ſame: Hence they will have the Name to come from Baculus or Bacillus, becauſe the Ancients uſed, when any one was enfranchiſed, or dignify'd with any Office, even that of a King, to preſent him with a Lance, Rod, or Batoon: Hence it comes that in all the Contracts which are made in England in the Court of Barons, betwixt the Lord and his Vaſſals, who are called Tenants of the Verge, the Ceremony of preſenting a Batoon is performed. Spelman ſays, That the Original of this Word from Baculus is not certain, becauſe no Batoon is given to Students that take their Degrees, except that carry'd by the Beadle at their Promotion be hereby meant. In War, thoſe young Soldiers are called Batchellors, who having ſignaliz'd themſelves in the firſt Campaign, receive the Military Belt, or Guilt Spurs. In the ancient Conſtitution of the Engliſh Admiralty, the Name of Batchelor was given to all Dignities below that of Baron. Spelman in Gloſſ. Arcæol. De la Roque.

BATEN, (Henry) of Malines, Doctor and Chancellor of Paris, Chanter and Canon of Liege, lived in the 14th Age, and compoſed ſome Books, wherein were ſeveral curious Queſtions of Philoſophy and Muſick, and ſhewed the Errors of the Tables, called the Tables of Alphonſus, King of Caſtile.

BATENBOURG, a little Town in the Dutchy of Gueldres, two Leagues from Nimeguen, with a ſtrong Citadel in it. In 1568. two Brothers, both Barons of Batenbourg, were Beheaded in this Town by the Duke of Alva's Orders, who ſaid, That one Salmon's Head was worth a great number of the Heads of leſſer Fiſhes. Hiſt. Belg.

BATH, Lat. Bathonia, Aquæ calidæ, Aquæ ſolis, Thermæ, is a Weſtern City in the North-Eaſt Parts of Somerſetſhire, about 90 Miles Weſt and by South from London. It lies in a Valley ſurrounded with ſteep Hills, and watered by the River Avon. The Name of Bath is derived from its Medicinal and hot Baths, which are four in Number, viz. the King's and Queen's, the Croſs, and the Hot Bath, much reſorted unto for the Cure of ſome Diſtempers. The City is but little, having but one Pariſh Church beſides the Cathedral, but is grac'd with fair Houſes. 'Tis alſo a Place of good Antiquity, witneſs the many Roman Inſcriptions and Images frequently found in its Walls. It became a Biſhop's See Anno 1088. at which time the Seat was transferr'd from Wells hither by Johannes de Villule, the 16th Biſhop of Wells, which occaſion'd a Difference between the Canons of Wells and Monks of Bath, about the Biſhop's Election, which was at laſt compos'd thus; That the Biſhop ſhould be denominated from both Places, and that Precedency in the Stile ſhould be given to Bath. That in the Vacancy of the See, a certain Number of Delegates legates from both Churches ſhould elect their Prelate, who, when elected, ſhould be inſtalled in both; That both ſhould be reckon'd as the Biſhop's Chapter, and all Grants and Patents confirm'd in both; and thus things ſtood until the Monaſtery being diſſolv'd by King Henry VIII. there paſs'd an Act of Parliament for the Dean and Chapter of Wells to make one ſole Chapter; for the Biſhop, whoſe Dioceſs in the Province of Canterbury contains the County of Somerſet, wherein, of 388 Pariſhes, 160 are Impropriations; for the Government whereof, under the Dioceſan, there are three Arch-Deacons, viz. Bath, Wells, and Taunton. In the King's Books the Biſhoprick is valued at 535 l. 1 s. 3 d. and the Clergy's Tenths amount to 353 l. 18 s. This City is alſo dignify'd with the Title of an Earldom: Firſt in the Reign of Henry VII. by whom Philebert of Chandew, a Gentleman of Britany in France, was created Earl of Bath, which Title failing with him, it was revived in the Reign of Henry VIII. in the Perſon of John Bourchier, Anno 1536. in whoſe Line it continued above 100 years; and being vacant by the death of Bourchier, King Charles II. conferred it in the year 1661. upon the Right Honourable John Greenvile, the preſent Earl of Bath. Vid. Granville.

BATHCOMB, (William) an Engliſhman, living in the Reign of Henry V. to about the year 1420. He ſtudied at Oxford, and was one of the beſt Mathematicians of his time, as appears by ſeveral of his Works, which are, De Operatione Aſtrolabiæ; De Sphæra concava; De Sphæræ Fabrica & uſu; De Sphæra Solida; De Concluſione Sophiæ. Pitſæus de Script. Angl. Voſſius de Matth. &c.

BATH-KOL, which is to ſay, the Daughter of the Voice. So the Jews call one of their Oracles, which is ſo often mentioned in their Books, eſpecially in the Talmud. The Author of the Supplement to the Jewiſh Ceremonies, takes notice of ſeveral kinds of Inſpirations which they admitted, and that they generally believe, that Prophecy, or Divine Inſpiration, laſted until about the 40th year of the ſecond Temple, after which came another, which they call Bath-kol. The Rabbies ſay, as Buxtorf remarks in his Great Dictionary, That after the death of Haggai, Zachariah, and Malachi, the Holy-Ghoſt, or Spirit of Prophecy, withdrew from Iſrael; but that they had the Daughter of the Voice, which they endeavour to confirm by ſeveral Stories. Buxtorf.

BATHON, a Valley of Macedonia, where the Ancients thought the Giants fought againſt the Gods; Pauſanias mentions, that they uſed formerly to Sacrifice there, repreſenting Lightning, Thunder, and Thunderbolts, to imitate by this Artifice the Noiſe and Fire of that great Combat. Pauſan.

BATHORI, a Noble Family of Tranſilvania, which has furniſhed that State with ſeveral Princes. Stephen Bathori was choſen in 1571. after the death of John Sigiſmond, with the conſent of Maximilian and Selim, the one Emperor of Germany, the other of the Turks. He was afterwards preſented with the Crown of Poland, when Henry III. quitted it, and after he had done great Feats againſt the Muſcovites, he died in 1586. and was ſucceeded by his Brother Chriſtopher Bathori in the Principality of Tranſilvania, who being hated by the Houſe of Auſtria, becauſe his Brother Stephen was preferr'd to the Kingdom of Poland before Maximilian II. he ſought a Support at Conſtantinople. He baniſhed the Socinians out of his Territories, and died in 1581. Sigiſmond Bathori his Son ſucceeded him, and was much in the favour of the Houſe of Auſtria, with whom he made a League againſt the Turks, and afterwards put his Uncle Balthazar Bathori to death, for a Rebellion that happened in his State, and proclaimed Stephen and Andrew, his Couſins, guilty of High-Treaſon; after this, he beſtowed his Principality on Andrew Bathori, a Cardinal, and his Uncle; but nothing being able to ſupport him in it, he made a Gift of the ſame to the Emperor Rodolphus II. and died at Prague in 1603. Gabriel Bathori was choſen Prince of Tranſilvania in 1608. after that Principality had been for ſome time Governed by Bokquay and Ragotski, who yielded it to him. Bathori was an inconſtant Prince, at one time he beſought the Emperor for Succour, and then at another he would have recourſe to the Grand Signior; ſo that, Bethlehem Gabor having attack'd him, his Cruelty, together with the Lewdneſs of his Life, rendred him odious to all People, and he was killed in 1618. The Cardinal Andrew Bathori is the ſame whom the Imperialiſts put to death in 1590. three days after the Battel that was fought on the 28th of October. Iſthuanffi.

BATHYLLUS, the famous Pantomime, Native of Alexandria; he came to Rome in the Emperor Auguſtus's Reign, and help'd Pylades to invent a kind of Dance, wherein, by ingenious well-contrived Geſtures, were repreſented all Tragick, Comick, and Satyrick Subjects. Theſe made a Company of their own, and would not join with other Comedians; ſo that they acted their dumb Comedies by themſelves, upon the Orcheſtrum, and had no other Actors but Pantomimes. Pylades excelled in Tragedy, and Bathyllus was incomparable for Comick and Satyrick Subjects, which made them ſeparate themſelves and to make each a Company apart. Lucian.

BATHYLLUS, a certain Roman Poet, who pretended he was Author of this Diſtich that Virgil ſtuck in the night time on the Gate of Auguſtus's Palace:

Nocte pluit tota, redeunt ſpectacula mane:
Diviſum Imperium cum Jove Cæſar habet.

But did not enjoy that Honour any long time, for Virgil put in the ſame place this beginning of Verſes, Sic vos non vobis, repeated four times; and the Emperor deſiring that ſome one ſhould compleat the ſenſe, there was none found that could perform it but Virgil, that did it thus:

Sic vos non vobis, vellera fertis oves.
Sic vos non vobis, fertis aratra boves.
Sic vos non vobis, nidificatis aves.
Sic vos non vobis, mellificatis apes.

Thus the right Author of the firſt Diſtich was found out, and Bathyllus met with the confuſion he deſerved, and became a Proverb.

BATICALA, a Town of Aſia in the Peninſula, on this ſide the Ganges, ſituated upon the Coaſts of Malabar, between Onor, Barcelor, Gorcopa, and Mayandur, Capital of a ſmall Kingdom of its own Name, belonging to the King of Onor, who is Vaſſal to him of Biſnagar.

BATICALE, a Town of the Iſle of Ceylan in the Eaſt-Indies, Capital of the moſt Eaſterly Kingdom in that Iſland, parted from that of Colombo by great Mountains: The Portugueſes have a good Port in this latter, and are Maſters of Chilao, and ſeveral other Places; but Baticale belongs to the Hollanders.

St. BATILDA, or Baudour, Queen of France, renowned for Wiſdom and Piety, deſcended of the Saxon Princes of England, whence ſhe was brought in her youth by Pyrates, who ſold her afterwards in France to Erchinoald Mayor of the Palace, and he beſtowed her upon his Wife, who became mightily taken with her, as did all that knew her. King Clovis II. enamoured with her Virtue and Goodneſs, Married her, and had three Sons by her, Clotaire III. Childeric II. and Thierri I. She out-lived Clovis, and Governed the Kingdom very wiſely during the minority of Clotaire III. her Son. She was Canonized by Pope Nicholas I.

BATIS, an Eunuch, Governor of Gaza, which being taken after a very reſolute defence, and he himſelf extreamly wounded, he was tied to a Chariot, and drag'd about the Streets by the Heels, becauſe he would not become a Suppliant to Alexander. Q. Curt.

BATON-Iſle, or Buton, an Iſland in the Indian Sea: It has the Iſland of Macaſſar on the Eaſt, and lies between Wawany, d' Calinca and d' Cabince.

BATTEL, a Market Town in Suſſex, where excellent Gun-powder is made; it took its Name from the great Victory which William the Conqueror obtained there over King Harold in October the 14th, 1066. in memory of which, he built an Abbey, call'd Battel-Abbey, near this Place.

BATTERBEE, a ſmall Place on the River Ware, two miles South of Durham, noted for certain Stones, from whoſe ſides at Low-water, in Summer, iſſues a Salt reddiſh Water, which turning white by the Sun, and growing into a thick Subſtance, is us'd inſtead of Salt by the Neighbouring People.

BATTERSEY, and Wandſworth Mannor, in the County of Surrey, now part of the Inheritance of Sir Walter St. John Baronet, formerly the Eſtate of Sir Oliver St John Kt. (ſecond Son to Nicholas St. John of Lidyard-Tregoz in the County of Wilts Eſq;) Baron Tregoz of Highworth in Wiltſhire, and Viſcount Grandiſon of Limerick in Ireland, ſometime Lord-Deputy of that Kingdom, and General of all His Majeſty's Forces, as alſo Lord High-Treaſurer there, and Counſellor of State in both Kingdoms at the time of his deceaſe, Anno 1630. He made Sir John St. John Knight and Baronet (Father to the preſent Sir Walter St. John) of Lidyard-Tregoz aforeſaid [his Nephew and Heir] ſole Executor of all his Eſtate in England, to whom he likewiſe gave this Mannor of Batterſey and Wandſworth.

BATTO, Son to Changius King of the Tartars, and Brother to Ochlaus, having ſent his Brethren to ſubdue other Parts of the World, he himſelf over-ran Muſcovy, Polonia, and Sileſia; and, by the help of Magick, overcame Duke Henry at Lignitz, in a bloody Battel; and for a Monument of his Victory, ſent home nine great Sacks fill'd with the Ears of thoſe he had ſlain, Anno Chriſti 1242. Bonfin. dec. 11. lib. 7. Cromer, lib. 8.

BATTUS, a Lacedæmonian, Founder of Cyrene in Africa, in the 37th Olympiad, to whom the Africans Conſecrated the Herb Benjoin, becauſe all things belonging to it are much valu'd by them: They alſo Coin'd a Medal, repreſenting his Face on one ſide, and this Herb on the other, whence it came to paſs, that Batti Silphium was proverbially taken for any new Gift or Honour. This Battus was of ſuch a ſtammering Tonge, that the Greek word Βατταρίζειν, took its Original from him. Suidas.

BATTUS, a Shepherd in the Neighbourhood of Pyla, a Town of Peloponneſus in Greece, was chang'd into a Touchſtone by Mercury, whilſt Apollo, Cloath'd like a Shepherd, took care of King Admetus's Flocks in Theſſaly. Mercury ſtole ſome Cows which he hid in a Wood that was hard by; none was aware of the Theft but Battus, from whom Mercury got a promiſe, not to reveal it; yet not truſting much to his word, he diſguiſed himſelf, and diſſembling his Voice, he came and offered a couple of Cows to him that could direct him whither his Cattel had ſtray'd: Battus being covetous, embraced the proffer; to puniſh which Treaſon, Mercury turned him into a Touch-ſtone, which has this quality, That no Metal can touch it without being diſcovered. The Moral of this Fable ſhews a cunning Diſſembler in Mercury; and in Battus, one that ſuffers himſelf to be corrupted by the leaſt likelihood of Gain.

BATTUS, a Poetaſter, who often repeated the ſame words out of ſeaſon: This fault Ovid makes the Shepherd Battus fall into, when he anſwered Mercury;

——— Sub illis.
Montibus inquit, erant, & erant ſub montibus illis.

'Tis ſaid that the word Battology comes from this Poet Battus, which conſiſts in a ſuperfluity of Words, and an improper repetition of the ſame thing. See Suidas Heſychius and Theophylact, on the 6th Chapter of St. Matthew.

BATUECOS, or los Batuecos Batueci, People of Spain in the Kingdom of Leon, that inhabit the Mountains between Salamanca and Corica, and are thought to be deſcended from the Goths.

BAVAIS, towards the little River of Oſneau, is a Town of the Low-Countries in Hainault, about four Leagues from Valenciennes, and five from Mons. There is mention made of it in Antonine's Itineray, and in the Tables of Peutingerus: It's named Bagacum in the firſt, and Bar-Jacum Nerviorum in the Tables. Beſides this, Bavais has many things that ſhews it to be very ancient, as an Aqueduct, a Cirque, and ſeveral old Medals. Miræus, in Annal. Belg.

BAVARI, a Warlike People of Germany, formerly known by the Name of Boii, Boiares; they have carried their victorious Arms into Italy, Greece, and to the other ſide of the Helleſpont, and were the firſt Germans that travers'd the Alpes, and pitcht their Standards on the Banks of the River Tyber and Thermodon. They poſſeſſed that part of Germany that lies between Pannonia, Suabia, Italy, and the Danube. Some ſay, Clovis overcame them when he Conquered Germany, but he never preſcrib'd them Laws, for they always had a Duke of their Nation, who was confirm'd by the King of Auſtraſia, one of the Race of the Agilolfingues, Deſcendants of Agilolfus, who very probably was he that brought them into Germany. The Bavarians of theſe laſt Ages have not degenerated from the Valour of their Anceſtors; for they have ſtopt the Arms of the Northern People, and have been ſo ſerviceable to the Empire, that it may be well ſaid, That the Emperor never did any conſiderable thing without them.

BAVARIA, called by the Germans Baiern, a large Country in Germany, has the Title of Dutchy, and is now an Electorate. It has Auſtria to the Eaſt, the Danube to the North, the County of Tyrol to the South, and Suabia to the Weſt. All this Country does not belong to the Duke of Bavaria, for there are many Princes that have ſome part of it: The Duke has Munichen, Capital of his Eſtates, beſides Ingolſtadt, Rain, Burchauſen, Landſhut, &c. The other parts of Bavaria are the Archbiſhoprick of Saltzbourg, the Biſhopricks of Ratisbonne, Paſſau, and Freiſingen, the Dutchy of Newbourg, the Counties of Hag, of Orthembourg, &c. The Elector of Bavaria poſſeſſes a great part of the Palatinate of Bavaria to the North of the Danube, which has for Capital Amberg upon the River Vuils, and there are alſo the County of Chamb, and the Landtgraviate of Leuchtemberg, whereof Pfreint is Capital, with the Biſhoprick of Aichſtadt, and the Lordſhip of Saltzbach, the County of Caſtel, &c. Bavaria is divided into four great Bailywicks, viz. Munich, Landſhut, Straubing, and Burchauſen. As for the High Palatinate that was joined to Bavaria by the Treaty of Weſtphalia in 1648. it is a Dukedom that comprehends ſeveral Counties and Cities, whereof Amberg is the moſt conſiderable, and the Seat of the High-Court of Juſtice in that Country, whence there is no Appeal: The Landtgraviate of Leuchtemberg fell to the Duke of Bavaria in 1556. by the death of Maximilian Adam, laſt Landtgrave of that Province, according to an Agreement made between both Houſes of mutual Succeſſion upon the failing of either Family. There is the like brotherly Agreement of mutual Succeſſion between the Houſe of Bavaria and the Palatinate of the Rhine. This Houſe of Bavaria has had ſeveral Illuſtrious Princes; for, not to mention the Kings that were of it, when Bavaria had the Title of a Kingdom, and reached as far as the Borders of Hungary and Bohemia, which held from the 5th to the beginning of the 9th Age; the ſame Houſe that now is, has furniſhed Germany with two Emperors, Swedeland and Norway with Kings, as alſo the Kingdom of Denmark, and ſeveral of it have been Counts of Holland, and Electors of the Empire; which Dignity was conferred upon that Family in 1648. at the Peace of Munſter; the Electoral Dignity, whereof Frederick V. Count Palatine of the Rhine was deprived after the year 1621. being then given to Maximilian, Count Palatine, and Duke of Bavaria, and his Heirs; an eighth Electorate was created for Charles Lodowick, Son to Frederick.

The Genealogy of the Family of Bavaria.

Authors differ about it, ſome deriving their Original from Antenor, General of the Henetians and Paphlagonians, who came into Italy after the ruine of Troy, ſome from the Emperor Arnold, who died in 899. And others recount five or ſix different Princes, who all had the Titles of Dukes of Bavaria at the ſame time, as the Emperor Henry II. the Dukes of Saxony, &c. but Modern Authors agree, That they are deſcended from the Counts of Schiren and Wittelſpatch, of which opinion is Schowart, whoſe Account is thus: Henry the Lion, Duke of Bavaria and Saxony, being proſcrib'd by the Emperor Frederick Barbaroſſa in 1180. he inveſted therewith Otho I. call'd the Great Count of Schiren and Wittelſpatch; he was ſucceeded by his Son Lewis, whoſe Son Otho II. Married Agnes, Grand-Daughter to Henry the Lion, which united the contending Parties; and in 1227. the Emperor Frederick beſtowed upon Lewis the Palatinate of the Rhine, with the Electoral Dignity. Lewis died in 1253. ſucceeded by Lewis the Severe, his eldeſt Son, whoſe Son Lewis III. was the Propagator of the Bavarian Line: He was born in 1287. brought up at Vienna, Inveſted in the Upper Bavaria, choſen Emperor in 1314. and after the death of his Kinſman, the Duke of the Lower Bavaria, enjoyed moſt of his Dominions. Waldemar, Marqueſs of Brandenburgh, being dead, he gave that Electorate to his own Son Lewis: He had War with, and took Frederick the Fair of Auſtria in 1323. was engaged in Controverſies with the Pope, and died by a fall from his Horſe in 1347. He was twice Married, had a numerous Iſſue, and was ſucceeded by his Son Stephen I. who died in 1375. having been Married to Elizabeth, Daughter to Lewis, King of Hungary and Sicily, by whom he had many Children, of whom Stephen, Frederick, and John, are moſt remarkable. Stephen II. had Ingolſtadt for his ſhare, was extreamly beloved by his Subjects, and famous for Piety and Virtue; he had a Son called Lewis the Bearded, of a turbulent Temper, who could neither endure an Equal nor Superior, and he had War with his own Son Lewis the Crouch-back, whom he would have Diſinherited in favour of a Baſtard Son; but being worſted, he was Impriſoned at Newburg, and was ſold to Albert of Brandenburg, and again to the Prince of Bavaria of Landſhut, in whoſe Priſon he ended his days. Frederick, ſirnamed the Wiſe, ſecond Son to Stephen I. was famous for compoſing Diſcords among Neighbouring Princes. One of his Daughters was Married to the Elector of Brandenburg, and another to the Viſcount of Milan. His Son Henry ſucceeded, who by the Male-adminiſtration of his Guardians, was reduced almoſt to want; but yet by his own good Husbandry, did afterwards lay up ſo much Wealth, that he was ſirnam'd the Rich. His Son Lewis ſucceeded in 1450. and Confiſcated the Jews: He was ſucceeded by his Son George, who founded the Univerſity of Ingolſtadt, and made his Daughter Elizabeth, Married to Robert X. Elector Palatine, Heireſs, which occaſioned the bloody Bavarian War: So that the Bavarian Line was preſerved by John abovementioned, youngeſt Son to Stephen I. who had Munichen for his ſhare, where he died in 1397. The moſt noted of his Children were William III. who defended the Council of Bazil, Sophia, Married to the Emperor Wenceſlus in 1428. and Erneſt, whoſe Son Albert III. continued the Line; the moſt remarkable of his Children were Chriſtopher, born in 1450. famous for his Valour and Strength; and Albert IV. who had cruel War with Philip, Elector Palatine, for the Inheritance of George the Rich, of the Lower Bavaria: He died in 1508. and by Cunigunda of Auſtria, had amongſt others, Erneſt, choſen Archbiſhop of Saltzburg and Paſſau, who freed thoſe Churches from Debt, and augmented their Wealth without ſqueezing his Subjects; at laſt he reſign'd them, and liv'd on his own Eſtate in Seleſia. William Albert IV. was ſucceeded by his eldeſt Son William IV. who by Mechtilda of Baden, had Albert V. Married to Anna, Daughter to the Emperor Ferdinand I. and dying in 1579. left William V. his Succeſſor, Erneſt and Ferdinand, from whom are deſcended the Counts of Wertemberg and Schaumberg, Married to the Emperor Ferdinand II. Philip Biſhop of Ratisbonne and Cardinal; Ferdinand Archbiſhop of Cologne, Biſhop of Liege, Munſter, Hildeſheim, and Paderborn, who died in 1650. Albert IV. Tutor to the Son of his Brother Maximilian, and Adminiſtrator of the Electorate, and Father to Maximilian Henry, Archbiſhop and Elector of Cologne, Biſhop of Liege, Hildeſheim, Munſter, &c. who had a Controverſie with the Elector of Mentz, about Crowning the King of the Romans in 1658. and died May 24. 1688. Maximilian ſucceeded his Father William as abovementioned, April 17. 1573. he ſeiz'd Donawart in 1607. was General of the Popiſh League in 1609. obtain'd the Electoral Dignity in 1623. with the Upper Palatinate, and County of Chamb, taken from Frederick Elector Palatine, choſen King of Bohemia, and confirm'd to him by the Peace of Oſnabrug in 1646. He ſucceeded alſo to the Landtgraviat of Leuchtenburg by the death of the Landtgrave, and died Septemb. 1651. He had for his firſt Wife Elizabeth of Lorrain; and for his ſecond Anne of Auſtria, Daughter to the Emperor Ferdinand II. by whom he had Ferdinand-Maria-Franciſcus-Ignatius-Wolfgangus, who ſucceeded him in 1651. Married Henrietta of Savoy, who died in 1676. and he followed in 1679. His Children were, 1. Maria-Anna-Chriſtina-Victoria, Married to the Dauphin of France in 1680. and died in April 1690. She was a Princeſs extreamly Witty and Ambitious, but oppos'd her Husband's being employed againſt the Germans: It being preſumed, that if ever ſhe lived to be Queen, ſhe would have a great ſhare of the Government, abundance Addreſſed themſelves to her, which is thought to have haſtened her Fate: However ſhe hath left three Sons to ſecure the Succeſſion of the French Crown. 2. Maximilianus-Maria-Emmanuel-Cajetanus-Ludovicus-Franciſcus-Ignatius-Antonina-Felix-Nicolaus-Pius, the preſent Elector, born June 11, 1662. who hath already immortaliz'd his Fame in the War againſt the Turks and French; and as an earneſt of greater things, the King of Spain has conſtituted him Hereditary Governor of the Netherlands in 1692. where he paſs'd the following Campagne in Conjunction with King William III. of Great Britain, and hath brought the diſordered Affairs of that Country into a better poſture: He Married Mary-Anthony, Daughter to the preſent Emperor Leopold in 1686. who died January 169½. at Vienna, in Child-bed of the Electoral Prince. 3. Joſephus-Clemens-Cajetanus-Franciſcus-Antonius-Caſparus-Melchior-Balthaſar-Joannes-Baptiſta-Nicolaus, born December 5. 1671. Biſhop of Ratisbonne and Friſingen; and July 14. 1688. choſen Archbiſhop and Elector of Cologne, after a long Controverſie with Cardinal Furſtemberg, who was ſupported by the Intereſt of the French King Lewis XIV. 4. Violanta Beatrix, born in 1673. and Married in 1688. to the Great Duke of Tuſcany's eldeſt Son. Beſides the gradual increaſe of this Family mention'd in the Genealogy, they have purchas'd abundance of Cities and Counties, beſides what they have acquired by Marriages; the preſent King of Sweden is deſcended from this Family, and has Pretenſions to the Dutchy of Deuxponts; and the Duke Newburg, who is alſo of this Family, did, by amicable Compoſition, obtain from the Duke of Brandenburg the Dutchy of Julsers and Monts, and County of Ravenſtein. The greateſt part of their Decreaſe has been in our Age, for by the Treaty of Oſnabrug, they parted with the Upper-Auſtria to the Emperor, which they had by the way of Mortgage, and with Bergſtraet to the Archbiſhop of Mentz; and the French have ſeized the Dutchy of Deuxponts, County of Weldentz, and many Cities as Dependencies of Alſace, beſides the Counties of Sponheim, Simeren, and Lauteren, and the Devaſtations they have made in the Palatinate. Schouart. Obſerv. Hiſt. General. Moreri ſays, that the Electoral Dignity was conferred on this Family with this Proviſo, That if the Wilhelmine Branch ſhould fail, the eighth Electorate is to ceaſe, and the Rhodolphin or Palatine Branch are to return to their ancient Dignity and Poſſeſſion. The youngeſt Sons of the Houſe of Bavaria ſit amongſt the Princes at the Diet of the Empire next to the Temporal Electors, and have nine or ten Voices. Aventinus in Annal. Boior. &c.

BAUCIS, a poor old Woman, who liv'd with her Husband Philemon in a Cottage in Phrygia. The Fable ſays, That Jupiter and Mercury Travelling over Phrygia in a Humane Shape, were refus'd Entertainment by all the Country, excepting Philemon and his Wife Baucis, who received them with as much civil Hoſpitality as their little Circumſtances would give them leave: Theſe Divinities therefore intending to puniſh the People for their Inhumanity, ordered Philemon and Baucis to follow them to the top of a Mountain, where looking behind them, they ſaw the Country all under water, excepting their little Cottage, which was turn'd into a fine Temple. Then Jupiter being deſirous to reward the Piety and good Nature of his Hoſts, and the good uſage he had receiv'd from them, gave them their choice to ask what they had a mind to; They deſir'd to officiate in this Temple as Prieſt and Prieſteſs to that Deity; To live to a great Age in a good Underſtanding; To die both together, without one of them ſurviving ſo long as to ſee the other's Funeral: This was granted them, and they had the Care and Buſineſs of the Temple during their Life; and after they had reach'd to a thorough old Age, as they were one day converſing together at the Gate of the Temple, they died both in the ſame minute, and were metamorphos'd into Trees. The Moral of this Fable teaches us, that Hoſpitality and Beneficence are Qualities very acceptable to God Almighty, rewarded here in the Perſon, and hereafter in the Memory. Ovid. lib. 8. Metam. Fab. 7.

BAUDISEA, or Vodiſea, a Britiſh Queen, who being incens'd againſt the Romans for their Pride and Avarice, cut off 70000 of them and their Aſſociates, but was at laſt overcome by Suetonius, and Poiſon'd A. C. 62. Cambd.

BAUDIUS, (Dominick) a Learned Lawyer, Profeſſor of Rhetorick at Leyden, Native of Liſle in Flanders, where he was born in 1561. He began his Studies in Aix la Chapelle, whither his Parents withdrew, becauſe the Duke of Alva was very rigorous to all Proteſtants in the Low Countries. He continued his Studies in Leyden and Geneva, and afterwards applied himſelf to the Law under Hugo Donellus, and became Doctor of it in 1585. Sometime after he went along with the Ambaſſadors of the States ſent to Queen Elizabeth, and was much eſteemed for his great Parts by all the Learned Men in England. Afterwards he went back to the Hague, and thence into France, where he was much looked upon by Harlay, firſt Preſident of the Parliament of Paris, who made him a Counſellor to it, and ſent him along with his Son, whom Henry IV. was at that time ſending Ambaſſador into England. After this Baudius returned to Leyden, where he died in 1613. He wrote Monitæ Civilis Sapientiæ; De Induciis belli Belgici; Commentariolus de fœnore. Johannes Wouwer made him the following Epitaph;

Vultus & Ora finxerit Artifex manus
Et illa vox, Sermone melleo fluens,
Miranda cunctis, æmulanda nemini,
Nec exprimi colore, nec Cælo poteſt.

BAUGE, or Beauge upon Coueſnon, (Balgium) a little Town of Anjou in France, built by the Counts of Anjou; it was the Seat of a Preſidial Court in times paſt, but that is now removed to La Fleche, which is but three Leagues diſtance from Bauge. Charles VIII. when Dauphin of France, obtain'd a ſignal Victory here over the Engliſh, Commanded by the Duke of Clarence, who was kill'd in the Fight in 1420.

BAUGE, Lat. Balgiacum, a little Town of Breſſe in France, with the Title of Marquiſate ſituated upon a pleaſant and fertile height, within a League of Macon. It is very likely that it has been much bigger in times paſt than it is now, and that it was the Capital of Breſſe.

BAUGE, the Title of an Illuſtrious Family that governed the Province of Breſſe for 400 years.

BAUGENCI, Baujenci, or Bois-jenci, upon the Loire, Lat. Balgentiacum and Baugentiacum, a Town in France between Orleans and Blois. It is a pleaſant Town, with a good Bridge upon the River Loire, and the Country about is very fertile in Corn and Wine, and has abundance of Game. The Engliſh under the Earl of Saliſbury made themſelves Maſters of this Town in 1428. but quitted it at the approach of the French the year following. Richard, Cardinal and Legate from Rome, held a Council there in 1104. Paſchal II. being then Pope, which was about the inceſtuous Marriage of Philip I. and Bertrade of Montfort, whom he Married againſt the Advice of the Peers of his Kingdom. They promiſed to live aſunder until they were diſpenſed with by the Pope, A ſecond Council was held here in 1152. to learn what degree of Kindred it was that annull'd the Marriage of Lewis VII. called the Young, with Eleonor Dutcheſs of Guyenne, Counteſs of Poictou, and Daughter to William laſt Duke of Aquitain; who, after her Divorce, Married Henry Duke of Normandy, and apparent Heir to the Crown of England, which occaſioned a great deal of diſorder and loſs to the Kingdom of France.

BAUHIN, (Jaſpar) of Baſle, a Phyſician that lived in the 15th and 16th Age; he writ the Pinax Theatri Botanici ſive index in opera Botanicorum, and divers other Works of Phyſick and Anatomy, &c. See Vander Linden.

BAUHIN, (John) Native of Amiens, and one of the ableſt Phyſicians of his time, was well ſkill'd in Chirurgery; after he had paſt ſome years in France, England, and Flanders, he went to Baſle, where he practis'd Phyſick and Chirurgery for 40 years with great ſucceſs and applauſe, and died there in 1582. leaving two Sons Heirs of his great Parts and Skill; one of theſe named John, Compos'd the Prodromus Theatri Botanici, and ſeveral other Books of Phyſick.

BAUIA, (Lewis) of Madrid, Royal Chaplain in the Cathedral of Grenade; he continued Gonſalvo's of Illeſcat's Hiſtory of the Popes; his Work is Entituled, Hiſtoria Pontifical y Catholica.

BAVIERE, (John William) an excellent Painter, born at Strasburg, Capital of Alſatia in Germany: He has left a great many fine Pieces, not only at Strasburg, but alſo at Rome, Naples, and Vienna, at which laſt Place he died in 1640. Melchior Kuſſelle, an Engraver at Ausburg, has made a great many fine Prints of moſt of his Pictures. Acad. Pict. Part 2. lib. 3.

BAVIUS, a Latin Poet, that lived about 40 years before our Saviour's Birth; he made pitiful Verſes, and thought to gain ſome Eſteem in the World by jeering Virgil, which rendred himſelf the more ridiculous. He is the ſame that Virgil laughs ſo much at in his Eclogues, as when he ſays, Qui Bavium non odit, amet tua Carmina, Mævi.

BAULDWIN the Firſt, Emperor of Conſtantinople, was before Count of Flanders and Hainault, and Son of Bauldwin the Couragious, and of Margaret of Alſace. He join'd with the French in the Croiſade, An. 1200. took Zara with the Venetians, put the young Alexis on the Throne of his Father Iſaac Angelo, made himſelf Maſter of Conſtantinople, after he had driven thence Murzuflae, the Tyrant that ſtrangled Alexis IV. This happened in 1204. and he himſelf was choſen Emperor ſome Months after. He beſieged Adrianople in 1205. but was forced to raiſe the Siege to meet Joannitze King of the Bulgarians coming to its Relief. This Expedition proved very unlucky to him, for he was taken in an Ambuſcade, and was kept cloſe Priſoner at Trinobis or Ernoe, Capital of Bulgaria, to the end of July, 1206. when he was put to death, leaving his Right of the Empire to his Brother Henry. After the death of this Bauldwin the Firſt, he was counterfeited by an Impoſtor in Flanders, who pretended to be the ſame Perſon, and by a Wile had made his eſcape out of Priſon in Bulgaria. He was much followed by the credulous People; but Jane Counteſs of Flanders, and Daughter to the Prince deceas'd, got him apprehended, and executed at Liſle, October 1225. Du Cange, Onuphr. Spondan. &c.

BAULDWIN the Second, Son to Peter Courtenai, Emperor of Conſtantinople, by his ſecond Wife Yoland of Hainault, Siſter to Bauldwin I. He was born in 1217. and ſucceeded his Brother Robert, who died in 1228. but being too young to govern the Empire, John of Brienne King of Jeruſalem was ſent for, who came to Conſtantinople in 1234. Bauldwin Married his Daughter, and both were Crowned in 1239. which is generally reckoned the firſt year of his Reign. He came to France in 1237. for help from St. Lewis, and engaged the County of Namur to him. He alſo conſented that King Lewis ſhould redeem the Thorns of our Saviour's Crown, the Spunge, and the Lance that pierced his Side, which he himſelf pawned to the Venetians for a conſiderable Sum. St. Lewis paid the Money, and Bauldwin went back to Conſtantinople, declared War againſt John Varace Emperor of Nice, defeated his Army, and took ſome Places from him in Thrace; after which he made a League with the Sultan of Iconium, one of the Powerfulleſt Princes among the Infidels, and then came to France, where he was preſent at the General Council held at Lyons in 1245. and receiving the News of the death of Theodorus Laſcaris, he returned to Conſtantinople in great hopes of becoming Maſter of all the Empire. But at the time that he laid Siege to Daphnuſi, a Town upon the Black Sea, he himſelf was ſurprized by Alexis Cæſar, ſirnamed Strategopuleus, General to Michael Paleologus, who entred into Conſtantinople by a Water Conduit under Ground, being led by ſome of the Treacherous Inhabitants, on the 25th of July at night, in 1261. after that City had been for 58 years governed by the Latins. The Emperor came into Italy, with Pantaleon Juſtinian Patriarch of Conſtantinople along with him, and made ſome ſtay at Naples, and was about a Treaty with Charles I. for the recovery of the Empire, but to no purpoſe. He died in 1273. Nangis & Du Cange.

BAULDWIN, the Firſt of the Name, King of Jeruſalem, was Son to Euſtach Count of Bologne, and followed his Brother Godfrey into the Holy Land, where he had the Principality of Edeſſa. He ſucceeded his Brother Godfrey, and was Crowned King of Jeruſalem the 25th of December 1100. the ſame year that his Brother died. In 1101. he took Antipatris, Cæſarea, and Azotus, and kill'd 5000 Saracens at Aſcalon, and with the Succour of 70 Genoueſe Ships, made himſelf Maſter of Acre the 24th of May 1104. by a Siege of 20 Months; and after ſome other Advantages over the Saracens, he died without Iſſue in the year 1118. Gulielm. Tyr.

BAULDWIN the Second, of Bourg, Son to Hugh Count of Rethel, was Crowned this ſame year, when Euſtach Count of Bolognia, Brother to Godfrey and Bauldwin I. had quitted his Pretenſions to the Kingdom of Jeruſalem. On the 14th of Auguſt, 1120. he kill'd 14000 Saracens that had defeated 9000 of Roger of Antioch's Army. He was made Priſoner the year after, Ranſomed in 1124. and died in 1131. the 13th year of his Reign.

BAULDWIN the Third, Son of Fouques of Anjou, ſucceeded the former in 1143. but being young, his Mother Meliſinde governed the Kingdom. In 1145. the Chriſtians loſt the Town of Edeſſa, and their Affairs began to be in a very ill poſture in Paleſtine; to redreſs them, Lewis the Seventh, King of France, called the Young, the Emperor Conradus, and ſeveral other Princes, took the Croſs in 1146. at St. Bernard's ſolicitation; but this Undertaking had no ſucceſs. Bauldwin beſieged Aſcalon in February 1153. and took it the 20th of the following Auguſt, and made himſelf Maſter of ſeveral Towns on the Sea-ſide. His Courage and Wiſdom ſupported the Affairs of the Holy Land a long time, but he died the 23d of February 1163. It's ſaid, that when the Saracens deſired Sultan Noradin to fall upon the Chriſtians at his Burial, he made Anſwer, That it became themſelves to have ſome concern for their grief, ſince it was for the loſs of ſo great a Prince as the whole World could not Parallel. Guil. de Tyre, Otho Friſingen. St. Bernard in Ep.

BAULDWIN the Fourth, Son of Amauris and Agnes of Courtenay, came to the Crown after his Father's death, which happened in 1174. Raimond Count of Tripoli governed the Kingdom in this King's minority, who was ſirnam'd Ladre or Leper. This Diſtemper hinder'd him from Marrying; but that there might be Succeſſors of his Blood, he Married his Siſter Sibylle to William Count of Montferrat, ſirnamed Long Sword, who was Father to Bauldwin V. William dying ſome time after, Bauldwin Married his Siſter to Guy of Luſignan, and defeated about the ſame time Saladin, who came to ſurprize Jeruſalem. Bauldwin died in 1185. his Nephew ſurvived him but a year, being Poiſoned, as was thought, by his Mother Sibylle, to get the Crown for her Husband Guy. Guil. de Tyre.

BAULDWIN the Firſt, ſirnam'd Iron-Arm, Count of Flanders, Son, as ſome ſay, to Audacker, Great Foreſter of that Country; for the Low Countries being all covered with Trees, the Governors ſent thither by the Kings of France were call'd Foreſters. This Bauldwin died in 877. Le Mire.

BAULDWIN the Second, call'd the Bald, Son of Bauldwin I. ſucceeded in his Eſtate, from whom Charles the Simple took Arras, though he had done conſiderable Services againſt the Danes and Normans. This Bauldwin II. died the 2d of January 918. and was ſucceeded by Arnoul the Great, his Son.

BAULDWIN the Third, ſirnam'd the Young, was Son to Arnoul, and began to Reign in the year 958. with much Wiſdom and Judgment; he died in 961.

BAULDWIN the Fourth, Count of Flanders and Artois, call'd Fair-beard, was Son of Arnoul II. He ſucceeded his Father in 989. took Valenciennes and other Places, and would have probably been the moſt fortunate Prince of his time, had not his Son Bauldwin V. made War againſt him. Guillaume, Moine de Jumieges.

BAULDWIN the Fifth, called the Frieſlander, and afterwards the Meek, was one of the greateſt Princes of his time; he can only be diſcommended in liſtning more to his Ambition than to the Voice of Nature, for he drove his Father Bauldwin Fair-beard out of his Dominions; but the old Prince was afterwards reſtor'd by the Aſſiſtance of Richard III. or, as ſome will have it, of Robert II. Duke of Normandy. He ſubdued the Friſons, and declared in favour of Godfrey III. againſt the Emperor Henry III. call'd the Black. After the death of Henry I. King of France, Bauldwin was choſen Guardian to his Nephew Philip I. was entruſted with the Government of the Realm, during the young King's minority, and gave manifeſt Proofs how well he deſerved the Honour that was done him. He died September 1. 1067.

BAULDWIN the Seventh, Son to Robert II. call'd the Hieroſolymitan; ſome Authors ſirnam'd him the Young, becauſe he ſucceeded his Father when very young; he ſided with Lewis the Burley, againſt Henry I. King of England, and died in 1118. of a Wound he received at the Attack of a little Caſtle in Normandy.

BAULDWIN the Eighth, ſirnamed the Couragious, Son to Bauldwin VI. call'd the Builder, ſucceeded to the County of Flanders after the death of Philip of Alſace in 1191. being Count of Hainault from 1170. He did Homage to Philip Auguſtus in 1192. and delivered him the Country of Artois; after which he died in 1195.

BAULDWIN the Ninth. See Bauldwin the Firſt of this Name Emperor of Conſtantinople. Sect. Badowin I. of Hainault, did nothing conſiderable.

BAULDWIN the Second, Sirnamed of Jeruſalem, was youngeſt Son to Bauldwin VI. called of Mons, Count of Flanders, and Brother to Arnoul III. ſirnamed the Unlucky. Robert the Friezlander, or of Caſſel, their Uncle, deprived them of their Lands in Flanders, and gave a great defeat to their Party at the Battel of Mont-Caſſel in 1071. wherein Arnoul the Unlucky was killed, and Bauldwin eſcaped but narrowly, and was at laſt killed in 1098. in his Journey to Jeruſalem.

BAULDWIN the Fourth, Sirnamed the Builder, ſucceeded his Father in 1120. being then but 12 years of Age: He ſhewed the greatneſs of his Courage by reducing thoſe of Valencienne that had revolted, and by his vigorous reſiſtance againſt Thieri of Alſace, Count of Flanders, who had joined himſelf with ſeveral other Princes againſt him. He died in 1170.

BAULDWIN of Padarborne in Germany. He is known by the Name of Baulduinus Parachus, becauſe he was Curate or Rector of Padarborne. He flouriſh'd about the year 1418. and writ an Univerſal Hiſtory, which he carried on to the ſame year. Voſſius De Hiſt. Lat. lib. 2. Geſner. &c.

BAULME, a Town of the Franche-Compte, 4 Leagues from Beſançon, near to which is a Cave, that ſerves all the Country for an Ice-Houſe, the Entrance is about 20 Paces large, whence People deſcend 300 Paces to the Door of the Grotto, which is very wide and high, and the Cavern is mighty ſpacious, being 60 Paces wide, and 35 Paces deep, and is not at all obſcure. In Summer, there hang great pieces of Ice on the ſides of it, and down from the Vault. There is alſo much Ice upon a ſmall Brook that takes up part of this Cavern, which is frozen in Summer, and not in the leaſt cold in Winter. The Country People about it foretel the change of Weather by the temper of the Air in that Cave, for if they find it pure they do not queſtion a fair time, but if they ſee it foggy they are in as great apprehenſion of Rain. There are Stones in it perfectly reſembling the Skins of Citrons confected.

BAUMAN, a very remarkable Cavern in the County of Regenſtein in the Circle of Low-Saxony in Germany, the Entrance is ſo round and narrow that many cannot get in at a time; it is very deep, and ſome have gone 4 German miles forward in it towards the Town of Goſlar. Near the Entrance is a Spring of clear Water, which is commended as good againſt the Stone or Gravel, and has this property, that it never corrupts if kept in a Glaſs, and that it has no Sediment at all. There fall ſome drops of Water from the Vault that freeze as they fall, and form very pretty Figures. Theſe ſmall Petrefied Drops are called Lapides Salactites, and crumble into powder when they are broke, which is ſaid to be good for drying of Wounds. There are many Bones found in this Cave, and ſome have dug Teeth out of the bottom of it that were thrice as big as Horſe-Teeth, and ſome Bones of a Man's Body that were of a prodigious bigneſs; beſides theſe there are found many Bones of Beaſts, which ſilly People buy for Unicorns Horns, and lay up as rare for curing ſeveral Diſtempers. There are the Bodies of Men of an ordinary ſize, thought to have been People that for curioſity engaged themſelves ſo far that they could not find the way out again. Eckſtormius Hiſtoria Terremot.

BAUME, Baulme, or Balme, the Name of divers Lands, and many Noble Families of Dauphine, Breſſe, and Burgundy, &c. amongſt which there are 3 more Ancient and Illuſtrious than the other, which are that of Baume Sur Cerdon, Baume Montreuel, and Baume Suſe.

BAUMGARTNER (Jerom) a Lawyer of Nuremberg, who took part with the Proteſtants, and was a particular Friend to Luther and Melancthon, who ſpeaks very often of him in his Letters. He was an honeſt, good, and obliging Man, and much bemoaned by all the Town of Nuremberg, when he died in 1565.

BAUTRE, a ſmall Town in the Weſt Riding of Yorkſhire, near Nottinghamſhire, of great Trade for Mill-ſtones and Grind-ſtones, which are thence ſent to Hull; it is 117 miles from London.

BAUTSEN, Lat. Budiſinum, the chief Town of Luſatia in Germany, on the River Sprehe, belonging to the Elector of Saxony: It was formerly an Imperial Town; It ſtands 4 German miles Weſt from Grolik, and 7 Eaſt from Dreſden; The Imperialiſts were poſſeſs'd of it in 1634. when the Duke of Saxony coming to attack Goltz, the Governor of the Town ſet Fire to the Suburbs, thinking to put a ſtop to the Enemies progreſs, but the Fire reaching the Town it ſelf, conſum'd it all, with abundance of the Inhabitants. Baud.

BAUX, or The Baux, a ſmall Town in Provence, which in former times had the Title of a Barony, and has now that of a Marquiſate; it belongs to the Prince of Monacho, and is ſituated upon a Rock with a good Caſtle, at 2 or 3 Leagues diſtance from Arles, in a fertil Soil, abounding in Vines, Olive-Trees, &c. This Town is much renowned for the Family of Baux, ſo famous for its Power and Alliances.

Some Miſtakes of the former Edition Rectify'd under the Word Orange, relating to the Words Arles, Baux, Châlon, Dauphine, Orange and Provence.

The Territories of Baux, now call'd Bauſſenques, have formerly been call'd a Principality, or County, and the Lords of the Family of Baux have always taken the Title of Prince or Count, as appears from ancient Hiſtorians. Thus the Emperors Conrade II. and Frederick I. and II. Stile them in their Golden Bulls, dated 1146. 1173. 1178. 1214. The ſame advantage of Title is likewiſe given them in the Treatiſe with the Counts of Provence, made in the years 1150. 1177 and 1257. The Lands call'd Bauſſenques were were divided into 77 Portions, under which were comprehended the Town of Aix, the Iſles of Martigues, Bourg-neuf, d'Arles, Trinquetaille, and other Places which the Princes of Baux poſſeſs'd, with great Privileges and Advantages of Tenure, doing Homage to the Earl of Provence according to the Treaty concluded in 1150. And being made Independent by the Interpoſition of the Emperor Frederic II. by vertue of a Treaty in 1177. Secondly, The Viſcounty of Marceille was likewiſe the Patrimonial Eſtate of this Family, which Bertrand de Baux, Son of Hugo, ſold to the Biſhop and the Town, for Eighty four thouſand Royal Sols: This ſame Bertrand likewiſe alienated the remaining Parts of his Inheritance, by Extravagant Grants and Legacies, as appears by his Will dated in July 1170. This Will was very much to the prejudice of the Family, and contradicted the Will of Hugo de Baux his Father, who had Deviſ'd the Territories in ſuch manner, that another Bertrand, Uncle to him above-mention'd, Prince of Orange, and his Heirs, had a Right in 'em; Upon which account the Emperor Frederick I. declared theſe Grants and Alienations of Bertrand void in his Golden Bull, dated Auguſt 1178. Thirdly, The Kingdom of Arles came into the Hands of William V. Prince of Orange, Son of Bertrand I. by vertue of a Grant made to him by the Emperor Frederick II. in 1257. Raymond, Grandchild to William, parted with it to Charles I. Earl of Provence, and Brother to St. Lewis King of France. Afterwards, it appears by the Hiſtory of thoſe Times, that this Earl obliged Raymond to do Homage for this Kingdom, which he held of the Empire, under pretence of having purchas'd the Right to demand it; which notwithſtanding does not at all agree with the Act of September 10. 1257. where all the Rights and Privileges, as well Imperial as others, are expreſſly ſecured to the Prince of Orange. Fourthly, It evidently appears, that Raymond de Baux and Stephanilla his Wife, only Daughter of Earl Gilbert, were lawfully ſeiz'd of all Provence, both by the death of Gilbert above-mention'd, who was Lord and Proprietor of the Country, and likewiſe by the Infeofment of the Emperor Conrade, bearing date Auguſt 1146. 'Tis true, that ſome little time after, the Right was conteſted by Raymond Berenger II. call'd the Younger, as it was likewiſe afterwards by his Uncle, Count of Barcelona and King of Arragon, who pretended that Provence belong'd to him, by vertue of the Will of old Earl Raymond Berenger and his Counteſs Douce, who were Father and Mother to Gilbert above-mention'd. This Difference was taken up by a Treaty bearing date September 1150. between Raymond Berenger and Stephanilla, being then a Widow. This Stephanilla had Three Sons, who refus'd to ſtand to their Mother's Agreement, pretending ſhe was over-reach'd, and diſpoſſeſs'd the Berengers almoſt of all Provence, by force of Arms; upon which the Emperor Frederick II. Uncle of Rechild, who was Married to Young Berenger, Interpos'd his Authority, and procur'd a Peace, which was concluded Anno 1177. At laſt, for want of Heirs Male, Provence fell to the Four Daughters of Raymond Berenger V. From whence it follows, that the Princes of Orange, as being deſcended from Stephanilla, have a Right to come in for their Share of Provence with the reſt of the Daughters above-mention'd, or thoſe deſcended from them: Farther, the Princes of Baux d'Orange had the ſole Right of Coining Money for the uſe of all Provence; They had likewiſe the Privilege to March their Armies with Colours flying through all the Country which lies between the Alps and the Iſere, the Rhone and the Mediterranean, by vertue of the Treaties of 1146. 1178. and 1214. To Rectifie the Hiſtory of Châlon, relating to the Houſe of Orange, we are to obſerve, That in the year 1237. John d'Châlon exchang'd his Earldom of Châlon upon the Soane, with Hugo Duke of Burgundy, for the Barony of Harlay, with the Dependencies belonging to it: This Barony had Two hundred ninety five Vaſſals under its Juriſdiction, (the Count of Neuf-Châttel being one) which Juriſdictions and Privileges the Princes of Orange, of the Houſe of Châlon, have always reſerv'd, they being all Prior to the Grant which Rodolphus, King of the Romans, made in April, 1288. to John II. of the Branch of Châlon, who was Son to him laſt mentioned. John granted away this Right to the Houſe of Hoeberg, reſerving only Fealty and Homage to himſelf; which Services were accordingly perform'd, and Lewis, Earl of Neufchâtel, the only remaining Male of the Family, died in 1373. and left an only Daughter, nam'd Elizabeth. This Lady had a Daughter call'd Frena, who was married to Conrade II. Earl of Friburg, who had Iſſue Conrade III. During whoſe Government, and by whoſe Conſent, the Council and Commonalty of Neufchâtel made a publick Declaration in Auguſt, 1406. That if Conrade ſhould happen to die without any lawful Iſſue-Male, that then the Earldom ſhould revert to John de Châlon, Prince of Orange. Some little time after, Conrade had a Son call'd John, who married Mary de Châlon, Daughter of John I. Prince of Orange, who dying without Children in 1458. left all his Territories and Eſtate by Will to his Couſin Rodolphus, Marquiſs of Hoeberg, who was married to Anne, Daughter of Conrade III. Earl of Friburg, whoſe Poſterity carried their Right and Pretenſions into the Family of Longueville. Mary de Châlon, who surviv'd her Husband Conrade, diſpos'd of all her Fortune and Eſtate to her Nephew Lewis de Châlon, Prince of Orange; and, among other things, bequeathed to him the Reverſion of the Juriſdiction upon the Earldom of Neufchâtel, which her Father John I. had given her by Articles of Marriage; which Lewis diſpoſed of by Will to his Succeſſors, in 1476. who tho' they maintain'd their Right to the beſt of their Power, yet it ſunk by degrees, after that this Earldom went to the Houſe of Orleans Longueville, which Branch was ſupported in their Claim by Lewis XI. and Charles VIII. This Diſpute was the ground of that implacable Hatred between John II. Prince of Orange, and the Count de Dunois, which notwithſtanding was ſomewhat moderated by Charles VIII. and Anne of Britaigne his Queen, they having paſs'd an Order in December, 1491. That the Pretenſions of the Houſe of Orange ſhould be fairly conſidered and adjuſted without Blows; which notwithſtanding was not done, both becauſe John Prince of Orange died in the year 1501. and likewiſe Philibert his Son took the part of the Emperor Charles V. againſt France; and beſides, becauſe the Civil Wars happen'd to break out in France, in the beginning of this Century. Before we conclude, 'tis not improper to obſerve, That Beatrix of Vienne, only Daughter to Guy XIII. and Grand-daughter to John II. was Rightful Heireſs of Dauphine, and married to Hugo de Châlon, Lord of Harlay; which clearly proves, That Chorier, and thoſe Hiſtorians that follow'd him, are miſtaken, when they affirm, That the Dauphin Guy XIII. died without Iſſue; or at leaſt they had a mind to diſſemble their Knowledge, to paſs the Right of this Province the better to Humbert the laſt, and by this means to make good the Conveyance which Humbert made of it to the Crown of France, in the year 1341. The French Hiſtorians have likewiſe forborn to mention, how Humbert being poſſeſs'd of the Perſons of Beatrix his Aunt, and John her Son, Lord of Harlay, oblig'd them by Dureſſe to quit all their Claim to Dauphine, as appears by two Acts; the firſt of the 10th of February, 1334. and the other of the 20th of January, 1344. Which Renunciation was afterwards repeated at the inſtance of Philip de Valois, King of France, and at the inſtance of his Son, in the Months of June and July, 1349. upon the Conſideration of ſome Baronies in Dauphine, and a certain Sum of Money; which Baronies notwithſtanding neither Beatrix, her Son John, nor any of her Poſterity ever enjoy'd; neither did any of them ever receive the leaſt part of the Money agreed for, as appears by ſeveral Records, from the year 1351. to 1436. which it would be tedious to recite: Which Failure gives the Princes of Orange a Pretenſion to their ancient Right. Itinerar. du Moulin, & Belli en leurs Conſeils. Du Maurier en ſes Memoires, &c. See Orange.

BAYÆ, an ancient Town, now ruin'd, in the Kingdom of Naples in Italy, near the Gulph of Pouzzol, called formerly Bajanus Sinus. The Emperor Caligula got a Bridge of Boats made over it that was two French Leagues long, and went over this Bridge to Pouzzol, and returned the next day in Triumph, bringing a Prince of the Royal Race of the Parthians along with him, who was named Darius, and an Hoſtage at Rome. When he came to the middle of the Bridge, he made a Speech to his Army, and bragg'd that he did exceed Xerxes, who tho' he join'd Aſia and Europe together by a Bridge, yet that Bridge was not ſo long as his. Sueton. See Baiæ.

BAYNARD (Ralph) a Valiant Norman, came over with William the Conqueror, as Odericus Vitalis, in his Hiſtory of Normandy, reciteth; and was for his Conduct and Courage in the Battel againſt Harauld, Rewarded with Eighty five fair Lordſhips, as appears by Doomſday-Book; And are alſo cited, with their Names and Places, by that famous Antiquary Sir William Dugdale, in his Baronagium Anglicanum, viz. In Norfolk 44, Eſſex 25, Suffolk 13, and in Hertfordſhire 3. This Ralph Baynard, ſaith Gwwas of Tilbury, and alſo Fitz-Stephen, conſiderable Hiſtorians, built Baynard's Caſtle in London, being a Stately Edifice of Stone, and ſome ſay the firſt Nobleman's Houſe (after the Conqueſt) built on the Banks of the River of Thames, but was demoliſh'd and rebuilt in the Reign of King John, according to ſome Hiſtorians: He died in the Reign of King William Rufus, and his Son Geffery Baynard ſucceeded, whoſe Mother Juga Baynard, the Widow of Ralph, procured Mauricius Biſhop of London, to Dedicate the Church of Dunmow in Eſſex, unto the Bleſſed Virgin, which Church ſhe built, and gave thereunto half a Hide of Land. Geffery Baynard, Baron of Dunmow in Eſſex, and Lord of Caſtle Baynard in London, by the Conſent of Anſelme then Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, placed Canons in the Church of Dunmow, and gave to the Abbey of St. Mary's in York the Church of Burton, with thoſe other Churches and Lands belonging to Burton, viz. Arpham, Foxhole, and Butterwicke, together with the Tythes of Burton. This Geffery Baynard, living very Happily, and without the leaſt Miſunderſtanding with his Wife, is ſuppoſed to be the Founder of the Dunmow Flitch of Bacon, as a Gift to thoſe who Repented not their Marriage in a Year and a Day, &c. Unto Geffery ſucceeded William Baynard his Eldeſt Son and Heir, who being a Man of Spirit, and Impatient under the Reign of King Henry, reſolved to venture all to Enthrone Robert the Eldeſt Son, who had a Paternal Right to the Crown, took part with Philip de Bruoſe, Helius Earl of Mayne, William Mallet, and other Perſons of Quality and Fortune; but being betrayed in their Deſign, he loſt his Barony, together with the Honours of his Caſtle called by his Name; and King Henry I. gave it, with his Barony, to Robert Fitz-Gilbert, Progenitor to the Ancient Earls of Clare, from which Robert, the Noble Family of Fitz-Walter, is deſcended. This former Loſs falling ſo heavily on the Family of Baynard, ſo clouded the ſame, until Sir Robert Baynard, that held ſome Lands in Norfolk and Eſſex, a Deſcendant from a younger Son of Geffery, and Brother to the Lord William Baynard, went with King Edward I. among the Flower of the Gentry, to the Siege of Kairlaveroth, and the Conqueſt of Scotland; The Roll of which Service containing the Coats of all thoſe Cavaliers, is the exacteſt Piece of Armory now extant; and this is that Sir Robert Baynard (as I conceive) who was ſummoned to Parliament at Weſtminſter, in the 6th year of the Reign of King Edward II. This Sir Robert's Eldeſt Son was named Robert, and he had Iſſue Robert, which Robert had Iſſue Thomas, of the County of Eſſex, who had Iſſue John, obiit 2 Edw. III. who had Iſſue Thomas, who had Iſſue Edmond; which Edmond Baynard of Eſſex, was married unto Eleonor, Daughter and Heir of Sir John Blewet of Leckham, in the County of Wilts, in the Reign of King Edward III. from whom, in a continued Series of that Name and Family, as followeth: This Edmond, by his Wife Eleonor, had Iſſue Philip, who had Iſſue Robert, who had Iſſue Philip, who had Iſſue Robert, married to Elizabeth Ludlow of Hill-Daverill in the County of Wilts, who had Iſſue Philip, married to Jane, Daughter to Nicholas Stewkley of Awſton, Eſq; in Com. Devon, who had Iſſue Robert, married to Anne, Daughter to Robert Blaake of Pennills in the County of Wilts, Eſq; who had Iſſue Edward Baynard, married to Elizabeth, Daughter of John Warnford of Sevinhampton in the County of Wilts, Eſq; who had Iſſue Robert, which Robert by Queen Elizabeth was made Sir Robert, who at his own Charges raiſed two Companies for the Service at Tilbury againſt the Spaniſh Invaſion; which Sir Robert had Iſſue Mary, his ſole Daughter and Heir, by Urſula, Daughter to Sir Robert Stapleton Kt. in the County of York; which Mary was married to James Montague, third Son to the Right Honourable Henry Earl of Mancheſter, Viſcount Mandevile, Baron of Kimbolton, and Lord Privy-Seal: This Sir Robert Baynard had ſix Brothers, viz. Giles, Edward, Philip, Thomas, Ralph, and Benjamin. Giles had Iſſue Robert, who died without Iſſue: Edward had Iſſue Edward, who had Iſſue Edward, Doctor in Phyſick, and Fellow of the College of Phyſicians, London, who was married to Anne, Daughter to Robert Rawlinſon of Carke in the County of Lancaſter, Eſq; and Relict of Chriſtopher Crackanthrop of Newbiggin in the County of Weſtmorland, Eſq; by whom he had only one Daughter named Anne; which Anne Baynard, for her Prudence, Piety, and Learning, very well deſerves to have her Memory perpetuated, being not only well-skill'd in the Learned Languages, but in all manner of Learning and Philoſophy, without Vanity or Affectation: Her Words were few, well choſen, and expreſſive: She was ſeldom ſeen to ſmile, being rather of a Reſerv'd and Stoical Diſpoſition, which Sect of Philoſophers ſhe moſt affected, their Doctrine (in moſt Points) ſeeming agreeable to her Natural Temper; for ſhe never read or ſpake of them but with a ſort of Delight and Pleaſingneſs in her Countenance. She had a great Contempt of the World, eſpecially of the Finery and Gaiety of Life. She had a great Regard and Veneration for the Sacred Name of GOD, and made it the whole Buſineſs of her Life to promote His Honour and Glory, and the great End of her Study was to encounter Atheiſts and Libertines, as may be ſeen in ſome ſevere Satyrs written in the Latin Tongue, in which Language ſhe had a great readineſs and fluency of Expreſſion, which made a Gentleman of no ſmall Parts and Learning ſay of her,

So that 'tis a queſtion which has done moſt Honour to the Name and Family of Baynard, viz. the firſt Ralph or the laſt Anne. She was born at Preſton in Lancaſhire, and died on the 12 of June, 1697. (at Barnes in Surrey, where ſhe lies buried) in the 23d year of her Age. The Arms of this Family are Sable, a Feſs between two Cheverons, Or; the Motto, Vive ut Vivas. Dugd. M. Paris.

BAYRAS, an Heretick Jacobite; he lived in the beginning of the 7th Age, and was one of the Maſters and particular Friends of the Impoſtor Mahomet, whom he help'd to make his Alcoran.

BAZ, Orite, a ſmall Iſland on the Weſt of Ireland, over-againſt the Earldom of Deſmond, in the Province of Munſter, North of the Bay of Dingle, called by the Iriſh Blaſquo.

BAZA, or Baſa, Baſti, a Town in Spain near the River Gaudalentin, in the Kingdom of Granada, upon the Borders of Murcia and Caſtile; it was in times paſt a Biſhoprick Suffragan of Toledo. This Town ſtands to the North-Eaſt of the City of Granada, a Place ſtrong by Art and Nature, and the beſt Defence of the Kingdom of Granada. When it was in the hands of the Moors, in the year 1489. they defended it 7 months againſt an Army of 37000 Spaniards, Commanded by Ferdinand the Catholick in Perſon, and at laſt was yielded on moſt Honourable Terms. Heylin.

BAZA (Francis) an Italian, who undertook with Salcedo to kill the Prince of Orange, and the Duke of Brabant; and being taken with Salcedo, he acknowledged his Crime, and kill'd himſelf with a Knife in Priſon, in 1582. His Body was dragg'd to the Gallows, where it was hanged and quarter'd; and there was a Writing ſtuck to the Gibbet, ſhewing how he had undertaken to murther or poiſon the Duke and Prince, and that by an expreſs Command of the Duke of Parma. Meteren. Hiſt.

BAZAIM, Barcue, a vaſt Tract of Land, but very barren, which lies between Egypt and the Kingdom of Tunis in Africa, the ſame which was called Marmarica. There is a Town of this Name in the Kingdom of Guzarate, upon the Coaſt of the Gulph of Cambaia, 26 Leagues from Damon to the South. It has been in the hands of the Portugueſe ever ſince 1534. who have built a good Citadel, with ſeveral ſtately Churches in it, and made it a fine Town. The Gentry reſort much hither, inſomuch that Fidalgos de Bazaim, a Gentleman of Bazaim, is become a Proverb with the Portugueſe.

BAZARIA, a Province of the Scythians, where the Inhabitants made their greateſt Magnificence to conſiſt in having Parks will ſtocked with wild Beaſts, chuſing for this purpoſe great Foreſts, that had the conveniency of Water; theſe they environed with Walls and Towers for Huntſmen to lodge in. Alexander the Great being in this Country, they ſhewed him a Park where none had Hunted for 400 years before; and it was here he had the good Fortune to kill a great Lion with his own Hand, that was coming towards him; and in regard of this Danger, the Macedonians ordered that the King ſhould not go a-foot to Hunt, without ſome of the Guards and Officers along with him. Q. Curtius.

BAZAS upon Buve, a Town of France in Guienne: It has a Biſhop's Seat, Suffragan of Auch: It is an ancient Town, mentioned by Auſonius, Sidonius Apollinaris, &c. under the Name of Coſſio, or Goſſium, Vaſatum, Civitas Vaſatica, and Vaſatæ Arenoſæ. The Ancients call'd the Inhabitants of this Town Vaſates, who perhaps were the ſame with the Cocoſates of Cæſar and Pliny. It is ſituated upon a Rock, at the foot whereof the River Buve runs; the Land about it is woody and unfruitful. This Town is 25 miles South of Bourdeaux, and 55 North-Weſt of Aux.

BAZIN, (John) Reſident for the King of France at the Court of Poland, was born at Blois in 1538. of a Noble and Ancient Family of that Country: After he had laboured ſucceſsfully for the Election of the Duke of Anjou, he returned into France, to acquaint the King with what paſſed in Poland; who finding his Wit and Wiſdom, both he and Henry, then choſen King of Poland, named him Reſident for France in that Kingdom, where at his arrival he ſtifled the Factions that he found amongſt the Gentry, whereof ſome made Propoſitions for a new Election, in caſe the King did not come to Poland before the latter end of September; he beſtirr'd himſelf, and oppoſed ſtrongly the Calling of a General Diet, knowing that there were ſome who had a Deſign to deprive the King of the Power of Adminiſtring Juſtice, under pretence that he did not underſtand their Laws, to the end they might ſettle that Prerogative on the Senate. In fine, he brought things to that paſs, that all was peaceable at the arrival of Monſieur Rambouillet, Ambaſſador from the King of France to Poland. At this time Bazin, willing to return into France, was ordered by the Queen-Mother to wait there until the King came, and to ſtay with him; which he did for a time, but at laſt came into France, where being diſcover'd to be a Proteſtant, he left the Kingdom, but returned again ſome time after, and died in 1592. his Son Iſaac being Deputy-General for the Proteſtants at Court. Bernier.

BEARN, a Province of France, which had the Title of Principality, lying at the foot of the Pyrenean Mountains. It hath the County of Bigorre on the Eaſt; the Provoſtſhip of Acqs, Lower Navarre, and part of the Country of Soule, on the Weſt; on the South the Mountains of Aragon and thoſe of Roncal, in Upper Navarre; and on the North Lower Armagnac, and part of Gaſcoigny: Pau is the Capital City of it; the others are, Laſcar, Oleron, Nay, Orthez, Navarriens, Morlas, Sauveterre, Pontac, Laubege, Salies, and 434 Boroughs or Villages, 2 Biſhopricks, and 5 Abbeys. The Figure of its Situation is much like a Triangle, whoſe length, not compriſing the Valleys, is 14 miles off Gaſcoigny; that is to ſay, about 20 or 25 Leagues of France. It is of an unequal breadth, the greateſt being of 10 Leagues, the middle of 6, and the leaſt of 2. There are two principal Rivers which are named Gave, the firſt whereof hath its Source in the Mountains of Bareiges in Bigorre, and is commonly called the Gave of Bearn. The other is that of Oleron, compoſed of the Gaves of Aſpe and Oſſau; and its Source is in the higheſt of the Pyrenean Mountains, where Bearn and Spain are parted. Theſe Rivers or Gaves are not Navigable, but they abound mightily in Fiſh. There are very high Mountains, and amongſt the reſt that of Oſſau, with 3 Heads, called the Pike of the South, and the Pike of Tres Serons; that is to ſay, of 3 Siſters, becauſe there are 3 Points, 2 of which are on the ſide of Bearn, and the third on the ſide of Arragon. From the top of this Mountain both the Seas and the Mountains of Caſtile are ſeen. 'Tis only the Labour and Induſtry of the Inhabitants which render this Province fertile. There are Mineral Waters, Salt, and much Cattle fed on the Mountains. Bearn was under the Government of its Natural Princes almoſt 800 years, from the time that Lewis the Meek eſtabliſh'd Viſcounts there, after he had baniſh'd Loup Centulle, Duke of Gaſcoigny, about the year 819. Two years after, this Country fell to the Houſe of Moncade, and afterwards to that of Albret, whence Henry IV. deſcended, who united that Country to the Kingdom of France. The Government of the Lords of Bearn was ruled by the Cuſtoms of the Country, which were named Fors, and they judged deciſively betwixt their Subjects in the Court called Major, compoſed of the Biſhops of Laſcar and Oleron, and 12 Barons of the Country. Since then, Alein of Albret, Grandfather of Henry II. King of Navarre, erected an Ordinary Council and a Sovereign Court at Pau; and it is of this Council and the Chancellorſhip of Navarre that King Lewis XIII. eſtabliſhed the Parliament of Pau, conſiſting of 4 Preſidents, 21 Counſellors, and 3 King's Attorneys. There is beſides in Bearn a Seneſchal, who has 5 Lieutenans, whoſe Seats are at Pau, Oleron, Ortes, Morlas, and Sauveterre. The Chamber of Accounts of Pau, and that of Nerac, have been joined together, and erected into a Chamber of Accounts of Navarre, compoſed of 2 Preſidents, 10 Maſters of the Rolls, a King's Attorney and Serjeant in Law, and 2 Secretaries. The Name of Bearn is drawn from that of the ancient Venamians, or Venarnians, whence by corruption came Benearnians, Bearnians, and Bearn. The City of the Bearnians is ſpoken of in the ancient Itineraries and Deſcriptions of the Empire. This City is thought to be Laſcar. The Bearnois are dexterous, laborious, faithful, and good Soldiers. Their Country was at firſt ſubject to the Romans, and afterwards to the French ſince Clovis, and then to the Dukes of Gaſcoigny. One of the Princes of this Country united it to the Kingdom of Navarre, by marrying Eleonora their Queen; and ſince that time Henry IV. brought it to the French Crown, to which it was annexed for ever, by a Decree in 1620. The Proteſtant Religion was eſtabliſh'd here in 1560. and continued ſo till 1620. that Popery was reſtored, and the Exerciſe of the Reformed Religion only permitted, till Lewis XIV. revoked the Edict of Nantes. De Marca Hiſtoire de Bearn.

BEATRIX, Wife to Frederick I. Daughter to Renaud Earl of Burgundy, was married to this Emperor in 1156. She had one day the Curioſity to go to Milan to ſee this famous City; but the People, incens'd at the Loſs of their ancient Liberty, laid violent hands on her, put her upon an Aſs, her Face turned towards the Tail, which they put in her Hand inſtead of a Bridle; and in this manner led her about the whole City. So high an Inſolence was not long unpuniſh'd; for the Emperour beſieged them in 1163. took and raſed their City to the Ground, their Churches excepted, cauſed the reſt of the Soil to be tilled, and Salt to be ſown upon it in ſtead of Corn. There are Authors who have written, That after all this, thoſe who were taken could not ſave their Life, but upon the Condition, that they ſhould draw with their Teeth a Fig which was put into the Fundament of the Aſs upon which the Empreſs had been led through the City; and there were ſome (ſay they) who choſe to die ſooner than to ſuffer ſo great an Ignominy; Whence comes that Proverb of the Italians, when in ſhewing a Finger betwixt two others, they ſay through Mockery, See the Fig. Felibien. Krantzius.

BEATRIX of Provence, Queen of Naples, Sicily, &c. was the Fourth Daughter and principal Heireſs of Raimond-Berenger V. Earl of Provence, &c. and of Beatrix of Sara. Divers Princes ſought her in Marriage, and ſhe Married in 1245 Charles of France, Son to King Lewis VIII. and Brother to St. Lewis, who had Married Margaret of Provence, Siſter to the ſame Beatrix. And as her other Siſters were Queens, ſhe moved her Husband to the Conqueſt of the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily; which was the cauſe of endleſs Wars and Evils. This Prince was Crowned at Rome with Beatrix, January 6. 1267. or 66 New Stile. The Queen died in 1267. at Nocerra. Sainte Marthe Bouche.

BEATUS, a Spaniſh Prieſt, who lived about the end of the Eighth Century. He writ with Heterius Biſhop of Oſma, againſt Elipand Archbiſhop of Toledo, a Work in two Books, under this Title, De Adoptione Chriſti Filii Dei. Peter Stevart having brought this Work from the Library of Toledo, publiſhed it at Ingolſtad, and it hath been ſince put into the Library of the Fathers.

BEATUS (Rhenanus) a German, of Schleſtadt in Alſatia, was born in 1485. He left Commentaries upon divers Authors, as upon Tertullian, Pliny, Titus Livius, Velleius Paterculus, Tacitus, and others. He alſo compoſed a Hiſtory of Germany. Beatus Rhenanus died at Strasbourg, being 62 Years old, in 1547. Thuan. Voſſius, Boiſſard.

BEAUCAIRE upon the Rhone, a City of France in Languedoc. Some Authors think it is the Urgenum of the Ancients. The Moderns call it Belloquadra. It is renown'd for the Fair which is held there every Year at the Feaſt of St. Mary Magdalen. This City in time paſt, belonged to Provence. Raimond Berenger, the firſt of this Name, Earl of Provence, yielded it to Alphonſus Jourdain, Earl of Toloſa, by an Act paſſed the 16th of September, 1125. It was taken ſince, during the Wars of the Albigeois, but ſome time after it yielded voluntarily to Raimond the Young. In 1251. Charles of France, Earl of Provence, and Alphonſus his Brother, Earl of Toulouſe, being aſſembled at Beaucaire, to regulate ſome important Buſineſſes, thoſe of Avignon forc'd them to take the Oath of Allegiance the 7th Day of May. Beaucaire ſuffered much in the latter Age; during the Civil Wars, the Proteſtants and Roman Catholicks taking and re-taking it ſeveral times. It had a ſtrong Caſtle built on a Rock by the River, which King Lewis XIII. cauſed to be demoliſhed. It's 10 Miles Eaſt of Niſmes, and 15 S. W. of Avignon. Long. 29. 96. BEAUCAITE (Francis) of Peguillon, Lord of La Creſte, and of Chommieres, Baron of St. Didiers, and Biſhop of Metz, born of a Noble Family in the County of Bourbon, is famous amongſt the Illuſtrious of the Sixteenth Age, He compoſed a great many Works, a Treatiſe of Children dead in their Mother's Womb; ſeveral Poems, and a Hiſtory, Entituled, Rerum Gallicarum Commentarii, ab Anno Chriſti 1461. ad Annum 1580. He died in 1591. Sponde. Sainte Marth.

BEAUCE, Beaulſe, or Beauſſe, Belſia, a Province of France, whoſe Limits are not known. Some do divide it into Upper, Middle, and Lower: Others particularly give the Name of Beauce to the Country which is betwixt Paris and Orleans, which ſo much abounds in Corn, that it is call'd the Granary of France. There are ſome who comprehend under the Name of great Beauce, the Country of Chartres, the Gatinois, Puiſſay, that of Orleans, Sologne, part of the Blaoſois about the River Loire, and even the Vendômois, and Dunois, on the ſide of Perche; ſo Beauce would have Thirty or Thirty five Leagues in breadth from Dreux to Romorentin, and near Fifty in Length from the Maine to Champaigne.

BEAUCHAMP, thoſe of this Family, have been Poſſeſſors of Bedford, Eton, Elmley, Earls and Dukes of Warwick, Lords Bergavenny, Powyke, Holt, Bletſho, St. Amand, Eſſex, and Hacch.

BEAUCHAMP (Sir John) was Steward of the Houſe to King Richard II. and by his Letters Patents made Baron Beauchamp of Kidderminſter; and reckon'd the firſt created by Letters Patent: He was afterwards beheaded by the Barons, who accuſed him and others of Miſgovernment. Camden Brit.

BEAUCHAMP (Richard) Earl of Warwick, was born in Worceſterſhire in 1381. and liv'd in the ſeveral Reigns of Richard II. Henry IV. Henry V. and Henry VI. Being ſcarce 22 years Old in the Fifth of Henry IV. he Challenged and Juſted with all Comers at the Queen's Coronation. He routed Owen Glendover, the Welch Rebel, put him to flight, fought a pitch'd Battel againſt the two Piercies at Shrewsbury, and overcame them. In his Pilgrimage to the Holy Land, being challenged by an Italian Prince to fight at Axes, Swords, and ſharp Daggers, he had kill'd him at the ſecond Weapon, had not ſome interpoſed. He ſignaliz'd himſelf in ſeveral Battels in France; was ſent by King Henry V. to the Council of Conſtance, with a Retinue of 800 Horſemen. Here he kill'd a German Duke, who challeng'd him, and that in the Preſence of Sigiſmund the Emperor, and his Empreſs; which laſt was ſo taken with his Valour, that ſhe took the Badge from one of his Men (being a plain Bear in Silver) and wore it on her Shoulder; but the next day the Earl preſented her with one made of Pearls and precious Stones. Being ſent by King Henry V. with 1000 Men at Arms to fetch Queen Katharine, ſole Daughter to the King of France, he fought the Earls of Vendoſm and Limoſin, kill'd one of them with his own Hand, routed a Body of 5000 Men, and brought the Lady ſafe to the King. He was by the ſaid King's Will, appointed Governor to his Son, during his Minority, and made Lieutenant of France. He died at Rouen, April 30. 1439. whence his Body was brought into England, and buried in a ſtately Tomb in a Chapel of the Collegiate Church of Warwick, where his Epitaph in Braſs is pointed with Bears (which was the Creſt of his Arms) inſtead of Comma's, Colons, and Periods.

BEAUCHAMP (Henry) Earl of Warwick, &c. Son to Richard Beauchamp aforeſaid, ſucceeded to his Father's Titles and Inheritance, was by King Henry VI. who had a particular Affection to him, Crown'd King of the Iſles of Wight, Guernſey, and Jerſey, An. 1445. but the Title expir'd with his Life two years after.

BEAUCLAIR (Charles) the preſent Duke of St. Albans, is a Natural Son of King Charles II. by Eleanor Gwyn. He was created Baron of Haddington and Earl of Burford in 1676. and Duke of St. Albans in 1684.

BEAUCLERE (Charles le) Lord of Acheres and Rougemont, Secretary of State under Lewis XIII. was Son to John le Beauclere, Treaſurer General of the Extraordinary Expences of War. He died at Paris in 1630. He valued Honour more than Riches; and it is obſerv'd, that excepting 20000 Crowns which the King gave him to buy his Houſe at Paris, it can hardly be ſaid that he augmented his Eſtate, during fifty years that he was in the Imployments, wherein ſo many others do enrich themſelves. Fauvelet du Toc.

BEAUFORT in Valeé, a City of France in Anjou, with the Title of County, and a Seat of Juſtice, depending on the Preſidial of Angiers. It is a pretty Town, near Angiers and Pont de Cé. It ſtands 18 Miles Eaſt of Angiers, and 42 Weſt of Tours. Long. 18. 18. Lat. 47. 25.

BEAUFORT, a little City of France in Champagne, belonging to the Houſe of Vendoſme; King Henry the Great erected it into a Duchy in 1597. in favour of Gabrielle d'Eſtree's, who was named the Dutcheſs of Beaufort. Francis of Vendoſme, a Peer of France, &c. bore the Title of Duke of Beaufort, and was in Candia in the Year 1669.

BEAUFORT (Margaret) Counteſs of Richmond and Derby, Great Grand-Child to Edward III. and Mother to Henry VII. was Born in Bedfordſhire; ſhe was ſo Zealous, according to the Manner of thoſe Times, as to ſay, That if the Chriſtian Princes would raiſe an Army to recover the Holy Land, ſhe would be their Landreſs. She Founded Chriſt's and St. John's Colleges in Cambridge, and died in the beginning of the Reign of King Henry the Eighth, her Grand-Child.

BEAUFORT (Henry) Cardinal, Biſhop of Wincheſter. He was Son to John Duke of Lancaſter and Katharine Swinford, and Brother of King Henry the Fourth. He ſtudied in the Univerſities of Oxford and Aix le Chapelle, was made Biſhop of Lincoln in 1397. and of Wincheſter in 1404. He was afterwards put into publick Civil Poſts, Three times Lord Chancellor; and ſent Ambaſſador into France in 1414. In the Year 1426. Pope Martin V. ſent him a Cardinal's Hat. He was then return'd into England, and by his intereſt procur'd James the Firſt, King of Scotland, his Liberty, who was there a Priſoner. He oppos'd the Project of his Nephew, King Henry the Fifth, for the raiſing New Tenths upon the Eſtates of the Clergy; this Deſign fell by the Cardinal's intereſt, who to ſhew his Inclination to the King's Service, preſented him with 20000 Pounds Sterling. In the year 1431. the Cardinal accompanied young King Henry the 6th into France; and in November that Year, he Crown'd him in the Church of Noſtredame at Paris; afterwards he endeavour'd the Reconciliation of the Dukes of Burgundy and Bedford; but their private deſigns were ſo different, that he could not bring it about: At laſt being advanced in years, he retir'd to Wincheſter, where he founded an Hoſpital, and died on the 11th of April, 1447. Tho. Walſingham in Hen. 5. Godwin de Epiſ. Winton, &c.

BEAUFORT is a Caſtle in France, which belonged heretofore to the Houſe of Lancaſter, and was much beloved by John of Gaunt; who cauſed all his Children that he had by Katharine Swinford to be called Beauforts, who were afterwards Dukes of Somerſet and Exeter, and Marquiſſes and Earls of Dorſet. The Son of the Duke of Vendoſme in France, was honoured with the Title of Duke of Beaufort, by Lewis the Thirteenth of France; and in England, the moſt Noble Henry Somerſet, late Marquis of Worceſter, being deſcended from the ancient Dukes of Somerſet, had that Title beſtowed upon him by Charles the Second, of moſt bleſſed Memory, who, in the 24th year of his Reign, alſo Conſtituted him Preſident of the Council in the Principality of Wales. On the 17th of April 1672, he was Sworn of His Majeſty's moſt Honourable Privy-Council, and on the Third of June next following, was inſtall'd at Windſor, Knight of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter. This Duke derives his Genealogy by a Male Line, from Geoffrey-Plantagenet, Earl of Anjou, Son of Foulke, King of Jeruſalem, and Grand Son of Foulke Rechin, Earl of Anjou, Touraine and Maine, by Maude the Empreſs his Wife, Daughter of Henry the Firſt, King of England, Son of King William the Conqueror, Seventh Duke of Normandy, in Deſcent from Rollo the Dane —— Whence it is obſervable, that his Progenitors have flouriſh'd with the Titles of Kings, Dukes, Marquiſſes and Earls, and have not deſcended to a Lower Dignity for above theſe 700 years. Ragland-Caſtle, a Princely Seat in Monmouthſhire, belonging to his Grace the Duke of Beaufort's Family, which his Grand-Father, Henry Marquis of Worceſter, maintained with a Gariſon of 800 Men, during the late Civil Wars, for King Charles the Firſt, from 1642. till Auguſt 19th 1646. without receiving any Contribution from the Country, and then yielded it to the Parliament's Generaliſſimo, Sir Thomas Fairfax, (who in Perſon beſieged it) upon very Honourable Articles, for all the Officers and Soldiers that were therein, and was the laſt Garriſon that held out againſt that Victorious Army. After its being yielded, it was demoliſhed, and all the Timber in the three Parks that lay to the Houſe, cut down, and ſold by the Committees for Sequeſtration, the Offal of which (for there was no Coppice-Wood in any of the Parks) amounted, according to the Sub-Committees (who were not uſed to acknowledge the Utmoſt of the Profits they made) to 37000 Cords of Wood, by which the Value of the Timber may be a little gueſs'd at. The Lead that covered the Caſtle was ſold for 6000 l. and the Timber, a great Part of it to Briſtol, to build up the Houſes upon the Bridge, which hapned to have been lately burnt. The Loſs to this Family in the Houſe and Woods, has been modeſtly computed at 100000 l. beſides at leaſt as great a Sum lent to his then Majeſty, by the aforeſaid Marquis, and the Maintaining the above-mentioned Garriſon, and Raiſing and Maintaining two ſeveral Armies at his Expence, Commanded by his Son, Edward Earl of Glamorgan, and the Sequeſtration from 1646, and afterwards the Sale of that whole Eſtate by the Rump, which amounted, as appears by that Years Audit, to above 20000 l. per Annum, and was not reſtored till his Majeſty King Charles II's Happy Reſtoration in 1660. when Edward, then Marquis of Worceſter, Father to the now Duke of Beaufort, had the Poſſeſſion delivered him, of what Part of that Eſtate he had not, during that neceſſitous time, ſold and paſt away. Badminton, in the County of Glouceſter, is the preſent Dwelling of the Duke of Beaufort (his Ancient and Chief Seat, viz. Ragland-Caſtle in Monmouthſhire, having been pull'd down and demoliſhed by the Rebels in the year 1646.) This Seat is by the Contrivance and Expence of the preſent Owner of it, put into ſuch a Condition, as to be eſteemed for Number and Largeneſs of Parks and Gardens, Number and Length of Walks and Avenues, of Orange-Houſes, Orange-Trees, Fountains, and other Embelliſhments, Padocks, Hare-Warrens, and other Contrivances for Sport, and the Openneſs of the Country about it (taking all together) one of the moſt accompliſh'd in England, or perhaps, of a Subject, any where elſe. Chepſtow is part of the Poſſeſſions, and one of the Titles of Henry Duke of Beaufort: Swanzey, the Chief Town of Gowerland, or Seigniory of Gower (a large Tract of Land, lying to the Sea, in the County of Glamorgan) one of the Titles, and part of the Poſſeſſions of Henry Duke of Beaufort. Monmouth-Caſtle and Town, part of the Poſſeſſions of Charles Marquis of Worceſter, Son and Heir apparent to his Grace the Duke of Beaufort. The Caſtle formerly belonged to the Dukes of Lancaſter, and was the Place where our famous King Henry the Fifth was born.

BEAUJEU, in Latin Baujovium, or Belliocum upon Andiere, a Borough of France in Beaujolois, with a Caſtle, which gave its Name to the ſame Country of Beaujolois, and to the Lords of the Houſe of Beaujeu. It ſtands 30 Miles North of Lions, and 14 South Weſt of Maſcon; Long. 23. 50. Lat. 45. 50.

BEAUJEU, a Family which draweth its Original from Berauds, Lord of Beaujeu, who lived about the Year 950. and who died about the Year 967.

BEAUJOLOIS, a ſmall Country of France, with the Title of Barony, ſituated betwixt the Sone and the Loire, the Lyonnois, the Forets, Charolois, and the Mâconnois. Ville-Franche is the Capital City thereof. The moſt conſiderable Boroughs after Beaujeu, are Belle-Ville, Thizi, Amplepui, Pereux, St. Saphorin, &c. This Country is fertile enough in Corn, Wines, Hemp, &c.

BEAULIEU (Auguſtin of) Native of Roan, commonly named General Beaulieu, made his firſt Voyage to the Country of the Negroes, upon the Coaſt of Affrick, in 1612. with the Chevalier de Briqueville, a Gentleman of Normandy, deſigning to eſtabliſh there a French Colony. In 1616. there was a Company ſetled for the Commerce of the Eaſt-Indies, which ſent two Ships thither; the biggeſt of them was commanded by De Nets, and the ſecond by Beaulieu. In 1619. the Company ſent again two Ships thither, with a Pinnace, and made Beaulieu General of this little Fleet. He detached his Vice-Admiral, upon his parting from the Cape of Good Hope, to ſend him to Jacatra or Batavia, in the Iſle of Java, one of the Iſles of the Sound; where, as he was about to return with his Cargo, the Hollanders by Night ſet Fire to his Ship. That hindered not Beaulieu to come back with one Veſſel ſo richly laden, that there was enough to pay the Charges of the Voyage, which would have been very profitable, had the other Ship come home with its Goods, which were valued at more than 500000 Crowns. Beaulieu ſerved the King afterwards in very important Affairs, chiefly in the Iſle of Rheé, and in taking the Iſles of St. Margaret and St. Honorat upon the Coaſt of Provence. After which he fell ſick at Thoulon, of a hot Fever, whereof he died in 1637. Aged Forty eight years. Thevenot.

BEAULIEU (Jeofrey of) a Monk of the Order of St. Dominick, lived in the Thirteenth Age, and he was Twenty years Preacher and Confeſſor to St. Lewis. He writ the Life of this King in ſeveral Letters.

BEAUMANOIR, a Family, one of the moſt conſiderable of the Province of Maine.

BEAUMARIS, in Latin Bellomarſcus, a City of England, in the Iſle of Angleſey, with a Port at the Chanel of Menai. It depends on the Principality of Wales, has a pretty good Trade, and ſends one Burgeſs to Parliament. It's 184 Miles from London.

BEAUMONT, or Baumont, Bellomontium, a little Town of France in Normandy. It is near the Sea in the Coutantin, betwixt Cherbourg, Valogne, and St. Saviour the Viſcounty.

BEAUMONT, a Town of the Low-Countreys in Hainault, with the Title of County. Its Name ſheweth its Situation, which is very fine, upon a little Hill; wherefore the Latin Authors call it Bellus-mons and Bellomontium. It is not big, but pleaſant, and about four Leagues from Bins and Chinai, and ſeven from Mons. It was taken from the French, and burnt by the Confederates, An. 1691. It lies nine Miles South Eaſt of Maubeuge, 15 South Eaſt of Mons.

BEAUMONT in Argonne, a ſmall City of France in Champagne, in the little Country of Argonne. It is near the Meuſe, betwixt Stenai and Pont-a-Mouſſon, and ſuffered much during the Wars in the middle of this Age.

BEAUMONT upon Oiſe, a City of France, in the Iſle of France, with the Title of County. It is ſituated upon the Deſcent of a Hill, which extends it ſelf to the Bank of the River of Oiſe, where there is a fine Bridge.

BEAUMONT-LE-ROGER, upon the River of Rille, a City of France, in Normandy, betwixt Evreux and Lizieux. It hath the Title of a County. Roger, one of its Earls, built, or at leaſt augmented it, from whom it hath its Name.

BEAUMONT (Francis) one of our chief Dramatick Poets; lived in the laſt Age, contemporary with Fletcher, Ben Johnſon, and Shakeſpear; he was intimate with the firſt, and wrote no leſs than 52 Plays with him. They being once in a Tavern together, to contrive the rude Draught of a Tragedy, Fletcher undertook to kill the King therein; which being overheard, he was accuſed of High-Treaſon, till upon Demonſtration, that the Plot was only againſt a Dramatick and Scenical King, it went off in Mirth.

BEAUMONT le Vicomte, upon the Sarte, a City of France, in the Maine, with the Title of a Dutchy: It is pretty fine, betwixt Mans and Alençon. This City was in times paſt a Viſcounty, and therefore is yet named Beaumont le Vicomte. It ſtands 17 Miles South of Alençon, and 13 North of Mans.

BEAUNE upon Bourgeoiſe, Belna, a City of France in Burgundy, four Leagues from the Soane, betwixt Dijon, Autun and Châlon. It is very ancient, ſtrong by ſituation, well built, and its Soil extraordinary Fruitful, eſpecially in good Wines. Several Dukes of Burgundy have made it their ordinary Reſidence, and King Lewis the Twelfth built the Caſtle, which is yet there to be ſeen, with many Churches and Monaſteries; as the famous Abbey of the Ciſtercians, the Head of the Order, which is in the Territory of this City. It was the firſt Seat of the Parliament of Burgundy, under the Name of General Daies. Burgundy being returned to the Crown in 1361. by the Death of Philip de Rouvre, King John gave that Parliament leave to judge in a Sovereign Manner; and ſince that time the ſame Province having been re-united to the Crown in 1477. after the Death of Charles the Hardy, King Lewis the Eleventh fixed this Sovereign Court of Juſtice, and made it a Parliament. Beaune revolted at the ſame time, and for this reaſon the King ſetled a Council-Chamber at Dijon, where the Parliament hath continued ever ſince: This was done in May 1477. Beaune hath a Chancellorſhip and Bayliwick: It ſuffered much in 1562. during the Wars about Religion. Its Hoſpital is one of the fineſt Structures of the Kingdom.

BEAUNE, a Family which hath had divers Prelates of great Name.

BEAUNE (Florimond of) Councellor of the Preſidial-Court of Blois, was born in that City in 1601. He was well skill'd in the Mathematicks, and was much eſteemed by M. Des-Cartes, who went to Blois that he might diſcourſe with him. Bartholin viſited him too, in the Name of the United Provinces, to confer with him upon ſome very difficult Matters, and he was willing himſelf to write what this Learned Man dictated. Florimond of Beaune invented ſeveral Aſtronomical Inſtruments, and amongſt others, Spectacles or Eye-glaſſes of an admirable Artifice. He died in 1652. being 51 years old. Bernier.

BEAUVAIS upon Therin, a City of France, in the Iſle of France, with a Bayliwick Preſidial, and a Biſhoprick, the Biſhop of which is an Earl and Peer of France, and Suffragan of Reims. It is the Capital of the ſmall Country of Beauvoiſis, which hath beſides Clermont, Gerberoi, Bulles, &c. Beauvais is very ancient, and was in great conſideration even in Cæſar's time, who ſpeaks advantageouſly of the Beauvoiſins, ſaying, That they did commonly raiſe 60000 Men, and could encreaſe them to 100000. The Latin Authors have named it Bellovacum, Bratuſpantium, Cæſaro-magus, Bellovaci, &c. It ſubmitted to Cæſar, and was under the Romans, till ſubdued by the French under Clovis, to whom it hath been ſo faithful, that it was never taken from them; for which reaſon, ſome Authors call it the Maiden. The Engliſh endeavoured to ſurprize it in 1433. but without ſucceſs, being forced to raiſe the Siege. Charles the Hardy, laſt Duke of Burgundy, was no happier in his Enterprize upon Beauvais, in 1472. for after 26 days Siege he was obliged to riſe from before it, upon which this little Story was made; The Artillery of that Duke was Excellent, and he ſaid one day, That he carried the Keys of the Cities of France in his Cannons. A Jeſter whom he had in his Court, laughing at this Vanity, affected to look into all the Pieces of Artillery; and his Care having made the Duke curious, he asked him what he look'd for: My Lord, anſwered the Jeſter, I look for the Keys of Beauvais, but I cannot find them. In the latter Age Beauvais had its ſhare of the Troubles of the Civil Wars. Odet, Cardinal of Chattillon, was Biſhop of this City, and a Proteſtant, which often made the Roman Catholicks uneaſie, and chiefly on the Holy-days of Eaſter, in 1561. that this Prelate communicated after the Proteſtant Manner, in the Chapel of his Epiſcopal Palace, refuſing to celebrate Maſs in the Cathedral. Beauvais is a very Pleaſant City, pretty well built, and environ'd with a Ditch, filled with the Water of the Therin, part of which ſerves for the Workmen that make ſeveral ſorts of Cloths, Silks, and other Manufactures. The Streets are large and fair, but the Houſes almoſt all of Wood: Strangers do admire its Market, which is perhaps the greateſt and fineſt in the Kingdom; the Epiſcopal Palace, which is very ſtrong and well built, and the Quire of the Cathedral Church of St. Peter, which was begun about 991. and is an incomparable Piece of Architecture. It is commonly thought that St. Lucian was the firſt Biſhop of Beauvais; but it is not well grounded, nor do they ſpeak with certainty of his Succeſſors for ſeven or eight Centuries: Since that time it has had great Prelates. A Council was held at Beauvais in 1114. by Conon Biſhop of Præneſte, Legate for the Holy See. The Emperor Henry V. was Excommunicated there, as alſo Thomas of Marle, Lord of Couci, who was degraded from his Nobility for plundering the Churches and People of the Biſhoprick of Reims, Laon, and Amiens. The ſame Conon held there two other Synods in 1120. and 1124. according to ſome Authors. Lewis the Young, King of France, aſſembled one there in 1161. againſt the Anti-Pope Victor, oppoſed to Alexander III. Odet of Chatillon, Cardinal and Biſhop of Beauvais, held two Synods in 1554. and 1557. before he declared for the Proteſtants.

BEAUVEAU, a Family in Anjou, illuſtrious for its Nobility, by the great Men it hath produced, and by its Alliances.

BEAUVILLIER, a Noble Family, that hath produced the Earls and Dukes of St. Aignan.

BEAUVOIR (James) or Belviſius, a Learned Lawyer of Bononia, much eſteemed about the Year 1270. He was Councellor to Charles II. King of Naples, who put him in ſeveral conſiderable Poſts. He wrote ſeven Books de Feudis, and afterwards made Comments upon them. Leander Albert, Deſc. Ital. Bumald. Bibl. Bonon.

BEBIUS, Conſul of the Romans with P. Cornelius, in the ſame year that the Books of Numa Pompilius were found. In digging the Earth at the Foot of the Hill Janiculus, two Cheſts of Stone were diſcovered, one of which had an Inſcription, bearing, that the Body of Numa Pompilius lay in it; and that of the other ſhew'd, That there were Books hidden therein; It being opened, ſeven Latin Volumes were found in it, with as many Greek. The Latin ones treated of the Right of Pontiffs, and were carefully kept; but becauſe thoſe in Greek ſeemed in ſome Places to ſpeak againſt their Religion, the Prætor Petilius ordered the Prieſts to burn them, by the Authority of the Senate, and in the Preſence of the People, that the Romans ſhould have nothing in their City, which might turn Men from the Worſhip of their Gods. Valer. Maximus, Liv. Lib. 11.

BEBON, a Baron of Abenſperg in Bavaria, had Forty Children by two Lawful Wives, Thirty two Sons, and Eight Daughters. He being a Favorite of the Emperor Henry II. took the Opportunity when he accompanied this Prince at a Hunting, and preſented unto him his Thirty two Sons, very Briſk and well Mounted. The Emperor received them kindly, and gave them conſiderable Poſts, not only for the Deſert of their Father, but alſo for the great Qualities which he diſcerned in their Perſons, and for that ſo great a Number of Brothers being well united, could accompliſh extraordinary Matters for the Glory of the Empire. Aventin.

BECA, or Beka (John) Canon of the Church of Utrecht, Liv'd to the Year 1350. He wrote a Chronicle of his Church, and Dedicated it to his Biſhop John, and to William III. Earl of Holland, the Affairs of that Province being mention'd in his Treatiſe: This Chronology takes in all that happen'd from St. Willibrode, firſt Biſhop of Utrecht, to the Year 1346. 'Tis publiſhed by Bernard Furmer and Arnold Buchellius, under the Title of Chronicon Epiſcoporum ultra-jectentium & Comitum Hollandiæ. Valerius Andreas Bibl. Belg. Voſſius de Hiſt. Lat. Lib. 3.

BECAN (Martin) a Jeſuit born at Hilvarenbec, a little Village in Brabant. We have two Volumes in Folio of his, the Firſt whereof compriſeth the Sum of Scholaſtick Divinity; and the Second, divided into five Parts, treats of Controverſies. He hath moreover left, Analogia veteris & novi Teſtamenti. De Cenſuris Eccleſiaſticis, De Jure & Juſtitia, &c. He died the 24th of January 1624. being 63 years old.

BECCAFUMI, or Macherino (Dominic) of Sienna, a famous Painter, in the Sixteenth Age: It is ſaid, that being very Young, and leading his Father's Sheep, Laurenzo Beccafumi of Sienna, found him near a River, delineating on the Sand, and judging him capable of an higher Employment, than that of a Shepherd, asked him of his Father; and when he was in his Service, he ſent him to a Painter to learn to draw: Peter Perugin was his firſt Maſter, but having heard of the great Performances of Michael Angelo and Raphael at Rome, he went thither, and changed the Name of Macherino, which his Parents had given him from his Childhood, for that of Beccafumi, in remembrance of his Benefactor, to whoſe Family he afterwards ally'd himſelf; Dominick wrought at Rome with much Succeſs, and being returned to Sienna, ended the fine Pavement of Marble that is in the Cathedral Church, which a Painter named Duccio, of that Country, had begun. He went alſo to Genoa, where he wrought for Prince Doria; and being afterwards returned to Piſa, and thence to Sienna, he paſſed the remainder of his Life there, till he died the 18th of May, An. 1549. being 65 years old. Felibien.

BECEK (Cornelius) a Regular Canon of the Order of St. Auſtin, and Prior of a Religious Houſe in Utrecht, call'd, The Diviſion of the Apoſtles. He liv'd in the 15th Century, and wrote a Chronicle of his Monaſtery; and ſome other Pieces. Valerius Andreas, Bibl. Belg.

BECH (Lambert) a devout Clergy-man of Liege. He took care of the Direction of ſome Nuns, and from him they had the Name of Beguines.

BECHAI, or Batrye, as he is cited by Rabbi Menaſſe-Ben-Iſrael in his Conciliador, is a famous Rabbi, who writ Commentaries upon the Five Books of Moſes. They are prolix, but of a pure Style: He relates therein the Literal, Allegorical, and Myſtical Senſe. He ſhews great Skill of Jewiſh Literature in this Work, and enlarges ſometimes upon the Opinions of Philoſophers. This Book was Printed at Conſtantinople in 1517. and at Venice in 1526. and in 1546. In this latter Edition, ſome Places have been left out, which were againſt the Chriſtians. Buxtorf. in Biblioth.

BECHIRES, People of Scythia, which coming to Italy with Attila, and having drank Wine, found it ſo good, that their very Name got into a Proverb for a good Drinker. Suidas.

BECKET, (Thomas) Lord Chancellor of England, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Liv'd in the 12th Age, in the Reigns of King Stephen and King Henry II. He was Born in London, and ſtudied in the Univerſity of Paris; at his return into England, Theobald Archbiſhop of Canterbury, made him his Archdeacon. Henry II. ſucceeding King Stephen, preferr'd him in the very firſt Year of his Reign, to be Lord-Chancellor of England, in which Honour he carried himſelf very high in his Retinue, Houſe-keeping, Furniture, &c. In France he ſerved King Henry with a Body of Men, whereof 700 were of his own Family, with whom he did good Service; but being rais'd to the See of Canterbury, he ſided with the Pope, and began the great Controverſie between Regnum and Sacerdotium, the Crown and the Miter; becauſe the King would have the Clergy try'd in his Temporal Courts, for Caſes Criminal. This Affront of a Subject, rais'd by the King's Favour, could not be digeſted by a Prince ſo jealous of his Prerogative as King Henry was; therefore, having drawn to his Side moſt of the Biſhops, he call'd an Aſſembly of their whole Body at Weſtminſter, wherein he drew up Articles in Defence of the Prerogative againſt Papal Encroachments; which he urged Becket to aſſent to; he refuſing, was at laſt prevailed upon, by the Importunities of ſeveral Lords, both Spiritual and Temporal, to ſign them: But revoking his Aſſent, and growing more troubleſome than before, the King ordered his Peers to Summon and Try him as a Traitor; upon which he fled into Flanders, under the Name of Dereman; whereupon the King baniſhed all his Kindred out of his Dominions; and Becket, to be revenged, Excommunicated all that had acted againſt him. At laſt the King of France, by his Intreaties, and the Pope, by his Threats, effected a Reconciliation, ſo that he returned in Triumph after ſeven Years abſence. The King being then in Normandy, the Archbiſhop refus'd to Abſolve thoſe Biſhops and others whom he had Excommunicated. The King hearing of this, and how he went up and down like a King, attended both with Horſe and Foot, expreſs'd his utmoſt Diſpleaſure againſt him; upon which, four of his Knights, thinking to oblige him, haſten'd over into England, and moſt barbarouſly murther'd Becket in his Cathedral the 29th of December, An. 1170. His unparallel'd Stedfaſtneſs to the pretended Rights of the Papal See, procur'd him a Place in the Calendar of Saints; and the Miracles ſaid to be performed by his dead Body, enrich'd his Shrine from all Parts of Chriſtendom; ſo that at the Defacing thereof, in the Reign of Henry VIII. the Spoil in Gold and precious Stones, filled two great Cheſts, each requiring Eight ſtrong Men to carry them out of the Church.

BECKINGHAM, a Market Town in the South-Weſt Parts of Lincolnſhire, ſeated on the River Witham, in Loveden Wapentake, and Keſtevan Diviſion.

BECKLES, a Market Town in Wangford Hundred in Suffolk, ſituate upon the Banks of the River Waveney; it has a Grammar-School, endowed with ten Scholarſhips for Emanuel College in Cambridge. It's Eighty three Miles from London.

BECONSFIELD, a Market Town of Burnham Hundred in Buckinghamſhire, ſituate on a high Hill in the Road from Oxford to London; from whence it is Twenty two Miles.

BECS-DE-CORBIN, or the Gentlemen au Bec de-Corbin, Officers of the King's Houſe, inſtituted for the Guard of the French King's Perſon. They were only 100 at the beginning; but ſince 100 more have been added, and yet they are ſtill called the 100 Gentlemen. They march by two and two before the Monarch on the Days of Ceremonies, bearing the Bec-de-Corbin, or Faulcon, in their Hand; and in a Day of Battel, they are to encompaſs the King, and keep cloſe to his Perſon. Memoire de Temps.

BECTAS Aga, General of the Janiſaries, was a great Favourite of Kioſem, Regent, and Grand-Mother to Mahomet IV. during the Minority of that Prince. He upheld the Authority of that Empreſs againſt the Party of the Spahi's, and Baſha's, who eſpouſed the Intereſts of the young Queen, Mother to Mahomet, and of the Sultan her Son. His Exactions having rais'd a Sedition at Conſtantinople, Solyman Aga, Chief of the Black Eunuchs, adviſed the Grand Signior to create a new Grand Vizier, who would be zealous for the Conſervation of the Empire, and oppoſe the Pride of Bectas. The Sultaneſs Regent writ to Bectas all that paſſed in the Seraglio, and adviſed him, that the young Princeſs was the Cauſe of all theſe Diſorders, ſo that to remedy them, it was neceſſary that Sultan Mahomet ſhould be Depoſed, and his Brother Solyman put upon the Throne. Bectas having received this Advice, aſſembled the Council in the Moſque of the Janiſaries, and ſent for the Grand Vizier, who made him believe he approved his Deſign, and withdrew, after having ſworn that he would maintain his Party againſt the young Queen: But being at Liberty, he went in all haſt to the Seraglio, with two Men only, and having met with Solyman Aga, who made the Round about the Apartment of the old Queen, he entered it with him and ſome of the King's Eunuchs, ſeiz'd this Princeſs, and put her in a Place of Surety, whence ſhe was afterwards drawn out to be Strangled. Bectas having underſtood the Death of Kioſem, endeavoured to keep the Janiſaries on his ſide; but the Grand Seignior deſerted him, and made Kara-Haſſan-Ogli Aga of the Janiſaries: So having no other reſource but Flight, he took the Garb of an Albanian, and hid himſelf at a poor Man's Houſe, who had been in former times his Companion; but being the next day diſcovered, he was taken and carried upon a Mule to the Seraglio, where he was Strangled. He was ſo hated by the Mob, that after his Death, Cooks and Tradeſmen thruſt their Spits and Forks into his Body, pull'd his Beard off, and treated him with all manner of Ignominy. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

BECTASCHITES, a Sect of Monks amongſt the Turks, whoſe Founder was named Bectaſch, and was Preacher to Amurath the Firſt's Army, when he vanquiſhed the Deſpot of Servia. This Prince being ſtabb'd by a Croatian, Bectaſch, who was very near him, would not make his Eſcape, but prepared himſelf for Death. In this Reſolution, he took a white Habit with long Sleeves, and made his Diſciples to kiſs them, recommending to them the Obſervation of his Rule. They ſay it is from thence, that the Cuſtom proceeded of kiſſing the Grand Signior's Sleeve. The Religious of this Order wear white Caps of divers pieces, with Turbans of Wooll twiſted like a Rope. They are alſo Cloathed in White. The Janiſaries of the Port make profeſſion of this Religion; and Hiſtorians relate, that Bectaſch, as he died, did cut one of the Sleeves of his Gown, and put it upon the Head of a Monk of his Order, ſo as one of the ends hung behind upon his Shoulders, ſaying, Ye ſhall be henceforward Janiſaries, to wit, a new Soldiery. Wherefore the Janiſaries do wear Caps which hang backwards as a Sleeve. They call this Sleeved Cap Kitche or Zercole. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

BECTASCHITES, another Mahometan Sect which is followed by ſome Janiſaries. They are otherwiſe called Zeratites, and the Vulgar call them Mum ſcondurin, (i. e.) thoſe who put out the Candle. This Sect obſerve the Law of Mahomet, in what concerneth the Worſhip of God; but thoſe who profeſs it, do not believe it lawful to aſcribe Attributes unto God, and to ſay that he is Great, that he is Juſt, &c. becauſe he is a very ſimple Being, and that our Conceptions cannot reach to the Perfection of his Eſſence. Theſe Bectaſchites have no regard to the Proximity of Blood, nor Degrees of Kindred, and commit without ſcruple all manner of Inceſts, even the Fathers with their Daughters, and the Mothers with their Sons. Their Protector was Bectas Aga, General of the Janiſaries in the beginning of the Reign of Mahomet IV. who was Depoſed in 1687. but ſince the death of Bectas they have had no great credit, and appear not ſo much as before. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

BECTOZ, (Claudia) a Nun of the Monaſtery of St. Honore of Taraſcon, where ſhe was named Scholaſtica; and was afterwards Abbeſs, ſhe was Daughter to James de Bectoz, a Gentleman of Dauphine, and Michelette de Salvaing. Denys Faucher, or Faucier, taught her the Latin Tongue, and other Parts of Humanity, wherein ſhe made ſo marvellous a Progreſs, that ſhe equalled the greateſt Men of her time. She writ ſeveral Works in Verſe, the moſt part Saphick, and others in Proſe, both Latin and French. She died in the year 1547. She had one of her Relations with her, by Name Katharine de Bectoz, who was alſo Learned. Paradin. Chorier.

BEDA or Bede, Sirnamed the Venerable, a Religious Man, and the greateſt Scholar of his Age; was Born in the 7th Century at Girwy, now called Yarrow, near the Mouth of the River Tine, in the Biſhoprick of Durham. He was bred under St. John of Beverly, and became a Monk in the Town wherein he was born. In this Solitude he grew acquainted in all ſorts of Sciences. Let a Sophiſter, ſays Dr. Fuller, begin with his Axioms; a Batchelor of Arts proceed with his Metaphyſicks; a Maſter to his Mathematicks, and a Divine conclude with his Controverſies and Comments on Scripture, and they ſhall find him better in all than any Chriſtian Writer in that Age, in any of thoſe Sciences. He Expounded almoſt all the Bible, and Tranſlated almoſt all the Pſalms and New-Teſtament into Engliſh. He had a Sweet Temper, which being accompanied with ſo many excellent Qualifications, prov'd the more efficacious to thoſe whom he wrought upon. Some Authors write, that Pope Sergius I. ſent for him to Rome, to adviſe with him about the Government of the Church; but it's certain he never ſtirr'd out of Britain: And ſome credible Authors avouch, that he never went out of his Cell. His Death happened in 734. being 63 years of Age. Beſides the above-mentioned Works, he wrote the Hiſtory of the Six Firſt Ages a Martyrology, and ſeveral Pieces, Collected into Eight Volumes: Printed at Baſil in 1563. and afterwards at Cologne in 1612. His Corps was removed to the Cathedral of Durham, wherein he lies buried.

BEDFORD, Lat. Bedfordia, Lactodurum and Lactodorum, one of the moſt ancient Towns in England, mentioned by Antoninus in his Itinerary, is the chief Town in Bedfordſhire, pleaſantly ſeated on the Banks of the River Ouſe, over which it hath a good Stone Bridge; both the Town and Country ſuffered much by the Danes, and the Town particularly in the Time of the Civil Wars between King Stephen and Maud the Empreſs. In the Reign of King John, it yielded, with its Caſtle, to the prevailing Barons; and in the Reign of Henry III. it was laid level with the Ground, ſome ruinous Walls appearing ſtill towards the Ouſe, but none upon the Mount, where ſtood the main Part of the Town, which at this time conſiſts of Five Pariſhes; famous of old for the great Battel fought near it, An. 570. between the Britains and Saxons, wherein the laſt became Maſters of the Country. Noted alſo for giving the Title of Duke, firſt to John of Lancaſter, Son to Henry IV. and Brother to Henry V. who was the Regent of France under Henry VI. The ſame Title was continued to Jaſper of Hatfield, Uncle to Henry VII. The Right Honourable William Ruſſell and his Anceſtors have born the Title of Earls of Bedford ever ſince the Third year of Edward VI.

BEDFORD, (John) Duke of, was Third Son to King Henry IV. by Mary, Daughter and Co-heir of Humphrey de Bohun, Earl of Hereford, Eſſex and Northampton. On the Eve of his Father's Coronation, he was made Knight of the Bath with great State and Solemnity, and in the Fourth of that Reign, Conſtable of England, Governor of Berwick upon Tweed, and Warden of the E. Marſhes towards Scotland; and for his better Support in thoſe great Truſts, had the forfeited Eſtate of Henry Piercy, Earl of Northumberland. In the Eleventh of Henry V. he was called John of Lancaſter, and Created Earl of Kendal and Duke of Bedford; at the Parliament at Leiceſter, he obtain'd for himſelf and Heirs, the Lordſhip and Honors of Richmond; and in the Third of that Reign, he had a Grant of the Iſlands Gernſey, Sarke and Averny; and upon the Reſtitution of Henry Earl of Northumberland, he had 3000 Marks per Annum Compenſation. That ſame year, the King being abſent in France, he was conſtituted Lieutenant of the Kingdom of England; and for his further Support, had many other Lordſhips given him; about that ſame time he was retain'd to ſerve the King in his Wars for one quarter of that year, with 200 Men at Arms, whereof 15 were to be Knights, and the reſt Eſquires, beſides 400 Archers, and was conſtituted Generaliſſimo by Sea and Land; whereupon ſetting Sail with his Forces to encounter the French not far from Southampton, he took eight of their Veſſels, and forced three others to fly, one whereof periſhed in the Sands, and another ſunk with 800 Men in Light Harneſs. In the Fifth of that Reign, he was again conſtituted Lieutenant in the King's Abſence. There were Treaties of Marriage betwixt him and a Kinſwoman of the Emperor Sigiſmond's, the Duke of Lorrain's Daughter, and the Burgrave of Nurinburgh's, but without effect. About this time Joan, Queen of Apuleia, adopted him for her Son, and he forced the Scots to raiſe the Siege of Roxborough. In the Seventh year of that Reign, he was again retain'd to ſerve the King in France, with 6 Knights, 113 Men at Arms, and 360 Archers. In the Eighth of that Reign, he aſſiſted the King in reducing the ſtrong City of Melun in France. In the Ninth, he was again made Lieutenant, during the King's Abſence, and was God-Father to Prince Henry. In the Tenth, he forced the French and Dutch, commanded by the Dolphin, to raiſe the Siege of a Town belonging to the Duke of Burgundy; and upon the Death of King Henry, which happened ſoon after, he was made Governor of Normandy, Regent of France, and Protector to the young King Henry VI. After which he reduced Crotoy, entred Paris with a great Power, put ſeveral Plotters to Death, and Garriſoned the Neighbouring Forts and Caſtles with Engliſh. In the Second of Henry VI. he took in the Caſtle of Ivre, Married Ann, Daughter of John Duke of Burgundy, and defeated John Duke of Alençon, recovered Vernol, which he had taken, took the Duke himſelf, kill'd 5000 French, Garriſon'd the Town, and return'd to Paris. In the Fourth of that Reign, he was made Admiral of England, Ireland, and Acquitain, Governor of Calis and the Marſhes of Picardy. In the Eighth he called a Parliament for Normandy at Roan, and took St. Denys from the French. In the Eleventh his Wife died, whereupon his Friendſhip with the Duke of Burgundy declined: He buried her in the Chapel of Orleans at Paris, and erected a ſtately Monument of black Marble, having her Effigies thereon: Before the year expired, he Married the Daughter of the Earl of St. Paul. He died at the Caſtle of Rouen, An. 1435. and was interred in the Cathedral of Notre Dame there, under a plain Tomb of Black Marble, with an Epitaph beginning thus: Here lies the moſt High and Mighty Prince, John, late Regent of France, Duke of Bedford, &c. Cambden ſays, he was ſlain in a Battel before Vernoil, and with him fell all the Engliſh Men's good Fortune there. Charles VIII. of France coming to ſee his Tomb, and being adviſed by one of his Nobility to raze it, anſwered, Let him reſt in Peace now he is dead, of whom, when he was alive, all France ſtood in Fear. Dugd. Cambden.

BEDFORDSHIRE, Lat. Comitatus Bedfordienſis, from Bedford, the Chief Place of it, an Inland Country of England, having on the North Northamptonſhire, on the South Hartfordſhire, and on the Weſt Buckinghamſhire; in which Compaſs, it reaches from North to South 24 Miles, and from Eaſt to Weſt 13, the whole divided into Nine Hundreds, wherein are 10 Market Towns, and 16 Pariſhes. This, together with the Counties of Hartford and Buckingham, was the Seat of the Catieuchlani in the time of the Romans, a Member of the Kingdom of Mercia, in the Heptarchy, and now makes part of the Dioceſe of Lincoln. Here the Air is very temperate, the Country for the moſt part Champion, and the Soil abundantly fruitful, eſpecially the North Parts, being watered with the River Ouſe; the South is more lean, but yields as good Barly as any part of England. Near Woburn they dig up great ſtore of Fullers-Earth, commonly called Woburn-earth; and near Aſpely, on the Confines of Buckinghamſhire, is a Rivulet which turns Wood into Stone. Out of this County are elected, beſides the Two Knights of the Shire, but Two Members of Parliament, choſen by the Town of Bedford. Sir John Ruſſell, Comptrouler of the Houſhold to King Henry VIII. was created Baron in 1538. and Earl of Bedford by Edward VI. in 1548. whoſe Deſcendant, William, the Fifth Earl of that Family, now enjoys it; but ſince His preſent Majeſty, K. William III's happy Acceſſion to the Throne, the ſaid Earl has been advanced to be Marqueſs of Taviſtock, and Duke of Bedford.

BEDIFORD, a Market Town of Shebbear Hundred, in the North Weſt Parts of Devonſhire. It ſtands on the Towridge, within three miles of its Confluence with the Tow, and is particularly noted for its Bridge upon that River, which conſiſts of 24 Peers, and is ſo high, that a Barge of Sixty Tuns may paſs and repaſs, with her Maſts betwixt the Tents thereof. Its Foundation is very firmly fixed, and yet it ſeems to ſhake at the ſlighteſt ſtep of a Horſe.

BEDLE, (William) Bred in Emmanuel-College in Cambridge. He went Chaplain with Sir Henry Wotton to Venice. Padre Paulo was very intimate with him. He was afterwards made Biſhop of Kilmore in Ireland, and was much Celebrated for his Learning, his Regular Life, and his Exact Obſervance of the Faſts and Holidays of the Church. His Charity and good Nature were ſo Exemplary, that the Roman Catholicks had a great regard for him, and ſhew'd it, by concealing and protecting him in the Iriſh Rebellion. He died in the year 1643.

BEDOVINS (anciently called Scenitæ, becauſe they lodge in Tents inſtead of Houſes, and from the Greek Word σκηνὴ Tent,) are Arabians who inhabit the Deſarts of that Country, and whoſe principal Trade is to rob the Caravans going to Mecca. When they are Conquerors, they are commonly ſatisfied with the Plunder, except they meet with Turks, to whom they ſeldom give Quarter. Theſe Men have Herds of Camels, and Flocks of Sheep and Goats, which they lead about for Paſture, changing Places as the Graſs fails. They live upon the Milk of theſe Beaſts, and ſome Cakes made with Flower and Butter, or Honey. Their Deſarts are divided amongſt the Tribes, and each Tribe into ſeveral Families, which take up different Quarters. The Head of a Family is named Scheik, which ſignifies Captain; and that of a Tribe Scheik-el-Kebir, that is Grand Scheik, or Colonel. Sultan Amurath would have had them to live in Cities, and promiſed to exempt them from all Taxes, but they refuſed it. Their Arms are Lances or Half-Pikes, Scimetars and great Poniards. They uſe no Fire-Arms, neither do they know how to handle them. They wear Shields covered with the Skin of a Fiſh of the Red Sea, which hath Two Hands like a Man, and a Skin reſembling a Camels. They have excellent Horſes, which are ſmall, but ſwift, and endure Fatigues. They ſay they are Mahometans, yet do not obſerve their Ceremonies, but worſhip the Riſing Sun, and have no other Prayer but Riſmillah, i. e. in the Name of God. Thevenot.

BEDWIN, Great Bedwin, a Borough Town of Kings-Bridge Hundred, in the North of Wiltſhire.

BEEL-PHEGOR, or Baal-Peor, an Idol of the Moabites, to which they offered Sacrifices. Origen, Homil. 20. on the Numbers, ſaith, That he could find nothing in the Writings of the Hebrews concerning this Idol, but that it was an Idol of Impurity and Luſt. Beel-Phegor, ſaith he, is the Name of an Idol which is adored in the Country of Madian, chiefly by the Women. The People of Iſrael devoted themſelves to its Service, and were initiated in his Myſteries. Rabbin Salomon of Lunel, or Jarchi, in his Commentary upon the 25th of Numbers, believing this Name ſignifies to looſe a Point before ſome body, and that theſe Idolaters did this dirty Action before Beel-Phegor. St. Jerome, upon the 4th and 9th of the Prophet Hoſea, and in the Firſt Book againſt Jovinian, Chap. 12. thinks, that this Beel-Phegor of the Moabites and Madianites, is the ſame with the Latin Priapus. Others believe that this Idol received its Name from ſome Prince, who was reckoned among the Gods; or from ſome Mountain of that Name: For there was in the Country of Moab a Mountain called Phegor, and it's believed there was a Temple of Baal there, where Sacrifices were offered to him. Balac (ſaith Moſes, Numb. 23. v. 28.) conducted Balaam to the Top of Phegor, over-againſt the Deſart of Jeſimon. Theodoret upon Pſalm 105. makes the Name of Beel-Phegor to come thence. There is mention made in the 34th of Deuteronomy, of Beth-Phegor, or the Houſe of Phegor, in that Country of Moab, near the Valley where Moſes was buried. The Names of Beth-Dagon, of Bethſhemeſh, &c. ſeem to be Proofs that Beth-Phegor may there be taken for the Mountain where the Temple of the Idol was: For the Hebrews call a Temple Beth, that is, a Houſe. See Voſſius, Of the Idolatry of Pagans, Lib. 2. Chap. 7.

BEELZEBUB, or Balzebub, that is God-Fly, or God of a Fly, was the Name of a famous Idol of Ekron, mentioned in the Second Book of Kings, Chap. 1. Some Authors believe that the Jews gave it this Name in Deriſion, becauſe in the Temple of Jeruſalem there were no Flies ſeen on the Victims. Scaliger is of this Opinion; but it is much more probable that the Ekronites themſelves gave this Name to their God ſince Ahaziah, who ſent to conſult this falſe Divinity, calls him by that Name, and that there is no likelihood that he would conſult a God, whom he derided. It ſeems this Idol was named the God Fly, or of a Fly, becauſe he was called upon againſt Flies; for the Arcadians ſacrificed every year to ſuch a like God, called Myagros. The Jews, becauſe of the Hatred they had againſt this Idol, called the Devil Beelzebub.

BEELZEPHON, or Baalſephon, an Idol of the Egyptians. This Name is compoſed of Beel, Lord or God, and of Zephon, hidden, or the North, as if one ſhould ſay the hidden God, or the God of the North. This Name was alſo given to the Place where that Idol was put upon the Borders of Egypt, about the Red Sea. Rabbi Aben-Ezra ſaith, That it was a Taliſman of Braſs, which Pharaoh's Magicians had made, to hinder the Iſraelites from flying out of Egypt, that their endeavours might be ſtopt by the Magick Force of theſe Idols. There are ſome who believe that this Idol of Beelzephon had the Figure of a Dog, and that it barked when any Iſraelite paſſed by that Place to get away. Kircher Oedip. Egypt.

BEFORD, or Befort, Befordia & Befortium, a ſmall City of Germany in Suntgaw, or County of Ferrete in Alſatia, two Leagues from Montbeliard. It was quitted to the French by the Peace of Munſter in 1648. Befort was in times paſt the Capital of the County, and almoſt ruined during the laſt Wars. It's Seven Leagues Weſt from Baſil, and 18 South Weſt of Stratsbourg.

BEG or Bey, in the Turkiſh Tongue ſignifieth Lord. This Word is often joined to others, as Beglerbeg, viz. Lord of Lords. Aſſambey or Aſſambeg, the Lord or Prince Haſſan.

BEGLERBEG, in Turkey, is a Governor of one of the Chiefeſt Governments of the Empire. The Sultan gives each of theſe Beglerbegs three Enſigns, which are call'd Tougs, for a Note of their Quality. They have under their Juriſdiction ſeveral Sangiacs, or particular Governments, and Begs, Agas, and other Officers, who obey them. There are Two ſorts of Beglerbegs; the one have a certain Revenue aſſigned upon the Cities, Boroughs, and Villages of their Government, which the Officers raiſe by the Power of the Commiſſion which they receive from the Sultan. This Revenue is called Chas. The others have a certain Rent paid them by the Treaſurers of the Grand Signior in their Government, and this Penſion is called Saliane. There are 22 Beglerbegs with Chas, and 6 with Saliane; but they are become almoſt independant on the Grand Signior. There are Five of theſe Beglerbegs who have the Title of Viſiers, or Counſellors of State. In each Beglerbegſhip or Government, there are Three Principal Officers with the Beglerbeg, who are the Mufti, the Reis-Effendi, called otherwiſe Reis-Kitab, and the Tefterdar. The Mufti is the Head of the Religion; Reis-Effendi is the Secretary of State, and the Tefterdar is the Treaſurer of the Exchequer. Theſe Three Officers are the Principal Counſellors of the Beglerbegs and Baſſas of Provinces. Ricaut of the Ottoman Empire.

BEGUARDS, and Beguines, a certain Sect of pretended Hereticks, who roſe in Germany and in the Low-Countreys, about the end of the Thirteenth Age. They made profeſſion of Monaſtical Life, without obſerving Celibacy; and maintained, if we may believe the Monks, moſt pernicious Errors: For they believed, that Man could become as perfect in this Life, as he ſhall be in Heaven; That every intellectual Nature is of it ſelf happy, without the ſuccour of Grace; and that he who is in this State of Perfection, ought to perform no good Works, nor worſhip the Sacrament. Theſe Hereticks found many Followers in Germany, though they were condemned in ſeveral Councils. They were Baniſh'd Baſil by the perſuaſion of Mulberg, a Dominican Preacher; Their Houſes were given to the Biſhops and others, and their Furniture to the Franciſcans in 1411. Stumfius Hiſt. Baſil. The Beguines were of Two ſorts, the firſt made no Vows, and followed the Opinions of the Beguards and Margaret Parete. The others were not condemned, and lived under the Conſtitutions of one St. Begga, Siſter to St. Gertrude; or, as others ſay, of a holy Prieſt named Lambert Begha. Pope John XXII. Succeſſor to Clement, diſtinguiſheth theſe Two ſorts of Beguines, which is worthy of Obſervation, for there are as yet in the Low-Countreys ſome of theſe Nuns. Sander. Prateol.

BEHEMOTH: This Word ſignifies in general Beaſts of Burden, and all manner of Cattel, and it is taken in Job, ch. 40. for an Ox of an extraordinary bigneſs. The Talmudiſt Doctors, and Allegorical Authors of the Jews, and amongſt others R. Eliezer, ſays, that God created this great Beaſt named Behemoth, the Sixth day, and that it feeds upon a Thouſand Mountains in a day, and that the Graſs of theſe Thouſand Mountains grows up again during the night; and that the Waters of Jordan ſerve him for drink. They add, that this Behemoth is deſtined to make a great Banquet to the Juſt at the end of the World. The moſt Judicious Jews take not this Story for a Truth; but ſay, 'tis an Allegory, that ſignifies the Joy and Pleaſures of the Juſt, which are figured by this Feaſt. Bochart hath ſhewn at large in the Second Part of his Hierozoicon, l. 5. ch. 15. That the Behemoth of Job is the Hippopotamus, or a River Horſe. Ludolf's Hiſtory of Abyſſinia.

BEJA, a City of Portugal, with the Title of Dutchy: It is the Pax Julia of the Ancients, as the moſt Learned Criticks are perſwaded. Beja was a Roman Colony, and there are yet illuſtrious Monuments of what it has been in times paſt; as the remainders of its Water-Conduits, Medals, Inſcriptions, &c. It is betwixt Cadaon and Guadiana or Anas, two Leagues from the latter, and ten or twelve from the Sea. Its Territory is pretty Fertile, and the City Rich and Strong. Antonin, Merula, Mariana.

BEITO-LLAH, the Name of the Moſch at Mecca in Arabia. It ſignifies, The Houſe of God. The Mahometans likewiſe call this Moſch Kiblah, becauſe the Turks are obliged to turn their Faces towards it when they ſay their Prayers. See Kiblah.

BEL, or Belus, whom the Scripture nameth Nimrod, was the firſt King of Aſſyria after the Flood, and the confuſion of Tongues. He begun to Reign at Babylon, which he built upon the Banks of Euphrates in 1879. of the World, and died after he had Reigned 65 years in 1914. He was Honoured as a God after his Death. According to other Chronologers, who follow Herodotus, Belus, Father to Ninus, lived in the time of the Judges of Iſrael, and the Empire of the Aſſyrians laſted but 500 years. Marſham.

BEL (John) Canon of St. Lambert in Liege. He flouriſh'd in the beginning of the Fourteenth Century. He wrote a Chronicle, and Collected a great many Memoirs of the Wars of his own time. John Froiſart form'd his Hiſtory upon theſe Memoirs, which he preſented to Philippa of Hainault, Queen of England, and Wife of Edward III. Froiſart Preface.

BELA the Firſt, King of Hungary, was Son to Boleſlaus the Bald. He aſſociated to the Crown his Brother Andrew I. and then about 1061. he drove him out with the help of Boleſlaus King of Poland, who gave him his Daughter in Marriage. Bela died after a Reign of Three years, in 1063. It is ſaid he cauſed Silver Money to be Coined, regulated Weights and Meaſures, and put to death all the Hungarians who had quitted the Chriſtian Religion to return to Idolatry. Gerſa his Son fearing the Arms of the Emperor H. IV. yielded the Kingdom to his Couſin Solomon, Son to Andrew I. Bonfin.

BELA the Second, Son to Armos called the Blind, becauſe his Brother Coloman had cauſed his Eyes to be pull'd out, and baniſh'd him with his Family: He was recalled, after the death of his Uncle Stephen, the ſecond Succeſſor, and Brother to the ſame Coloman, about 1132. and Reigned with a great deal of Prudence. He waged War againſt ſome Rebels, and amongſt others, againſt Boricus, Baſtard to Coloman, who would have raviſh'd the Crown from him, but was Baniſhed. Bela II. Married the Daughter of the Earl of Servin, of whom he had Geiſa III. and Two other Sons who Reigned ſucceſſively after him. He died in 1141.

BELA the Third, came to the Crown after his Brother Stephen III. in 1173. and purged the Kingdom of a great many Thieves that Robbed on every ſide. He Married in 1185 Margaret of France, Daughter to Lewis the Young, Siſter to Philippa Auguſta, and Widow to Henry the Young, called Short-Mantle, King of England. Bela III. died in 1196. leaving Two Sons, Emerick and Andrew II. who were both Kings.

BELA the Fourth, Son to Andrew II. ſucceeded his Father in 1235. He was very Valiant, but not ſucceſsful, having had the misfortune to ſee his Son Stephen V. Revolt againſt him, and Hungary laid deſolate by the Tartars, ſo that he was forced to fly, and retire into the Iſles of the Adriatick Sea. Pope Clement V. reconciled him to his Son, and Gregory IX. publiſhed a Croiſade in his favour, againſt the Barbarians. He was re-inthroned by the Succour of the Knights of Rhodes, and the Frangipani, and he died in 1260. or 1275. according to Bonfinius, l. 2. dec. 8.

BELCASTRO, or Belicaſtro, a City of Italy in Calabria, with a Biſhoprick, Suffragan of St. Severina; it is betwixt the latter City and the Sea: The Modern Authors call it Bellicaſtrum. It is commonly taken for the Chonia of the Ancients; but there is a greater likelihood that it hath been built upon the ruines of Petillia, whereof Strabo, Plinius, Ptolemy, and Pomponius Mela make mention: It ſtands 5 miles from the Sea, and 13 S. W. of St. Severino.

BELENUS, or Belenos, a Name which the Gauls gave to the Sun, which they alſo called Mithra, and whoſe Letters taken for Figures make 365.

BELESME, a City of France in the Upper Perche, with a Caſtle: Its Territory is very conſiderable; The States of the Province are commonly held there. It is on the Frontiers of Perche, on the ſide of Normandy and Maine, upon a Brook which diſcharges it ſelf into the Ronne to join the Huigne. See Perche.

BELESTA, a marvellous Fountain of the County of Foix, in the Dioceſe of Mirepoix, which Ebbs and Flows all hours of the day, from the end of July to the beginning of January. Davity.

BELFAST, a thriving Sea-Port Town of the Province of Ulſter, in the N. of Ireland; 'tis ſeated on the Mouth of Lagan-Water, ſome miles S. and by W. of Carrickfergus, upon the Bay of that Name.

BELGICK, or Fort Belgick, Arx Belgica, a Fort belonging to the Hollanders, ſituated in the Iſle of Nera, which is one of the Three principal of Banda, amongſt the Molucor.

BELGIUM, one of the Three parts of the Gauls, which was ſince divided into Belgium the Firſt, Belgium the Second, Upper Germany and Lower Germany, where are now the Archbiſhopricks of Treves, Reims, Ments, and Cologne. Julius Cæſar ſpeaks advantageouſly of the Belgick Gaul, which he places in the Firſt Book of his Commentaries, betwixt the Rhine, the Ocean, and the Rivers of Seine and Marne. He confeſſeth, that in his time the Belgæ were the moſt Valiant People of Gaul, becauſe they were the leaſt given to Luxury, and that they were in continual Wars with the Germans. Now the Name of Belgæ and Belgium is given to Low Germany, which comprehends the 17 Provinces of the Netherlands, that lie betwixt France, Germany and England. Of theſe 17 Provinces there are Four Dutchies, to wit, Brabant, Limbourg, Luxembourg, and Gueldres: Seven Counties, Holland, Zealand, Hainault, Flandres, Zutphen, Artois, and Namur: A Marquiſate, which is that of the Holy Empire, wherein is Antwerp; and Five Lordſhips, Malines, Utrecht, Friſe, Groningen, and Over-Yſſell. This Country is not great; but Rich, and well Peopled, and the Territories fertil, chiefly in Paſtures. There are divers Rivers in it, from which Canals have been cut, in order to Trade from one City to another. The chief of theſe Rivers are, the Rhine, the Meuſe, the Scheld, Aa, Yſſell, the Lys, Moſelle, Sambre, &c. It has 200 Walled Cities, and 150 Boroughs, which are equal to the incloſed ones in Greatneſs and Riches, and 6300 Pariſhes, tho' all this Country is not above 340 Flandrian miles in circuit. Cæſar, Tacit. Ammian. Marcellin. Thuan. See Low-Countries.

BELGIUS, a Gauliſh Captain, who paſſed into Illyria and Macedonia, and rendred himſelf ſo formidable to theſe People, that they bought Peace of him. Ptolemæus Ceraunus, or the Thunder-bolt, ſcorning to acquire it after this manner; and having even dared to give him Battell in CXXV Olympiad, and 474 of Rome, was taken Priſoner, and had his Head cut off, which the Gauls carried upon the Point of a Lance. Belgins was killed a little while after. Polybius.

BELGRADE, or Alba Graca, and Alba Bulgarica, a City of Hungary in the Country called Raſcia: It is a little below the Confluence of the Save and Danube, conſiderable for its greatneſs, and by its ſituation upon a Hill, which renders it extraordinary ſtrong. Some do take it for the old Taurinum; but that was too far from the Confluence of the Save and Danube to be the ſame with Belgrade: There is more likelihood that the latter being encreaſed by the ruine of the other, its Neighbourhood made it to be taken for the ſame City. Amurath II. loſt a Victorious Army before it in 1439. and Mahomet II. his Son, loſt another Army of 250000 Men before it in 1456. which the brave Huniades 'ruin'd by this Stratagem; He ſuffered a Party of the Turks to enter the Town, and whilſt they were Plundering, Sallied out, and took their Cannon, turn'd 'em againſt themſelves, kill'd 40000 of 'em, and forc'd the reſt to an inglorious flight, leaving all their Baggage and Ammunition behind. In 1521. Soliman the Magnificent took it after Two Months Siege, Lewis King of Hungary being then but 15 years of Age, and the other Chriſtian Princes being engaged in a mutual War. It was for many years after neglected by the Turks; but in 1686. they begun to refortifie it after the loſs of Buda. In 1688. the Emperor ſent the Duke of Bavaria againſt it with a Potent Army, he forced his way over the Save, Aug. 8. and defeated 6000 of the beſt of the Turkiſh Troops; on the 10th he marched towards Belgrade, whereupon the Turks ſet fire to the Lower Town, and abandoned it, tho' they had 20000 Men incamp'd, and a ſtrong Work which reach'd from the Town to the Save. An old Baſſa was left to Command the Upper Town and Caſtle. On the 12th, the Chriſtians begun their Approaches, the Turks making a vigorous Defence; but Breaches being made, the Chriſtians Storm'd it thrice ſucceſſively on the 6th of September, and at the Third Aſſault entred the Place, putting all to the Sword at firſt, ſo that there were about 7000 kill'd and thrown into the Save; but the Baſſa, and about 3000 more, obtain'd Quarter, having Chain'd 200 Chriſtian Slaves, whom they ſet betwixt them and the Imperialiſts, to put a ſtop to the fury of the Soldiers. There were 70 Pieces of Canon, with a vaſt deal of Plunder, tho' the Inhabitants had been removing their Effects a long time, and 1000 Boats went down the River the day before the Lower Town was burnt: The Chriſtians had about 4000 killed and wounded in this Siege. In 1690 the Emperor being attack'd by the French K. on the other ſide. The Prime Viſier ſat down before Belgrade, Oct. 3. with 60000 Men; the Garriſon conſiſted of 6000 Men well provided, who made a gallant defence, and killed abundance of Turks; but on the 8th a Bomb falling into the Magazine, blew it up, with 1700 Germans going to Mount the Guard, and ſet fire to the other Magazines, blew up part of the Walls, and fill'd the Ditches; ſo that the Enemy entred by whole Squadrons, putting all to the Sword. The Fire deſtroyed the Town and Caſtle; and only the Governor with 300 of the Garriſon eſcaped: He was afterwards brought to his Trial for not having done his part, but acquitted. Since that time the Turks have refortified it. This Place was beſieged again by the Imperial Army, who opened the Trenches before it on the 13th of Auguſt 1693. under the Command of the Duke of Croy, and continued the Siege with good ſucceſs till the 7th of September following, when failing in the general Aſſault made upon the Counterſcarp, and underſtanding the Grand Viſier, with 80000 Men, was marching up to the relief of it, they drew off on the 10th without moleſtation, and made a ſafe Retreat. Its Long. is 47. 00. Lat. 46. 50.

BELIAL, the Name of an Idol of the Sidonians. St. Paul gives this Name to Satan. Aquila expounds this Word by that of Apoſtate; and the Chaldeans by that of Malignity.

BELICHE, a Name which the People of Madagaſcar give to the Evil Spirit, to whom they throw the firſt bit of the Victim, to render him favourable unto them. Flacourt Hiſtoire de Madagaſcar.

BELIDES, or Danaides, the Name of the 50 Daughters of King Danaüs, Son to Bel ſirnamed the Ancient. See Danaides.

BELISARIUS, General of the Armies of the Emperor Juſtinian, the ſtay of his Throne, and one of the greateſt Captains of his Age. In 529 he marched againſt Cabades King of the Perſians, who took Arms by reaſon of the Protection which the Emperor gave to Tzathus King of Colchis. This Expedition was very ſucceſsful to Beliſarius, who was recalled to go and Command the Army which was to be ſent to Africk. In 532. a Treaty of Peace was made with the Perſians. In January ſuch a Sedition aroſe at Conſtantinople, that Juſtinian propoſed to withdraw; but Beliſarius diſſwaded him, and the Rebels were brought to their Duty, tho' they had proclaimed for Emperor one Hypatius, upheld by Probus and Pompeius, Nephews to Anaſtaſius. In 533. Beliſarius having conducted into Africk a Naval Army conſiſting of 500 Ships, took Carthage, and ſubdued Gilimer in 534. who had uſurped the Crown of the Vandals, after having cauſed his Couſin Hilderic, Son to Hunneric and Eudoxia, to be Maſſacred. Thus Africk was re-united to the Empire, after it had been ſeparated from it more than 100 years, and the puiſſant Monarchy of the Vandals (who were infected with the Hereſie) was ruined. Gilimer was taken and brought to Conſtantinople. Beliſarius went through the City on foot to go into the Hippodromus, where Juſtinian expected him upon a Magnificent Throne, in order to receive the Honours of this Triumph. After ſo great an advantage, it was reſolved to deliver Italy from the Tyranny of the Goths. Beliſarius prepared himſelf for this ſecond Expedition. In 535. being Conſul, he paſſed into Sicily, where he immediately took Catana, Syracuſa, Palermo, &c. and the enſuing year, he went with part of his Army to beſiege Naples: In the mean time the Goths had put to death King Theodatus, at the perſwaſion of Vitiges, who was put upon the Throne. This Attempt helped on the Deſigns of Beliſarius: He preſented himſelf before the City of Rome, where he was received the 10th of December 536. The year following Vitiges came to beſiege him; but he found ſo much reſiſtance, that he retired in 538. Two years after, this unfortunate King was taken in the City of Ravenna, with his whole Family; and Beliſarius choſe rather to carry 'em Priſoners to Conſtantinople, than to receive the Crown of the Goths, which was offered to him, preferring Loyalty to a Crown. In 541. Beliſarius having been ſent into the Eaſt againſt the Perſians, waſted Aſſyria, as he did alſo in 543. In the mean while, the Affairs of Italy wanted his preſence; Totila was choſen King of the Goths, and after having taken Naples, Tivoli, and other conſiderable Places, he had turned all his Forces againſt Rome, taken it in 546. ruined its Houſes, demoliſh'd the Walls, and Plundered it during four days. The year following Beliſarius threw himſelf into it, rebuilt its Walls, and defended it. In 549 Totila retook it. In the mean time Beliſarius paſſed into the Eaſt to oppoſe the Perſians. In 558 he beat back the Huns that made an irruption upon the Territories of the Empire. They ſay, that in 651. this great Man being accuſed of having conſented to a Conſpiracy againſt Juſtinian, the ſame Emperor deprived him of all his Means, took from him his Imployments, and pulled out his Eyes. It is the Opinion of the Latin Authors, who ſay, that Beliſarius was reduc'd to beg in the Streets of Conſtantinople. The Author of the mixed Hiſtory of Conſtantinople writes, That the year enſuing he was re-eſtabliſhed in his Dignities: And Cedrenus ſaith, That he died in Peace at Conſtantinople. Alciat, to defend Juſtinian, is of this Opinion, againſt Crinitus, Volateran, and others: They aſſure, that Beliſarius died the 13th of March, 565. Procopius, Agathias, Glycas, &c.

BELKNAP (Sir Robert) Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common-Pleas in the Reign of Richard II. He and ſome of the Judges were baniſh'd by Order of Parliament, tho' it muſt be ſaid, the Lords of this Parliament having drawn up 40000 Men upon the King, over-aw'd him to conſent to Bills, which he did not like. Baker's Chron.

BELLAC, a little City of France in the County of La Marche, upon the River Unicou, two Leagues South from Dorat, and ſeven North from Limoges.

BELLAGINES, a Name which the Goths gave to their Municipal Laws, according to Jornandes, l. 1. c. 11. of the Hiſtory of this People: But the Word is corrupted, and Bilagines is the proper one.

BELLAGIO (Guy) Cardinal of the Title of Chryſogonus, was of Florence. He died at his return from the Holy-Land, about the year 1153.

BELLARMIN (Robert) a Cardinal, Archbiſhop of Capua, was Native of Montepulciano in Tuſcany, and Son to Cinthia Corvina, Siſter to Pope Marcellus II. He was admitted Jeſuit at 18 years of Age, Sept. 20. 1560. He made in a very ſhort time ſo marvellous a progreſs in Sciences, that he was judged capable to Preach, even before he received Prieſt's Orders; for he received that Order but in 1569. Bellarmin was then at Lovain, where he Preach'd in Latin, with ſuch a reputation, that Proteſtants went on purpoſe out of England and Holland to hear him. He taught at the ſame time Divinity in Hebrew; and was taken up in Reading the Fathers, the Hiſtory of the Church, of the Councils, and of the Canon Law, which was of uſe to him in his Work of Eccleſiaſtical Writers, where he paſſes his Cenſure upon 400 Authors. Being afterwards returned to Rome about the year 1576. Pope Gregory XIII. appointed him to Teach the Controverſies againſt Proteſtants in the new College which he had founded. There it was that he wrote his Treatiſes upon this Subject. In 1590. Pope Sixtus V. gave him to Cardinal Henry Cajetan, to be his Divine, during his Legateſhip in France. After ſome other Imployments in his Order, Pope Clement VIII. created him Cardinal in 1599. and next Archbiſhop of Capua. In 1605. the ſame Pope being dead, Cardinal Bellarmin was obliged to return to Rome, and aſſiſted at the Creation of Leo XI. and Paul V. the latter having obliged him to remain with him, wanting his Counſels and Lights for the Government of the Church, this great Man quitted the Archbiſhoprick of Capua, believing he could not in Conſcience keep the ſame, and not watch over the conduct of his Flock. Thoſe of Capua teſtified thereupon an incredible grief, and in truth that City never had a greater Prelate. Cardinal Bellarmin continued to ſerve the Church of Rome until 1621. That finding himſelf ill, he came out of the Vatican where he lodged, and withdrew into the Novitiate Houſe of St. Andrew: This happened the 16th of Auguſt, under the Pontificate of Gregory XV. who viſited him in his Sickneſs, and embraced him twice with much tenderneſs: This Cardinal died September 17. 1621. being 79 years of Age. We have of his Treatiſes of Controverſie in Three or Four Volumes in Folio. Explanatio in Pſalmos, Opuſcula, Conciones Sacræ, De Scriptoribus Eccleſiaſticis; An Anſwer to the Book of King James I. intituled, Triplex nodus, triplex cuneus, &c. His Life hath been written by James Fuligati, who may be conſulted as well as Alegambus, Poſſevinus, Sponde, &c. Godeau.

BELLASIS Thomas, Earl of Faulconberg, or Faulconbridge, deſcended from an Ancient Family in the North of England. Of this Family was Sir Henry Bellaſis of Newborough in the County of York, Son and Heir to Sir William Bellaſis; from this Henry ſprang Thomas, who for his great Merits, and faithful Service to King Charles I. was by him advanced to the Dignity of a Baron of this Realm, by the Title of Lord Faulconberg, and afterwards Viſcount of Faulconberg of Heuknowl in the Biſhoprick of Durham. He had Iſſue Two Sons, Henry and John: Henry dying before his Father, left Two Sons, Thomas who ſucceeded his Grandfather in his Honour, and Sir Rowland Bellaſis; which Thomas was Captain of the Band of Penſioners to King Charles II. and was ſent by His Majeſty, An. 1670. His Ambaſſador Extraordinary to the Princes of Italy. His preſent Majeſty was pleas'd to confer upon him, ſince the Revolution, the Title and Dignity of Earl of Faulconberg, to make him one of the Lords of Their Majeſties Moſt Honourable Privy Council, and Lord Lieutenant of the North Riding of Yorkſhire: His Arms are Argent, a Chevron Gules between Three Flowers de Luce, Azure.

BELLASIS (Henry) a Baron of England, is the only Son of Sir Henry Bellaſis, Son of John Lord Bellaſis, and younger Brother of Henry, Father to the preſent Earl of Faulconbridge; which John, for his firm adhering to King Charles I. upon divers occaſions, was by him made Lord Bellaſis of Worlaby in the County of Lincoln, and had afterwards ſeveral Places of Truſt conferr'd upon him by King Charles II. But making ſcruple at the Oath injoyn'd by Act of Parliament, An. 1672. to be taken by all ſuch as did then, or ſhould thenceforth bear any Office under the King, he reſign'd all his Commands as followeth: His Government of Tangier to the Earl of Middleton; his Lieutenancy of the Eaſt Riding of Yorkſhire and Government of Hull, to the Duke of Monmouth; his Captainſhip of Penſioners to his Nephew Thomas, now Earl of Faulconbridge; and a Regiment of Foot, rais'd during the late Wars with the Dutch, to the Earl of Northampton. This John Lord Bellaſis Married Three Wives, Jane his firſt Wife, being Daughter and Heir to Sir Robert Butler of Woodhall in Herefordſhire; by whom he left Henry the preſent Lord Bellaſis, who was made Knight of the Bath, at the Coronation of King Charles II. His Arms are much the ſame as the Earl of Faulconbridges.

BELLAY, near the Rhoſne and Foran, a City of France, Capital of Bugey, with a Bayliwick, Election, and a Suffragan Biſhoprick of Beſançon: Some Latin Authors call it Bellicum and Bellica. The City is pretty Ancient; but it was all burnt in 1385. It's thought that Amedeus VIII. rebuilt it, and environed it with Walls and divers Towers. The Biſhop is the Temporal Lord of it. Audax is the ancienteſt of them that we know, ſince he lived in 412. It's 12 miles E. of Lions, 10 N. of Grenoble, and 12 from Geneva.

BELLAY, a conſiderable Family in France, for the great Men it hath produced, and by its Antiquity.

BELLAY (John) Cardinal, Biſhop of Paris, of an ancient and conſiderable Family, was born in 1492. He had conſiderable Imployments under Francis I. and got much Honour by the ſucceſs of many Embaſſies. At the Enterview of King Francis I. and Pope Clement VII. at Marſeilles in 1533. the Marriage of Henry II. then Duke of Orleans, and of Katharine de Medicis, the Pope's Niece, was then concluded. William Paget, Preſident of the Parliament of Paris, and ſince Chancellor of France, was to Harangue Clement; but being ordered to change his Speech the very day he was to pronounce it, he was ſo ſurpriſed, that he deſired the King to free him of this Commiſſion. It was given to John du Bellay, and he ſpake with the applauſe and ſatisfaction of every one, tho' he was not prepared. In the mean time, the French King preſſing hard upon the Pope, to give him ſome ſatisfaction as to the King of England, and to ſtifle the ſeparation from the Church of Rome, which was forming in that Kingdom, it was reſolved to ſend the Biſhop of Paris, who freely underwent that Commiſſion. Having taken Poſt, he embarqu'd to paſs into England, where he happily brought the King to all ſorts of reaſonable accommodation, provided he had time given him to defend himſelf by Proxy. This Wiſe Prelate repaſſed the Sea, and went to Rome in the depth of Winter. He obtained of the Pope the delay which the King of England demanded, to whom he ſent a Courier for the Proxy which he had promiſed: But the Courier not being able to return to the Pope at the day fixed, the Agents of the Emperor Charles V. prevail'd ſo, that the Excommunication was thunder'd againſt Henry VIII. and his Kingdom was interdicted, what Proteſtations ſoever the Biſhop of Paris might make; who judiciouſly remonſtrated, that it was very unjuſt to refuſe a reſpite of 5 or 6 days to a great Prince, whom they had detained by inſufferable delays 6 years together. The Courier arrived two days after; and the Court of Rome had no ſmall reaſon to be diſpleaſed at its Precipitation, and to deteſt the violence of thoſe who had ſacrificed the Romiſh Religion, and the Glory of that Church, to their Ambition. It put the Biſhop of Paris into deſpair of ſucceſs, and the Proxies which the King of England ſent him were uſeleſs. After this misfortune he continued his Cares for the Affairs of France under Paul III. who ſucceeded Clement; and it was of the ſame Paul that he had his Cardinals Hat, May 25. 1535. The year enſuing he aſſiſted at a Conſiſtory, where the Emperor Charles V. furiouſly inveighed againſt Francis I. The Cardinal dexterouſly diſſembled his diſpleaſure; but he had ſo good a Memory, that he retained Word for Word the ſtudied Harangue of the Emperor: And as it was very important for the King's Affairs, to know from the Original the deſigns of the Emperor, Du Bellay took Poſt, to give him advice of it. Then it was that Charles came into Provence in 1537. The King, willing to oppoſe this Enemy, left his Capital City with Cardinal Du Bellay, and made him his Lieutenant General, to relieve the Neceſſities of Picardy and Champagne: The Cardinal ſhewed in this Occaſion, that he was as intelligent in Warlike Affairs, as in the Intrigues of the Cloſet; he undertook to defend Paris, which was in a Tumult, and fortified it with a Rampart and Bulwarks, which are to be ſeen at this day. He provided with the ſame Care for the other Cities. After the death of John de Langeac, which happened in 1541. the King named him to the Biſhoprick of Limoges. He had the Archbiſhoprick of Bourdeaux in 1544. and finally he ſucceeded in 1546. to Renatus du Bellay, his Brother, Biſhop of Mens. Thus it was, that the King ſought all Occaſions to Reward the Fidelity of this Cardinal, whom he alſo made a Member of his Privy Council: But after the death of this great Prince, in 1547. Cardinal du Bellay was deprived of his Rank and Credit, by thoſe who ſucceeded him in favour, and chiefly by the Cardinal of Lorrain. He withdrew to Rome, where he was made Biſhop of Oſtia, and Dean of the Cardinals, during the abſence of thoſe of Tournon and Bourbon. His Worth was in ſo great eſteem at Rome, that he was in Election to be made Pope after the death of Marcellus II. He died in the ſame City, Febr. 16. 1560. being 68 years of Age; and was interr'd in Trinity-Church of the Mount. This great Prelate left ſome Speeches, an Apology for King Francis I. and divers Poems in Three Books, the Reading of which ſheweth his piercing and delicate Wit. Francis Rabelais was his Domeſtick, and he conferred upon him the Pariſh of Meudon, near Paris. Nicholas Reince of Paris was his Secretary, whoſe Fidelity the Emperor could never corrupt. Thuan. Paul. Jov. Sainte Marthe.

BELLAY, (Martin of) Brother to the Cardinal, and Prince of Ivetot. King Francis I. eſteem'd him much, and employ'd him in the Wars, in important Embaſſies, and ſeveral other Affairs. To reward his Services, he gave him the Government of Normandy, and made him Knight of his Order. He managed his Time ſo well in his great Imployments, that he found vacant Hours to work at his Memorials, which contain the moſt memorable Tranſactions under the Reign of Francis I. to the time of Henry II. Thuan.

BELLEFOREST, (Francis) of the County of Comminges, was eſteemed under the Reign of Charles IX. and Henry III. His Coſmography, Printed in the year 1575. is in 3 Volumes: The Annals of France are in 2. He compoſed alſo the Hiſtory of the Nine Charles's, Kings of France; tranſlated divers Treatiſes from Greek into Latin, Spaniſh, Italian, &c. He died at Paris, Jan. 1. 1583. being 53. years old. Thuan. Spond.

BELLEGARDE upon the Soan, a City of France in Burgundy, with the Title of a Dutchy: It hath been in times paſt pretty ſtrong, whence it got the Name of Secure; but King Lewis the Juſt having erected it in An. 1620. into a Dutchy and Peerdom for Roger of St. Lari, Bellegarde, the Name of that Nobleman's Family, was tranſlated thither. It is about 5 or 6 Leagues from Châlon above Verdun, and upon the Frontiers of Franche Comté.

BELLEGARDE, a ſtrong Place in the County of Rouſſillon, upon the Frontiers of Catalonia, betwixt Ceret and Jonquere, was taken in 1674. by the Spaniards, who tho' they had fortified it, were forced to ſurrender it to Mareſchal Schomberg.

BELLE-ISLE, in Lat. Formoſa Inſula, Gr. Καλονῆσος, an Iſle of France upon the Coaſts of Brittany, with the Title of a Marquiſate: It is about 6 Leagues in length, and 2 in breadth, with a good Port, and ſome Caſtles, over-againſt Vannes and Aurai, being but 5 or 6 miles from the Continent. Belle-Iſle is conſiderable for its Salt-works, and the ordinary Paſſage of Ships along its Coaſts.

BELLE-ISLE, or Formoſa, an Iſle of Aſia upon the Eaſtern Ocean of China, betwixt the Province of Fuquien on the Weſt, the Iſle Manille, or of Lucon, on the South, and divers other ſmall Iſlands on the Eaſt, as Pakau, Tobaco-Miguel, Tobaco-Xima, &c. It is pleaſant and fertile; and the Hollanders endeavour'd to eſtabliſh themſelves there, but they have been expell'd by the Chineſe. The principal Boroughs of Belle-Iſle, are Toyoan-Gillira, Wankan, &c.

BELLERE, (John) a Famous Printer at Antwerp, acquir'd great Reputation by his Works. He Printed a Dictionary extracted from Robert Stephens and Geſner, and compoſed another in Latin and Spaniſh, as is to be ſeen in the Lives of the Stephens. Bellere's Editions were eſteem'd, becauſe of the fairneſs of their Characters, and the good Paper. They ſet up alſo at Douay, where Balthaſar Bellere's Editions are valued. Malinkrot Ars Typograph.

BELLEROPHON, Son to Glaucus King of Ephyra, is renowned in the Writings of the Poets. He ſo obſtinately refuſed the Love of Sthenobea, Daughter to Itobates King of Lycia, and Wife to Prætus King of Argos, to whom Bellerophon fled, that this Princeſs accuſed him before her Huſband, as tho' he had made an Attempt upon her Honour. Prætus, unwilling to violate the Law of Nations, ſent him into Lycia, with Letters directed to Itobates, Father to Sthenobea, with Orders to put him to death. Thence came the Proverb, Literæ Bellerophontis, for Letters written againſt the Bearers of them. But Bellerophon Triumph'd over the Enemies of that King; and being mounted upon the Horſe Pegaſus, he defeated the Chimæra, in the year of the World 2693. The true Name of Bellerophon was Hipponous, and the other was given him becauſe he had killed Bellerus, one of the Chief of the City of Corinth, whence he was forced to fly, and withdraw to Argos: There it was that Sthenobea ſaw and loved him. Itobates expoſed him to great Dangers, but he always went through them by his Prudence and Courage. He made uſe of a Brigantine, or, according to others, of a ſmall Fleet, whoſe Admiral had a winged Horſe for a Banner; with this Ship he ſailed every where with much eaſe, and defeated a Pirate who had his retreat upon Mount Chimæra, and whoſe Ship had a Lion upon its Prow, a Dragon on the Poop, and a Goat in the middle. This occaſioned the Fables which the Poets have mixed in the Hiſtory of Bellerophon, who became afterwards Son-in-Law to Itobates. Homer, Natalis Comes, Eraſmus in Adag.

BELLIN, or Belinus, an old fabulous Britiſh King: It's pretended that he was Son to Dunvalo, and Brother to Brennus, a famous Gauliſh Captain, who carried the War into Italy. They pretend that theſe two Brothers warred againſt one another; and that as they were ready to give Battel, their Mother brought them to an Accommodation: That Belinus accompanied his Brother into Italy, and died at his return, leaving the Crown to his Son Gurguntius, about the year of the World 3670. This time, 'tis true, agreeth with that wherein Brennus lived, who defeated the Romans near the River Allia, and took their City in the year 364. of its Foundation, in the third year of XCVII Olympiad, which was the year 3664, or 65. of the World.

BELLIN, (Gentil) of Venice, Eldeſt Son to James Bellin, was born in 1421. There happened a very ſingular thing to Gentil Bellin; for Mahomet II. Emperor of the Turks, having ſeen ſome of his Paintings, was ſo charm'd therewith, that not being able to comprehend how a mortal Man was capable of making Works, which he look'd upon as altogether Divine, he deſired to have the Author, and to ſee him Work: Therefore he writ to the Republick, and prayed them to ſend Bellin to him; who went to Conſtantinople, and made very fine Pictures for the Grand Signior. He Painted, amongſt other Pieces, the Decollation of St. John Baptiſt, whom the very Turks do Honour as a great Prophet: Mahomet admired the Proportion and Shadowing of the Work, but he found a Defect in it, viz. That the Neck was too high and too large, being ſeparated from the Head; and to convince him of the Truth of his Obſervation by a natural Example, he call'd for a Slave, had his Head cut off in his preſence, and made him obſerve that the Neck ſeparated from the Head, grew extreamly ſmall. But this Play not pleaſing the Painter, he was ſeized with a mortal Fright, which left him not before he had obtained his Diſmiſſion; for the Example of the Slave, ſo barbarouſly maſſacred, could not be put out of his Mind: However, the Grand Signior preſented him with rich Gifts; he himſelf put a golden Chain of great Value about his Neck, and ſent him back to Venice, with Letters of Recommendation to the Republick, from which he had a conſiderable Penſion aſſign'd him during his Life. Bellin made beſides ſeveral Works at Venice, as that wherein he repreſents the Ambaſſadors of the Republick ſent to Frederick II. to perſuade him to a Peace with Pope Alexander. Vaſari, Ridolfi, Felibien.

BELLIN, (John) Son of James, and Brother of Gentil, and of the ſame Profeſſion: He made ſeveral admirable Pieces, which are now to be ſeen in the Hall of the Council of Venice. He Painted with more Art and Sweetneſs than his Brother. He drew ſeveral Pourtraicts of his Friends, as that of Benbo. He died in the year 1512. being 90 years old: 'Twas this year in which he began, at the inſtance of the Duke of Ferrara, the Repreſentation of the Bacchanalia, which are now to be ſeen in the Family of the Aldobrandini, but died before he could finiſh it. Titian afterwards added an admirable Landſkip to it. Felibien Entrette des Peint.

BELLINZONA, Bilitionum, a Town in the Confines of Milan, upon the River Teſino, at the North end of the Lake, called Lago Maggore, 45 Italian miles from Milan to the North: It was heretofore a Place of great Note, and Subject to the Earls of the ſame Name, whoſe Iſſue failing, it was poſſeſſed by the Earls of Monſaxo, but the Dukes of Milan being ſtronger, Uſurped and took it; The Earls by Stratagem recovered it, and ſold it to the Griſons in 1421. The Duke of Milan retook it by Fraud, and in 1422. there was a ſharp War between him and the Griſons for it, which continued till that the French invading that Dutchy, the Inhabitants in the year 1500. put themſelves under the Griſons for Protection. The French, whilſt they poſſeſt Milan, attempted many times to recover it, but without any Succeſs. In 1515. it ſuffered much by an Inundation. There is a Tradition that Valentinian the Third was Buried here.

BELLONA, the Goddeſs of War, was the Companion or Siſter of Mars. She had Prieſts called Bellonarii, who uſed to make Inciſions in their Body, in Honour of her; and after having gathered their Blood in the Palm of their Hand, gave it to thoſe who were Partakers of their Myſteries. Bellona is often taken for Pallas, and others do make her Goddeſs of Blood, Slaughter, and Fury. She was one of the Principal Divinities of the Cappadocians, where the Prieſts of Bellona were the firſt and the moſt conſidered next to their Kings. The Ancients repreſented her variouſly, ſometimes with a Pike in her Hand, and ſometimes with her Hair hanging in diſorder. Tertullian, Lactantius, Firmian.

BELLOVESUS, Son to a Siſter of Ambigat King of the Gauls, about the year 164 of Rome. He is thought to be the Builder of the City of Beauvais, and to have given it his Name. He went out of his Country with Segoveſus to Conquer new Lands. The latter paſſed into Germany, and Belloveſe went into Provence, where he aſſiſted the Phocenſes, new Inhabitants of Marſeilles, againſt the Salians. Afterwards he entred into Italy, became Maſter of that part which we call Lumbardy, and built there the Cities of Milan, Breſce, Bononia, Cremona, Bergamo, &c. He favoured the paſſage of the other Gauls who went to eſtabliſh themſelves in that Country, and his Victories were the Cauſe that the Name of Gallia Cis-Alpina was given to the beſt and fertileſt Land of Italy. The Expedition of Belloveſe is commonly fix'd in the year 164 of Rome, the XLVII Olympiad, and about the year 3464 of the World, which agreeth with the Account of Titus Livius, who ſays, that this happened 200 years before the taking of Rome. Tit. Liv. Dupleix. Petau.

BELLUNE, or Ciutad de Belun, Belunum, a City of Italy in Marchia Treviſana, belonging to the Republick of Venice, with a Suffragan Biſhoprick to Aquileia. It is ſituated betwixt the Mountains, is little, but pleaſant, and has been the Birth place of ſeveral Learned Men, as Pierius Valerianus. It is 13 Leagues S. E. of Venice.
